Mr. Mahbudi, one of the friends from Isfahan who visited the Guardian in Haifa, acted as interpreter to Miss Martha Root during her visit to Isfahan and Shiraz in southern Persia. He gave us a vivid account of the meetings which were held in her honor and he especially mentioned the fact that in those public meetings non-Bahá'ís also attended. Miss Root has been quite enterprising in making use of the airplane in hopping from one end of Persia to the other.

The Bahá'ís throughout the world will be very pleased to learn that three additional rooms built by the Guardian in accordance with the Master's expressed wish and desire, have now been completed and that the restoration of the Mansion of Bahá'u'lláh will soon be terminated. It shall be a happy privilege of all those who will visit Haifa and Akka in the near future to visit that hallowed place so rich in happy and sacred memories. They will find it exactly as when it was occupied by Bahá'u'lláh.

We are very pleased that the Guardian's health is quite well and although a little tired he still devotes his entire time to his pressing duties and correspondence. He is hoping soon, however, to take his usual rest during the hot summer season which has already become oppressive. The Greatest Holy Leaf is also well and much cheered at heart by the happy news from America of the early construction of the Temple.

The family of the Master as well as the friends here join in happy greetings to their friends across the seas.

The Spiritual Assembly,

NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF IRAQ

Annual Report

This year has been remarkable compared with previous years. It marks the beginning of a serious effort towards spreading the principles of Bahá'u'lláh in this country. As soon as the present assembly came into power, the chairman sent invitations, on three occasions, and invited the leading Bahá'ís of Baghdad to come to a joint meeting with the Assembly in order to consider two points:

1) To consider whether it was advisable to start a campaign to spread the Cause in the capital and in Iraq.

2) To consider the last means by which such a campaign could be made fruitful.

The chairman's invitation was responded to by the friends who attended these meetings and took part in the deliberations of the assembly on the above mentioned points.

Meanwhile pamphlets bearing the teachings were sent to many prominent men in Baghdad and all over the country. These pamphlets were well received and on many occasions, in the higher circles of society, were mentioned with appreciation.

The Assembly applied itself successfully to the organization of the library and therefore passed regulations governing the maintenance and preservation of the existing library.

The Assembly has also drawn up and passed a constitution on the same lines as that adopted by the Bahá'í Assembly in Egypt. For the first time in the History of the Bahá'í Assembly in 'Iraq a constitution has been adopted with a view to putting the election for the Assembly on a sound basis and to put an end to the chaotic state of things which has been prevailing in the past.

As a preliminary for the application of the constitution the Assembly prepared special census forms to be sent to the friends all over the country in order to prepare an up-to-date register of all the Baha'is in this country.

The most important matter which engaged the attention of the Assembly during the current year has been the case of the houses of Baha'ullah. Since the announcement by the Council of the League of Nations of their decision in support of the claim of the Baha'is strong efforts have been made, from time to time, to bring the matter to a favorable conclusion. On this occasion the Baha'i Assembly wishes to record its deep gratefulness to those honorable Baha'is who are charged with the responsibility of carrying the case to a successful conclusion.

Considerable activity has been displayed in the districts during this year.

For some time in the past a small number of Baha'is lived in Basrah and slowly but steadily worked for the Cause. Gradually their number grew and their presence was felt by the communities around them. The fact that that little group of Baha'is lived an exemplary life and applied the spirit of the teaching of Baha'ullah to their private life as well as to their dealings with the people in whose midst they lived had a great deal to do towards furthering the interests of the Cause. One by one additions were made to the number of the members of the Community and no sooner had their number passed beyond nine than a Baha'i Assembly sprang up. This assembly, though in its infant stage, is making headway and success shall ultimately be attained.

Like her twin sister the infant assembly of Mosul is laboring successfully towards the promulgation of the Cause in Mosul and the Northern Districts of Iraq. Its members have been specially energetic in giving the Holy Message to the seekers and they have successfully added to their number and so considerable attention has been attracted to the cause.

Awashiq, an out-of-the-way village and inhabited by simple farmers, holds its head high as the only spot in Iraq which has a healthy Baha'i Community consisting of the entire population of the village. Our famous village is the only place in this country and one of the very few villages in the East which traces its history in the Cause back to the early days of the Holy Bab.

Ever since the inception of Bahaism, Awashiq has never ceased to be a center of activity and during the current year the people of Awashiq made a final effort and completed the construction of Hazirat-el-Quds which is a two story building constructed of burnt bricks and steel girders comprising one large room and an open court-yard in the ground floor and 4 rooms in the first floor. These upper rooms are partitioned in a manner that when the partitions are removed a large hall becomes available for holding general meetings. Awashiq is situated in the Diyala Valley, one of the most fertile valleys of Iraq. The country abounds with vast gardens of citrus trees and gorgeous date palm groves which during fruiting present a glorious sight of thousands of gold, yellow date clusters hanging from these escheloned palms like myriads of tiny incandescent lights.

INTERNATIONAL BAHAI BUREAU, GENEVA

Annual Report

The International Baha'i Center of Geneva since June, 1928, has been developing along tentative lines of general and universal character, and it has been increasing gradually its usefulness. By the explicit wish of the Guardian of the Cause, with his help and guidance, and the help of a few individual friends and Assemblies, added to the almost superhuman efforts of Mrs. Culver, the Bureau has functioned uninterruptedly since June, 1928. After the departure of Mrs. Stannard, owing to her illness, the Bureau was reorganized and a call sent out for cooperation, that the true nature of its international work might be fully realized.

The work has developed gradually, so that it has assumed more and more an international aspect in its character of service. From all parts letters are received asking for literature, for books, for addresses, information regarding other international centers, etc. To the world it has announced its international character by being a part of the "Federation des Institutions Internationales (Semi-officielles et Privées)", that are established at Geneva; a federation of institutions which aims to serve as an official protection and aid to its members and a link between them and the Genevoise public.

The building has grown in volume and it has contributed. Its usefulness is evident and developing.

During the summer months the Bureau forms a Center of intensive constructive work. Lectures are given, classes and group meetings are held, and social afternoons enjoyed.

The social side has not been neglected. Association with various international centers, taking part in international celebrations —lunches, dinners, peace celebrations, belonging to international groups who work on similar lines, and the entertaining of groups as well as the celebrating of all Baha'i feasts and anniversaries, has all received attention and had satisfactory results.

Our aim has been to form a Center that may be for the present a sign-post, a lighted beacon, holding aloft the banner of Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha until the call of the Guardian for concerted Baha'i cooperation to carry on and develop the work may be answered and effectuated.

Allah'u'Abhá! JULIA CULVER H. EMLOGNE HOOAGG.

SPRINGFIELD BAHAI'S HOLD THIRD ANNUAL OUTDOOR MEETING

CABLEGRAM FROM SHOGHI

EFFENDI

"Grieve passing (of) Bourgeois. May Almighty reward richly his high, unforgettable endeavors. Convey his family heartfelt condolences.

elsewhere in this issue, will be given most sympathetic and grateful attention by the American believers.

It has become known through other sources that the Cause in Germany has been visited of late by that mysterious test of faith, doubt of the Authority established under the shadow of the Manifestation to guard His Cause and insure the victory of His world order. This grievous condition has, at various times and under different conditions, existed in all countries where the Bahá’í Faith has taken root and produced evidences of its vital power.

Even though this doubt and unfaithfulness seizes only a few, its effects are grievous for all the loyal friends. Like the spreading of a poisonous smoke, it brings suffering to the workers and at times seems even to paralyze their efforts and offset their results.

In all likelihood, spiritual necessities make this test inevitable in every young and immature Faith. It compels each soul to assume the responsibility of his own decision; it deepens insight; it develops character; it affords training and experience in the greatest of all sciences, impersonal knowledge of human motives; it strengthens the will; it eliminates impure motives; it transfers our dependence from human beings to God. The ultimate effect upon the Cause is wholly beneficial.

In due time this acrid smoke will blow away, and the Cause in Germany after a season of struggle will manifest new courage, new vigor and new wisdom. Meanwhile, the loyal friends of Shoghi Effendi can be assured of the loving sympathy and heartfelt prayers of the believers in all other lands. Strange and mysterious that the radiant figure of the Guardian should be the target of the arrows of disobedience! Strange and mysterious that any soul who claimed loyalty to the Master should now find reason to deny and resist His Will!

But the Cause is as a tree. The branch that cuts itself off from the tree shall surely wither and die. For its life is from the tree and not from itself.

THE FEASTS AND ANNIVERSARIES

The question has been raised whether the statement made in the July, 1930, issue of Bahá’í News was intended to convey the fact that the Guardian’s instruction to the American National Assembly meant that each Local Assembly is free to decide for itself whether non-believers may be invited to the Nineteen-Day Feasts.

The answer is that only the Anniversaries, not the Nineteen-Day Feasts, have been left to the discretion of the believers. If a Local Assembly feels that the Cause will be served by inviting non-believers to one of the Anniversary meetings, it is free to do so, even though the National Assembly pointed out the ideal in the statement published last July. The Nineteen-Day Feasts, however, are for the recognized believers alone. If a non-believer be found present, naturally he will be treated with every courtesy and consideration.

TEMPLE CONSTRUCTION CONTRACT AWARDED

The month of August, 1930, has been notable in the history of the Temple, for during this month the structural plans and specifications were formally approved; bids were invited from a few well and widely-known construction firms; an award was made and contract signed on August 27th for an amount not to exceed $345,000.

O my brother, when a true seeker determines to take the step of search in the path leading to the knowledge of the Ancient of Days, he must, before all else, cleanse and purify his heart, which is the seat of the revelation of the inner mysteries of God, from the obscuring dust of all acquired knowledge, and the illusions of the embodiment of satanic fancy. He must purge his breast, which is the sanctuary of the abiding love of the Beloved, of every defilement, and sanctify his soul from all that pertains to water and clay, from all shadowy and ephemeral attachments. He must so cleanse his heart that no remnant of either love or hate may linger therein, lest that love blindly incline him to error, or that hate turn him away from the truth. Even as thou dost witness in this day how most of the people, because of such love and hate, are bereft of the immortal Face, have strayed far from the Embodiments of the Divine mysteries, and, shepherdless, are roaming through the wilderness of forgetfulness and error. That seeker must at all times put his trust in God, must renounce the peoples of the earth, detach himself from this world of dust, and cleave unto Him Who is the Lord of Lords. He must never seek to exalt himself above any one, must wash away from the tablet of his heart every trace of pride and vainglory, must cling unto patience and resignation, keep silence, and refrain from idle talk. For the tongue is a smouldering fire, and excess of speech a deadly poison. Material fire consumes the body, whereas the fire of the tongue devoureth both heart and soul. The force of the former lasteth but for a while, whilst the effects of the latter endure a century.—BAHÁ’U’LLÁH.

In addition to bids invited for the superstructure another series was included, namely, items for electrical work, plumbing, steam fitting, ventilation and pipe covering. The figures for these are:

Adequate funds to cover all these items not being available at present, it is necessary to hold in abeyance most of the electrical work, steam fitting, ventilation and piping covering. The accepted bid for the superstructure, not to exceed $345,000, does, however, include the plumbing and provisions for the utilities such as heating and ventilation and the electrical work, although it does not include, as before stated, the outside concrete steps encircling the building. Temporary wooden steps located on the southeastern side will be used for the present.

In March, 1930, The Research Service, Incorporated, at the request of the Temple Trustees, made a careful estimate of the probable cost of building the entire superstructure framework. The estimated amount was $350,000, not including utilities and surface ornamentation. So the Temple Trustees are happy in securing a contract for $345,000, which not only covers the entire structural framework, but includes also the entire plumbing for the building and provisions for the other utilities.

The agreement under which the George A. Fuller Company is working has been characterized as notable for its fairness, both to Owners and Contractors. It embodies the ripe experience of many builders; it is based on the facts that funds are immediately available for all work to be done; thus the cost may be reduced, discounts secured, and many savings made by prompt payment to sub-contractors and material men. In the sub-contracts already made, savings have been effected amounting to about $8,500. Other savings are expected.

Thus it is provided that the Contractor "shall do everything required and also shall exercise for the Owner's benefit his best knowledge and skill in planning the work, purchasing materials, furnishing labor, supplying equipment, and performing all other services incident to the work."

In the use of the property, the Contractor agrees to confine the storage of materials and the operation of the workmen to limits such as will not unreasonably encumber the premises. He will erect a suitable fence for the protection of trees and shrubs. It is also provided that progress photographs shall be made from time to time—some of these are to be taken at a fixed place and in a fixed direction in order to bring out more clearly the rate of progress. The National Publicity Committee will utilize this and other illustrative material, during the coming year, for keeping the various Bahá’í communities informed of the progress of building the Temple.

"TO DEEPEN IN THE CAUSE"
(from a letter written to an American believer by the Guardian's secretary.)

To deepen in the Cause means to read the Writings of Bahá’u’lláh and the Master so thoroughly as to be able to give it to others in its pure form. There are many who have some superficial idea of what the Cause stands for. They, therefore, present it together with all sorts of ideas that are their own. As the Cause is still in its early days we must be most careful lest we fall under this error and injure the Movement we so much adore. There is no limit to the study of the Cause. The more we read the Writings, the more truths we can find in them, the more we will see that our previous notions were erroneous. With deepest love I remain,

Yours in His Name,
(Signed) Ruhi AfNAN.

BAHÁ’I NEWS—AN EXPLANATION

The Bahá’í News is published by the American National Spiritual Assembly for recognized believers—those who accept not merely the spiritual but also the administrative principles of the Cause and are fully qualified as voting members. In stating the number of copies needed for each local Bahá’í community, the secretary should count the believers who have been duly listed, and not those who are as yet only attracted. For these, the Bahá’í Magazine is the right medium to recommend. BAHÁ’I NEWS should be confined to those loyal active under the Guardianship of Shoghi Effendi. No charge is made for the BAHÁ’I News, for its expense is met from the National Fund.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF GERMAN BAHÁ’IS
(from "Sonne Der Wahrheit", May, 1930, translated by Mr. Herman Pauli.)

The Bahá’í Convention took place on Sunday, April 19, at 7 P. M., in the same Hall of the Citizens Museum in which 'Abdu’l-Bahá rendered several addresses in 1913 to His beloved. A beautiful background of flowers was arranged, from its center a wonderful picture of 'Abdu’l-Bahá beamed forth.

The Beloved is living again with us, even as He has returned to His Father's Kingdom. Everyone felt in their heart the love and blessings which descended upon those who are serving in true love.

Dear friends and delegates came together from Stuttgart and from the suburbs, from Rostock, Hamburg, Schwerin, Karlsruhe, Geopningen, Bissingen, and from Vienna; and Shoghi Effendi had sent two Persians to us. After the reading of a prayer of 'Abdu’l-Bahá, Mrs. Alice Schwarz greeted in the name of the Chairman of the National Spiritual Assembly the guests present and read a letter from the Chairman:

"My beloved and honored friends:

"Unfortunately I am not permitted to greet you personally, as I had hoped to do. Although I am feeling better, God be praised—I cannot as yet take part in the proceedings of the meetings outside of my home. Therefore, my wife will present to you my heartfelt wishes and sincere greetings at this Convention.

"This is the more important, as we had to weather in the mean time difficult affairs and we had to experience what we would have thought quite impossible in former times. To enter into particulars, I shall avoid. You are informed of all. We stand loyal and firm in love and trust of Shoghi Effendi. Those attacks against him have strengthened our feelings of holding together and also our love. This is a matter of our first tests of our firm faith. . . . Our love and loyalty for the Guardian must become greater, when we consider how much confidence 'Abdu’l-Bahá put in Germany.

"It fills me with unspeakable joy, that you all are sharing with me the love and loyalty for Shoghi Effendi. The blessings of our Master will rest with our Convention on this day.

"At the direction of Shoghi Effendi we are to take up the election of the members for the National Spiritual Assembly. I have been asked would I accept the election. This is intelligible, considering my present condition. For a long time I have considered it, and should I accept I would ask you to be assured that it would be my endeavor as in times past to serve our very dear Cause. The present times demand of every one to be at his post as we shall have to experience many unexpected events as the entire existing organization will be attacked. But it would be unthinkable that without such a worldwide blessed Cause, we could be lead to Unity. That this has been declared as indispensable, everyone knows, who has read the Holy Writings of Bahá’u’lláh and of 'Abdu’l-Bahá.

"But I shall not mention this any further, as much more could be said. My happiness I owe to the fact that loyal friends are here assembled. My grief I owe to the circumstance that such a slight proportional motive was the cause of shattering the loyalty of many. May the day arrive for them, soon, that they will realize the path of error which they pursue.

"To you, dear friends, I desire for you this day a happy and blessed reunion. May our convention of this year remain as a happy memory. I myself am with you in thought and wish you for blessings and shall bear you in mind."

Mrs. Schwarz spoke of the greatness of the Revelation of Bahá’u’lláh and of the Greatest Name. In connection with these words, she read the Words of Bahá’u’lláh and of 'Abdu’l-Bahá, which contain the deep meaning and importance of this great and holy teaching for the whole world and also expressed the confidence of the believers in Stuttgart.

Dr. Grossmann delivered a lengthy address and emphasized, that humanity never derived benefit from universal history and that events occur today, the same as those of 3,000 years ago.

In continuation Mr. Goll read selections from his beautiful poems.

BAHÁ’I NEWS
Address for Correspondence
News Editor
Office of the Secretariat
Evergreen Cabin
West Englewood, New Jersey

BAHÁ’I News is the official organ of the American National Spiritual Assembly. Its cost is defrayed from the National Bahá’í Fund and copies are distributed free of charge to recognized believers throughout the United States and Canada, and to National and Local Spiritual Assemblies in other lands.

News articles and reports of general Bahá’í interest and value are requested from Assemblies, National Committees and other representatives of the Cause.

The Guardian’s statement concerning the purpose and scope of this publication can be found in the volume entitled "Bahá’í Administration."
With the reading of a prayer the official part of the evening was concluded, after which an unconventional meeting followed.

On Easter Monday, April 20, the delegates gathered at the home of Consul Schwartz. The delegates were: Mrs. Dr. Brauns, for Karlsruhe.

Treasurer: Dr. and Mrs. Grossmann, for Hamburg.

Miss Horn, for Stuttgart.

Secretary: Miss Martha Root was another distinguished Bahá’í visitor who visited Baghdad during the month of January, 1930. She attended several meetings of the Bahá’ís and in each meeting she gave the message of the Cause and told us of her experiences all over the world. Miss Root had the honor of being received in audience with His Majesty the King of Iraq, who spoke to her sympathetically regarding the case of the Houses of God. She was also able to receive a message from the Guardian of the Cause in Haifa.

Mr. Julius Brueckner, as substitute, in case of need.

Meanwhile a considerable number of Bahá’ís gathered in the Citizens' Museum and through Mr. Gollmer were made acquainted with the latest circular letter of Shoghi Effendi of April, 1930, directed to the whole world. Its contents are of great importance.

Only when the lamp of search, of earnest striving, of longing desire, of passionate devotion, of fervid love, of rapture, and ecstasy, is kindled within the seeker’s heart, and the breeze of His loving kindness is wafted upon his soul, will the darkness of error be chased away, the mist of doubts and misgivings be dispelled, and the lights of knowledge and certitude envelop his being. At that hour will the mystic herald, bearing the joyful tidings of the Spirit, shine forth from the City of God resplendent as the noon, and will, through the trumpet-blast of Knowledge, awaken the heart, the soul, and the spirit from the sleep of heedlessness. Then will the manifold favors and outpouring grace of the holy and everlasting Spirit confer such new life upon the seeker that he will find himself endowed with a new eye, a new ear, a new heart, and a new mind. He will contemplate the manifest signs of the universe, and will penetrate the hidden mysteries of the soul. Gazing with the eye of God, he will perceive within himself the path that leadeth him to the stations of absolute Certitude. He will discover in all things the mysteries of Divine Revelation and the evidences of an everlasting Manifestation—BAHÁ’ULLÁH.

Shaikh Muhyiddin, the well-known Bahá’í teacher, came to Baghdad by order of our beloved Guardian, to spread the teachings and to enlighten the believers with his valuable knowledge of the delicate points of the Cause. Many a seeker of Truth had long interviews with the Shaikh whose convincing arguments came home to every eager and thirsty ear. Having stayed several months in Baghdad, conducting the weekly meetings and scattering the seeds of love and fraternity, he left via Persia for Kurdistan, his native country, where he was wonderfully confirmed in his indefatigable efforts to diffuse and herald the glad-tidings of the Most Great Day first among his relatives and later among some of the people of his native town. After an absence of a short period he was again welcomed at Baghdad where a large number of young men benefited by his support of the Bahá’í Cause. He stayed this time only a couple of weeks at the end of which he traveled to Palestine and Egypt.

During this year several prominent friends arrived in Baghdad. Mr. Koshal from India who passed through Baghdad on visit to the Guardian of the Cause in Haifa. On his return from Palestine Mr. Koshal brought the Bahá’ís of Iraq messages of love and devotion from the Guardian of the Cause.

Miss Martha Root was another distinguished Bahá’í visitor who visited Baghdad during the month of January, 1930. She attended several meetings of the Bahá’ís and in each meeting she gave the message of the Cause and told us of her experiences all over the world. Miss Root had the honor of being received in audience with His Majesty King Faisal, the King of Iraq, who spoke to her sympathetically regarding the case of the Houses of God and the Bahá’ís and told her that his sole aim was to see that justice was being done to all parties.

Dr. Sarkis Tomassian, from Istanbul, Turkey, arrived early in this year and after spending a couple of days in Baghdad proceeded to Persia. Dr. Tomassian had very interesting things to say regarding the development of the Cause in Turkey.

Mr. N. R. Wakil, from Calcutta, India, brought us good news of the progress of the Cause in the Bengali Presidency. He paid a visit to the Guardian of the Cause in Palestine.

PORTSMOUTH-GREEN ACRE AMITY CONFERENCE

By Louis G. Gregory

The annual amity conference of the Green Acre season which this time linked the neighboring city of Portsmouth in cooperation, in some ways exceeded any conference of this nature previously held. There were six sessions with sustained interest and attendance. About thirty workers found expression in a wide range of ideas and sentiments. Perhaps the most notable triumph was this stimulus to the training of those who shall address great audiences in future giving currency to the thoughts of God. The fine old city of Portsmouth had an eloquent exponent in its mayor. He described how the people who founded it centuries ago fled from class oppression in Europe, so that in coming to the new world they had built upon the basis of religious freedom and racial equality, ideals from which they would never depart. He gave a ringing welcome to the conference.

The enrichment of American life by the gift of the Negro to industry, art, science, literature, invention, discovery and music was presented by the very able and polished director of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People. He spoke from the vantage ground of a vast store of historical and current knowledge and aroused great enthusiasm among his hearers. This address was a liberal education in the potential equality of races. Scientific and historical proofs are unanswerable. This great organization has made history during the last two decades of American life. It is a band of idealists of both races who combat prejudices with might and main, depending upon protest and agitation and exposing all wrongs based upon prejudice to the light of pitiless publicity. They are the spiritual heirs at law and logical successors of the anti-slavery agitators who two or three generations ago conducted a moral crusade which at length gained volume enough to overthrow slavery. Like their spiritual forebears they win some people and enrage others. Although fierce and bold in combat their spirit is mellowed by contact with the Baha’is whose principles they approve.

The other great organization, also bi-racial, sharing this conference program was the National Urban League. Two of its ablest workers came to us with their message. This organization works with effectiveness in the field of social relief, improving housing conditions and sanitation, finding work for the unemployed, elevating standards of living and furnishing social, recreational and welfare centers. These workers are noblemen of service and unfold with deep earnestness yet moderation and sweetness of soul their plans for social and racial betterment. Before the end of the conference both admitted themselves ignited by the sacred fires of the spirit through mingling with the friends of God and listening to their sweet melodies. They pledged their cooperation with all their resources in future conferences. The workers in all such welfare organizations are worthy to be cultivated by the Baha’is who know full well that in future all such efforts for human relief will revolve around a common Center whose reality from most folk is at present hidden.

The voice of the clergy was raised by one of our noblest friends who seemed strangely like the Master as he unceasingly unfolded the law of harmony in diversity and the oneness of the human world.

The statistical side of race relations, the complications due to prejudices, poverty, ignorance, economic pressure were freely ventilated, also the indices of progress, the advancement of wealth and knowledge, the gain in altruism with nobler sentiments, higher standards, greater philanthropy, sweeter laws and more efficient administration of justice.

The message and teachings of ‘Abdu’l Baha were given at the opening session by the chairman with a radiance and charm which seemed to fuse the gathering with light. Light of the eternal Glory of God now manifest to all creation. Responding to the text: “Scientific and Spiritual Proofs of Human Oneness” one of our most learned brothers explained the symbolism of the Garden of Eden as illustrating the many civilizations which through various races enriched the collective happiness of mankind.

The second session was also held in Portsmouth and was a sociable to promote amity, with music, elocution and a few addresses of an informal nature for inspiration. The spiritual ideal and reality of humanity was upheld, also the wisdom in guiding people to such a standard by using terms that are current and therefore understood. The great teacher, ‘Abdu’l Baha, in one of his lessons spoke of the “art of manipulation and the inflexibility of will.” The Spiritual Assembly of Portsmouth entertained with dainty grace. The remaining sessions were held at Green Acre.

At the third session the chairman related how all consciousness of racial differences had left her heart and mind when she attended the amity conference at Rochester a year or two ago. She exulted all to be builders and not wreckers in the great plan to harmonize the world. The director of the New York Urban League who was drawn from a bed of illness to attend this conference, with delightful wit and genial humor led the consultation, speaking as he declared at random yet awakening rich currents of thought. He deplored the prevalence of wrongs but also saw the futility of bitterness as a means of removal. He viewed with delight the privilege of the round table and responded to the spiritual attraction of Green Acre.

Another speaker related her family experiences in a community hostile to racial friendliness and the sacrifices borne during a period of six years in upholding the principles of Bahai’u’llah and the great protection which encircled them. Another related a charming story of the distinguished courtesy and kindness of the Master to a colored friend during his stay in London as related by Lady Blomfield, ending with the stirring appeal: “If thou wouldst love God love thy fellow men.” A third, representing the N. S. A. warmly felicitated the consultation leader in words that inspired faith and courage.

One of the most pleasing sessions was the Youths’ Amity Forum which took its inspiration from the words of our Guardian, printed upon the program. Their vision of reality was clear. There was with them the entire absence of fear, fear of conventions, traditions, material losses, social ostracism which may often act upon older people. A straight line is the shortest distance between two points. It is youth that sees and follows. How easy to guide them and the dear children to the Path of the True One! Among the elders it is also the youth who see! Those whose hearts are simple because they have drunk from the Fountain of perpetual Youth. How glorious is youth! How nobly it gleams when as in this case it reflects the Sun of Truth!

The fifth session saw numbers and enthusiasm not lessened although Jupiter Pluvius mingled his down pour with the showers of blessing. A spiritual atmosphere came with the creative Words read by the chairman. The consultation leader well versed in welfare work described with some degree of detail the complicated problem of racial adjustment and the measures needed for relief, such as the work of the Urban League for which he initiated cooperation. He also offered the use of his plant and resources to the Baha’is in their work of disseminating spiritual ideals. The awakening of the world to spiritual ideals, wonderful messages from the South and other sections to indicate increasing friendliness and interest, the power of appreciation and praise as taught by ‘Abdu’l Baha to change rancor into friendliness, foiling the problem in the face of statistics, were all real. Each phase indicating gain for the colored people and a high note of optimism in racial understanding, were some of the outstanding features of this meeting which was concluded with a sociable time and refreshment supplied by the Spiritual Assembly of.

Assembly Letter

Our recently formed Spiritual Assembly, expresses great joy in thanking you for the beautiful messages received from far and near and is also very happy to again send to our co-workers all over the World, our sincere love and prayers. How little do we understand the Power and far reaching results of the Wonderful prayer—

“O-my-God, O-my-God, unite the hearts of Thy servants.”

We have—present—the great pleasure of the presence of our dear Baha’i parents—Father and Mother Dunn—to whose devotion and self-sacrifice amongst us, we can never fully testify—An inspiring address was given to Baha’is and friends by Mrs. Rishebeith—who—during a recent visit to the Holy Land, was greatly impressed with the power of the Silence as practiced in the East. Her appreciative remarks regarding the kindness of Shoghi Effendi, the Holy Family, and our sister Effie Baker, gave us great pleasure. A full account of the address is given in “The Herald of the South” which we trust will be published shortly.

The Adelaide Assembly is deeply conscious of the Day of Administration and the Call for Unified Action, as expressed in a recent letter from the Guardian to the Western World and in deep earnestness we ask:

“May our eyes be opened to behold the light, and may we become free from the darkness of ignorance.”

With united Baha’i Love,

The Adelaide Assembly

CHANGES IN DIRECTORY

Since the Baha’i Directory for 1930-1931 was issued, the following changes have been reported:

Spiritual Assembly, Los Angeles, Calif., P. O. Box 854.
Rochester, N.Y., Miss Elizabeth Brooks, 126 Pearl Street.

BAHA’I FARM IN MICHIGAN

From Miss Helen L. Whitney, 417 Seymour Avenue, Lansing, Mich., the interesting information has been received that a farm in Michigan plans to operate as far as possible along Bahá’i lines, and that believers with dairy experience may communicate regarding a position now available.

NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF EGYPT

We open our new year of service with thankful prayers to our Lord, the most Glorious, and with a renewed spirit of steadfastness in the Will and Testament of our Master ‘Abdul-Bahá, and with full devotion and humble loyalty to our beloved Shoghi Effendi.

With hearts leaping with joy and fragrance we shall extend to all the friends throughout the world our greetings of Ridván, assuring them of our profound love and fervent prayers for their confirmations, and supplicate to the Holy Threshold that this new year may prove successful in all aspects.

Much as we regret the delay of issue of our news letter we gratefully thank those Assemblies for their highly appreciated letters replete with various activities and praiseworthy services.

In fact the said delay was due to certain reasons that were carefully considered by the newly-elected body on discussing the question of a Bahá’í Review to be started for dealing with the ever-increasing Bahá’í questions in this country.

Complying with the request of the Guardian that our news letter should be issued regularly, and as a prompt proceeding to those discussions it has been decided to issue this new letter regularly once every other month and indicate the various activities of the National Assembly during the year.

It is an encouraging fact to say that the invitation for the sixth annual Convention sent by the National Assembly was received by the Bahá’ís of Egypt with ardent and zeal that proved the spirit of Unity had increased, and evidenced as well how much greater hearty cooperation between individuals and bodies was effected under the spirit and form of the Bahá’í administration.

For as one meditates on the tremendous situation the Cause is about to occupy in the world he will become quite hopeful and fully confident of the promised confirmations of the invisible Power that continue to flow, bringing all efforts to perfect success despite the slight retardation of affairs that could be easily attributed to the hard circumstances surrounding members of both National and local bodies.

This, besides the other fact that those bodies since they accepted the results of the elections have resumed their task with a solemn determination to exercise to the utmost capacity the spirit of sacrifice and self-denial, to give up their comfort, rest and self-interests for the Cause, trusting in the real and hearty cooperation of their fellow-workers and seeking not a compensation, but the unity of their friends, so that all, like one soul, may be confirmed in rendering services that would satisfy themselves and be appropriate to their pure faith, should be necessarily reflected by all Bahá’ís.

When the channel of the human soul is cleansed of all worldly and impeding attachments, it will unfailingly perceive the Breath of the Beloved across immeasurable distances, and will, led by its perfume, attain and enter the City of Certitude. Therein he will discern the wonders of the ancient Wisdom of God, and will perceive all the hidden teachings from the rustling leaves of the Tree which flourished in that City. With both his inner and his outer ear he will hear from its dust the hymns of glory and praise ascended from the Lord of Lords, and, with his inner eye, will he discover the mysteries of “return” and “revival.” How unspakably glorious are the signs, the tokens, the revelations, and splendors which He Who is the King of Names and Attributes hath destined for that City! It quencheth thirst without water, and kindleth the love of God without fire. Within every blade of grass are engirdled the mysteries of an inscrutable Wisdom, and upon every rose-bush a myriad nightingales pour out in blissful rapture their melody. Its wondrous tulips unfold the mystery of the Burning Bush, and its sweet savors of holiness breathe the perfume of the Mes­smic Spirit. It bestows wealth without gold, and imparteth immortal­ity without death. In every leaf in­effable delights are treasured, and within every chamber unnumbered mysteries lie hidden.—BAHA’U’LLAH.

MISS MARTHA ROOT IN INDIA

Beloved Friends in El-Abha:

Allâh-u-Abhá! Love to you all! As I am making a very intensive teaching tour through India, it is not possible to stop and write much about it, so I shall make a summary. How difficult, though, to make a summary of the love of the sweet Babá’s friends in India and their glorious co-operation and great help! How can one summarize those visions we saw of Chosen and Favored Angels and those constant Confirmations of the Power of the Holy Spirit, or put into a tabloid what I saw of the yearning, the un­terable longing of Indian thinkers, humanitarians, students, coolies and men of the fields to realize brother­hood! O God! Give India the bounty of knowing these Babá’i Teachings, that through them she may go for­ward to a great, new spiritual civiliza­tion! It is the countries that ac­knowledge and accept these Teachings of Bahá’u’lláh that will become the celebrated countries of the future, for in the Principles is the Creative Power to develop nations anew.

Everywhere the Babá’s in India helped me, the National Spiritual As­sembly, the local Assemblies and all other Babá’s in the different cities. From the summary you must yourself glimpse what the fruits will be when they are blessed by Bahá’u’lláh. Every day the Ahmad Tablet has been chant­ed faithfully in India. Urdda Chanak­yu, a famous Indian, said: “Even a syllable of wisdom that the teacher imparts unto his pupil is a debt be­yond repayment by any treasure in the world”; so then what is the wealth of the whole Babá Revelation to India in her hour of travail?

(1) POONA. The first city vis­ited was Poona, to see dear Mr. and Mrs. Khusro Irani devoted old believers and their family. As the Residency of Bombay Presidency is in Poona, I gave a copy of “Bábá’i World” to the Governor; saw the Inspector-General of Prisons and he promised to give Mr. Mahatma Gandhi “Bábá’u­ lâh and the New Era” and to put the “Bábá’i World” into the Yeravada Prison Library, Mr. Ghandi is in Yeravada Prison (three miles from Poona). Mr. Hashmatullah of Bomb­bay and I called upon Mrs. Sarojini Naidu in the Yeravada Prison and gave her nine of the very best Babá’s books and I gave her a beautiful rosary from ‘Abdul­Bábá. She saw ‘Abdul-Bábá once in London. She is the greatest political leader among the women of India, one of the best known workers in all women’s movements and she is a poet. I thought it well to begin with the two highest leaders in this great movement for freedom which is sweeping India like a tearing tornado.

A lecture was given in the Theo­sophical Hall in Poona, a Babá’i meet­ing was held in the National Hotel.

Several people called on me and I made visits to several officials. Sev­eral people from other cities in India, summering in Poona, saw the notices in the newspapers and called to ask about the Babá’s Cause. Mr. Khusro Irani and his son Homi Irani did a great deal to help us.

(2) HYDERABAD, DECCAN. Mr. Hashmatullah of Bombay was with me here, he has immense capacity and knows many people in Hyderabad.

We called first on the Minister of the Court of the great Nizam. This min­ister has read several books about the Babá’i Movement, and says he places Bahá’u’lláh in the same station as Jesus Christ. He is a Muslim. He said what had attracted him most to the Cause was the life of Qurratu’l­Ayn. We called upon noblemen, a col­lege founder, finance minister, profes­sors, editors, women club officers, and a lecture was given before these think­ers in the home of one editor. One editor asked me to write an article for an Indian monthly magazine on “The Contribution of Babá’ism to Interna­tional Progress.” A young nobleman, a Muslim, who has made a visit to the holy Shrine in ‘Akka and LHa’ifa, in­vited us to breakfast to speak about the Teachings. The second day we were asked to be the guests of the state, they sent to the hotel and took us and our bags, to the Guest House. It was like an immense Virginia Club House painted white with green blinds and set in the midst of a tropical gar­den. I had a suite of four rooms.

During the two days’ stay in this Guest House I met the Secretary to the Chancellor of the Chamber of Princes of India and he said he would gladly introduce me to the Princes when I should go to Simla later.

(3) BOMBAY. Bombay has the largest number of Babá’s of any city in India. They are so enthusiastic, so great-hearted, and they do their ut­most for all India. Notwithstanding the picketing and processions which almost stopped traffic, I gave a pub­lic lecture before three hundred peo­ple. Mrs. Shirin K. Fozdar presided and Mr. Hashmatullah also spoke. All the Babá’s came and they spoke with the new people and invited them to come to the Babá’i Hall meetings and many did. Calls were made, and a number of people to whom I had let­ters of introduction, called upon me.

An informal gathering, where tea was served, was held each afternoon in the Babá’i Hall during my stay of four days. One hundred thousand people in the political demonstrations were congregated each afternoon in the street below our windows. Two hun­dred people were present at the last lecture held in the Babá’i Hall on Sunday evening. Mr. N. R. Vakil, President of the National Spiritual Assembly of India was present, and he also spoke.

Mrs. Shirin Fozdar, a fine Babá’i speaker, a young woman in the early twenties, went with me to Surat. Mr. Vakil had come to Bombay to welcome me and to accompany us to his city. He had called a meeting of the Na­tional Spiritual Assembly and of the Bombay Assembly to meet in Bombay and he came only for the one day.

(4) SURAT. Mr. Vakil of Surat is a lawyer, and as the morning we arrived was a holiday, he had invited forty men friends, judges, lawyers, professors to his home to tea where for two hours we spoke of the Babá’s Cause. Before going to his home to meet his guests we visited a most interesting Parsi School and I spoke to one hundred and twenty-five young men and fifteen teachers. The Theos­phists arranged a beautiful lecture, and a public lecture for three hundred people was given in the Municipal Hall. The Judge of the High Court was present. Several schools and the largest hospital were visited.

Mr. and Mrs. Vakil and their two little daughters were formerly high caste Hindus. He knows English very well, and his wife and children are learning English. The little girls will soon begin the study of Persian, too, and after about three years Mr. Vakil and his family hope to make a teaching tour through Persia and Eu­rope and United States. (I think Stoghi Effendi hopes that some others will accompany them, it would be fine.
if a group of Baha'is who before had been Hindus would come to Persia and to the west. May Baha'u'llah help them to come! The Baha'is of India represent splendid souls from all the religions. Almost all the Persian and Indian Baha'is have tried to go to some cities in India to further the Cause. I also saw rare and beautiful fruits from the journeys of Mirza Behram, Mirza Mahmoud Zargain, Mrs. Stammard, Mr. Hooper Harris, Mr. Harlan Ober, Mr. Mason Remy, Mr. Howard Struven, Mrs. Lulu Gelzinger and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schopflocher. People in India are ready for these Teachings. The dear Indian Baha'is ask you if teachers cannot come from the United States and stay and travel for a year or two in India?

(5) KARACHI. Two days were spent in traveling from Surat to Karachi, a part of the distance being over a desert with temperature 125 degrees hot in some places. I had to take the journey to India in the hot season, as I could not finish my work and arrive earlier. It was certainly refreshing and heavenly to meet the dear Baha'i friends of Karachi and go with them first of all for a drive to the beach where the breezes blow cool. Karachi is one of the loveliest cities in India and I was very happy there, and I was happy in every city in India!

The Baha'is in Karachi recently have purchased a delightful garden well situated and later they will build a Mashrak-ul-Azkar there. They also have a good Baha'i cemetery. Mr. Jamshed N. R. Mehta, Mayor of Karachi, became a friend of our late Mr. Shirazi the devoted Baha'i, and he graciously helped the Baha'is in arranging my lectures. He himself presided at the first lecture held in the beautiful Theosophical Hall (his gift to that society). He arranged a second informal lecture in this same hall asking me to speak on the "Life of 'Abdu'l-Baha." He also gave a tea in his home for me to meet friends. He publishes each week a little one page article and he arranged my lectures and interviews. The first talk was given before the Brahmo Samaj Society. This Brahmo Samaj is one of the spiritual progressive movements in India today, and I always feel a thrill of joy to meet the members. One man interested in the Teaching of Baha'u'llah gave a tea in the Young Men's Christian Association for me to speak, and the Young Men's Christian Association arranged a lecture. I was invited to the homes of great writers, judges, lawyers, professors, all of whom have read some Baha'i books.

Mr. Bekhtiar went out with Mr. Singh and found the grave of Mr. Kaikhusru, a Persian believer in Bombay who came to Lahore about twenty-five years ago to nurse an American Baha'i stricken with cholera. The American was saved but this man, his nurse, died a few days later of the disease. Mr. Bekhtiar, in the name of the Karachi Baha'i Assembly, bought a simple, but beautiful tombstone, had the Words of Baha'u'llah engraved on it with the name and date, had the grave and ground beautified and then we all went out with greens and flowers and had a little memorial service there in honor of this beloved servant, who was one of God's heroes.

The little Persian girl from Qasvin whom Mr. and Mrs. Singh have adopted, is very sweet and very bright. Her name is Victoria and I wish you could all meet her.

(7) SIMLA. This is one of the greatest summer resorts in India, situated high in the Himalayas, and it is also the summer seat of government. Here one meets prominent people from every city in India. The morning we arrived we called upon the Minister of Agriculture, then upon the Minister of Education, and upon the Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association. My first lecture was in the Brahmo Samaj Hall before a group of thinkers from many parts of the Empire. This society hospitably gave a tea in our honor the next afternoon, inviting thirty friends. Suddenly at the tea, they received a telegram telling of the passing of their great teacher in Calcutta, so the meeting was turned into an hour of prayer and speaking on the Life after death. Mr. Bekhtiar prayed Baha'u'llah's prayers in Persian and Mr. Singh and I spoke in English, the others prayed in Urdu and in English.

I attended a meeting of the Committee for the All-India Women's Congress and gave them little Baha'i booklets and copies of Qurratu'l-Ayn's Poems. I met one of the owners of the "Statesman" (a Calcutta newspaper). He had met 'Abdu'l Baha' and loved Him, he said to send him an article and he would publish it. I met many club women and hope to arrange for a paper on the "Life of Qurratu'l-Ayn" which I am writing to be read by a Baha'i at the All-India Woman's Congress and also at the All-Asian Women's Conference which will be held in Benares the third week in January. Statesmen, professors, Muslims, Hindus were there and it was a problem whether to stay a month in Simla or travel on to these other cities. Shoghi Effendi had told me to give as many public lectures as possible in India, and my inner guidance led me to remain only a few days in Simla and then journey on.

By the righteousness of God! Were he that treadeth the path of guidance and seeketh to scale the heights of righteousness to attain unto this glorious and supreme station, he will inhale at a distance of a thousand leagues the fragrance of God, and will discern the resplendent morn of Divine Guidance arising above the dayspring of all things. Each and every thing, however small, will be to him a revelation, leading him to his Beloved, the Object of his quest. So great shall be the discernment of this Seeker that he will discriminate between truth and falsehood even as he doth distinguish the sun from shadow. If in the utmost corners of the East the sweet savors of God be wafted, he will assuredly recognize and inhale their fragrance, even though he be dwelling in the uttermost ends of the West. He will likewise clearly distinguish all the signs of God—His wondrous utterances, His great works, and mighty deeds—from the dungs, words, and ways of men, even as the jeweler knows the gem from the stone, and even as man distinguishes spring from autumn and heat from cold.

—BAHA’U’LLAH.

"THE MOST GREAT SIN"

A letter from the National Spiritual Assembly

Beloved Friends in El-Abáá:

The National Spiritual Assembly begs to extend to you the loving greetings of its members in these days when the hour of renewed construction of the Mashriqú’l-Adhkar is almost upon us. It is certain that with the raising of the Temple edifice in the mid-most heart of the continent, the attention of the public in that region will be concentrated upon the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh and upon the believers of those centers as never before.

Outside the Cause and in the highways of the world, the newspapers constantly record with flaring headlines innumerable instances involving deviation from the divine laws as well as the laws of the human world, but the Bahá’í communities are, or are designed to be, dwellings of peace and happiness in which the voice of cheerfulness and deeds of loving service are witnessed. Especially are we favored and admonished through the voice of the Supreme Pen in the promulgation of our command relative to back-biting, rumor spreading and gossip, as well as the descent into mere personal controversies and misunderstandings. Could we realize how instances of this nature afflict the Cause, how this subtle poison attacks the integrity of its sensitive fabric, we would one and all cleave to the divine principle. "Everlasting felicity," the Master promises, awaits the human world, and the glorification of the spirit will be seen when we have freed ourselves from this age-old affliction. The Master gives us the remedy, i.e., that the balm for this poison and the remedy for this disease is the upliftment of the tongue in praise of one another and the exaltation of the virtues of the friends. Union and consultation, moreover, are the pillars of our collective Bahá’í household.

In a Tablet to Dr. N. G. Skinner, Washington, D. C., revealed August 12, 1913, at Ramleh, Egypt, ‘Abdu’l-Bahá said:

"Thou hast written regarding thy aims. How blessed are these aims, especially the prevention of back-biting! I hope that you may become confirmed therein, because the worst human quality and the most great sin is back-biting; more especially when it emanates from the believers of God. If some means were devised so that the doors of back-biting could be shut eternally and each one of the believers of God unsealed his tongue in the praise of the other, then the teachings of His Holiness Bahá’u’lláh would be spread, the hearts illumined, the spirits glorified and the human world would attain to everlasting felicity."

"I hope that the believers of God will shun completely back-biting, each one praising the other cordially and believe that back-biting is the cause of the Divine wrath, to such an extent that if a person back-bites to the extent of one word, he may become dishonored among all the people, because the most hateful characteristic of man is faultfinding. One must expose the praiseworthy qualities of the souls and not their evil attributes. The friends must overlook their shortcomings and faults and speak only of their virtues and not their defects.

"It is related that His Holiness Christ—may my life be a sacrifice to Him!—one day, accompanied by His apostles, passed by the corpse of a dead animal. One of them said: 'How putrid has this animal become!' The other exclaimed: 'How it is deformed!' A third cried out: 'What a stench! How cadavorous looking!' But His Holiness Christ said: 'Look at his teeth! How white they are!' Consider that He did not look at all the defects of that animal; nay rather, He searched well until He found the beautiful white teeth. He observed only the whiteness of the teeth and overlooked entirely the deformity of the body, the dissolution of the organs and the bad odor.

"This is the attribute of the children of the Kingdom. This is the conduct and the manners of real Bahá’ís. I hope that all the believers will attain to this lofty station."

It is the hope and humble prayer of the National Spiritual Assembly, at whose direction this letter is being sent, that not only the beloved friends of the Bahá’í community shall be freed from these entanglements, but that they, also, the members of the National Assembly, may advance to this resplendent goal, and that we may thus all find ourselves present together in that loving unity that can only come through obedience to the Divine command which is none else than the Mercy of God. Every believer of discernment has learned through the shock of experience how quickly the lengthening shadows gather and the divine confirmations flee away when any one of the friends unlooses his tongue in the arena of denunciation of another.

'Abdul-Bahá has told us plainly that these things are a product of the natural world and not of the Divine Kingdom; that through these means, the claws of nature seize upon the soul of man and prevent his flight. Through the Divine love and the power of the Holy Spirit, He tells us, lies the only pathway or exit from this dark enclosure.

The Covenant of God is like a crystal-pure mirror, upon whose sensitive, radiant surface is reflected the gathering storm of human hearts, and the shadow of every conscious deviation from the Divine Law of this Cycle. Spiritual and physical calamities, alike, flow from every disturbance of this divinely constituted equilibrium, which has a direct relationship to every believer.

May we, one and all, arise to a new consciousness of this matter, setting aside forever this indulgence and turning our faces sternly against its traces wherever found! May we altogether humbly supplicate the throne of the Ancient of Days that the deeds of the Bahá'í communities of the United States and Canada shall shine resplendent and in such wise as to attract the beloved friends to a station wherein the world shall say: “What love! What integrity! What shining deeds we witness among the Bahá'ís!”

With Bahá'í love and greetings, and in behalf of the National Spiritual Assembly.

Faithfully yours,

Secretariat,

National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States and Canada.

THE GUARDIAN TRANSLATES THE TABLET OF 'IQÁN

A translation of the 'Iqán by Shoghi Effendi is news that will bring heartfelt joy to all English-reading believers. This Tablet, or Book, revealed by Bahá'u'lláh is the basis of modern spiritual insight and assurance. Knowledge of it infinitely surpasses the acquired knowledge of the schools.

The following letter written by Shoghi Effendi to the National Assembly through his secretary, refers to this translation:

"As the 'Iqán is the most important book wherein Bahá'u'lláh explains the basic beliefs of the faith, he thought a proper rendering of it would infinitely enhance the teaching work in the West. He hopes that this new rendering will be an improvement on the previous one, but he fully admits that it is far from perfect, far from the original itself. Shoghi Effendi has given the proper transliteration of the Eastern terms and wants you to abide by them, keeping every dash, point, accent or inverted comma. To help you in this, he has also on a separate sheet written these in their proper form. He wishes you further not to include the introduction that exists in the last edition, for he does not think it worthwhile and enlightening. Drop also the Glossary that exists at the end of the last edition and form a Glossary using the definitions that he has sent to be put in the forthcoming Bahá'í World. As Shoghi Effendi has been emphasizing the need of submitting all publication to the Reviewing Committee, he wants to be the first to abide by that rule, though he hopes that they will not make unnecessary delay. In Germany they have translated the 'Iqán from the last translation and they are waiting for Shoghi Effendi's rendering to make the necessary alterations and publish their own. The proceeds of the sale of the book Shoghi Effendi wishes to go to the American National Assembly in an unlabelled form. This is a gift of his own personal labors that he wishes to present that body and he wishes it to be considered as a token of appreciation for the help they have rendered him in carrying on his arduous task."

(Signed) RUHÍ AFRÁN.

"Unable to find a good typist, I have had to do the work myself, and I trust that the proofreaders will find it easy to go over and will not mind the type errors which I have tried to correct. I would especially urge you to adhere to the transliteration which I have adopted. The correct title is, I feel, 'The Kitáb-’I-’Iqán,' the subtitle 'The Book of Certitude.' May it help the friends to approach a step further, and obtain a clearer idea of the fundamental teachings set forth by Bahá'u'lláh."

(Signed) SHOGHI EFFENDI.

The Publishing Committee, with the approval of the National Assembly, is arranging to bring out this new translation in time for the next Annual Convention. Further details will be given in an early issue of Bahá'í News.

Meanwhile, the Publishing Committee has been authorized to sell copies of the old translation, which for many years has given us the privilege of access to this work, at the special price of $1.00 per copy.

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE BAHÁ'Í WORLD VOLUME 3

Bahá'ís throughout the world are informed of the fact that The Bahá'í World, Volume 3, compiled and edited under the direction of Shoghi Effendi to represent the Bahá'í Cause during the period 1928-1930 will be published shortly after December 1, 1930. Assemblies and individuals are requested to send advance orders for copies at $2.50 each, postpaid, to Bahá'í Publishing Committee, P. O. Box 348, Grand Central Station, New York City, New York, U. S. A.

The next issue of Bahá'í News will publish a full list of contents of the volume, together with the Guardian's words concerning the importance of this international Bahá'í record. At present, space is available merely for a brief preliminary announcement. Every adult believer will find volume 3 of The Bahá'í World a source of spiritual inspiration, a thrilling and deeply moving history of such significant current events as the episode of the Shrines of Bahá'u'lláh at Baghdad and the League of Nations; extensive newly translated passages from Bahá'í Sacred Writings; scholarly articles about different aspects of the Cause, and photographs of the most intense interest and permanent value.

The Bahá'í World, in brief, deepens and extends our sense of citizenship in the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh.

ACCOUNTS OF NATIONAL TREASURER AUDITED AND APPROVED

The members of the National Spiritual Assembly record for the information of the believers the action taken at the last Assembly meeting in receiving the report of Wolf & Company, Chicago, who had been authorized to audit the accounts of Mr. Carl Scheffler, former treasurer, covering the period from July 1, 1926 to March 31, 1930, during which time sums amounting to more than $600,000 had been contributed to the various divisions of the National Fund. Each item of the thousands of individual transactions representing receipts and expenditures was checked and the accounts certified to be in perfect condition with the exception that a foreign contribution of about $15 could not be traced, and two rings which had been donated could not be located. The rings have been found in the records of the present Treasurer, Mr. Roy C. Wilhelm, and the foreign contribution will undoubtedly be traced by Mr. Mathisen. As foreign checks are accepted by banks as deposits subject to collection, it is anticipated that this item will emerge as a deposit of a later date than that entered on the receipt issued for the contribution.

The National Assembly recorded in its minutes an expression of sincere congratulations to Mr. Scheffler for his self-sacrificing, responsible and accurate work as Treasurer, and the Assembly feels assured that its attitude will be universally shared by the friends.

REPORTS FROM TEACHING COMMITTEE

1.—Results of August Teachers Conference in Green Acre.

The August Teachers Conference in Green Acre has proved to be the starting point for a revival of teaching enthusiasm throughout the country as is indicated by the response of the regional centers to the suggestions which went forth as a result of these sessions.

Viewed in retrospect the theme of those intense hours of inspiration and mounting fervor revolved around the question uppermost in the hearts of all, namely, How can we increase the number of Bahá’ís? In the consultations of The National Teaching Committee that followed this gathering of the friends the results in the form of teaching objectives were stated.

A. There is need at this time of a group of American believers who are willing to rededicate themselves to the service of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh toward the end of establishing in the eyes of the world an ideal of Bahá’í life. These people, for whom the heart of the Master yearned, shall devote themselves to teaching—by their words and more particularly by their deeds and bearing, in whatever sphere of activity they may have been placed, striving to the utmost to exemplify the characteristics of the true teacher as described by Those Whose word is our law.

How can these divine qualities be achieved save by close obedience to the Divine Exhortations? The soil of our inner life from which these fruits shall grow, is rendered fertile by increased concentration and fervor in prayer, by reading and memorizing the Divine Words in such a way that they become incorporated in our innermost being, and by endeavoring always to establish the perfect balance of work and worship which constitutes the complete Bahá’í life. We are called to partake more abundantly and to show forth a proportionate increase of activity throughout the channels of energy—material, intellectual, spiritual which characterize our respective lives.

B. The Cause will be spread by the growth of inter-Assembly cooperation. Beyond the unit of the Bahá’í group to which we organically belong we must begin the building of a wider unity extending to nearby centers. Divided into convenient teaching districts it is hoped that the friends will come together frequently to inspire, encourage, and promote such local responsibilities as the training of teachers, the circulation of inter-Assembly teachers and pioneer expansion into undeveloped fields.

C. An ideal public approach is in the process of evolving in which the principles of modern psychology form a sound basis. Not only must we try to analyze the present needs of the public and meet them with greater imagination and flexibility, but we must create new needs by our radiant upholding of the Divine Standard. The public Bahá’í meeting must become exceptional in its beauty, its scientific soundness, its spiritual uplift, so that it will by its attractiveness draw increasing numbers to “the Right Path.”

D. The time is at hand for the Bahá’í approach to groups, especially through group leaders. Systematizing of such contacts has become one of our most pressing considera-

BAHA’I NEWS is the official organ of the American National Spiritual Assembly. Its cost is defrayed from the National Bahá’í Fund and copies are distributed free of charge to recognized believers throughout the United States and Canada, and to National and Local Spiritual Assemblies in other lands.

News articles and reports of general Bahá’í interest and value are requested from Assemblies, National Committees and other representatives of the Cause.

The Guardian’s statement concerning the purpose and scope of this publication can be found in the volume entitled “Bahá’í Administration.”
particularly to all potential teachers in your district.

B. Inter-Assembly cooperation including frequent exchange of your local teachers should be arranged.

C. Definite plans should be made to spread the Cause into new territory.

D. Isolated Bahá'ís in your district should be urged to attend the conferences and encouraged to seek active support and assistance in teaching available through your inter-Assembly organization.

E. A large meeting for the general public should be held if possible during the conference. The type and organization of this meeting should be determined by the local group. General Bahá'í and racial unity meetings are among the best.

F. A District Secretary should be elected by the Bahá'ís of your district at your first conference. We suggest that your inter-Assembly committee be composed of one representative from each Assembly in your district and one member—large representing the smaller groups and isolated believers. It would be the duty of the District Secretary and his inter-Assembly supporting committee (a) to coordinate and supervise the district plans for teaching discussed at your inter-Assembly conferences, (b) to arrange for the organization of future district teaching conferences at intervals of two or three months, (c) to be the point of contact for your district with the National Teaching Committee, (d) to submit full reports of all your district conferences and teaching efforts to the National Teaching Committee, so that teaching items may be published each month in the BAHÁ'Í News.

Our Committee believes that it may be able to assist your district teaching activities in the following ways:

A. We are preparing to establish a bureau of information concerning liberal organizations and leaders of thought in each district with whom it might be desirable for the Bahá'ís to contact. Also the names and addresses of people in your region who have heard of the Cause through our traveling teachers or otherwise and who are sympathetic or interested, will soon be available to your District Secretary.

B. We will endeavor to furnish a traveling teacher at your request who will help in your conference and public meeting and who will stay in your district for a time following the conference for intensive teaching and follow-up work.

It would seem, judging by the enthusiastic approval accorded this district plan by the National Spiritual Assembly and the friends gathered at Green Acre, that it may prove an effective means for the inauguration of a more determined and united teaching effort. Our appeal for cooperation in this suggested program is in response to Shoghi Effendi's expressed desire for the rapid and effective spread of the Cause at this time.

3—First Inter-Assembly Teaching Conferences.

The first response to the plan of the National Teaching Committee for the holding of Inter-Assembly teaching conferences came from the Assembly at Lansing, Michigan. Named as the geographical center for the Michigan district, they called a conference, September 14th, at which thirty-four friends from the Bahá'í communities of Muskegon, Ann Arbor and Detroit were present.

Guest speakers from outside the district, Mrs. Robert L. Moffett of Chicago, Mrs. Sito of Honolulu and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ives contributed to the discussion. An active teaching campaign was planned of which the four new study groups formed are an indication of the renewed life which all agree is being felt in this wide-awake section of the country referred to by 'Abdul-Bahá, as the "heart of America."

On September 28th an "All-Ohio Conference" was called in Cincinnati. Miss Hilda Stauss, secretary of the Southern Ohio District writes: "Cincinnati has always seemed to be so far from the active centers but now we seem to be linked a little closer to the other groups. It stimulates activity, encourages us to renew our efforts to spread the teachings, is beneficial in the exchange of ideas, and last but not least we become better acquainted with each other."

The next inter-Assembly conference was held in Geneva, New York, October 18th and 19th, at which about forty-five Bahá'ís were present including friends from Buffalo, Binghamton, Rochester, Ithaca and Syracuse. At the opening session on Saturday evening, Mr. Louis Gregory spoke on "The Need and Preparation of Bahá'í Teachers." He said, "There are two kinds of teachers, those who teach by deeds and those who teach by words and deeds. . . . We can serve humanity in various ways and this service is the foundation of the Kingdom of God. Teaching by words necessitates skill in discerning the needs of the people. . . . Bahá'ulláh gives the greatest station to those who give up their lives to teaching. The greatest confirmation comes to those who spread the message. Every one who has the sincere desire in his heart can teach. No Bahá'í teacher is qualified to teach everybody, but everybody who has the truth in his heart can teach someone. Teaching will bring to light new capacities in the one who does it. . . . We must prepare through prayer morning and evening, and use the words created by God—make them part of our equipment. . . . You come into the presence of God when you study the divine Word and capacities and potentialities of your being of which you did not dream, will be aroused so that you will be able to teach."

On Sunday the discussion centered around the exchange of teachers in an inter-Assembly program. The committee composed of inter-Assembly representatives and two members of the National Teaching Committee withdrew to draw up the following emergency resolutions which were later passed by the body of the conference:

A. That those assembled hand in to the inter-Assembly secretary at the close of the afternoon a list of topics which in their opinion would be suitable for exchange programs in the coming months.

B. That volunteers be called for, to speak or conduct meetings outside of their own group.

C. That the list of volunteers be considered from two points of view in the arrangement of programs. a. Ask for experienced teachers where attracted people and possible strangers may be present. b. Ask whenever possible for inexperienced volunteers who will gain experience by arising to assist. In this connection the committee also suggested that the same appeal be made to isolated believers with regard to the exchange of speakers.

D. That each group make an effort to stimulate and train volunteers among its own members to carry on inter-Assembly teaching in the future. It is expected that study and teaching classes will be formed to supply these needs.

Mr. Leslie R. Hawthorn, District representative of the Geneva Assembly in reporting this meeting writes, “When the chairman called for volunteers practically every hand was raised, indicating the splendid spirit all were displaying in their endeavor to assist in this new experiment of inter-Assembly cooperation. . . . As those gathered together partook of tea, before many set out on their return journeys one felt, as snatches of conversation were overheard here and there, that the spirit of cooperation already existed and was working in the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh. There was a happy expectancy regarding the programs during the coming year, and all seemed to be looking forward to the general plan of inter-Assembly teaching which would bring everyone together more frequently and in a vital all-important enterprise.”

On October 5th a central California conference was held in San Francisco followed by a southern California gathering in Los Angeles two weeks later. Other conferences have been announced as follows:

New York and West Englewood, October 25th and 26th.
Chicago and Wilmette, November 8th and 9th.
Washington, D. C., November 8th and 9th.
Plan for Boston and the Northern Ohio district are reported under way.

The results of these important teaching events will appear in an early issue of BÁHÁ’í NEWS.

4.—Informal Bahá’í Gatherings Held During the Spring and Summer.

News of a number of delightful Bahá’í picnics, coming to us during the summer season, mark an increasing attraction to such informal group gatherings of the friends. A large weekend party was held in Binghamton in May followed by the Blossom Picnic in Geneva at which about 130 were present. While the West Englewood Souvenir Feast was in progress a Bahá’í Youth meeting was being held in Binghamton at which guests from Geneva, Rochester, Pittsburg and Montreal were entertained. Another overnight picnic in the Western New York section was held at Ithaca in August at the invitation of Tom Martin. Many guests from nearby centers attended. Two Michigan picnics were held on June 22nd, one at Fruitport under the arrangement of the Muskegon friends and the other at the ranch of Mr. L. W. Eggleson, near Flint.

The following excerpt has been taken from a letter by Dr. Zia Baghali:

“The largest number of Bahá’ís that ever met together in the State of Wisconsin was the one held on last Sunday, August 10th, near the city of Racine. It was an inter-racial, international Bahá’í picnic arranged by the Bahá’ís of Milwaukee. On that morning trains and automobiles and even Mr. Peter Nelson’s trucks were loaded with friends who came from Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, Wilmette, Evanston, Chicago and Washington, D. C.

“The place was a gentle hill at the shore of Lake Michigan where many of the youth and children enjoyed a dip in the cool waters of the lake, others played different games, while some of the men made the fire the ladies opened their baskets and prepared the noon dinner which was served in the open air under beautiful apple trees. This was followed by an interesting program which was opened by prayers and chanting . . . inspiring addresses were delivered by members of the various Assemblies. Children sang Bahá’í hymns. We certainly wish to congratulate the Bahá’í Assembly of Milwaukee for the great success of this meeting.”

Teaching Committee of the National Spiritual Assembly, REGINALD COLLISON, Chairman DORIS MCKAY, Secretary LOUIS G. GREGORY, Secretary of Inter-Racial Unity Activities ALBERT D. HEIST MAY MAXWELL.

They Who are the Luminaries of truth and the Mirrors reflecting the light of the unity of God, in whatever age and cycle they are sent down from their invisible habitations of ancient glory unto this world, to educate the souls of men and endue with grace all created things, are invariably endowed with an all-compelling power, and invested with invincible sovereignty. For these hidden Gems, these concealed and invisible Treasures, in themselves manifest and vindicate the reality of these holy words: “Verily God doeth whatsoever He willeth, and ordaineth whatsoever He pleaseth.”

BAHÁ’U’LLÁH.
THE GUARDIAN DEFINES SIGNIFICANCE OF CORNER-STONE LAID BY 'ABDUL-BAHA

In view of the attitude expressed by many of the friends, and the action of the delegates at a recent Annual Convention, the following statement on the subject of the corner-stone at the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar received by the National Assembly from the Guardian's secretary is recorded at this time: "Concerning the corner-stone of the Temple, which was laid by the Master, Shoghi Effendi says that it has no other special significance than a great honor conferred by the Master upon that building and it should be treated as a corner-stone and nothing more."

This statement makes it clear that it would be inadvisable to regard the corner-stone as a Shrine having a deeper significance than any other portion of the Temple. The Mashriqu'l-Adhkar in its entirety is a Shrine in that it is an institution ordained by Bahá'u'lláh.

AMENDMENT TO BY-LAW CONTROLLING ELECTION OF CONVENTION DELEGATES

Article VIII, Section 1, of the By-laws adopted by the National Assembly stated that "all delegates to the Convention shall be elected by plurality vote of those present at their election." The phrase "of those present" can only be interpreted as depriving believers unable to be physically present of their right to vote at these elections, whereas in the case of other Bahá'í elections, believers unavoidably absent (as in the case of the Annual Convention) are allowed to vote by mail or telegram. To bring about uniformity of procedure, the National Spiritual Assembly has amended this by-law to read as follows: "Article VIII, Section 1. All delegates to the Convention shall be elected by plurality vote. Members who, by reason of illness or some equally unavoidable circumstance, are unable to be present at the election in person shall have the right to transmit their ballots by mail or telegram under conditions satisfactory to the local Spiritual Assembly."

This amended by-law will apply at the elections held for delegates to the 1931 Annual Convention.

STATUS OF LOCAL BAHÁ'Í GROUPS

With the institution of the local Spiritual Assemblies in localities having nine believers or more, as instructed by Shoghi Effendi, the National Spiritual Assembly could no longer recognize as Bahá'í bodies those smaller local groups which under the by-laws of Bahá'í Temple Unity had enjoyed a status equal to that possessed by believers in centers able to elect a Spiritual Assembly.

For several years, however, the National Assembly has endeavored to cooperate with the smaller groups by listing them in the Directory used for Bahá'í correspondence and sending them, through their secretaries, copies of BAHÁ'Í NEWS and other National Assembly communications.

It has become evident that such a "half-way house" between an isolated believer and a recognized local Bahá'í community represents a special condition for which the National Assembly has a spiritual responsibility requiring careful thought. This subject was considered at the last meeting of the Assembly, with the result that the following resolution was adopted: "After consideration of the best means to promote the distribution of the BAHÁ'Í NEWS to believers in unorganized localities, it was voted to adopt as a general policy the attitude of dealing with all these friends as individual relationships with this body, urging them to gather together any scattered groups in their vicinity and organize an Assembly, and (meanwhile) issue the BAHÁ'Í NEWS directly to the individuals concerned instead of through unorganized group action as hitherto. It was further voted to bring this policy to the attention of the groups through a statement in BAHÁ'Í NEWS, impressing upon them the opportunity afforded through the administrative plan for combining various small groups, scattered through a larger area, into a single organized Assembly."

The National Assembly trusts that many of these groups will arise to act in bringing about consultation among neighboring groups, to the end that wherever nine or more declared believers reside near enough to each other to make attendance at one central meeting feasible, these believers will proceed next April 21 to the election of a local Spiritual Assembly under the conditions defined in the administrative by-laws. The difference between informal Bahá'í groups and duly constituted Bahá'í communities is that members of the latter bodies are responsible citizens of the worldwide Bahá'í commonwealth, having voting rights recognized by the National Assembly and are duly recorded as Bahá'ís in the records of the Assembly. Essential to complete spiritual experience and maturity in the Cause of God in these days is fulfillment of the sacred trusts and relationships created by the Manifestation, interpreted by the Center of His Covenant and promulgated by the Guardian of His Faith and Law.

Groups desiring information and advice are cordially invited to write the National Assembly. BAHÁ'Í NEWS will be sent to group secretaries until lists of these believers are sent in.
THE PRINCIPLE OF BAHÁ'Í FREEDOM

A Statement Concerning the Episode of The New History Society

Because of certain misunderstandings that still prevail among a few believers, the National Spiritual Assembly feels it advisable to issue this further statement, supplementing and confirming the letter published in BAHÁ'Í NEWS for August, 1930, regarding the episode of The New History Society.

The desire of the National Assembly is to so clarify the matter by recording the various steps leading to the adoption of the previous statement that no doubts may remain in a single Bahá'í heart. It will be understood by every believer that the following quotations which directly or indirectly bear upon the subject under consideration.

1. The Kitábú'l-Aqdas

"The Lord hath ordained that in every city a House of Justice be established, wherein shall gather counsellors to the number of Bahá'ís and should it exceed this number, it shall not matter. It behoveth them to be the trusted ones of the Merciful amongst men and to regard themselves as the guardians appointed of God for all that dwell on earth. ... Beware lest ye put away that which is clearly revealed in His Tablet.

"O ye Men of Justice! Be ye in the realm of God shepherds unto His sheep, and guard them from the ravaging wolves that have appeared in disguise, even as ye would guard your own sons.

"Take heed lest the changes and chances of this world of self and passion divide you, may be even as fingers of one hand, the members of one body. Consider the peoples of the world and the littleness of their mind! They ask for that which is harmful unto them and forsake the thing that profiteth them. They verily are of them that have gone astray. We see some men desiring liberty and taking pride therein; they verily are wattività of grievous ignorance. Liberty endeth in strife and sedition, the flame whereof cannot be extinguished. ... Know ye in truth that the example and symbol of liberty is the brute and it behoveth man to be under laws and regulations that shall guard him from his own ignorance and the harm of the mischief makers. Verily, liberty causeth man to transgress the bounds of courtesy and dignity and maketh of him one of them that are of low degree. ... Say, to have liberty is to observe My commandments, if ye be of them that perceive. Should men follow that which We have revealed unto them from the Heavens of Divine Revelation, they would of a certainty attain unto absolute freedom."

2. The Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá

"O my loving friends! After the passing away of this wronged one, it is incumbent upon the Aghsan (Branches), the Afân (Twigs) of the Sacred Lote-Tree, the Hands (pillars) of the Cause of God and the loved ones of the Abáhá Beauty to turn unto Shoghi Effendi—the youthful branch branched from the two hal­lowed and sacred Lote-Trees and the fruit grown from the union of the two offshoots of the Tree of Holiness—as he is the sign of God, the chosen branch, the guardian of the Cause of God, he unto whom all the Aghsan, the Afân, the Hands of the Cause of God and His loved ones must turn. He is the expounder of the words of God and after him will succeed the first-born of his lineal descendants. ... The mighty stronghold shall remain impregnable and safe through obedience to him who is the guardian of the Cause of God. ... He that opposeth him hath opposed the True One, will make a breach in the Cause of God, will subvert His word and will become a manifestation of the Center of Sexion. Beware also to dwell within the days after the ascension (of Bahá'u'lláh) be repeated when the Center of Sexion waxed haughty and rebellious and with Divine Unity for his excuse deprived himself and perturbed and poisoned others. No doubt every vainglorious one that purposeth dissension and discord will not openly declare his evil purposes, nay rather, even as impure gold, would he cease (seize?) upon divers measures and various pretexts that he may separate the gathering of the people of Bahá. My object is to show that the Hands of the Cause of God must be ever watchful and so soon as they find anyone beginning to oppose and protest against the guardian of the Cause of God cast him out from the congregation of the people of Bahá and in no wise accept any excuse from him. How often hath grievous error been disguised in the garb of truth, that it might sow the seeds of doubt in the hearts of men!"

3. Bahá'í Administration, by Shoghi Effendi

"This clearly places heavy responsibilities on the local as well as national Assemblies, which in the course of time will evolve, with the Master's power and guidance, into the local and national Houses of Justice. Hence the vital necessity of having a local Spiritual Assembly in every locality where the number of declared believers exceeds nine, and of making provision for the indirect election of a Body that shall adequately represent the interests of all the friends and Assemblies throughout the American Continent.

"Furthermore, 'Abdu'l-Bahá reveals the following:—It is incumbent upon every one not to take any step without consulting the Spiritual Asrembly, and they must assuredly obey with heart and soul its bidding and be submissive unto it, that things may be properly ordered and well arranged. Otherwise every person will act independently and after his own judgment, will follow his own desire, and do harm to the Cause.' . . . Not only with regard to publication, but all matters without any exception whatsoever, regarding the interests of the Cause in that locality, individually or collectively, should be referred exclusively to the Spiritual Assembly in that locality, which shall decide upon it, unless it be a matter of national interest, in which case it shall be referred to the national body. . . . Full harmony, however, as well as cooperation among the various local assemblies and the members themselves, and particularly between each assembly and the national body, is of the utmost importance for upon it depends the unity of the Cause of God, the solidarity of the friends, the full, speedy and efficient working of the spiritual activities of His loved ones." . . . March 5, 1922.

"These challenging criticisms, whether or not dictated by malice, cannot but serve to galvanize the souls of its ardent supporters, and to consolidate the ranks of its faithful promoters. They will purge the Faith from those pernicious elements whose continued association with the believers tends to discredit the fair name of the Cause, and to tarnish the purity of its spirit. We should welcome, therefore, not only the open attacks which its avowed enemies persistently launch against it, but should also view as a blessing in disguise every storm of mischief with which they who apostatize their faith or claim to be its faithful exponents assail it from time to time. Instead of undermining the Faith, such assaults, both from within and from without, reinforce its foundations, and excite the intensity of its flame. . . . Unlike the Dispensation of Christ, unlike the Dispensation of Muhammad, unlike all the Dispensations of the past, the Dispensation of Baha'u'llah in every land, wherever they labor and toil, have before them in clear, in unequivocal and emphatic language, all the laws, the regulations, the principles, the institutions, the guidance, they require for the prosecution and consummation of their task." March 31, 1930.

4. Letter from National Assembly to Mrs. Chanler (March 25, 1929)

"The members of the National Spiritual Assembly desire to express their most cordial appreciation of your courtesy in permitting them to read the letter you have received from Shoghi Effendi. It was indeed a privilege to share this message of good will from the Guardian, especially in view of the great burden of responsibility he bears in connection with the activities of the Cause throughout the world.

"From this and other letters, the National Assembly is aware of Shoghi Effendi's hopes that the Cause here in New York will continually enlarge and extend its public teaching activities, and in fact become a brilliant example of Baha'i success and influence for other cities. As 'Abdu'l-Baha spent the greater portion of His time, during His American visit, in New York City, we all may rightly judge the importance to be attached to every sincere and effective effort to serve in His footsteps.

"The National Assembly, therefore, is anxious to make it clear to you that its members unanimously desire to assist and cooperate in every possible way to assure the complete success of the public meetings held under your auspices and announced as Baha'i meetings.

"We realize of course that you have not requested this cooperation, but this very fact makes it the more essential that we offer you at this time an explanation of what we conceive to be, from the writings of 'Abdu'l-Baha as well as from the letters of Shoghi Effendi, the conditions essential to successful Baha'i service in the teaching field.

"A Cause established to realize the oneness of humanity must be unified in its workers and representatives. It differs from philosophical and ethical systems in that it does not merely uphold abstract doctrines to be accepted, but has created an organic body of service including all individuals who are Baha'is. Its teachings are not an oral tradition, come down through several human personalities, which compels individual interpretation, but are in writings given forth by Baha'u'llah and 'Abdu'l-Baha themselves. Thus there cannot be a Baha'i Cause composed of different congregations or groups independent one of another, but every Baha'i lives as one member of a worldwide community, his private and personal life remaining his own affair, but his activities insofar as they represent the Cause or employ the name of the Cause being subject to the organic laws given that Baha'i community as part of the teachings.

"We touch upon these facts for the reason that Baha'i service cannot yield fruitful results outside the influence of those organic laws. The consecrating spirit of the Master, and the power of Baha'u'llah, flows through the channels they themselves created, and the activities and movements which remain in the world will not become part of the new age.

"In a recent letter from the Guardian we find these words: 'By leaving certain matters unspecified and unregulated in His Book of Laws, Baha'u'llah seems to have deliberately left a gap in the general scheme of Baha'i Dispensation, which the unequivocal provisions of the Master's Will has filled. To attempt to divorce the one from the other, to insinuate that the Teachings of Baha'u'llah have not been upheld, in their entirety and with absolute integrity, by what 'Abdu'l-Baha has revealed in His Will, is an unpalatable affront to the true spirit of fidelity that has characterized the life and labors of our beloved Master. . . . To dissociate the administrative principles of the Cause from the purely spiritual and humanitarian teachings would be tantamount to a mutilation of the body of the Cause, a separation that can only result in the disintegration of its component parts, and the extinction of the Faith itself.'

"Until one has grasped the deeper significance of the Cause, such emphatic statements may seem arbitrary, involving a surrender of some of the most precious elements of personal freedom and initiative, but when studied against the whole background of the teachings we appreciate the fact that all a Baha'i is expected to yield is the dubious right to mis-interpret the Cause and confuse it publicly with his own individual opinions and beliefs. This is therefore not a sacrifice, but a privilege, especially in connection with the fact that whole-hearted participation in the common tasks and services of a Baha'i community brings a priceless opportunity of education in the divine art of living.

"Our hope, therefore, is that you will consult personally or enter into communication with the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahai's of New York in the matter of your present and future plans which involve the Baha'i name and teachings, in order that these activities may be blessed with the confirmation of 'Abdu'l-Baha, spread in this city which He termed 'The City of the Covenant' the very essence of the teachings of Baha'u'llah, and create for you an honor and glory that will endure in the history of the Cause."
5. Mrs. Chanler's Reply (April 3, 1929)

"...Two thousand years ago, in an age of ignorance and servitude, the Word of God appeared upon the earth, and the Word was free. Now in these enlightened times, when liberty is the heritage of all men (when incidentally they exact it), the Word of God returns to them without limitations. I believe this because I consider the Bahá'í Cause to be no less universal than was Christianity. I appreciate your offer of cooperation, and thank you for any kindness which you may feel toward my work. . . For the present I am thinking of just one thing. Jesus said to His disciples, "Go ye unto all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature" and 'Abdu'l-Bahá said to Ahmad Sohrab, "Go and teach." I am trying to help him."

6. Cablegram from the Guardian to the National Assembly (December 31, 1929)

"Feel strongly Ahmad Sohrab should uphold unconditionally authority local and national Assembly. Have in no letter of mine departed from this basic principle which alone safeguards unity of Cause."

7. Letter from the Guardian, Through His Secretary, to the National Assembly (January 1, 1930)

"In none of the Guardian's letters to Mrs. Chanler has Shoghi Effendi approved of her attitude toward the local and national Assemblies. One of those who was over-zealous about the New History Society wrote Shoghi Effendi that the members of the New York Assembly are gradually becoming milder and perhaps drawn to the History Society. This is to solve the problem in the wrong way. It is not the Assembly that has to be won to the cause of some rebellious person, but that person brought back under the authority of the Assembly."

8. Cablegram from Four New York Believers to the Guardian (January 23, 1930)

"Is it your desire for sake of unity New York that we attend Chanler meeting?"

"Attendance Ahmad meeting conditioned upon Ahmad's unquestioned acceptance to conduct meetings on lines fully sanctioned by National Spiritual Assembly. True unity can only be preserved by maintenance paramount position National Spiritual Assembly."

10. Cablegram to the Guardian from New York Spiritual Assembly (February 28, 1930)

"Mrs. Chanler's request (to) continue her classes (in) Bahá'í Center granted. Implore divine confirmation."

11. The Guardian's Reply (March 1, 1930)

"Much relieved, gladdened, fervently suppling dear valued Mrs. Chanler and Assembly may through fire (of) Bahá'í fellowship he welded, unitlely uphold unity of faith and supremacy (of) Bahá'í representative Assemblies."

"Note: On receiving this cablegram the New York Assembly courteously invited Mrs. Chanler to meet and consult upon the significance of the Guardian's message. This invitation was refused."

12. Letter from the Guardian to the National Assembly (May 30, 1930)

"Ahmad Sohrab's activities should be watched carefully. Let a weak handling of this extremely delicate situation may cause the friends, and cause a split in the Cause. The Cause has already triumphed over such cases which flare up for a time then recede into the shadows of oblivion and are thought of no more. The case of Khyrellah, Fareed, Dyer, Mrs. White and others testify to this truth."

13. National Assembly Statement, Voted June 29, 1930, Published in Baha'i News, August, 1930

"...Appreciating the urgency of obedience to the Master's command that all Bahá'í activities be conducted under the supervision of the Spiritual Assembly, both the Local and the National Assembly have on several occasions—through written as well as oral communication—attempted to bring about full and frank consultation with the leaders of the New History Society, but without success. Under these conditions it becomes the obvious responsibility of the National Spiritual Assembly to inform the friends that the activities conducted by Ahmad Sohrab through the New History Society are to be considered as entirely independent of the Cause, as outside the jurisdiction of the Local and National Assembly, and hence in no wise entitled to the cooperation of Bahá'ís. . . ."

14. Cablegram from the Guardian to the National Assembly (Published in Baha'i News, September, 1930)

"Approve action regarding History Society. Deeply appreciate loyalty (of) believers."

15. Letter from the Guardian, Through His Secretary, to a Believer of Tonkens, N. Y. (August 30, 1930)

"A year ago, Mrs. Chanler wrote Shoghi Effendi of her plan to work independently of the Assembly. In answer he expressed his disapproval in a most unquestionable term. In the letters and cables that Mrs. Chanler wrote subsequent to that, Shoghi Effendi expressed the same view again. He knew that for a body to defy the Assembly is contrary to the best interests of the Cause; that not only will conflict arise but it will react unfavorably in other parts of the world. "Some persons in the (United) States feel that the History Society was badly represented to Shoghi Effendi. The source of all our information is the writings of Ahmad, and the publications of that group. In all his circular letters he harped on the note of freedom, and denounced the red tape that characterizes organizations. Freedom, which Ahmad reiterates . . . is not a bad thing if considered in view of the interpretation that Bahá'u'lláh gives in the Aqdas. (See quotation No. 1, above—Editor). The freedom that He commends is a freedom which is a fruit and result of law and proper administration. The other kind of freedom which is in defiance of law He considers to be animal, and far from being of any good to man. He says, 'True freedom is in obedience to My law.' "No one wrote to Shoghi Effendi against the History Society; it is Ahmad's reports that caused Shoghi Effendi's mistrust. This literature has not had this effect only on Shoghi Effendi but also on the friends of Australia and New Zealand. In the last two weeks we have had two letters from prominent and firm Bahá'ís of New Zealand and Australia who referred to the History Society and its literature with greatest disapproval, and with great astonishment that nothing is being done. "The Cause is an international institution. Every act done in one Center will have some reaction in some other locality. What if the spirit that Ahmad preaches should be practised in its full? The whole Cause will as a result be destroyed."
16. Cablegram from the Guardian to the National Assembly

"Appeal to American believers, New York believers in particular, (to) recall (during) these days of stress (the) sacredness of their trust (and) the nobility of their calling. Slightest evidence of (of) internal division highly detrimental."

Simla Hill, forty miles from Simla, is even more beautiful than Simla itself. His Highness, the Maharajah of Patiala, has his summer palace there and he invited us to be his guests for two or three days. Mr. Pritam Singh used to be his teacher. We went for two days and we were entertained in a spacious new Guest House. His Highness the Maharajah of Patiala is Chancellor of the Chamber of Princes and he will lead the delegation of Princes to the Round Table Conference in London, and he led a delegation of Princes to the League of Nations a year or two ago. The questions he asked showed that he has read some of the Baha'i Teachings. I gave him two books and Mr. Bekhtiar gave him two in Urdu. This Maharajah is thirty-six years old, he is very fond of reading and he has a wonderful mind. I met his son, we talked with their teacher, with the military secretary, the aide-de-camp, with generals, with relatives, and there were nearly fifty guests besides ourselves. We met them at the pavilion where every one gathered to watch a Cricket match. When we left Simla Hill, Mr. Pritam Singh returned to Lahore, but we came to Delhi.

(8) DELHI. Two days and one night were spent in Delhi, the Capital of India. We called on a great Muslim scholar who had met 'Abdu'l Bahá in Egypt. He has translated "Seven Valleys" into Urdu. We had a meeting of the Bahá'í of Delhi, it was held at the "Kaukob" office. This "Kaukob" Bahá'í magazine in Urdu language is doing good work. It carries the Creative Word in the Urdu language, and in different cities I have seen its fruits. I believe it is very important to try to continue it and to do everything, in regard to its maintenance and the subject matter of its pages, in consultation with the National Spiritual Assembly. Mr. Abbas Ali and Mr. Ilim are working very hard on this magazine "Kaukob."

I lectured before the Arya Samaj Society, 125 people were present. I gave a book to the Chancellor of the University, Mr. Bekhtiar spoke with the people who know Urdu. Consultations were held about the work in India.

(10) BENARES. A visit was made to the All-India Headquarters of the Theosophical Society in Benares where they have a fine school for four hundred young men and women. The Secretary arranged for me to lecture in this school and said he would be glad to have me write out this lecture or write an article about the progress of the Bahá'í Movement for the Theosophical Review, a monthly magazine published there.

His Highness, The Maharajah of Benares, graciously sent his motor car to take us to his palace. He himself is ill but we were received by his son, His Highness Kunwar Adiya Narayan Singh Bahadur and by the Military Secretary, a Major. The Maharajah and his son represent the highest in Hinduism in this ancient Province of Benares where Hinduism had its rise five thousand years ago and where Buddha taught his first five disciples. The young Maharaja (Prince) was the finest type of goodness and kindness. Both he and the Secretary know Persian as well as English and they spoke to Mr. Bekhtiar in Persian and he will send them some Persian books. He gave them books in Urdu and I gave His Highness "Some Answered Questions." He courteously gave me books about Benares and an introduction to the Chancellor of the Benares Hindu University.

A lecture had been arranged in this Hindu University, but owing to the political crisis on that day, it had to be cancelled. Picketing was going on at several universities in India and this prevented my lecturing in some of the universities. (Picketing means that the men and youth literally lie down in the walks and roads leading to the schools so that students and professors who enter must walk over their bodies. They try to compel the students to cease attending the universities and work for freedom of their country.) However, in this Hindu University I spoke with the Chancellor, the Secretary and other professors. One professor whom I had met first in Simla said he would speak to the students about the Bahá'í Movement and tell them of the books which I had left for the University Library.

(9) LUCKNOW. A lecture was given before a large audience at the Brahmo Samaj. The Secretary was most cordial, he gave a tea in his home for friends to speak with us, and I gave a tea also inviting some of the thinkers of Lucknow. I talked with the Librarian of the Public Library and gave him a book for the Library. Called upon the Editor of the Indian Daily Telegraph and gave him an article about the Cause. I also wrote an article for the Pioneer in Allahabad, an important city near Lucknow and sent one book for the Allahabad Public Library. The stay in Lucknow was just one day and a half.

(11) PATNA. Only one day was spent in Patna, but wonderful fruits came. A lecture was given at 10:30 A.M. in the Girls' High School before 257 girls and about 12 teachers. Then a visit was made to the High Court and to meet some of the judges and to meet the Vice-Chancellor of the University. (The university was not yet opened.) All spoke of the Bahá'í Movement in a friendly spirit and urged me to visit the Oriental Library of Patna. I lectured at 2 P.M. in the Bihar National College where three hundred young men listened eagerly and made a dash for the little booklets which were distributed. At five o'clock I gave a small tea for a few professors and religious thinkers, and at 6:30 gave a public lecture under the auspices of the Brahmo Samaj. One hundred and fifty people were present and a beautiful spirit of love was extended. Books were put into all public libraries in Patna.

(12) BOLPUR. A visit was made to the school of Rabindranath Tagore and two lectures were given there, and books put into the Library. The five religions, Christian, Muslim, Jain, Buddhist and Hindu have Professors at this school. Perhaps the time will come when Bahá'ís will pay for a Bahá'í Professor to teach in this school for one year, or establish a Bahá'í chair in this institution. The school, and it is co-educational, represents the most modern progressive methods, and it gives much attention to the spiritual uplift and aim of education. There are about four hundred pupils. Dr. Tagore is in Germany, so I did not see him, but met some of his relatives.

(13) CALCUTTA. Mr. N. Badri of Shiraz, Persia, and a descendant of the Báb is in Calcutta. He is a youth of keen brain and capacity and he arranged for several lectures. I spoke first in the Islamic Institute before two hundred and fifty Muslims and about fifty people of other religions. The President of City College presided. Books were placed in this and in all other libraries of societies where I lectured.

A lecture was given before both sections of the Brahmó Samaj Mahraní (Princess) Sucharu Devée of Mayurbhanj acted as Chairman. One hundred and fifty people were present and several invitations came to address other groups.

Mr. Bekhtiar, Mr. Badri and I gave a tea for a Judge of the High Court, for a Princess, for relatives of Dr. Tagore and a few others who were interested to hear more about the Teachings.

Mr. Bijayachandra Sinha gave a supper in his home for the Bahá'ís of Calcutta.

I wrote four articles and we took them personally to the editors of the four largest newspapers and each editor said he would publish the article.

I was invited to a tea to meet nineteen guests at the home of Mrs. Mahalaní who is a daughter of Keshub Chunder Sen, the great teacher of Brahmó Samaj. Her husband was Professor of Psychology in University, but I was invited to a tea for a Judge, Chunder Sen, of Calcutta.

Dr. Edna McKinney Tibbetts, for many years a devoted Bahá'í, departed this life October 4, 1930, and was buried at Providence, R. I., her late home, on October 7. Her funeral was attended by the little circle of attracted friends in Providence and by others who went from Boston, Portsmouth, N. H., and Haverhill. The floral tributes were beautiful and the simple Bahá'í service, consisting of the reading of Tablets and prayers and brief addresses was very impressive to friends and inquirers alike from its spiritual atmosphere.

Dr. Edna McKinney Tibbetts, for many years a devoted Bahá'í, departed this life October 4, 1930, and was buried at Providence, R. I., her late home, on October 7. Her funeral was attended by the little circle of attracted friends in Providence and by others who went from Boston, Portsmouth, N. H., and Haverhill. The floral tributes were beautiful and the simple Bahá'í service, consisting of the reading of Tablets and prayers and brief addresses was very impressive to friends and inquirers alike from its spiritual atmosphere.

Surviving Dr. Tibbetts is her mother, Mrs. A. E. McKinney and her husband, Mr. Frank Tibbetts, the latter of whom was taught the Cause by his wife. Dr. Tibbetts had the faculty of sustaining friendships and will be mourned by a wide circle of friends as well as her family. Her serene appearance in death was a sign of her faith in the Beauty of Abáh and firmness in the Covenant of His love.

LEGAL COMMITTEE REPORTS ON BAHÁ'Í INCORPORATION IN CANADA AND OTHER CURRENT PROBLEMS

The American National Spiritual Assembly has become an administrative body called upon to deal with a vast range of problems during the course of each year. From matters affecting the spiritual or material well being of individuals to those involving relations to civil governments, the Assembly attempts to apply the Bahá'í standard of reality throughout practically the whole gamut of human experience.

The following statement summarizes recent decisions of the National Assembly on recommendation of its Legal Committee.

Canadian Incorporation. The fact that the National Assembly represents a body of believers having both United States and Canadian citizenship has raised the question whether it would not be advisable for the believers of Canada, through the Spiritual Assembly of Montreal, to record with their own Canadian law some form of legal incorporation similar to the Declaration of Trust, paralleling that document, and having the effect of giving Canadian Bahá'ís a legal status recognized under their own civil code. After due consideration, the National Assembly voted that a separate Canadian incorporation would be inadvisable, since the religious status of all American believers is already established under the Declaration of Trust; since also a separate legal body would create confusion and difficulty between the actions and powers of Bahá'ís in the United States and those in Canada; and finally since a simple Indenture of Trust naming the nine members of the Montreal Spiritual Assembly and their successors, as trustees for the benefit of the Bahá'ís of that community, would constitute a legal instrument sufficient for purposes of record but not possessing the larger significance of the Declaration of Trust. The National Assembly will be pleased to cooperate with any recognized Canadian group in the formulation of such an Indenture.

The same general principle meets the question as to whether local Spiritual Assemblies in the United States should incorporate locally, by an instrument which would be recognized by the state in which it is located. Here again, the form of an Indenture would provide corporate responsibility but not invade the inclusive and unique character of the Declaration of Trust approved by the Guardian of the Cause. A model form of Indenture can be provided by the National Assembly for use by such local Assemblies as may wish to employ it.

Green Acre Fellowship. This body, existing under charter granted by the State of Maine, stripped itself of its property at Green Acre by formal action some years ago, and Green Acre property and administration are now vested in a body of nine trustees under an Indenture similar to that holding title to the Temple property at Wilmette. The National Assembly voted that the charter should be annulled, the Fellowship now being fully filled in and through the larger Bahá'í body.

Gifts of real property to the National Fund. In connection with the transfer of title of a piece of real estate intended as a contribution to the Cause, the Assembly voted that in future each donation or legacy of real estate should be accepted under a separate Indenture naming the nine members of the National Assembly as trustees. The advantage of this procedure is twofold: it prevents taxes, liens and other obligations from becoming an unexpected burden upon the National Fund, or upon the Temple Fund, or involving the National Assembly in possible legal disputes; and in addition it makes possible the use for the Cause of more real property than could legally be held by one religious corporation under the diverse statutes of the different states.

Believers intending to make donations of real estate during their life-time, or by will and testament, should consult the National Assembly in order to have the papers correctly drawn.

Convention procedure. A recommendation made by the Bahá'ís of South Gate, Calif., leading to the improvement of the system of casting and counting ballots at the Annual Convention was approved. The new procedure will be explained in detail when the call for the 1931 Convention is issued.

REQUESTS BACK NUMBER OF BAHÁ'Í MAGAZINE

To complete its files, the Publishing Committee, P. O. Box 348, Grand Central Station, New York City, wishes to purchase one copy of No. 5, Vol. I, Star of the West. Believers having available copies of that issue are invited to notify the Committee at the above address.

MR. C. MASON REMEY DESIGNS CURTAINS AND PLAQUES FOR TOMB OF BAHÁ'U-LLAH

I have your letter of October 21st asking me for a statement about the Guardian's request for the hangings, and for the two panels with the Greatest Name on marble.

About twenty-five years ago I made a design for a curtain to hang at the doorway of the Tomb of Bahá'u'lláh at Bahjé. Madam d'Ange d'Astre, now of Paris, but who was then living in Washington, an expert with the needle, undertook the execution of this and it came out very well. The ground work was dark blue velvet and the embroidery was in shades of gold silk with borders across the top and down the sides with a heavy fringe, while in the center panel was a sun-burst of nineteen points with the Greatest Name in the center, and the ground was embroidered with ninety-five stars.

A couple of years ago I had a letter from Shoghi Effendi saying that curtain had been so long in use that it was faded and the material was in shreds (I presume the dampness of the climate had rotted the stuff), and he asked me if I would send another curtain to replace the former one. At several meetings of the Assembly I suggested that some of the ladies form a guild and undertake the embroidery of this curtain. It ended up by Mrs. Barnitz and Miss Knobloch doing the embroidery between them, while Miss Knobloch did the sewing on the curtain.

The color was dark blue velvet with old gold embroidery but of a somewhat more simple design than the original one. There was a large Greatest Name in the center of the curtain with a heavy gold band and fringe across the bottom and cords up the sides. It was lined with old gold damask brocade of a religious and formal character of fleurs de les and flowers.

Dr. Guy took this curtain to Haifa when he made his recent pilgrimage.

Not many months ago Shoghi Effendi again requested me to arrange to send a similar curtain to be hung before the doorway of the room of Bahá'u'lláh at Bahjé, and he also requested two marble plaques engraved with the Greatest Name, of the design such as is engraved on the ring-stone. For these he sent me a small design to be enlarged.

Mrs. Barnitz and Miss Knobloch again very kindly undertook to do the embroidery and the making of the curtain, I arranging as before for the material and the designing. The curtain was about the same size as the other curtain, and the design similar, but we varied the color, using an old gold velvet with the embroidery and trimming of a little brighter shade of gold, lined with a damask brocade of the same color.

Some years ago I had a copy of the Greatest Name cut in marble and sent to Shoghi Effendi that I understand he placed above the doorway of the Tomb of the Master. This was made in Italy and I hear it came out successfully. Therefore I took up the matter of the two marble plaques with Mrs. Hosgg who is now living in Geneva, knowing that she was in touch with the reliable sculptor in Florence (where she formerly lived) who could do this work, he having made the former tablet.

These tablets were made and sent. I understand they are in white marble with the Greatest Name inlaid in marble of a different color, while around the name in an oval pattern is some leaf work decoration, also inlaid in color.

Not long since, I sent this latter curtain to New York to be taken by the first pilgrims going to the Holy Land. I believe it was shown at one of the meetings of the Assembly and Miss Herklotz later wrote me that Mrs. Mathews and Mrs. Little had taken it with them, so I presume by now it is in Shoghi Effendi's hands.

Faithfully yours in El Bahá,
C. MASON REMEY.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

We are requested by the Secretary of the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Los Angeles to record the fact that the correct address for correspondence is now: Mrs. Shahnaz Waite, Secretary, 1534 North Stanley Avenue, Hollywood, Calif.
They that valiantly labor in quest of God's will, when once they have renounced all else but Him, be so attached and wedded to that City that a moment's separation from it would to them be unthinkable. They will hearken unto infallible proofs from the pyramids of that assembly, and receive the sweetest testimonies from the beauty of its rose and the melody of its nightingale. Once in about a thousand years shall this City be renewed and readorned. Wherefore, O my friend, it behooves us to exert the highest endeavor to attain unto that City, and, by the grace of God and His loving-kindness, rend asunder the veils of glory, so that we, with inflexible steadfastness, sacrifice our withered soul in the path of the New Beloved.—BABA’U’LLAH.

CABLEGRAM FROM SHOGHI EFFENDI
(Mrs. Ruth) White's base, pre-posterous imputations should be entirely ignored. Her machinations can never succeed impede onward march of Cause. Present agitation will assuredly die down. Appeal American Baha'is.

New York believers in particular, recall these days of stress sacredness of their trust, nobility of their calling. Slightest evidence internal division highly detrimental. Have just completed rough rendering of most detailed authentic narrative early days of Faith trusting its eventual publication may serve heighten enthusiasm deepen faith American believers.

NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY TO ISSUE A SERIES OF SPECIAL LETTERS

Cooperation of Local Assemblies Requested that Believers May Consult on National Subjects at Nineteen-Day Feast

The following action was taken by the National Spiritual Assembly at its recent meeting, in order to keep the local Bahá'í communities more fully informed about the important questions before the body of American believers, and to make possible the utmost power of collective action: It was voted to resume the policy of issuing, at frequent intervals, general letters dealing with important Bahá'í questions, which Local Spiritual Assemblies are requested to present to the friends of each Nineteen-Day Feast. Since the matter of continuing Temple construction after the present contracts are finished is so imminent, several letters will deal with the needs of the National Bahá'í Fund.

The new office of Financial Secretary was created, the function of which is to interpret the needs and policies of the National Bahá'í Fund to the believers of the United States and Canada, and in general to deepen our collective understanding of the nature and significance of the Fund. Mr. Carl Schellmer was elected to this office.

The first letter in this series, dated December 24, 1930, is quoted below, that believers not members of established Bahá'í communities may share the information and respond to the appeal.

“"At the last meeting of the National Spiritual Assembly the sum of five thousand five hundred and seventy-five dollars was voted for a partial installation of the ventilating system in the Mashriqui-L-Adhikar.

"This amount was the last measure of our achievement in this stage of the Temple construction work. The entire Temple Fund of Four Hundred Thousand dollars is now expended and in addition to this our contracts have required Seven Thousand Two Hundred Fifty-one dollars and forty-eight cents. Money collected this year have been spent. By the first of March not one cent will remain in the Temple Fund—the present contracts will have been completed and unless the believers find some way to resume contributing to the Fund the enterprise must again stop. But this is so critical a matter that every believer should give to it most earnest consideration. Even though the business conditions in our country and in the world generally are such as to make it more difficult to contribute to the fund, it must be realized that our buying power is increased in the same proportion and we may well consider that through the savings that have been effected the Fund this year has been augmented by over twenty thousand dollars and this money has been spent to the advantage of the Temple.

"It behooves us therefore to again bring into activity the same faith that enabled us in a short period to accumulate the Four Hundred Thousand dollars, in order that the work of exterior ornamentation and landscaping may be undertaken.

"The National Spiritual Assembly therefore proposes to every believer prayerful consideration to the end that he will begin now, if he has not already done so, to give systematically to the unlabelled general National Bahá'í Fund. From this Fund the National Assembly appropriates as much as possible to the Temple Fund.

"The great Fund that enabled us to resume construction was brought together through a special effort, but now the character of the building work will change. Its development will of necessity be slower because of the intricate detail of the ornamentation and this gives to us the chance to carry on more slowly but steadily, providing we have a regular systematic influx of contributions.

"The visible progress of the erection of the Building has already created a great outburst of enthusiastic comment. The Master's promises regarding its potency in the spread of the Cause are being realized. It has awakened the great mass of the public who..."
already are in sympathy with the glorious principles of the Cause, so that the time of harvest for the teachers of its great Message is here. Lack of funds, however, seriously handicap your National Assembly and the Teaching Committee and unless the believers respond immediately that committee’s plea for more funds to enable the teachers to meet the crying need in many centers of new and glorious opportunity will have to go unanswered.

"In the Guardian’s most recent communication are the following words: ‘The progress of the Temple work is already reacting most favorably on the believers throughout the East, and will through them bring about a great reaction in favor of the Cause. I would appeal to all American Believers for concentrated and sustained effort in the prosecution of this great and holy enterprise. May the Beloved bless their high endeavors and fulfill their hearts’ desire.’"

Yours faithfully,
National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada.

Financial Secretary.

THE TEMPLE IS ARISING

The eye of faith is now supplemented by the eye of vision. As one approaches the Temple site, the structural framework of the Temple bursts upon the vision and one is immediately impressed with its remarkable proportions and innate dignity.

As this statement is being written, the structural steel of the graceful dome is being riveted up, and the erection of the glass dome will soon be under way. The lovely arches of the first story with the pylons at the corners suggest the massiveness and majesty of the completed structure. The concrete up to and including the first gallery floor has been poured and the carpenters are now at work on the formwork of the first story.

As the observer approaches the building, the surface of the concrete framework is noted as being remarkably uniform and smooth. The contractor is making a special effort to secure not only a uniform exterior surface, but also concrete masonry of unusual density and strength. The entire structure is being built in as permanent a nature as possible, so that it will not only be beautiful but enduring.

Sub-contracts for about 85 per cent of the entire superstructure framework have been awarded and remarkable progress has been made on the construction work. So far actual building operations have been suspended only four days due to severe and unfavorable weather conditions.

The savings that have been effected in the awarding of the sub-contracts will make it possible to go ahead and install the necessary heating to protect the structure during the winter and coming spring. It is hoped that through continued efforts and sacrifices of the friends throughout the world that funds may flow in so that the wishes of our beloved Guardian may be fulfilled and the work be continued until the entire structure, including the exterior ornamental surface, is completed.

"THE SACRED BASIC PRINCIPLES OF BAHÁ’U’LLÁH"

A Letter from the National Spiritual Assembly for Guidance of Local Bahá’í Communities

Dear Friends in El Abá:

"If thou desirest to be confirmed in the service of the Kingdom of God, live in accord with the teachings of Bahá’u’lláh, and that is: real love for the world of humanity, and the utmost kindness for the believers of God. This real love, like unto the magnetic power, attracts the Divine confirmations."—(ABOUL BAHÁ.)

We realize the vital importance—in these early days when the concept of the Bahá’í World Order is gradually penetrating into the thought and knowledge of all types and classes of world thinkers—of preserving intact the sacred basic principles of Bahá’u’lláh, fortifying them against compromise, and demonstrating to the world that these are truly divine remedies for the spiritual and mental diseases of the body politic. Among these great principles, two stand out pre-eminently at this time as essential to the successful establishment of the Bahá’í Cause in the West. Each of these two principles is supplementary to the other, and the failure or weakening of one can seriously, if not dangerously, affect the application of the other. These two principles are like unto the body and soul itself, neither of which is capable of performing its true function without the ever-present assistance of the other.

(1) The administrative order (one of the two principles referred to), is the indispensable instrumentality through which the glorious spirit of the Bahá’í Cause finds expression. This spirit, in turn, is the second principle referred to. Should we build up the administrative world order to a point of absolute perfection but at the same time allow it to be hampered or disconnected from the channels within, through which channels the Holy Spirit of the Cause pours forth, we would have nothing more than a perfected body out of touch with and cut off from the finer promptings of the soul or spirit. If, on the other hand, the influxes and goings forth of the spirit are scattered, diffused and subjected wholly to the more or less imperfect guidance and interpretation of individual believers, lacking both the wisdom secured through consultation and also the lights of real unity which shine through consultative action and obedience thereto—a disordered and disorganized activity would be witnessed, which would but dimly reflect the divine purpose for this age, which is no less than the establishment of the reign of divine love, justice and wisdom in the world, under and in conformity to the Divine Law.

In short, such conditions would create countless individual interpretations and, in the end, multitudinous sects and denominations, such as have been witnessed in the former religions, each claiming to possess a greater truth or guidance than any of the others.

It is manifest, therefore, that neither one of these two extreme possibilities is sufficient unto itself but must be combined into an ordered unity, each perfectly supplementary to the other and neither permitted to interpose any rigid barriers to the proper functioning of the other.

In the body of man, which is the true divine example or parallel, the spirit, when in ideal control of all the lesser parts of the organism, finds the utmost harmony throughout the whole body—each part is in perfect reciprocity with the other parts. The commands and impulses of the spirit are obeyed by the body and the body in turn in its actions and function identifies and determines the expression the spiritual impulses shall take. This is divine unity—and this law being universal and found in every created object in the universe, has full application to the universal Bahá’í organism made up of believers everywhere, which has been established by the Manifestation of God.

Therefore, we would emphasize, it behooves all of us—all Assemblies and all believers generally—if we would render the highest service to the Divine Cause in our generation, not only to realize but to apply in our Bahá’í service the most perfect coordination and unification of these two great principles in every Bahá’í contact, whether in the processes of consultation or in our mutual dealings with each other.

(2) ‘Abdu’l-Bahá once said that the American people because of the system of partisan politics developed an individualism which made it very difficult for them to take counsel together and abide by the results of that counsel. The interruptions of governmental process through the necessities of elections and destructive criticism by members of one party of the other party, had created a condition wherein true consultation was well-nigh unknown. We know that the Master’s criticism was only too true.

(3) The Bahá’í administration is a most advanced step forward toward the elimination of this condition. The National Spiritual Assembly stands squarely behind every essential element of Bahá’í administration, but while no relaxation should be suffered in the application of the administrative principles at any time, we deem it to be doubly important, in these days when this divine method of dealing with religious problems is becoming rooted in American institutions, that those coordinate elements which have been so emphasized by our Guardian in connection with the administration of the Universal House of Justice be carried out.

We would refer for a moment to the need of having ever in mind the indwelling spirit of the administration, which is the real life and purpose of Bahá’ulláh’s revelation, and is, in reality, the effulgence of the Holy Spirit, itself. Without this Spirit, reflected in every administrative act, the body of the administration becomes rigid, opaque and lifeless, for the Sun of Divine Love finds no responsive mirror upon which to reflect its life-giving rays. This Holy Spirit is the greatest bestowal of God in this age, and for this, the Founders of the Cause, and the martyred believers, endured countless afflictions at the hands of a world that knew not this holy potency. In every administrative act, this Spirit should illumine and warm the believers who are affected. On Page 19 of Bahá’u’lláh’s Administration, Shoghi Effendi says we are expected “to obliteriate as much as possible all traces of censure, of conflicting discussion, of cooling remarks, of petty unwarranted observations that impede the onward march of the Cause, that damp the zeal of the firm believer and distract from the sublimity of the Bahá’í Cause in the eyes of the inquirer.” On page 22, quoting from the words of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, our Guardian draws our attention to these words, referring to members of Assemblies—

“They must in every matter search out the truth and not insist upon their own opinion; for stubbornness and persistence in one’s views will lead ultimately to discord and wrangling and the truth will remain hidden. The honored members must with all freedom express their own thoughts, and it is in no wise permissible for one to belittle the thought of another. Should the least trace of estrangement prevail, the result shall be darkness upon darkness.”

Again on Page 30, quoting from ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, it is stated—

“It behooveth the loved ones of God to be enamored of one another and to sacrifice themselves for their fellow-workers in the Cause. They should yearn towards one another even as the sore athirst yearneth for the Water of Life, and the lover burneth to meet his heart’s desire.”

On Page 33, our Guardian says, in speaking of Spiritual Assemblies—

“They must endeavor to promote unity and concord amongst the friends, efface every lingering trace of distrust, coolness and estrangement from every heart, and secure in its stead an active and wholehearted cooperation for the service of the Cause.”

On Page 36, he spoke against extreme orthodoxy on one hand, and irresponsible freedom on the other, lest these cause it (“the Cause”) to deviate from the Straight Path which alone can lead it to success.

As bearing upon this delicate balance that must be maintained, which we referred to in the opening paragraphs of this letter, our Guardian on Page 54 tells us—

“At the very root of the Cause lies the principle of the undoubted right of the individual to self-expression, his freedom to declare his conscience and set forth his views.”

West Englewood, New Jersey

BAHÁ’I News is the official organ of the American National Spiritual Assembly. Its cost is defrayed from the National Bahá’í Fund and copies are distributed free of charge to recognized believers throughout the United States and Canada, and to National and Local Spiritual Assemblies in other lands.

News articles and reports of general Bahá’í interest and value are requested from Assemblies, National Committees and other representatives of the Cause.

The Guardian’s statement concerning the purpose and scope of this publication can be found in the volume entitled “Bahá’í Administration.”
And again—

"Let us also bear in mind that the keynote of the Cause of God is not dictatorial authority but humble fellowship, not arbitrary power, but the spirit of frank and loving consultation. Nothing short of the spirit of a true Baha'i can hope to reconcile the principles of mercy and justice, of freedom and submission, of the sanctity of the right of the individual and of self-surrender, of vigilance, discretion and prudence on the one hand, and fellowship, candor and courage on the other."

"They should approach their task with extreme humility, and endeavor, by their open-mindedness, their high sense of justice and duty, their candor, their modesty, their entire devotion to the welfare and interests of the friends, the Cause, and humanity—to win, not only the confidence and the genuine support and respect of those whom they serve, but also their esteem and real affection. They must, at all times, avoid the spirit of exclusiveness, the atmosphere of secrecy, free themselves from a domineering attitude, and banish all forms of prejudice and passion from their deliberations. They should, within the limits of wise discretion, take the friends into their confidence, acquaint them with their plans, share with them their problems and anxieties, and seek their advice and counsel."

We are quoting these several references as a reminder and aid to all established Assemblies, since various problems are found to a greater or lesser degree in various centers. These injunctions and their observance constitute the divine remedy as applied to the internal affairs of our administrative processes, and we are assured that their due application will open the paths of harmony, happiness and the successful advance of the Cause in the western world.

(4) Our Guardian's letters on administration are replete with clear and unmistakable references to the authority and jurisdiction which rests in every local Assembly over the affairs of the Cause in its vicinity. Every believer who is a member of a local Baha'i community is under a paramount spiritual duty to cooperate in his or her Baha'i activities with the duly expressed decisions of a Spiritual Assembly. The paramount obligation of every individual believer is to maintain unity. It is the obligation of a believer in a community to bring any matters of complaint or misunderstanding first to his Local Assembly. The believers on their part will realize that the law of God is a just law, and that in this day, it has extended its provisions to every important matter. Thus, not only is every individual believer entitled to the right of electoral franchise in the choice of his local Spiritual Assembly but also in cases where he feels aggrieved at the decision of a body, a right of appeal to the National Spiritual Assembly is provided. Through these means, ultimate justice is assured. The whole fabric of Baha'i administration rests upon the acceptance by the friends of the considered decisions of their Local Assemblies, and this is the very essence and root of the law of consultation which Bahá'u'lláh has called us to obey. It follows from this that there can be no such thing as non-cooperation with an elected local Assembly inasmuch as such a procedure utterly defeats the central purpose of consultation. Any cause or causes, which might otherwise tend to create an attitude of non-cooperation on the part of a believer, should be at once placed before the Local Assembly, in the spirit of Baha'i frankness and trust—meanwhile preserving full cooperation, and awaiting the just decision of the Assembly. Grievances when made a matter of appeal to the National Assembly, following an adverse decision of a Local Assembly, should have a substantial basis, affecting the welfare of the Cause, and should be frankly and definitely stated in writing, and sent to the National Secretary.

(5) These matters now being defined, and assuring you that the National Spiritual Assembly will defend and safeguard to every necessary extent these vital requisites of Baha'i life—we would point out to Assemblies our feeling that one of their essential duties during periods of confusion and unrest, such as the present, is to win the confidence and loyalty of every declared believer. We would urge you this year especially to make it your paramount obligation, individually and collectively, to show an attitude of love, compassion and of happiness and harmony toward the beloved of God, without exception. We feel that Baha'i administration in no sense affords any excuse to confuse the element of loyalty to the representative bodies with irritating discourtesies or an overbearing disposition, or a negative, cold and slighting attitude, under any circumstances, on the part of the Assembly itself.

(6) Any failure of either of the two principles first alluded to, whether firmness in the administration or a lack of the spirit of Baha'i love, fellowship and happiness in carrying out the measures of the administration, can only serve to prolong and confuse the solution of such a problem as we have encountered. The true balance between these two principles must be invariably found before such a problem or, for that matter, any other problem can be efficiently and promptly settled. Otherwise, justice finds defeat, and needless suffering results.

It is certain that this experience has had its value in a better understanding of all factors which must be considered in dealing with the greater problems that will confront the Cause in the future. It is doubtless too much to expect that any Assembly, whether National or Local, in this early dawn of the establishment of the Bahá’í World Order, with the added factor of the necessity of educating and informing the whole body of believers, could hope to solve complex problems with the utmost simplicity and expedition.

7. It is our ardent hope that from this hour, the bonds of true union, fellowship and an ever-increasing harmony and happiness will be consciously realized in our common problems, and that the National Spiritual Assembly, together with all the local representative bodies in the west and the great body of believers in every section will, in the words of our Guardian "form one united front and combat wisely and tactfully every force that might darken the spirit of the Movement, cause division in its ranks and narrow it by dogmatic and sectarian belief."

Let us take home to our hearts, anew, this following picture of reality our Guardian has given us, which affirms the presence of God in the Kingdom.

"Are we to doubt that the ways of God are not necessarily the ways of man? Is not faith but another word for implicit obedience, whole-hearted allegiance, uncompromising adherence to that which we believe is the revealed and expressed will of God, however perplexing it might first appear, however at variance with the shadowy views, the impotent doctrines, the crude theories, the idle imaginings, the fashionable conceptions of a transient and troublous age? If we are to falter or hesitate, if our love for Him should fail to direct us and keep us within His path, if we desert Divine and emphatic principles, what hope can we any more cherish for healing the ills and sicknesses of this world?"

We cannot close this statement without appealing to all the beloved of God to renew, in this critical period of humanity’s history, the altar flame of Divine love in each individual heart; to cleanse the chamber of the soul for His indwelling; to ever remember that God is concerned with the redemption of the wandering and straying sheep, and to show forth to all such the wondrous power of His Love and Generosity; holding fast to the divine principles without compromise or deviation, but making our service a benediction and a blessing to every inquirer and needy one, and demonstrating the security of our faith by the evidences of happiness, serenity and the bestowals of the Holy Spirit. This is the hour for a new and unprecedented delivery of the Great Message. Let us fortify our efforts by now realigning our nucleus, rank upon rank, in the bonds of the Divine Unity, each to each.

With loving greetings in behalf of the National Spiritual Assembly, National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada,

By: Alfred E. Lunt,
Secretary.

Is not the object of every Revelation to effect a transformation in the inward character of mankind, a transformation that shall manifest itself, both outwardly and inwardly, that shall affect both its inner life and external conditions? For if the character of mankind be not changed, the facility of God's universal manifestation would be apparent.

TEMPLE PROGRESS

"Seeing is believing" and if any doubt remains as to the rapidity of progress in the completion of the Temple, this can be set to rest by visiting the site or by looking at recent photographs; these show surprising results from the activities of October.

A most notable feature is the smoothness and quietness of the operations, resulting from the working out of carefully considered plans matured during the past few years. It is comparable to the flowering of the century plant, apparently dormant, but which almost over night puts out beautiful blossoms.

Like Solomon's Temple, there is no sound of hammers or confusion. Every piece of steel has fitted into place and the protecting concrete has flowed smoothly into the forms. Aside from the visible operations, there has gone on, under cover, and throughout the basement, a large amount of work in the way of plumbing and re-arrangements made necessary by the rapid work outside; at the same time there has been a minimum of interference with the use of the Foundation Hall. This work began early in September. By October 7, the derrick for hoisting the heavy steel frame was in place on the first floor. In two weeks enough of the frame had been erected to enable the derrick to be raised to the first gallery level, and in another two weeks it was again raised to the level of the dome.

The weather has been favorable—cold but clear most of the time, and the temperature has not been so low as to interfere with concrete placing, etc.

With the continuance of favorable weather conditions, the present progress on the Temple will result in the completion of the erection of the structural steel by the latter part of November, 1930. As the structural steel is placed the pouring of the concrete goes on; it is hoped to complete this masonry work before severe winter sets in.

The general contractor assures us that the entire superstructure as embodied in the present contract will be completed and ready for use before the next Annual Convention, which will be held in the Foundation Hall the latter part of next April.

Very truly yours,

The Research Service, Inc.,

President.

THE NEED, QUALIFICATIONS AND TRAINING OF BAHÁ’Í
TEACHERS

A Report from the Teaching Committee

Beloved Bahá’í Friends:

The spread of the Cause, which is the immediate and vital concern of every sincere Bahá’, is dependent upon the response of the body of believers to the call of the Guardian to

SECRETARIAT OF THE AMERICAN NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

Address: Bahá’í Secretariat, Evergreen Cabin, West Englewood, N. J.

Members: For correspondence with Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada, Alfred E. Lunt; for correspondence with Bahá’ís of other lands, and with non-Bahá’ís in the United States and Canada, Nellie S. French; editor of Bahá’í News, Horace Holley; Treasurer of the National Assembly and of the Trustees for the Benefit of the National Spiritual Assembly (Temple and Green Acre Funds) Roy C. Wilhelm, Financial Secretary, Carl Scheffler.
teach the Cause. Of this "paramount duty of every Bahá’í," Shoghi Effendi has said: "Are we fully aware of our responsibilities? Do we realize the urgency, the sacredness, the immensity, the glory of our task? I entreat you, dear friends, to continue, nay, to redouble your efforts, to keep your vision clear, your determination unshaken, so that the power of God within you may fill the world with its glory."

Undoubtedly our most effective teaching potency is the radiance, public-spiritedness and trustworthiness of the individual Bahá’ís. Then too, every Bahá’í community teaches to the extent that it gives proof of its success as an experiment in the social laboratory by the triumphant fusing out of its various elements into the unity of the perfectly functioning group mind. But in addition to the convincing evidence of deeds there is the need of promulgating the Cause by the spoken word. The desperate needs of the world stir us to a new comprehension of the amazing import of our Message. When shall we take upon ourselves the inevitable consequence of true conviction, namely, the generous sharing of what we possess? Every life within the Cause must eventually find its fulfillment and destiny in this supreme service to humanity.

The prompt response of every center in the country to the appeal of the National Teaching Committee for District Teaching Conferences makes us thrillingly aware of a stream of life-giving energy flowing through unstructured channels, revitalizing us in the service of the Guardian. May we not bend the mighty energies of this emerging committee of the whole to this problem so intimately connected with the growth of every Bahá’í center? We cannot go far in any teaching objective, no matter how carefully planned or how faithfully followed, without more teachers. All over the country people of capacity are yearning to be convinced, every city contains enough prepared and waiting souls to swell our ranks to flood tide, when a band of dedicated, informed, and practised teachers shall arise to carry on the attack.

"The Hosts of the Kingdom of Abhá are drawn up in battle array on the plain of the Supreme Apex and are expecting that a band of volunteers will step upon the field of action with the intention of service, so that they may assist that band and make it victorious and triumphant."

The first move in preparing to meet this need will come when we all, in searching self-analysis, face the problem as it applies to us. To what extent are we as individuals or as local or inter-Assembly groups systematically preparing ourselves to spread the Cause? Are we striving to attract the divine confirmations through the efficacy of prayer? Are we making use of those aids to study, the Outlines and the Correspondence Course? Are we informing ourselves about world affairs and the fascinating trends of modern thought? Are we encouraging and inspiring others to do likewise?

It is easier to do these things in groups than by ourselves. Study classes within Bahá’í communities are of the utmost value as they furnish opportunities not only for the accumulation and arrangement of material but also afford the initial step in speaking. This practice in making five or ten minute talks in small intimate groups does overcome self-consciousness and increase fluency. Such a preparation inevitably leads to widening opportunities to spread the Cause. Speaking before the local community, taking part in inter-Assembly activities, travelling to more distant centers, follow in sequence as we gain in proficiency and experience. Some trained Bahá’í teachers find their most congenial service in work with individuals or in conducting study or informal discussion groups.

Those who would teach the Cause should keep ever in mind the high standard to be maintained. The qualifications of a Bahá’í teacher are here indicated: (1) Firmness in the Administration. (2) Character. ‘Abdu’l-Bahá summons us all to be teachers while stating such necessary qualities of the effective teacher as detachment, radiance, humility, social buoyancy, tactfulness, wisdom, firmness, understanding. He says, "The intention of the teacher must be pure, his heart independent, his spirit attracted, his thought at peace, his resolution firm, his magnanimity exalted and in the love of God a shining torch." (3) Knowledge. First, knowledge of God obtained from the deepening of our inner life. This knowledge must ever be increased if we are to impart the joy of knowing Him. Then, well-grounded knowledge in the Bahá’í Teachings and their application to world needs. Lastly, the knowledge of how to teach. The Master has set us this divine example of Bahá’í teaching. In the words of Shoghi Effendi, "Let us hear in mind the example which our beloved Master has clearly set before us. Wise and taciturn in His approach, wakeful and attentive in His early intercourse, broad and liberal in all His public utterances, cautious and gradual in the unfolding of the essential verities of the Cause, passionate in His appeal, yet sober in argument, confident in tone, unswerving in conviction, dignified in His manner—such were the distinguishing features of our Beloved’s noble presentation of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh."

As difficult as seem these qualifications we have assurance of the certainty of the descent of the heavenly confirmations for those who arise to service through faith. It is our hope and expectation that in the coming months hundreds will awake to this clear call and prepare themselves to be teachers. In order that we may speed in every way possible the work of preparation, a plan is being worked out by which all such volunteers may be given practical assistance through aids and outlines for study, teaching suggestions and personal counsel.

We urge all who so desire to get in touch with us at once.

Faithfully yours in El Abhá,
NATIONAL TEACHING COMMITTEE.

INTER-ASSEMBLY CONFERENCES

Reported by the National Teaching Committee

Two inter-Assembly Teaching Conferences have been held on the Pacific Coast as follows: San Francisco, October 5th; Los Angeles, November 2nd. Of the San Francisco conference for Central and Northern California Mrs. Ella G. Cooper, secretary of the Pacific Coast Subcommittee writes in part:

"Invitations to an all-day conference and feast were sent to nearly twenty centers, including isolated groups. . . . A goodly percentage were represented and as the clans gathered the spirit of joyous reunion which always specializes the Bahá’í Association, mounted higher and higher. . . . Mr. Leroy Loa, chairman of the Committee, presided." Among important points brought out through informal discussion was a valuable suggestion "How to Stimulate Individual Teaching Work." Emphasis should be placed on "teaching of home groups, made up of one’s friends and acquaintances who could be carried along in this study of the Cause until they seemed ready for the regular Assembly meetings. This was the suggestion of Ruhi Effendi and seems to us most valuable. It was decided that each believer would try to gather such a group at least once in nineteen days.
in his own home. In this way not only would numbers increase but development of individual initiative would inevitably follow such effort.

Inter-racial Amity work in this district is thought to receive much impetus through the forming of a District Committee to carry on joint inter-racial activities. Berkeley, Oakland, Visalia and San Francisco are represented in this committee.

It was voted that the next conference for this district would be held in Oakland early in December. In concluding her report Mrs. Cooper said: “At 5:30 our conference adjourned to meet again at 6:30 for dinner at the Bellevue Hotel. During the day’s discussion all evidenced the keenest interest and a remarkable spirit of harmony prevailed. We are sure it will gladden the heart of the Guardian to learn that all questions were carried by unanimous vote, surely a proof of harmony.”

Mrs. Shahnaz Waite reported the Conference at Los Angeles, November 2nd at which Miss Julia Goldman of Honolulu was present, also a number of friends from the Bay District. Representatives were present from Glendale, South Gate, Pasadena, Long Beach, Santa Paula and near-by groups. Two sessions were held at the Beaux Arts Building. “The room was beautifully decorated with Persian prints hung upon the wall with a picture of the Temple and over it the Greatest Name. Baskets of flowers and palms added to the attractive appearance of the room.”

During the morning and afternoon sessions the following points of general interest were offered:

That the West Coast Teaching Committee is initiating these conferences in the hope that they will expand into future Regional Conferences.

That our aim in teaching must not only be to attract but to confirm souls. In this connection Mr. John Bosch said: “Shoghi Effendi has said we must increase the number of souls who will accept the Message in its entirety, also that the Principles of Bahá’í will civilize the world, but only the knowledge of Bahá’í and belief in Him will regenerate mankind. This, he said, is the purpose of all teaching, without which it bears no fruit.”

That attraction is made by the spirit of love and service on the part of the believers.

Miss Goldman said: “We should bring the spirit of the Cause into different organizations and groups. There are many methods of approach.

If a visiting Bahá’í comes to our Center it is an opportunity to invite friends in and over a cup of tea discuss the universal principles of the Cause. The guests feel the spirit of love and become attracted.”

That in connection with racial unity and other contacts work it is necessary to join organizations, make informal home contacts, inspire confidence.

That Bahá’ísh should cooperate with international conferences—“The spirit of spontaneous service is always appreciated by others.”

It was moved that an inter-assembly committee be appointed to carry on the work of circuit teachers and expansion into new territory.

A unique feature of these two Western Conferences was the Feast, or Unity Dinner which followed. In San Francisco more than one hundred friends and guests were assembled. Distinguished music, words from the colored friends present and representatives of other races and nationalities, the accumulated influx of the Spirit from the hours of the conference contributed to an occasion of confirming power and charm.

A really brilliant program was arranged for the Unity Dinner in Los Angeles. Dr. Ali Kuli-Khan as chairman called on many Bahá’ís for short talks. Others on the program were Mr. Kiowara, Japanese secretary of the Japan-American Society of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Bass, well-known colored newspaper editors; Mr. Grainger, Executive Secretary of the Urban League. Music by Negro, Swedish and Japanese musicians.

A conference including most of the Bahá’í centers of the New England States was held at Boston, November 15th and 16th. The meetings were well attended by a representation of friends from Hartford, Springfield, Worcester, Portsmouth, Eliot, Boston. Guest speakers from outside the district were Mrs. Grace Ober of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mrs. Doris McKay of Geneva, N. Y., and Mrs. Jeanne Bolles, Miss Lorna Tasker, corresponding secretary for the district, was in charge of the meetings. The first session, Saturday P. M. in the charming environment of the new Bahá’í Center dealt with Inter-Assembly Cooperation. Exchange of teachers and the development of inter-assembly programs was discussed. Mrs. Schopflicher told of teaching methods in the Orient, recommending that we “teach over a cup of tea.” She described the happy combination of hospitality and informal discussion which characterizes the Oriental way of introducing a guest speaker—said that even beginners in the Cause are encouraged thus to speak. She attributed the rapid spread of the Cause in the Orient to the general practice of informal group teaching. It was suggested that the informal method based on discussion is more in accord with the principles of modern education than the platform method so generally in vogue—that a new technique may be evolving even applicable to large groups in which a sense of intimate contact with the audience is skillfully maintained.

A suggestion for the inauguration of inter-assembly prayers was received with approval. The next morning at the home of Mrs. Harold Bowitch, Mrs. Hebe Strouven, Mrs. Grace Ober and others spoke on "How to Make Baha'i Contacts." Concrete suggestions brought out through the discussion will be reported in a later issue of Baha'i News.

That afternoon at the Baha'i Center an inter-racial Amity meeting was held at which Archbishop Barrow of New York City was the principal speaker. A feature of unusual interest was an International Pageant written and produced by members of the Youth Group. After the meeting a Baha'i Feast was enjoyed, shared by a large representation of colored guests of the conference. Attractive rooms, flowers, music, cordiality contributed to the eloquent charm of this public meeting.

The National Teaching Committee requests that the local and inter-assembly secretaries send in regular monthly reports of such activities as, Inter-assembly conferences and plans, the work of visiting teachers, youth group activities, contacts with outside groups and organizations, inter-racial activities. The purpose is that we may share such inspiring teaching news with all. Such reports should be sent to Mrs. Doris McKay, Secy, Geneva, N. Y.

BUILDING THE TEMPLE

The believers who visited the Temple foundation ball during the recent Teaching Conference that was held there were greatly moved by seeing the structure rising as they watched, and while they attended the meetings of the Conference in the foundation below they could hear above them the rattle of the riveters' hammers and the noise of the hoist that is rearing the noble edifice so that all eyes may see it as the great sign of God before them.

At the time this is written all of the steel ribs of the dome have been placed in position and as may be seen from the pictures the beautiful lines of the structure are easily discernible. Before long the steel ribs will be hidden from sight and the building entirely closed so that the friends may look forward to entering one of the nine great doors to send prayers of thanksgiving from that most unique shrine.

But much remains to be done. Let us recall that in the past we have generally understood that with $400,000 we hoped to build the first story of the building. Now it has been given us to see the entire structure built with this same amount of money but there remains still the greater part of the work to be done. At its last meeting the National Spiritual Assembly appropriated all that remained of the $400,000 plus the savings that have been affected in letting the various contracts (which amount to approximately $23,000) to a partial installation of the heating plant which is most necessary to preserve the structure from the attack of the elements during the winter. Now there remains the ventilating and lighting systems and then the long task of moulting the outer ornamental structure.

The believers must realize above all that the building is just begun and we must continue to give so that there may be no cessation of activity. The Plan of Unified Action must continue, if we are not to face another discouraging period. The National Spiritual Assembly urges all believers, therefore, to consider carefully to the end that they may realize that what is now being accomplished is only just the beginning of our task and unless they continue to contribute the work must of necessity stop when this present contract has been carried out.

NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY.

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. Belle B. Luxmore, Ohio, was a member of the Akron, Ohio, Spiritual Assembly, a generous and self-sacrificing Baha'i, passed on to the greater life on December 24, 1929, while visiting her daughter at Pleasanton, California, Canada. She was buried at that place.

Mr. Howard Goodwin, a beloved member of the same Spiritual Assembly, but who was never able to serve after his election, due to a stroke of paralysis, departed this life on March 29, 1930.

PUBLISHING ANNOUNCEMENTS

"The Garden of the Heart"
Compiled by Frances Esty

The edition is bound in rainbow color linen and has on its cover the Greatest Name in gold from a drawing of one of the doors of the Temple by Louis Bourgeois. It is illustrated with photographs of the Gardens the Ridván, Bahji and the Master's Garden at Haifa.

Mrs. Esty has achieved a great work in assembling the prophetic quotations from the Bible with those from the writings of Baha'u'llah and 'Abdu'l-Baha all pertaining to the garden. Phrases filled with the symbolism so familiar to Baha'i readers here seem to assume reality and one is filled with the sense of peace which comes from a moment spent in a garden, where the fragrance of the flowers and the songs of the birds fill the heart and the soul of man.

The proceeds from the sale of this book is Mrs. Esty's generous gift to the Garden Fund of the Temple grounds.

Nothing could make a more lovely gift. The price is $3.00.

"Baha'i Revelation"
By Thornton Chase

Owing to the many demands that a cheaper edition of this valuable teaching book be put in circulation the Publishing Committee wishes to cooperate and assist all those who may hereby have found the present edition too expensive by reducing the price to $1.00 (now listed at $2.00). The Committee hopes that all those who do not now own "Baha'i Revelation" will avail themselves of this opportunity and stimulate the demand for this book.

"Book of Assurance"

In order to make way for the new translation of the Iqan by Shoghi Effendi, to be published in the spring, the friends may obtain copies of the former translation at the special price of $1.00. As soon as the new work is published, the present edition will be withdrawn from the Baha'i catalog.

"Baha'i World-Volume Three"

This official reference book, to be described in the forthcoming issue of Baha'i News, may be obtained at the price of $2.50 per copy.

Believers should possess the two previous volumes, and the Publishing Committee announces a reduction in cost, as follows: "Year Book" (Volume One—1923-1926), $1.75; Baha'i World (Volume Two—1926-1928), $1.50.

Order through your local Spiritual Assembly or from Baha'i Publishing Committee, P. O. Box 348, Grand Central Station, New York City.
PRAYERS AND MEDITATIONS FOR THE MOST GREAT PEACE
Baha’u’llah
Tablet of Victory
He is God, exalted is He!

It has been known that God, glorious is His mention, is sanctified from the world and what is therein, and that the meaning of victory is not this, that anyone should fight or strive with another. The Lord of “He doeth what He willeth” has committed the kingdom of creation, both land and sea, into the hand of kings, and they are the manifestations of the divine power according to the degrees of their ranks; verily, He is the potent, the sovereign. But that which God, glorious is His mention, has desired for himself is the hearts of His servants which are treasuries of divine knowledge and the stores of divine knowledge and wisdom.

The will of the Eternal King has ever been to purify the hearts of His servants from the promptings of the world and what is therein, so that they may be prepared for illumination by the effulgences of the Lord of the Names and Attributes. Therefore, must no stranger find his way into the city of the heart, so that the Incomparable Friend may come unto His own place—that is, the effulgence of His Names and Attributes, not His Essence, exalted is He—for that Peerless King has been and will be holy from everlasting above ascent or descent.

Therefore, today victory neither has been nor will ever be opposition to any one, nor strife with any person; but rather what is well-pleasing is that the cities of men’s hearts, which are under the dominion of the hosts of selfishness and lust, should be subdued by the sword of wisdom and of exhortation. Every one, then, who desires victory must first subdue the city of his own heart with the sword of spiritual truth and of the Word, and must protect it from remembering aught beside God; afterwards, let him turn his efforts toward the citadel of the hearts of others. This is what is intended by victory; sedition has never been nor ever will be pleasing to God, and that certain ignorant persons formerly wrought was never approved by God. If you are slain for His good pleasure, verily, it is better for you than that you should stay.

Today the friends of God must appear in such wise among God’s servants that by their actions they may lead all unto the pleasure of the Lord of Glory. I swear by the Sun of the Horizon of Holiness that the friends of God never have regarded nor will regard the earth or its transitory riches.

God has ever regarded the hearts of His servants, and this too by reason of His most great favor, that perchance mortal souls may be cleansed and sanctified from earthly states and may attain unto the everlasting places. But that Real King is in Himself sufficient unto Himself and independent of all; neither does any advantage accrue to Him from the love of contingent beings, nor does any hurt befall Him from their hatred. All earthly places appear through Him and unto him return, and God singly and alone abides in His own place which is holy above space and time, mention and utterance, sign, description and definition, height and depth. And no one knows this save Him and whosoever has knowledge of the Book.

There is no God but Him, the mighty, the bountiful!

‘Abdu’l-Bahá
Prayer for the Most Great Peace
O Thou kind Lord! Thou hast created all humanity from the same parents. Thou hast destined that all belong to the same household, and in Thy holy presence, all are Thy servants, and all mankind is sheltered beneath Thy Tabernacle. Thy children are gathered at Thy table of bounty and have become radiant through the light of Thy providence. O God! Thou art kind to all, Thou hast provided for all, Thou dost harbor all. Thou conferest life upon all. Thou hast endowed each humble being with ability and talent and submerged all mankind in the ocean of Thy mercy.

O Thou generous Lord! Unite Thy servants in every land, suffer the diverse religions to be in harmony, make of the nations a single nation, so they may see each other as one family, denizens of one country. May mankind associate with perfect amity and unity.

O God! raise the banner of oneness of humankind. O God! Establish the Most Great Peace. O God! Wield our hearts into one heart. O Thou kind Father! Exhilarate us through the fragrance of Thy love; brighten our eyes through the light of Thy guidance; cheer our ears with the melody of Thy Word, and shelter us in the shelter of Thy Providence.

REPORTS FROM TEACHING COMMITTEE
1. Bahá’í Contacts, by Mrs. May Maxwell.
   “‘Abdu’l-Bahá, in an early Tablet to the beloved of God in Teheran, says:
   “Oh Friends! It is the wish of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá that the friends may establish general unity... We are all servants of one threshold, attendants at one court, waves of one sea, drops of one stream, dust before one door and plants of one garden. The beloved of God must be friendly, even with strangers, and intimate even with outsiders. There must be gatherings for matters which concern the well being of men which concern all in general and not a particular number.

When this continent was quickened into new life by the presence of the Master in 1912, He said that through the seeds sown at that time we "should reap many great and wonderful harvests" and the doors of opportunity which have been open to the Bahá'ís are too numerous to mention. In the fields of religion, learning and education, societies banded together for the solution of world problems and human welfare, our Bahá'í teachers and the friends everywhere have had an ever-increasing part and established deeper and more vital contacts.

It seems to your National Teaching Committee that in this field of activities lies the most potent possibilities and new fresh approach for the friends in this most critical period of human affairs. Opportunities are daily arising for these wider affiliations for humanitarian and social progress with groups whose general aims are similar to our own, but who lack the insight and spiritual dynamic to make them effective agencies of progress and reform. We should collectively study and develop such contacts and relationships which will strengthen and inspire us to a deeper realization of our divine responsibility.

Among such groups in America, Mr. Leroy loas has called our attention to the social welfare workers who, in the present social crisis where suffering is acute, are striving to break down barriers of religious and racial prejudice and to create a sense of human solidarity, and during a Congress of Social Welfare Workers on the Pacific Coast, Mr. loas found them eagerly responsive to the vision and unifying power of the Bahá'í Cause.

Sound judgment is required to make such service acceptable to these groups as well as of real value to the Cause, not absorbing either the energies or finances of the friends, but being rather a means of their ever-increasing vital association with their fellowmen. A typical instance of effective service was where thousands of women and children were suffering from a strike and in a state of semi-starvation. The Bahá'ís formed a committee of leading citizens and with in a few days $1500, was raised, the Bahá'ís contributing only normally but being the means of tiding over the danger point.

The beloved Master was our mighty example in carrying the Word of God and His love and compassion into every field of life, and we know that his services during the World War in salvaging the lives of thousands of families drew to him the recognition of the British government.

In a future issue of BAHÁ'Í NEWS we hope there will appear an account of the prison work of the Bahá'ís, especially of one prisoner who has ardently embraced the Faith and who is circulating articles through the Prison Press on Bahá'u'lláh and His divine teachings.

Another important and fruitful contact is Bahá'í representation at Congresses and Conventions convened for purposes of world peace, religious unity, progressive education, all movements in short which have arisen as the flower of thought in the great field planted by Bahá'u'lláh, and it is the purpose of this Committee to facilitate in every way the efforts of the friends to find such contacts and opportunities in their various centers. At a recent Conference in New York, the first Conference on Mysticism ever held in America, a youthful Bahá'í was given the opportunity to present a paper on mysticism in the Bahá'í religion which received a standing vote of appreciation from the audience.

The following reports of "contacts" work recently carried on with organizations and individuals furnish a vivid picture of what may be achieved. "You must rest assured and let there be no traces of doubt in your soul that God is your assistant and helper, the heavenly confirmation will descend on you more and more. God will protect you and give you new strength continually. Your world motives will conquer the world of men, all obstacles will disappear before your advance. No earthly power can resist the onrushing power of Peace, for this power is assisted by the power of God, and that which is divinely assisted must prevail."

2.—Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler's Activities on the Pacific Coast.

Perhaps the most spectacular example of contacts work with outside organizations has been that of Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, who since August has been carrying on a remarkable teaching campaign on the west coast arranged by the Pacific Coast Sub-Committee. Reports of her work in Vancouver, Spokane, Seattle, Portland and Pasadena show a wide range of organizations who have opened their doors wholeheartedly to this gifted Bahá'í teacher.

In Vancouver she appeared before the Inter-national Club and the Woman's Inter-national League, spoke from the pulpit of the Universalist Church, addressed the Lion's Club luncheon.

In Spokane the word Bahá'í appeared seventeen times in the headlines of local newspapers during her stay. She writes, "Among the platforms extended to me through the untiring efforts of the local Bahá'í committees have been: the Public Forum, The Bureau of Education of the Chamber of Commerce, The Woman's Realty Extension Club, The Church of Truth, The Business and Professional Woman's Club, Atheneum Club, The Rizwan Club, The Truth Library in Spokane in addition to many private group meetings. Bahá'í lectures and classes. . . . At Victoria through the kindness of someone who had heard me in Vancouver, I spoke before the Kumktucks Club to a crowded meeting of professional women who said that it was the first time the message had been publicly given there. . . . In both Spokane and Seattle (the seat of Communistic activity in America) I addressed large I. W. W. meetings. Several hundred men were in attendance." Her subject was "The Bahá'í Solution of the Economic Problem." In a report of the Spokane meeting the "Spokesman-Review" says: "In her talk on world problems even the fire-eaters who at times delight in asking questions to befuddle their speakers declared themselves in accord with Mrs. Ransom-Kehler's views. She was applauded repeatedly."

During the month that Mrs. Ransom-Kehler was in Seattle she spoke forty-five times to theological lodges, truth centers, universities, churches, clubs and Bahá'í meetings. Her last reported engagement in Seattle was addressing a hundred or more men at an Armistice Day dinner at the Congregational Church. The Amity Meeting at the Zion Church had an audience of of the Urban League and Mr. Walter White, Sec'y of the N. A. A. C. P. A valuable social contact was later established with Mr. White but the results of the Urban League venture show indeed the guiding hand of the spirit.

When our Bahá'i friend left the colored Y. M. C. A. she found Mr. James H. Hubert, Sec'y of the New York Urban League waiting to present his card and ask for an interview. Several months later while again in New York the Bahá'i guest and her husband had luncheon and a two hour talk with Mr. Hubert in Harlem in which the aims of the Urban League and the Bahá'i Cause were frankly discussed. A copy of the Bahá'i World was sent to Mr. Hubert.

Correspondence followed and Mr. Hubert accepted an invitation to attend the Blossom Picnic in western New York State. Here he heard a further presentation of the Bahá'i Principles and met forty or fifty representatives of his own race. A few weeks later his hostess was invited to attend a three-day session of the National Urban League in Buffalo and a place was made on the program for her ten minute presentation of the Bahá'i Cause. This brief message reached Urban League secretaries from almost every state.

On the return journey the two New York executives were entertained by the Geneva Bahá'i Assembly. An interesting result of the informal conferences with our distinguished guests was when one of our number, a member of the State and Inter-national Board of Kiwanis became cognizant BAHÁ'Í NEWS is the official organ of the American National Spiritual Assembly. Its cost is defrayed from the National Bahá'i Fund and copies are distributed free of charge to recognized believers throughout the United States and Canada, and to National and Local Spiritual Assemblies in other lands.

News articles and reports of general Bahá'i interest and value are requested from Assemblies, National Committees and other representatives of the Cause.

The Guardian's statement concerning the purpose and scope of this publication can be found in the volume entitled "Bahá'i Administration."
of the situation for the first time promised his support of the economic and vocational welfare of Negro youth. He carried his point at the state convention, later in a national committee meeting he succeeded in putting this issue through as one of the policies of the 1930 objective.

At the June meeting of the National Teaching Committee in New York City representatives of the Urban League were invited to consult with us on the Inter-racial Amity problem at a small informal gathering in the home of Mr. Edward Kinney. At that time Mr. Allen extended an invitation to visiting Baha'is to be the guests of Harlem at whatever date a future conference should occur, also offered his cooperation in procuring distinguished colored and white speakers for our program. In August at the invitation of Mr. Louis Gregory both Mr. Hu­bert and Mr. Allen took a leading part in the Greenacre Racial Amity conferences and with their families were entertained as guests of the Teaching Committee.

When, in the fall, the New York local Assembly asked the National Teaching Committee to work with them in a series of three inter-racial amity conferences sixteen visiting Baha'is spent the weekend in Harlem homes, distinguished speakers and fine music were secured, interesting social events and publicity followed. On Nov. 8th a conference was held in the Urban League Auditorium, the next after­noon another was held at the Baha'i Center. The New York Contact's committee, the Baha'i youth group and interested individuals are through follow-up work cementing the bonds of friendship and unity in this important association—and the end is not yet!

Baha'ullah has said that “one deed in this day is equivalent to deeds performed during one hundred thousand years.” The above sequence of events is related here at length as evidence of the power of the Spirit which will con­firm even our humblest efforts in the direction of the establishment of the Divine Kingdom. Work with colored Associations in almost every center meets with the heart-warming response and intelligent cooperation of their leaders.

4.—Master's Tablet Delivered to Tagore.

Some years ago 'Abdu'l-Baha sent Mrs. Lula Getzinger and Mrs. Stannard to India instructing them to visit Dr. Tagore. Their description of the Hindu poet and mystic, with flowing robes, walking in a palm grove in the sivery moonlight, listening with deep attention and respect to the Words of 'Abdu'l-Baha; and of his subsequently establishing his International School on the foundation of these universal principles, links itself strangely with the present. Among certain Tablets revealed by the Master and found in His room after His departure was the following:

“To the dear daughter Miss Juliet Thompson
Upon her be greetings and praise.
He is God.

“Oh, thou Dear Daughter: Thy letter has been received. From its contents it became evident that Rabindranath Tagore was going from India to America. This personage has exercised the utmost consideration to the maid-servant of God, Mrs. Stannard, in India. From what has been heard he is one of the promoters of peace and reconciliation. He is kind to all people and shows he is going to America to travel and see all the States. Therefore, the friends of God in all the cities should receive him and exercise toward him utmost respect so that it may become apparent how kind and appreciative the friends of God are.

On his arrival in New York show ye great reverence and present to him the divine teachings. The friends and the maid-servants of the Merciful must be well-wishers and kind to all. Convey greetings and praise to all the friends and maid-servants of the Merciful.”

Through the will of 'Abdu'l-Baha, “who doth whatsover he listeth” the recipient of this Tablet was enabled to meet Tagore during his recent brief sojourn in New York, and to present to him the blessed Tablet revealed in his honor.

5.—Further District Conferences.

On November 8th and 9th a District Teaching Conference was held at Washington, D. C. at which representatives from Baltimore and Phila­delphia were among those present. Mr. F. St. G. Spendlove, inter-Assembly secretary, in summing up his report says, “The spirit of . . . the whole conference seemed to be a desire to get away from teaching methods which began and ended in words, and to formulate some definite plans for teaching activities which could be expressed in concrete action in the near future . . . . The whole conference was well attended, perfectly united in spirit and thinking only of one object, the spread of the Cause of God in the Washington District. All the friends present seemed to have a sure faith that this wonderful opportunity for true Baha'i consultation would bring divine confirmations in the fullness of time, and that a new impetus had been given to inter-Assembly activities in this district.”

November 11th and 12th an inter-Assembly conference at which eleven cities were represented was held at Foundation Hall in the midst of the activities of Temple building. They sent the following expression of joy to the Guardian, “Illinois-Wisconsin Teaching Conference thrilled by rising Temple. Send love.” Two days later Shoghi Effendi's answering cable was received, “Assure members Illinois-Wisconsin Conference my loving prayers Holy Shrines. Heartily share their joys. Shoghi.” Mrs. H. A. Harding, secretary for the district, reports a series of interesting discussions presided over by Dr. Zia Baghadi, to which local friends and visiting Baha'is contributed. Mrs. Mabel Ives of Hartford, Conn. was there by arrangement of the National Teaching Committee.

The Northern Ohio Conference was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Brooker of Akron, where over fifty of the Cleveland and Akron friends gathered Nov. 23rd. Mrs. Smith writes: “... interwoven throughout the fabric of the entire session, there were three prominent themes of thought:

a. the need for the acquisition of knowledge of the Cause.
b. the need for the daily reading of the revealed Word.
c. the need for the radiant living of the life.”

She adds, “The general spirit was one of a new, more sincere dedication of our lives to the Most Great Cause. All expressed the desire to be worthy of following Shoghi Effendi's example of being impatient 'for action, for the growth of the Cause, for the deep results of real unity.'”

A conference has now been held in each of the nine geographic centers defined in August by the National Teaching Committee. Viewed as a whole these initial conferences have awakened new enthusiasm for the spread of the teachings, created a closer bond of unity between the various groups, stimulated a valuable interchange of ideas and thoughts of vital interest in a new and better initiative for inter-Assembly organization with a view to the exchange of teachers, arrangement of future conferences, handling of inter-Assembly programs and problems. We are looking forward with much anticipation to the results of the follow-up conferences.
many of which have already been arranged. Active inter-Assembly committees are meeting to discuss the details of cooperation between groups; we feel that when these plans are put into motion the spread of the Cause will be greatly accelerated.

Faithfully yours in El Abhâ,
National Teaching Committee.

REPORT ON THE FIRE AT BAHÁ'Í TEMPLE

Dear Co-workers:

I have just returned to Washington after a week's visit to Chicago and the Temple, and am taking this earliest opportunity of sending you a brief report of the conditions of the Temple, especially after the recent fire which occurred on the morning of Thursday, Jan. 15, 1931.

During the past week and beginning with the morning of Sunday, Jan. 18, 1931, I made a series of careful and thorough inspections of the physical condition of the Temple as a result of the fire. These inspections were made in company with our engineer, Mr. Shapiro, the representatives of the general and sub-contractors, and with outside experts from the Robert W. Hunt Company and the Portland Cement Association.

Briefly the conditions are as follows:

The fire started as a result of a tarpaulin on the southwest side of the building blowing loose and against a salamander and thus catching fire. The high wind quickly ignited other tar-paulins and the wooden formwork. Before the laborer, who was attending the fires, could reach this particular spot, the fire got beyond control.

The high wind blew the fire quickly into the temporary suspended platform, on which were piled a large part of the glass and aluminum bars for the dome. This platform was early destroyed and the material stored on it damaged and fell to the main floor.

As a result of the fire, it will be necessary to clean the outer surfaces of several of the upper sections of the first gallery story, and replace the concrete on the second gallery deck, and the underside of this same deck and adjacent girders and beams.

Very fortunately no damage was done to the structural steel work, and the dome was not affected.

No estimate has yet been made of the total loss, but the insurance adjusters are working on this matter at the present time. Last Friday we made a very careful inspection of the extent and amount of the damages and presented a detailed statement to Mr. Collison, the local representative of the George A. Fuller Company. It is understood that the payment of insurance and repairs of damages will be made on the basis of this report. The larger part of the damage was due to the loss of the glass and aluminum bars of the dome, which will have to be entirely replaced by the sub-contractor, the Robertson Company of Pittsburgh.

The building of the Temple is covered by insurance and it is our understanding that this recent fire will involve no loss to the general contractor, the sub-contractors, or to the Cause. This fire has called our attention to the fact that at the present time we have no insurance on the basement foundation. While the latter was not injured by the fire, it would be desirable to carry a reasonable amount of insurance on this part of the structure. It seems almost miraculous that not even one drop of water entered the Temple Foundation Hall, in spite of the fact that tons of water were poured on the building for several hours during the morning of the fire.

It is possible that this accident will prove to be a "blessing in disguise." While no serious or permanent loss has accrued to the building, the Cause has received a tremendous amount of publicity, especially in the Middle West. The Chicago papers featured the fire and the Cause through front-page statements and pictures for several days, and the news seems to have spread pretty well throughout the country.

The important thing at this time is to assure the friends that no serious damage has been done to the Temple, which seems to have undergone a rather severe fire test with miraculous results. What seemed at first to be a severe test of our work and faith, seems now to further and more fully confirm our loving and united efforts in the building of the Temple.

FEAST FOR WHITE AND COLORED CHILDREN

The friends who gathered at the Bahá'í Center in New York City on Christmas day were truly exhilarated with the joy of life as they witnessed the spirit of racial amity in a new light. This was the celebration of Yuletide by the young people's group of the local community and showed a departure from the old order. Mindful of the world's economic depression, this company decided upon a party that would combine real pleasure with real service. So they entered into a genial conspiracy with various welfare workers, to borrow one hundred children for a Santa Claus' party. Three-fourths of these children were colored and were brought in omnibuses from Harlem. The others were white and supplied by workers in other sections.

When these dear children entered the large Assembly hall, their eyes shone at sight of the tables so neatly and daintily bedecked. On the back of each chair was hung a bag containing all sorts of goodies. All were pretty, some in the shape of a kit and others of a large boot. As they explored these bags a number of horns were found and this made the jocund din of the party all the merrier.

Called to silence for a few minutes, a Bahá'í prayer for children was read as an expression of thanks for the blessing of Christmas. Then it was that Santa Claus himself appeared with all his famous beard, dazzling robes and genial smile. This rôle was so admirably played by a young Jewish Bahá'í that the children thought him real and as he went about beaming upon them some of them admitted their shortcomings and besought his pardon!

A Jewish Santa Claus at Christmas! What transformations are wrought by the amity spirit among Bahá'ís! Next came a delicious dinner prepared by loving hands and served steaming hot

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF GERMAN BAHÁ'ÍS

(From "Sonne Der Wahrheit", May, 1930, translated by Mr. Herman Pauli.)

(Concluded)

To our great joy Mr. Maxoud Nieron, who had already been announced to us by our Guardian some time ago, had arrived here in company with Almeidoff whom we have esteemed as a friend for some time past. Mr. Schwarz introduced him to us and greeted him cordially.

Maxoud Nieron spoke about his impressions gathered at Haifa and especially about Russia. He believes that the Baha'I Movement will in future play a very important part in Russia, and that already a beginning has been made. Almeidoff translated his words in fluent German, and said: Shoghi Effendi greeted all the German friends most sincerely, at the present time he was very busy with work as the number of Spiritual Assemblies spread over all the entire world are still increasing, and that he is in close touch with them. The friends in Haifa admire the personality of Shoghi Effendi, his working power and his feeling of responsibility. He alone confronts the great problems to toil in an organized manner and to support the friends in the whole world. He permitted himself but a few hours of rest and only partakes of one meal a day.

Maxoud Nieron emphasized the necessity of unity, that today is most important. The words of Baha'u'llah, that religion must lead to unity, should always be before our eyes and should this not be the case, it is better to have no religion. Religion should operate in an educational manner and should lead man step by step. On this path we would always meet with tests which we have to consider and through which we must pass, of which we must have no fear. It is only today that Unity amongst the Baha'is can rejoice the heart of Shoghi Effendi. It is the most earnest desire of Maxoud Nieron, that an intimate union could be arranged between the German and Russian Baha'is. He will report in Russia, what he has seen and what he has experienced in Germany.

Mr. Brueckner reported the result of the election and delivered the following address:

"My dear Friends: With pleasure and satisfaction we have been permitted to report to you the result of the vote for the election of the members to the National Assembly. All present are fully aware of the responsibility. The first vote in accordance with the wishes of Shoghi Effendi, resulted at once in the desire for unity and harmony in a splendid expression. Dark years of tests are behind us, they were not in vain, even when many dear friends withdrew. We are of the firm conviction and of the unshakable belief, that through these tests, a deepening and a firmness of our inner being has taken place. With joy and trust we can look into the future, because the New Day is ours. Should we contemplate the progress in the understanding of the Baha'I teachings, in the happenings in the world, we are overcome with a deep feeling of humility, by the prophetic predictions and requirements of our Master: the international thought: the thought of Oneness and Unity: The world-embracing problems of the social questions: the endeavors on the plane of world peace: the equality of women: the oneness of speech and of writing: the World Court: they have all been taken in hand, are in the making, are advancing to their accomplishment: The Spirit of Baha'u'llah is developing everywhere, consciously or unconsciously, men, and nations are assisting at the solution of humanity's problems. This Day should not only be a stone in the history of the Baha'i Cause. All of us are called and we have the obligation to transform the consciousness gained into deeds. We were favored by a special happiness through the visit of two dear friends from Persia, one of them delivered to us the sincere greetings and wishes of Shoghi Effendi for this Day. To the bearer and to his worthy translator we extend our heartfelt appreciations, they see, we have all reasons to be happy. Our watchword must be: Lift up your head, joyful in service, and God with us!

Following this address some of the Words from the Writings of Baha'u'llah and of 'Abdu'l-Baha were read by Mrs. Bopp and poems by Mr. Grunzweig were rendered.

With the reading of a prayer, the morning meeting found its conclusion. In connection with the impressive Convention days in Stuttgart on the 19th and 20th of April the friends in Esslingen invited all the Baha'is to Esslingen for a little celebration on the grounds of the Baha'is. Although frequent showers appeared during the day, some 60 people met at the railway station at Esslingen from where the ascent was made by autobus to the heights, which in spots were covered by flowering bushes and trees, and it seemed as if heaven wanted to provide us with a special blessing, for as we arrived on the grounds on the heights the sun burst forth its rays over the beautiful valleys of the river Neckar. Already from a distance the white flag with the gold-glittering Greatest Name beckoned us. All were delighted at the beginning of the structure of the house and the plans of the house were studied. The friends of Esslingen had... arranged for a larger festival of the children of the "Rosegarden" which was abandoned on account of the inclement weather conditions. A little girl recited the "Benediction":

"May God's Spirit be upon us, as a white dove. His Peace gladden our hearts, and our faith be strong. How great is His Love, His Aid so near. We feel ourselves as in God's Lap in the Kingdom of El-Abhá."

Then Miss Anna Koestlin spoke the following Words:

"Dear Baha'i Friends:
What we did not dare to hope hours ago, has become true. We are permitted here, on our Bahá'i property to greet our many dear friends from near and from far, and bid them a welcome under the rays full of promise of the much desired sunshine. Just as often as a Bahá'i Congress is in session in Stuttgart it found its conclusion in Esslingen at a children's festival. It is not possible this year to invite you to a festival, we all love. We have asked you to ascend this day of Ridván to our airy heights, where you today will observe not a complete house, a Bahá'i Home, but the indications of one. The preparations for it have cost us a whole year's effort. Many disappointments were overcome and many obstacles had to be removed. But we rejoice to be so far advanced and we are glad, that all of you have come. What we desire and hope for is, that today you unite with us in supplication, that you will sink into this ground and soil good thoughts, thoughts of Light, that you will assist us to create a spiritual atmosphere, that it will be possible to act feelingly and attractively in all the hearts of the people. In the beginning this Home was thought of as expressed then as a home for the youth and the children, the severity of the times however as well as the natural strivings of the youth has permitted us to happily grasp the thought of our dear and honored Dr. Youness Khan to erect a home to meet in. Because, what is really needed here is a place where one can meet with the friends without disturbances, a place where the Spirit and the soul can find rest to pray, a place for festive gatherings, a place for the youth and the children, with their many requirements, a center point for the Bahá'ís from near and far. May this place become a haven for all. And as the physical eyes rejoice at the splendid and magnificent view over the distant valleys and heights, may to the inner eye be revealed the Beauties of the Abhá King-

"These are our wishes and hopes for that Home that is to be and in case no further and greater difficulties are put into our way, we hope with God's help to complete this Home this year and to be able to welcome the friends at the next Bahá'i Convention in Stuttgart in the Home itself."

Dr. Grossmann spoke feeling and encouraging words and gave expression of his hopes during the hoisting of the flag, that the friends of Esslingen would illumine the world with their faith, their loyalty and their unity, just the same as this banner, now being hoisted.

With the reciting of a prayer the festival found its end, and a letter of thanks to the Beloved Guardian Shoghi Effendi was written, which was signed by all present.

In the afternoon of Easter Monday another meeting took place at the Bahá'í Bureau Alexanderstrasse 3 where our Persian friends were given a special opportunity. This meeting was also opened with a prayer of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. After which Maxoud Nieron told of the visit of Miss Martha Root in Persia about which the Persian newspapers gave long accounts. She caused such great ado through the extensive preparation for her reception from city to city, that anonymous letters were sent her requesting her to leave the country as otherwise her life would be endangered. The government took special care of the Bahá'ís and demanded that the population should remain quiet and not create any disturbances for the Bahá'ís. Miss Martha Root had the opportunity to speak to one of the ministers on several occasions and was also received graciously at the German Embassy. Thus the times have changed since so much innocent blood of the martyrs was spilt in that country for the Holy Cause.

All participants at the Ridván Feast were rejoiced by the spirit of love and harmony and by happiness which the gathering brought forth. Truly the blessings of Bahá'u'lláh were plainly felt and Shoghi Effendi who is our inheritance from 'Abdu'l-Bahá can rely trustfully on his loyal ones in Germany.

An answer arrived to our greetings at the Ridván as follows:

"Loving appreciation Ridván greetings fervently supplicating Beloved continued blessings upon His dearly beloved loyal and valiant followers in that Land Shoghi."

Everyone of us has vowed in his heart to always sink deeper into the Holy Scriptures, to become more selfless, to be worthy to serve the Holy Cause.

A second cable to the Chairman followed with the contents:

"Convey Bahá'i Congress my admiration for their loyalty, noble endeavor praying for harmony your selection Spiritual National Assembly deepest love Rizván greetings. Shoghi

We rejoiced at this proof of love and recognition of our beloved Guardian and we express to him the sincerest and most expressive thanks in the name of all the friends that attended the Rizván Convention or were with us in thought.

To the German National Assembly the following cable arrived April 29th:

"Rejoice announce sacred and impressive ceremony inaugurating resurrection temple construction Rizván greetings.

"American National Spiritual Assembly."

Letters from Shoghi Effendi to the Editorial Secretary

My Dear Mr. Windust:

I am directed by the Guardian to thank you for your letter of January 8th with enclosures, all of which he has read with much interest.

In view of the importance which, as you are well aware, Shoghi Effendi attaches to The Baha'i World publications, he wishes me to express his grateful and profound appreciation at every available opportunity for the painstaking efforts you lavish upon its publication.

He is already looking forward to a still more instructive and attractive production this year and he patiently awaiting the manuscript next April. You can collect on the other side of the Atlantic all the material you want. He will sift and decide upon them here.
after having your recommendation.

With the assurance of his affection and prayers for you and your daugh-ters, and with his sincere trust in the materialization of your visit to Haifa,

Sincerely yours,

Shoghi Effendi

My dear and precious co-worker:

I feel strongly that the forthcoming issue of The Baha’i World, to which you are so devotedly attached, will arouse keen and widespread interest. I eagerly await the Manuscript by the end of April. I would like to urge that the original colors of the Manuscript which has been sent to you for reproduction be distinctly and faithfully reproduced, inasmuch as the colored reproduction of the Master’s photograph on the frontispiece of Vol. II is slightly different and inferior in shade as compared with the original. May the Beloved guide you, sustain you, and fortify you in your historic task.

Your affectionate brother,

Shoghi

Haifa, January 30, 1930.

Dear Mr. Windust:

Shoghi Effendi desires me to acknowledge the receipt of your letters of April 6th and March 23rd. The packages of photographs that you sent for The Baha’i World have all reached him. He has selected the most appropriate and has returned the rest to your address in a number of packages. He is deeply grateful to you for the painstaking efforts and the thoroughness and the devotion with which you have collected the material for the forthcoming issue. The entire manuscript has reached him safely. He went over it most carefully, rearranged the whole material, added a few articles, prepared a table of contents which he inserted in the manuscript, arranged the photographs and the captions for each, divided the material into Four Parts and sent them under three separate cover a few days ago to your address.

He is delighted with the illuminated manuscript insert which he has chosen as a frontispiece of the book, and has placed it in its proper place in Part One. We need not insert the transcription of the title of the manuscript. He prefers the non-varnished copy. If you think, however, that moisture will affect it, he has no objection to your inserting instead the varnished copy. The photographs for The Baha’i World, he has inserted them all in the manuscript. He would advise the Committee neither to add to, nor to discard, any of the photographs already inserted. He has divided each of the Four Parts into Sections. He has grouped the photographs of each Section and added them to the respective Sections. As to the exact locality of each photograph in these Sections, he has left it to the discretion of the Committee. He would not advise to displace these photographs from one part to another. He would ask you to kindly return to him all the photographs that are within the manuscript after the printing of the book. Among these photographs are two collective ones. On each page of these two collective photographs are nineteen reproductions of outstanding Baha’is in the East and in the West. The one is entitled, “Apostles of Baha’u’llah”; the other, “Disciples of Abdu’l-Baha.” He has joined to each a list of the name and title of these Baha’is. He would request the Committee to arrange the two collective photographs in a matter that they would face each other in the book. In the back of each he feels the list of their respective names should be inserted. Shoghi Effendi has not yet received Horace’s article on “Survey of Current Baha’i Activities in the East and West.” He would advise you to insert it immediately if it is finished without awaiting a further word from Shoghi Effendi. He feels that the sooner the book is printed the better. He would advise the utmost care both on the part of the proof reader and the printer. Particularly regarding the transliteration of Oriental terms, he would urge you to exercise the minutest care. He has carefully revised both the list and the articles in this connection. The book should present a distinctive scholarly character and should be free from all manner of type error. The appreciative replies he has received from eminent men to whom he has sent The Baha’i World and to whom he hopes to send Volume III, makes it absolutely imperative to maintain, nay even to improve if possible, the standard already attained. He would particularly request you to insert in the beginning of the book, on a separate page, a statement saying that all the photographs in Volume III are strictly copyrighted and should not, without specific authorization, be reproduced. As to the color of the book, Shoghi Effendi feels that as Volume I has a green cover and Volume II a blue one, that Volume III should be red. He is sending you enclosed the particular shade of red which he feels it advisable to adopt. He would request you to ensure that the cloth cover of Volume III should be exactly in this shade.

Shoghi Effendi is sending enclosed a check for twenty pounds as his promised contribution towards the expense involved in the preparation of the illuminated manuscript. He has already informed the friends in the East and particularly Persia to take the necessary measures for a prompt and substantial order immediately the book is published. The sacred photographs, most of which have never been published before, are of such a nature as to excite the interest of both the Baha’is of the East and the West. The graphic and detailed description of the declaration of the Bab in Shiraz, which Shoghi Effendi has included in Part One, is bound to arouse much interest, as the details of that historic meeting are unknown to even the old believers in Persia. It is why he feels that the greatest care should be exercised in the printing of the book.

Shoghi Effendi would wish to have mailed to his name, immediately the book is published, which he hopes will be by the middle of the summer, one hundred (100) copies. He hopes that the friends in every part of the world will cooperate in making the issue of this book a successful financial undertaking. He wishes in conclusion to express his deepest appreciation of your continued and devoted endeavors and wishes me to assure you of his prayers for your success in your many services to the Cause. This letter should not be published in The Baha’i World. It is only for the information of the Baha’i World Committee.

Yours Sincerely,

Rubi Afshar

P. S.—Shoghi Effendi will be pleased to send the price of the hundred copies he has ordered immediately he receives them. R. A.

My dear and precious co-worker:

I cannot refrain from adding a few words to this already detailed letter, the expression of my deepest admiration for your unspiring efforts in the service of our beloved Faith. Your whole-hearted devotion, conscientious labors, and thoroughness of service are greatly valued and prized by me, and I trust that in the days to come your scope of service may increasingly widen and bear the richest fruit. I have asked Rubi to convey my messages and suggestions in my behalf in this letter regarding The Baha’i World, and I am sure that they will be duly considered, as I have great hopes in this publication. I am sending you under separate cover a photo of the London friends which I would suggest to be inserted before or after George Townshend's "Reflection" on the Hidden Words in Part IV. Lovingly and gratefully.

THORNTON CHASE MEMORIAL DINNER

In 1912, in speaking to the friends of Southern California regarding Thornton Chase, His Holiness 'Abdu'l-Baha asked them, if possible, to give a feast to the poor, in commemo­ration of Mr. Chase, and on the date on which he passed from this world to the divine Kingdom.

Accordingly, it became the wish of the Los Angeles Spiritual Assembly to carry out this request. A committee, including the chairman of the teaching committee, Mr. Waite, and the chairman of the program committee, Mrs. Waite, and this servant, called at the Midnight Mission, 396 So. Los Angeles St., and made ar­rangements to give a feast to the poor there at six o'clock on the evening of September 30th, 1930, in commemora­tion of this great Baha'i pioneer of America, visiting the various depart­ments of the Mission at the same time.

On Sept. 30th, after a commemora­tive program at the grave of Thornton Chase at Inglewood Cemetery in the afternoon, a few of the friends gathered at the Midnight Mission about six P. M. The executive secretary of the Mission gave a short talk to the crowd of men gathered in the chapel of the Mission previous to adjourning to the dining-room. She spoke of Mr. Chase as a man who was a philanthropist and humanitarian. The news had spread that there was something unusual going on, so about 234 men had gathered and were fed in commemo­ration of Mr. Chase. When the meal was almost over and the empty stomachs were filled, then, and then only in accordance with 'Abdu'l-Baha's advice not to talk religion to a man with an empty stomach, without at first feeding him, there was a talk given by one of the friends, briefly tell­ing of the universal spirit of Mr. Chase; of his love for all people, irre­spective of their race or religion, and that the Great Exemplar, Whom he followed, was a wonderful soul with heart filled with love for all humanity; and that He had said that the Prophe­cets of God had all known poverty; that God especially loved the poor, etc., telling something of 'Abdu'l-Baha's address on the Bowery of New York City. Mrs. Kuehne and Mrs. Beck­hart further added to the spirit of the occasion by helping the men who were waiting on the long tables filled with diners.

Altogether the evening and day were a great success and the Los Angeles Baha'i Community hope that it became acceptable to Baha'u'llah, 'Abdu'l-Baha and the true brother Shoghi Effendi and was a cause of happiness to Them and to the heart of Mr. Chase.

The secretary of the Mission told the friends that already this deed had borne fruit, because she had told of it to her church, and that they too were to give a dinner to the poor at the Mission.

NEW YORK AMITY CONFERENCE REPORTED IN LEAD­ING NEGRO PAPER

The Chicago Defender, the largest colored newspaper in the world, which has a circulation of approximately a quarter of a million, carried in a recent number the cut made from a picture of the Racial Amity Conference held in New York City in which the Urban League and the National Associa­tion for the Advancement of Col­ored People cooperated with the National Teaching Committee and the Spiritual Assembly of New York.

The news item which accompanied the cut follows:

Race Question Theme of Baha'i Conclave

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The conference for the interracial amity under the auspices of the national teaching committee of the Baha'is of the United States and Canada was held here Nov. 2, 8 and 9. The conference drew prominent speakers and workers for interracial goodwill from various sections of the country.

The conclave began with sessions held at the Baha'i center, 119 W. 57th St., Mrs. Ludmila Rechtold presided. Addresses were made by Miss Mary White Ovington of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Louis G. Gregory, lecturer on race relations.

The session Nov. 8 was held at the New York Urban League, 204 W. 136th St. Mrs. Doris McKay of Ge­neva, N. Y., presided. Addresses were made by J. M. Ragland, secretary of the Urban League of Cincinnati; Rev. Paul E. Baker of the Federal Council of the Church of Christ, and Mrs. Jess­ie Faucett Harris. The final session was held at the Bahai center.

Harlan F. Ober of Pittsburgh pre­sided. Addresses were made by Eugene Kinckle Jones, secretary of the National Urban League; Mrs. Hanford Ford, and James H. Hubert, secretary of the New York Urban League. All of the addresses stressed the need of greater interracial coo­peration. Miss Lorenzo Jordan Cole rendered several musical selections at the first session. The Bahai's have a number of adherents in Harlem. The movement has attracted the attention of hundreds of persons of both races who believe in the principles of brother­hood.

KAUKAB-I-HIND

This Baha'i publication was started in the year 1924. It is the only organ of the Baha'is in India and Burma in Urdu, the language of a large part of the people of the country. It first started publication in Agra as a weekly and was later on transferred to Delhi, the Capital of the Indian Empire, where it began to appear on the first of every Bahai month.

Needless to say that the Kaukab is rendering a unique service to the Divine Cause in India. Its literary and historical articles have proved a fertile source of information to the true seekers after Truth and its argumentative dissertations have shielded the beloved Cause from the wanton attacks of the enemies of progress and civilization. In fact this wonderful publication in the most common language in India is doing the work of a great teacher.

One fact looms above all the others: The Kaukab has been presenting the Cause in such a manner that not a single voice has been raised against the Divine Teachings—even the most bigoted organs of the different religious societies have admitted the loveliness of the Divine Word and have accepted its adaptability to the present-day world. If many people have not come under the Divine Banner, it is because they are tied down by fashion and by the bonds of their societies.

Besides publishing articles the Kaukab has been publishing in its pages, by installments, the translations of most of the Bahai literature.

Most of the Holy Tablets of Baha'u'llah have been published—all original and translation—and a selection is now published in book form. "Tablets to the Kings" have all been translated and published. "Epistle to the Son of the Wolf" has also been translated and published in book form.

A large collection of 'Abdu'l-Baha's Tablets and Addresses have also been translated and published in the Kaukab. Prominent among these are His addresses in Europe and America, the account of His Travels in the West. "Some Answered Questions" has been translated in Urdu and published by installments in the Kaukab. It will soon be published in book form. Besides contributing often to the Kaukab fund our Beloved Guardian has very graciously contributed £9/- towards the publication of this Book.

A fairly large number of the Epistles of our beloved Guardian have also been translated and published in the pages of the Kaukab.

In a word the Kaukab has been a source of teaching the Cause to the intelligent people of all religions and a strong advocate of peace and goodwill to the warring people of this land of many religions. Its articles are always so serene and inspiring that almost all the papers of the country have commented upon them in the most glowing terms.

Its annual subscription is Re.4/- for India, Sh.10/- for British Empire and other countries, £2.00 for America and T.2/- for Persia.

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. Jennie Peterson, for 31 years a devoted Bahá'í, a Pioneer in Racine of the Cause of El-Abba, departed this life Monday morning, December 29th, 1930, and was laid to rest in West Lawn Cemetery December 31st, 1930. The funeral was attended by hosts of friends coming from Kenosha, Sturtevant, Milwaukee and the whole membership of the Bahá'í Community of Racine. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. The services conducted by Reverend Hogan of the First Presbyterian Church and the Bahá'í Service given by Mr. Albert R. Windust of Chicago were very impressive and spiritual. Mrs. Jennie Peterson was a true friend, an active worker, a spiritual guide, in the council of the local Assembly, where she never shirked a duty. She was a member of the Spiritual Assembly since its reorganization in conformity to the Administrative Plan of Shoghi Effendi since April 21, 1923, served one year as its President and the last 3 years as Treasurer, served on committees and has been representative of Racine at the National Spiritual Assembly Convention. Many are the friends and traveling teachers who shared her welcome hospitality. Surviving her is her husband Mr. F. J. Peterson, one of the first to bring the Bahá'í message to Racine, and her two loving daughters, Lula and Muriel Peterson. Mrs. Peterson will be mourned by a wide circle of friends both within and outside the Bahá'í circle as well as her family.

Mrs. Mary Capers Newton, for many years a beloved member of the Brooklyn, N. Y. Bahá'í group, passed away suddenly October 18th, 1930, at the home of her daughter, at Bristol, Connecticut.

The interment was at Rose Wood Cemetery, Manhasset, Long Island, Tuesday, October 21st. She is survived by her husband, Henry W. Newton, her daughters, Amelia (Mrs. William Bowes), Ethel Newton, and three grandchildren, Agnes Marie, William, Jr. and Henry Bowes.

For her loving devotion to home and friends alike, and as a club member and writer, Mrs. Newton will long be remembered. Her greatest joy as a generous and self-sacrificing Bahá'í, long lay in the fact that she had been of the privileged one to meet the Great Master, 'Abdu'l-Baha face to face, during His visit to America in 1912, and to receive His blessing.

One of the pioneers of the Bahá'í Cause in the western world, Miss Ethel J. Rosenberg, passed away at her home in London on November 17, 1930, crowned with age and the service of the Master. The end was peaceful for this devoted servant of 'Abdu'l-Baha, whom He knew and loved so well and to whose devotion and uniring labors He had often paid priceless tribute by voice and pen.

Known and loved by all the members of the Holy Family in Haifa where she had visited for months at a time in the earlier stages of the outpouring of the Bahá'í spirit from the East to Europe and America, Miss Rosenberg played no small part in the adaptation of the Bahá'í Message to the western mind. Ever modest and unassuming the full value of her work in this capacity seldom appeared on the surface but those who knew her well and were in close touch with her activities were and are well aware of the great assistance she gave to the Master and how valuable was the help she rendered in the translation and transcribing of some of the outstanding works through which the truths of the Bahá'í Message were made known to the peoples of the western hemisphere.

No one is more fully cognizant of the worth of this servant's labors for the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, as developed and expounded by the Center of the Covenant, than the beloved Guardian of the Cause Shoghi Effendi, who, when he was advised of her passing cables forthwith to the friends in London a heartfelt message of condolence and appreciation.

"Deeply grieved passing Rosenberg" wrote the Guardian, "England's outstanding Bahá'í Pioneer worker. Memory of her glorious service will remain in the minds of Bahá'ís of all countries. Her untiring efforts in expressing heartfelt condolences to her brother and relatives. Urge friends hold befitting memorial service."

Services were held on the afternoon of November 20th, attended by the London Bahá'ís and a Memorial Meeting was arranged at the Bahá'í Center for suitable expression of the love all the members of the Bahá'í Community felt for this long-time friend and counsellor. Here was voiced that reverent recognition due her for the clear vision she had of the Bahá'í Message and purposes and the lucid and authoritative expositions she was able, through contact with the source of inspiration and the pure spirit that burned within her, to give to those who sought.

Miss Rosenberg, who was seventy-two years of age, was born in England and had lived for many years in London. She was one of the most prominent and active believers in Great Britain up to a short time before her removal to the higher plane.

During her long connection with the Cause she had correspondence with 'Abdu'l-Baha had been voluminous, and devoted to her He had revealed numerous precious tablets, many of which, of a general nature, have already been included in the Bahá'í writings.

REPORT FROM
MRS. ORCELLA REXFORD

We have had glorious results in Denver. I have been there since the first part of September carrying on my work and from the start was impressed by the interest of the people along our line of thought. I met many people who had met our blessed Master when He was there but due to no study classes having been formed had lost track of the Cause for one reason or another.

Five thousand people signed cards to be sent invitations to the two Spiritual Lectures as I refer to the Bahá’í Cause. The theatre seats 1800 people and was packed at both performances. Four hundred people turned out to the evening class and seventy-five to the morning class. Mrs. Powell was sent from California to teach these classes but due to the death of her mother had to return as soon as she came and then Beulah Lewis, that gifted orator, came to be with them a month until another teacher can be found to follow her. Mrs. Lewis has had great success in taking over my classes and I wish that she might follow me in every city where I raise up classes. I also gave two Bahá’í lectures in Colorado Springs and was able to pack the theatre of three hundred seating capacity each night, which is quite a feat for that town. About a hundred turned out for the classes there and Mrs. Lewis holds four classes a week in Denver and four in Colorado Springs. Of course the classes will dwindle, they always do, but there will be a substantially sized Assembly in Denver I am sure if the right teachers remain with them long enough. We have some very prominent and lovely people in these four classes and many are so happy and delighted over receiving this message.

I have had called to my attention a notice which appeared some time ago in the News Letter regarding the Long Beach Assembly. The credit for establishing this Assembly was given to Mrs. Waite and Mrs. Greenleaf. Neither of these people had anything to do with the formation of the group to my knowledge. I called these people together as the result of a whole summer’s work in Long Beach. Mrs. Waite was present at the lectures and favored us with some songs, but she had nothing to do with the forming of the group, either before or afterward, and Mrs. Greenleaf was not even present. Mrs. Beulah Lewis was assigned by the Los Angeles Assembly and the Pacific Coast Teaching Committee to teach the class and for six months, she and Mrs. Orl Platt made the trip every Friday to Long Beach to teach the class, through all kinds of weather and under difficult circumstances. I think the least we can do in these matters where the teachers sacrifice their time and efforts is to give credit where it is due. I do not know how such an erroneous report could have been sent in. Perhaps Mrs. Waite or Mrs. Greenleaf happened to be present the evening the group were formed into an Assembly. I do not know, but the actual work of getting these people ready for an Assembly was done by Mrs. Lewis and no one else. All of these people were spiritual children of mine, and barring two or three others who have come in since, the entire group have been my students.

I plan to go throughout the South this winter calling to the people the message of Bahá’u’lláh and trust that many will be awakened in the region where ‘Abdu’l-Bahá was so eager for them to arise.

With kindest regards
In Unity and Service.

NATIONAL RADIO SPEAKER REFERS TO BAHÁ’I CAUSE

On Monday evening, Nov. 10th at 7:30 over Station WABC, Evangeline Adams, the noted Astrologer, at the request of Velaska Suratt, spoke on Bahá’u’lláh. She said, the next day the 11th being Armistice Day it was significant that the following day the 12th was the Birthday of Bahá’u’lláh and that His message. That His message was read and that the subscribers of the League of Nations from the teachings of Bahá’u’lláh. And it was true that this teaching had been given to the world by Bahá’u’lláh 50 years previous. At that time He had written to all the Crowned Heads of Europe and that Queen Victoria had answered, that if it was of God it would live. Miss Adams continued that it was most fitting that Spiritual Teachings such as He had given should come from the regions around Mt. Carmel.

I consider it my duty to warn every beginner in the Faith that the promised glories of the Sovereignty which the Bahá’í teachings foreshadow can be revealed only in the fulness of time, that the implications of the Aqdas and the Will of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, as the twin repositories of the constituent elements of that sovereignty, are too far-reaching for this generation to grasp and fully appreciate. I cannot refrain from appealing to them who stand identified with the Faith to disregard the prevailing notions and the fleeting fashions of the day, and to realize as never before that the exploded theories and the tottering institutions of present-day civilization must needs appear in sharp contrast with those God-given institutions which are destined to arise upon the ruins. I pray that they may realize with all their heart and soul the ineffable glory of their calling, the overwhelming responsibility of their mission, and the astounding immensity of their task.—SHOGHI EFFENDI.
Consider the peoples of the world and the littleness of their mind. They ask for that which is harmful unto them and forsake the thing that profiteth them. They verify are of them that have gone astray. We see some men desiring liberty and taking pride therein; they verify are wrapt in grievous ignorance. Liberty endeth in strife and sedition, the flame whereof cannot be extinguished. Thus declareth unto you the Reconciler, the All-Knowing. Know ye in truth that the example and symbol of liberty is the brute and it behoveth man to be under laws and regulations that shall guard him from his own ignorance and the harm of the mischief makers. Verily, liberty causeth man to transgress the bounds of courtesy and dignity and maketh of him one of them that are of low degree. Regard all creatures as sheep that are in need of a shepherd who will guard and watch over them; this is verily the truth, the undoubted truth. We approve of liberty on some occasions and disapprove of it on others, and We verify are Omniscient, All-Knowing. Say, to have liberty is to observe My commandments, if ye be of them that perceive. Should man follow that which We have revealed unto them from the Heavens of Divine Revelation, they would of a certainty attain unto absolute freedom. Well is it with him that hath known the Purpose of God in that which hath been revealed from the Heavens of His Holy Will that transcendeth all mankind. Say the liberty that profiteth ye is naught but servitude to God, the True One, and whoso hath tasted the sweetness thereof, he surely will barter it not for the domination of heaven and earth.

Consort with all religions with unity and concord, that they may inhale from you the sweet fragrance of God. Beware lest amidst men the flame of foolish ignorance overpower you. All things proceed from God and unto Him they return. He is the source of all things and in Him all things are ended.

Happy are ye, O ye the learned ones in Bahá. By the Lord! Ye are the billows of the Most Mighty Ocean, the stars of the firmament of Glory, the standards of triumph waving between earth and heaven. Ye are the manifestations of steadfastness amidst men and the daysprings of Divine Utterance to all that dwell on earth. Well is it with him that turneth unto you and woe betide the froward. This day, it behoveth whoso hath quaffed the Mystic Wine of Everlasting Life from the Hands of the Loving kindness of the Lord his God, the Merciful, to pulsate even as the throbbing artery in the body of mankind, that through him may be quenched the world and every crumbling bone.—Bahá'u'lláh.

NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY CALLS TWENTY-THIRD ANNUAL CONVENTION

To the Bahá'í Communities of the United States and Canada.

The Twenty-third Annual Convention of the Bahá'ís of the United States and Canada will be held in the Foundation Hall of the Mashriqu'i-Adhkar, Wilmette, Illinois, on May 1st, 2nd and 3rd, 1931.

In accordance with our By-Laws, each Local Bahá'í Spiritual Assembly, upon receipt of this notice, and after giving due and sufficient notice to all the voting members of the Bahá'í community, shall call a meeting of the community within a convenient period for the election of a delegate or delegates to the Convention, in accordance with the number of delegates assigned to each community shown on the enclosed paper entitled “Participating Bahá'í Communities.”

Please note, in addition, enclosures of the following:

1. Certificate of Election of Delegates, to be filled out, signed by the Secretary of the Local Spiritual Assembly, and mailed to the National Secretary immediately following the local election.

2. Instructions for Casting of Ballots by Absent Delegates sending ballots by mail.

3. Inner and Outer Ballot Envelopes, to be used only for mailing ballots and individual registration blank by absent delegates. (See “Instructions for Casting of Ballots, etc.”)

4. Nine ballot slips for each delegate. (See “Instructions for Casting of Ballots, etc.”)

5. Individual Registration Blank for each delegate. (See “Instructions for Casting of Ballots, etc.”)

Please note that all delegates to the Convention are to be elected by a plurality vote. In this connection, Section 1, of Article VIII, of the By-Laws was amended in October, 1930, so that absent members of a Bahá'í community have the right to transmit their ballots by mail or telegram, under conditions satisfactory to the Local Spiritual Assembly, provided such members are, “by reason of illness or some equally unavoidable circumstance,” unable to be present in person at the election meeting. In such cases, the Local Spiritual Assembly will take the responsibility of determining a uniform procedure and for the necessary secrecy of any ballots so cast by absent members. This provision applies to the election of delegates to a National Convention. The above amendment should not, however, be considered as exempting any voting member from his spiritual duty to attend and vote at every election meeting, if he is able to do so.

The National Spiritual Assembly would urge early local elections this year, so that all necessary steps affecting the election of delegates to the Convention may be in hand if possible by April 1st.

We would welcome any suggestion or suggestions by delegates for consideration by the Convention, and such suggestions will be given careful consideration by the Assembly and embodied in the Convention agenda where practicable. Such suggestions may be sent the Secretary as late as April 10, 1931.

We have appointed the Temple Program Committee consisting of:
Mr. Willis Hilpert, Chairman; Mrs. S. Parker, Secretary, 6816 Langley Ave., Chicago, III.; Mrs. Sarah Walrath, Treasurer; Dr. W. P. Slater, Mrs. Elizabeth Nourse, Mr. Carl Scheffer, Mrs. Bartholomew, to handle the local arrangements for all Convention details, and they will shortly issue a preliminary memorandum of information to the Assemblies, to be followed by additional information a little later on.

For the first time, the Bahá'í Convention of this western continent will assemble under the dome of the Temple and in an edifice whose basic structure will be practically complete. This Holy Edifice, whose spiritual origin and real creation was ordained by His Holiness Bahá'u'lláh as a Universal House of Worship in the Orient over fifty years ago, has now found its material expression in America through the mutual sacrifices of the friends of both East and West. Only through the measure of spiritual unity we have achieved has this become possible. We know that His Holiness 'Abdu'l-Bahá has promised that both spiritual and material effects would appear with the completion of the Temple.

This Twenty-third Annual Convention meets, therefore, under the possibilities of a spiritual confirmation which is greater than any before experienced. Two great spiritual attainments await the new consciousness which this Convention should impart: (1) A deeper realization of the mysteries and potentials of the Divine Unity in each individual heart; (2) A new and victorious impulse for the teaching of the Cause throughout America, inspired by the Mashriqu'l-Adhkár, symbol of the new law of God.

It is hoped that through supplication and prayer, and also meditation upon the needs of the hour in the light of the Divine Word, not only the delegates, but all the friends, will establish a foundation in these succeeding weeks which will find glorious reflection in the deliberations and actions of the Convention—and make happy the heart of our Guardian.

With loving greetings in behalf of the National Spiritual Assembly, the friends, may God grant you health and prosperity.

ALFRED E. LUNT, Secretary.

There are some rooms for $1.50 per day where three people occupy one room. Others can be had for $2.00 per person in a single room and $1.50 for two people in one double room. Some of the homes are equipped to serve simple breakfasts. In addition there are several Bahá'ís in Chicago and vicinity who can take in visiting Bahá'ís as guests.

We suggest that the friends who intend to take rooms in private homes correspond at once with Mrs. Anne W. Bartholomew, 1438 Lake Ave., Wilmette, III., for reservations.

With true Bahá'í love and greetings, letter written on behalf of the Publishing Committee and dated December 16, 1930.

He has received the copy of the Bahá’í World Vol. III, with the greatest pleasure and he wishes me to hasten and assure you that he is highly satisfied with the work.

I am also asked to express Shoghi Effendi’s unqualified gratitude to the members of the Publishing Committee and not least yourself for their labors and industry in producing such a noteworthy publication.

With his greetings and good wishes to you all,

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) SOHEIL AFNAH.

My dear Co-worker,

I am extremely pleased with the third volume of the Bahá’í World and have already written a copy to see and encouraged the friends throughout the East to order copies directly from New York.

Your true brother,

IN MEMORIAM

Mr. Charles Lawrence Lincoln, of Brooklyn, New York, who was said to be of the kin of the martyred President, and was for many years a faithful servant of the Cause of Bahá’, passed to the Supreme Concourse, January 18, 1931, in his eightieth year.

Mr. Lincoln’s ability as an architect and builder are evidenced in the parks of Greater New York, with which he was associated for thirty years, and while thus engaged he found time to prepare and submit a set of plans for the Mashriqu’l-Adhkar.

Mr. Lincoln’s Masonic Lodge performed the last rites while a Bahá’í ring on his finger was as a seal upon his hands as they were clasped across his breast.

On January 23, 1931, the spirit of Francis William Breed, beloved husband of Alice Ives Breed, for many years a most faithful and efficient member of the New York Assembly, winged its way to the Kingdom of Light. On the following day, his eighty-fifth birthday, the Bahá’í service for the departed was held at his home. The following cable from Shoghi Effendi was read:

“Assure you sympathy, prayers, departed father; love.

SHOGHI.”

When ‘Abdu’l-Bahá was in America, the Feast of the Bab and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s sixty-seventh birthday were celebrated at the Breed home in Cambridge, Massachusetts, and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá addressed more than a hundred friends on the subject, “His Holiness, the Bab.” Mr. and Mrs. Breed were afterwards the guests of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá at Dublin, New Hampshire.

Though a life-long Christian, Mr. Breed was deeply interested in the Cause and missed no opportunity to spread the teachings of Bahá’u’lláh with great enthusiasm. After ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s return to the East, he received a Tablet from the Master and toward the end of his life was in correspondence with Shoghi Effendi, from whom he received several letters.

The passing of Mr. Breed is a historical event in the Cause, since he was the father of Florence, Madame Ali Kuli Khan, Nabbed-Dowleh, the first historical child of a Christian believer and teacher. Of this union ‘Abdu’l-Bahá said:

“This marriage is the first fruit of the prophecy of Bahá’u’lláh that the East and the West shall be united like unto two beloved ones.”

TABLET OF THE BAB FOUND IN BRITISH MUSEUM

I think the friends will be interested in hearing of our finding the Star Tablet of the Bab.

A year ago, while in London, I sent a copy of the Tablet to Queen Victoria, the head of the department suggested that we might ask for an interview with the Curator of the Museum. This was a special privilege which was granted, the Director receiving us with the utmost cordiality and showed a lively interest in our quest. He assured us that the Tablet we so specially sought had never been in the British Museum, but, that, after the death of Prof. E. G. Browne, his heirs had sent one original Bahá’í manuscript to the Museum. This, however, was not written by either Bahá’u’lláh or ‘Abdu’l-Bahá so it might not be of value to us at this time. This news was a great disappointment until he added, “It is in the hand of ‘Ali Muhammad, the Bab.” At this unexpected and wonderful news we asked if it was possible to see it. It is too valuable to be on view, he replied, but I will send for it. It proved to be a single sheet of heavy vellum inscribed in the delicate handwriting of the Bab, illuminated in exquisite colors and so written as to form a star.

The Curator pronounced it an almost miraculous piece of penmanship and a perfect specimen of oriental writing. As such a possession could not be taken from the Museum the Curator offered to have it photographed for us and thus enabled us to bring it to America.

It has not been officially translated but the Bahá’í believers who have looked at it, say it contains derivations of the word Bahá’. During my long illness and absence from New York it was not unwrapt but now we shall have copies made and placed on sale with the Publishing Committee, so that all the friends may share in this priceless treasure.

LOUIE A. MATHEWS.

THE ”HOUSE OF ’ABDUL-BAHA” AT MALDEN, MASS.

As a member of the Spiritual Assembly of Boston, I have been asked by that body to write a few lines regarding the Wilson House at 68 High Street, Malden, Mass.

Inasmuch as there seems to be a more or less confused condition of mind, regarding this piece of property, among some of the friends.

In 1900 Miss Wilson, with Miss Farmer as her guest made her first visit to 'Abdu'l-Bahá, then a prisoner in Akka—a few years later she made another pilgrimage. At that time 'Abdu'l-Bahá said "When I come to America I will visit you."

In August of 1912 while in America 'Abdu'l-Bahá became very weary and requested that a believer who might have a "house on a hill," allow Him the use of it, for a week or two. Many houses were immediately put at His disposal and among them, this little six-room house of Miss Wilson, which He chose, and which He, with His secretaries occupied.

There He spent ten days, going from Malden to Montreal leaving six or seven of His party in the Wilson House for several weeks, until He returned from California. Many souls were confirmed in that little house among them our dear brother Harry Randall.

After the Master left America Miss Wilson, upon reflection, decided to write and ask Him, His wishes regard­ing in the future of this house.

In order that all may understand why the house is in the hands of the National Spiritual Assembly it seems wise to quote from Tablets received by her regarding its future destiny.

From a Tablet dated March 12, 1913:

"Thy house became my abode and my home. Many days were spent in that home with the utmost joy and fragrance.

The mention of "Ya Bahá El Abhá" was raised from it and we spread the religion of God. In reality that home is my home, therefore the mention of God must always be raised from it."

Another excerpt, taken from a later Tablet, dated May 11th, 1913:

"The days that I spent in thy house and engaged my time in summoning the people to the kingdom of God, were days of infinite joy and spiritual.

"They shall never be erased from the Tablet of Memory. Take care of that house, because the Light of the Love of God was ignited in it. The fragrance of the Kingdom of Abhá perfumed the nostrils.

"As thou art obliged there is no harm done if thou desirest to rent it." Miss Wilson, after receiving these two Tablets, made her first will—in which she gave the house to 'Abdu'l-Bahá, but later, after His Ascension, destroyed that Will and gave the house to our Brother Shoghi Effendi. Considering the distance he is, at present, from his property, he has requested the National Spiritual Assembly of America to take care of it for him. They have left it more or less in the hands of the Boston Spiritual Assembly, to serve as custodians of this historic property.

We are hoping to preserve it for him, hoping and longing that one day in the not distant future he may arrive in America and find it awaiting him. Beautified, and sanctified and held in trust for him, that he too, may spend many days there in "ut­most joy and fragrance."

With Bahá'i Love,

ANSE RIDEOUT.

MARTHA ROOT IN HONOLULU

From January the eighth to the seventeenth, we had the great joy of hav­ing with us our dear Bahá'i sister, Martha Root, who stopped in Honolulu on her way from Japan to San Francisco. About twenty-five lectures were given during the course of the week, including four broadcasting talks given from both radio stations. The first large meeting was a tea given by Mrs. George F. Straub, Chairman of the Federated Study Group, who is much attracted to the Cause. Assistance her, in her home, were the officers of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. Invitations were sent to the members of the American Association of University Women, the League of Women Voters and the Women's International League for Peace. Miss Root spoke of the men and women whom she met in Europe and the Orient, and of their far-reaching influence in creating public opinion on ways and means of establishing universal peace and the new world order as outlined by Bahá'u'lláh.

A splendid group of forward looking women of capacity, met at the home of Mrs. S. A. Baldwin, the following day, and we were very happy to see signs and evidences of attraction, and sincere interest expressed. At the luncheon meeting of the Pan Pacific Union, where were gathered representatives of all the races and organizations, Martha Root spoke on "Universal Education for World Peace." The director, Mr. Alexander Hume Ford, extended to the secretary of the Bahá'i Assembly, the courtesy of presiding at this meeting. Martha Root's eloquent address met with a ready response and was a source of inspiration to the many assembled. In this talk she stressed the need of developing the international outlook, and of an understanding and application of the principles of Bahá'u'lláh, clos­ing with these words:—"In the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh you will find the solution for the present-day problems, for they offer a dynamic universal education for the permanent enduring universal peace."

The other speaker of the day was Mr. K. Harada, a member of the Secretariat of the League of Nations, who is now on his way back to Geneva.

Other lectures were given in the leading schools of Honolulu, to a group of students in the University of Hawaii, to the members of the Zonta Club, the Business and Professional Women’s Club, the Representatives Club (a group of forward looking young men) to the Esperantists, in addition to large groups in the public Bahá’í meetings. Among the subjects chosen were—"Noted Women of the World and their Interest in World Peace"; "Esperanto as a Universal Auxiliary Language"; "Universal Peace—What You Can Do to Help Bring It"; "Youth’s Part in the New World Order"; "Progress of Esperanto in the Schools of the World"; "What the East Can Do for the West"; "The Aim of a Liberal Education"; "Woman’s Place in the New World Order"; "Intellectual Aspects of the Bahá’í Movement"; "The Bahá’í Movement—Its Aims and Principles," etc. The radio talks were on "The Progress of the Bahá’í Movement in Five Continents"; "The New Spirit in Persia"; "Esperanto, the Universal Auxiliary Language" and an "Interview on the Bahá’í Movement."

This was a unique experience for Miss Root, since it was the first interview in the history of the Cause, given from a radio station. The following questions were answered in this interview—

“What is the Bahá’í Movement?"; "What Are Its Basic Principles?"; "What Are the Bahá’í Teachings on the Equality of Man and Woman?"; and "What form will the new Civilization Take?"

It was possible for Martha Root to give about twenty-five lectures during the week, because the programme had been, for the most part, arranged before her arrival. Splendid publicity was given by the press and through the united efforts of the believers. Every door of opportunity was opened. An interesting feature of the talk given to the students in the University, was the presentation of a set of twenty-four volumes on the lives of great men of the world. These books, written in the Japanese language, and given to Miss Root by Mr. Noma, the well known “magazine king” of Japan, were presented to the Library of the University of Hawaii, in this “Cross Roads of the Pacific,” as an expression of the coming together of the East and West, and to help cement that union.

We are grateful indeed to our beloved sister for the renewed interest and stimulus that her visit brought. Martha’s spirit of secession and devotion, as well as her unique experiences, and knowledge of the Cause, went far toward attracting and holding the interest of many responsive listeners.

The “follow up” work is well under way. A new Esperanto class has been organized which meets every week and several new Bahá’í Study Groups are held in the homes of the believers. We are endeavoring to make the weekly public meeting a greater magnet of attraction for the “sincere seeker that may enter therein in assurance, and find that the word of God is one word, though the Speakers were many.”

With loving Bahá’í greetings to all the dear friends in every part of the world.

For the Honolulu Bahá’í Assembly,

JULIA GOLDMAN, Secretary.

REPORTS FROM TEACHING COMMITTEE

1.—To the Members of the Inter-Assembly Teaching Committees:

As we note the increasing confusion of the world we realize that the true Bahá’í must be an intermediary between the world of God and this world of chaotic humanity. In our own Bahá’í relationships in our various communities and inter-Assembly groups we should mirror forth that perfect unity which is absolutely free from personality and partisanship, from preference and distinction and is characterized by universal love and conscious oneness. As the Guardian has said, the believers must not reflect the conditions of the human world but must project into the darkness of this world the beauty and harmony and peace of the spiritual world.

These thoughts seem especially applicable in relation to the inter-Assembly conference work. Certainly the first purpose of these conferences has been to develop united working units which through true Bahá’í consultation may formulate definite plans for service and teaching in their respective regions. All inter-Assembly groups have now held conferences. Reports of these conferences tell of the renewal of enthusiasm and inspiration for teaching generated by closer association and consultation of the friends. Let us make every endeavor that the fire which has been kindled in the hearts will not be extinguished but will become a conflagration as further conferences are held and active steps undertaken for the spread of the Message of Bahá’u’lláh.

We hope these conferences have already stimulated the formation in every community of Bahá’í study classes. The systematic study of the teachings, their relation to world thought, and practice in presentation are absolutely essential in the development of teachers. The increasing demand and the scarcity of qualified

AMERICAN NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

Address: Bahá’í Secretariat,
Evergreen Cabin, West Englewood, N. J.

Members: For correspondence with Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada, Alfred E. Lunt; for correspondence with Bahá’ís on other lands, and with non-Bahá’ís in the United States and Canada, Nellie S. French; editor of Bahá’í News, Horace Holley; Treasurer of the National Assembly and of the Trustees for the Benefit of the National Spiritual Assembly (Temple and Green Acre Funds) Roy C. Wilhelm; Financial Secretary, Carl Scheffler.
teachers has been one of our most serious problems this year. Shoghi Effendi has recently said that the development of teachers 'is gradual and can come about only as a result of thorough training. This training has to take the form of a thorough study of the teachings, then of actual practice in the field.' Is there any better way of accomplishing this than through study classes?

The National Teaching Committee would therefore appreciate early replies from every Assembly to the following questions:

1. Have you a Bahá’í study class? How often held? How many attend?
2. What material are you using for study?
3. Do you encourage practice in speaking?
4. Are any of the class definitely training themselves for traveling teachers?
5. Have you any qualified teachers who are available for local or national teaching circuits?
6. Have you established any local teaching circuits with nearby groups?

Answers to these questions will form the basis of a report on community teaching activities to be presented at the Convention in May.

Real unity among the believers, a greater knowledge of the teachings and the development of teachers are perhaps our first objectives but an increase in Bahá’í contacts is also extremely important. Every Bahá’í should make personal contacts and serve and love them into the Cause. More extensive contacts should also be developed through group effort. This can be done only by giving up our personal desires and opinions to a group plan conceived through true consultation and carried out with energy and enthusiasm by both majority and minority if unfortunately both exist. Every promising method should be tried.

Many cities have progressive speakers on world affairs, economics, sociology, and science who are willing to speak on their special subjects with a chairman who can tactfully make a Bahá’í application of the subject matter. Liberal organizations and churches often welcome Bahá’í speakers on their programs and will furnish both contacts and publicity.

Inter-racial contacts should be especially stressed. One successful method is through inter-racial and international dinners with speakers from different groups and a Bahá’í chairman. Shoghi Effendi writes us that ‘no chances (of inter-racial contacts) should be lost for the Master stressed constantly the importance of reconciling the Negro and white people of North America. This field of service not only attracts the attention of innumerable persons to the Cause but also furthers one of the ideals of the Faith, namely the abolition of racial prejudice.’ On page 119 of Bahá’í Administration the Guardian has set forth in an unmistakable manner what our attitude should be toward other races. The Urban League in many cities is glad to cooperate with any organization showing sincere friendship for the Negro. In every Bahá’í center where there is an Urban League or similar organizations, friendly and cooperative relations should be established.

Another suggestion, as yet undeveloped by the Bahá’ís, holds interesting possibilities. Inter-racial and inter-religious committees or round tables might be established with liberal organizations interested in human relations for the frank discussion of their problems. Our contribution to such a group would consist in the initial conception and organization, a broad and sympathetic vision of the problems discussed and active service in promoting the aims of the cooperating groups. As Abdul-Bahá has said, if we go half the way with our brother, he may turn and go all the way with us.

Special adaptations of any of these methods may be developed by the friends to meet local needs and opportunities. Through them a more vital and effective type of racial unity work may gradually unfold, although there is still a distinct place for our present racial unity conferences. If any Eastern centers wish to do special unity work before Convention time, Mr. Gregory can possibly arrange to be with them if his assistance is requested in time.

The funds available for traveling teachers are very limited so they should be conserved. Much of the teacher’s expense is for room and board. If this item could be met by the local friends and a contribution made toward traveling expenses, the amount of teaching possible with this Committee’s budget could be more than doubled. This should be considered by communities desiring a traveling teacher.

The National Teaching Committee eagerly awaits news from the inter-Assembly conferences of constructive work actually in progress or at least the development of definite plans for group study, the training of teachers and organized contacts work.

National Teaching Committee,
By: R. C. COLLISON, Chairman.

2.—First Meeting of Inter-Assembly Committee of Southwestern California.

The first meeting of the Inter-Assembly Teaching Committee of Southwestern California, held November 16th, 1930, marks an epoch in inter-Assembly functioning. Mrs. Loretha Beck, secretary, reports: The chairman (Mr. William P. Hacket), suggested a consultation as to the purpose of the creation of the committee, which, it is hoped, will be a great factor in creating love and harmony between the Bahá’í Communities of the South-west. The meeting was thrown open to suggestions from all present. ‘This committee recognizes from the outset, the principle expressed by Shoghi Effendi in Bahá’í Administration, that committees are ‘experts and executive assistants’ to the various Spiritual Assemblies represented. Some suggestions of particular value were as follows:

1. That this committee arrange an inter-assembly program, with an interchange of teachers between the various Bahá’í Communities. This would lend the teaching material of the entire South-west to the efforts of any Bahá’í Community. This would also make advisable the knowledge by each Assembly of meeting dates and approximate programs of neighboring Bahá’í Communities.

2. That this committee make adequate preparation in advance for the coming of traveling Bahá’í teachers and friends.

3. The functioning of this committee, in arranging for inter-assembly work and in, together, arranging for traveling or out-of-town speakers will tend to create solidarity within the Cause, and will facilitate the activities of the teaching committee of the NSA in this locality.

4. That attention to the matter of having only qualified teachers, selected by the various Spiritual Assemblies, was necessary, and that this committee should have such a list from each of the Assemblies; that one of the definitions of a qualified teacher is a Bahá’í who adheres implicitly to the Bahá’í Administration, and is in accord with the NSA, and with the local Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’í Community to which he belongs. It was voted that this committee communicate its resolutions about teachers to the sub-teaching committee of the NSA suggesting consultation with the local Spiritual Assembly, when contemplating the use of one of the local Bahá’í Community as a teacher. That a list of these qualified teachers be compiled and sent to all outside centers, who are requesting teachers.

Further suggestions were to hold several inter-racial Amity banquets as frequently as possible. It was stated that the Pasadena Assembly were arranging one for Dec. 13th, and a request was made for full publicity and cooperation from each Bahá’í Community, that each one of the committee communicate with their Spiritual Assembly, mailing list notified and arrangements made for disposal of tickets (not to cost over one dollar.) The committee unanimously agreed to do advance work together for distinguished out of town teachers, to have a unity meeting of all neighboring assemblies every two or three months to stimulate the cooperative spirit.

finally, that a definitely stated inter-assembly fund, be pro-rated from the Spiritual Assemblies for incidental expenses of the work of the committee. This highly efficient meeting to inaugurate inter-assembly administration was held at Dr. Ali Kuli Khan’s Art Center which was to be available for other meetings of a like nature.

3.—Outline Bureau Notice.

We have recently had mimeographed a second edition of Bahá’í Teachings Relating to Christianity. We have decided to make an unusually attractive offer to the friends, effective until after Convention time. For the price of one dollar we are selling the following aids to study, enclosed in Manila folder:

Outline on Material and Divine Civilization.
Outline on Bahá’í Teaching Relating to Christ.
Outline on New Light on The Scriptures (Prophecy).
Outline on Material and Divine Civilization.

The Correspondence Course of twenty lessons with questions and references. These may be obtained through Mrs. R. C. Collison, 681 Castle Street, Geneva, N. Y.

RESULTS OF SUMMER SCHOOL AT GEYSERVILLE

The goal of the Bahá’í program and the fruit of the Cause is the realization of that ideal condition, where the differing elements of the human family live together happily, peaceably and enthusiastically. Only as the Bahá’í community life develops into a radiant working body, meeting all the problems of life, is the Cause functioning properly. Therefore, the greatest contribution we have to offer the world is a mode of life that works; transforming the problems into stepping stones of successful endeavor and establishing that dynamic force that transcends all human limitations and reaches to the consciousness of spiritual brotherhood. In the Summer School work we have been endeavoring to develop this very thing, that is, that the spirit of unity, of fellowship and of happiness should be augmented and the resultant conscious spiritualized conduct of the friends be realized, that the hearts of all who contact this body might find doors to a new mode of life they have heretofore not known. If this spirit becomes as strong as the Master wishes it will become an attractive power for all who come under its influence.

Indicating the spiritual fellowship which the Summer School has developed, many of the older Bahá’ís who have visited in Haifa and at the Holy Shrine state that the spirit that is developed at the Summer School is quite similar to that which is experienced in the Holy Land.

Last year the Summer School was visited for a few days by a young doctor from Russia. His was a strong belief in brotherhood, but of a cold, logical, scientific philosophy of life, developed naturally through the communistic ideas. He came to the Summer School for a stay of a day or two. The friendship of the friends was so strong that he stayed not only throughout that week but throughout the entire Summer School. When he left he wept, saying that never in his life had he experienced such a true oneness and harmony among people as he felt among the group at the Summer School and that he felt more intimately associated with the Bahá’ís than with his own family.

Another young man, from Southern California, driving to the Pacific Northwest dropped in to spend the evening with one of the Bahá’ís. He was simply going to stay overnight and then continue on his business trip. He was so touched by the kindness of the friends and the harmonious atmosphere that he decided to stay over for a day or so. This day or so stretched into the entire two weeks period and when he left two weeks later he wished to join the Bahá’í Fellowship and become one with us in carrying on our work.

In the same way is the attraction of Prof. W. J. Meredith of the Montezuma Mountain School for Boys to the Cause. Two years ago he came to Geyserville to lecture to our group. No direct effort was made to teach him the Universal Program of the Cause but the spirit was so strong that he himself asked for more and more knowledge. He continuously mentions that the experiences he had the last two years in the Summer School were the most pleasant experiences he had ever had and thinks the Bahá’í Cause is the only hope of world brotherhood. Prof. Meredith happened to be visiting in Southern California and therefore attended the inter-racial dinner at Pasadena, December 13th. He was introduced as one of the founders of the Montezuma School for Boys and its present Dean of Faculty. There were educators and students from the various universities in Southern California at this dinner. Prof. Meredith made a few remarks, stating that as the honor was to be introduced as one of the founders of the Montezuma School for Boys, he took greater pleasure and greater honor in attending the dinner as a member of the Bahá’í group.

Mention should also be made of the interest that was aroused on the part of Prof. E. Kern, graduate of the University of Berlin and a Rockefeller Scholarship holder for experimental work in America. He became so enthused with the spirit of the friends that he began studying the Cause and now both he and his wife are Bahá’ís.

At a recent unity dinner in San Francisco after an all-day Teaching Conference in the Bahá’í Library, Prof. Kern gave the following interesting experience: When he and his good wife left the Bahá’í Library they did not know how to get to the hotel where the dinner was to be held. Driving along they saw a machine load of people, all with happy, radiant faces and decided to follow it. Soon they were in the midst of all the happy friends in the Bahá’í gathering.

With such a spirit and harmonious feeling as this, it will readily be realized that the Summer School is a unit in its activities and all of the friends revolve in harmony around one activity after another. It is a demonstration of the ability of a group of diverse people to live together happily and harmoniously. This is the fruit of the Summer School and the purpose of its gathering, because after all the object of all training is to learn how to live. Last year there were in attends about 75 people from the various parts of the Pacific Coast. The meetings were devoted to the study of the all-important subject of "Man and His Universe." This course included briefly the complete range of human activity, starting with evolutionary processes of life to the early days of history up to the present period of complex existence and then most important, the future of the human family, which of course was a working out of the Bahá’í Program of Universal Peace. Lectures were given by Prof. E. A. Rogers, giving the contributions of science to life’s development, by Prof. W. J. Meredith from a sociological, historical standpoint and by the Bahá’ís, giving the application of the principles of Bahá’u’lláh to the problems of the world today and what their application will do in evolving in the world to that ideal state which the Bible promises of “the Kingdom of God on Earth.”

One of the most interesting outgrowths of the Summer School was the teaching of the children. A children’s group of about 50 was conducted by Mrs. Mabel Weaver of Glendale, assisted by Miss Alice Rouleau of Visalia. This work developed the need of a comprehensive course of study for children throughout the year. In discussing the matter a committee evolved to work on such a course to cover musical, literary, artistic, religious and spiritual ideals of youth. Different ones particularly qualified volunteered their services, as for instance, Miss Julia Goldman of Honolulu, with her art work; Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler with her education work; Mrs. Cooper with her collection of stories of the lives of spiritual teachers and especially the stories given by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, etc.

Opposition on the part of local Gey­serville people was turned into appreciation and cooperation. The Chamber of Commerce entertained the entire Summer School at dinner one evening. Next year they request that we designate one day as Chamber of Commerce Day, joining them and local residents in a picnic at the ocean, where they will conduct an abalone catch, cooking them for dinner, the classes to be carried on during the day in some beautiful wooded grove.

Greatest of all the successes of the school, perhaps, is the elevating and uniting effect it is having in the various Assemblies, where a new spirit is becoming apparent of tolerance and active cooperation. In visiting an Assembly and discussing the work of the groups—remark was made that with such and such a person working so diligently and constructively great good should be accomplished. The member of the Assembly replied, “Yes, but you do not realize that this person formerly showed little activity. It is only since the Summer School that he has been so active.” This new inspirational force which the gathering of friends at Geysev­erville has given, is the cause of the new activity in the Assemblies and the success of our Teaching Work.

NEW MEETING PLACE IN CHICAGO

The Spiritual Assembly of Chicago announces that it has taken a new Bahá’í office in 116 South Michigan Avenue, where visitors from other cities will receive a most cordial welcome. The telephone is Franklin 0336.

PUBLISHING ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Publishing Committee reports the following new titles and reprints:

The Reality of Man—a compilation from Words of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá explaining the nature of soul, mind and spirit, and the principles of man’s spiritual evolution. Bound in strong paper, cover, size 4 1/2 by 8 1/4 inches. Per copy, $0.50.

The Bahá’í Movement—an outline of the aims and purpose of the Cause, with a statement on Bahá’í administration and representative quotations from the Writings, reprinted from material approved by the Guardian for The Bahá’í World. Bound in paper. $0.10. Note: The Committee expresses the hope that Assemblies will order this and other pamphlet literature now published or to be published, in quantities of 100 copies or more, and that individual believers wishing single copies of all pamphlets will order them from their own or some nearby Assembly. The filling of such small orders involves a loss on each transaction, and prevents the Publishing Committee from creating surplus funds for the benefit of the National Assembly.

The Dawn of the New Day—a new edition of the “Blue No. 9” compilation which has been so helpful for many years. Sold only in lots of 100 copies. Per hundred, $3.00.

sembliness following the Master’s Ascension. The new edition contains excerpts from recently discovered Tablets revealed to the local Assembly. The body of the book contains selected addresses delivered by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá at Columbia University and other public meetings during His stay in New York during 1912. Per copy, $0.50.

The Publishing Committee will be pleased to fill any orders received for the following books, not part of the Bahá’í literature but of interest to believers.

The Spirit of Reality, compiled by the Rev. J. Storer—a new edition of “Thoughts That Build,” many copies of which have been purchased by believers. The new edition contains even more quotations from Bahá’í Writings than did the original volume. This work consists of daily readings, gathered from the world’s spiritual literature. It makes an excellent gift to non-Bahá’ís. No discount can be given on the price of, per copy, $1.00.

Religions and Philosophies in America, edited by Julius Weber—a statement on each of more than fifty religions and philosophical movements in America, contributed by a representative of each organization. The Bahá’í Cause is represented by the article published in The Bahá’í World. This work will be found exceedingly useful as a guide to American religious belief, in all its contemporary complexity. Per copy, $2.50.

Orders for the above books may be sent to Bahá’í Publishing Committee, P. O. Box 348, Grand Central Station, New York City.

BAHÁ’I NEWS LETTERS WANTED

In order to complete its files, the Publishing Committee would like to obtain Bahá’í News Letters Nos. 21, 22, 23 and 31, and would appreciate an opportunity to obtain them from any believer or Assembly able to furnish duplicates.

We’re men to study with deep insight God’s holy Words and ponder them in his heart, he will surely realize that their one aim is to so unite the world that the divers peoples on earth may be regarded even as one soul, that the seal of “unto God is all dominion” may be stamped upon the tablet of every heart and that the splendors of losing kindness, of grace and mercy may be shed upon all mankind—Bahá’u’lláh.
All-praise be to God, the adored One, Lord of the seen and unseen, Who from the primal Point caused books and epistles, unnumbered, to be revealed, Whose most exalted Word called unto being all creation from first to last, and Who, consonant with His transcendent wisdom, hath sent, in every age and cycle, His Messenger to revive with the living waters of Divine utterance His faint and withering creatures. He, in truth, is the expounder, the true interpreter; inasmuch as man falleth short and falleth to comprehend that which hath flowed from the Pen of glory and been revealed in His most holy Book. Verily, man needeth at all times a reminder, a guide, an instructor, a teacher. Thus hath God sent forth His Ambassadors, His Prophets and His chosen ones, that these may acquaint the peoples of the world with His purpose in the revealing of His Word and the mission of His Messengers, that all may be made aware of the Divine Trust committed to their charge.

Man is the most potent of talewinans; and naught but a true education hath deprived him of that which is latent within him. With one word He created him, with another guided his steps to the path of true learning, and with still another guarded and preserved his standing and station.

The great Being saith: Consider man even as a mine that holdeth stones of precious beauty, of which education alone revealeth its value and bestoweth its benefit upon mankind.

The world is in turmoil and its agitation waxeth day by day. Its face is turned towards waywardness and irreligion. So grievous shall be its plight that to disclose it now would not be meet and seemly. Many a day shall pass ere it is relieved from its sore travail. And in the fulness of time there shall appear, all of a sudden, that which will cast terror into the very heart of mankind; then and only then shall the divine Standard be unfurled, and the Nightingale of Holiness warble its melody upon the Tree of Life.—Baha'u'llah.

SPIRITUAL AND MATERIAL RESPONSIBILITY

The thought uppermost in the minds of all believers planning to attend the Convention is that they will have the supreme joy and privilege of beholding the Temple edifice.

The first Convention called twenty-three years ago was convened as the "Baha'i Temple Unity"—the first collective purpose adopted by the American believers was this ideal of constructing the Temple. Steadily, throughout the period of a generation of human life, this mighty project has gone forward. In the days and years when the work, from the material point of view, appeared to falter, necessary spiritual transformations were taking place among the friends, our knowledge of the Cause broadened and deepened, our mutual intercourse and associated activities became subject to the new principles of unity, the divine art of consultation was gradually learned, and a Baha'i body capable of erecting the Temple and worthy of administering it grew from the station of the child to that of the adult.

A thousand dreams and aspirations are now close to fulfilment, as the date of this year's Convention draws nigh. The Master's prophecies are being recalled, and Shoghi Effendi's letter, written in the autumn of 1929, upholding a true spiritual ideal for the use of the Temple when completed, is being carefully re-read.

A new and penetrating joy, a more powerful animation, will inspire those who are fortunate enough to convene in the Foundation Hall on May 1. The renewal of teaching, already evidenced by the extraordinary activities initiated by the Teaching Committee this year, the extension of the influence of Baha'i literature, the consolidation of forces at Green Acre and Geyersville, the increased energy of every local Baha'i community, the larger scope of publicity—all these effects may rightly be anticipated from the fact that the Cause in America has at last faithfully constructed a Mashriqu'l-Adhkar and possesses a visible sign of the new Revelation of the oneness of mankind.

With these tremendous consequences, an increased spiritual and material responsibility must also be assumed, a responsibility laid equally upon every American co-worker of the beloved Guardian. The seeds underground produce no comment—the flowers sprung from the seeds are visible to the world.

One aspect of this responsibility, not the highest but of vital importance through its intimate relation to the development of the spiritual aspects, is our future attitude toward the National Baha'i Fund. Henceforth, that Fund will be called upon not only to make possible steady increases in all recognized Baha'i activity but also to maintain adequately the present Temple edifice and provide for its final completion.

The "Plan of Unified Action" issued by the National Assembly several years ago came as the first attempt to face the material responsibility incurred by a rapidly growing Cause. Since a definite sum was required to proceed with Temple construction plans, that amount was made the objective of the Plan, and by dividing the amount among the number of recognized believers over a three-year period, an average monthly donation from each believer was determined, in the thought that larger donations from some would counterbalance those who could not meet the average assigned.

The suggestion is advanced here that possibly, with respect to the future, our attitude toward the needs of the National Fund can be determined not merely by the financial considerations arising from the total needs of the...
Fund, but also by spiritual considerations based upon the teachings themselves.

The friends are reminded that the Master’s Will and Testament refers to the institution of a method of contributing to the Cause based upon each believer’s actual income. According to this teaching, believers will in future set aside for the Cause a fixed proportion of their income or wealth.

We understand that the application of this teaching, and a full explanation of its details, awaits upon the formation of the Universal House of Justice. Nevertheless nothing seems to make impossible the voluntary adoption of a principle of contributing to the Cause which, in part at least, reflects the spirit of this teaching of Baha’u’llah and the operation of which tends to prepare us for fuller obedience to the Bahá’í’s life of the future.

If, then, believers here and there who fully appreciate the measure of responsibility which must be assumed by all incoming National Assemblies in future can, of their own volition and at any adequate reflection, decide at this time to devote one-nineteenth of their incomes (slightly more than 5 per cent) for use as Bahá’í donations, the effect would not merely be to augment the Fund but also to deepen the spiritual consciousness of the believer himself.

This thought is to be considered entirely in the light of an informal suggestion. It is not an official recommendation of the National Assembly. The virtue of the proposal actually consists in its very informality—its dependence upon entirely voluntary decisions and individual consideration. It compels a measure of self-sacrifice. It connects the soul with one more powerful teaching. If widely adopted, it will tend to usher in an era of greater stability in the work of the Cause in America. Let us try to become true believers in every aspect of life and on every plane. The maturity of the Cause in America will only be attained as its members adopt responsible plans and so shape their lives that the plans can be carried through.

GREEN ACRE PROGRAM
July-August, 1931

For more than thirty years, Green Acre, the beautiful community situated on the banks of the Piscataqua River at Eliot, Maine, has maintained a platform for the study and discussion of spiritual and social principles making for the unity of religions, classes, races and creeds.

The program announced for the summer of 1931 will appeal to many speakers who desire to make their vacation days contribute more than physical recreation.

Program
(To be amplified in later announcements)

1 Round Table Discussion Groups

Only those who are contemplating serious study are urged to enroll in these classes. Two hours each morning will be devoted to lecture and study but all persons attending classes are urged to use the study hall, and the books to be found there, at other times of the day.

It will not be necessary to buy a text book but a limited number of worthwhile books will be for sale and it may prove more convenient to buy one or two books.

Course 1—“The influence of mysticism upon modern thinking.” July 6-17.

The purpose of this course is to develop the connection between mystical knowledge and scientific knowledge. Special emphasis will be put upon the intellectual basis of modern mysticism and its place in scientific thinking.

Mon., Wed., Fri., 10-12 A. M.
Lecturer to be announced.

Course 2—“Foundations of modern science,” July 7-18.

A short time will be given to the history of science and then some of the more important laws and concepts will be studied in detail. The relation between the mystical ideal and the scientific ideal will be developed.

Tues., Thurs., Sat., 10-12 A. M.
Prof. Glenn Shook.

Course 3—“Psychology and religion.”
Aug. 3-14.

A brief study of some of the modern schools and their effect upon religious thinking. The following will be considered: Humanism, Behaviorism, Idealism, Positivism and Naturalism.

Mon., Wed., Fri., 10-12 A. M.
Miss Easterbrook.

Course 4—“Modernism in religious thinking.”

This course will show the tendency of religion to accommodate itself to modern needs in serving humanity, as illustrated by conditions in India, China, Europe, America and other parts of the world. These studies will revolve around the question, what do such conditions imply as to the Divine Immanence and the need of a Universal Educator?

Tues., Thurs., Sat., 10-12.
Mr. Louis G. Gregory.

Course 5—“Teaching.”
Aug. 28-Aug. 31.

This course will provide means for intensive study of present day problems in the teaching of the uni-universal principles of Bahá'u'lláh, the Divine educator of this day. A number of well known Bahá'í teachers will contribute to this work but the complete program is not ready for this notice.

A continuation of Course 5.

A critical study of the philosophies of the great religions. One object of the course is to bring out the difference between materialistic and spiritual philosophy, humanism and the Divine solution of the problem of evil, naturalistic and spiritual philosophy, etc. The relation between the teachings of the Divine Manifestations and the new spiritual philosophy of modern scholars will also be considered.

Tues., Thurs., Sat., 10-12 A. M. Mr. Albert R. Vail.

II Evening lectures.

These evening talks and lectures are for lecture students and friends.

III Conferences.

1. "Teaching." (Date to be announced.)
2. "International relations." This conference is conducted entirely by the young people. Mr. Barton in charge. July 24, 25, 26.

IV The writers' club.

Anyone who has material in MS form or who can devote some time to writing may become a member of this club. Papers will be criticized by members of the club and by the director in charge.

V The speakers' club.
The purpose of this club is to train members in public speaking.

VI Sunday services.
Sunday morning, 11 A. M.
In general this is a devotional service.

Sunday evening, 7:30 P. M.
Sunday evenings will be given to general gatherings at the Fellowship House in the interest of quiet enjoyment of a little good music, poetry reading and other simple forms of entertainment. The social value of these meetings is held to be of most importance. Light refreshments will be served.

There will be a few special entertainments as follows:

The friends of Green Acre residing in Eliot and Portsmouth have recently organized an Arts and Crafts club and anyone in Eliot this summer may become a member if interested. A fee of $1.00 is charged for membership.

We hope to have Miss Martha Root, the International Bahá'í teacher, with us in Green Acre the first part of July. Everyone is looking forward to her visit with the greatest interest and pleasure.

Further details of the program and necessary changes will be communicated to the friends as soon as possible.

The following schedule of prices for room and board has been adopted by the Trustees.

Green Acre Inn. From $15.00 to $25.00 a week, room and board.

Cottages. From $8.50 to $10.00 a week, room and board.

Children under twelve years, half price.

Other available accommodations to be announced.

As the entire program is planned to further the progress of the Revelation of Bahá'u'lláh we urge all Assemblies to cooperate with us in making Green Acre the "local center of the devotional, humanitarian, social and spiritual activities of the Cause."

We have but to reread the words of our Guardian (Bahá'í Administration pages 8 and 121) to realize our sacred obligation and privilege.

Sincerely,

G. A. SHOOK,

3.—Second New England District Conference:

The regional Teaching Conference of New England held in Worcester, Mass., January 17th and 18th was very successful, effective for service, and free from all traces of inharmony. Its spiritual atmosphere was impressive. Those present came from various cities and villages representing all the New England States save Rhode Island.

The evening preceding the conference an informal reception was held for the delegates and friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Tarbell. Music and the film showing part of the Brooklyn work of `Abdu'l-Bahá varied the program of social commingling.

The chairman of the conference was Mrs. Florence Morton who drew a striking picture of the world and the needs of mankind. At such a time the greatest gift of God is a Prophet, one who has a full understanding and reveals laws for humanity which will establish unity and peace. She quoted a thought from Carlisle that when one knows a spiritual truth one is stronger than the whole world. It therefore behooves us to deepen our faith in Bahá'í teaching and His program for human relief. She ended her address of welcome with assurances of welcome from `Abdu'l-Bahá that the faithful would be guided and protected.

Dr. Wilgar L. Jones spoke on Faith, which he showed was the stability of the business world and the basis of success in all affairs of life both material and spiritual. He urges intensive study of the teachings and use of the prayers.

Mrs. Janet H. Bolton spoke of the founding of the Portsmouth Bahá'í Assembly which in three years numbered twenty-three persons including a Jew, an American Indian, seven colored and seventeen Yankees. The principal activity which led to growth was luncheon and dinner parties to spread the Cause. One such dinner party resulted in seven openings for a Bahá'í speaker to address groups. Bahá'ís belong to nearly all the various organizations of that city and so have many contacts. They use the rooms at the Y. W. C. A. for their weekly and public meetings.

Mrs. Janet M. Bolton spoke of the work among isolated believers and the need of encouraging those who are so placed. She also read letters from a number of them.

Mr. Philip Marangela spoke eloquently on the Nineteen Day Feast and its threefold nature.

1. To attune the souls of the believers with the descent of the Holy Spirit.

2. To consider and plan teaching activities and human service.

3. To cultivate sociability in its true sense among the friends.

Mr. H. H. Tarbell gave an account of the social contacts and home circle services of the Worcester friends. They entertain informally without set program yet with the purpose of attracting souls to the Cause. They thus contact their neighbors and also have classes to study the teachings.

Mrs. Harold Bowditch, chairman of the Boston Assembly, spoke of the way in which the Boston friends had contacted and attracted a number of interesting foreigners. One of them declared that only among Bahá'ís had he found in America the true Christian spirit.

Mr. Louis G. Gregory was asked to sum up about the various speakers and to tell about contacts and teaching experiences in various other sections. He laid special emphasis upon the organization of study classes for the youth, contacts with liberals as individuals in groups, striving by a wise adjustment to bend every occasion to the end of spreading the Cause and counting the spiritual graces and heavenly blessings through harmony. Ordinary beings accept their environment. Men of genius transform their environment. This the Bahá'ís can do through the unseen Powers.

Public Meeting. A well-advertised public meeting was the contact of the Convention with the city of Worcester.

Dr. John Herman Randall, director of World Unity Foundation, was the speaker and Mr. Gregory was chairman.

4.—The Second Northern Ohio Conference.

The second Northern Ohio Conference was held in Cleveland at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Martin on Sunday, January the 25th. Representatives from Akron and Pittsburgh were present.

The program was as follows:

1. What is the work of the local Spiritual Assembly?—Mrs. R. L. Brooker, Akron.

2. What is Unity; Equality; Fellowship?—Mr. A. H. Martin, Cleveland.

3. How shall we know true Guidance?—Mrs. Dale S. Cole, Cleveland.

4. How shall we appeal to the youth?—Mr. Luther Johnson, Akron.

5. How shall we start new groups in new territory?—Mr. Harlan F. Ober, Pittsburgh.

The Conference was happy to have present Mr. Louis G. Gregory who contributed generously to the discussions.

Mr. Harlan F. Ober addressed a public meeting Friday evening preceding the Conference, and five follow-up meetings were held at which Mr. Gregory spoke on various phases of the Bahá'í Cause.

5.—Letter from Juliet Thompson.

Struggling with our problems in our separate assemblies it is difficult to realize until we begin to travel from group to group that in reality an indestructible nucleus of unity has already been established in our country. Our beloved Master has said: "Love is the essential bond between the realities of things throughout divine creation."

In my recent trip I perceived that bond—that indestructible bond—uncovered, as we all met to study and teach and thus forget everything but reality.

First I went to Geneva where I found such refreshment as I have not experienced for years. I arrived at the happy moment when an inter-assembly conference was being held. I found this conference more than stimulating—inspiring. In it there was a spirit that swept me back in feeling to the dawn of the Cause in the West, when I used to meet in Paris with the younger generation of that time—when we were all aflame with the consciousness of the World Redeemer of this age and with our resolve to spread our wondrous knowledge of His Presence in the world.

From Geneva I went to Binghamton. My heart still melts as I remember the spirit of love with which I was received there. "Love" our dear Master said, "is the Mystery of Divine Revelation." As I relive those days in Binghamton and from this distance view the purity of that group, I wonder if its secret is not the hunger for the inner significances of the Divine Teachings.

In Rochester though the group is small, one feels that life which is the sign of the new spiritual generation—the "rising generation" which Shoghi Effendi says is "sure to witness great and vast achievements." The state of New York is a fascinating field in which to work. So strong is the desire of this rising generation to spread the Teachings, that I feel this moment is the most propitious we have ever known for teachers to go forth and teach these young and enthusiastic groups. I have found that the command from the Spiritual Center, now the Guardian, is identical with confirmation; as Baha'u'llah says "My Command is binding; have thou no doubt." Since the command is, at this moment to teach, without doubt doors will open to the teacher and the Word uttered through him or through her will, inevitably, create.

Our beloved Master, 'Abdu'l-Bahá, has made in His Divine Plan promises to the different sections of this country. To the Northeastern States He promises that a "mirror" will appear, and the Middle West He designates as "the heart." Certainly in Ohio a Heart is beating. In Cleveland which is an old and large assembly, I found hospitality and love never to be forgotten. One incident is outstanding: A large meeting had been planned for a certain evening by a colored believer, a woman of distinction, and with the warmth of self-forgetfulness and with perfect poise led the meeting. Her spirit brought to my mind the spirit of the great Persian sufferers for the Cause.

In Akron is a very alive and united group founded by one of the old believers of a most liberal and active type. At a beautiful meeting I attended there I met some especially distinguished colored friends.

Of Columbus 'Abdu'l-Bahá has prophesied glorious things: a great fire. He said would be ignited in Columbus and the prophecy has now been fulfilled. The Columbus group consists of colored and white believers of whom it can truly be said they are one soul in different bodies—and the result is spiritual power. This group too is centered on the spiritual core of the teachings, the discovery of which brings the miracle of unity. So great was the ardor of the Columbus group and their desire to assist in the building of the plan of Administration that they formed a temporary committee. Since they have done so their consciousness of unity has increased in an interesting way. I was not present at the formation of this tentative assembly being in Dayton at the time but I attended the meeting where the officers were elected. The spirit that reigned in this meeting was sublime in its simplicity and humanity.

In Dayton, too, there are brilliant souls and these also formed a temporary committee aware that the legal election cannot take place before next April but realizing that by this preparatory action they will increase their solidarity and enthusiasm. A number of people were confirmed and added to the Dayton group. I cannot resist mentioning a very young couple, the wife seventeen, the husband nineteen, who with the wonderful spiritual clarity which characterizes the new generation, accepted the Cause instantaneously, the young wife saying, "Even although I am too young to legally become a member of the local assembly, I long to—must—serve on it. What shall I do?" It was suggested that these two begin to form a young people's group in Dayton.

This, my dear friends, is just a fraction of what I have witnessed on my trip. To go out to teach at this time when our beloved Guardian has given the command to teach, is to enter into the Valley of Astonishment, where one plunges into a world of new laws so different to the laws of that world where "feeble wisdom" holds sway. In this new world it is perfectly clear that the password is Obedience—obedience to our beloved Guardian—instant, exact, and complete obedience—to the divine plan of Administration—obedience to the Law of Love. From what I have experienced among these beautiful groups of believers in God's Cause I have realized that if our teachers should now start forth each one a torch of the new Love, there would soon be a conflagration in this country.

Devotedly, in His Service,

movement, which aims at the establishment of religion and universal peace among mankind. Miss Root in an interview with a representative of the Rangoon Times stated that the movement started in Persia about the middle of the nineteenth century, its founder being Baha'u'llah and it has since been spreading with wonderful rapidity not only in the land of its birth, but throughout the world, in both Eastern and Western lands. It was in a restaurant in Pittsburgh, U. S. A. that the Bahá'í movement was first brought to the notice of Miss Root. She purchased every book she could lay hands on relating to the subject and for two years devoted her leisure hours to the study of this movement which had made such an appeal to her. She was connected in a journalistic capacity with a number of the leading American journals, when she decided to dedicate her career to the spread of the Bahá'í movement. She first visited Chicago and Washington and then set sail for Japan and China. In the latter country she spent a year learning the language and speaking in the Universities. So successful was her mission that a Bahá'í University was established in Peking. She next visited Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania and South Africa in turn, and then toured Egypt and Palestine. In Europe where she spent four and a half months, Miss Root lectured in practically all the leading Universities. Her tour in India was a very successful one, and after Burma, she proceeds to Singapore, and then once again to China and Japan. Finally she will go back to America after a sojourn of nearly eight years.

"The Bahá'í teaching," remarked Miss Root, "offers a practical philosophy which meets the present day spiritual needs of humanity. People interested in the growing need and desire for harmony and brotherhood between the followers of the different doctrines and creeds cannot fail to find in this movement truths of deep interest and those who are interested in the comparative study of religion will find this subject worthy of much thought." I am deeply convinced that if the Annual Convention of the friends in America, as well as the National Spiritual Assembly, desire to become potent instruments for the speedy realization of the Beloved's fondest hopes for the future of that country, they should endeavor, first and foremost, to exemplify, in an increasing degree, to all Bahá'ís and to the world at large the high ideals of fellowship and service which Bahá'u'lláh and the beloved Master set before them.

Again I earnestly appeal to every one of you, and renew my only request with all the ardor of my conviction, to make, before and during the coming Convention, yet another effort, this time more spontaneous and selfless than before, and endeavor to approach your task—the election of your delegates, as well as your national and local representatives—with that purity of spirit that can alone obtain our Beloved's most cherished desire. Let us recall His explicit and often-repeated assurances that every Assembly elected in that rarified atmosphere of selflessness and detachment is, in truth, appointed of God, that its verdict is truly inspired, and that one and all should submit to its decision unreservedly and with cheerfulness.

Hitherto the National Convention has been primarily called together for the consideration of the various circumstances attending the election of the National Spiritual Assembly. I feel, however, that in view of the expansion and the growing importance of the administrative sphere of the Cause, the general sentiments and tendencies prevailing among the friends, and the signs of increasing interdependence among the National Spiritual Assemblies throughout the world, the assembled accredited representatives of the American believers should exercise not only the vital and responsible right of electing the National Assembly, but should also fulfill the functions of an enlightened, consultative and cooperative body that will enrich the experience, enhance the prestige, support the authority, and assist the deliberations of the National Spiritual Assembly.

Regarding this forthcoming Convention, I feel that the dominating purpose inspiring the assembled friends, delegates and visitors alike, should be a twofold one. The first is a challenge to the individual, the second a collective responsibility. The one seeks to reinforce theotive power of our spiritual activities, the second aims at raising the standard of administrative efficiency so vitally needed at this advanced stage of our work.

—Shoghi Effendi
ANNUAL COMMITTEE REPORTS 1930-1931

TEACHING

This year it has been the privilege of the National Teaching Committee to function at a time when the Cause has entered upon a new cycle of growth. Not only in our rising Temple may we find explanation of a more dynamic motion. Due to a gradual deepening in the knowledge of the Administration we seem also to be approaching a new understanding of group functioning which has released energies, promoted singleness of purpose, stimulated efficient and untiring cooperation.

A flow of letters from every part of the country assures us that teaching has indeed come to be regarded as "the paramount issue," the responsibility of which the American believers are sharing together in a widespread way.

Report of the Inter-assembly Conferences (by Mr. R. C. Collison.)

One of the major activities of the Committee this year has been the stimulation and development of inter-assembly cooperation in teaching. A tentative plan for such co-operation was presented at Green Acre in August and met with enthusiastic response. After definite plans were presented to the assemblies, the inter-assembly districts with one exception reported at least one conference. Two or more conferences have been held in the New England, Northern Ohio, Illinois-Wisconsin, Los Angeles and San Francisco districts.

Although the plan is still in the experimental stage we believe that a few things have been accomplished, especially on the West Coast.

(1) More friendly relations and greater unity have been developed among the believers in each district. The friends in California write that the conference idea is developing fast in that state with bi-monthly meetings of the inter-assembly committees and frequent conferences of the believers.

(2) Isolated believers have become part of a working group in the Cause.

(3) There has been a definite increase in the number of Bahá'í study groups.

(4) The development of new teachers and how to give them practical experience in teaching is receiving an increasing amount of attention.

(5) The development of group thinking and action. One of our national teachers says that the world is organized for efficiency yet the whole social structure is rotting. We are not striving primarily for efficiency but rather for unity and the new social conception based upon it.

In a recent Committee letter sent out to the inter-assembly representatives and secretaries, a number of questions were asked to determine the actual accomplishments of the district conferences in the activities of the individual assemblies. Only a few reports have been as yet received. The Lansing, Michigan, Assembly has doubled its membership during the past year and a weekly study group formed after the fall conference, numbers twenty-one. The Urbana group holds three weekly study meetings for adults, youth and children. The Illinois-Wisconsin Inter-assembly Committee has sent their assemblies a list of thirty-two available teachers within the district for small group or public meetings. A number of these teachers have served in neighboring assemblies with encouraging results. We are still waiting however for information from any part of the country on organized inter-assembly teaching circuits in regular operation. We can but feel this to be a most important goal and that the motion resulting from this winter's efforts will gain momentum and go farther and faster in the coming year.

Survey of work done by traveling teachers. The increased demands of an expanding teaching program for teachers—to open up new territory through pioneer work, to do follow-up work, to address public audiences, or to establish temporary residence in a place for the guidance of a young group—have been far beyond our ability to meet. We could have used an army of trained teachers. Then we are all having to face together the problem of insufficient funds.

The openings which have had to be disregarded because of these two limitations have been a spur to us to appeal through the Baha'i News, through the inter-assembly conferences and individual correspondence, for the training of new teachers. We have urged those friends with an untried capacity to step forward and join the knowledge of the Cause by study through the outlines correspondence course, and study classes which are a preliminary to practical speaking and first flights into inter-assembly openings. The subject matter and the training school have been provided, and an increasing number are arising to the call. But as Ruhi Effendi has said in a letter to the Teaching Committee, "Concerning the creation of new teachers, Shoghi Effendi says that this is gradual and can come about only as the result of thorough training. This training has to take the form, first, of a thorough study of the teachings, and then of actual practice in the field."

To fill the waiting emergency our devoted band of Bahá'í teachers have arisen to promote the Cause of God over a wide area with extraordinary zeal and confirming sacrifice.

In November Miss Fanny Knobloch traveled south as a Bahá'í teacher stopping at Savannah, St. Augustine (where she addressed two hundred students in a colored industrial school), Fernandina, Jacksonville, where she spoke in a Universalist church. Miss Knobloch arrived in Miami November 22nd to be greeted by Mrs. Olive Kretz with whom she worked for the Cause in the months that followed.

Early in January the Miami Assembly was formed. Three weeks later Miss Knobloch wrote "Our Wednesday afternoon study class is increasing in numbers . . . we are reaching out into Coral Gables, Redwood and other suburbs. We are arranging for a series of public talks using the press as well as personal invitations on the part of the believers."

Miss Knobloch will continue her splendid service in Florida until April 8th when she will leave for Flint, Michigan, where pioneer work has been carried on with noteworthy results since fall. This territory has been opened by Mrs. Howard Ives, Mrs. Greenleaf and Mrs. Grace Ober who on successive visits have helped to bring together a study class there and spread the knowledge of the Cause extensively throughout the entire section.

The Illinois-Wisconsin district has been fortunate in having the undivided services of Mr. Albert Vail who because of the needs of the Temple Program Committee has concentrated upon this fertile field of Bahá'í Work. (Reported elsewhere.) On a visit there in November Mr. Louis Gregory spoke in Wilmette, Madison, Milwaukee, where he gave the Bahá'í Message to 200 students at the State Normal School. Later he gave four addresses at the University of Illinois, Sociological Dept. This region is particularly blessed with teachers, Mrs. Ruth Moffett, Mr. Agnew, Mr. Windust, Miss Easterbrook are among those mentioned as having conducted meetings in neighboring assemblies. Mrs. Moffett has been doing active work in Milwaukee having made ten visits to this city since January 10. She says: "There is an awakening in Milwaukee such as there has not been for many years. Many people of capacity are being attracted. I was asked to go back to the Wisconsin.
State Teacher's College the 4th time to give the Message to several different groups. There were from forty to sixty-five in each group." In Chicago, Urbana, Racine and other regional centers Mrs. Moffett has been successful in her contacts with outside organizations such as colleges, women's clubs, religious groups.

Three groups in the southern Ohio district have increased their membership to nine or more since fall. These new assemblies are Cincinnati, Columbus and Dayton. Miss Juliet Thompson, who spent several weeks in this section before Christmas (see special report) is to return there soon. Cincinnati, Dayton and Cleveland were visited by Louis Gregory. The New York State assemblies have been fortunate in receiving visits from these teachers and from Mrs. Ruth Moffett. Although the Washington, and the New England districts have not this year been part of the route of a traveling teacher, with the exception of Mr. Louis Gregory, visits and talks have been reported from Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford, Dr. Genevieve Coy, Mr. Allan McDaniel, Mr. Harlan Ober and others.

Report of the activities of Oreella Rexford with follow-up teachers. The first part of this record describing Miss Rexford's summer activities in Colorado Springs and the account of her two Baha'i lectures there on Oct. 15th and 16th, and her work in Denver was published by Baha'i News in February. For the sake of continuity will refer back to her report to the Teaching Committee of December 16th, in which she said that in Colorado Springs she gave the Baha'i Message twice to over three hundred people at the conclusion of her lectures. In the carrying on of a Baha'i class of about fifty Miss Rexford was assisted by Mrs. Ruth Brandt of California. Mrs. Brandt has given devoted service in training the persons attracted by Miss Rexford's classes throughout the entire winter.

Of her work in Denver Miss Rexford said: "I gave the Message in Denver to the largest audience I have addressed on the Cause for many years. The Denham Theatre seats about eighteen hundred people. Every seat was taken at both lectures and people were standing and turned away. This was the result of six weeks of continuous advertising of these lectures at my public lectures. Five thousand people had signed tickets asking to be notified of these lectures and ten thousand invitations were sent out as well as advertising it in the paper."

CONVENTION REPORTS

This issue of Baha'i News contains, for the information of delegates and believers generally, the reports rendered to the National Spiritual Assembly by the committees of that body. They are presented as part of the Annual Report of the National Assembly. The activities of each committee will also be discussed in Convention. It is hoped that each delegate will give careful consideration to these published Reports before the Convention is convened, so that the ensuing deliberation may be based on full knowledge of the year's activity.

"The next morning a class of seventy-five convened . . . an audience of four hundred turned out for the evening class." Miss Rexford taught this class for two evenings assisted by Mrs. Brandt when she was relieved by the arrival of Mrs. Beulah Lewis who had been sent by the West Coast Teaching Committee.

Miss Rexford continues, "On December 7th and 8th I gave the Message to crowded houses in Oklahoma City at the conclusion of my work here. The auditorium was crowded to capacity, at both meetings about seven hundred were present, many standing and others turned away. Mrs. Edwina Powell arrived in time to be present at the lectures. . . . There were some very sincere souls attracted and we should have an assembly here."

"Leaflets on 'What is a Baha'i' were given out to all interested. Four hundred Baha'u'llah and the New Era were sold in Denver and seventy-five in Oklahoma City and more are ordered."

Of the follow-up work of Mrs. Beulah Lewis, Mrs. Brandt writes: "She arrived at 6:30 P. M. and at eight o'clock was on the platform, endearing herself to her audience and welding a bond of sympathy with them which has grown stronger with each succeeding week."

With lectures equally divided between Denver and Colorado Springs and making the trips weekly between the two cities, time seemed full enough before clubs of both cities began asking Mrs. Lewis to speak before their organizations."

Among the organizations before which Mrs. Lewis has spoken, several have asked for the direct Message, and all announced to their assembled groups that she was regularly engaged in Teaching the Baha'i Cause. At the Rotary and Woman's Club luncheons with three hundred present she was placed before the microphone and gave the direct Baha'i Message to the entire Rocky Mountain region. . . ."

Mrs. Robert Lee Moffett followed Mrs. Lewis for nineteen days in December. She reports as follows: Public classes were held in the center of the business district each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings at ten o'clock. She spoke to a group of about fifty for an hour then conducted an open forum until twelve.

At two o'clock each day a more intensive study class was held in the spacious living room of the Society of Arts, a beautiful old home to which about thirty went regularly.

About two hundred attended the evening classes in the Metropolitan Building. A forum discussion followed these classes. Thursday and Friday of each week were spent in Colorado Springs. . . . In all forty-four classes were held in Denver in the nineteen days. Many people of capacity were deeply attracted. A large and active Baha'i study group and future assembly is now established in Denver through the devoted services of the above mentioned teachers. The report of the subsequent visit first of Mr. Willard Hatch, then of Martha Root to Denver is yet to be received.

BAHA'I News is the official organ of the American National Spiritual Assembly. Its cost is defrayed by the National Baha'i Fund and copies are distributed free of charge to recognized believers throughout the United States and Canada, and to National and Local Spiritual Assemblies in other lands.

News articles and reports of general Baha'i interest and value are requested from Assemblies, National Committees and other representatives of the Cause.

The Guardian's statement concerning the purpose and scope of this publication can be found in the volume entitled "Baha'i Administration."
Mrs. Edwina Powell took Miss Rexford's place in Oklahoma City early in December where she remained for four months. She reports that a small group of confirmed believers are applying for an assembly and that there are many more interested inquirers.

Mrs. Powell has recently made an interesting contact with the Indian Mission at McCloud where she was able to present the Bahá’í Cause to the Indian minister who is in charge and speak to the children in the Sunday School. She is reading Bahá’í literature and seems attracted to the Cause.

In February Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf who had been for some time actively engaged in teaching work in Chicago and its general vicinity, followed Orcella Rexford’s classes in New Orleans, where again a large number of people had been brought into contact with the Bahá’í teachings by means of public lectures. A study class has been formed although owing to a Roman Catholic population of perhaps seventy-five per cent and tests in the way of local prejudice the number of attracted individuals has not been large. Mrs. Powell has concluded her stay in Oklahoma City and is now following the campaign of Miss Rexford in San Antonio, Texas. From San Antonio, Miss Rexford went to Dallas.

Mr. Louis Gregory has recently taken a trip South, where he says it is easy to teach the Cause because people are looking for the second coming of Christ. After two weeks of teaching in Washington and Baltimore Mr. Gregory went to Lynchburg, Virginia, where he spoke on Comparative Religion at the Lynchburg College, held meetings at the Y. M. C. A. and spoke in the Baptist Seminary. At Charleston, S. C., he held meetings in five churches, spoke at the Catholic High School, and the Booklovers Club. At Bricks, N. C., he held two meetings at a white college, later at the State College of Virginia.

This tentative survey of Bahá’í teaching work has been prepared from such material as has already been sent us by the friends and does not include for the most part material that has already occurred in the News Letter or the report of work actually under the jurisdiction of the West Coast Teaching Committee. The work of Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler has been given in part in an earlier issue. We are looking forward to hearing Martha Root’s report of her work in this country from the Convention floor.

Outline Bureau. The Outline Bureau has continued to handle the Correspondence Course and study outlines published before the last Convention. During the last year a study outline, "Material and Divine Civilization," was completed of which about 200 copies have been sold. It contains the Social and Economic teachings of the Cause. It consists of ten pages of references with bibliography and sells for fifteen cents. The outline on "The Bahá’í Teachings concerning Christ" has been reprinted, selling for ten cents.

We are making a special offer of a Bahá’í study kit in a manila folder for one dollar postpaid. It consists of the Bahá’í Correspondence Course of twenty lessons formerly selling for one dollar, and study outlines on "Material and Divine Civilization," "The Bahá’í Teachings concerning Christ," "New Light on the Scriptures" and "Material and Divine Civilization." These study helps will be on sale in the Foundation Hall.

We hope soon to publish a short study course for beginners in the Cause which will be suitable for groups attracted and informally organized by our traveling teachers. This course will be based upon a small number of books so that the required books and mimeographed lessons can be sold complete for not more than $1.50. The exact form and content of this course will be determined by the experience and judgment of our traveling teachers.

This self-supporting activity of the Teaching Committee now has a bank account of sixty-seven dollars and no debts.

All publications of the Bureau are now being handled by Mrs. R. C. Collins, 681 Castle Street, Geneva, New York.

INTER-RACIAL AMITY

The work of the year had an auspicious beginning with the Portsmouth-Green Acre Conference of August. The city of the open door was represented by its mayor who both in his official capacity and in a personal way through his ownership of the Portsmouth Herald, has for many years been very friendly to Green Acre. Workers for amity found an atmosphere of racial justice and religious freedom. The well-known ideals of Green Acre are happily blended with the noble traditions of Portsmouth. Scientific and spiritual arguments for racial understanding, stories of the life of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, the youth’s forum with its strong faith and clear vision, the contribution of the colored race to American culture and achievement, the spiritual basis of amity, the improvement of conditions due to broadening sympathies and the dynamic ideals and standards of Bahá’u’lláh were among the thoughts which found eloquent expression. The various sessions were divided between the two communities.

New York, the largest Bahá’í community, has led in the amity work of the year. The first effort was the conference held in November with representatives of the National Urban League and the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People cooperating with the Bahá’ís. A number of white friends who came from other cities found hospitable shelter in the homes of some of the colored residents, giving fine opportunities for teaching. About twenty addresses were made during the sessions, the seriousness of which was relieved by many social gatherings, as well as music. The social, economic and spiritual aspects of race relations and the program and message of Bahá’u’lláh as the one great solution of all problems of this nature, were among the features. These meetings made a profound impression upon those in attendance and the photograph and report of these conferences were given wide publicity by the press.

The third effort was the Christmas entertainment of white and colored children by the young people's group of New York, already described in a former number of Bahá’í News. The fourth great occasion was the amity conferences of March, in which the Urban League again cooperated with the Bahá’ís in the presentation of a most attractive program. Mr. Samuel A. Allen had a seed planted in his heart by 'Abdu'l-Bahá when as a student at Howard University he heard the memorable address of 1912. This is recalled now when he, as the industrial secretary of a great welfare organization, responds so nobly to the service of the Divine Cause. He was chairman at the time when the problem of economics was considered, addresses being made by Mrs. Ford, Mrs. Mathews and Mr. and Mrs. Willard McKay. At the Bahá’í Center, addresses of unusual eloquence and power were delivered by Mr. Horace Holley and Dr. Leslie Pinckney Hill, principal of the Cheyney Normal School of Pennsylvania, on the Value of Education. A pleasing feature was the singing of Negro Spirituals by the Business Men's Quintette led by Dr. M. V. Boutté. An explanation of the motif and explanation of these delightful strains was also given.

The Wilmette Assembly has carried on its usual amity activities during the current year with our devoted brother, Dr. Zia M. Bagdadi, as the principal instrument of service. The Illinois Wisconsin regional conference featured this particular line of service with addresses by Dr. Bagdadi and Mr. Gregory. Dr. Bagdadi has reached very progressive groups of colored people in Chicago, Kenosha and Evanston. In the last city he had the finest address to the Education and Welfare Association conducted by Miss Bessie M. Garrison who has written most enthusiastically of the aid given her by both Dr. Bagdadi and Mr. Vail. Mrs. True is their regular inspired teacher.

Reports from the far west tell of the first inter-racial amity dinner given by the Bahá'ís of Pasadena, Calif., at which one hundred and twenty persons were seated. Elloquent addresses were made by Mrs. French, Mrs. Ransom-Kehler and others. It was avowedly Bahá'í and the confirmationained upon us," says the report in part.

The Seattle, Wash., friends ever so active, held their ninth peace and amity conference in October, with the Unitarian churches of that city, various peace clubs and the Bahá'í Assembly cooperating. Rev. Dorothy Dyar of the University Church, presided and the program consisted of addresses by Clarence R. Anderson, Esq., on "Race Prejudice as a Cause of Inharmony"; Herbert S. Little, Esq., on "Racial Unity," and Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler on "The Most Great Peace Shall Come." Music was furnished by the choir of Zion Baptist Church and about four hundred persons were in attendance.

During a Southern tour Mr. Gregory gave a talk on the unity of religions to the inter-racial committee of the Y. W. C. A., at Lynchburg, Va. Their study program has included the various religions of the world and they showed deep interest in and appreciation of the Bahá'í message. These noble women are a little nucleus and are quite brave. At Bricks, N. C., the Junior College of the same name held two meetings, one for racial amity and the other to give the Bahá'í message to the faculty and the higher students.

Both these meetings were attended by a white college president who came thirty miles accompanied by a small group of his students. The two races thus meeting upon the plane of reality dined together at both the material and spiritual feasts. When asked whether on not their new human attitude was known, our white friends replied, "We neither conceal nor publish our attitude toward the colored people." To the traveler in the South there are many signs of progress in race relations.

The Washington, D. C., friends have succeeded in organizing a discussion group which includes members of various races, white, black, yellow and red, happily blended in the oneness of humanity. Although not nominally Bahá'í, this group was started by the Bahá'ís and various constructive ideas from the teachings. During these years this is the only effort to organize such a group at the National Capital which is a going concern. That these friends have succeeded where others have failed is without doubt due to the powerful aid and confirmations of Bahá'u'lláh and the instructions and aid of the Master and Guardian. At a very interesting meeting held in February addresses were made by representatives of the colored, white and red races. The tragic life of the aborigines of the continent was graphically portrayed by one of them. It is our hope that the friends in spreading the Cause will not forget those like the Indians who have suffered the most. These monthly meetings are of deep and vital interest to all mankind and will have their influence upon the civilization of the world.

The National Teaching Committee, By: Louis G. Gregory, Amity Secretary.

THE BAHÁ'I MAGAZINE
Editorial Report

The editorial work of the Baha'i Magazine is, as we have stated before, different from other activities in that its history is written from month to month as the magazine is published. Thus the members of the National Spiritual Assembly are familiar with its contents and character, and undoubtedly have kept in close touch with its development. We offer, therefore, the twelve issues as the more important part of this report.

Probably the most definite note of progress the past year has been in the character of articles submitted for publication. At a glance one can see that the contributions to the pages of the magazine have been for the most part distinctly high class to such an extent that more than one scholar of distinction commented on its style. The mother of one of our U. S. Senators said, "What a very well organized and professional looking magazine you are getting out." Consistently and constantly we endeavor to make each issue a balanced number, and to avoid having any one theme too much presented; yet we also seek to avoid any quality or desultoriness, keeping before us always that which is of primary importance, namely, to keep the magazine "distinctly Bahá'í as the official organ of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh," as our Guardian has instructed.

Another note of advancement this year is in the appointment of Contributing Editors to officially represent other countries, their duty being to write articles themselves, but to secure material from others whom they know are capable of contributing the proper and necessary type of material. This is going to greatly enrich the pages of the magazine the coming year, that is, we will have more material about the life and work of the Bahá'ís, especially in the Orient, and thus we will be able to further demonstrate the universal aspects of the Cause. A representative has been appointed in Great Britain, Persia, Egypt, Japan and China.

Large numbers of extra copies of the magazine are sold at different times especially when there appears some outstanding article on timely subjects—for instance, like on Education, Economics, etc., in fact some of the back numbers are entirely exhausted. This indicates a sustained interest by non-Bahá'ís as well as Bahá'ís.

Several libraries in this country have

SECRETARIAT OF THE AMERICAN NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

Address: Baha'i Secretariat, Evergreen Cabin, West Englewood, N. J.

Members: For correspondence with Bahá'ís of the United States and Canada, Alfred E. Lunt; for correspondence with Bahá'ís on other lands, and with non-Bahá'ís in the United States and Canada, Nellie S. French; editor of Baha'i News, Horace Holley; Treasurer of the National Assembly and of the Trustees for the Benefit of the National Spiritual Assembly (Temple and Green Acre Funds) Roy C. Wilhelm; Financial Secretary, Carl Scheffler.
asked for a renewal of their subscription. The magazine is now being placed in the library of a larger number of the more important colleges in the country, institutions both for the white and the colored people. It is gratifying when a renewal is asked for. Through the great generosity of two of the Baha'i friends, the magazine was placed on file last year in some twenty universities in Germany, all those in fact recommended by Martha Root. This year we wondered whether it was the wise thing to continue to send the magazine after the subscriptions had expired, without first knowing definitely if the magazine was being read and wanted. So it was decided recently to write a courteous letter to the various universities making inquiry as to whether they wished the magazine continued. There has not been time to receive many replies, but two have promptly arrived. One merely states, "we would like to have the magazine continued." The other reply is as follows:

"I thank you very much for sending the Baha'i Magazine. It is exhibited in the Oriental Room of the University of Tubingen of which I am the director. I would be thankful if this magazine may continue to be sent, for I wish that my scholars should be acquainted concerning the Baha'i Magazine. I wish my pupils to be thoroughly informed of the contents of this magazine."

(Signed) Prof. Dr. J. W. Hauer.

This letter of course is very encouraging for it shows how the Baha'i Magazine is a teacher, and, being so distinctly Baha'i, the students will become familiar with the Baha'i teachings and the universality of the Cause.

We also have quite a list of libraries in universities in China to which addresses we are sending the magazine since Martha Root was in China.

From many comments on the magazine, we choose a few so that our National Committee may know how the magazine is regarded, and as an evidence that "the service of the friends belongs to God and not to them."

"We beg to thank you for the issues of your magazine. You will be certainly glad to know that the paper is greatly appreciated by our readers, and we hope that you shall be able to continue your gift." (Signed) Miss Josephine Storey, Qbo Vadis Circulating Library, Geneva, Switzerland.

"I subscribe to this magazine because it is a great torch of spiritual light destined to guide humanity unto the gates of the Kingdom of God. No believer who has learned the English language, even to a small degree, can afford to be without this magazine so rich and attractive is it in its articles and subjects." Adin R. Badadi, Irak.

"The ever-increasing excellence of the Baha'i Magazine is a source of pleasure and pride to Baha'i's everywhere. I wish it were possible for us to give it a broader 'audience,' and that we could each subscribe year after year for a "loaning copy." When I am relieved from some of the present financial pressure, I certainly hope to do so again." School of the Little Green Trees, Gesena Koch, California.

"I regret exceedingly being so in arrears in my payments to this most wonderful of all magazines. I would not miss it for the worlds." Ella Meissner.

"This is to tell you how we all find the Star of the West. It is fine and a most precious document, both for devoted believers and for teaching use." Elizabeth Hesse, Paris.

"I look forward to every number of the Star of the West, and I am beginning to feel that in the near future I shall drop my subscription to many magazines for I cannot read them all, and I practically read every word in my Baha'i Magazine... Indeed I read my magazine every day, and I wonder how I ever lived without it." Mrs. Wm. E. Hutton, Denver. (By way of information, this friend is the wife of a wonderful attorney. She was formerly a science teacher in the public schools and a one time pupil of Dr. David Starr Jordan.)

"Enclosed find subscription for the Chinese student, graduate of the Colorado School of Mines. He is a fine young man, and he will enjoy Martha's article on China and other articles." Willard P. Hatch.

"The STAR continues to be better and better. Mrs. Coralie Franklin Cook's article on Prof. J. H. just has been enjoyed very much. I found Mr. Cobb's editorial a really great contribution—so practical, so simple and yet so full of all our needs. I have read it over several times and I intend to read it to others." Loulie Mathews.

"I have loaned my Stars to a Christian Science practitioner who seems to be eager to come into the Cause, and I find each number particularly good and just what I want to pass on to the seeker." Mary S. Coristene.

"Editorial in STAR for January very much appreciated by all because of its practical application. Other articles very, very illuminating. Subscribers now read every word—from cover to cover." Ernest V. Harrison.

"I get the Baha'i Magazine, read it evenings, and send it on to others who as I meet them have many questions to ask." Lydia Holman.

"There are many fine things in your magazine, and I was especially interested in the January article, The Expectation of the Ages by Keith Ransom-Kehler. While I have many of the Baha'i books, I had not seen the prophecies with the scripture verses so clearly stated. Appreciating very much your kindness in sending me the magazine these many months, and wishing you a wide circulation for this wonderful message which the world so much needs." Elizabeth B. Boylan, Hollywood, Calif.

"The last STAR was very interesting with all its foreign letters and news and very illuminating articles. I just love it. And no sooner do I finish reading it than it is circulated widely among inquirers, and so it becomes a great help in teaching." Esther Davis.

"I look forward with joy to each number." Amalie O. Tyler.

"The STAR came—it is too wonderful a magazine for me to find words to describe it. I wish I had any number to distribute to a weary and waiting world. Please mail me an extra copy while you have them." Lillian James.

The illustrations the past year have been greatly enjoyed. In the economies aiming toward the finishing of the Temple, the number of illustrations chargeable to the magazine have been limited to one full page, but friends have kindly donated from time to time the sums necessary to have further illustrations which seemed so necessary in making the magazine modern, readable, vivid and more interesting.

Beginning with the April issue the magazine will carry a new cover. The cover design carried the past year has been appreciated by some, others have thought the real Temple should have been featured. But a large majority liked the cover design as suitable for just that, namely, a cover design—and taken from the viewpoint of the make-up of modern magazines, it has been considered for our particular needs a good design. But the April STAR will carry a new cover.

In conclusion might we just add that we have been greatly encouraged by the increase of renewals over last year and other items of interest set forth in the report of the Business Manager.

For the high quality of material we are able to publish, we owe thanks to many writers who sacrificed their time and energy to contribute. These are all busy people and it is a service of some sacrifice which they render. This fact should be appreciated by all readers of the STAR as it is by the Editors.

Any progress whatsoever along any line is attained because of our Guardian's prayers and his guidance and protection, and our absolute dependence upon this Divinely Appointed Center.

Faithfully your servants,

Stanwood Cobb,
Marian Haney.

THE Baha'i MAGAZINE

Financial Report

We feel we have in some ways a little more encouraging report to make this year.

Our contribution from the National Spiritual Assembly has been $320 per month or $3,800 for the year, and our actual receipts from the Magazines up to March 19th are $5,398.52, a total of $7,188.52. At this date, cash in the bank and assets amount to $1,150.51, of which $1,116.71 is cash in the bank.

There has been a falling off in New Subscriptions the past year, amounting to $282.75, which is largely due to the fact that in 1929-1930 we received about $200.00 or more to be used for Universities, Libraries or individual subscriptions and these gifts have not been renewed; though it is hoped that similar contributions will be made in the future.

Also the Persian friends have not been able to pay for their subscriptions. "The banks have stopped all their foreign transactions and are not selling any drafts," according to Capt. Sobrab. The Magazines are being sent where most needed and read, hoping that in time the friends can get the money on to us. Several ways have been tried to overcome this difficulty, one was to send Air Mail Stamps to be sold but we could not find a market for them so that method failed. Perhaps some of the friends would like to pay for subscriptions for the Persian believers till the conditions are better.

We are not discouraged over this dropping off of new Subscriptions realizing the hard times everywhere, and we have made no special drive to get new people—yet in spite of all this we have $432.25 in New Subscriptions and have on our books 1,439 subscribers.

We feel proud of the fact that our renewals have increased, for it is truly a good sign that those who take the Magazine feel it worth taking again and we congratulate the Editors on the steady improvement in the reading matter. The increase in renewals over last year is 569.32. We regret the withdrawal of the names of some of our old subscribers. We beg the friends to remember that in supporting the Star of the West they are supporting the Temple.

As we have a balance we think it advisable to return to the National Spiritual Assembly $700.00 though asking at the same time for a continuance of the usual sum of $320.00 per month for next year.

The Guardian's wish is that the Baha'i Magazine should be self-supporting and it is our hope that every Baha'i will feel his or her obligation to support this important branch to the teaching work and help bring to pass the Guardian's wish.

Margaret B. McDaniel,
Business Manager.

PUBLISHING

The Publishing Committee wishes to submit the following report, giving you an account of its activities during the past year. In order that you and all the friends may get a picture, showing the development of the work of this Committee, it would be well to go back to the report submitted to you in 1924 from which we quote the following passage:

"Our appointment as Publishing Committee of the National Spiritual Assembly, putting into effect the instructions of Shoghi Effendi, brought us a deeper realization of the fundamental importance of the publishing activities, its direct relationship to all other activities such as Teaching, Temple, etc., its sacredness in preserving and spreading the very words of the Divine Manifestations, and finally its indissoluble relationship to the possibilities of sound growth and development as the single Baha'i enterprise whose very prosecution involves the accumulation of funds. Holding this in view, every detail of the work so far accomplished or planned has been to hasten the first stage of the ideal, namely, the consolidation of the publishing activities into a materially sound and efficient enterprise on such a scale as not merely to multiply the printing of books but also to begin the accumulation of surplus funds. This organization accomplished according to the best business methods, the result, we confidently trust, will be the possession by the National Spiritual Assembly, in trust for all the believers, an income producing instrument vitally important to the realization of all our ideals."

You will see that it was at this period that the Publishing Committee formed a definite plan for its future growth and organization. Since then we have earnestly endeavored to develop the activities upon these lines and in this way become part of the National organ and a vital instrument in the work of spreading the written Word, and at the same time establishing efficient business-like methods in order to become financially independent that we might be free to assist all Assemblies in turn to become part of a cooperative plan. It is the hope of the Publishing committee that it soon will be in a position to make its contribution to the National work on a sound economic basis. You will remember that in 1929, we adopted a ruling that all Assemblies and Groups purchasing books for resale would receive the regular trade discount of 33⅓% per cent on all orders regardless of quantity. This was done primarily to stimulate the circulation of the Literature which would result in turn in giving the opportunity to all Assemblies and Groups to benefit financially from the sale of each book, enabling them in this way to be self-supporting. The surplus in their treasury could then be their contribution to the National Fund. This Committee earnestly requests all individual believers to purchase all literature from their nearest Assembly, cooperating in this manner to the economic growth of the Cause. There is no doubt that this plan is gradually being adopted, but it is very gradual.

only a wholesale and manufacturing distributor, but this can only be accomplished through the complete understanding and co-operation of each individual believer, the National Committee and all Assembly Libraries, to stimulate the circulation of Bahá’í literature. The Assemblies to become the retail dealers, the individual believer to purchase books from their nearest Assembly at the list price, and by doing this they are at the same time contributing toward the support of the Cause in their community. The Assemblies in turn are then able to place orders with the Publishing Committee who through this active exchange and co-operation will be financially in a position to keep up a constant production of Bahá’í literature.

The Publishing Committee finding it impractical to handle leaflet and pamphlet literature on an economic basis, recommended to the National Spiritual Assembly that all such literature be handled by the National Teaching Committee. This gradually developed into the following policy approved by the National Spiritual Assembly and adopted by the Publishing Committee in March, 1931.

"The Publishing Committee shall be regarded as a manufacturer and wholesale distributor of literature rather than a retail distributor, the function of the retail selling being more economically vested in the local Bahá’í libraries and general book sellers. Hereafter literature intended for free distribution shall be recommended by the Teaching Committee under separate appropriation from the National Spiritual Assembly. It is supplied for the use of the Teaching Committee by an appropriation from the National Spiritual Assembly to cover costs of such books as their needs require.

In August, 1930, all leaflets and pamphlets in stock were distributed pro-rata to the Teaching Committee and all local Bahá’í Libraries as a gift from the Publishing Committee, stating in each case that in the future the Publishing Committee would only fill orders for leaflets and pamphlets in quantity lots, on the wholesale basis as above stated.

This donation amounted in a monetary value to $4608.65. Therefore in our financial statement of the year ending March 31st, 1931, we will apparently not show a profit.

Appointments

In June, 1931, Mrs. C. R. Wood was appointed Record Secretary, taking Miss Bertha Herklotz’s place, who resigned on account of her work at the National Secretariat.

In August, 1930, Mrs. C. R. Wood was appointed Financial Secretary, succeeding Mrs. Marie B. Moore, who resigned September 1st, 1930, on account of ill health.

Special Notes

The Publishing Committee is glad to say that their file of Bahá’í publications is almost complete and that it includes bound copies of the Star of the West, Volumes I to XX.

Mrs. Loulie Mathews presented to the Publishing Committee the plate of the original "Star Tablet" of the Bab, the original being in the British Museum as explained in the Bahá’í News of March, 1931.

The Publishing Committee has adopted the following policy in regard to publishing literature in foreign languages in accordance with instructions from Shoghi Effendi as follows: "Concerning the matter of manuscripts compiled in foreign translations, I feel that from now on the National Assembly should concentrate its attention exclusively on publishing works in the English language. I trust that this will encourage friends in other parts of the world to undertake the publication of works in foreign tongues in their respective countries."

The stock of plates, sheets and bound books, property of the Publishing Committee is still being stored at Little & Ives Co. and they are doing all shipping.

The sheets and bound stock of Bahá’í World, vol. II, was transferred from Grier Press, Chicago, to Little & Ives Co., New York, in December, 1930.

Selling Efforts

In June, 1930, we sent out 500 catalogs with letter and reproduction of article on Temple from Boston Transcript to book sellers, calling their attention to our literature and suggesting that they carry stock, pointing out that since the building of the Temple there would undoubtedly be great interest shown in the Cause.

Publicity

In March, 1931, we sent out to 750 Libraries a catalog with letter calling attention to our literature and asking them to check up their indexing to see that all our titles were properly listed and to keep catalog on file so that in case of inquiries, they have information and know where to order.

Reprints of Bahá’í Literature and New Works Published

Treasurer’s Report

This report will be completed for the year ending March 31st, 1931, and will be given in a separate report, through the National Treasurer.

LEGAL

The members of your Legal Committee submit the following statement on matters referred to them for study and recommendation since the 1930 Convention, in response to the request issued to us by your secretary on February 18.

Our report is prefaced with an expression of our conviction that it is incumbent upon all the American believers to appreciate the importance of the responsibility placed upon us by the Declaration of Trust, which establishes the status of each believer in relation to the National Spiritual Assembly, and by the Temple Indenture, which involves title to the Mashriqu’ll-Adhkar building and land. These instruments, approved by the Guardian, create legal entities which can, if necessary, claim the protection of the civil courts of the land and serve as the corporate bodies through which our collective public action must be taken.

Reflecting the laws and principles revealed by the Manifestation, the Declaration of Trust has transformed the Cause in America from a group of people imbued with similar spiritual ideals into a corporate body henceforth taking its definite place in our national society. Unlike the early Christians, the Bahá’ís have not only the bond of faith and the ties of devotional practice, but also the power of a social structure unified by an ideal of justice expressed in a comprehensive code. The perpetual effort to harmonize the principles of love and justice in all Bahá’í matters will alone serve to develop a body of believers able to uphold the world order of Bahá’ulláh.

The members of the Legal Committee, in all their deliberations, have sought solutions of the problems referred to them which could reconcile these two principles.

The following actions have been taken since our appointment last June:

Change in method of balloting for members of the National Spiritual Assembly. A new method was proposed by the Spiritual Assembly of South arising between two individual Baha'is. The Legal Committee was requested to consider the matter and make a general recommendation as to the procedure in such cases. It was recommended that the National Assembly should not take jurisdiction of matters affecting individual believers in their business or personal rather than their Baha'i relationships, but suggest that the Local Spiritual Assemblies ascertain the facts and endeavor to bring about just settlements. In this connection it should be noted that an Assembly which takes up a case of this kind will do well to make it clear in advance whether the Assembly is to give an advisory opinion or whether its decision will be accepted as final. The right use of the principle of consultation will bring the administration of the Cause to complete fulfillment.

Temple contracts. Through the death of Major Burt, engineer, and Mr. Louis Bourgeois, architect, the contractual relationships previously existing with them terminated and left certain matters to be adjusted with their estates. Some of these questions are still pending, and the National Assembly will report on them at a later time. The believers will appreciate the desire of the Assembly and Temple trustees to carry out all obligations assumed under contract with full justice. In discharging this responsibility, the trustees act as representatives of the entire body of believers. Under the Guardian's instruction, no arrangement has ever been made for Temple interior designs, and the trustees have no authority to incur expense for them at the present time. The Temple trustees, of course, have no sources of income except appropriations by the National Assembly from its Temple and general Funds, or bequests and gifts to the Trustees for Temple purposes.

Local Incorporation. It has been reported through BAHAI NEWS that the National Assembly passed favorably upon the recommendation of the Legal Committee that Local Assemblies desiring proper legal status should take steps to hold property under an Indenture, and not set up any form of incorporation which might confuse the Baha'i status of members already provided for under the national Declaration of Trust. Certain difficulties have since become apparent in this suggestion, since an Indenture comes into being through the action of qualified individuals in constituting others as trustees. The only local Baha'i body qualified to act is the Spiritual Assembly, and the adoption of an Indenture would require the Assembly to select as trustees believers not members of the Assembly itself. Further study may disclose the possibility of Local Assemblies adopting Declarations of Trust so defined as to accomplish for the local community what the national Declaration of Trust accomplishes for the believers throughout the United States and Canada. This is a matter to be reported at a later time.

Baha'i Temple Unity and Green Acre Fellowship. The question of maintaining or dissolving these legal bodies, whose real functions ceased when the Temple and Green Acre properties were transferred to trustees for the benefit of the National Spiritual Assembly, is still under consideration. An attorney has been instructed to study the various State statutes bearing upon the matter and report to the Assembly.

Canadian incorporation. The question of incorporating the Canadian believers, so as to give them a legal status in relation to their civil courts, has been referred to a number of attorneys and final settlement has not yet been made.

While these various legal questions may seem to have little interest in comparison with the spiritual activities of the Cause, nevertheless they have a legitimate and necessary place in the work of the Cause, and true solutions of these matters at this stage of its development will serve to free its spirit and release its collective intelligence through later times.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE

Before entering upon the detailed report of the work of this office, your international correspondent wishes first to express the deep appreciation and gratitude which she has experienced in being honored with this important charge, and the joy with which every service has been undertaken, even while conscious of her immature experience and inadequacy in handling matters of such vast scope and significance.

It has been the purpose of this department to seek to bring about more intimate and frequent communication between this country and those where the Cause was first established, even though in some cases, the representatives are very few in number, as notably in Denmark, for instance.

At the beginning of the year the first move was to write to each National
BAHA'I NEWS

Spiritual Assembly and to the International Bureau at Geneva, describing the newly apportioned work of the National Secretariat and giving an account of the Convention. A copy of the flash light photograph taken at the time of the Convention was also mailed to each National Assembly and Geneva, and to the Guardian, as well as to several of the distant friends like Miss Alexander in Japan, and those in South Africa.

General letters to the National Assemblies and Geneva were sent out under the following dates: May 12th, June 25th, Nov. 30th, and on February 17th, to all foreign addresses listed in the Baha'i World, Vol. III.

The reprint of the article from the Literary Digest was mailed to all National Assemblies and to many individuals, as was also the case with the circular presenting the Temple reprint from the Technology Review.

Copies of all letters sent out have been forwarded to the Secretariat for review by the National Spiritual Assembly while in session and for subsequent placing in the files.

Beside the letters to the National Assemblies many opportunities have been found to communicate with individuals, and with groups of believers.

The student group of the American University at Beirut; Miss Holsapple; Mrs. Carey in South Africa; Miss Wright, during her sojourn in England, about conditions in Germany; Mr. Dunn in Australia, who inquired anxiously regarding the authenticity of the Prayer Book.

Yadollah Effendi of Akka who had sent some pomegranates through Mrs. Bedikian for the National Spiritual Assembly received a courteous letter of thanksgiving.

The important matter of believers from foreign countries who were intending to come to America was given special and detailed consideration in which the Government regulations governing immigration were quoted extensively, and the request made that all National Spiritual Assemblies and the International Bureau at Geneva inform all local Communities of the necessary steps to be taken in order to comply with the laws of the United States, as well as with certain courtesies which might be due from Baha'is in distant lands to Baha'is in this country, so that in future all friends arriving at any port of the United States may receive loving and helpful consideration and assistance.

In August, 1930, your secretary was able to visit the only Baha'i resident of Denmark, Miss Sorensen, at Copenhagen, and subsequently to meet with the friends in Berlin. Both of these visits proved of great interest and value, especially in Berlin where at that time much uncertainty still existed regarding the Administration due to the malicious propaganda of Mrs. White and Herr Herrigel. It was a real joy to meet these friends and to seek to establish in their minds the logical and real proofs of the need of the Guardianship. Miss Sorensen, however, must not be included among those who do not understand, for Miss Sorensen is one of the most enlightened and spiritual servants whom it has been the joy of this servant to meet, and it is very significant that the Guardian has made exception in the matter of the publication of the Danish translation of Bahá'u'lláh and the New Era, a work for which Miss Sorensen is responsible.

In September this servant spent several days in Geneva for the purpose of consultation with the Baha'i friends whom Shoghi Effendi has charged with the vastly important work of the International Bureau, and much valuable information was received and suggestions given for the closer acquaintance with the personnel and work of the various communities and groups throughout Europe. At that time it developed that communication was much too rare and uncertain owing to the uncertainty of the addresses of believers in different localities. A movement was consequently set on foot to make as complete a canvas as possible in order to provide the Bureau with accurate information which might be available for any friend wishing to travel to foreign countries, and also to install into the minds of the friends everywhere the importance of looking definitely to the center in Europe which the Guardian had established as a sort of "Clearing House" for accurate information, and the distribution of literature in the languages in which the Revelation has now been translated.

The work of the International Bureau is becoming very extensive and your secretary feels that in the near future, when the friends in different countries come to realize the value of the services of the Bureau, which is now equipped to translate all communications into French, German, Italian and Spanish as well as English and Esperanto, this will become a most important channel for the dissemination of the Holy Word, as well as of the news of the important affairs of the Cause. The place which the International Bureau holds in relation to all the International representation which now exists in Geneva cannot be overestimated in regard to its importance.

A few days in Italy put this servant in touch with certain of the friends there, although the Cause is not yet well established in Italy.

All correspondence of whatever nature which has been received has been promptly answered. On request of the National Assembly at Tehran a letter of welcome was sent to the newly-appointed Persian Counsellor to Washington on his arrival in this country. The matter of Noury Sadik Bey, who very strongly stated that there should be no use of the name "Spiritual Assembly" when writing to Turkey has recently been somewhat clarified by the receipt of a second letter from him, in which he states that Turkey is not now in a condition to have a Spiritual Assembly, and it cannot comply with the laws of the country which contains all religious organizations.

The Assembly letters from Haifa have been graciously acknowledged and also the receipt of the regular weekly edition of the Bahá'i paper published in Labore, India. This publication deserves especial notice as it is well edited and ambitious in its presentation of the Holy Utterances and the news of the Cause, together with a list of publications in English, Persian and Urdu. Your secretary respectfully recommends the support of this splendid paper.

But few letters have been received from non-Baha'i inquirers about the Cause, and all of these have been promptly answered, and in every case some literature sent as well as address given where information about the travelling teachers might be obtained.

It has been a source of no little apprehension that to all the correspondence sent out, and all the photographs, together with printed literature about the Temple, etc., not a word of acknowledgement has been received. Your secretary is entirely at a loss to understand why this should be the case and believes that as yet the value of prompt and frequent communication has not been universally felt by the adherents of the Cause. Of course the establishment of the department for special international correspondence is as yet a new idea, the importance of which may not have become fully apparent, but on the other hand, it has been found that our dear Victoria Bedikian has been so utterly untiring in her efforts to link up the world in Baha'i relationship that much of the correspondence has been addressed to her. She, in true generous spirit, has

Since its appointment the last week in June, 1930, the Publicity Committee has laid a foundation for the release of Bahá’í information and news to the press of the United States and Canada, through the medium of the Local Assemblies and also direct.

The plan followed has consisted in the issuing of regular communications to Local Assemblies with a view to developing their local publicity resources as well as securing their cooperation in the placing of material prepared by the National Committee.

In appointing the Committee, the National Spiritual Assembly took another action regarding publicity in securing the services of Mr. Odell, a trained newspaper man of Washington, D.C., for writing and placing feature articles. It has been made clear that this part of the general plan cannot be satisfactorily applied at the present time.

The most notable this year has been the article "A Temple of Light" by Allen B. McDaniel, published in Technology Review, of which 12,000 reprints have been distributed throughout the world, and the reference to the Temple in Literary Digest. The result of the fire during Temple construction was also widespread publicity.

A conference called by Mr. McDaniel in Washington during December, with Mr. Odell and three members of the Committee, considered the matter of how Mr. Odell’s services can best be utilized and arrived at the following conclusions: first, that release of information and news representing the Cause can best be effected through facilities developed by and in the Cause itself; and, second, that certain special features like the Temple and the international teaching activities of Miss Martha Root can effectively be assigned to Mr. Odell for feature articles, under conditions mutually satisfactory to him and to the N. S. A.

Following this conference, the Committee secretary has prepared a list of 500 leading newspapers. These have been placed on stencils, to be used at monthly or semi-monthly intervals. A capital cost of about $20.00, and a monthly cost for postage, addressing and multigraphing of approximately the same amount, will enable the National Assembly, through its Bahá’í News Service, to present the Cause to the public press in all the cities and larger towns of the country. This plan, combined with the present series of letters and articles for the Local Assemblies, and amplified to include unusual or emergency news and occasions as they arise, was recommended by the Committee to the National Assembly in February, and approved by that body.

Among the subjects already given to Local Assemblies or direct to the press are: the meaning of the Anniversary of the Bab; Baha'i education, with reference to Green Acre and Geysserville; the Temple; announcement of the building contract; inter-racial amity and the Master's warning to America; National Teaching activities; Bahá'í World, volume III; and reproductions of the Literary Digest page illustrating and describing the Temple.

As 300 copies of The Bahá'í World were allotted to the News Service for publicity purposes, their use is reported as follows: to review editors of newspapers and magazine, 100; to reference library of newspapers and the large news syndicates, like Associated Press, 54; to peace, international, religious and educational organizations, 99; to editors of dictionaries and encyclopaedias, 4; to individuals (friends of the Cause in positions of influence), 11—a total of 268 copies. The balance of 32 copies will be used to the best advantage before the Convention.

During March, the committee secretary cooperated with the Publishing Committee in the development of methods for securing newspaper and magazine reviews of all Bahá'í books published henceforth, and also in the preparation of a list of Public Libraries for sending a copy of the Bahá'í Catalog and letters emphasizing the value of this literature.

On March 28 a letter was issued to Local Assemblies together with three suggested newspaper articles: On the Guardian's translation of the Iqán, on references to the Cause by various prominent people, and on the Master's message to the American people. The article on the Iqán was also sent to the list of five hundred newspapers. An article has also been prepared on the subject of the Annual Convention and the Temple, to be sent to the same newspaper list, and to the Assemblies, about April 15.

It seems advisable in this report to mention the series of newspaper articles prepared by a previous Publicity Committee and sent to all Local Assemblies and National Committees in April, 1929. Those articles were prepared for use in connection with public Bahá'í meetings, the visit of well known Bahá'í teachers, etc., and answers the question of what to give the papers raised by a number of Assemblies this year which received visits from such teachers as Miss Martha Root and Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler. Copies of the series are still available at the Secretariat, West Englewood.

With the extension of this work during the rest of the current Bahá'í year, the Committee is prepared to issue a minimum of two articles a month, one to Assemblies and one to 500 newspapers, and recommends the availability of giving each Assembly a set of Bahá'í illustrations—a photograph of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, the Temple and a few carefully selected international pictures from The Bahá'í World—in an inexpensive printed form, for reproduction by local newspapers in connection with articles used from time to time.

Shoghi Effendi sent Mr. McDaniel, chairman of this Committee, a message concerning the publicity activities through his secretary in a letter dated August 30, 1930, which is quoted to conclude this report: "Concerning the publicity work Shoghi Effendi hopes that it will carry on its work with great foresight and wisdom and succeed in spreading the teachings throughout America. Such an activity is an essential phase of teaching and will undoubtedly create more and more work for the teachers that are busy on the field."

GREEN ACRE

The Green Acre Properties Committee, consisting of Mrs. McDaniel, Mr. F. St. George Spendlove and Mr. Henry Green met several times at the Green Acre during the rest of the current Baha'i year, in the same capacity. This year there will be a dormitory for men at Fellowship as well as one for women.

Before and after the Program in June and September the Inn and Fellowship House will be open to guests who wish a quiet and restful place.

With the help and cooperation of the friends we feel sure this Season will be profitable to all who come and that Green Acre will in time become a truly representative Bahá'í Center.

Those wishing information concerning accommodations may write Mrs. Flora Valentine, 142 Regent Street, Saratoga Springs, N. Y. By: MARGARET B. MCDANIEL, Chairman.

THE BAHÁ'Í WORLD

(Volume Three)

In recent issues of the Bahá'í News Letter have appeared the announcement by the Publishing Committee of the completion of Volume III, The Bahá'í World, and also Shoghi Effendi's letters to the undersigned telling in detail his wishes regarding the publication thereof. We refer you to them.

The National Spiritual Assembly have appointed a Chairman for this Committee, Mrs. Stuart W. French, 501 Bellefontaine Street, Pasadena, California, who will devote her attento the collecting of material for Volume IV.

We believe it is timely to call attention to the following request of the Guardian, as published in the Introduction of Volume III—

"In preparation for Volume IV, which is to cover the period from April, 1930, to April, 1932, Shoghi Effendi, through the Editorial Committee, earnestly requests all Local Spiritual Assemblies, Coups and Committees throughout the Bahá’í world, to plan with their respective National Spiritual Assemblies the gathering of suitable material for that volume. Photographs and articles of interest may be forwarded at any time. Reports to be incorporated in the 'Survey of Current Bahá’í Activities in the East and West' should be in the hands of the Committee not later than January 1, 1932. The contents of Volume III will suggest the various materials desired for such an important and historic publication as The Bahá’í World. Articles and photographs that show the present progress of the Cause, as well as records of past events, are particularly desired. . . . Correspondence should be addressed to the Editorial Committee, The Bahá’í World, care of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada, Evergreen Cabin, West Englewood, N. J., United States of America."

ALBERT WINDUST,
Editorial Secretary.

P. S.—Shoghi Effendi has written the Publishing Committee, expressing gratitude and appreciation for their labors in producing Volume III. They will, no doubt, include this in their report.

THE BAHÁ’Í WORLD
(Volume Four)

The following is the report of progress of the work of the committee for Volume IV of the Bahá’í World:

Your committee has not been successful in holding a meeting when all members could be present; but the chairman met with Mr. Albert Windust early in July, 1930, and from him gleaned much valuable information regarding the method of securing material.

A second meeting was held in New York early in October, 1930, with Mrs. La Farge, Mr. Holley and the chairman present.

At this meeting a general plan of procedure was outlined, in which names of possible contributors were proposed and a definite time set for the completion of the collection of material to be sent to the Guardian.

Since that time all communication has been carried on by correspondence.

The date set for the final reception of all material was November 1st, 1931, and this will provide for any slight delay so that the Guardian may have all in his hands in January, 1932.

Many letters have been sent out by your chairman and the most important piece of work undertaken is the arrangement of a complete and up-to-date list of all addresses in various countries where the Cause is represented. To this end letters have been sent to all National Spiritual Assemblies, and to all Assemblies, groups and individuals whose names appear in the present volume 1928-1930. This does not include the addresses of the Assemblies or groups in this country because that list will be compiled after the coming elections in April.

It is hoped to establish a Historical Department in which short historical sketches made by early believers may be preserved, with photographs of the places in which 'Abdu'l-Bahá spoke when in this country. The reason for this department is that in some instances, as notably Pasadena, it is already very difficult to get exact information on the event of the visit of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. While we recognize that in time a full history will be written of this all-important event, the present intention is to preserve these records before they have passed out of the recollection of some of the believers.

It is not possible of course, to compile a complete history in one volume but carrying the subject through several subsequent editions will preserve the records.

It has been the aim of your chairman to follow in every way the instructions of the Guardian to seek contributions from the 'best minds in the Cause.' Concerning the compiling of a new list of addresses, this instruction was given to Mrs. Bedikian before the work of the present Vol. IV was begun, and now that it is found necessary to render this service for the volume Mrs. Bedikian has graciously turned her list over to the committee and it will be checked over and compared with the replies which are received to the hundred or more letters issued under date of February 17th in order to make as correct and complete a list as possible.

Much material has already come to hand which had been collected by Mr. Holley and for this and all the splendid co-operation of the various members of the committee your chairman desires to express her deepest appreciation and gratitude.

REPORT OF THE TEMPLE TRUSTEES

For the Benefit of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States and Canada for the year 1930-31

During the past year there have been 11 meetings of the Temple trustees, beginning with the organization meeting on April 28, 1930, following the last Annual Convention and ending with the last meeting of April. 30, 1931, just preceding the 23rd Annual Convention. The meeting on November 16, 1930, was held at Evanston, Illinois, and included a visit to the Temple for a first-hand inspection of the construction work.

The Christ is reported to have said "by their fruits ye shall know them" and so the best report that your trustees can make at this time is to refer the believers to the Temple structure. In its simple dignity and beauty, the present structure is an impressive demonstration of the results of the activities of your trustees since the last Annual Convention.

You will recall that at the Annual Convention of a year ago your trustees reported to you that the preliminary steps had been taken toward the erection of the superstructure of the Temple. These steps included the decision to erect the entire framework rather than the first story complete as originally planned; the final revision of the architectural plans by our late brother, Louis Bourgeois; the begin-
The electrical work. It is extremely fortunate that these utilities have been installed at a time when favorable building conditions have afforded very low costs, and that are available for the protection and preservation of the entire existing structure. Funds are needed in the near future in order that these utilities may be completed, especially during this period of business depression and unusually low building costs.

The Research Service, Inc., has continued its interesting study of materials for the exterior ornamental work, which your trustees hope may be started during the coming year. At their meeting on June 29, 1930, the Temple Trustees voted to approve the recommendation of their engineers for the tentative adoption of a suitable form of architectural concrete for the larger masses of this exterior ornamentation. The finer and lighter ornamental work will undoubtedly be made of some suitable metal alloy.

During the year, your trustees have given considerable thought to the settlement of a claim made by Mrs. H. J. Burt, the widow of Major Burt, who was our former structural engineer, for services which had been rendered by him subsequent to the completion of the Temple foundation structure about eight-and-a-half years ago, and also the settlement of the contracts for services and for the studio which the National Assembly had entered into June 27, 1925, and April 6, 1926, respectively, with Mr. Louis Bourgeois. These matters have been handled by a special committee of the National Legal Committee, which refers to them in their annual report.

Respectfully submitted,

TEMPLE TRUSTEES,
A. B. McDaniel, Chairman.

REPORT OF GREEN ACRE TRUSTEES

For the Benefit of the National Assembly of the Baha'i of the United States and Canada for the Year 1930-31

Meetings of the Green Acre trustees were held at the same time and place as those of the Temple Trustees as has been referred to in the report of the latter body.

At the meeting of the Green Acre trustees on May 25, 1930, it was decided to continue the past policy with relation to Green Acre; namely, to develop it, in accordance with the instructions of our beloved Guardian, as a teaching and training center for the believers in the Cause. It was further decided to open the Green Acre Inn which had been closed the previous summer, and to utilize the rooms in connection with the Tea House, which was used entirely for the providing of meals during the season.

The Green Acre season of 1930 was one of the most interesting and fruitful that has been held there in recent years. A large number of the friends attended the New England teaching conference and the Interfaca1 Amity meetings. The regular classes conducted by Mr. Vail, Mr. Gregory, and others, had very satisfactory attendance and unusual interest was manifested, especially through participation in the informal discussions that generally followed the formal address of the meeting. During the last two weeks of August, the facilities of the Tea House were severely taxed, and great credit should be given to Mrs. Flora Valentine for her handling of the boarding and lodging of the people under the handicap of lack of suitable space and sufficient help.

Early in the Fall, the trustees authorized the new Properties Committee, consisting of Mr. Margaret B. McDaniel, Chairman, Mr. George Spendlove, and Mr. Henry Green, to arrange for the necessary repairs and improvements at Green Acre during the Fall and Winter months, with a view to maintaining the various properties and providing for the efficient employment of the caretaker, Mr. Bert Hagedorn. The Properties Committee has reported that very satisfactory progress has been made in this work, including the installation of a fire escape at the Inn (required by the laws of the State of Maine), the repair of the road from the main highway to the Inn, painting and repair of the Inn roof, and a large number of minor repairs of the Fellowship House, the Tea House, and the Inn.

Your trustees at their meeting on February 1 and March 16, 1931, authorized a contract with Mrs. Flora Valentine for the season of 1931 that will provide for the fullest utilization of the Inn, the cottages and the Tea House for the believers during the program season of July and August. During June and September these facilities will be open to the public, but subject to the supervision of the Properties Committee.

Your trustees have been working on the completion of the property plans for the five parcels of properties that are now held under the Green Acre Indenture of Trust. An effort will be made to make a study of certain sections of these properties, such as the land lying between the Ball cottage and the cottages on the Green Acre property, with a view to providing additional housing facilities for the future.

The trustees believe that last year's season at Green Acre confirmed the policy which has been adopted and it is hoped that an increasing number of friends will attend the teaching and training seasons in the years to come. During the last few years, a number of the believers have purchased property in or near Green Acre with a view to providing permanent summer homes. It is the belief of the trustees that as the years pass by a growing Baha'i community will serve as a true testing ground to demonstrate the New World Order.

Respectfully submitted,

GREEN ACRE TRUSTEES, A. B. McDaniel, Chairman.

RESEARCH COMMITTEE

The principal work of the Research Committee during the year now closing has been directed toward study of the Prayer Book put out last year, under instructions from the National Spiritual Assembly to add to each selection a reference to its source and to suggest such revisions of the text as we might consider necessary.

It was felt, therefore, that the first phase of this work should be the identification of each prayer and other selection, with a reference to its original published translation if possible or to some other authentic source. Since both texts are full of grammatical errors, this stage included much work necessary to secure correct reverential English. And since Shoghi Effendi has approved the pluralization of the prayers in group meetings and many of the friends experience difficulty in reading these plurals into the text, it was decided to submit the revision with two versions of every prayer except those few that should never be pluralized; the singular form appearing on an odd-numbered page and its corresponding pluralized form on the other page of the same sheet. It was decided to submit this revision on loose-leaf sheets of Lefax size with gold edges and to recommend ring binders in dark blue leather stamped in gold; one binder to contain prayers only, and another to hold such devotional readings and notes as might properly find place in it. These notes would include the proper use of the Greatest Name and of prayers for special occasions, the specific obligations concerning prayer and fasting and the holding of feasts, the characteristics of reverential English, and a few facts about Persian and Arabic that should help English-speaking Bahá'ís to a better understanding of the translations.

Practically all of the references had been secured, and the work of revision was well along its way, when word came from the National Assembly, through Mrs. French and Mr. Lunt, to the effect that Shoghi Effendi had consented to a reprinting of the "Prayers and Meditations" pending the time when he can take up this great work himself.

All English-speaking believers should be most happy to know that Shoghi Effendi has declared his purpose to give to us a new translation of the prayers, which only his Divine Wisdom can properly reconstruct.

ACTIVITIES OF INTER-REGIONAL TEACHING COMMITTEE FOR NEW YORK, NEW JERSEY AND CONNECTICUT

After receiving the Teaching Committee's circular letter about their plan for regional teaching work, and at the suggestion of the New York Spiritual Assembly, a meeting of the believers representing New York City, West Englewood, Montclair, Yonkers, Newark, Ashbury Park and New Haven, was called to be held at West Englewood and New York City, October 25 and 26.

The first meeting in West Englewood was for the purpose of studying along the lines suggested by the National Teaching Committee; the methods to be pursued by spreading the Cause of God in these regions. A great many took part in the discussions, and many helpful suggestions were received. Many recited their difficulties and the methods they used to remove them. One important suggestion was that the believers themselves should, before attending teaching work, learn the deeper teachings; they should endeavor to prepare themselves in such a way as to be able to answer the questions of all kinds of people. It was felt that this great Cause is a universal remedy; therefore must contain every answer that a sincere seeker asks. All we need do is to drink deeply of this life-giving water that Bahá'u'lláh has provided.

Another suggestion was that we be more positive about the claims of Baha'u'lláh. We should not try to make the Cause acceptable to people by acceding to their whims and notions. In other words, we should make it plain that the Bahá'ís have a clear message for the world. It was felt that this would be a natural consequence if the teachers themselves were deeply impressed.

A Committee was formed consisting of one member from each community, and one to represent the isolated believers in this region. Our work was to coordinate our activities, to give an added impetus to the teaching work. We were to make every effort for opportunities to give the message; to find openings in each community where people were willing to share their platform with us. We were to make every effort to induce the isolated believers to associate actively with their nearest Assembly, and thus add efficiently to their individual work.

The next day we met in New York City and held a large meeting there, at which a resolution was passed that a Regional District Committee be formed to consist of one member from each participating Assembly or group, they to meet and select a member at large to represent isolated believers. The Chairman of the Conference was to call this Committee together, and a letter was sent to each one of these districts calling them to a meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 18, 1930, at 119 West 57th Street, New York City.

At that meeting West Englewood was represented by Mr. Allah Kahn; New York City, by Mr. Harris, who was elected permanent chairman of that Committee; Newark, N. J., by Mr. Henry Ackerman; Connecticut, by Mrs. Jeanne Rohwagen Bolles of Washington, Conn.; Westchester County, by Mrs. Maude Gaudeaux of Yonkers; Mrs. Gaudeaux being elected Secretary of the Committee, with Mrs. Lola Donaldson as Assistant Corresponding Secretary and Miss Gertrude Gewertz of New York City Young People's group as Recording Secretary. Mr. Kinney and Mrs. Ford were elected the Regional Teachers.

Owing to great pressure of work Mr. Harris was obliged to resign as Chairman of the Committee and New York City representative—hence, on account of this work, meeting was not held until January 14th. At this meeting Mr. Allah Khan of West Englewood was elected Chairman of the Committee. The Secretary was instructed to write to the districts not represented, to which action a beautiful response came from Monclair stating that temporarily their activities were curtailed owing to a serious accident to two of their members as well as other sickness amongst the believers there, and saying that our beloved Auntie Victoria Bedekian had been elected their representative on our Committee.

The Committee meetings are being held on the third Thursday of each month at Mr. Kinney's apartment. At the third meeting, on the 19th February, plans were made for a public meeting to be held in Yonkers, and to perfect details for this another meeting was held the following week, which was fully attended. The public meeting in Yonkers was given on March 6th, in the Warburton Hall, with a fair attendance, West Englewood turning out most generously in their cooperative spirit, for which the Yonkers Spiritual Assembly wish to publicly acknowledge their deep appreciation. Mr. Saffa Kinney was the speaker, taking for his subject "The Destiny of Mankind." Many of the colored friends were attracted by this beloved teacher's eloquent and illuminating address, having expressed their desire to attend our study group, which is held each Friday evening at 192 Buckingham Road, Yonkers. We were very fortunate also to have delightful music rendered by Mrs. Harriet Morgan Kelsey, pianist, and Miss Dorothy Wright, soprano.

Mr. Kinney has also spoken twice in West Englewood during the past two months.

Letters have been written to some of the colored friends in White Plains, with the object in view of arranging if possible for a public meeting at one of the colored Churches there, where happy contact has already been established. If this materializes it is hoped that we may be able to have Mr. Gregory speak, and that all the friends in the vicinity will cooperate with us with the utmost enthusiasm to make it a great success.

At one of our Committee meetings Mr. Kinney suggested that each member study the Acts of the Apostles. This was a command of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and one can easily see why, when it is noted that the Apostles worked as one soul, ever watching for the manifestation of the Holy Spirit in their meetings. May the confirmations of the Holy Spirit descend upon each one of us, so that we may forget all the forward march of this Holy Cause, and face our beloved Guardian as one soul to do his command.

LETTER FROM

The Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Karachi, Aláhu-Abá!

We are happy to impart, at the start of this circular, the news of the perfect health and happiness of the beloved of the people of Bahá, Shoghi Rabbani, may our souls be a ransom to his loving kindness, and to announce his arrival in the Holy Land of Light.

Sometime ago, this Assembly, having secured the approval of the Guardian, purchased a piece of plantation, which has an area of about 3639 sq. yr., and is located in one of the most appropriate sites of this city. The Assembly is now planning to erect on this land, a humble but graceful building to serve as "Hazirat'uI Kuds," or a Mashriqul Azkár, and in order to add to the significance and the majesty of the Cause, at the same time free the Friends from the cumbersome burden of renting.

It is an evident fact that the undertaking of such a sacred enterprise will be impossible without the material help of the devoted friends of God. For the Assembly will not be able to provide the expenses all by itself. For this reason, we wish to ask for the cooperation of all the friends of East and of the West, whether man, woman or child, and entreat them to contribute towards this purpose as a duty towards a sacred end. A duty whose basis and whose aim is help and cooperation.

His Holiness Bahá'u'lláh, may His name be exalted and hailed, has said: "Humble thyself before Me, that I may graciously visit thee. Arise for triumph of My Cause, that in the world thou mayest obtain victory."

The arrival in this city of the renowned teacher, Miss Martha Root, her interviews with the influential persons of this nation and her impressive addresses in the various gatherings and Universities will surely bear wondrous fruits in the future. After spending a few days here, she left for Simla, the summer residence of the Governor of India. She was escorted by Mr. Isfendiyar Behiyari.

The Tarbiyat School, the Library and the reading room, are as usual being frequented by the Truth and investigators of the Cause. We are thankful to our Lord that the Cause in this city is in great prosperity. Our meetings and gatherings are public on Sundays, and private on Wednesdays; and on Fridays we are having the regular "Sunday School" programs for the children. (Friday is the Mohammadian Sunday. Tran.)

Our hope is that the clouds of bigotry and superstition, that have darkened the sky for the numerous tribes and sects of this country, may be rent asunder and that the Sun of Reality may throw its golden rays upon those who are fast asleep in the grave of ignorance and imitation so that the progress of the Cause and the influence of the words of Bahá'u'lláh in this land, may parallel and advance at the same level with that in the other parts of the world.

Professor Pritam Singh, the secretary of the National Spiritual Assembly of India and Burma, has recently established a weekly magazine which is published in English and contains interesting and important articles on the Cause. The editor is employing the most appropriate method and style in advertising the Cause. The subscription fee is Five Rupees per annum. Friends who are interested are asked to communicate directly with the editor to the following address:

Prof. Pritam Singh, M.A., Editor, The Bahá'í, 39, Temple Road, Lahore, India.

We are glad to congratulate Prof. Pritam for this admirable work and pray for the duration of his publication.

The "Eternal Rose Garden" (Bahá'í cemetery), which has been the subject of a dispute between the Assembly and the municipality, last, came into the possession of the Friends. We hope that with a slight expenditure on some of its parts, such as the "wash-room" and the court yard, it may be turned into a real Garden of Roses for Eternal Repose.

We wish to extend our thanks to all the Assemblies and friends that have favored us with circular letters and delightful news; and we entreat the Sacred Divinity to crown their efforts with success. In conclusion we would like to mention that any of the brothers or sisters who wish to contribute to our purpose, may apply to the following address. Their donations shall be welcomed and greatly appreciated and their names shall be inscribed in the Book of God:

Who has the life Eternal? He who liveth righteously,
For after him, his memory shall revive his name.

Address: Isfendiyar Behiyari, Preedy Road, Camp Karachi, India.

THE ANNUAL CONVENTION
Reported by Louis G. Gregory

Another convention, the twenty-third annual of the Baha'is of the United States and Canada, has written its fine record upon the plane of Reality and has given both inward and outer signs of constructive achievement. As the years pass the believers in the most High, Bahá'u'lláh, as shown by these annual gatherings, seem to reach increasing heights of consultation, spiritual insight and application of the divine teachings to the needs of humanity. Faith is strengthened, courage is more resolute and voices attain more eloquence and penetration in the delivery of the great message. The power that arises from the unity of our productive strength, the wisdom that shines with free consultation, the darkness that flees from the Light of Reality, the wounds that are healed with the balm of love, the answers that respond to prayers for Guidance and the signs which descend to the minds and hearts of the sincere are visible in spiritual gatherings which many incidents combine to make unique. This convention was one of the most impersonal ever held. How largely free from negative currents! Accounts of things done, the progress of activities, expressions of appreciation and gratitude, constructive ideals, incentives to nobler deeds, purer lives and greater sacrifices; treatment of the world's ills, the significances of the Master's love and the Guardian's protection, the planting of the Banner of Bahá'u'lláh among all the nations of the earth, reverence for His Holy Sanctuary, happiness in its progress and the thoughts of its happy completion which will be fraught with such wondrous results in future, effaced all thoughts of earth.

The inspiring words of our Guardian were read by the Chairman during many intervals of the convention. These were often quoted from the volume, Bahá'í Administration but were further contained in letters and cables. They lifted deliberations to the highest plane which combines the ideal and the practical and seemed to bring heavenly illumination and guidance. The following cable was read soon after the opening:

"Th Greatest Holy Leaf joins me in requesting delegates assembled under Mashriq'ul-Adhkar's sacred dome convey all American believers expression of heartfelt congratulations, boundless joy, profound gratitude practical completion superstructure glorious edifice. Cerebrally appeal all associated this holy enterprise, consummate their achievement by upholding whatever manner national representatives may deem necessary for provision exterior ornamentation. Inestimable blessing shall crown America's sustained, self-sacrificing endeavor."

The convention replied by cable to this beautiful message, expressing happiness, pledging loyalty and obedience as the means of success among the friends and the hope that our inward lives may at all times mirror forth the great peace that is found at the shrine of Bahá'u'lláh.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," says a well known poet. Wondrously beautiful is the Temple of God. It is the Divine Sanctuary in which only the praises of God are to be sung. Rising so majestically over the lake, graceful in outline, unique in structure, resting upon a foundation supported by the ribs of the earth and symbolizing in its structure the body of the manifestation of God, how mysterious and vast is the influence of this wonderful place! Mashriq'ul-Adhkar is a name which will be engraven upon the heart of humanity with the passing of the years. In the foundation of such a noble structure the friends of God were assisted in holding their annual convention.

The first and only official business of the convention is the election of the National Spiritual Assembly, the body of nine to whom are committed as servants of the Cause the direction of its activities for the period of a year. Although several members of the existing assembly would for various reasons have preferred to give way to others, the result was the reelection of the entire membership. The transmission of this news to Haifa by cable brought the following reply from the Guardian:

This election was held on the first day of the convention in order that the delegates might have ample time to confer with the newly elected body. The other part of the work was hearing reports in order that the delegates upon the basis of what they heard, might make recommendations to those who represent them. The report of the secretary showed the completion of the part of the Temple as planned and the essential unity of the Cause. Warm tribute was paid all committees for their efficient services. Other matters were a report of the new translation of the Book of Iqán as a labor of devotion and love by the Guardian; a warning against the reception of Orientals who lack credentials from a recognized spiritual assembly; information about the rich treasures contained in the History of Nabi, one of the devoted followers of both the Báb and Bahá'u'lláh. This work contains authoritative records of the early days of the Cause, among them being the geneologies of the Báb and Bahá'u'lláh for several generations, also twenty Tablets of the Báb including one to Bahá'u'lláh and another to Himself and the others to the other Letters of the Living. There are photographs and drawings to be printed with this book. Other items of the secretary's report brought out the value and confirmation which go with contributions to the Bahá'í Fund, that needs for construction and other activities may be more adequately met; the organization of seven new spiritual assemblies during the year; a tribute to the late Louis J. Bourgeois, temple architect, described as a most sincere servant of Bahá'u'lláh and a master of design; six hundred and thirty-nine separate matters which were passed upon by the assembly during the past year and a high tribute to Miss Martha Root our great international teacher.

The treasurer's report showed a check for $2,000.00 from the Research Service as a contribution to the Bahá'í Fund, along with their fine report to the trustees of the Temple. The treasurer exhorted us to "massage our financial nerves" and not to let ourselves think, despite the fine progress of the work, that our task is finished. He reminded that about ten thousand dollars a year will now be needed for the upkeep of the Temple.

Devotional Service

During the afternoon of the first day the delegates and friends went to the main auditorium where standing in a silent and reverent attitude, they listened to the prayers and Tablets of Bahá'u'lláh as read and chanted by a little band of angels who occupied the gallery above. An atmosphere of sanctity pervaded this meeting.

"The Lord is in His Holy Temple. Let all the earth keep silence before Him!"

"O people of the earth, advance to Him who hath advanced toward you! Lo! the Promised One hath come!"

"Glory be to Him who hath caused the signs to descend to those who understand!" "Verily I am God! There is no God but Me, the Precious, the Beloved!"

These brief quotations from Tablets may well suggest the solemnity and beauty of the service during which all stood. It is characteristic of a place which will be used for worship, meditation and prayer, where also beautiful music will pay homage to God, but where no speeches will be made. Even the foundation hall is being used only temporarily, for other kinds of meetings, this by permission of the Guardian.

Recent Pilgrimages

Three noble friends who have recently had the joy of visiting the sacred shrines and consulting with the Guardian shared their spiritual treasures. Emphasis was given by them to the value of holding informal conferences for consultation between delegates and non-delegates; the vital necessity of organizing spiritual assemblies when it appears that the number of declared believers in any city aggregates nine, no matter what the racial identity of such believers may be; the urgent need of studying the teachings and of extending our acquaintance and knowledge of the friends; of meeting always in a prayerful spirit; of living the teachings in order to solve the race problem. In conferences we should make a careful investigation and decide only after hearing all sides of a question. A majority should not give up and let people have their way for the sake of peace. Protection comes to the friends through obedience to the divine commands. The friends of God have no idea of what the future has in store for them. This Cause will affect both the political and social life of the whole world.

Another pilgrim told how Shoghi Effendi at a time of difficulty sent aid to both Jews and Arabs in Palestine. Each received his help, but each was unhappy over the assistance extended the other. Each also feared to leave their homes on account of danger. Then it was that the Bahá'ís went to them and served by doing their marketing, thus demonstrating the power of the Cause and impressing its lessons.

Still another spoke of the Greatest Holy Leaf now eighty-five years old, so frail that her life seems to hang by a thread, yet living ever upon the high ethereal plane of spirituality and radiant faith. In the opinion of the Guardian there is no present imminent danger of war. The friends should register the Cause with the government as do the Quakers, committing ourselves to peace. We should be willing to take our part in administrative service of the government but not to do that which requires us to kill our fellow beings.

There are nine great holidays in the Bahá'í Cause. These are the first and tenth and twelfth days of the Rídvan Feast, beginning April 21. This is the greatest celebration of all, marking as it does the Declaration of Bahá'u'lláh. The other holidays are the Nawruz Feast, March 21; the declaration of the Bab, May 23; the ascension of Bahá'u'lláh, May 28; the Martyrdom of the Bab, July 9; the birthday of Bahá'u'lláh, Nov. 12, and the birthday of the Bab, October 25. These occasions and the memorial services held because of them will be generally observed in future and make them all holidays.

The members of the Holy Household with radiant love and obedience turned to Shoghi Effendi after the ascension of 'Abdu'l Bahá and this despite the Guardian's youth. They recognized in him the voice of authority. His extraordinary way of administering affairs attracts the hearts of all who approach him. He is extremely active, rising at six and eats no breakfast. He works all day and takes no luncheon. He takes his dinner at midnight. His way of accepting all difficulties makes his life most beautiful to see.

Babá'i Administration

The special value of Bahá'í administration, the need of training in it and its exercise in a way that will keep all the people of a community busy received much emphasis from the delegates in conference.

Teaching Report

The chairman of the National Teaching Committee announced that the annual report would be presented in several sections. The first was the general teaching activity presented by the Secretary who began her brilliant address by saying: "The Sea of the Love of God is colorless." This was followed by a generalization of the activities in the Eastern States, with stress upon the need of more teachers and funds to defray their expenses; the fact that in one section, as the result of a regional conference thirty-one teachers had been made; account of the happy responses to a questionnaire; the number of classes for study organized; consideration of the vast regions to be covered and the number of workers needed to accomplish the desired end.

The committee of the far West reported intense activity in the San Francisco region on both sides of the bay, with the whole Pacific Coast interested in and helpful in the spread of interracial amity. They recommended that information should be

THE DIVINE ELIXIR

"On that Day God will satisfy them all with His abundance."

—BAHA’U’LLAH.

Baha’i Scriptures, page 149, verse 110.

In a time of world stress and depression perhaps unexampled in history, when many Baha’i hearts are sorely tried with the external problems of life, this divine word flashes upon the consciousness with striking force. We know that the promise of God faileth not, and that this storehouse of divine sustenance is already prepared and ready in the realm of reality. Within the “Sleeves of Might’’ the Hand of God holds the flame which will ignite the lamp of unity upon the earth, but the glass-holder, the burner, the wick and the chimney must first be ready: clean and immaculate; the oil, with its innate fire, must likewise fill the globe of the lamp. Then nothing can prevent the ignition, for a capacity has been set up.

Today, all mankind are enmeshed in the hampering cords of the net they have themselves fashioned, even as shoals of fishes confused and gasping afar from their native element. In a certain sense, the Baha’is are subjected to these destructive forces which have been set in motion by the trend of the race-thought or consciousness. This is a definite force, and there is no escape from it by means of any remedy this consciousness can offer, for it is the working of the law of cause and effect. The minds of statesmen and financial experts, alike, are appalled and impotent to grasp and control the reins of this mad steed that ever plunges more headlong through the barriers that humanity has relied upon so long for stability and composure. Nothing less than this could bring proud nations to the brink of bankruptcy, or reduce millions of men to the necessity of seeking public aid. If we say the pendulum will swing again to the right, the history of past financial depressions bears this out, but their disturbances were less basic and deep-seated. A stronger remedy is necessary to heal the prostrating disease that Baha’u’llah tells us has now brought the race nigh unto dissolution.

Behind the confused panorama of events, the claws of war, financial greed, international speculation, prejudice and above all, fear, have been tearing at the vitals of human civilization. Wholly unbalanced military and naval expenses are consuming the substance of national wealth. Nothing is left for the constructive and creative life. Simultaneous and general disarmament is the material key to a measure of relief from this madness, and we should serve this ideal in a practical and definite way, but the major key is that which unlocks men’s hearts and opens the door to the slumbering spiritual consciousness. The story of Beauty and the Beast may be likened to the existing situation. Beauty is the sleeping reality of human souls. All the world of reality slumbers heavily with her. The Beast is the soul-sick, objective spirit of the age, hideous in his ignorance, unguided and unhappy. Through deep suffering and the gradual realization of his helpless state, stunned and oppressed by the beneficent forces he has so long ignored and disobeyed, he is drawn in the fulness of time and without knowing why, to the palace of Beauty. He beholds her and at last dimly conscious, seeks the kiss of reunion. And lo, she awakens and in that instant he is transformed again into his true manhood, and sees with the eyes of a child of God. Then the earth awakens, the palace of Beauty is adorned, for the objective and subjective man are reunited, the reality of his spirit has resumed its sway, and there is “Light upon Light.”

Let us fully realize the sense in which even the followers of Baha’u’llah are experiencing the common suffering of the race. Our outward and material lives are bound up with the industrial and business limitations of the moment. In this sense, their weakness is our weakness, as is their strength ours. But the world is not mindful of the blessed Word, “God doeth whatsoever He willeth.” This implies the fact of divine intervention in this world. Nevertheless, the Divine Promise quoted at the head of this article is conditioned upon certain action on our part. Reading the text of this great Tablet, all will note that this promise is preceded by these significant words; let us meditate upon every word—

"The light of men is justice; quench it not with the contrary winds of oppression and tyranny. The purpose of justice is the appearance of unity among people. In this excited World, the hand of God’s wisdom is moving, all the books of the world are not sufficient to contain its interpretation.

"If the world is adorned with this mantle, the sun of the saying, ‘On that Day God will satisfy them all with His abundance’ will appear and shine forth from the horizon of the heaven of the world. Know ye the station of this utterance, for it is from the loftiest fruits of the tree of the Supreme Pen. Happy is he who heareth and attaineth.”

The preciousness of unity above all else is the key to the text. Even the Supreme station of justice becomes the handmaiden of the peerless place that unity occupies in this age, for the Divine Unity is the first and greatest of the stations desired by God to enter and reign over human consciousness. Only through this can His Image become imprinted and active upon this earth, and the Kingdom be established on this planet. Upon this fulfilment rests the mighty promise of abundance. This abundance is not material alone, but spiritual in its satisfaction. But the material need is, likewise, a human necessity and a foundation of the order of the world.

We have endeavored to show that no remedy exists today in the present consciousness of the masses of humankind. Yet the divine promise is not to Bahá’ís alone, but to all men. But there must needs be a nucleus which, believing in the Word of God, will establish through their faith and knowledge, the conditions which He has imposed, and thus attract, according to the Divine Law, the Hand of Power and Strength. We must, as never before, make ready the lamp of Unity for that prepared and luminous Flame. What does this mean? No less than a far deeper consciousness of what He has imposed upon us to attain.
The “fire of separation” that here and there divides and cleaves asunder the hearts must be wholly quenched. Sacrifice for one another, the recognition of the reality that dwells within each, candation of all the petty and personal differences that are like wet blankets to the flame of Bahá’í life, are essentials. In other words, the active force of Unity is Love and only this can weld as together to meet the conditions of His Law, to receive the calm light of His Promise, and witness the guiding cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night. Nothing short of this can envelop the friends of God with the Mantle of protection from the destroying forces of the world. God has created the realities that dwell within each of the friends. It is these that are worthy of our holy and consecrated love and service. From this standpoint, the eyes no longer occupy themselves with the differences of personalities which, in their turn are but, at the most, fleeting shadows.

Let us from this hour turn to the realities. This is the Divine Elixir for every outer affliction. And through the attainment of this degree of devotion, the friends of God will become real servants of all mankind, and attain their true destiny. Then the lamp of Unity will be ignited, the Divine Abundance will pour forth upon the united hearts and through them upon the world of humanity.

IN MEMORIAM

Mr. John Bierma, one of the much loved Chicago friends, passed on suddenly July 3rd in Los Angeles, where, because of ill health, he had made his home for the past two years. All those who knew him will greatly miss the charm of his truly Bahá’í character.
Mr. Bierma received the Message in Chicago, where he also had the privileges of meeting ‘Abdu’l-Bahá in 1912.
We extend to Mrs. John Bierma and to Mr. Bierma’s parents our loving sympathy.

On July 16th, Mrs. Frances Chase Schneider, a much loved member of the Minneapolis Assembly, ascended into the Abhá Kingdom. Mrs. Schneider received the Message from Lua Gestinger about twenty-five years ago, and has been an ardent worker in the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh ever since. Mrs.
Schneider’s many friends throughout the country will feel her physical absence very keenly, and to them and her family we tender sincere sympathy.
THE PLIGHT OF MANKIND

A LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

Compelled by the need of a Faith which, as Shoghi Effendi has said, is still in its infancy, the members of the National Spiritual Assembly before this time have communicated with their fellow believers mainly in matters related to the internal affairs of the Cause. Neither time nor strength has been granted us to refer in any useful way to those larger problems pressing upon the Cause by reason of events and conditions in the outside world. A certain measure of time has apparently been providentially vouchsafed to the Baha'is during which might be founded a mission, let us study and ponder consciously the laws, the counsels and the advices revealed by Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and in our local meetings strive for so true a unity and so prayerful an attitude that we may be collectively inspired to solve whatever spiritual and material problems may arise. To say, "I accept the Cause—I believe..."
in the Revelation of Bahá’u’lláh” is not enough. Let us, through the mysterious power of consultation, limitless in its possibilities, endeavor to find ways of life wherein our faith, yielding up the station of the seed, may become a strong and fruitful tree.

The Master has said that the secrets of the economic world are divine in nature. “The disease which afflicts the body politic is lack of love and absence of altruism. In the hearts of men no real love is found . . . . The spiritual teachings of the religion of God can alone create this love, unity and accord in human hearts . . . . Until the minds of men become united, no important matter can be accomplished. At present Universal Peace is a matter of great importance, but unity of conscience is essential, so that the foundation of this matter may become secure, its establishment firm and its edifice strong.”

Unlike the social plans promoted by various governments, religious leaders and public agencies to remedy the present ills of mankind, the teachings of Bahá’u’lláh aim first at the hearts, and make social evolution depend upon the mysterious influences of the spirit and not merely upon outer laws and ordinances. His World Order, so rational and complete, is still concealed from unbelievers who have abandoned the ways of God. Ours is the sacred task of attaining that “unity of conscience” which alone will release the beneficent forces of humanity, and make the Bahá’í community a living proof that Bahá’u’lláh sent forth the creative Word.

IMPORTANT RECENT MESSAGE
FROM SHOGHI EFFENDI DATED JUNE 20, 1931

"Shoghi Effendi believes that the Temple and teaching work should be continued to be regarded as the twin outstanding activities of the Believers in America. Everything else should be subordinated to this urgent need. The work of applying the exterior ornamentation to the completed structure should proceed steadily and as speedily as possible. Shoghi Effendi feels that the full effect and influence of the Temple can be revealed only when the work in its entirety is accomplished. All the beauty and glory of the Temple depends upon the exterior garment of stone with which it is to be adorned, while the consummation of the task will in itself act as a magnet that will draw the promised blessings of the Master. Nothing short of continued self-sacrifice can achieve this end. In fact, the greater the obstacles in our way, the greater will be the reward we are destined to reap. The present financial depression should be regarded both as a challenge and an opportunity to prove the reality and potency of our faith. Shoghi Effendi will continue to pray for the American Believers who are destined to render still more glorious services to the Cause in the future."

THE BUILDING OF THE TEMPLE

"When the structure (Temple) shall be completed a new era will be inaugurated in the history of the Cause in that country."

Thus writes the Guardian in a letter dated May 31, 1931.

With these inspiring words our Guardian urges us to continue with renewed efforts the building of the Temple.

The delegates to the Twenty-Third Annual Convention the first of last May held a dedicatory service under the dome in the recently completed superstructure just nineteen years to a day after the consecration of the Temple site by our beloved Master.

A new spirit among the believers has come from the completion of the second step in the building of the Temple. Its simple beauty, dignity and impressiveness not only brings a renewed sense of happiness and assurance to the believers who have had the privilege to look upon it, but it has also awakened a remarkable spirit of interest and gratification among the people of that section of the North Shore of Chicago.

The Guardian now points out the importance of continuing the work and the spiritual blessings that will go out to the world as the result of the fulfillment of the Master’s promise when the present structure is completed.

Let us therefore arise with true unity, as one soul in many bodies, to co-operate with the National Spiritual Assembly in the carrying out of the new Plan for Unified Action. Through full cooperation in loving unity; each and every believer contributing of their time, efforts and resources, in His Spirit, will our activities bear early fruit.

Each and every believer throughout America will receive from the National Spiritual Assembly a printed folder which will briefly set forth the new Plan. It should be noted that this Plan includes the budget for the next three years with provision for the completion of the Temple and all of the national activities. While the Plan sets forth the spiritual objective given in average figures, the confirmations will depend upon the friends and the Plan become fulfilled only in so far as each and every believer participates. Let our contributions be given according to our resources. A contribution of nine cents a month given in the spirit of loving service and sacrifice will be indeed blest.

In a cablegram to the recent (1931) Annual Convention the Guardian sets forth our great objective for the coming year in the following words:

"Fervently appeal all associated with this holy enterprise, consummate their achievement by upholding whatever measures National representatives may deem necessary for provision exterior ornamentation. Inestimable blessings shall crown America's sustained self-sacrificing endeavors." — (Signed) SHOGHI.

ALLEN McDaniel.

A NEW PLAN OF UNIFIED ACTION
TO COMPLETE THE BAHÁ’I TEMPLE AND PROMOTE THE CAUSE IN AMERICA

Reprint of a Pamphlet issued by The National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada, June, 1931

To the Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada
Beloved friends in El-Abhá:

All the believers who gathered together in the spirit of consecration in the first meeting held at the Temple, realized that this event signaled a great outpouring of the spirit of unity and devotion upon the Cause in America. That the occasion was truly providential is clear when we recall the fact that the meeting took place exactly nineteen years after the day when the Master Himself stood on that very site to give His Blessing to the glorious task.

Now the members of the National Spiritual Assembly lay before the believers a new “plan of unified action” as a necessary measure for the completion of the Temple, in accordance with the message from Shoghi Effendi quoted at the close of the preceding article by Allen McDaniel.

We realize fully that the coming three years will be a time of difficulty and anxiety for every believer. If the purpose of our collective endeavor were anything less than service to the Cause of God, if we had to rely only upon our human resources and capacities, the magnitude of the task before us would be truly appalling.

But such considerations are swept away in the knowledge that the institution of the Mashriqu’t-Adhkár is one of the fundamental laws of the Manifestation. His gift of order, of peace, of brotherly love to a distracted world. By our association in the sacrificial effort to make that all-powerful law a living reality “on earth as in heaven,” we can draw closer to the divine Center of peace and assurance, find refuge in the Covenant, and be sustained by unfailing Guidance even amid the tribulations of a disordered, collapsing world.

The time of words and idle thoughts has passed, and the time of deeds has come. Every believer is urgently requested to make himself familiar with the essential facts of the Plan, and so order his or her own life that the fullest measure of sacrifice will be the outcome during the next three years.

Below we give the Financial Summary of the Plan, which shows that the monthly income of the National Fund, to fulfill the Guardian’s standard for American believers, must be $14,722.

This means that the average donation from 1600 believers must be $9.00 per month. Some of the friends can and will contribute much more than this, some can only contribute a small fraction of that amount. But let each of us make supreme effort to take the largest possible part in the most important achievement laid upon the Baha’is of the United States and Canada.

Now is the moment to recall the Master’s words, that the prophets and holy ones yearn above all to render some service to the Cause of Baha’u’llah. Future generations, looking back, will envy us this opportunity to assist in laying the very foundations of world peace. Ours the privilege of contributing to order amid disorder, to faith amid general disillusion, to stability amid chaos.

In order to make this collective effort the central point of our Baha’i activity, the National Assembly requests each Local Spiritual Assembly and every Baha’i group to devote all Nineteen-Day Feasts during the three year period of this Plan to the subject of the Temple. Let the readings be chosen so as to reveal its meaning more fully to us all, and inspire us with power to complete its construction, within and without, before the Convention of 1934. Let this be the subject of our consultation, the goal of our endeavors, the living ideal of our inmost hearts.

We await confidently your response to this appeal.

Yours faithfully,

THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY.

FINANCIAL SUMMARY OF THE PLAN OF UNIFIED ACTION 1931-1934

“We must be like the fountain or spring that is continually emptying itself of all that it has and is continually being refilled from an invisible source. To be continually giving out for the good of our fellow undeterred by fear of poverty and reliant on the unfailing bounty of the Source of all wealth and all good—this is the secret of right living.”—Shoghi Effendi.

To complete the Mashriqu’-Adhkár $425,000

Total Fund of the Plan $530,000

Annual Budget of the National Assembly, for all its activities exclusive of Temple construction: Teaching, Inter-Racial Unity, Convention, Baha’i Magazine, Archives, Baha’i News, Temple Maintenance, Green Acre, Geyserville Summer School, Legal, Publishing, International Contribution, Administration, etc. $35,000

For the three year period 105,000

Total required yearly $176,666

Total required monthly $14,722

Average donation monthly each believer, $9.00.

NOTE: Temple construction will proceed steadily during this period as the accumulation of funds allows the National Assembly to vote funds to the Temple Trustees. The immediate requirement (by October 1, 1931) is to complete the heating apparatus so that the structure will be preserved during the winter season. Contracts for external decoration will then be placed as rapidly as possible, and the additional electrical and other mechanical equipment installed as actually required.

CENTRAL STATES SUMMER SCHOOL

In Eastern Michigan, twelve miles east of Flint, three miles south of Davison, and about fifty miles northwest of Detroit, on the 270 acre farm of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Eggleston, there will be held this Summer from Aug. 1st to Aug. 9th incl., a Bahá’í Summer School primarily planned for the training of teachers to work in the Central States district. It is hoped that this effort may be confirmed and that souls will arise under the guidance of God who will dedicate themselves to the spreading of the tidings of the Kingdom throughout all those regions. Lodgings and two meals will be furnished for $10 and $12 weekly. Arrangements will also be made for those wishing to spend the week-ends or for only a part of the session. Dinners may be obtained at a nearby town at a moderate cost. Automobiles will transport the friends. Those wishing to bring tents and camping equipment will find delightful sites.

The Eggleston property is situated on a main highway, Route M 15 from Detroit. It is important that those wishing to attend should write for reservations immediately. Address all communications to the Sec’y of the Committee, Mrs. Helen Whitney Eggleston, 201 E. Kirby St., Detroit, Mich.

EGYPT

Bahá’í deep love and greetings to all the beloved of our dear Guardian. We are glad to take this opportunity to extend the sincere congratulations of the Egyptian believers to their very dear brothers in America for the Ridván and happy New Bahá’í Year, wishing them to be more and more inclined to the teachings of Bahá’u’lláh and following the steps of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi in promulgating the heavenly Word.

A. Rushdy, Secretary,
National Spiritual Assembly.

PALESTINE

On the 21st of March the Bahá’ís of Haifa celebrated the Naw-rúz at a meeting on Mt. Carmel which was attended by the Guardian. Among others were Jenah Motlak and Dr. Hakim from Persia, Mr. Nushukati from Port-Said. We have also had with us a large group of American friends, among them Miss Wright, Miss Doollittle, Mrs. True, Mrs. Harding, Mrs. Barton, Mrs. Mills, the Misses Thompson, Miss Jack, Mrs. Haegg and others.

Our readers might be interested to know that during February a group of students who are sent by the Persian Government to study in Europe visited Haifa. The majority of them were Bahá’ís as well as their officer and they did not lose the opportunity of visiting the Shrines and calling to meet the Guardian.

The Pilgrims visiting are already appreciating the rare experience which is now available to all to spend the night in the Mansion of Bahá’u’lláh in Bahji. They find it still another opportunity to visualize the atmosphere in which Bahá’u’lláh spent His closing years and to drink deep from that ever-flowing fountain of inspiration.

The middle room of the three which have been constructed adjacent to the Shrines of the Bab and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá on Mt. Carmel, has been so arranged by the Guardian as to contain some of the pictures and writings reminiscent of the early Bahá’ís both in the East and the West, and will by and by become a place that the friends will visit with great and increasing interest. The gardens around the Shrines are now in full bloom with the coming of spring and they form a heavenly surrounding for the last resting places of those much loved and much adored leaders of the Faith.

The Guardian is in very good health and always busy with his correspondence and with meeting his many friends from all parts of the world. The Greatest Holy Leaf who has been unwell for long, has much improved in health and has stood the cold of the winter very well. Though confined much of the time to bed her presence leaves with the visitor a sweet feeling that it is very hard to express.

The Bahá’ís in Haifa join in wishing you all the happiest Naw-rúz greetings.

Spiritual Assembly of Haifa, Sohel Afsan, Secretary.
March, 1931.
PERSIA

It is with great pleasure and satisfaction that the friends in Persia have been sharing with us the happy news of the increasing liberty and freedom they now enjoy in their country. Ever since the establishment of the new regime and the enlightened rule of the Shah, the Baha'is all throughout Persia have found themselves in greater freedom as regards their religious faith than ever before. Today we find conditions still more advanced. Those who are not Baha'is but have always admired and respected its principles and also its adherents, find themselves in a position to express publicly through the press their personal feelings on the subject. Only those who understood fully the conditions in which the Baha'is lived in the past in Persia, can now realize the full import of such an unprecedented event in the history of the Cause in that country. We give below the exact translation of an article that appeared on the front page of a daily paper in Tabriz:

"They write from Tehran. On the night of the 28th of Shaban, corresponding to the 28th of Deymiah, in a very imposing building at the end of the Moizul-Sultan Avenue, a very important meeting was held by the Baha'is to commemorate the martyrdom of the Báb, which occurred on the 28th of Shaban 1266 A.H. in Tabriz. There was a very large gathering composed of people of all classes and as each entered the two halls in which the meeting was held, he took a seat on the first empty chair without any consideration of the position of that seat. Between the two adjacent halls a platform was arranged facing the seats which were all occupied. The audience was very quiet but signs of deep emotion could be detected in their faces. At the appointed hour the meeting was opened by a prayer which was chanted in a very sweet and appealing tone. Then one of the speeches which 'Abdu'l-Baha had delivered in Europe was read and was followed by a Tablet which 'Abdu'l-Baha had revealed for that same occasion, viz. the martyrdom of the Báb.

"After that Agha Yazdani, in accordance with the published program delivered a long address.

"After that speech there was an interval during which tea and cocoa were served to all present while the children sang beautiful songs. Then Agha Fazil Mazandarani rose and gave a detailed account of the life and the mission of the Báb describing some of His great and voluminous writings which He left to the world in spite of the fact that most of the time He was either being tortured or actually in prison.

"The above described meeting which was conducted in a most quiet and touching manner, and which showed deep spiritual feeling among those present, was concluded by a short poem and then the reading of a prayer. Indeed the whole thing reflected a world full of meaning and earnestness.

"Truly the oppression and the horror of the despotic regime in old Persia was in a most horrible intensity, and it always tried to kill and suppress every attempt at reform whether spiritual or for the material progress of the people. Unfortunately the province of Azerbaijan, whose inhabitants have always been active and earnest and have always welcomed every means to progress, was chosen to commit this horrible act, and bears the blame for it in the history of Persia. But now Azerbaijan with its spirit of magnanimity must attempt to compensate for the past."

"Entrance into the Kingdom is through the love of God, through detachment, through holiness and chastity, through truthfulness, purity, steadfastness, faithfulness and the sacrifice of life."—'ABDU'L-BAHÁ

After a visit to the Holy Land, where one seems to have entered an inner sanctuary, one returns to the "outside world" somewhat stunned as when suddenly awakened from a pleasant dream where being is blended into a universal consciousness, to the stern reality of the every-day existence in a whirling world of contradictions and strife. Who will not agree that it is pleasant to drop the burdens of life when leaving the western shores and entering Palestine there become lost in the spiritual atmosphere that pervades the land. For he who loses himself finds himself, paradoxical as it may seem.

Palestine where so many who "walked with God" have lived and taught, is indeed a hallowed spot, and this "presence" is brought into an active reality for this generation, a renewed reality, through the existence and power of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá who have formed here a center of attraction for the entire world. And we now have the intimate privilege of contacting with those souls who have helped, by their loving care and sacrifices, to establish this Ark of Deliverance. So one is verily drawn into a vortex of spiritual thought and experiences in this Holy Spot that stir into consciousness the latent possibilities and desires of the mind and soul... But it is only when the perspective is enlarged by distance and a review of experiences is possible, that one more fully realizes what blessings have been bestowed and what benefits derived from a visit to the Holy Land and the Holy Shrines.

Babij—"a few miles from 'Akka—where Bahá'u'lláh lived a part of the time after leaving confinement in 'Akka, and where He passed away, is truly a "place of prayer," as a casual visitor remarked, while looking from the veranda of the "mansion" where the extended and marvelous view is truly inspiring, and as he "breathed" the atmosphere that pervades this wonderful spot... We received from Mr. Hall of Manchester, England, an interesting clipping taken from John O'Groat Journal, a review of The Baha'i World. It gives a very broad and sympathetic understanding of the Cause, drawing attention to the basic principles proclaimed, to its teachings of fellowship, tolerance and justice; mentions the building of the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar, and remarks upon the "rich and varied contents of this volume."

In a letter from Dr. Grossmann we learn that the group of staunch believers at Eschlingen, Germany, are building a Bahá'i Home, almost entirely constructed by themselves. It will be fittingly inaugurated May 24th of this year while the N. S. A. of Germany is in session. "It is a small house, containing a spacious meeting-hall, a small kitchen, a bedroom and a large attic for sleeping." Dr. Grossmann speaks of the zeal and fresh energy that is inspiring the friends at present, and feels that the Cause in Germany has entered a new period of development. He also writes of the encouraging growth in their meetings together. We thank Dr. and Frau Grossmann for their helpful interest in the International Bureau...

The Bureau was able to be of assistance to the National Spiritual Assembly of the United States and Canada on two occasions during the year: in November we translated and sent to the European countries a letter concerning those who desire to immigrate to America. Again in January a letter was translated into German and circulated in Germany.

We hope the Friends throughout the baby world will avail themselves of the opportunity the conferred obligation by the Guardian offers to the Bu-rean of being the “connective link” between all the Bahá’í Centres. . .

Secretary International Bureau.

GERMANY

The ninth Convention of the Bahá’ís in Germany called for Whitsun tide, progressed in the Spirit of joyous harmony and in the sense of pure brotherhood. . .

The election for the members to the National Spiritual Assembly took place in the Bahá’í Bureau, the following members were elected and their names follow alphabetically:

Mrs. Marta Brauna, of Karlsruhe.
Mr. Julius Brueckner, of Goettingen.
Mr. Paul Gollner, of Stuttgart.
Dr. Herman Grossmann, of Weinheim.
Miss Edith Horn, of Frankfurt-on-the-Main.
Miss Anna Koecklin, of Esslingen.
Mr. Theo. Lehne, of Berlin.
Mrs. Alice Schwarz-Seilovo, of Stuttgart.
Mr. Karl Schweizer, of Zuffenhausen.

The following cable-greeting was received from Shoghi Effendi, the Guardian of the Teachings of Bahá’u’lláh: “Haifa—Schwarzwaldstrasse-Stuttgart. Convey convention delegates expression profound admiration constancy German believers overjoyed their successful resistance severe trials assure them loving continued prayers.” (Signed) SHOGHI.

Filled with a new active happiness, the friends pledged themselves to sincere co-operation and for the construction of the Great Kingdom of Peace of Bahá’u’lláh.

(Translated by H. G. Pauli, New York City, from Sonne Der Wahrheit, June, 1931.)

From Lahore, India, comes a splendid publication called The Bahá’í Movement. It gives a comprehensive summary of the principles of the Cause and its history, and will no doubt prove a very valuable aid in answering the questions of the seeker.

The letters and News Letters received from Lahore, Teheran, Geneva, Haifa, Germany and many other centers, have been the cause of much joy, bringing, as they do, word of the progress of the Cause and the unity of the friends in all parts of the world. We hope that these refreshing bulletins will continue to pour in.

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. Claudia Coles, our beloved pioneer Bahá’í sister, passed away at her home in London on May 25th. Since last September Claudia had not been at all well, she was extremely frail, and failed much during the winter, to such an extent that she was not able to make the long trips to meetings. She grew weaker daily, and finally went to her eternal and radiant life.

One of her outstanding qualities was her generosity. One day a relative gave her a thousand dollars, and she rushed with it as quickly as she could to Mrs. de Lagnel, who was then in charge of Temple funds here, and said excitedly, “Here Lady, send this all to the Temple right away.” She was at the time working in the Government service here and was not wealthy. And that was not all she gave, either. She was wholly and absolutely devoted to the Word of God and was willing at all times to sacrifice for it.

Her spiritual enthusiasm was one of her greatest charms. She never was really very strong, and many of us remember how she would rush home from the office when she lived here, and give an afternoon tea to which she would invite many strangers. It was on such occasions that she would shine radiantly as a teacher. She was brilliant and at times reach exalted heights. She was unique, fearless and indeed, she was one who always heralded the straight Teachings. Bahá’u’lláh’s words, “Proclaim My Message before the people and do not fear,” might be considered her slogan, if you can use such a term about spiritual things. She knew the teachings and she had courage.

A Memorial Service for her has been held or is going to be held in every large center in this country. She was well known. Her good deeds have been legion; the half will never be known, for she was not one to herald these things. She gave liberally and spontaneously to everything that was for the Cause, and did her best to help those who were hungry and distressed. She never thought of herself; had she done so, she would have put into practice the divine injunction “Economy is a great treasure,”—but she did possess and practice that other divine law “Generosity is a quality of God.” She was generous with herself; in giving herself to service at all times even when she was tired and sick enough to be in bed; and she was generous with all of her possessions.

She will be forever remembered, for her deeds and life are bound up with the history of the Cause in this country and elsewhere.

MARIAM HANEY.

The funeral service for Claudia Coles was held on May 27th. A letter received by Mr. Lestrevor reads: “Your cable came in time and I immediately bought flowers and placed cards upon them, stating they were from the American Bahá’í Friends, with their deep love.

The cable was read during the Bahá’í funeral service, which was held previous to the trip into the country for the service at a little church and interment in the country cemetery near where her daughter has a cottage. The day was wondrous, bright and sunny and the friends came a goodly number—considering that the service was at noon. Lady Blomfield, Miss Irwin and Mrs. Ford all took part in the service, as well as several others. A cable from Shoghi Effendi was read: ‘Deeply grieved passing such staunch indefatigable Bahá’í worker. Assure her daughter, relatives, friends, heartfelt condolences, fervent prayers.’ (Signed) SHOGHI.

ANNE B. ROMER.

Word comes of the passing of two members of the original group formed in Spokane twenty-four years ago, by Mrs. Isabella Brittingham. Mr. Washington McCormick, passed into the Bahá’í Kingdom on November 27th, 1930, while engaged in giving the message, and Mr. Leon A. L’Ehmann at his home in Lynwood, California, on May 10th, 1931.

On Friday, May 15th, the body of W. H. Cline was laid to rest at Burlingame, California. A number of San Francisco and East Bay friends were present at the last ceremony, where Episcopal and Bahá’í prayers were offered for the departed. To Mrs. Cline, an active worker in the Burlingame Bahá’í group, we send our heartfelt sympathy.

On April 3rd, Mrs. Elizabeth Scheffield, a beloved Bahá’í sister of Brooklyn, N. Y., received the summons to enter the unseen world. Mrs. Scheffield has been a faithful, devoted, comprehending Bahá’í for ten years or more, during which time her estimate of life and standards of living reflected the teachings of Bahá’u’lláh which were so dear to her.
ANNOUNCEMENT
BABA'I MAGAZINE
The Business Manager, Mrs. McDaniel, has given permission that the Baba'I Magazine may be sent out for $2.50 a year instead of $3.00 a year to all new subscribers during the months of July and August. This is to try out a plan encouraging new subscriptions during the Summer months. Some of the friends may have been thinking of giving a subscription to some friend or friends and this reduction will mean a saving for them and a pleasure, we believe, to the recipient of the Magazine.

Pauline A. Hannen.

IMPORTANT NOTICE
The Committee for Vol. IV of the Baba'I World would like to hear from the friend who was in Salt Lake City at the time that 'Abdu'l-Baha visited there so that some facts relating to that visit may be recorded in the Baba'I World. If anyone has any information on this subject it will be greatly appreciated if shared with this committee.

Mrs. Nellie S. Frenci, Chairman Baba'I World Committee, Vol. IV., 501 Bellefontaine St., Pasadena, California.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE ANNOUNCEMENTS
GUARDIAN TRANSLATES NABIL'S HISTORY OF EARLY DAYS OF CAUSE
"THE DAWN BREAKERS"
The National Spiritual Assembly has recently received a manuscript of Nabil's Narrative, translated and edited by Shoghi Effendi, which represents eight months of constant work on his part. The Guardian has made this supreme effort and sacrifice, in order that this important book should be ready for circulation as soon as possible. He feels that the time has come when the world must be made familiar with the facts connected with the history of the Cause. It will be the most valuable historical document ever available to the Western believers. It contains accounts of thrilling episodes which took place in the early days of the Cause; accounts of the inspired deeds of those first to accept the Teachings, who, fired with zeal left everything to follow the Bab and Baha'u'llah, and proclaim their allegiance to their Cause, and who later with exalted joy gave their lives.

The Standard Edition will be bound in green leather and stamped in gold. There will be a colored Frontispiece, showing the Shrine of the Bab, and twenty reproductions of the original Tablets of the Bab written to the Nineteen Letters of the Living and the one to Baha'u'llah. There will be two hundred pages of illustrations and approximately four hundred and fifteen pages of text. The price will be $7.50.

There will also be a limited Edition of one hundred and fifty copies. Shoghi Effendi has graciously offered to autograph this de luxe Edition. Each volume will bear a serial number from one to one hundred and fifty. It will be beautifully bound in green morocco leather (the color of the Bab's family) lined in silk moire, tooled in gold and printed on special paper. The price of the Autograph Edition will be $35.00, and will be sold by subscription only.

In a short time every believer will receive a notice of advance subscription. The National Spiritual Assembly, through the Publishing Committee, earnestly urge all to purchase a copy of this book, for by doing so they will be carrying out the expressed wishes of the Guardian. The proceeds received from the sale of the book will go to the Temple Fund. It is estimated that the printing cost will be more than $8,000.00. If every one will order a copy, as soon as they receive the advance sale notice, the whole amount will be obtained, and they will at the same time be contributing toward the Temple Fund. You will note that a 10% discount will be given until Dec. 1st, 1931, for the Standard Edition, making the price $6.75.

SPECIAL NOTICE
PRAYER BOOK-To be sold for 10c. Bound in brown paper. Contains a selection of prayers for daily use. The Publishing Committee will fill orders in lots of 10 for $1.00 only. Smaller quantities can be obtained from your Local Assembly.

WHAT IS THE BABA'I MOVEMENT?—By Dr. Esselmont. Small leaflet recently reprinted. The Publishing Committee will fill orders in lots of 500 for $3.25; 1,000 for $6.50.

THE BABA'I MOVEMENT—Bound in green paper. Giving an outline of the history of the Bab's Faith and quotations from the Utterances. Sold in lots of 10 for $1.00. Single copies can be obtained from your Local Assembly.

PRAYER BOOK—Bound in blue paper. A new edition has recently been completed and ready for distribution. The Publishing Committee wishes to announce that it now contains the latest translation by Shoghi Effendi of the Ahmad Tablet. Price, 50c.

HIDDEN WORDS—Bound in blue cloth, formerly 50c, has now been reduced to 35c.

THE REALITY OF MAN—Bound in dark red paper. A compilation from the words of 'Abdu'l-Baha, relative to the mind, soul and spirit. Price, 50c.

STAR TABLET OF THE BAB—Reproduced on colored cardboard. The script is made in the shape of a star, and is said to contain in many derivations of the word "Baha." A most interesting Bahai document to have framed. Price, 50c.

SPECIAL MENTION
TREASURES OF THE EAST—The Life of Nine Oriental Countries, by Zia Bagdadi. The author has succeeded in creating an interest in the life and customs of many Eastern countries. He has also given many interesting pictures of important scenes in Bab's history, familiar to all who have visited the Holy Land. This book can be obtained through the Publishing Committee. Price, $2.00 net.

THE PROMULGATION OF UNIVERSAL PEACE—In view of the present unsettled world conditions, the Committee deems it important to remind the friends that the two volumes entitled Promulgation of Universal Peace contain 'Abdu'l-Baha's direct Message to the American people, expounded in leading Universities and Churches and dealing with the inmost reality of our social problems. In no other country did the beloved Master so fully expound the character of the New Civilization to arise by the power of Baha'u'llah.

Many students of the Teachings have possibly not yet secured copies of these volumes for their Bab's Library. If unobtainable from your Local Assembly, they can be ordered from the Publishing Committee. Per Volume, $2.50. The two volumes, $5.00.

FOUNDATION OF WORLD UNITY—A careful selection was made a few years ago from the Promulgation of Universal Peace and published under the title of Foundation of World Unity. This book can be recommended to those who desire a brief presentation of 'Abdu'l-Baha's addresses. 112 pages, paper cover, 75c.

THE NEW WORLD ORDER

Words of Shoghi Effendi

Dear friends: Feeble though our Faith may now appear in the eyes of men, who either denounce it as an offshoot of Islam, or contemptuously ignore it as one more of those obscure sects that abound in the West, this priceless gem of Divine Revelation, now still in its embryonic state, shall evolve within the shell of His law, and shall forge ahead, undivided and unimpaired, till it embraces the whole of mankind. Only those who have already recognized the supreme station of Bahá'ú'lláh, only those whose hearts have been touched by His love, and have become familiar with the potency of His spirit, can adequately appreciate the value of this Divine Economy—His inestimable gift to mankind.

Leaders of religion, exponents of political theories, governors of human institutions, who at present are witnessing with perplexity and dismay the bankruptcy of their ideas, and the disintegration of their handiwork, would do well to turn their gaze to the Revelation of Bahá'ú'lláh, and to meditate upon the World Order, which, lying enshrined in His teachings, is slowly and imperceptibly rising amid the welter and chaos of present-day civilization. They need have no doubt or anxiety regarding the nature, the origin, or validity of the institutions which the adherents of the Faith are building up throughout the world. For these are imbedded in the teachings themselves, unadulterated and unobscured by unwarrantable inferences or unauthorized interpretations of His Word.

How pressing and sacred the responsibility that now weighs upon those who are already acquainted with these teachings! How glorious the task of those who are called upon to vindicate their truth, and demonstrate their practicability to an unbelieving world! Nothing short of an immovable conviction in their divine origin, and their uniqueness in the annals of religion; nothing short of an unwavering purpose to execute and apply them to the administrative machinery of the Cause, can be sufficient to establish their reality, and insure their success. How vast is the Revelation of Bahá'ú'lláh! How great the magnitude of His blessings showered upon humanity in this day! And yet, how poor, how inadequate our conception of their significance and glory! This generation stands too close to so colossal a Revelation to appreciate, in their full measure, the infinite possibilities of His Faith, the unprecedented character of His Cause, and the mysterious dispensations of His Providence.

In the Ighân, Bahá'ú'lláh, wishing to emphasize the transcendent character of this new Day of God, reinforces the strength of His argument by His reference to the text of a correct and authorized tradition, which reveals the following: "Knowledge is twenty-and-seven letters. All that the Prophets have thus far revealed are two letters. None thus far hath known besides these two letters. But when the Qů'm shall arise, He will cause the remaining twenty-and-five letters to be made manifest." And then immediately follow these confirming and illuminating words of Bahá'ú'lláh: "Consider: He hath declared knowledge to consist of twenty-and-seven letters and regarded all the Prophets, from Adam even unto Muhammad, the 'Seal,' as expounders of only two letters thereof. He also saith that the Qů'm will reveal all the remaining twenty-and-five letters. Behold from this utterance how great and lofty is His station. His rank excelleth that of all the Prophets and His Revelation transcendeth the comprehension and understanding of all their chosen ones. A Revelation, of which the Prophets of God, His Saints and chosen ones, have either not been informed or which, in pursuance of God's inscrutable decree, they have not disclosed—such a Revelation, these vile and vulgar people have sought to measure with their own deficient minds, their own deficient learning and understanding."

In another passage of the same Book, Bahá'ú'lláh, referring to the transformation effected by every Revelation in the ways, thoughts and manners of the people, reveals these words: "Is not the object of every Revelation to effect a transformation in the whole character of mankind, a transformation that shall manifest itself both outwardly and inwardly, that shall affect both its inner life and external conditions? For if the character of mankind be not changed, the futility of God's universal manifestation would be apparent."

Did not Christ Himself, addressing His disciples, utter these words? "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. Howbeit when He, the Spirit of truth, is come, He will guide you into all truth."
From the text of this recognized tradition, as well as from the words of Christ, as attested by the Gospel, every unprejudiced observer will readily apprehend the magnitude of the Faith which 'Abdu'l-Bahá has revealed, and recognize the staggering weight of the claim He has advanced. No wonder that 'Abdu'l-Bahá has portrayed in such lurid colors the fierceness of the agitation that shall center in the days to come round the nascent institutions of the Faith. We can now but faintly discern the beginnings of that turmoil which the rise and ascendency of the Cause of God is destined to cast in the world.

Whether in the ferocious and insidious campaign of repression and cruelty which the rulers of Russia have launched against the upholders of the Faith under their rule; whether in the unyielding animosity with which the Shiites of Islam are trampling upon the sacred rights of the adherents of the Cause in connection with 'Abdu'l-Bahá's House in Baghdad; whether in the impotent rage which has impelled the ecclesiastical leaders of the Sunni sect of Islam to expel our Egyptian brethren from their midst—in all of these we can perceive the manifestations of the relentless hate which peoples, religions, and governments entertain for so pure, so innocent, so glorious a Faith.

Ours is the duty to ponder these things in our hearts, to strive to widen our vision, and to deepen our comprehension of this Cause, and to arise, resolutely and unreservedly, to play our part, however small, in this greatest drama of the world's spiritual history.

SAN FRANCISCO

The presence in San Francisco of Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler has afforded her numerous audiences a keen spiritual and intellectual delight. Of especial significance to Bahá'ís were the lectures on administrative aspects of the Cause, stressing the aim and function of Bahá'í Communities. Mrs. Kehler showed that consultation in the Bahá'í sense of the term is a thing hitherto unknown in history; that it implies, not the endeavor to foster one's individual opinion, but the joining of one's opinion with that of others. That every Bahá'í Community is fitted to carry on from within itself the work of the Cause however inadequate that community may feel itself to be; that the real Bahá'ís are those who are the humblest, the most self-effacing, the most serving; that a working discipline of love is indispensable for establishing new standards in society.

Mrs. Kehler has spoken during eleven months three hundred and twenty-nine times, assisted in confirming twenty-one souls; obtained over fifteen columns of publicity for the Cause; broadcast and conducted college classes. She says, "The spirit among the western friends is courageous, spontaneous and joyful; it has been a glorious privilege to work with them." Mrs. Kehler has started on another teaching tour and will visit Hawaii, Japan, China, Manila, Australia, Java, Borneo, Burma, India, Egypt, Haifa and England. For the information of her many friends Mrs. Kehler's permanent address is: Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, Vassar Club, 130 E. 57th St., New York City, N. Y.

In response to the Guardian's instructions that we study economics and sociology in the light of the Bahá'í Teachings, the Inter-Bay study class is preparing an adequate course in those subjects, with the aim of investigating modern problems. A practical feature of the course is the establishment of a Bahá'í storehouse, and the forming of a committee to regulate the work, in order to co-operate with those institutions now meeting these questions. Assistance has already been rendered to many groups and individuals.

The Berkeley Bahá'ís have made a practice of united prayer for those who are sick or in need, and have recently been able to help several invalids in a manner which doctors have referred to as "miraculous." As Bahá'ís, we are instructed to consult competent physicians when we are ill but we know that there is a point where even the most skillful doctors fail, and that prayer is then the only hope.

CHICAGO

The new address of the Bahá'í Community of Chicago is Room 903, 116 S. Michigan Ave. The new headquarters is filling a long-felt want in this community. The room is open daily and here are found books for study and for sale, a lending library and a gracious hostess to meet the inquirers. There are evening study classes. The Nine-teen-Day Feasts are held here and each Wednesday there is a half-hour noon meeting at which short addresses on the Cause are given, and each Friday noon a prayer service. Every third Wednesday in the month a reception is tendered to the Bahá'ís and their friends. Tea is served and questions relative to the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh are discussed. These activities, although only recently inaugurated, show a most encouraging attendance.

The friends everywhere will be rejoiced to know of the great interest in the Bahá'í Cause that is being aroused by the Temple. The attendance at the Sunday afternoon public meetings has become so large that there are scarcely enough chairs to accommodate the listeners. On the afternoon of July 12th, at the three-thirty o'clock meeting, the Foundation Hall was filled to capacity with an intensely interested audience. At four-thirty a memorial meeting was held for our beloved sister, Claudia Coles, which was attended only by believers. After this, the inquirers continued to come in such numbers that another meeting was arranged, at which Mr. Vail again gave a beautiful and inspiring address. Mr. Struven, our caretaker, tells us that daily as well as on Sundays, there is a continuous stream of visitors, all eager to inspect the Temple and learn about the Cause.

A Central States Teaching Conference was held in the Foundation Hall of the Temple at Wilmette, July 11th and 12th. The friends discussed ways and means for carrying out the Divine Plan, revealed by 'Abdu'l-Bahá for spreading the Cause, in the Central States.

SOPHIE LOEDING, Secretary.

DAYTON

On April 22nd, Miss Juliet Thompson spoke to a group at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jozef McCoy.

April 23rd, an inter-racial banquet was held, attended by about sixty prominent and professional people, most of them hearing the Bahá'í message for the first time. Many questions were asked and a marked spirit of brotherhood was manifest throughout the evening.

April 24th, Miss Thompson gave the Bahá'í Message before the entire student body and faculty of Dayton's new Art Institute. It is an interesting fact that the registrar at the institute is a relative of Mme. Dreyfus-Barney, and was keenly interested in Miss Thompson's visit. Following the talk at the Art Institute, Miss Thompson with two (Continued on page 4) spread about contacts with influential people and felt that the time is near when large groups of people will enter the Cause together. Group activity among the friends will stimulate this. An interracial and interreligious Congress is planned for San Francisco in 1932 which it is hoped that friends from the East will attend.

The findings of the National Teaching Conference preceding the convention were summarized: Public meetings on a large scale lose their value without follow up work. Workers should go in the following order: 1. Promoter. 2. Intermediate care-taker. 3. Organizer. We should recognize the type of teacher needed for each work. There is need of resident teachers to foster groups. The National Fund should be conserved by local friends by entertaining teachers as far as possible. Intercultural and interreligious conferences should be held. Special key people and group leaders should be contacted. Find people of culture and capability. Place Bahá’í books in local libraries. National teachers should not be burdened with administrative work.

The Youths’ Teaching Conference as reported, told of the success of spreading the Cause in the colleges. The lack of interest among young people in the outworn forms of religion make them a fertile field for the sowing of seeds in the Divine Springtime.

Intercultural Amity

This report was a statement of general attitude; the need of amity being accentuated by economic pressure; a report of the recent Amity Conference in Atlantic City where five colored believers through Divine Favor were confirmed to hold an Amity Conference which attracted four hundred people of both races; the growth of liberalism in the South and the need of a white and colored teacher to travel together in the vast region; the complexities and difficulties of the race problem; the light given by the Master in his University address; recent intercultural activities in Detroit and Washington, D. C. The need of sane and well balanced people with faith, vision, courage, spiritual attraction and a sense of humor to do this work, and the value of wide sympathy and deep study were among the points advanced.

Martha Root

It has been our aim to make this report as personal as was the convention itself. To record or even mention the beautiful things said by each delegate is beyond the realm of the possible. Thus have we passed by the names! But in the case of Martha, the outstanding personality of the convention, an exception must be made. Our great international teacher, whose simplicity, reverence, devotion, self-sacrifice and ceaseless activity render her a magnet of attraction to numberless souls, was voted the freedom of the floor, a privilege which she did not use unless called. Each time she spoke eager ears and hearts devoured her words. Her clear grasp of the teachings, prayerfulness, humility, unfailing kindness, fearlessness and love truly make her a sign of God. “Like unto a bird she has flown around the world.” Always on the wing, ever singing the songs of Abhá, how wonderful is she!

Masbriq’ul-Adhkar

The purpose of the organization of the first Bahá’í convention in America was to devise ways and means for the erection of the Temple of God. During the years this great purpose has been kept steadily in view. The most eloquent part of the report of the Temple Trustees was the gesture which pointed to the building itself, a monument to the sacrifices of the friends in America and throughout the world. The joy of sacrifice was expressed by one of the friends who is a member of a family which has been the largest single contributor and who expressed an attitude which was typical of all. At one of the sessions fitting addresses were made by the president of the Research Service, the president of the George A. Fuller Construction Company, the structural engineer and other engineering experts, each expressing great joy in their unusual service and referring to the unusual cooperation among those who thus served. A reminder came from the friend who has given so largely that it is the wish and hope of the Guardian that the entire structure be completed within the space of two years.

Economics

One of the most interesting and fruitful subjects before the convention was the economic problem, a theme now forced upon the attention of the world. The need of collective action as a relief for economic distress, an attitude which will attract the blessings of God; the duties of assemblies to cooperate in relief measures under the rules of Bahá’í administration; provision for age pensions; service through love as the ideal of Bahá’í relief rather than the mere dispensing of charity in the old hackneyed way; seeking Guidance in real service when we dispense our limited means; the way such matters are handled in Persia where both Bahá’ís and non-Bahá’ís often seek the aid of the Spiritual Assembly; hope that the great sums now spent for war may be diverted into peaceful channels of service and construction; remarks of Shoghi Effendi to a pilgrim in effect that although the Bahá’ís are now but a small nucleus of humanity, yet if they apply their teachings locally, nationally and internationally an absolutely new civilization will be born in the world through which the Voice of God will speak; the spiritual power of the collective action possible through the Bahá’í Fund; the value of being informed as to the principles of economies and the application of our principles in such a wise and loving way as not to antagonize others.

Summer Activities

Green Acre, although not formally reported, was mentioned by those who reside or labor there. This pertained to the activities planned for the coming season; the nestling of the children at the Schophlocher farm; adult education; comparative religion and modernism courses and references to the perfect climate, beautiful surroundings and stimuli to the joy of life.

The colony at Geyerville, Calif., the Western Green Acre are also full of exhilaration and motion and have a pleasing program which will be both entertaining and instructive.

The teaching and training center near Flint, Mich., on the farm dedicated by Mr. Eggleston for this purpose will also present an attractive teaching program covering a fortnight.

Publications

The report of the Publishing Committee included the observation that more people can be reached by the written than by the spoken word and provision is now made to supply this need by new centers of distribution for Bahá'í literature. Local spiritual assemblies are now allowed a discount of one-third, an arrangement which helps them to build up their assembly fund.

The Bahá'í News should have a committee of experts as managers. Those who try earnestly will become experts. This newspaper bids fair in the old name, Star of the West, was dropped, as creating confusion of thought and having no special significance. Its universal appeal as outlined by the Guardian; its five new contributing editors, representing Persia, Great Britain, Egypt, China and Japan, her meeting with educators, statesmen, crowned heads and other great personages and their receptivity and interest. Germany especially, she reported, is making a profound study of the Cause. A wonderful atmosphere came to the meeting when the chairman, in preparation for her address, read Prof. Browne's description of Bahá'u'lláh and the latter's exalted message of the Most Great Peace.

The other speaker was Mr. Benjamin Shapiro, structural engineer of the Temple who with a face full of light presented a series of pictures showing the progress of Temple construction. He illustrated the great harmony and happiness prevailing among the workers on the Temple and referred to the one whom he called the Master with such love and reverence that his attraction to the Cause which he has served in a business way is evident.

The first meeting's attendance taxed the capacity of the foundation hall with many standing. The second overtaxed it. After every available seat was brought even standing was at a premium. Even the corridor leading to the meeting place was occupied with listeners who could not see. The beautiful music which accentuated the harmony of the entire convention seemed to reach its climax at this time. The chairman read from the creative words a prayer and then in his happy way, as a preparation for the illuminated Martha, introduced a colored friend to speak on the Oneness of Humanity. Miss Root followed with an address on the Bahá'í Cause in Persia, the land of its origin. She described with simplicity and great spiritual attraction the wonderful sacrifices made by the friends of God in days that tried both souls and bodies. She pictured that structure of faith and devotion which now overshadows the peoples of earth. Such an audience! People listened with eager attention, not allowing themselves to miss a word. Among our Wilmette neighbors present those were not wanting who but a year ago were in an attitude of scoffing, but are now happily constrained to acceptance and praise. Alham du'lláh!

A great artist was once asked how he mixed his paints. He replied, "With brains!"

One must ever strive to be conscious of the inner life and power which alone bring success in these troubled days. When in Washington on his first visit the Master exhorted the friends that they should trust His Holiness Bahá'u'lláh for one thing, for everything. He himself had been a prisoner with the chains of 'Abdu'l-Hamid about his neck. But Bahá'u'lláh had removed those chains and had confirmed him to cross the ocean and come to America to teach. Still does he command that faith to us. Faith as tested by obedience, is the one foundation that is never shaken. It inspired the disciples of old and today it moves the friends of God as they go forth to transform the world.

IN MEMORIAM

On March 2nd, Mrs. Carrie Volger left her earthly abode and passed on to the Kingdom. She had become a believer in 1912, while 'Abdu'l-Bahá was in Cincinnati and had remained a faithful believer since. A Bahá'í service was conducted for her on March 4th.

Each divine revelation is divided into two parts. The first part is essential and belongs to the eternal world. It is the exposition of divine truth and essential principles. It is the expression of the love of God. This is one in all the religions, unchangeable and immutable. The second part is not eternal; it deals with practical life, transactions and business, and changes according to the evolution of man and the requirements of the time of each prophet.—'Abdu'l-Bahá.

My dear co-workers: *I wish to add a few lines and remind you of the necessity of refusing to admit to your assembly, or associate with, any Oriental who does not have proper credentials from a recognized Spiritual Assembly. No excuse whatever is acceptable. I am sure that a few are trying to cause mischief and bring about a split in the ranks of the believers in these days of stress, and the utmost caution should be exercised, lest these mischief-makers succeed in undermining the foundations of the Cause.

Your true brother and well-wisher.

CONCERNING LETTERS FROM HAIFA

"I wish to add and say that whatever letters are sent in my behalf from Haifa are all read and approved by me before mailing. There is no exception whatever to this rule."

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT
BAHA'I SUMMER SCHOOL
Geyerville, California

The fifth annual session of the Bahá'í Summer School will open at Geyerville this year on Sunday, July 26th, for a two weeks' course.

The "Cook House" will not be opened this year to serve meals. The students may arrange for their meals at the restaurants in the village or do their own cooking by bringing equipment with them. Camping on the 40-acre camping-tract on the Bosch premises is placed at the disposal of the School.

Owing to the somewhat limited housing facilities of the Bahá'í Summer School-houses it is advisable that as many friends as can, bring also camping equipment to the above mentioned camping-site. Rooms can be rented in the village and at near-by farm houses.

One whole day (probably July 29th) will be spent at the ocean shore when an abalone feast will be served by the Geyerville Chamber of Commerce. The lectures and classes that day will be held at the beach.

Following up the remarkable work carried on among the children last year by Miss Alice Routt and Mrs. Mabel Weaver it is planned to give children this year systematic teaching and recreation under the direction of such as will be especially appointed by the Children's Committee of this School.

A most interesting course of lectures and classes is being arranged by the Committee, program of which will be issued later.

Suggestions from the friends are invited.

THE GUARDIAN'S WORDS REGARDING MATERIAL FOR THE BAHÁ'Í WORLD VOL. IV
(All Local and National Spiritual Assemblies Please Notice)

The committee appointed to prepare the copy for the next Bahá'í World (Year Book Vol. IV) has now begun active work in connection with the collection of suitable material for this important volume. In the introduction to Vol. III, the Guardian states through the editorial committee as follows:

"In preparation for Vol. IV, which is to cover the period from April 1930 to April 1932 all Local Spiritual Assemblies, Groups and Committees throughout the Bahá'í world are requested to plan with their respective National Spiritual Assemblies the gathering of suitable material for that volume. Photographs and articles of interest may be forwarded at any time. Reports to be incorporated in the "Survey of Current Bahá'í Activities in the East and West," should be in the hands of the Committee not later than November 1st, 1931. The contents of Vol. III will suggest the various materials desired for such an important and historic publication as the Bahá'í World. Articles and photographs that show the present progress of the Cause, as well as records of past events, are particularly desired."

It is the intention of the editorial committee to establish in this next volume an historical department which shall contain absolutely accurate accounts of the visit of 'Abdu'l-Bahá to each city in this country where he spent even a short time, and so far as is known these historical sketches have been requested from those of the older believers who were actually present and who can contribute this eminently valuable material for preservation in the pages of the forthcoming volume.

The editorial committee would earnestly request that any and all such material be sent not later than November 1st, 1931, to

Mrs. Nellie S. French,
501 Bellefontaine St.,
Pasadena, California.

STATUTORY AND FUNCTION OF THE INTERNATIONAL BUREAU AT GENEVA, SWITZERLAND

On March 26th at table in Haifa the Guardian was asked by one of the visiting pilgrims:

"What is the particular work of the Bureau at Geneva and why is it international?"

The Guardian, Shoghi Effendi replied:

"Geneva is auxiliary to the center in Haifa. It does not assume the place of Haifa, but is auxiliary. It exercises no international authority. It does not try to impose but helps and acts as intermediary between Haifa and other centers. It is international because it links the countries and work is accomplished more easily: it is like a distributing center."

Friends traveling in Europe particularly, are advised that the Geneva Bureau is prepared to provide correct addresses of authentic centers wherever the Cause is represented. Geneva is also a distributing center for all Bahá'í literature.

CONVENTION MUSIC

The delegates and visiting friends at the Convention this year were deeply impressed with the sweet music rendered by Mrs. Walrath and Mrs. Matthiesen of the Chicago Bahá’í community. The blending of voices and the spiritual appeal which the songs themselves brought forth opened each session with indescribable charm.

The selections were as follows:

"The Lonely Stranger." Dedicated to ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s visit to America in 1912, 40c.

"The Making of the Temple." Words by Mrs. Janet Bolton, who has just recently passed away, 40c.

"Ye Seek Me," by Shahnaz Waite, 40c.

"Prelude and Benediction," by Shahnaz Waite, 25c.

These songs are for sale and the proceeds are for the benefit of the Temple Fund. Anyone wishing to purchase any or all of these selections may address—

MRS. A. F. MATTHISEN,
4726 Beacon Street,
Chicago, Illinois.

Religion, then, is the necessary connection which emanates from the reality of things; and as the universal Manifestations of God are aware of the mysteries of things, therefore they understand this essential connection, and by this knowledge establish the Law of God. —'Abdu’l-Bahá.

GREEN ACRE REVISED PROGRAM

We are very happy to announce at this time that Miss Martha Root will be with us the first part of July and also that Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf has consented to conduct Course 1 of our series. In addition Green Acre will be enriched this season by the presence of nine newly returned pilgrims, Miss Root, Mrs. Barton, Miss Wright, Mrs. Nelson, Miss Jack, the Misses Thompson and Mrs. Bowditch and daughter.

We would also remind the friends that this year the activities of July are comparable with those of August.

The course and conference revised to date are as follows:

Course 1—The influence of mysticism upon modern thinking, July 6-17. Mrs. Greenleaf

Course 2—Foundations of modern science, July 7-18. Mrs. Shook Course 3—Psychology and religion, Aug. 3-14. Mr. Gregory

Course 4—Modernism in religious thinking, July 27-31. Mr. Vail

Course 5—Teaching, July 28-Aug. 1. Mr. Vail

Course 6—Teaching, Aug. 4-8. Mr. Vail

Course 7—The philosophy of universal religion, Aug. 11-15. Mr. Vail

PORTFOLIO

The larger the number, at Green Acre, we are not only furthering the ideals of the friends to come to Green Acre, we are also simplifying the financial problem. If we can interest sympathetic friends to come to Green Acre, we are not only furthering the ideals of the Cause but we are also simplifying the financial problem.

True civilization will unfurl its banner in the midnight heart of the world whenever a certain number of distinguished sovereigns of lofty aims—the shining exemplars of devotion and determination—shall, for the good and happiness of all mankind, arise with a firm resolve and clear vision to establish the cause of Universal Peace. —'Abdu’l-Bahá.

LONDON NEWS

The London Bahá’ís have had the great pleasure of welcoming Miss Maryam Jalal, whose mother is Ruha Kharnam, ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s eldest daughter. She has come to England to study.

Miss Yandell has made over to the London Spiritual Assembly a sum of £200 to be held in trust for the purpose of one day building a Temple or to provide a building as Headquarters in London. The income accruing is to form a benevolent fund in the interval. The money will be dealt with by the Finance Committee of the Assembly, in future to be known as the Finance and Building Committee.

It is felt by many that though the time for building a Mashriqu’l-Adhkár is still distant, if an opportunity arose for acquiring a building as Headquarters such as Shoghi Effendi has sanctioned in other countries, that with this capital as a nucleus and a further loan from a building society, a start might be made and the annual sum now guaranteed for the rent of the room at Walmor House would then go towards paying off the loan and securing for the future a permanent headquarters. It is not thought advisable to open a building fund at present, for the utmost effort is required to keep up the payments guaranteed for the room at Walmor House, which Shoghi Effendi has urged us to maintain "at all costs," but the Spiritual Assembly wishes the friends to know that this project is being considered.

It has been suggested that some of the Friends may like to set aside the money usually expended on Christmas cards, for the funds, and Mr. Asgarzadeh has led the way. Anyone missing his customary greeting will know that he has not forgotten them and think with pleasure of the benefit to the Cause.

On November 12th, the Anniversary of the Birth of Bahá’u'lláh, a meeting was held in commemoration. A short sketch of the Life of the "Blessed Beauty," as His followers loved to call Him, was given. The Tablet of the Manifestation was read and the believers felt anew the great power of that wonderful utterance. At the close of the Meeting special prayers were offered for the Delegates now sitting at the Round Table Conference.

Though the Bahá’ís are strictly enjoined to take no part in political agitation or strife, and to be loyal to the governments under which they live, they have always the resource of prayer that discord may be changed to harmony and that the Most Great Peace may be consummated.

During the next critical weeks this will be especially remembered at the weekly prayer meeting and in our own homes.

On November 28th, there was a solemn commemoration held in memory of the Passing of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá.

Lady Blomfield has returned from Geneva, and we hope to have her with us often during the winter. Miss Hodgkinson is recovering from her serious accident, and we look forward to welcoming her at Walmor House by the end of the month.

A cheering letter has been received from Pretoria, South Africa, where there are now from 40 to 50 Bahá’ís. The Message has come to them through Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Bleasby, the latter was known to many of the friends years ago as Miss Campbell, and it is a joy to us to be in touch with her again. We shall send our warmest greetings with the copy of this news letter which will be posted to the Group whose address is Box 876, Pretoria.

On November 17th, Miss Ethel J. Rosenberg passed peacefully beyond the veil while sleeping.

For some time she had been prevented by illness from taking an active part in the work of the Movement, but older believers can estimate the value of the pioneer work done by her. She was inspired by her great personal devotion to the Master who accorded to her the great privilege of much intimate intercourse with him.

One who has known her during the years she has worked for the Cause writes:

"With the passing of Miss Ethel Rosenberg a large circle of Bahá’í friends have lost one of the most indefatigable workers for the Cause. During 25 years she devoted herself wholeheartedly to the teaching of Bahá’u’lláh’s Message, and never spared her strength, nor purse, to send out the precious Word. She made several journeys to ‘Akká and Haifa, staying as a guest for long periods in ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s family, where she was an earnest student, besides giving her services for secretarial work.

The Meetings held in her own house many years ago were a real inspiration to the seekers after Bahá’í truth. These she taught the great value and beauty of the Message.

An old student of those days remarked quite recently that she had “never forgotten Miss Rosenberg’s remarkable teaching nor her wide cultured outlook on life.”

Ethel Rosenberg had an unusual gift for imparting knowledge to others and it is the strength of this gift that she leaves on our memories today, the indelible work of her personal contribution to the Bahá’í Cause.

One of the most important duties of a local assembly, especially in a world capital such as London, is to keep in contact with groups of liberal thinkers and religious workers which surround it. There is a constant effort maintained by emissaries of and individuals connected with the London Assembly to keep up and multiply the efficiency of this contact work.

During the past four or five years practically all of the Unitarian centers of London were brought in contact with the Bahá’í Movement and almost without exception have received it with sincere appreciation.

The London Fields Fellowship, a group of people showing forth a wonderful Christian spirit, has welcomed Bahá’í speakers before its various groups on three occasions already and has invited a fourth presentation of the Bahá’í Message at an early date.

Plans are being discussed for a joint meeting with a large Brotherhood Movement which is studying different religions and teachings. Bahá’í literature is being sold at a Bazaar held by the Threefold Movement, an organization working in many countries for the elimination of all prejudice and the unity of religions.

Descriptions of the Universal Temple being erected in Chicago invariably attract the people and several talks on this concrete and vital subject will be given before groups who already know something of the principles of this Great Movement.

These Tea-Talks represented art, music, drama, literature, current events and world peace, by outstanding persons connected in their particular field with the cultural arts—others of International note associated with world peace activities.

The purpose primarily of this work was to attract people to the Centre that they might hear the Bahá’í Message which was given on each occasion by Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford, Chairman, in an epitomized, concise treatment embodying its all encircling Principles and Teachings for a New World Order, and made a keen appeal to the minds and hearts of the listeners as was evidenced by their lingering long after the program was over, the many questions asked in their personal contact with individuals and returning again and again with renewed and growing interest.

Music

Through our contacts we were able to provide music of the highest order both vocal and instrumental for each program besides devoting three programs to music alone—having obtained the cooperation of Mr. and Mrs. G. Aldo Randegger (Mr. Randegger is a pianist and composer also head of the Randegger Conservatory of Music), Miss Rata Present pianist, and Mme. Victoria Torre, a highly talented young Prima Donna who gave a program of songs and arias of famous composers both old and modern. Mr. and Mrs. Randegger gave a concert of piano and vocal music of much versatility and charm, beautifully rendered. Miss Rata Present, a distinguished and highly accomplished pianist gave a recital including selections from Bach, Chopin, Beethoven and Liszt, displaying a masterful technique and unique power of poetical interpretation. These performances were acclaimed by large and most enthusiastic audiences.
Drama

The drama was largely represented by Mr. Daniel Frohman, Miss Louise Muldener and Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford.

Mr. Frohman, an outstanding figure in the theatrical world for nearly half a century, gave a biographical outline of his reminiscences which were richly interspersed with anecdote and humor. Miss Muldener who had acted as leading lady to some of the most distinguished actors of the profession, such as Sir Henry Irving and Edwin Booth, gave a vivid and charming resume of her stage experiences over a long period of years. Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford presented a wonderfully precise exposition of the two outstanding successes of the dramatic season in New York “Roar China” and “The Grand Hotel.” These programs were delightfully interesting and keenly enjoyed by large audiences.

Literature

Mrs. Frieda Das on her book “My Marriage to India.” Having earned an Indian and lived in India for nearly eight years, her discourse brought to us a particularly intimate picture of the home life, caste system and different religious customs of that country.

A representative speaker from L’Alliance Francaise gave us much intellectual entertainment from her description and analysis of the works of Marcel Proust.

Mr. James Weldon Johnson gave a resume of Negro literature with special regard to poetry which was of unusual richness and beauty and was deeply enjoyed.

Oliver La Farge, on his book “Laughing Boy,” Pulitzer prize winner (1929) brought a vivid and intimate picture of the American Indian in his own domain. This picture was drawn from a close and scientific study of the art, literature and creative life of the race with which the story deals. It was of absorbing interest.

Edgar White Burill of “Literary Vespers” fame, gave a most illuminating talk on the writings of H. G. Wells, “Crusader for World Peace,” pointing out the fact that the dominating influence which pervaded his literary output over a period of many years was the far reaching and penetrating vision of a new world era of progressive civilization when peace would reign on earth. It met with a hearty response from a large audience.

Mrs. Florence Guenter Tuttle, of the League of Nations Association, and for fifteen years in the International field of world peace activities discussed the subject “Alternatives to War,” title of her recent book, giving a brief outline of historical data relating to world peace since the war with a resume of all the machinery set in motion for this great mission and its achievements up to the present day. Deeply interesting to an appreciative audience, would recommend the book to all Baha’is for expert information also for study of this subject.

Art

Mr. Cloyd Boykin, head of institution of African Art, gave a unique and touching story of his life experience which left a very deep impression on our hearts. His noble work of faith and sacrifice was truly uplifting and a well spring of inspiration. In all my life, I think, never have I seen so humble a figure—a heavenly being” one was overheard to remark. His description of early African Art was enjoyed with keen interest.

Mrs. Frieda Das gave another program on architecture and sculpture of Three Centuries before Christ, with lantern slides. It was of rare fascinating charm and interest and drew deeply on one’s imagination.

“Art and Rhythm of the Dance,” by Mr. Louis Chalif, a great master of the Ballet and eminent teacher of aesthetic and modern dancing. Highly entertaining to a large audience.

Physical culture was also represented.

Mrs. Helen Hanning of the Board of Community Councils for New York City gave a thrilling account of the welfare work done by this group during the last five years—such as, opening over five hundred playgrounds for children, cleaning up Harlem and East side slums, convalescent hospital roofs—and many other things achieved for the betterment and welfare of the Community including the housing problem and old age pensions. Splendid work!

This necessarily brief resume will suffice to show the type and scope of cultural and educational subjects represented on these afternoon talks. Much small literature was distributed. The success of the program was owing to the splendid cooperation of the entire committee, each one contributing a large share in carrying on the work toward a realization of its highest aim—namely the purpose of spreading the Baha’i Message, also to the useful and practical help of many others who assisted with the Tea both in substance and in the faithful work of their hands.

With this work we feel another seed sowing has been achieved. Judging from our audiences which represented nearly all races, the seed may be carried and scattered over the entire earth—we can but leave them in the hands of the Heavenly Gardener.

JEAN ANTHONY, Secretary of the Committee.

Nothing short of direct and constant interaction between the spiritual forces emanating from this House of Worship centering in the heart of the Mashriqu’l-Adhkar, and the energies consciously displayed by those who administer its affairs in their service to humanity can possibly provide the necessary agency capable of removing the ills that have so long and so grievously afflicted humanity. For it is assuredly upon the consciousness of the efficacy of the Revelation of Bahá’u’lláh, reinforced on one hand by spiritual communion with His Spirit, and on the other by the intelligent application and the faithful execution of the principles and laws He revealed, that the salvation of a world in travail must ultimately depend. And of all the institutions that stand associated with His Holy Name, surely none save the institution of the Mashriqu’l-Adhkar can most adequately provide the essentials of Bahá’u’lláh’s worship and service, both so vital to the regeneration of the world. Therein lies the secret of the loftiness, of the potency, of the unique position of the Mashriqu’l-Adhkar as one of the outstanding institutions conceived by Bahá’u’lláh.

Dearly beloved friends! May we not as the trustees of so priceless a heritage, arise to fulfil our high destiny—SHOGHI EFFENDI.
LETTER FROM SHOGHI EFFENDI

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY, APRIL 2, 1931

Read at the Annual Convention
Chicago, May, 1931.

Dear Mr. Lunt:

Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge in behalf of the letters that you have written him on behalf of the National Spiritual Assembly dated September 27th, December 10th, February 18th, January 20th and March 3rd, all of which he read with the deepest interest, but was unable to answer in view of the pressure of work due to his translation of Nabil's history.

Concerning individual teaching, Shoghi Effendi would urge every Bahá'í who feels the urge to exercise his right of teaching unofficially the Cause, to keep in close touch with the Local Spiritual Assembly of the locality in which he is working. The Local Spiritual Assembly while reserving for itself the right to control such activities on the part of individual Bahá'ís, should do its utmost to encourage such teachers and to put at their disposal whatever facilities they would need in such circumstances. Should any differences arise, the National Spiritual Assembly would naturally have to intervene and adjust matters.

Shoghi Effendi feels that in any locality where the number of adult believers reaches nine, a Local Assembly should be established. He feels this to be an obligation rather than a purely voluntary act. Only in exceptional cases has the National Spiritual Assembly the right to postpone the formation of an Assembly if it feels that the situation does not warrant such a formation. This right, however, should be exercised if the situation absolutely demands it. As to the principle according to which the area of the jurisdiction of a Local Assembly is to be determined, he feels this to be the function of the National Spiritual Assembly; whatever principle they uphold should be fairly applied to all localities without any distinction whatever.

As to the character of the meetings in the Auditorium of the Temple, he feels that they should be purely devotional in character, Bahá'í addresses and lectures should be strictly excluded. For the present, he feels that there would be no objection to having Bahá'í meetings including addresses and the business sessions of the Convention held in the Foundation Hall. Shoghi Effendi would urge that choir singing by men, women and children be encouraged in the Auditorium and that rigidity in the Bahá'í service be scrupulously avoided. The more universal and informal the character of Bahá'í worship in the Temple the better. Images and pictures, with the exception of the Greatest Name, should be strictly excluded. Prayers revealed by Bahá'u'lláh and the Master as well as the sacred writings of the Prophets should be read or chanted as well as hymns based upon Bahá'í or non-Bahá'í sacred writings.

Shoghi Effendi would wish you to get in touch with the Egyptian authorities and press for Bahá'í recognition in that land. The petition that you have prepared should be forwarded and the National Spiritual Assembly in Egypt should be pressed to take whatever measure is necessary to insure its success.

The letter you have received from Constantinople is by no means representative of the actual conditions there, and Shoghi Effendi is urging the friends in that city to re-establish their Assembly and resume their relationships with the Bahá'í world.

Concerning the qualifications required for voting, Shoghi Effendi has laid down the essential conditions already in his letters, no further restrictions should be added to them. It is for the Local Assembly to decide in this matter. They should exercise this right with extreme

THE TEMPLE — "TALISMAN" OF UNITY

From the National Spiritual Assembly

"Whosoever is favored by these shining and glorious Lights, hath attained to these luminous and radiant Suns during every Manifestation, hath attained the 'Meeting of God', and entered the city of eternal and immortal life." (Kitáb-i-Iqán, p. 101.)

"Consider the candle, how it weeps its life away, drop by drop, so that it may yield its light."—Abdul-Bahá.

It is said that on this earthly planet today dwell 1,936,642,066 human beings. Since the Declaration of His Holiness, the Bab, in 1844, other billions of human beings have lived and passed away. From among all these, countless millions were born, lived and died in the faith of their forefathers, not knowing, never even hearing of the fulfilled Meetings of God ('the utmost Divine Bounty ordained for the servants'), p. 98 Kitáb-i-Iqán, and the spreading of His Heavenly Table, which had taken place so quietly, so unexpectedly and, withal, so differently in respect to the means and conditions of its appearance, to that which even the devout had understood and awaited.

On this western continent, in this 87th year since the heralding of the Cause of God, a group of sixteen hundred souls, conservatively estimated, through the Divine Assistance and their holy sacrifices, have become builders of a mighty symbol of the law of God, a House of Devotion and Praise, the first universal edifice to be erected in the Occident in the new and Great Cycle just beginning. Strengthened by the enheartening words of our beloved Guardian, and longing to fulfill this divine service begun in the holy days of the Master, and to scatter, once for all, the stagnant waters of inaction that had gathered about this great enterprise, these friends of God, small numerically but irresistible in their unity of purpose, contributed to the National Treasury in a single year not only the $400,000 required for construction, but $33,000 additional for the Administrative Budget for the Bahá’í year beginning at Ridván 1929. An enterprise which had languished for nearly ten years (since the building of the foundation in 1921), without advancement of any kind, and lacking even the beginnings of a Temple Construction Fund as late as the Convention period of 1929, suddenly arises as a phoenix from the ashes of apparent defeat and in a single twelve month period accomplishes its set goal. What mysterious power converted these molts of weakness and inaction into powerful, soaring, achieving falcons of the air of reality? What attraction is this that so transformed a somewhat dispirited, at least apprehensive group into a confident, reliant body possessed of a new consciousness and a new determination? Unity of purpose; unity of action; the stirring to sacrifice; the consciousness of Faith in our Guardian’s assurances, and the increased power of devotion and prayer. These, or rather this, for it is all told in the one word “Unity”, conferred upon us all, in these brief months, this “Aladdin’s Talisman,” this power to accomplish, to amaze and confound the doubtful among the public who professed to believe that the Temple of God would remain indefinitely a strange, repelling and lowly object virtually buried in the ground.

The entire western Bahá’í world lived, in those months, in respect to the Temple construction, as “one soul in many bodies.” And indeed, one should say in truth that both Orient and Occident shared with equal fervor, in prayer and supplication, in notable and sacrificial gifts culminating in that most precious gift from Shoghi Effendi of the silken rug from the Holy Shrine. None can say what hidden bounty for the opening of the doors of success dwelt within that gift.

A vast gulf stretches between the service of one who voices and accepts, merely intellectually, the precept of Unity, and on the other hand, of that advancing soul in whose inner reality burns a living consciousness of what this transcendent gift of our loving Father really means to man, in the establishment of His Kingdom here. We affirm and believe many spiritual truths, but we are conscious to a far lesser degree in the sense of divine certainty, of the faith that knows, whose shafts of light penetrate into the very core of our beings. But now the hour has arrived. The lesson learned by the beloved friends through the stupendous fact of the attraction of the Divine Confirmations in those twelve teeming months by reason both of the elevation and deepening of our mutual consciousness of the preciousness of Unity, marked a new era in the Cause in the West. This is the Path; this the means of becoming the objects of His Bounty; through our full acceptance of the Promise of God to those who dwell in Unity.” He fulfilled His Law upon us. Inasmuch as this was a divine transaction, it is irredeemably imprinted upon the mirror of every heart.

But shall we be overwhelmed by this, or perchance seek contentment in this partial accomplishment of the Divine Purpose? Shall we permit ourselves gradually to relax into a somnolent state ever again? Shall we, because of severe storms of economic hardship forget that even this, in the individual lives of the believers, will find its remedy in the treasured Abundance of His storehouse, which is ever poured forth upon a sincere and obedient people?

The degree of our Faith, our reliance upon Him, our unflinching facing of every spiritual and material obligation, and above all, the retention and renewed application of the Unity consciousness, as we now begin the next step of Temple financing, will, without peradventure of doubt, bring forth a new, and perhaps even greater demonstration of the bounty of our Generous Lord, who is the Listener and the Answerer.

The Unity we are learning in our common effort to build the Temple is but a foretaste of the deeper and holier ties that will connect the hearts as we release the forces of justice: the Spirit of Love, understanding and justice. How impressive, at this hour, the Master's words, "Your faith comes like rain. The first drops are far between, but soon it will pour in torrents."

Before us, each of the divine friends, rich and poor, lies the new pathway heralded by the "New Plan of Unified Action." Substantial as are the total sums required, both annually and in monthly averages, let them be no cause of doubt or apprehension. Of far greater importance is the will to accomplish—to become a partner in the unfoldment of the mystery of Divine Acceptance. To raise, approximately, a sum equal to that which was done in twelve months, three years are assigned.

This is the beginning time. To defer action is to lose the vision. The physical frame of the Temple needs further expenditures at once, upon the utilities of heating and light, (especially heating), if we are to protect it from being weakened by the elements this winter. These utility emergency expenditures approximate $30,000. Concerning the work of attaching the garment of ornamental stone, which is essential to the completion of the architectural design, this has been repeatedly emphasized by Shoghi Effendi as constituting the essence of the New Plan, he tells us—

"The work of applying the exterior ornamentation to the completed structure should proceed steadily and as speedily as possible. That the full effect and influence of the Temple can be revealed only when the work in its entirety is accomplished. All the beauty and glory of the Temple depends upon the exterior garment of stone with which it is to be adorned, while the consummation of the task will, in itself, act as a magnet that will draw the promised blessings of the Master."

Moreover he says—

"Nothing short of continued self-sacrifice can achieve this end. . . . the present financial depression should be regarded both as a challenge and opportunity to prove the reality and potency of our faith."

Our beloved Guardian sees and reminds us of the underlying spiritual wisdoms attending this superb task. His love, his knowledge, his vision, and his protecting care encompass and mirror the World of Reality to us, he knows that we are capable of, and asked nothing of us that is not confirmed and sanctioned within the Realm of Might. He asks of us Faith, and promises success if we will only respond.

As we write these lines, we are conscious of the great victory and that this consciousness lives in every unitary cell of the Bahá’í organism. These cells are the hearts of the believers of God. May every Assembly and Community arise with pure devotion, filling once again the financial reservoirs of the Cause, so that the maturity of the Divine Edifice become revealed and draw all men unto the Lord of Mankind.

NABÍL’S NARRATIVE OF THE EARLY DAYS OF THE BAHÁ’Í REVELATION

The members of the National Spiritual Assembly wish to reinforce with all possible influence the plans announced by the Publishing Committee for the publication of the Guardian’s translation of the Nabil Narrative.

The appearance of this Bahá’í work must be recognized as an event of extreme importance. There are vital spiritual reasons why every true believer should, as soon as possible, thoroughly master the contents of the Narrative.

We quote again the Guardian’s own opinion, expressed in the letter sent through his secretary accompanying the manuscript: "The Guardian trusts that this book will prove a great impetus to the progress of the Faith throughout the Western World."

The Nabil Narrative comes to us at a time when the pressure of world crisis, the destruction that precedes construction, will fan the flames of religious controversy and inevitably direct the shafts of opposition and denial against those who follow Bahá’u’lláh. Between those who would destroy all religion, and those who would preserve their own sect at any cost, the Bahá’ís will have need of a faith confirmed by the power of knowledge. Shoghi Effendi has given us the first portion of the history of the Cause; and the truth of the Revelation has one of its proofs in the course of its historical development. Here, then, is our answer to those attacks which emanate from sectarian sources. Here, above all is the example of those heroic souls whose faith has been called upon to meet emergencies not yet encountered in Europe and America.

The National Assembly would emphasize also the plan of advance orders drawn up by the Publishing Committee as a method of meeting the printing costs with as little expense as possible to the National Fund. This great work, with its 736 pages, colored frontispiece, reproductions of twenty Tablets of the Bahá’, and two hundred photographic illustrations, involves a printing cost of nearly ten thousand dollars. As advance orders are received, the National Fund is saved that part of the cost, and the Temple Fund will thereby be increased.

The National Assembly wishes to make clear that the idea of the Limited Edition of one hundred and fifty copies, each autographed by the Guardian, was submitted to Shoghi Effendi and received his entire approval before the Publishing Committee’s announcement was prepared. This approval came in the form of a letter dated June 4, confirming a cablegram sent on the same day. The letter, written by the Guardian’s secretary, stated that: "Shoghi Effendi was delighted with the splendid suggestion of your husband (Mr. Raymond D. Little) regarding the Nabil Narrative and he is glad that your Publishing Committee has approved it. He has already hastened in cable ‘yes’ and he wishes me to write in full to assure you that he would be quite ready to autograph the volumes for the de luxe edition. The initial cost of the publication was something that worried him, hence his gratitude for the able suggestion of your husband.”

On August 5th, after receiving the Committee’s printed announcement containing the Advance Order blank, Shoghi Effendi cabled the National Spiritual Assembly: "Heartily endorse plan (to) secure (the) co-operation (of) believers (in the) publication (of) Nabil’s Narrative. Mailing (in) October (a) check (for) one hundred copies." (Signed) SHOGHI.

Thus the friends are given the facts which will enable them to draw closer to the Guardian’s thoughts and wishes. Already the Committee announces a hearty and enthusiastic response to the publishing plan. The National Assembly is confident that every Local Spiritual Assembly will take steps to secure orders for the Nabih Narrative in their community.

As Shoghi Effendi wrote in his Introduction to the book: “The Bahá’í Movement is now well known throughout the world, and the time has come when Nabí’s unique narrative of its beginnings in darkest Persia will interest many readers. The record which he sets down with such devoted care is in many respects extraordinary. It has its thrilling passages, and the splendor of the central theme gives to the chronicle not only great historical value but high moral power.”

A BAHÁ’Í CALENDAR

The Publishing Committee is pleased to announce that a Bahá’í Calendar for 1932 will soon be ready for distribution.

The Calendar consists of twelve separate leaves, one for each month, printed on heavy cardboard stock and tied together with a cord so that each month can show in turn.

Each page carries the regular monthly calendar for January, February, etc., and all the Bahá’í dates (Feasts and Anniversaries) falling in that period, together with numerous quotations from Bahá’u’lláh, ‘Abdul-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi.

This Calendar meets a long-felt need. It was prepared by Doris Holley and has been approved by the Reviewing Committee.

In order to make it more attractive as a gift, the twelve pages are of four different colors, one color for each of the four seasons of the year.

Local Assemblies are requested to send in advance orders at once so that the Calendars may be in the hands of the friends well before Christmas. The price is fifty cents each. Individual believers not members of a local Bahá’í community may order copies direct from the Committee. The publication date will be October 5th. It is hoped that the friends will use the Calendar as an interesting and helpful gift to non-believers, as well as in keeping track of the Bahá’í dates themselves.

OTHER PUBLISHING ANNOUNCEMENTS

A letter recently received by the Publishing Committee from Shanghai, China, brings the important information that the Eslemont book has been translated into Chinese and will very soon be ready for distribution. The translator is Dr. Y. S. Tsao, a very scholarly Chinese whom Mrs. Martha Root confirmed as a Bahá’í.

The attention of the friends is called to the following titles:

Bahá’u’lláh and the New Era, by J. E. Esslemont, translated into Esperanto ........................................... $1.50

Bahá’í Administration, Letters of Shoghi Effendi, including the two letters on the World Order of Bahá’u’lláh. .................................................. 1.50

The Bahá’í World, Volume Three. 2.50

“Star” Tablet of the Báb, reproduced on fine quality blue paper. .50

IN MEMORIAM

Word has come of the passing of Dr. Auguste Forel, the distinguished savant of Switzerland, known throughout the world as one of the foremost scientists of the day. In 1920 Dr. Forel embraced the Bahá’í Cause, and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá addressed to him that great Tablet preparing the scientific proofs of God’s existence, which was published in its entirety in the Star of the West, Vol. 13, pages 101 to 109. By his tireless research Dr. Forel greatly augmented scientific knowledge and rendered inestimable service to mankind, and the beauty of his life and character will long remain with us as an example of selfless service to humanity.

Mrs. Dora Taylor passed from this life August 18th. Mrs. Taylor united with the Cincinnati group of Báb’s more than twenty-five years ago. At her request, the service used at the funeral of Mr. Louis Bourgeois, was read by Mr. R. Taylor united with the Báb’s for fifteen years, having been incapacitated for many years by a most distressing illness. She was the wife of Benjamin R. Taylor and leaves four children.

The Los Angeles Spiritual Assembly and Community of Báb’s report the passing of one of their honored members, Edgar F. Waite. He was born in Massachusetts in 1865, moved to Chicago in 1893, remaining until 1915, when he went to California. He has been a valued member of the Los Angeles Community of Báb’s for fifteen years, having been for several years Chairman of the Los Angeles Spiritual Assembly. His life has been one of self-sacrificing service to the Cause, and his passing a perfect example of “radiant acquiescence” to the will of Bahá’u’lláh. The friends feel keenly the absence of Mr. Waite’s physical presence and sincerely sympathize with Mrs. Shahnaz Waite in her bereavement.

On Thursday, September 17th, at Honolulu, one of our much loved friends, Mrs. Meta A. Sutherland, passed on to the Spiritual Kingdom. She served the Cause faithfully and lovingly for many years as a member of the Honolulu Bahá’í Assembly and through her spirit of steadfastness, understanding, gentleness and true humility, endeared herself to all. She was born in Honolulu on May 8th, 1862, and was one of the early believers in the Islands.

TEMPLE NEWS

The summer meetings at the Temple have been very fine indeed, the attendance has steadily increased and the speakers have given splendid presentations of the teachings. We wish that all of the friends could have heard the various addresses. Mrs. Corinne True gave an excellent talk; Mr. Albert Windust spoke with great power; Miss Fannie Knobloch spoke most inspiringly; Mr. Carl Scheffler delivered two very fine addresses; Mrs. Ruth Moffett gave two splendid discourses and Mrs. Sarah Walrath delivered a beautiful address. We feel that the Chicago area is developing good material for Temple work.

It is gratifying to observe the constantly growing audiences and to know that this growth is taking place in view of the fact that there has been a variety of speakers and the almost unprecedented heat of the past summer. Those who ventured out were richly rewarded spiritually and, on the material plane, furthered the interior of the Foundation Hall delightfully cool.

The Secretary of the Hospitality Committee has a list of names and addresses of interest visitors from twenty-five states, also Australia, China and Austria. What marvelous opportunities this opens to the teachers in the field!

A letter from Shoghi Effendi, through Ruhi Afnán, to one of the Chicago friends, dated May 31, 1931, reads as follows: “Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated May 9th, 1931. He sincerely hopes that now that the Temple is completed it will be filled to the full with pure, seeking souls. It should be different from other houses of worship, where, even if they are filled, their source of attraction is the music heard. Here the spirit should be so powerful as to awaken the heart of every one that enters, to the glory of Bahá’u’lláh and to the importance of the message of peace. He has brought to the world. Please God, the Master’s promise will be fulfilled and the construction of the Temple will inaugurate a new era in the history of the Cause in America.”

tact and caution and avoid rigidity and formalism. There is no distinction in this respect between new and old believers, nor should contributions to the national or local funds be made a condition for voting.

Shoghi Effendi feels deeply the delicacy and complexity of these problems with which you are constantly being faced, and he will pray for you all that you may be guided in your efforts to extend the scope and consolidate the foundations of God's Holy Faith.

Yours ever sincerely,
Rumi Afnán.

My dear co-workers:
I wish to add a few words in person and assure you of my deep sense of appreciation of the wisdom, the energy and the determination with which you are facing and handling the many issues involved in the extension of the Cause. I feel that the Bahá’í world is greatly indebted to you for the splendid manner in which you have arisen to propagate the Faith and to consolidate its basis. May the Almighty sustain you in your high endeavors.

Your true brother,
SHOGHI.

THE TEMPLE AND THE NINETEEN-DAY FEASTS

By “Auntie Victoria” (Mrs. Victoria Bedikian)

O Assembly of our Guardian!

Our Nineteen-Day Feasts are now more sacred than ever before! Our National Spiritual Assembly has revealed a New Plan of Unified Action through which our Feasts become Temple Feasts, Temple Supplication Hours and Temple Consultation Meetings!

Behold! The call of “Mashriqú’l-Adhkár” is penetrating every heart, and mind, and deed, and soon we shall be gathered together in Temple Unity, as only the Guardian’s Administration can lead us. Hear the music of that call, heed the lessons its reality teaches us, harken unto the echoes which resound through its lofty pillars and corridors.

What feasts of love and selfless giving will unfold, according to our obedience to the summons of our National Spiritual Assembly! The banquet is prepared and eternal radiance shines upon the Assemblies of our beloved Guardian’s Administration!

Giving! Giving! Giving is an art! Selfless giving proves our faith and love and hope in Bahá’u’lláh! When man gives everything in the Path of God he acquires abundant heavenly treasures in the Divine Kingdom, and although unseen below, they accumulate and pile up and erect a divine edifice of the spirit which becomes our habitation when this earthly life fades away. Is anything worth the keeping here below? And when the opportunity comes to us to share God’s material gifts for God’s eternal Cause, will we be found wanting?

The sacred Assemblies of the Administration are the purifiers of motives and as the members acquire perfection through sacrifice and order, a New Spirit descends among them, and a New Path opens before their faces until they see naught but the light of the Spirit of Bahá’u’lláh! Such an Assembly will bless the Community. All things can then be planned. The Spiritual Temple unfolds like unto the material one, and closely knitted together everything is done by Divine Guidance and blessings flowing therefrom upon all the world. If all Assemblies follow the plan, soon abounding success will come and our ‘Mother’ Temple in Wilmette will flourish and its beautiful accessories for relief and education, also, the establishing of all the principles of Bahá’u’lláh hover around a finished House of Worship.

There is no doubt that through prayer deeds will be born, and that through prayer and deed the world will be saved today. The Temple is the most important deed! Our National Spiritual Assembly has laid down for us our task, and the Nineteen-Day Feast becomes the focal center for Temple Unity.

The Nineteen-Day Feast is on a certain Day and at a certain Hour. If all of us together supplicate and plan for the Temple’s completion, Bahá’u’lláh will hear. He will open the hearts of every soul, and funds will flow into the National Treasury as the waters roll in a rapid stream. This will come by the Bounty of God, through the organized Kingdom—the Bahá’í Administration of Shoghi Effendi. There is no other way in which to build myriads of Mashriqu’l-Adhkar in a darkened world. The Point of Light hath been revealed unto us, from which Point all darkness of earth must flee. Glory and Peace be upon every heart!

O Assembly, there is another plea. In helping the Bahá’í World Book you are also helping the Temple. Will every believer send all the photographs of value which have accumulated during the long years of Bahá’í contact, to our Bahá’í World Committee, whose chairman is, (Mrs.) Nellie S. French, 501 Bellefontaine St., Pasadena, California. And will you let us know if the Master, ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, visited in your town, in what places he spent His hours, where He lectured and where He dwelt during His sojourn amongst you? Will you have photographs taken of the places, and send our sister any pictures you may have?

In our Guardian’s service, faithfully.

VICTORIA.

LETTER FROM SHOGHI EFFENDI TO MRS. VICTORIA BEDIKIAN

Sept. 5, 1931
Dear Bahá’í Sister:

Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge on his behalf the receipt of your letter dated July 15th, 1931, and to assure you of his profound appreciation of your continued and precious services to the Cause.

The Guardian was particularly gratified to receive your enclosed letters addressed to some of the believers encouraging them to endorse the New Plan of Unified Action recently issued by the National Assembly.

He wishes you, however, to persevere in your efforts and to be wholly confident in the promises of the Master concerning the ultimate triumph of the Faith.

We are passing through an age of scepticism and unbelief; but we should not let our faith lose in its strength or be dimmed by the mischief clouds of hesitation and doubt.

With the assurance of Shoghi Effendi’s best wishes and of his ardent prayers for your advancement and success,

Yours in His Service,
H. Rabbani.

My dear co-worker:

Your unremittting labors are a great encouragement to me and a source of real joy. You should continue, with undivided attention and undiminished energy, your historic work of enlisting world-wide support for the New Plan of Unified Action which I have already heartily endorsed. May the Almighty sustain and bless your exemplary endeavors.

SHOGHI.
BAHA'I ACTIVITIES IN OTHER LANDS

GREAT BRITAIN

London: The latest News Bulletin advises us of the result of the election of the first National Spiritual Assembly for England. Our English friends are lamenting the great loss of the passing of Mrs. Claudia Stewart Coles, who departed from us on the day of the declaration of the Báb, May 23rd. Her home, Warwick Gardens, appeared to have been turned, on the day of the funeral, into a garden of flowers. Her body was interred in the little country cemetery on Bledlow Ridge. The love and friendship which she showered upon her associates will always remain with them, a living memory. Her services to the Cause of Bahá'ulláh will be her monument.

Manchester: The Bahá'í group meets twice every month. The meetings are attended especially by the young people. Apparently the new generation is deeply interested in the Bahá'í Cause.

Bradford: Although no organized Assembly has been established, as a result of a visit by Mrs. Slade meetings have been held and the addresses given have been enthusiastically received.

Altrincham: There is no Spiritual Assembly here but plans for regular meetings have been made, through which it is hoped to extend the activities in the Cause.

York: Reports on small but very impressive meetings of the friends there in private circles.

Bournemouth: The friends meet weekly for the purpose of studying the Bahá'í Teachings. Mrs. Cowles from Montreal has done splendid pioneer work.

INDIA

Lahore: The Bahá'í Weekly, issued in Lahore, has brought the report of the passing of Mirza Mahmood Zargani who wrote the travels of 'Abdu'l-Bahá in America and Europe. Everyone acquainted with the great service rendered by Mirza Mahmood to the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh will realize how keenly his loss is felt.

Burma: India and Burma published in the Bahá'í Weekly of June 9th the report that the Delhi Bahá'í Weekly in Urdu has issued eight editions during the last year. The ninth will appear in January 1932. With the approval of the National Spiritual Assembly, the Assemblies in Bombay, Rangoon and Karachi have financed their publication. This publication in the Urdu language will be the means of bringing the Bahá'í Message to many in the north of India. At the Woman's Conference of All-Asia (January 1931) in Lahore, delegates attended from China, Japan, Afghanistan, Siam, Burma, Turkey, Persia and Egypt. Shoghi Effendi, as well as the Greatest Holy Leaf sent messages for the success of the Conference. A Tablet was read about the problems of women in this Bahá'í Age and met with great approval. At the reception to the delegates, a Bahá'í address was given, at which time many of the visitors to the Woman's Conference heard for the first time of the Bahá'í Cause. Hundreds of copies of the Bahá'í Weekly were sent out to the educated castes of India.

Karachi: A parcel of ground was purchased for the latter construction of the "Hazratu'l-Quds." It is named "Shoghi Gardens."

Calcutta: Has also bought land.

Mandayla: A very valuable property, business and garden, has been deeded over to Shoghi Effendi as a Bahá'í Estate by an old true servant of the Bahá'í Cause, Siyyid Mustafa Roumie and his wife. A copy of this deed is in the archives of the National Spiritual Assembly of India and Burma.

NEW ZEALAND

Auckland: We acknowledge gratefully receipt of circular letters from many Assemblies which are always of interest to us. We wish all to accept loving greetings and especially those American friends who so kindly entertained one of our members, Mrs. Dewing and her daughter when enroute to England. Mrs. Dewing's son Bertram was already known to some Bahá'ís as he had the good fortune to attend the Green Acre convention and since his residence in Montreal has been associated with the Bahá'í young people. Since Mr. Dewing's departure from New Zealand, the Herald of the South has been transferred to Australia and it is now published by the Adelaide, South Australia Assembly. In spite of losses to our numbers we still are able to function as an Assembly, but the work is chiefly in the nature of individual seed-sowing. Weekly meetings are held and a sewing guild provides garments for the City Mission. Our librarian loans magazines to people who are interested but who are unable to attend the meetings—a greatly appreciated effort. Reports received of the progress of the building of the Temple rejoice our hearts. We also give thanks for the continued good health of the Guardian of the Cause and the Greatest Holy Leaf.

MARGARET B. STEVENSON.

JAPAN

Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, who has been lecturing on the Bahá'í Faith in Japan for the past five weeks, sailed aboard the liner Chichibu Maru on August 8th, continuing her lecture tour around the world. Newspapers have been received from Japan, three from Osaka under date of June 30th, July 23rd and 25th; also one from Tokyo August 1st, published in English, with presentations of the work of Mrs. Ransom-Kehler. Two of the articles are reports of meetings giving the principles and history of the Bahá'í Cause at considerable length, also two articles written by Mrs. Ransom-Kehler were given space in the newspapers on the subjects of "Religion and Social Progress," and "The Unity of Religions."

London: The friends in England have been enjoying a visit from our beloved teacher, Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford. Mrs. Ford reaches the English audiences with great appeal. She is very much sought after and has spoken before large audiences in many English cities.

FRANCE

Paris: The Persian Bahá'í students sent to Europe by the Persian Government and located in various European Educational Centers, have been holding a reunion in Paris for the purpose of effecting an organization for their mutual assistance and co-operation. These young men are very earnest in their desire to familiarize themselves with the places which were visited by 'Abdu'l-Bahá when he was in Europe, to study the best methods for presenting the Cause and to establish an organization which shall meet frequently and especially during vacation periods: where they may encourage and assist each other; where they may be helpful to new students coming for the first time into the Western World, and where they may invite non-Bahá'í Oriental students and make them welcome, thus sharing the Bahá'í Spirit. They are very hopeful that some such Persian Bahá'í Students' Group may be organized in the United States and the writer was earnestly requested to endeavor to bring this about in America. The students feel that newcomers have great need of guidance and friendly association, as western ways are totally unfamiliar to them and they feel strange and isolated.

GREEN ACRE IN 1931

By ALBERT VAIL

The green "'Alka' of America enjoyed this year an unusually long and refreshing season. It is becoming more and more a real summer school for Baha'i teachers. There were regular courses of lectures beginning early in July and lasting to the latter part of August; and they were splendidly attended by eager groups of younger and older people who longed to better understand modern science and social problems, the philosophies of our day, the great springtimes of the Holy Spirit in human history, the practical methods by which we as spiritual physicians may heal body, mind and soul in this distracted social order.

There were morning classes six days in the week which presented the comprehensive courses the program committee had carefully outlined. There were special evening lectures on psychology, progressive education, current events, spiritual administration, world travels, and sunset gatherings for quiet prayer and spiritual healing. Sunday mornings brought the memorable services of worship with their singing, readings from divine books, inspiring addresses and lovely music.

There was a Conference on International Relations arranged by the youth which awakened much interest. A specialist in international law and economics gave an illuminating series of addresses and a kindly and universally minded editor from Boston added greatly to the success of the program. The youth were chairmen and speakers at the various sessions. The students at Green Acre are evident proof of what the creative Words of the New Manifestation can do in transforming those who love and study these Words, into fluent speakers and shining lights.

A new feature at Green Acre this summer was regular services devoted to prayer. One of the pilgrims just returned from Haifa told how Shoghi Effendi had spoken of the need of special meetings for meditation. So at the Fellowship House there were special morning services of meditation on the meanings of the Divine Utterances. The one conducting the meeting read first a prayer, also a few words from the Divine Treasury upon the attributes of God, His Mercy, His Love, His Bounty and the radiant pathway of pure and holy living. Then those present endeavored to realize the glory of these Attributes and the joy of walking in His path. Often some one volunteered to chant a prayer, as music quickens and heightens spiritual susceptibilities. Then those present tried to rise on the wings of silent concentration into that "atmosphere which is hidden from the eye."

INTER-RACIAL AMITY CONVENTION

GREEN ACRE, ME., AUGUST 21-31.

By E. B. M. DEWING.

The Amity Convention this year was noted for the large attendance of colored people. The spirit of amity was outstanding and many permanent inter-racial friendships must have been created. The most notable gathering was on Sunday evening when a concert was given by noted artists of many races. The spirit was a revelation and an inspiration even to a Baha'i and the friends lingered, singing and talking, long after the concert was over.

At the two round-table meetings the large proportion of colored people was very noticeable; also their keenness, desire to reach constructive conclusions and frankness of speech. This report is not of the whole conference, but includes passages of the most valuable ideas and constructive criticism which were brought up in perfect love and kindness.

It often happens that some of the best thoughts that are the outcome of this type of conference are to be gathered from personal contacts and informal discussions after the convention proper is over. Hence this report of the two round-table meetings.

Miss Louise Thompson spoke of her recent visit to Haifa. She said that Shoghi Effendi told her that the greatest problem in Europe was the Jewish question, in England the class question and in America the race question. It was his wish that Green Acre become a great center for the white and colored people. He said we must take them into our homes and not be afraid of criticism. At the same time wisdom must be displayed.

As a result of this a number of friends later expressed the hope that various Negro and other organizations should be invited to Green Acre to hold their annual conferences.

Mrs. Annie K. Lewis, colored Bahá’í, felt the need to be practical in their meetings; also that any conclusion reached should not end in words.

Mrs. Bechtold of New York, who does splendid work, considers that the most complete and lasting amity work can be obtained by personal friendships between peoples, active demonstration of love and understanding.

Mr. Samuel A. Allan of the Urban League, a Bahá’í, hoped the Bahá’ís would exercise more originality than other amity organizations. He hoped that we might have colored speakers on subjects other than amity and race. He suggested that Mr. Arthur A. Schornburg of Fisk University would be willing to give a course of lectures on Negro literature next year. He also suggested Dr. E. E. Just, noted scientist, as a speaker. He also wished that less attention be directed to the Negro-White question and that this be made a part of the general question of relationship between races. He would like to see Jews, Japanese and Chinese, and others, included in these conferences.

Prof. Sandoz said Bahá’ís should avoid speaking of other people as “colored.” They should ignore such distinctions entirely.

Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf spoke of the intensity of the race problem in New Orleans.

Mrs. Zylphia Mapp, colored Bahá’í, said that in her opinion there is a great difference between Southern and Northern colored people and that those of the South would take more notice of a Bahá’í teacher of their own race.

Mrs. Mapp lives in a town where her family is the only one of color. At first she met with difficulties but now all opposition to her has passed. Her children mingle freely with the white children and she entertains her white neighbors in her home.

Mr. Gregory said that pure souls can powerfully influence their environment, though hostile. Speaking of amity among Jews he said that Rabbis are highly intelligent and readily listen to the Bahá’ís teachings, but find it hard to carry their congregations with them.

Mrs. Weiss, whose husband is an associate editor of the magazine Time, felt that the Bahá’ís should conduct a vigorous educational campaign in the press and among clubs and other organizations. All should at least know that the Bahá’í Cause exists. Editors differ in their preference for news. Time likes the present and forecasts of future events. Most editors like sane, idealistic, well written articles; they discard the eccentric and emotional. Time likes news.

Mr. Dewing believes Bahá’í writers should study various publications with a view to supplying their needs. Perhaps certain ones should specialize with certain papers. Larger publicity committees should work on Bahá’í conferences and start earlier. Do not overwork the willing ones and find others with capacity to serve.

Mrs. Weiss said more effort should be made to attract clubs on racial amity and other principals of the Cause. Too much stress should not be laid on the deeper Bahá’í teachings. Get a list of all clubs and try to attract peoples of various races and nationalities.

Mrs. Fleming of New Haven, colored, would like her people to pay more attention to their own deportment. If they have assurance and look attractive, they are not so likely to meet rebuffs. She hoped that the Bahá’ís would co-operate with various state and national Negro clubs. The National Teaching Committee might furnish teachers with such addresses.

Mr. Dewing, when in Haifa was deeply impressed with the Guardian’s concern over the race question. The Guardian said that he was not sure that the friends were doing all they could to attract the colored people. While Mr. Dewing did not doubt that all who worked for the cause of amity were deeply concerned, he thought that an inquiry into methods might be beneficial. The great lesson of the Guardian to believers was his efficiency. Amity conferences should increasingly attract thought leaders by disseminating scientific and spiritual knowledge. Inter-racial sports should be encouraged among the children and youth. Green Acre, Geyserville and Lew-Helen (Flint, Mich.) may take the lead in this phase of amity, a step in the direction of the sublimation of conflict.

Mr. Gregory said there are difficulties that attack people of all races and such cannot be avoided. One person succeeds and another of the same race fails. This may be due to a difference of personality, or in the degrees of faith, devotion, sacrifice and spiritual attraction and confirmation. But it is with regard to problems which arise purely out of racial differences that we are concerned chiefly. It is our wish to remove prejudices to promote justice and fair play and to establish the unity of the human family regardless of racial differences. Factors in this effort are scientific proofs of the equality of races; the experiment of bringing to the fore talented people to challenge respect and win admiration for their groups; demonstrating both the subjective and objective harm of prejudice and the creation of the spiritual bond which can have complete expression and power only through the great message and teachings of Bahá’u’lláh.

BAHÁ’Í JOURNALS

“The News Letter (Bahá’í News) which you have lately initiated fulfills a very vital function and has been started admirably well. I would urge you to enlarge its scope, as much as your resources permit, that in time it may devote a special section to every phase of your activities, administrative, devotional, humanitarian, financial, educational and otherwise. That it may attain the object it must combine the essential qualities of accuracy, reliability, thoroughness, dignity and wisdom. It should become a great factor in promoting understanding, providing information on Bahá’í activity, both local and foreign, stimulating interest, in combating evil influences, and in upholding and safeguarding the institutions of the Cause. It should be made as representative as possible, should be replete with news, up-to-date in its information, and should arouse the keenest interest among believers and admirers alike in every corner of the globe. I cherish great hopes for its immediate future, and I trust you will devote your special attention to its development, and by devising well-conceived and worldwide measures transform this News Letter into what I hope will become the foremost Bahá’í Journal in the world.”

Our brother, Mr. Pritam Singh, Editor of the Bahá’í Weekly of Lahore, India (9 Langby Road), is engaged in a work of loving service to the people of India in the publication of this Weekly, which has possibilities of the highest importance. The subscription to this Weekly is $2.00 per year, and a number of the American believers have already become subscribers. Pritam Singh has, up to September 2, 1931, registered 160 subscribers, and states that the total of 350 subscribers will make the Weekly self-supporting. The friends of the East have been magnanimous in contributing to the Bahá’í Temple in America. International co-operation and reciprocity between the friends in various countries is a means of unity and strength. Please address Pritam Singh as described above.

ALFRED LUNT.
URGENT APPEAL FROM THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

Bahá’í friends of the United States and Canada. October 15, 1931
Beloved co-workers:

On October 10th the members of the National Spiritual Assembly were compelled to take the unprecedented action of telegraphing the Local Spiritual Assemblies as follows:

“DIRE EMERGENCY NATIONAL FUND REQUIRES IMMEDIATE CONTRIBUTIONS, NOTIFY ALL BELIEVERS.”

The reason for this action was that the regular contributions to the National Fund have so decreased as to render the National Assembly unable to meet even current running expenses. Furthermore we faced the fact that $10,000 is immediately needed to safeguard the Temple structure during the coming winter.

What we want to impress upon every loyal believer is that the Temple Trustees have been forced to place contracts for heating installation to the amount of $10,000, without having that amount in the treasury or face the problem that the winter cold would seriously damage the structure built with such sacrifice and love. We are relying on the body of American believers to understand the emergency and arise to meet the situation. The needs of the Temple before this winter were made known at the Convention, and early in July the National Spiritual Assembly explained the matter fully in the new Plan of Unified Action.

The Welfare of the Cause in America depends upon the whole-hearted response made by the believers to this urgent plea. We implore the believers one and all to enter upon a season of fervent prayer for Divine assistance and confirmation. We share with you the following dynamic message just received from the Guardian:

“My dear and esteemed co-workers: The new Plan of Unified Action conceived, adopted and published by your Assembly is an admirable one. It is at once concise, appealing in tone, dignified in presentation and practical in its conception. It fully and truly deserves the unreserved support of every American believer. I shall be glad to associate myself with this further collective and heroic effort exerted by the friends by contributing to your National Fund, every month for a period of three years, the sum of $95. Your Assembly, faithful to its trust and conscious of its high calling, has sounded the call for a further and final effort on the part of the followers of Bahá’u’lláh in that land. It is for them, now if ever, to arise for the speedy consummation of a divinely appointed task. Shoghi.”

In the last several issues the Editorial Committee has appealed to the friends for news items from the Bahá'í Communities throughout the country. The response has been very meagre and we are therefore again asking that every Assembly make a point of sending a brief, newsy report of the activities in its Community each month. These should reach the Chairman of the Editorial Committee at the above address, not later than the tenth of the month. We need the help and co-operation of all the friends and we are definitely counting upon it. To help us in our work we would ask that when quotations are used in these articles, the authority be stated also.

"THE MIDNIGHT SIGHS OF THE POOR"

The economic depression which is general, directly or indirectly affects all people, and necessitates many calls for relief. Those who have resources nowadays and the greater gift of a merciful heart, often find themselves taxed to the limit by steady and varied demands. These distressing conditions give play to the shining of various spiritual lights. The Holy Manifestations have all been most considerate of the poor. They have set before mankind the example of service to them and they advance the station of those servants who follow them in dispensing bounty. Among the qualities of a real man, tenderness, generosity and mercy, must be found. Those in need of material aid receive the greatest possible blessing if through the relief of their deprivations there comes to them a knowledge of God and the universal bounty. Thus may both the giver and receiver become enriched by the kindly service and generous act. There can be no doubt as to the feelings of relief which come to those who suffer when aided. Also a deeper insight into spiritual mysteries, a sense of happiness which God bestows as to the feedings of relief as to make them more spiritual. Over a period of years, stagnant material treasures and larger capacity to handle them wisely, may come as a result of relieving those who sigh.

In the Hidden Words Bahá'u'lláh says: "Mine is benevolence and bounty; well is it with him that adorneth himself with My virtues."
The divine civilization, whose light is increasingly reflected in the world, has vastly increased the number of philanthropies. Over a period of years, staggering—one might almost say fabulous—sums have been poured into channels of human progress and relief. So great has been the volume of this service that in nearly all cities it has been found necessary to organize the forces of relief so as to make them more scientific and effective. In numberless cases governments of cities, counties, states and nations have added their resources to those of private philanthropies in human relief. Co-operative service in such matters is one of the enlightening signs of the times. Bahá'ís are blessed in having a perfect organization, divinely created, which, if allowed to function in aiding the needy will bring to bear a balance between tenderness and mercy on the one hand and sanity and judgment on the other. As the friends of God bear at all times extremely weighty responsibilities, such as the building of the House of Worship and the maintenance of Bahá'í Administration with its various activities, as well as relief of the destitute among the friends and in the community at large, all calls for relief upon individuals should be adjusted, not directly and personally, as a rule, but rather through the Local Spiritual Assembly. In this way consultation and guidance will direct, and bewilderment will give place to clarity of vision. Even in giving that which according to every legal requirement is rightfully our own, a practice which will be found to minimize mistakes, it is that of seeking the advice of those whom spiritual communities have chosen as their representatives and whose collective observation, experience and vision exceed that of the individual. The duplication of service which often limits philanthropy can also thus be avoided.

In one of the cities it came to the attention of the Local Spiritual Assembly that one of their members was in sore need. The matter of relief was considered with sweetness and kindness. The little circle knew their own responsibilities, limited resources, yet also the urgent need of this friend. As a result of consultation a practical plan of help was evolved which laid no great burden upon anyone. By their cordial invitation this friend goes each day to dine with one of the families in this circle. From their Assembly fund his room-rent and other expenses are met. Each month they also find something to send to the National Fund for the inevitable expenses of the Cause. In this way their work grows and they are now engaged in a great constructive service to their city.

The means of overcoming every difficulty are revealed in the teachings. If both mind and heart are intelligent, if Supreme Guidance is sought, if the law of consultation and kindness is followed, all the glooms and shadows of the world will vanish before the Great Light.

IMPORTANT CABLE FROM SHOGHI EFFENDI DATED NOVEMBER 2, 1931

"Urge all English speaking Believers concentrate study Nabíl's immortal Narrative as essential preliminary to renewed intensive Teaching Campaign necessitated by completion Masriqu'l-'Adhkár. Strongly feel widespread use of its varied rich and authentic material constitutes most effective weapon to meet challenge of a critical hour. Unhesitatingly recommend it to every prospective visitor of Bahá'u'lláh's native land.

—Shoghi"
LETTER FROM SHOGHI EFFENDI

To the National Spiritual Assembly
Mr. Alfred Lunt, Secretary.
Dear Baha'i Brother:

I am directed by Shoghi Effendi to acknowledge on his behalf the receipt of your letter of April 8th, 1930, together with their enclosures, all of which he has read with careful attention and deep interest.

Our Guardian wishes me to express his lively satisfaction at the efficiency and promptness with which the National Spiritual Assembly have undertaken the publication of Nabii's Narrative. The plan you have conceived to further the means for its production has met with his unqualified approval, and he hopes that the response of the believers, not only among the English speaking Bahai's, but the friends throughout the world, will be such as to repay fully the painstaking efforts which you have exerted to insure its success.

He has already cabled you expressing his desire to associate himself with the effort that you have made, and he will be glad to forward in the month of October a check for the hundred copies of the standard edition which he has requested you to send him. In addition he will mail a sum of three-hundred dollars for nine copies of the special edition which he hopes to send to a few well-known friends of the Cause. Shoghi Effendi would be pleased to hear of the response of the believers to the call for both editions and would be glad to help in any way he possibly can for a wide and prompt distribution of the volume published by your committee.

Shoghi Effendi was rather affected to learn of the meager response of the believers to the call urging them to maintain the standard of their self-sacrificing endeavors in connection with the Temple. He is fully alive to the critical character of the financial situation throughout the world and is well aware of the extent of sacrifice that the completion of the structure has already entailed. The publication of the "New Plan of Unified Action," he fervently hopes and prays, will prove the signal for a fresh outburst of self-sacrificing zeal which can alone carry this sacred enterprise to a successful conclusion.

Regarding the report of the Committee on Persian travel, Shoghi Effendi feels that the paramount needs of the Temple should be given first consideration by the believers. Not until the work of the exterior ornamentation on the first unit (superstructure) of the Temple has sufficiently advanced would he advise the American believers to embark on a fresh financial enterprise, however valuable and significant it might be.

Our Guardian trusts that a careful reading of Nabii's Narrative will not only serve to familiarize the American believers with the character of the stirring events which have marked the birth of the Cause in that land, but will serve to deepen their realization of the spirit that animated those who have achieved such immortal renown on its soil.

With Shoghi Effendi's renewed assurance of unqualified admiration for the manner in which you have arisen, in collaboration with the other members of the National Spiritual Assembly, to discharge your sacred and arduous duties.

Yours sincerely,

(Signed) H. RABBANI.

My dear and esteemed co-worker:

The "New Plan of Unified Action" conceived, adopted and published by your Assembly is an admirable one. It is at once concise, appealing in tone, dignified in presentation and practical in its conception. It fully and truly deserves the unreserved support of every American believer. I shall be glad to associate myself with this further collective and heroic effort exerted by the believers by contributing to your National Fund every month for a period of three years, the sum of ninety-five dollars. Your Assembly, faithful to its trust and conscious of its high calling, has sounded the call for a further and final effort on the part of the followers of Bahai'ullah, in that land. It is for them, now if ever, to arise for the speedy consummation of a divinely appointed task.

(Signed) SHOGHI

THE NEW PLAN OF UNIFIED ACTION

The Editors of the Baha'i News would urge all the friends to arise to the Call of Shoghi Effendi and the appeal of the National Spiritual Assembly to the New Plan of Unified Action.

In connection with this effort we would remind the friends of the following excerpt from the Koran (Sale's translation):

"Verily, this present life is only a play and a vain amusement but if ye believe and fear God, He will give you your rewards. He doth not require of you your whole substance: If He should require the whole of you, and earnestly press you, ye would become niggardly, and it would raise your hatred against His apostle. Behold, ye are those who are invited to expend part of your substance for the support of God's true religion; and there are some of you who are niggardly. But whoever shall be niggardly shall be niggardly towards his own soul; for God wanteth nothing, but ye are needy; and if ye turn back, he will substitute another people in your stead, who shall not be like unto you."

Also may we quote an extract from a letter from the Guardian to Mr. Willard Hatch, dated at Haifa, September 10, 1931:

"I hope and pray that you will be able to concentrate your efforts on arousing the believers and urging them to attain to still greater mass-sacrifice and self-abnegation. The new plan must not fall into abeyance, it deserves the sustained and energetic support of every believer in the Faith of Bahai'ullah. Inestimable blessings shall crown America's high and self-sacrificing endeavors."

And as a climax to this urgent appeal of the National Spiritual Assembly we present the following cablegram just received from Shoghi Effendi:

"Profondly deplore stringency (the) financial situation. An appeal to individuals and Assemblies alike (to) maintain despite world-wide depression, (their) high standard (of) self-sacrificing efforts (for the) National Fund is imperative. Abundant blessings shall be vouchsafed its staunch supporters.—SHOGHI."

Haifa, October 19, 1931.

THE BAHAI' MAGAZINE HOLIDAY OFFER

Since the holiday season is very near at hand The Baha'i Magazine is again extending a helpful offer to all those who may be thinking of gifts for friends at this time. During the months of November and December New Subscriptions may be had for $2.50 instead of $3.00 a year. We are ready to offer for two months the single issues of the Magazine (back numbers) as long as they last, at the rate of 15c a copy. We have very few of Volumes 1-2-3, more of Volume 4, but not many, and of the rest we will be glad to furnish them as long as they last. This will enable you to complete your files. Possibly you will be glad to have us bind them for you at the rate of $1.25 for the binding, plus postage, which varies according to distances.
MESSAGE FROM COMMITTEE ON BAHÁ'Í WORLD VOL. IV.

The Committee for the Bahá'í World Vol. IV. desires to express through the medium of the Bahá'í News, its gratitude and appreciation for the splendid co-operation of the friends who have undertaken the historical sketches of the various cities in which 'Abdu'l-Bahá sojourned while in this country, and to assure the friends that all of these manuscripts together with the interesting and valuable old photographs have been sent to the Guardian for his review and selection.

As has been stated before, the collection of these narratives was undertaken in the hope of preserving for all time the record of the visit of 'Abdu'l-Bahá as cherished in the minds of those personal participants who were blest with the privilege of being eye-witnesses of this sacred event.

If there are still manuscripts outstanding, the committee will be pleased to receive them (even though the date for their completion has transpired), and they will be forwarded to the Guardian and be subject to the same review and choice by him, as those which were received earlier.

The committee desires that it shall be clearly understood by the contributors to Vol. IV, that the material which will appear in the next volume is in no wise subject to their choice, but is wholly left to the judgment and wisdom of Shoghi Effendi.

Confirmation, joy and radiance marked the first session of the Summer School for the Central States which was held during the first nine days of August on the Eggleston farm at South Davison, Michigan, twelve miles east of Flint and about fifty miles northwest of Detroit. From thirty to thirty-five friends from Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Tennessee and Washington, D. C., were present for all or part of the session and many more came for one or more of the daily sessions, so that some ninety souls were served and shared in the bounties of the week. Some heard the Message for the first time, attracted souls were confirmed, confirmed souls were strengthened.

The School was made possible through the devotion of Mr. and Mrs. Eggleston of Detroit who own the farm and are consecrating eighty acres of it to Bahá'í purposes, hoping eventually to see a Bahá'í community develop there.

The aim of the School was to prepare teachers, and the theme for the week was "The New World Order." In a series of four talks on The New Economics Mr. Ober traced the economic development of the western world, analyzed the present crisis, gave the Bahá'í solution to the present world problems, and set out the need of a Bahá'í community as a working plan of the new world order.

The series of talks by Mr. Ives gave inspiration and practical points on how to give the great Message. His talk on the Hidden Words was particularly inspiring as he shared with the group some of the precious results of his years of study and meditation. On the last Sunday morning Mr. Ober gave the picture of a future Bahá'í community, possibly right there, and Mr. Ives dwelt on the necessity of the spiritual basis of love for such a community, all felt a new urge to hasten to spread the glad tidings, that Bahá'u'lláh has already laid the foundation for this new world order.

A very practical contribution was made when Mrs. Gift spoke on The Education of Children for the New Day, giving in some detail the plan which some of the Peoria group are working out with children. The outline of this plan will soon be available for all.

As we look back, Mrs. Ives' daily class in public speaking, Mrs. Dorothy Baker's talks, full of spiritual insight, Miss Fanny Knobloch's personal reminiscences, Mrs. Ober's stories of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, Mrs. Collins' services, Miss McKay's care of the children, all seem indispensable to the success of the School. In fact, every one there contributed in some way.

Although a brief report cannot at all do the School justice this one would be quite incomplete without speaking of the beauty of the place and how well it lends itself to such a project. A peaceful and lovely ravine furnished the setting for most of the meetings. Rudvan Garden, it was named. The out-of-door life in this environment, the afternoon free from any set program, the informal gatherings around the evening camp-fire, the meals in one family group, all helped to create a normal atmosphere and a happy, restful one. In reviewing the session one asks how could such bountiful blessings be gathered into one week and how could a spirit of such impelling harmony and loving urge develop in so short a time?

Plans for the next summer's session are already under way. The committee has unanimously to continue to use the direct method of teaching, holding to Bahá'í subjects and Bahá'í teachers. As the knowledge of this new venture spreads many more will want to avail themselves of the opportunity it offers.

BERTHA H. KIRKPATRICK.

IN MEMORIAM

Word comes to us from Honolulu of the passing of Meta A. Sutherland, a member of the Spiritual Assembly of that city and one of the very early, faithful Believers. Mrs. Sutherland was apparently in her usual health, when, early in the afternoon of September 17th, she passed peacefully away. The Baha'is of the city will greatly miss her faithful and obedient service to the Cause.

Parveen Hunt, nineteen-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Tandy Hunt of Portland, Oregon, crashed in an airplane on the morning of September 20th. In his death Portland has lost a young man of splendid character. He was chief mechanic for the Paragon Flying Service and was leaving that very day to go into business for himself with a school friend, who crashed with him. Parveen was brought up in the Bahá'í Faith and was named by 'Abdu'l-Bahá. He was an example to all who knew him, for thoroughness, painstaking endeavor, enterprise, energy and enthusiasm in his chosen work. He never spared himself to help or benefit others, and his sunny disposition, his charm, his courtesy and his happy smile won him countless friends, and his untimely passing is mourned by all who knew him. He had a beautiful Bahá'í funeral, and as a last tribute five airplanes followed the funeral procession to the cemetery, and circled above as the closing rites were read.

On October 14th, Mrs. Tressa Jacobsen, for many years a beloved member of the Kenosha, Wisconsin, Assembly, passed on suddenly into the life eternal. For her loving devotion to home and friends alike and as a social worker, Mrs. Jacobsen will long be remembered. This sad event coming as it did was a shock to her family and friends.

Mrs. Anna Bohanan, for twenty-three years, also a devoted Bahá'í in Kenosha, departed this life October 16th. The funeral was attended by a host of friends. The service was conducted by Mr. Albert Windust of Chicago. Mrs. Bohanan will be mourned by a wide circle of friends both within and outside the Bahá'í circle. A few days before passing Mrs. Bohanan expressed a wish that this message be sent to all who knew her: "You tell them I love them all very much—tell them I will pray for them." Both these Bahá'í sisters were pioneers in the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh in their city, and the Bahá'í News on behalf of its readers extends heartfelt sympathy to Mr. Jacobsen and to Mr. Bohanan and his four daughters in their bereavement, also to Mr. and Mrs. Hunt and the family of Mrs. Sutherland.
THE GUARDIAN HAS CALLED US TO FULL MATURITY

On November 12, the National Spiritual Assembly issued the first of a series of communications on the subject of the "New Plan of Unified Action," addressed to the Local Bahá’í communities through the Spiritual Assemblies, with the request that it be presented at the next Nineteen Day Feast.

This letter, prepared by the Office of the Treasurer and signed by the Treasurer, Associate Treasurer and Financial Secretary, carried the glad tidings that the urgent appeal for $10,000 made in October had been fully met. It was brought out, however, that larger regular contributions will be required in order to sustain the current Annual Budget, irrespective of the vital needs of the new Temple Construction Fund.

"It is now over a year since the Guardian called us to full maturity in those tremendous letters published as 'The World Order of Baha'u'llah.' Surely it is necessary for us to temper our joy at being received into the Kingdom with an ever-increasing effort to demonstrate to others that the Kingdom means 'This will be done on earth as it is in Heaven.'"

"It is an occasion for every believer to deepen his inner life, attain a higher standard of devotion and sacrifice, and bring order in his daily affairs. As the world plunges farther into confusion and chaos, emergencies will continue to arise, until the friends of God are united and wholly active in their services to the Cause."

On November 26, the second letter in the series was mailed. This communication emphasized the fundamental importance of full and frank consultation on the part of the Local Bahá’í communities at every Nineteen Day Feast, and reported the Financial Statement to October 30, 1931.

Although the contracts for heating installation in the Temple, amounting to about $10,000, can be met from funds now on hand, the National Spiritual Assembly wishes to impress upon the friends the fact that, between November 1 and December 31, other requirements of the Budget will amount to approximately $9,500. The principal item is the printing cost of the "Nabíl Narrative," about $7,500 over and above cash received to date for advance orders on the book.

In order to make an increased effort to achieve success in its paramount task set forth in the "New Plan of Unified Action," the National Spiritual Assembly has elected Horace Holley to the office of Associate Treasurer, as assistant to Roy C. Wilhelm, Treasurer, and Carl Scheffler, Financial Secretary.

THE DRAWING POWER OF THE TEMPLE

The attendance at the public meetings in the Temple is steadily increasing and the influx of visitors most encouraging. A large group of students from the Northwestern University came to the Temple after ten o'clock one evening and remained until past midnight. It has been observed that many who come first merely through curiosity return again and again because of awakened interest, and a number have become confirmed Bahá’ís.

The visitors from the environs of Chicago are kept systematically informed of the classes and group meetings throughout the city by the Secretary of the Hospitality Committee. Those from other cities and states are supplied with free literature and their names are also sent to the Secretary of the National Teaching Committee, who endeavors to bring about an association between these seekers and groups of Bahá’ís or isolated believers near them. This splendid cooperative work between the two committees is producing excellent results. During October the speakers at the Sunday afternoon meetings in the Foundation Hall of the Temple were Miss Pearl Easterbrook of Peoria, Mrs. Corinne True, Mr. Albert Vail and Dr. Zia Bagdadi, all of whom delivered very fine addresses.

The meetings in the Foundation Hall continue with unabated interest. The attendance has not fallen off, despite inclement weather, and the addresses seem to become more interesting and instructive each week. Speakers during November were Mrs. Corinne True, Mr. Albert Vail and Mrs. Sarah Walrath.

The number of daily visitors to the Temple is increasing, on November 9th three hundred club women having been guests. Truly we are witnessing the fulfillment of 'Abdu'l-Bahá’s words that the Temple will be the means of attracting countless souls to the Cause. How much more potent will be its influence when it is completed in all its beauty and splendor! Let us make every sacrifice to attain the accomplishment of this great purpose. Let us respond as never before to the support of the New Plan of Unified Action. It is our God-given privilege. Are we going to deny ourselves this blessing?

A short time ago, following a Sunday afternoon meeting, a few of the friends had the opportunity of making a tour of inspection, under the guidance of Mr. Edward Struven, of the new machinery for heating and ventilating the Temple. This is the machinery which is so urgently needed to protect the structure during the winter months, for the payment of which the recent call for $10,000.00 was made by the National Spiritual Assembly. The response to that call was splendid and the work of installation is going forward with all possible speed. It is regrettable that not all of the friends can see this installation, the majestic boilers, for there is majesty in machinery, the tremendous valves, the intricate flues and the still more intricate electrical devices governing this heart of the material shell which is the expression of a spiritual ideal.

PUBLICATION OF NABIL NARRATIVE DELAYED.

The Bahá’í Publishing Committee regrets to announce that the publication date for The Dawn-Breakers is unavoidably postponed until February 1932. For this reason we will allow the 10% discount from regular price of Standard Edition until February 1, 1932. Bahá’í Publishing Committee, P. O. Box 348, Grand Central Station, New York, N. Y.
BUILDING THROUGH CONCERTED EFFORT

One of the unique features of the Bahá’í Cause is this, that the spread of its teachings depends upon the individual effort of its adherents. No one is exempt from this responsibility and we have the command from ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, “with a firm resolution, a pure heart, a rejoiced spirit, and an eloquent tongue, engage your force in the promulgation of the divine principles.” If we lack the training, the eloquence, to set forth convincing arguments and fervent appeals that will reveal to our brothers the value of the Message that has come to us, each one of us may nevertheless directly assist in national teaching work by his sustained support of the New Plan of Unified Action.

Our National Spiritual Assembly, faced with an immediate necessity in the building of the Temple, has again been obliged to urge our support of the New Plan of Unified Action. In meeting this minor crisis the American believers seem to have overcome that paralyzing inertia which overpowered us after the goal of the first Plan of Unified Action was reached. Now that we have conquered this inertia, let us direct all our efforts toward increasing our momentum so that the accelerated motion may sweep us on to our new goal on scheduled time.

This challenge which we are now facing represents not an isolated phase but the whole present-day purpose of Bahá’í Administration in the United States and Canada. The Temple is the great outstanding teaching activity in this country. Remember that ‘Abdu’l-Bahá said, “When the foundation of the Mashriqu’l-Adhkár is laid in America and that divine edifice completed, a most wonderful and thrilling motion will appear in the world of existence..... From that point of light the spirit of teaching, spreading the Cause of God and promoting the teachings of God will permeate to all parts of the world.”

Even in its present unfinished condition the Temple is a powerful center of teaching. The attendance at the services in the Foundation Hall is most gratifying, not only because of the increasing numbers but also because of the genuine interest and appreciation shown. The Temple serves the entire country. Visitors from all parts of America have found it a unique and illuminating experience thus to come into contact with the Bahá’í Movement with its teachings for the unification and service of all mankind.

Today the most effective work is done in groups and the strongest call for group action comes from the Mashriqu’l-Adhkár. Such an effort shared by each member of the group will culminate in a collective deed that will evidence to this country a spirit of faith that will compel attention to the Cause of which it is the fruit. The voluntary character of contributions to the National Fund insures a direct relation between giving and maturity of understanding. When a believer has really given all he can to the National Fund, and then and only then has he risen to the opportunity afforded him in this group deed. And it cannot be stressed too often that the value of the gift lies not in its amount but in the degree of self-dedication that impels it. This is because self-dedication forms the spiritual Temple which must precede the physical Temple that is its counterpart.

Let us not deceive ourselves. The present economic depression has little to do with our success or failure in meeting this opportunity. Our financial support of the New Plan of Unified Action is of the same substance as our individual dedication to teaching. Both are dependent, not upon present world conditions, but rather upon the spiritual understanding and consecration of the individual believers.

It may be that some can most effectively aid in spreading the Cause through large contributions to the National Fund. Many of us, however, wish to supplement our necessarily limited material assistance by devoting all the time we can give to individual or group teaching activities. Never before has there been so many opportunities for Bahá’í service, never a greater receptivity on the part of the people. We have common interest with, and a sympathetic approach to, almost all thinking people. We can offer the Divine Plan of Bahá’u’lláh with assurance to a bewildered world lost in the maze of conflicting human solutions to problems of international peace or economic stability. Not only does the Bahá’í Message offer the Plan, but it also supplies the spiritual dynamic which energizes it. With such a gift to share, do we dare to remain silent? It may be that we can teach only through our actions, or in terms of very general principles, but if we are sincere and steadfast and patient, the time will eventually come when we can speak more directly of our beloved Cause. Here again our greatest obstacle is our own inertia.

Shoghi Effendi has tried again and again to arouse us from our sleep of negligence. He has sounded many a stirring call to action through his letters and cables to the National Spiritual Assembly; he has urged individuals to concentrate their efforts on arousing the believers to greater and more sacrificial effort; he has suggested a stimulating example by his own generous and regular giving; he constantly prays for our spiritual awakening to our responsibilities. And now he has sent us Nabil’s Narrative with the expressed hope that through it we may gain a larger realization of the degree of devotion and steadfastness to which he is calling us. May we through its stirring recital of events in the history of the Cause in Persia become imbued with the spirit which motivated the early believers.

We in America have been clinging in the past to superficial excuses for our lack of performance, whereas the fundamental reason has been our spiritual immaturity. Let us from now on reflect the spirit depicted in Nabil’s Narrative, and we shall see that in spite of small numbers, lack of material wealth, and a disordered world, the Temple will be speedily completed and all lines of teaching will meet with unprecedented success.

THE TEMPLE AND THE NINETEEN-DAY FEASTS

By "Auntie Victoria"
(Mrs. Victoria Beddian)

"May the Assembled Believers, now but a tiny nucleus of the Bahá’í Commonwealth of the future, so exemplify that spirit of universal love and fellowship as to evoke in the minds of their associates the vision of that City of God which the Almighty Arm of Bahá’ulláh can alone establish!"

Shoghi Effendi, Bahá’í Administration.

The Mashriqu’l-Adhkar with its central Edifice stands as a symbol of Bahá’í Unity. Its lights are pervading Humanity’s existence and its meanings are drawing the seekers and the beloved into the City of God not built by hands.

In our weakness we have arisen to finish the Temple of the Lord of Hosts. We are assured of the Assistance of the Divine Arm of Bahá’ulláh. We seek the guidance of the Master through our Beloved Guardian, Shoghi Effendi. It is clear that all failings shall be turned into blessings when we renounce them and enter the Arena of sacrificial service to the Mashriqu’l-Adhkar. The Way has been shown to us by our National Spiritual Assembly. The New Plan of Unified Action has verified brought to all our Assemblies a new courage, a renewed desire to forget self and enter the Kingdom of God.

During the Nineteen-Day Feast we are exhorted to fortify this New Plan and set it into a well-functioning Reality. This Plan is God’s Plan, it is an outgrowth and the fulfillment of the Creative Word. Bahá’í activities and Temple activities are identical and will be supported by the Divine Plan; thus the Temple, its accessories and the Plan are one movement, a mighty clock-work of wheels marking the advance of Divine Education, Spirituality, Progress and Knowledge upon the earth.

The New Plan of Unified Action is a God-send to all the Bahá’í Communities upon the earth, and an example to be followed by all the Assemblies. Its varying commands will open for us the flood-gates of success in every task of importance laid before us, and materialize our ideals and visions. Our Beloved Guardian says that the New Plan is "At once, concise, appealing in tone, dignified in presentation and practical in its conception." World-wide support has also been commanded for this Plan. Verily, it is a mighty example to all the Bahá’í World, and inspires the groups of Abhá in many different ways and directions.

It inspires us to become selfless, it teaches us to give, it glorifies the Feast Day, it broadens the vision, it teaches obedience and subordination, it regulates practical service, it distributes practical help, it teaches the power of the Word, it brings out prayer and supplication, it proves to us that in unity there is strength, and that anything can be accomplished in correspondence with such a divine Plan and appeal.

MT. CARMEL PROPERTY

The National Spiritual Assembly desires to make known to the friends an interesting piece of news which was transmitted through the medium of a letter from the Guardian under date of August 25th, 1931. The section of that letter follows:

"It would interest you to know that the American National Spiritual Assembly, Palestine Branch, has been incorporated according to the law in Palestine, not as a foreign corporation or a charitable trust, but as a "religious society" enjoying all the privileges attaching to recognized religious institutions in the Holy Land. Shoghi Effendi hopes to transfer to the name of your Assembly additional plots of land in the vicinity of the shrine of Bahá’ulláh at Akka and of the Bab at Mount Carmel as soon as he obtains the necessary authorization from the authorities, inasmuch as the right of holding real estate by religious institutions is strictly limited according to Palestinian law. This step which he has taken, which has necessitated many months of careful and delicate negotiations with both the local and central authorities, our Guardian feels will constitute the prelude to the eventual formation and recognition, by the Palestine Government, of a properly constituted International Bahá’í Assembly, functioning as an independent religious body in the Holy Land."

The measures thus taken by the Guardian and now made known to the friends will render it possible for those who have acquired pieces of property either at Akka or Haifa, or on Mt. Carmel to transfer these holdings to the National Spiritual Assembly should they so desire.

The knowledge of the necessary legal procedure which such transfer would entail may be obtained from the members of the National Legal Committee, of which Mr. Horace Holley, No. 125 East 10th St., New York, is the chairman.

PROTECTIVE SUGGESTION

Every so often word comes to the National Spiritual Assembly of the visit to a city where an organized Assemblé exists, of a traveler who is not a Bahá’í and who refers to his acquaintance with some Bahá’í or Bahá’ís living in distant cities and represents himself as being sponsored or approved by such distant Bahá’ís. On this ground, the friends have made cash gifts or loans to the person applying, only to find out later that his or her statements were inaccurate or wholly untrue.

In order to protect the friends from this kind of imposition, the National Spiritual Assembly feels that in all cases sufficient time should be taken to verify the statements through communication with the believers whose names are given as references in each case, and this action is recommended to the friends in all parts in case such a situation arises in their city or cities.

Care should be taken to ascertain the exact status of the applying visitor as reported to your Local Spiritual Assembly by those to whom he refers as sponsors.

ESPERANTO

We are indebted to Mr. H. G. Pauli of New York City for translations of excerpts from Sonne der Wahrheit published in Germany, telling of the ever increasing interest manifested throughout Europe in Esperanto. The inhabitants of the world are learning that direct communication through a universal medium of expression is conducive to the well-being of the nations.

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. Earl H. Kaley, an isolated believer of Edmore, Michigan, passed away on September 15th, after a prolonged illness. On behalf of the readers of the Bahá’í News we extend loving Bahá’í greetings and heartfelt sympathy to Mr. Kaley.
CONCERNING THE FEAST DAYS AND BAHÁ’I HOLY DAYS AS MENTIONED IN THE NOTES OF MRS. CORINNE TRUE AND SUBSTANTIATED BY THE GUARDIAN.

Mrs. True brought definite word from Shoghi Effendi relative to the Bahá’í Holy Days to be observed by all. At the time that these days were enumerated there was no mention of the day called in our calendars “Fête Day of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá”, i.e., November 26th.

The Guardian was appealed to so that no misunderstanding should arise and he substantiated the nine Holy Days mentioned by Mrs. True and stated further in a letter to the National Spiritual Assembly that the Celebration of November 26th was to be observed. The following is the exact text of the section of the letter from the Guardian bearing on this matter:

"Regarding the quotation from Mrs. True’s notes, Shoghi Effendi wishes me to assure you of both their authenticity and present application. The celebration of November 26th as the Day of the Covenant should be observed by the believers throughout the world.” (Letter of August 25th, 1931.)

LETTER TO MRS. CORINNE TRUE, DATED AUGUST 29th, 1931

Dear Bahá’í Sister:

I am charged by Shoghi Effendi to acknowledge on his behalf the receipt of your kind letter of July 30th, 1931, and to extend to you his loving appreciation of your precious and continued services to our beloved Cause.

He wishes me also to inform you of the receipt of the picture of the first Convention which you had sent for, and he has placed it in the Mansion at Bahji.

Regarding the statements which you had made in your recent talk to the Racine Bahá’ís, Shoghi Effendi fully approves their validity and urges all the American believers to abide by them. He wishes you, therefore, to write again and recommend Dr. Morris, whose last letter addressed to you he read with careful attention, to not let himself become involved in the policies of the different new movements that are springing up in the States, and to concentrate all his efforts on activities which are purely Bahá’í in character.

This should not mean that the ideals which these societies are promoting are contrary to those proclaimed by Bahá’u’lláh. Most of them present great similarities to the Bahá’í teachings. But the chief difference is that the Bahá’í principles and the Bahá’í institutions are divine in their origin and their character and that they are under the divine protection of Bahá’u’lláh. It is in His Name therefore, that the Bahá’ís should strive. It is to Him that they should look for help, and it is in His Bounty that they should have an unswerving faith.

With the renewed assurance of Shoghi Effendi’s best wishes and of his constant and fervent prayers for your spiritual advancement and success.

Yours in His Service,

(Signed) H. RABBANI.

Written on the above letter by Shoghi Effendi:

“Dear and esteemed co-worker:

I have corroborated, in my recent letter to Mr. Lunt, the statements that you have made regarding my conversations with you in Haifa. They have been accurately and faithfully conveyed. Your staunch, unswerving faith, your boundless devotion and assiduous care to preserve the integrity and extend the bounds of the Cause, are among the most richly valued assets that the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh has in that land. Every visit you pay us in Haifa serves to confirm this conviction. I would now urge you to remind, encourage and appeal to all believers you meet, to rise, however great the obstacles, to contribute their share to the New Plan of Unified Action recently announced by the National Spiritual Assembly. The Plan has my wholehearted and unqualified approval. May every believer speedily and generously respond.

Your true brother,

“SHOGHI.”

Copy of Mrs. Corinne True’s Notes Taken at Haifa, Palestine

(1) The function of the Geneva International Bureau. The notes state that our Guardian defined this as follows: “The Bureau at Geneva is auxiliary to Haifa. Haifa is the International Center and Geneva is auxiliary to it. It forms a link between all other centers, therefore, it is International. Geneva is not administrative. It is a link. The National Centers should if possible support the Bureau in all ways financially as much as possible.”

(2) Spreading the Cause among young people and in the Colleges. The notes record our Guardian as stating: “The Bahá’í young people should make a deep study of the Bahá’í teachings themselves and as they are able to contact with other groups of young people, they should show them the great advancement these teachings have over other teachings, especially along the lines of its social and economic plans. The young are not so apt to be attracted to the religious side of our Teachings as to the social and economic. We must point out where the Bahá’í Teachings differ from Communism in the matter of the preservation of the rights of the individual. Bahá’u’lláh was very strict on this point.”

(3) Definition of the Nine Holy Days of the Bahá’í year:

“On these days, as far as possible, the friends should refrain from work and should even apply to the Government to allow the Bahá’ís to keep these as their Holy Days.” (Stated in Notes.)

2. April 21st. 3. April 29th. 4. May 2nd—These three days are most important of all; they are Ridván Days (April 21st to May 2nd).
5. May 23rd—The Declaration of the Bab.

(4) As to the building of the Bahá’í House of Worship and its unusually quick progress:

“At last Chicago is taking her right position and is now the center of the Cause in America. This will be made more apparent as time passes. The Cause was started on the Western Continent in Chicago. Later on, when it can be afforded, the Foundation Hall is to become the National Archives and the Convention and other things held in a separate building for that purpose.” (Stated in Notes.)

(5) As to the duty of Bahá’ís in relation to war:

“Shoghi Effendi stated that Bahá’ís should apply to their Governments for exemption from the operations connected with the killing or shedding of blood as the Quakers have done. Some may confuse this with “Conscientious Objectors” who refuse to sustain the Government in any way, but this plan of “Conscientious Objectors”, to refuse service of any kind and receive prison sentences for this abstention was not right.”

(6) The notes state that it is advisable for the Wilmette Assembly to use the Foundation Hall for Teaching meetings, subject to agreement and consultation between the Temple Program Committee and the Wilmette Assembly.

(7) As to the Day of the Covenant (Fête Day of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá): “The celebration of November 26th as the Day of the Covenant should be observed by the Believers throughout the world.”

(8) Commemoration of the Ascension of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá November 28th.
AN ECHO
From the Central States Teaching Conference-Notes by Recent Pilgrims to Haifa.

"Teachers should be pure channels for teaching the Word."

"There are international, national and local teachers. The National Assembly selects those to act as National teachers. The Local Assembly selects those to act as Local teachers."

"National teachers, when not on some special mission for the National Spiritual Assembly, should work with the Local Assembly of the city in which they are to teach. There should be co-operation."

"The Local Assembly chooses the teachers it wants in its locality except when the National Assembly has some plans to be carried out."

"There should be a variety of teachers. If the Assembly does not choose several teachers, then the teacher it selects should see that the group has other teachers. Sometimes in beginning to interest a new group one teacher is desirable for a brief period."

"Nearby Assemblies should look after groups and isolated believers by sending teachers to help build up an Assembly so that it can come under the protection and blessing of the Administration."

"There should be a variety of speakers on the program. Some can read beautifully and some can offer prayer with spiritual effectiveness who cannot make even a five minute talk. Some can speak fifteen minutes who cannot give a thirty minute address. Few can speak effectively for an hour."

"Some people are attracted through public meetings while some must be personally taught before ready for public meetings."

"Informal discussion meetings are a good type for young people, especially college students. Education, social science, and economics are good subjects to consider. We must remember that the Cause contains these as well as the religious teachings."

"The psychic and the 'mystical' is not a wise approach in teaching. There is truth in some visions and dreams but some come from physical causes, some from over-mental activity. They are not reliable. Visions and dreams must never be forced on others."

"The ancient religions have very few of the exact words of the Manifestations. (The question arises as to how much we should dwell on the old.)"

"We must avoid leadership in the Cause. There is too much personality. It should be eliminated. This can be done by a variety of teachers and a variety of speakers on the programs. In the House of Worship all should face the East."

"Meetings (especially referring to those in the Foundation Hall) should have a dignified approach to the subject. Young people making this sort of an approach could be asked to take part on these programs."

"Baha'u'llah need not feel they must prove science. It should be left to the scientists. They are making many discoveries."

"Shoghi Effendi said several times that each country has its problem. Primarily, in Germany it is the anti-Semitic problem. In England the class problem. In India the caste system. In America it is the race problem. We must accept the principles or teachings laid down by Baha'u'llah for this age. He knew what was best. Living the teachings or putting them into practice, such as accepting the colored races without distinction, would do more to convince the world of the value and efficacy of our beliefs than all our talking. It would also tend to attract open-minded people. We must not think of people as colored or white but as souls."

CENTRAL STATES TEACHING CONFERENCE

The second Central States Teaching Conference met in the Foundation Hall at Wilmette, Illinois, October 17th and 18th. Though not a large meeting it was a very enthusiastic one. Sunday morning a devotional meeting was held in the Auditorium of the House of Worship. It seemed as though we were immersed in a spiritual outpouring which inspired those attending with a deeper desire to carry the Great Message to new territory.

Mr. Carl Scheffler, Mr. Albert Winstead, and Mr. E. W. Mattoon assisted in presiding at the three sessions, because of the illness of the Conference Chairman, Dr. Clement Woolson of St. Paul, Minnesota.

There was a symposium on the subject, "Teaching Children" led by Mrs. Maye Harvey Gift, and one on "Teaching Young People" led by Paul Haney, in both of which several had a part. There were many very valuable suggestions for this exceedingly important work.

'Abdu'l-Baha's Teaching in America was summed up in a clear, concise and forceful manner by Dr. Bagdadi. The presentation was full of valuable hints for our teaching work. Dr. L. H. Clark was in charge of a symposium on Inter-Assembly Teaching. He has been instrumental in arranging teaching circuits for the North Shore. Reports were made of some of the work in the Michigan, Cleveland, Cincinnati and the Illinois-Wisconsin districts. All are carrying on some teaching work but none of the districts have begun expanding very rapidly into new territory. The discussion regarding this phase of teaching resulted in a motion to ask the Chicago Assembly to especially undertake to open new centers for Baha'i work.

Three unusual types of teaching were mentioned. The report from Peoria, telling of nearly two hundred interested in the teachings, given by Miss Pearl Easterbrook following another lecture series, gave us a new ideal for classes of beginners. Other teachers are there being given an opportunity to try out their talents and so develop ability to present the Cause.

The Kenosha delegate enthusiastically reported the remarkable results from an intensive Teaching Campaign then in progress in the form of meetings held each evening, in a store building rented for that purpose.

The Chicago Assembly reports that the activities inaugurated about a year ago at the Baha'i Reading Room, 116 S. Michigan Ave., through the Noon-Day Public Meetings, where short addresses are given on the Teachings, the Friday Noon-Day Public Prayer Services, the Evening Study Groups at the Reading Room and in the various homes throughout the city and suburbs, have shown splendid results in the confirming of many new believers.

The report of the Central States Summer School held on the Eggleston farm near Flint, Michigan, gave us a new insight into what can be accomplished in a brief time when work is done in His service and for His glory.

ESTHER G. HARDING.

KENOSHA BAHAI'S GIVE A UNIQUE LECTURE SERIES

The Baha'i Community of Kenosha, Wisconsin, having without success tried various methods of attracting the public, decided to do something quite different. Our Spiritual Assembly, after earnest consultation, came to the conclusion that it might be a good plan to rent an empty store for a lecture series and that many people passing by would be attracted by the lights and activity within. The plan was presented to the Baha'i Community and all were in favor and offered to fully co-operate in promoting a three weeks' series of lectures, meeting every evening in the week and twice on Sunday. The Local Spiritual Assembly therefore began formulating the necessary plans. We had only fifty dollars to meet all expenses, including electric lights and possible traveling expenses for the many speakers we wished to have take part in the program. However, Bahá'u'lláh, the Blessed Perfection, "assists all who arise to serve Him," and as we were all thoroughly united in this project, His Bounty descended upon us in such a measure that we were able to extend the series to six full weeks, and still have about ten dollars in the treasury.

The following details will be of interest to those wishing to try a similar plan. A vacant store was rented in the heart of our business district where hundreds pass every day. Large signs proclaiming a series of lectures on World Problems, absolutely free and no collections, were painted by our chairman and erected across the store front. In one window an excellently planned display, illustrated by means of a series of steps the succession of Prophets, with Adam the lower step and Bahá'u'lláh the top step, with a background placard of the twelve principles. Temple pictures, words of Bahá'u'lláh, photographs of Conventions and Bahá'í picnics filled the other window, making a very attractive display which was arranged by a new Bahá'í, who is a window dresser. Chairs were loaned us gratis by a local manufacturer. The believers contributed the piano, tables, curtains and lamps, making the store a beautiful homelike hall. Five thousand program cards were printed by a friend at half price, and out of town speakers were invited to take part in the programs.

The opening date was Sunday, October 11th. The meetings continued for six weeks, concluding on Sunday evening, November 22nd. During this period a total of forty-eight lectures were given with an average attendance of sixty-five, and twenty-five afternoon forums with an average of eighteen present. Those who assisted us so splendidly by coming here to give the talks and provide music were the following sincere devoted friends: Dr. Zia Bagdadi of Wilmette, Dr. Lof­tin Clark of Milwaukee, Drs. E. Lenore and A. Lawrence Morris of Racine, and from Chicago, Mrs. Sarah Walrath, Mrs. Nina Matthisen, Mr. Albert Win­dust and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moffett, and Mr. Willard P. Hatch of Los Angeles, California.

During Mrs. Moffett's stay in Kenosha she made many contacts with churches and clubs.

Among those who assisted in the series by rendering music were Miss Annaleen Nelson, Mrs. Mae DeBruin, the Misses Parvene, Rouihieh and Rouha Bohanan and Mrs. Frederick Congdon and pupils of the Congdon Conservatory of Music. As a fitting close to the lectures, all who attended were invited to the Day­ton Hotel on Monday evening, November 23rd, for a social gathering. Mr. and Mrs. Congdon and pupils gave an excellent musical program and dramatic readings, after which refreshments were served.

As a result of the lecture series, eight old believers who had not been active for many years are again happily engaged in service to Bahá'u'lláh. Many of those who came regularly have manifested deep and sustained interest in the teachings and a few have become confirmed Believers. We praise Bahá'u'lláh for His great Bounty. We extend thanks to the regional teachers and others who assisted. Our future Sunday evening meetings will be held at the Dayton Hotel in the foundation hall and we invite all Bahá'ís passing this way to visit us.

Humbly your co-workers,
Kenoshá Bahá'í Community,
Louis J. Voelz, Sec.

MINNESOTA

St. Paul-Minneapolis: In a truly Bahá'í manner Dr. Zia Bagdadi of Wil­mette, Dr. A. Lawrence Morris of Ra­cine and Dr. Loftin Clark of Milwaukee recently addressed gatherings in these two cities. About one hundred and fifty in St. Paul and sixty in Minneapolis heard the Divine Message.

NEW YORK

New York City: During the month of October, New York City started a very full and constructive program of Bahá'í activities for the coming year.

At the Sunday afternoon meetings subjects were discussed covering many aspects of the international and economic questions of the day.

On October 4th, Miss Jessie Faufet Harris and Miss Martha Root presented the need for kindly sympathy, understanding and love expressed in the common daily contacts between peoples of the several races and nationalities.

On October 11th "The Bahá'í Peace Program" was discussed by Mr. Allan McDaniel, Mr. Alfred Lunt and Mrs. Nellie French of the National Spiritual Assembly, and Miss Martha Root. Each in turn gave the program of Bahá'u'lláh as the only possible basis for the Most Great Peace between members of the one human family.

On the 18th Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford told in her inimitable way of her "Experiences in Europe This Summer."

On October 25th there came the climax when the Young People's Group arranged for an opportunity for representatives of many Youth Groups to express their realization that after all, the world problems are indeed theirs to study, that they may evolve and hasten a permanent solution thereof. Their subject was "Youth and the Economic Peace; A Challenge and a Solution." Miss Elsa Russell, the chairman, conducted the discussion with the rare art of understanding, tact and grace.

Rabbi Jacob Eisen of the Jewish Insti­tute of Religion pointed out that the difficulties and fears and hatreds experienced by members of any group—family, racial, religious, national—when trying to live together in harmony and accord with­in their own or with other groups must be overcome through sympathetic knowledge of one another.

Then Mr. Paul M. Reid, President of the Student Body of the Union Theologi­cal Seminary, advanced the necessity of a truly ethical Christianity as the solution for all the social difficulties about us. He felt that the social meaning of Christianity evidenced in the spirit of service and sacrifice of the individual for the advancement of the whole, would, through the non-violent power of such Christian love, bring about that justice and peace and goodwill which is the goal of humanity—the Kingdom of God on earth.

Mr. Paul M. Reid was followed by Mr. Ira De A. Reid, Director of Research of the National Urban League. He made still clearer the principle that there could be no peace until an identity of interests and purposes amongst the various groups of peoples developed that art of living which in turn offered to each individual a chance to "joy of living."

Mr. Max Delson offered the ideals of the Socialist Party as the condition which makes possible a country like the United States having at once the greatest wealth in the world and the greatest amount of unemployment with its consequent suffering. The socialist, by transferring the control of necessities, productions and profits from the few to the many—to the producers themselves—promise peace, plenty and freedom for all.

Last of all, the Divine and therefore the only effective solution, that which is offered to the world by God through Bahá'u'lláh, was put forth by our beloved Martha Root as a call to Youth to study seriously that Divine Plan.

Following these inspiring efforts to promote the understanding and co-operation of all, the first session of the Inter­racial Amity Committee held its meetings at the New York Urban League Rooms on Saturday, October 31st, and at the Bahá'í Center on Sunday, November 1st. Professor W. L. Hansberry of Howard University was the outstanding speaker. His talk on the "Scientific Proofs of the Oneness of Humanity” from the standpoint of the anthropologist and archaeologist was indeed as illuminating and instructive as it was interesting and thrilling. His theme developed the efforts and results of the scientists to trace in “bones” and “stones” the truths and evidences of the origin and evolution of mankind which Bahá’u’lláh describes in chapter XLVII of Some Answered Questions. This passage, in the words of Professor Hansberry, was used as his text.

Mrs. Louie Mathews of New York City spoke very impressively and at length on the wasted effort expended in the thoughts and acts of prejudice. Mr. Louis Gregory and Mrs. Mary White Ovington, one of the Directors of the Society of the National Improvement for Colored People, dwelt respectively upon the religious oneness of mankind and the human likenesses between the several races of mankind. The Convention was most inspiring and the spirit of oneness was manifest throughout.

The Nineteen Day Feast of October 16th was given by Miss Mary Bauer in celebration of her 15th birthday. It was very beautiful and Mary herself added much to the program.

The Young People’s Group met each Tuesday night. The clear statement of the program they wished to provide for their Sunday afternoon, the 25th, and the efficient way in which they carried out their plans speak for the assurance and power gained through their weekly studies and discussions.

Last, but by no means least, were the meetings of the Friday Night Study Class, which started October 23rd and which will continue to be held on Friday nights throughout the year. This is a class for study and discussion for all, with no “teacher.” A chairman helps by recognizing those who wish to speak, giving them their opportunity in turn, and summing up at the end of the hour the points discussed. Outlines and references for the lessons are previously distributed for study and the contributions, responses and questions put forth manifest an earnest, sincere effort to know the teachings.

Surely the results of these splendid October meetings will be felt throughout the year, stimulating and inspiring to still greater effort.

PENNSYLVANIA

Pittsburgh: A Conference for Interracial Amity was held in this city October 25th, 26th and 27th, through the cooperation of Mr. Gregory and the local community of Bahá’ís. Prominent musicians and speakers of both races contributed to the program of the three sessions.

CALIFORNIA

San Francisco and Oakland: These big cities of the west coast are concentrating, with excellent results, on interracial amity. The racial question is an important one today, and the friends in California are bending every effort toward bringing about that essential love and unity between the races.

A Teaching Conference and Interracial Amity meeting took place in Berkeley on October 18th, at which many phases of the teaching work and methods of instruction were discussed and compared, especial emphasis being laid on the training of children.

The Philanthropic Fund of San Francisco is already filling an important place in the community life, carrying out in concrete form, as it does, one of the principles laid down for the solving of the economic problem.

FIFTH ANNUAL BAHÁ’I SUMMER SCHOOL AT GEYSERVILLE

1931 Season

The sessions of the Bahá’í Summer School at Geyserville, again manifested the spirit of “unity and interest” and made a deep impression upon Bahá’ís and strangers alike.

Through the loving service of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Bosch, many improvements in housing conditions were made. To those attending the Summer School, it was truly a demonstration of the statement of Bahá’u’lláh that, “The city is the home of the body, while the home of the soul.”

There were about one hundred and seventy-five members and guests in attendance at the annual reunion under the “Big Tree.” The registration of the members during the sessions numbered ninety-nine, with an average attendance of forty-five.

The sessions were addressed by Professor William John Meredith, Dean of the Monteruma School for Boys, Mr. LeRoy Loos, Mrs. Ella G. Cooper, Mrs. Grace Holley, Professor Ward, of the University of California, Mrs. Helen Bishop, Dr. George P. Helley, Archaeologist and Scholar, Pacific School of Religions, Mr. George Latimer, Dr. E. C. Getsemer, Mrs. James Otis Lincoln, on such subjects as: “Accord of Science and Religion,” “Universal Education,” “The Development of a Universal Consciousness,” “The Solution of the Economic Problem,” “The New Political Outlook,” “The Machine Age,” “The Relation between Invention and Universalism,” “The Abolition of Racial Barriers and the Development of Latent Powers in All Peoples,” “The Aspects of Christianity,” a series of lectures on the Economic Plan as outlined by Bahá’u’lláh and the presentation of the educational film, “The Pyramid of Cheops.”

Those who were privileged to attend the Summer School at Geyserville received both spiritual and intellectual stimulation from these varied and comprehensively presented subjects.

BAHÁ’I ACTIVITIES IN ISOLATED GROUPS

CONNECTICUT

West Hartford: Through the teaching work of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ives, and Ides O. Johnson, a united, earnest group of believers has been established in West Hartford. They meet once a week in the various homes. For a half hour preceding their Bahá’í Meeting, Stuart Kettredge, one of the youngest members of the class teaches a class in Esperanto.

Hartford: This Bahá’í Group is now tentatively organized. There are just seven souls. Doris Chamberlain writes: “We are so happy in Hartford because we have an organized group of seven and are hoping for an Assembly in April.”

Norwich: Of course our group is going to join the New Plan of Unified Action. We belong to the New Haven Assembly although we never get there but we will send our monthly contribution through this Assembly.

INDIANA

Indianapolis: Dr. Lillian Sielken is conducting a Bahá’í Study Group in Indianapolis—about thirty members when we last heard. Some of these people first heard of the Cause when Ossie Rexford gave the Message in that city last summer.

MARTHA’S BUSY SUMMER

Miss Martha Root has spent an exceedingly busy summer, engaged, as always, in the spread of the Cause. She has addressed gatherings at Harvard University, Boston University, New Hampshire University and Green Acre. The aim is to continue to stress the universality circles. Each day new engagements are being made. November will be spent in Washington with short trips to other cities for university engagements. Visits to Boston, Pittsburgh and the universities of central New York are also planned. Miss Root will sail from New York for Europe the third week in January.
THE INTERNATIONAL BAHÁ’Í BUREAU AT GENEVA, SWITZERLAND.

A most interesting letter has come to hand from the Secretary of the International Bahá’í Bureau in Geneva in which the following activities of the League of Nations and of the International Labor Office are noted:—

"At the International Labor Conference in June the dominant note was that of anxiety. Everywhere the economic crisis was being felt and unemployment assuming alarming proportions. . . . In the speeches of the delegates whether employer, worker or representative of government, each and all acknowledged that the world was facing—"A disruption of the present economic system," and that we need a new policy adapted to the new conditions. But where the difficulty lies, and where the means of meeting the situation are matters to be discovered, dealt with and adjusted. The employers’ delegates advocated economy, stringency, cutting down of wages, longer hours of work. The employees’ delegates were much more in the line of social evolution—the spirit of the age; they proposed dropping the old competitive system and bringing about co-operation between employer and employee, shorter hours, social insurance, etc. . . . Mr. Brauns, the German Government delegate used a very striking expression when he said: 'We are at the turning point in the history of humanity; this is the birth of a New Age.'"

The personnel of the Bureau endeavors to keep in touch with all the important events which transpire and their work therefore, is very arduous and very confining.

During the latter part of August and the month of September many meetings were arranged for Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford whose services to the Cause in Geneva are of inestimable value.

Mr. Steelo, Secretary of the "Life and Work Movement" spoke at the Bureau in July: also in September the Bureau entertained Mrs. Brijal Nehru ex-secretary of the All Indian Women's Conference who spoke on "The Spirit of India as revealed by the non-violence movement."

In June Miss Hayford, a delegate from West Africa to the "International Convention for African Child's Welfare" gave a fine talk on the West African folk songs, etc.

The Bureau acknowledges with great appreciation the receipt of the financial assistance rendered by the National Spiritual Assembly of the United States, and also expresses much gratitude for the contributions of books to the Library, which consisted of forty-one volumes sent by various friends.

The report mentions the very serious illness of Mrs. Emogene Hoag who is greatly handicapped the work of the Bureau, but states that Mrs. Hoag is unfortunately very much improved in health.

The friends in this country are urged not to forget that the International Bureau, established under the direction of the Guardian and greatly prized by him, is the best means for securing information for those traveling in Europe as the Bureau keeps an accurate record of all Assemblies and of the activities of the friends of the Cause everywhere.

THE BAHÁ’Í WEEKLY PUBLISHED IN LAHORE, INDIA

The Bahá’í Weekly which is published in Lahore, India, on the 9th, 19th, and 29th of each month is an excellent presentation of the Holy Utterances of the Bahá’í Revelation and carries also some very illuminating articles on various subjects not well known to the friends in the west. Articles on His Holiness, Mohammed, on Saracenic Culture, on the Ahmaddiyah Movement furnish valuable information which should be understood by the believers everywhere, and it is very interesting to see how many important items are culled from our western Bahá’í publications as well as from other organs where scientific progress is noted or articles touching on the Bahá’í Principles are appearing from time to time.

The Bahá’í Weekly of Lahore is a very valuable contribution to the list of Bahá’í publications and the Editor, Prof. S. Singh is to be congratulated on the success of his enterprise.

(NEllie S. FRENCH, International Correspondent for the National Secretariat.)

INDIA

Burma: A historical survey of the Bahá’í Movement in India, Burma, Java, Siam and Malay Peninsula, from the year 1876 to 1932, is being made by Seyed Mustapha Rouni of Mandalay, Burma, the first article of which appears in the October issue of The Bahá’í Magazine under the heading, "Bahá’í Pioneers." Seyed Mustapha Rouni is a much loved member of the Local and National Spiritual Assemblies, and though eighteen years of age, is serving the Cause of Bahá’ulláh undauntedly and courageously.

AUSTRALIA

Melbourne: We are happy to say in all humility that, through the blessing and guidance of the Beloved One and the untiring efforts and devotion of the faithful teachers of the Cause who brought to Australia the glorious news of the Divine Manifestation, and who have been unwearying in the spreading of the Word, we have recently formed an Assembly, and we trust that with a deeper realization of our duty we shall live by His help in absolute sincerity of heart so that we may become mirrors of His Divine and Heavenly Attributes, attracting all we come in contact with toward the beauty of His Manifestation. Any progress we have made we attribute to the love and guidance of the Beloved One.

Victoria: The friends of this city are rejoicing to think that they will soon have with them such an eloquent and able exponent of the glorious Bahá’í Teaching as Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, and hope and pray that her visit may be the means of greater development in Australia. The work of spreading the Teaching has been so nobly and heroically carried on for about ten years now by Mr. and Mrs. Hyde Dunn, but the field of labor is too great for two, albeit such devoted souls as they, so it is hoped that Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler will be but the first of many teachers who will come to tend the fields so lovingly prepared by these beloved pioneers.

ITALY

Florence: Mrs. Teresa G. Campani and Mrs. Emogene Hoag have translated "Bahá’ulláh and the New Era" into the Italian language. Mrs. Campani is planning to start meetings for the spreading of the knowledge of the Bahá’í Cause in Florence.
PROMISE TO THOSE WHO ARISE TO SERVE TEMPLE

Now the day has arrived in which the edifice of God, the divine sanctuary, the spiritual temple, shall be erected in America! I entreat God to assist the confirmed believers in accomplishing this great service and with entire zeal to rear this mighty structure which shall be renowned throughout the world. The support of God will be with these believers in that district that they may be successful in their undertaking, for the Cause is great and great; because this is the first Mashriqu'l-Adhkar in that country and from it the praise of God shall ascend to the Kingdom of Mystery and the tumult of His exaltation and greetings from the whole world shall be heard!

Whoever arises for the service of this building shall be assisted with a great power from His Supreme Kingdom and upon him spiritual and heavenly blessings shall descend which shall fill his heart with wonderful consolation and enlighten his eyes by beholding the glorious and eternal God!

To a Believer

Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated October 14, 1931. You seem to complain about the calamities, that have befallen humanity. In the spiritual development of man a stage of purgation is indispensable, for it is while passing through it that the uneventful material needs are made to appear in their proper light. Unwittingly, however, one learns to attribute more importance to spiritual matters, it would never be fit to enter the golden era foretold by Baha’u’llah. The present calamities are parts of this process of purgation, through them alone will man learn his lesson. They are to teach the nations, that they have to view things internationally, that they are to make the individual attribute more importance to his moral, than his material welfare.

MESSAGE FROM EDITORIAL COMMITTEE BAHÁ’Í WORLD VOL. IV.

The editorial committee of the Bahá’í World desires again to thank all of the friends who have to painstakingly striven to assist in providing material for the next volume and to assure them that all manuscripts were sent intact to the Guardian for his use and selection. No authority of selection was delegated to the members of the committee and every contribution was gratefully acknowledged so far as we know. We regret if there were any who did not receive due acknowledgement and thanks for their co-operation.

SEMINAR AT DIVINITY SCHOOL ON THE BAHÁ’Í RELIGION

Participation in the activities of liberal religious groups will sometimes open up opportunities for spreading the Bahá’í Teachings. A member of the Berkeley Bahá’í Community registered as a regular student at the Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley. This is a union divinity school sponsored originally by the Congregational Church but drawing its students from a number of churches. One of the courses offered is on modern religious movements. Hearing that the Bahá’í Movement was to be discussed, this believer approached the Professor giving the course and introduced herself to him as a Bahá’í. He very courteously invited her to be present at his seminar and lead a discussion on the Bahá’í Teachings. There were about thirty men in the group, some of them ordained ministers.

It may be interesting to list some of the questions asked. The following are some of the most important:

Is Bahá’ism a religion or a modern religious movement? Do Bahá’ís make the same claim for Bahá’u’lláh as Christians make for Jesus? Do you accept the words of the prophet as the end of argument? Is the Bahá’í Revelation a synthesis of all other religions? Is it Pantheistic? Under this teaching what becomes of the redemptive principle of Christianity? Do you consider the Manifestation to be God Incarnate or a divinely inspired man? In this age we are trying to get away from superstition: isn’t it simply adding a new superstition to the old ones to believe that in Persia in the middle of the last century God came down on earth to teach men? What is the Bahá’í teaching in regard to evil and its origin? What has the Bahá’í Revelation to offer that is better than what is offered by the old religions?

The last question opened the way for a brief talk on the Reality of the Faith. The speaker was able to command the interest and close attention of all present. At the close they expressed the hope that another such hour might be arranged before the end of the Semester.

EDITORIAL

OUR GREAT TEACHING OPPORTUNITY

The present chaotic conditions of the world anticipated by the prophecies of Baha'u'llah and the Master should bring to the consciousness of every believer the realization that now, more than ever, is our golden opportunity to spread the Cause. It is now more than a decade since we heard from the lips of 'Abdu'l-Baha, as He traveled in this country, the prophecies that are now being fulfilled. The believers in this country have been richly blessed. Certainly no group of people anywhere can face the difficult conditions through which humanity will pass in the near future with greater confidence and assurance. The thought of our blessings, however, brings with it also a realization of our responsibility, for we must know that rich blessing which we hold is a message potent to remedy the evils that beset all of humanity if we have the courage, the necessary wisdom to properly approach and the knowledge of the teachings to properly convey them to our fellow beings.

We have a rich literature. Many of the writings of Baha'u'llah and of the Master have been translated into English. The Master himself traveling in this country demonstrated to us how to teach and today all this is being richly augmented by the powerful writings that come from the pen of the Guardian of the Cause. In addition to this he has given to us in the Baha'i Administration a plan of administration that should in every community fuse us into an effective organism for the spread of the teachings. Even though the demands that are made on us by the work of erecting the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar, which we must not forget is in itself a tremendous teaching medium, are great and we cannot at the present time increase the number of traveling teachers, we may still find ourselves able to arise to the opportunity and effectively spread the Cause from every nucleus of Baha'i's.

Too long have we as a body been content to enjoy the rich pearls of divine wisdom that have come into our possession. The condition of the world, however, has awakened the people to a great hunger for the solution of their difficulties and no one of us today has a right to refrain from speaking out the glad tidings. In many of our communities the believers have felt that they lacked capacity to do what was necessary. They felt that they were not public speakers or that they had not the necessary equipment to convey to others a word of the great Truth. The Master, however, exhorted each and every one to arise for the spread of the Cause and the Guardian has for some time been urging us to prepare ourselves to become effective teachers. It is meet, therefore, that we should in every Baha'i community give serious thought to our own efficiency as individuals and as a group.

Let us ask ourselves, what are we doing to improve ourselves to become more effective Baha'i teachers? How may we cooperate with other believers in our vicinity? How can we combine to become more efficient? May we not consider in a Nineteen Day Feast, which we will attend, what each of us can contribute to united effort. Then if there are those who can speak in a public gathering, we may not help and do what we can to make the meeting attractive and if there are found none in our community who can do this, may we not find that small gatherings in the homes, to which we invite our friends, are oftentimes more effective than public gatherings.

Through consultation with Spiritual Assemblies in the larger communities, and with one another in the groups of believers we must, without doubt, in spite of every condition, even though we are entirely isolated, find ourselves capable of carrying on. Let us now arise to avail ourselves of the great strength that is in the Cause. This strength is our unity. Through co-operation every community of Baha'i's will find itself a strong fortress of the Divine Teachings. Unitedly we can bring new life and vigorous growth in our community. Let us not depend on others to speak for us, but do it ourselves. Let us each do our part, uphold one another's hands and unitedly give increase to this world's greatest blessing.

THE HEART OF DIXIE

TEACHING AMITY IN THE SOUTH

Some years ago the Guardian expressed the wish that a white Baha'i teacher and a colored teacher should go together into the South. This matter came to the knowledge of the friends in general during the last annual convention and there were several volunteers. In two cases the plan has recently worked out with unusually happy results.

Mr. Philip A. Marangella of Portsmouth, N. H., our Italian-American friend, and Mr. Chauncey Northern of New York, a young Baha'i and a very fine representative of the colored race, spent a fortnight touring the South, visiting Washington, D. C., and Baltimore en route and making some happy contacts with the friends. Then they struck out for Richmond, Va., traveling by motor. At Richmond University they were happily received by Dr. Samuel C. Mitchell, Professor of History and friend of 'Abdu’l-Bahá whom he met at the Lake Mohonk Peace Conference of historic fame. Dr. Mitchell has given the message of 'Abdu’l-Bahá on many platforms. At Columbia, S. C., Mr. Marangella spoke at the University of South Carolina, through the courtesy of Professors in ethics and educational philosophy. Dr. Josiah Morse was found keenly interested in race relations and very helpful. In the same city addresses were made at Allen University and Benedict College, both for the education of Negro students. They thus succeeded in reaching both groups in the same city and the hope is that this will be the means of unity in the future.

At Orangeburg, S. C., there are two Negro schools, Claflin University and the State College, where responsive audiences were found and where the previous visits of other teachers of the Bahá’í Cause were recalled. The theologians and students showed the deepest interest. Several addresses were made and the singing of Mr. Northern lent an added charm. They were cordially invited to return. One of the Deans promised to start a study group as soon as literature was received for it. At Enfield, N. C., is the Bricks Junior College, under the American Missionary Association and for the training of colored youth. For a number of years have been Bahá’ís and always eagerly welcome teachers. Mr. Northern and Mr. Marangella had a very happy period of service under their hospitable roof. They each regretted that only a fortnight could be set aside for a number of meetings. They were peacefully entertained by the faculty, and besides the chapel meeting, a special faculty meeting to gain more information about the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh. The President said, “Please never pass us by without a call when you are in this section.”

At Montgomery, Ala., the Bahá’í school founded by the late Booker T. Washington, seven meetings were arranged during their stay of three days, the Principal giving up to the lecturers his time for talking to the students on Sunday evening, at which they addressed an audience of about a hundred. They were kept constantly in action and many beautiful things were told them indicating the attraction of souls. Dr. Mont said he wanted his students to hear this message. Dr. George W. Carver, famous scientist, declared that the Bahá’í way was the only way to unite humanity, and Mr. E. Davidson Washington, son of the great founder, announced the allegiance of himself and wife to the Cause. The two races thus joined in service for the cause had its psychology, as well as spiritual attraction. One of the most brilliant members of the faculty, himself a clergyman, said, “The only fault we have to find with you is that you do not come often enough to Tuskegee!”

At Montgomery, Ala., first capital of the Confederacy, much of interest was told to the teachers about the progress of the inter-racial work by a Professor of Sociology in the state colored college. They even go so far as to have refreshments at their inter-racial meetings, a practice recently sprang up and hitherto regarded as a capital abomination. The two workers in their turn were able to tell much that they had seen and heard, e.g. that Dean Comer Woodward of Emery University in Atlanta, (white), would be happy to have a colored Bahá’í lecturer come to them to explain the Bahá’í ideals of race relations, provided they would give him sufficient notice to plan ahead for it. The presentation of the Bahá’í Teachings were here received with the same glad approval. The Libraries of the South grow in numbers, vision, and power. It is unfortunate that so little is reported about them.

The State Institute for Colored Youth at Normal, Ala., had recently suffered a severe blow in having two of its teachers so beaten by white hoodlums that one was knocked senseless for a day or two and the other died in a few hours as a result of his injuries. In this they were in no wise to blame. Their car while stationary was run into by a truck and while they were peacefully adjusting the matter with the other party, a third party knowing nothing about the matter made this murderous attack. It can be readily imagined how grateful these dear people were to hear the great message and teachings. They entertained the two teachers royally and besides the chapel meeting held a special faculty meeting to gain more information about the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh. The President said, “Please never pass us by without a call when you are in this section.”

At Nashville, Tenn., Fisk University has long stood as a co-operative inter-racial center. An active Bahá’í was found upon the grounds and five meetings were held with different groups, or classes. The Jewish Librarian asked that a Bahá’í group be started and in this he was seconded by the Curator, who met 'Abdu’l-Bahá in New York years ago. A small child was impressed to ask her mother, “Why are that colored and white man traveling together?” The mother, wife of a noted publicist and scholar, was astonished at this question, seeing that in such a place there were so many inter-racial gatherings. It was explained to her how in their purity of heart children often were more sensitive to spiritual vibrations. Words about the Cause simply expressed usually rivet their attention. The State Normal School yielded its previously arranged program for a time to hear Bahá’í talks and Pearl High School sat in close attention for an hour to hear the co-operative messages.

At Cincinnati a public meeting was arranged which showed a fine growth of that assembly in a year, and the visit was arranged at the University of Cincinnati, where Dr. W. O. Brown, of the Department of Sociology, entertained the two teachers at luncheon, and agreed later to have them address his classes. He takes a strong stand against all forms of prejudice and does not fear. “Such a stand is now growing respectable,” he laughingly declared. When such work started in the South it had to be behind closed doors. Now they have come out into the open. When questioned about his antecedents Dr. Brown replied, “My parents were tenant farmers in Texas. I belong to the class designated ‘poor white trash’ and accused of stirring up all the racial troubles in the South.” At a request for something that he had written, Dr. Brown took the teachers into the university library and showed them a copy of Opportunity Magazine for December. It contains a most illuminating article... from his pen on "The Myth of Prejudice." It is well worth digesting. After a joyful meeting with the Bahá'ís at Columbus, the two workers parted, each proceeding in his own way of travel, each joyful in the success of the journey and the divine protection that overshadowed its entire way. The Spirit of Bahá'u'lláh is moving the hearts and its power is affecting souls of great capacity in the South as in all other sections of this country and the world. The people of the South are by nature warm-hearted, generous and humane. Prejudices among them are naively expressed. Prejudices in northern climes are not less real, but more subtly expressed. In both sections a great work is to be done and happy are those who sincerely approach the task. People of great capacity are everywhere to be found nowadays and they are eagerly looking for a way out of the glooms and shadows of the world. Those who know should not be silent!

One of the students of Fisk University showed these travelers a thesis of three thousand words about Bahá'í ideals and teachings which he had written and used as a commencement address, with much approval by his audience. At Clarksburg, West Virginia, a teacher in the colored High School arranged for two meetings, and read in part to Mr. Gregory an article of twenty thousand words that he has written on the Bahá'í Movement as a study in his candidacy for a second degree in Ohio State University. He received the message from Dr. Herbert Adolphus Miller, recently of the Sociological Department, who put him in touch by correspondence with Bahá'í workers. He gladly arranged both meetings, one at his home, the other at school. So brightens the new day!

LETTER FROM ORECILLA REXFORD

"Just a brief note to let you know of the success we had in Boston recently with our Bahá'í work. Two lectures were given and great enthusiasm was shown. I find people are much more receptive to receiving the message to-day than they were even a year ago.

Dr. Glenn Shook, Professor of Physics at Wheaton College, volunteered to teach the study class. About 300 turned out to his opening lesson on "The Solution of the Economic Problem" and about 175 are regularly attending the Bahá'í study class which he is teaching. They meet twice a week in Wesleyan Hall. Dr. Shook is being assisted by Mrs. W. H. Coristine, Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf, Mr. Alfred Lunt and other members of the Boston group. We hope for a substantial increase in the Boston community.

We opened here in Washington last night and feel assured that the power of the spirit will confirm our efforts in this city so that we will be able to raise up a like number of souls and to have a similar study class. We expect to be here for three weeks and then will probably spend the winter in the south, coming north again in the Spring."

Washington, D. C., December 4, 1931.

HAWAII

Honolulu: Since our last report we have had the pleasure of a short visit from Mrs. Schopfocher. She sails today for Japan and China and then to Haifa. On Tuesday evening, November 17th, at our weekly public Bahá'í meeting, she spoke convincingly of the Cause, relating many interesting incidents in her Bahá'í contacts. The talk was equally inspiring to the Bahá'í group and to the interested inquirers who were present. On the following Thursday afternoon she spoke to our young people's Bahá'í class, composed for the most part of young university students, of the timely efforts of the young people throughout the world in helping to establish the New World Order.

On November 10th, Mrs. Seto and Miss Julia Goldman were invited to speak in the Parish House of the Central Union Church—the largest Protestant Church in Honolulu—on the Bahá'í Movement. They spoke of the Cause in its relation to the individual life; of its place and need in the world today and of the evidences of its penetrating power throughout the world. The interest expressed was most encouraging and gratifying. Several of these friends came to the meeting on November 12th, Bahá'u'lláh's birthday. A program of unusual interest was planned and carried out largely by the young people's group, giving a note of cheer, hope and joy that was truly contagious.

A report of our weekly meetings is published every week in the newspapers, a medium of expression we consider very important in this community.

CALIFORNIA

Pasadena: Due to the generous attitude and assistance of the editor of the most important newspaper in this city, the Pasadena Star News, the Cause is receiving a great deal of attention and all articles sent out by the National Publicity Committee are printed by this paper. Regular meetings are held in the most attractive hotel and while there are but few new people attracted usually, at the time of the visits of some of the National Teachers we frequently have very large audiences.

An inter-assembly young people's group is very earnestly studying the Teachings and meetings are held each week in the various homes, sometimes in Los Angeles, and sometimes in Glendale or Pasadena. These young people are all college students and they plan their own course of study and are diligently devoting their meetings to a consideration of the Administration. Frequently the older members of the communities are invited to address the group.

An address was given before the Pasadena Browning Society by one of the friends, the subject being "Spiritual Evolution." This was understood to be a Bahá'í address and it was very well received, and splendid publicity given in the papers.

The Theosophical Society has invited one of our members to speak on January 20th and they have also requested the subject of "Spiritual Evolution" from the Bahá'í angle.

Laguna Beach: In June, 1931, Dr. Ali Kuli Khan and family came to Laguna Beach, sixty miles to the south of Los Angeles, an important center of artists, authors, musicians and educators. It is the summer center of Pomona College. Mr. Sumner Crosby, the editor of the "South Coast News," arranged many social gatherings for Dr. Khan, including the large banquet of the Art Association, where Dr. Khan was the guest of honor and speaker of the evening. In the course of these various meetings the Bahá'í Message was presented by Dr. Khan, and the interest thus awakened led to a series of Sunday evening meetings in which Dr. Khan gave the Bahá'í Teachings and Principles in a systematic way.

On November 16th Mrs. Shahnaz Waite was invited by Dr. and Mrs. Khan to be their house guest for two weeks. Through Mr. Sumner Crosby's co-operation, two public Bahá'í lectures were arranged in the beautiful Hotel Laguna, at which Mrs. Waite presented the subjects: "The Dawn of a New Cycle," and "The Solution of the World's Problems," to a very influential group. The lectures were followed by Mrs. Waite answering questions bearing upon vital aspects of the Bahá'í Revelation. Mrs. Waite's audiences and friends included the chairman of Adult Education in Orange County, who is also President of the Business and Professional Women's League of Laguna Beach. There were present leaders in the Theosophical circles, social workers, artists, writers, publicists, educators, business men and women, and others representing various organizations.

The San Francisco, Oakland and Berkeley communities held their "Inter-Bay" Teaching Conference and their Amity Meeting on the same Sunday, thus making it possible for more people to attend the successive events. At the last conference the thrifty budgeting and true service of Mrs. N. F. Ward, Chairman of the Berkeley Feast Committee, enabled the Berkeley friends to serve a splendid supper to over a hundred people at only thirty-five cents a plate. This charge not only covered the cost, but left a surplus sufficient to pay for the hall and for special guests.

Berkeley: That inter-racial amity is a joyous fact, and not a question for discussion, has been the principle motivating the new program of inter-racial activity in Berkeley. Race has not been discussed in the amity gatherings, the simple fact of loving association being taken as proof that prejudice and animosity have been overcome.

The topics have been chosen with the idea of presenting the Cause as a complete social and spiritual program. Furthering this principle, Mrs. Grace Holley of the Visalia Spiritual Assembly spoke on "The Bahá'í Economic Plan," opening the way for discussion. At another meeting, Dr. John Wright Buckram of the Pacific School of Religion lectured on "What is Religion?" Dr. Buckram developed the thought that religion evolves through experience. He stressed the point that Christ is pre-eminent among the prophets on the ground that His influence has been more important and more lasting. This opened the way for Mr. Howard Hurlbut of San Francisco, the second speaker, to give the full Bahá'í point of view. In an excellent "rebuttal" Mr. Hurlbut explained the Bahá'í concept of religion. He pointed out with all courtesy that the teachings of Mohammed have been even more powerful in changing the lives of people than the Christian teachings, citing historical facts. The talk was most penetrating. "The Oneness of Religion" was the topic for discussion at another inter-racial group meeting. Dr. Khandwalla spoke on the Brahmo Samaj Movement in India, showing how it promotes the unity of religion. Mrs. Rodney Williams followed this talk with a splendid Bahá'í address at the Inter-Bay Amity Meeting held in Berkeley. Professor William J. Meredith of the Monterey School for Boys addressed a large audience on "The History of Religion in the Social Program." A musical program given by local artists was arranged by Laura Kelsey Allen for this occasion. The most recent inter-racial affair was a tea at which Mrs. Kathryn Frankland was hostess to over fifty people of many different races, countries and religions.

In this way the Berkeley friends have carried on their amity work without magnifying racial differences by dwelling on them.

Oakland: Under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Williams, an "Amity Dinner" and meeting was held recently at the North Oakland Baptist Church. Miss Charlotte Linfield of Oakland introduced Mr. Leroy C. Joas, speaker of the evening, whose subject was "Love." The colored friends presented musical numbers and original poems.

An interesting note was struck by one of the Church Trustees, who said he had known Mr. Louis Gregory some years ago in Washington, D. C., and had attended Bahá'í meetings there. As a result of this gathering, the Reverend G. C. Coleman offered his pulpit to Bahá'í speakers whenever they might wish it, and several of the congregation planned to attend the Bahá'í summer school at Gey­se­r­ville.

OREGON

Portland: Donald Tenny, one of the Bahá'í youth, presented the Bahá'í economic plan to his Y. M. C. A. class in public speaking. Great interest was aroused and he answered questions on the Cause for forty-five minutes.

Over our leading Broadcasting Station, KGW, Miss Ella Misner gave an address on "The Need of Universal Peace," in commemoration of the birth­day of Bahá'u'lláh.

One of the outstanding colored women's clubs has requested Mrs. Myrtle Campbell to give another series of Bahá'í talks this year.

The interest in Esperanto which was aroused by Miss Martha Root has been kept alive by Mrs. Louise Caswell who has been able to found an Esperanto Society.

Carrying out the program for the Northwest Assembly Teaching Campaign, Charles and Helen Bishop, Louise Caswell and George Latimer made a trip to Seattle and Vancouver, B. C. In Seattle Mr. Latimer was the guest speaker on the National Broadcasting hour of Esperanto over KJR. He spoke on "International Good Will." The Seattle friends arranged a public meeting for the speakers. A remarkable demonstration of the Bahá'í spirit was the active participation in the meeting of Prof. Watanabe of Japan and Reginald Mar, Chinese Nationalist. This is of note because of the strained political relationship between their respective countries.

Upon arrival in Vancouver a fine meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Rhoda Harvey; during the succeeding days several afternoon and evening meetings were held which were attended by inquirers. Prof. Charles Hill-Tout, eminent anthropologist, contributed interesting data in the discussions following the Bahá'í talks.

A fine contact has been made with the large International Club, of which Mr. and Mrs. Kemp are active members. With the loving co-operation of the believers, the meetings gave an impetus to the Cause in Vancouver.

WASHINGTON

Spokane: Jews, Christians and those of other religious faiths have for the past five years united in worship in a Thanksgiving Union Service. The message from the Bahá'í Community, selected from the writings of Bahá'u'lláh, was read by Mrs. Agnes Blodgett. It is our hope that we may have a Bahá'í teacher here next year to give an address.

NEW YORK

New York City: November has been another busy month in the life of the New York Bahá'í community. Mr. Horace Holley spoke on November 9th on "Why This Depression?" The outstanding thought of the talk was that, today's depression is the very apparent darkness preceding the glorious day of Bahá'u'lláh — a day when the selfish profit motive of the restless present will give way to brotherhood, peace, and service among fellow-men.

On November 15th, Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford gave clearly and graphically the conditions of "What Constitutes a New Age," the dawning of which is so plainly evident to the thinkers in every field of activity and in every country.

Then on November 22nd, Mr. Hooper Harris spoke with feeling and power on "Replacing Fear with Faith." Humanity, today, as never before, feels the need of that state of consciousness which is made possible only by the advent and power of One who indeed inaugurates a New Age.

On November 29th, Mr. Saffa Kinney put into words for us our "Thanksgiving for This New Era." Along with the giving of thanks for national and civic community blessings, the Bahá’í realize ever more deeply the Bounty which God has vouchsafed to humanity at this dawn of the New Day.

The union Tuesday afternoon programs of Mrs. Ford, which did much to enlarge the Cause through cultural contacts and inspiration last year, were started during the month of November. On the 10th Mrs. Ford gave the purpose and forecast of the meetings to be held during the year. Her subject was "What Are We Looking At?" and her last summer's experiences among the peoples of Europe enabled her to realize and present their reactions to the situation of the present.

On the 17th, the friends were privileged to enjoy a piano recital by Miss Rata Pront, a brilliant pianist whose comprehensive and illuminating interpretations of her program added so greatly to the pleasure and uplift of the afternoon.

On November 24th, Miss Frances R. Grant of the Roerich Museum, gave a talk on the Peace Movement in terms of international culture and art which is so widely represented by the works to be seen at the Roerich Museum.

These Tuesday afternoon programs of art and culture are followed by "tea" and a social hour with its opportunity of demonstrating the great Message of Oneness for the Day.

The Young People's Group met each Tuesday evening and followed its usual procedure of having some one of their number—Bahá’í or non-Bahá’í—speak upon a given subject which is then openly and vigorously discussed by all. Each week there are new friends, many of whom become vitally interested. The night of Tuesday, the 24th, was given over to a social time.

On the 28th, the New York Bahá’í Community was privileged to hold its meeting for the Commemoration of the Ascension of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá at St. Mark's Church in the Bowery. This meeting has been held at St. Mark's each year. The church with its unique lighting system, its splendid organ, and the evident spirit of welcome and cordiality shown to the Bahá'ís, is a fitting background for the beautiful program of readings: The Prayer of the Covenant, excerpts from the Tablet of the Branch, selections from the addresses given at the funeral of 'Abdu’l-Bahá, parts of His Tablet to America, His Will and Testament, and 'Abdu’l-Bahá’s Prayer for the World. Each year the service seems more beautiful and inspiring, and more deeply confirms the continued Presence and Power of the beloved Master, 'Abdu’l-Bahá.

The New York friends are very happy to have them again dear Mrs. Florian Krug.

Pennsylvania

*Philadelphia: Miss Martha Root with Mrs. Little and Miss Crum of New York City visited Philadelphia for a few days late in September to follow up the preliminary work which had been done with the Universities in the vicinity. A month later Miss Martha returned and remained until she left for Washington, D. C. During this period she spoke to students of Swarthmore College, Haverford College, Temple University and Cheyney Training School for Teachers at Cheyney, Pennsylvania. It was very interesting and gratifying to witness the enthusiasm displayed by these young students and to hear the intelligent questions they asked.

On October 27th, Miss Root broadcast over Station "WCAU" Philadelphia, one of the largest broadcasting stations in the city. Her subject was: "My World Travels in the Interest of Universal Peace." In this talk the Bahá’í history and teachings were clearly given.

On November 13th, she again broadcast over Station "WSI" Philadelphia, on the subject of Esperanto, in which she mentioned Bahá’u’lláh and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá.

International News Items

Persia

Teaching conferences have been held in Khorasan and the establishment of Bahá'í schools for boys and also for girls is being noted in many of the Persian cities and villages. Bahá'í teachers are traveling throughout the land and marked results are noted, and a most active campaign of advancing the Bahá’í Publications is going on. The report is so extensive that it is only possible to quote some parts of it, but it is supremely gratifying to note the great progress of the affairs of the Cause, and an account is also included of the work of the Bahá’í students now in Europe where they were sent by the Persian Government to equip themselves with valuable information and experience so that they may be of service to the Persian Commonwealth generally.

Many of these students have mastered the languages spoken in Europe in a wonderful way, and they are carrying a knowledge of the Cause into every association where they may be engaged.

A Bahá’í Character Study Class is very active in seeking to instruct the children along the line of spiritual education. Correspondence is carried on between this group and friends in other provinces in Persia to encourage this phase of work everywhere.

The passing of that distinguished member of the Cause, Jenabi Azizullah Khan Vargha, son of the beloved poet Vargha who suffered martyrdom for the Holy Cause, was noted with the deepest sense of grief at his loss.

Egypt

The National Spiritual Assembly has been requested by the Guardian to send a copy of the Bahá’í World Vol. III to His Majesty King Foad of Egypt. A suitable inscription is to be written on the fly-leaf, but the package is to bear no evidence of having come from the Bahá’ís. This is both courteous and prudent.

Lahore: A very interesting article on the Prophet Zarathustra written by Sir Rabindranath Tagore appears in the Bahá’í Weekly. Articles of this character are often very helpful to the friends who are constantly meeting with inquiries regarding the import of great religious systems of the Orient.

The Bahá’í Weekly published in Lahore is becoming more and more important and the general information which it carries is of the greatest value. In the issue of November 19th we note that the Editor, Prof. Pratam Singh was about to undertake a Bahá’í Tour of nine districts of the Punjab. He is traveling as a representative of the National Spiritual Assembly of India and Burma and will devote his time to teaching and lecturing on the Holy Cause.

An interesting paper on Qur’átull-A‘yhn was read on the 17th of November before the Persian Society of the Government College, Lahore, by Mr. Inayat Ullah, a student. The students who attended were very much interested and expressed a desire to know more about the religion to which Qur’átull-A‘yhn belonged.
Karachi: The foundation stone of the "Hazira·ul-Qud" (meeting place of the Baha'is) was laid on November 6th amidst stirring scenes of enthusiasm. After chanting and prayers the friends were entertained with refreshments and the occasion was one of joy and thanksgiving. We in the West send congratulations and assure the friends of our fervent supplications for the Cause in its future development. After finishing a discussion of the political science and economics advanced by Baha'u'llah he fervently exclaimed: 'The Baha'is Cause is not only divine, it is scientific!' One evening warily, tentatively, as if fearing a rebuff he queried, 'Did Shoghi Effendi ever mention China or speak of her problems and her future?' How happy I was to be able to tell him of your several references to China when Elizabeth Greenleaf and I were in Haifa. He, too, seemed happy and relieved. Through the kindness of the American friends to his sister, now Professor of History at Lingnan University, and cable from Mrs. Ella Cooper to Agnes to meet her in Yokohama, I received this invitation to visit in Canton. She interpreted for me on several occasions and I am sure will embrace the Cause if she has not already done so.

Poona: News has been received of the good work done by Syed Ilmi, editor of Kauhab-i-Hind Delhi at Poona. Public lectures were delivered at the Seva Sadan (Women's Association) the Anjuman Fidayan Hall, the Depressed Classes Mission, and the Theosophical Hall. Mr. Ilmi is now planning a teaching tour in Northern India and intends visiting all the towns between Lahore and Calcutta and the tour is likely to last the whole of the winter.

JAPAN

Mrs. Keith-Ransom Kehler wrote to Shoghi Effendi recently as follows: "The contacts which Agnes Alexander made for me in the Universities and with student groups were most rewarding; Friday night Baha'i meetings were well attended by inquiring students, many nationalities being represented. Agnes felt that the most important work of all was the several meetings held for the confirmed Baha'is and those about to declare themselves, to study and grasp the import and modus vivendi of Administration."

Word comes from Miss Agnes Alexander that a translation of Baha'u'llah and the New Era is being prepared in Japanese. The Guardian is very much pleased to know of this move, but particularly warns the friends that all translations should be made by experts and the greatest care should be given to beauty and correctness of Bahá'í books rendered into other languages.

CHINA

"One of the most interesting figures in China is C. S. Liu," — Mrs. Kehler wrote to the Guardian—"new president of the Sun Yat Sen University Agricultural College. Confirmed by Jenabe Fazel, while an undergraduate at Cornell, fostered by our wonderful and devoted Mr. Roy Wilhelm, he has remained faithful and devoted though cut off from Bahá'í association and contact for six years. He has many important connections. Night after night while I visited him and his family in Canton, he sat until very late questioning me and discussing the implications of the Cause in its future development. After finishing a discussion of the political science and economics advanced by Baha'u'llah he fervently exclaimed: 'The Bahá'ís Cause is not only divine, it is scientific!' One evening warily, tentatively, as if fearing a rebuff he queried, 'Did Shoghi Effendi ever mention China or speak of her problems and her future?' How happy I was to be able to tell him of your several references to China when Elizabeth Greenleaf and I were in Haifa. He, too, seemed happy and relieved. Through the kindness of the American friends to his sister, now Professor of History at Lingnan University, and cable from Mrs. Ella Cooper to Agnes to meet her in Yokohama, I received this invitation to visit in Canton. She interpreted for me on several occasions and I am sure will embrace the Cause if she has not already done so.

Shanghai: Y. S. Tsao, affiliated with the Local Spiritual Assembly of Shanghai, writes: "... Our people are in great trouble and the Bahá'í Teachings ought to be proclaimed here. To most people to whom I have spoken there is a ready response that gives us increased conviction as to the power that the book of Dr. Eslemont will wield when published. Baha'u'llah and the New Era is being revised for the last time and will soon be in print in the Chinese language. A proof copy has been sent to Miss Agnes Alexander to help them in the Japanese translation. May the Light shine in its full effulgence in the Far East!"

"It is only by viewing the affairs of mankind through the Bahá'í Spirit that man may get the proper perspective." In a clipping from a Shanghai newspaper, written by Tsao and sent to us, he says: "The cure for all worldly ills is decidedly a spiritual one. All mankind must believe in the unity of the human race as he believes in the unity of the Supreme Being. The world belongs to mankind, not to any particular nation or race... Above nations there is Humanity! And a great Prophet has declared: 'Let not a man glory in this, that he loves his country; let him rather glory in this, that he loves his kind.'" The whole article is called "ORDER OUT OF CHAOS."

The hearts of the friends will be gladened to learn that the distinguished scholar, Dr. Y. S. Tsao, has completed the Chinese translation of Baha'u'llah and the New Era, and that this valuable contribution to the literature of the Cause will soon be brought out by the Publishing Committee of Shanghai, China.

AUSTRALIA

In a recent letter Mrs. Kehler writes: "In Adelaide I gave a series of nine lessons on the teachings through which the Beloved has permitted me to assist in confirming about eighty souls. The average attendance was around 160, the first meeting numbering 121, and the last 225. In America it has always been the reverse; many at first, and few at last when they see that I am not going to tell them 'How to be healthy, wealthy and wise.' Seven were confirmed and a large study class was formed—among them being the Chinese Consul and his wife. I broadcast, spoke before many organizations and had much publicity. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn professed themselves much pleased."

ENGLAND

The program of meetings at the headquarters of the Bahá'í Community of London brings the interesting information that on Wednesday, December 16th, Sir Francis Younghusband is to speak there on the subject of "Unity in Religion." Distinguished traveler and lecturer, Sir Francis Younghusband has for many years identified himself with every fine movement whose object was World Unity. He was a prominent speaker at the "Conference of Religions Within the Empire" in London in 1924, and closely associated with the proceedings of the "World conference for International Peace through Religion," which held its initial meeting in Geneva, Switzerland three years ago, and which plans the assembling of representatives from all the great religious systems of the world in Washington, D. C., or some other important center in the near future.

London: We have much cause for deep thankfulness as we review the work of the summer months. The believers in the different centers have been stimulated and strengthened by contact with inspired souls from other countries, and many people have become interested in the Bahá'í Message. But this is not sufficient. Interest must be deepened till the Teachings are accepted in their entirety. We must show forth in our lives the beauty of the Bahá'í Revelation, we must show to the world that we have a message which can transform the world,—which can build up from the ruins of a broken civilization a new creation. 'Abdu'l-Bahá has said: 'When the Divine Message is understood, all troubles will vanish. Shadows disappear when the universal lamp is lighted, for whosoever becomes illumined thereby no longer knows grief; he realizes that his stay on this planet is temporary, and that life is eternal. When once he has found reality, he will no longer know darkness.” And it is for us to show that we have found reality.

A general survey of the Holy Cause is here being prepared. Lady Blenfield, Mrs. Thornburn-Cropper and Mrs. George are preparing an article on “The Beginnings of the Cause in England”, in accordance with the instructions of Shoghi Effendi. Our Guardian has advised London Spiritual Assembly to appoint a Committee for this important and historical work of the Cause. Mrs. Romer, Secretary, also speaks of the great work accomplished by Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford in England. That she has given the Message successfully to thousands of souls during her five consecutive summers and is very well liked by all sorts of English speaking audiences. Speaking of the English nation Mrs. Romer writes: “These people are conservative in many things and bound by traditions, but God will work things out in His Way if we just put ourselves in His Hands and work with all our might as we are guided through prayer.”

Sweden

Goteborg: From this region comes the Voice of Divine Unity and effort; Mr. and Mrs. Palmgren are most actively spreading the Holy Teachings throughout Sweden. Our beloved sister, Anna Rudd-Palmgren writes: “Dr. Esslemont’s book is just now ready for printing and will come out in a few weeks. We are very happy to be able to send out the Word to the people of Sweden. The Cause is progressing but slowly in Sweden; times are hard and people are in distress and do not know what to do. We persevere in the work although it seems very hard and we hope that our Father will bless it. Mr. Palmgren is helping me teach the Glad Tidings; we would like to travel all around the country on a teaching tour but this costs much money.”

Bulgaria

Word comes of the activities of Miss Marian Jack in spreading the Cause in Bulgaria. She has been successful in introducing the Bahá’í Message in the Ministries and to people of all classes. Miss Jack and her associates in this pioneer work in Bulgaria feel keenly the lack of Bahá’í literature in the Bulgarian language, but are nevertheless getting splendid results with the German, English and Esperanto publications with which they are working. They have resorted to the method by which the writings were first disseminated in this country, translating into Bulgarian, making carbon copies and distributing them.

At the Bulgarian Esperanto Congress, a Bahá’í, Mr. Benke, was appointed chairman, and was thus enabled to make many valuable contacts.

Under date of November 26th, Miss Marion E. Jack, wrote to Shoghi Effendi of the interest she had been able to sustain in the city of Sophia, where Mrs. Louise Gregory and Miss Martha Root had made contacts with interested souls. Miss Jack has sent to the Guardian photographs of the believers and friends, and there is every evidence of the establishment of a Bahá’í Group in this important center.

Florida Is Calling

The Bahá’í Center of Miami extends a welcome to all visiting friends. Address Mrs. George Brown Wiles, Park Lane Apartments, Alton Road, Miami Beach. Phone 5-3415.

The Feast held in the home of Mrs. Wiles was an exceptionally joyous occasion. Ocella Rexford, Dr. Gayne Gregory, Luella Beecher of Budd Lake, N. J., Jane Paul of Indianapolis, Indiana, Mr. and Mrs. John Svensen of Chicago, Illinois and Fannie A. Knaebloch of Washington, D. C., contributed generously to our Bahá’í Service.

Ohio

Cincinnati: Several months ago Mrs. Ruth J. Moffett of Chicago, visited our city and brought to us new confidence and the impetus to greater activity. Since that time we have established our Headquarters in the Liberal Loan Building in the heart of the downtown section. The meetings here have been very gratifying.

Temple Prayer

O God, my aim, my hope! With hearts full of longing and breasts full of yearning, we beg of Thee and we supplicate at the threshold of Thy might to raise the Mashriqu’l-Adhkar in Chicago, in the most speedy manner. Make its basis firm and its structure enduring, suffer its pillars to remain unshakable and make its columns of the steel and iron of firmness. Glorify its servants, beautify the characters and make the worshippers beloved. Suffer its nightingales to sing “Ya-Bahá’u’l-Abhá” and wamble the praises of our Lord, the Most Supreme. Make its men the standards unfolded on the mountains of the world, and its women the sanctified angels of the tabernacle of the world!’’

‘Abdu’l-Bahá.
THE TEMPLE

The Mashriqu'l-Adhkár is a unique development of the Baha'i Cause, an outstanding expression of the universality of the Princples embodied in the Teachings of Baha'u'llah; a great institution for the spiritual, religious, scientific development of humanity, expressive of a movement that teaches the spiritual practice of brotherhood and the unification of the world religions.

Some American Baha'is were visiting 'Abdu'l-Bahá in the old prison city of 'Akká in 1908 and he said to them: "To have it (the Mashriqu'l-Adhkár) built is most important. Some material things have spiritual effect and the Mashriqu'l-Adhkár is a material thing that will have a great effect upon the spirits of the people. Not only does the building of the Mashriqu'l-Adhkár have an effect upon those who build it, but upon the whole world."

Again and again have we Bahá'ís been called to unity by the beloved 'Abdu'l-Bahá. He explained to us the dormant forces hidden in this unity, waiting release by our united efforts.

Since the beginning of history no people have had placed in their grasp the power to so benefit mankind as have the Bahá'ís. Their is the most glorious opportunity—to fail, the greatest ignominy.

The Mashriqu'l-Adhkár was designed by Bahá'u'llah, a perfect outer expression of the inner reality, the form indicating the meaning. He commanded the Bahá'ís to construct such institutions in all countries, and make them the focal points for the development of the religious, philanthropic, educational and charitable life of the people. 'Abdu'l-Bahá wrote: "The Mashriqu'l-Adhkár will become the center around which all these universal Bahá'í activities will be clustered. From that point of light, the spirit of teaching, spreading the Cause of God and promoting the teaching of God, will permeate to all parts of the world."

The voice of the appointed Guardian, Shoghi Effendi, is calling the Bahá'ís, in the most earnest tones, to unite and establish this center. Nothing succeeds until it has an established center around which to revolve. 'Abdu'l-Bahá says: "Know that there is in the world of existence a Center for each great matter and bounties shower from that Center." Clearly then, the Bahá'ís of America have within their power, through their united sacrificial efforts, the opportunity to construct a material edifice that will affect "the whole world". 'Abdu'l-Bahá wrote: "When the Mashriqu'l-Adhkár with its accessories is established in the world, aside from its religious or spiritual influence, it will have a tremendous effect upon civilization. Aside from the religiousists who will feel its influence, materialists will not be exempt therefrom. Moreover, it contains divine wisdoms, spiritual effects upon the intellects and thoughts. Subsequent to its erection these will become evident." 'Abdu'l-Bahá has unfolded to us the great potentialities of this Mashriqu'l-Adhkár so that the Bahá'ís might work with the divine enthusiasm which comes from first knowing and then doing.

The Guardian has recently sent the following word through one of his secretaries: "It is very gratifying to see the National Spiritual Assembly and the friends whole-heartedly arise for the completion of this edifice which was so dear to the Master's heart. If this spirit of co-operation and sacrifice should be sustained it will indirectly affect all the other phases of our activity and usher in a new era in the history of the progress of the Movement in that country."

FIVE HUNDRED MILES TO PRAY IN THE TEMPLE

In early winter a Bahá'í friend invited me to drive to Chicago "To Pray in the Temple". Needless to say we went.

Readers, the wish of my heart while there was that every believer on this Continent might have that experience, and privilege. Words cannot express the 'Power' that reaches down to the depth of heart and soul as one steps inside the upper part of that Divine House of Worship. Turning eastward toward "That White Spot, from which all regions have been perfumed" one faintly glimpses the significance of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's prophecy regarding the mighty tumult that would be set in motion upon its completion.

Standing outside the building quite a different reaction was realized. Beautiful as it is even in its unfinished state, these words rang in my heart—"I am naked. Will ye not clothe me?" If every believer in America could see it in its present stage there is no question that added sacrifices would appear in each individual life—"ere it is too late."

A trip to Kenosha was an unexpected blessing that has left its enduring traces. Dr. Zia Bagdadi was to be the speaker for the Sunday evening meeting, but graciously shared the time with the writer, as the subject was "Personal Experiences with 'Abdu'l-Bahá". Dr. Bagdadi's talk on the Holy Land as a preface to his own experiences with the Master was a most illuminating one. The Abá'í Spirit filled the hall in which were believers and new-comers. As the party drove back to Chicago all hearts were radiant and thankful.

Kenosha assuredly has come into a new station of enkindlement and illumination. The love of God fills the hearts. Sacrifices are being made daily by local and visiting teachers, as well as by the united assembly, for the spread of the Glad Tidings in that city. There is a great response.

Some of the faithful and tried believers of that Assembly have within the past year, ascended to the World of Light. Through their prayers they are no doubt assisting Kenosha to become "A Beacon Light to the World of Humanity"

GRACE OBER.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE BAHÁ'Í MAGAZINE

To comply with requests it has been decided to complete 10 Bound Volume Sets of 17 volumes—(4 to 21 inclusive with Volume 17 missing) and offer them during March and April only, for $45.75; on time if desired. This is at the rate of $2.75 a volume instead of $3.50. If single copies of bound volumes are desired during March and April they may be had for $3.00 instead of $3.50 plus postage.

BABÁ’Í NEWS

THE CALL OF THE KINGDOM

In a recent letter from Haifa, the Guardian writes:

"We should have faith in the power of the Master to come to our help and guide us in our difficulties. We should at the same time do our best in awakening the friends to their duties and urge them to keep up their sacrifices."

How well we recall the words of the Master years ago when he stated that the Temple would be built on the foundation of sacrifice! And now Shoghi Effendi urges the believers throughout America "to keep up their sacrifice."

This glorious effort will be sustained in spite of the business depression and financial stringency. We are learning the spiritual blessing that comes as the result of real sacrifice; giving when it means giving up.

So, during the coming year, let each and every believer decide upon his own measure of sacrifice. The New Plan of Unified Action is our goal, set up by the National Spiritual Assembly and endorsed by our Guardian. "It fully and truly deserves the unreserved support of every American believer."

While the New Plan, like the original Plan for Unified Action, established an average of nine dollars per month for each believer, many are unable to give as much, and nine cents will be acceptable. The spiritual principal of unity will be achieved only when every believer gives what he or she is able to on the basis of sacrifice. Even in these days of financial stress and distress, each one can give up some need or reduce some regular expense in order to cooperate with their fellow-believers in their respective Bahá’í communities in complete unity of action; 100 per cent co-operation toward our glorious objective; the early fulfillment of the New Plan of Unified Action.

Let us keep continually in our minds those stirring words cabled by Shoghi Effendi:

"An appeal to individuals and Assemblies alike to maintain, despite worldwide depression, high standard of self-sacrificing efforts (for) National Fund, is imperative. Abundant blessings shall be vouchsafed its staunch supporters."

"O God! Make all My ideals and thoughts one ideal and one thought, and suffer Me to attain to an eternal, unchangeable condition in Thy service—"
EXCERPTS FROM LETTER FROM SHOGHI EFFENDI TO NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY DATED DEC. 20th, 1931.

Shoghi Effendi views the great sacrifice the friends are making to complete the Temple with great admiration. He, however, hopes that this will be continuous and not spasmodic. We have to show the world that though our number is small, our spirit of service is beyond measure and we can face any emergency with absolute assurance as to the final victory. Shoghi Effendi is now looking forward to the time when the external decoration will start, for that will begin to present the real beauty that edifice will possess when completed.
Teaching and the completion of the Temple construction are the two subjects that should obtain the most careful attention.

Dear and valued co-worker:
I deeply appreciate the continued and self-sacrificing endeavor of the Americans in the face of the grave financial and economic depression into which their country and the whole world is now plunged. That the Temple edifice should arise under such circumstances that its elaborate and exquisite ornamentation should be carried out, through the efforts of a mere handful of Bahá'ís, despite the gloom, the uncertainty and the dangers which surround them is but another evidence of the mysterious all-compelling power of Bahá'u'lláh whose blessings will be bountifully vouchsafed to all who arise to carry out His purpose. The Cause is entering upon a period of unprecedented achievements. The full measure of its glory and power will be gradually manifest. If we, on our part, execute in their entirety the instructions and bequests bequeathed to us by our beloved Master, The Americans believe they have made a splendid beginning. Let them bring to a speedy and successful termination a task which they have so nobly initiated and which they alone are destined to accomplish.

(Signed) SHOGHI

“NOT MERELY AN ECONOMIC, BUT A SPIRITUAL TASK”

On December 16th the National Spiritual Assembly sent to its Local Spiritual Assemblies the third in its series of letters devoted to the Plan of Unified Action. In this letter the Assembly stated its firm confidence, that every true believer will also arise in full devotion and sacrifice, is based upon the conviction that the completion of the beloved Temple of Bahá'u'lláh is not merely an economic but far more a spiritual task. We are convinced that the apparently overwhelming obstacles on the path leading to that success are the means of discipline, purification, and unity given us all from the wisdom and mercy of the Manifestation Himself. On no easier path could believers in the Cause of God arrive at the glorious station of service.

On January 14th the fourth letter was sent. “We send these letters for consideration at every Nineteen Day Feast, that all the believers may concentrate their minds and hearts on the success of the Plan of Unified Action. No one can estimate the full measure of that blessing which shall be poured out upon the co-workers of Shoghi Effendi when the mysterious power of unity takes effect in all the local gatherings of Bahá'ís. Only what we give—of love, devotion and wise counsel, as well as of material wealth—will be saved in this Great Day of God. What we hold back will be lost.” In this letter the National Spiritual Assembly stated that by February 29th, the contributions required amount to a total of $7,424.00 if all obligations are to be met. “The ideal condition is that in which every recognized believer contributes faithfully every month, even if circumstances in some cases permit giving only five cents. Will the Local Spiritual Assemblies assist in the attainment of this ideal?”

LETTER FROM SHOGHI EFFENDI TO A BELIEVER

Shoghi Effendi has directed me to write this in answer to your letter, expressing his appreciation of your aspirations and conveying to you his loving greetings.

As to material sacrifices toward the welfare of the Cause, he wishes you to understand that the general interests of the Cause take precedence over the interests of the particular individuals. For instance, contributions to the welfare of individuals are secondary to contributions to the National and Local Funds and that of the Temple.

This is a general instruction. Of course helping the individuals in case one is able to help, is also desirable and merits appreciation. He is glad to learn that you have been helping... Surely God will reward you. He prays for you and for... so that you may prosper more day by day and may also be released from the inconveniences of life.

Your humble brother in His Name,
(Signed) AZIULLAH S. BAHADOR.

SHOGHI EFFENDI APPROVES NEW YORK DECLARATION OF TRUST

The chairman of the Local Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of New York City has received from Shoghi Effendi a letter and also a cablegram which indicate his approval of the Local Declaration of Trust recently adopted by that body.

Since this letter comments on the matter of the legal status to be assumed by Local Spiritual Assemblies in general, the contents of the Guardian's communication are shared with all believers.

The first portion of the letter was written through his secretary: “It is surely very important to give to the Local Spiritual Assemblies some legal standing, for as the Cause progresses and its adherents increase, they will be confronted with duties they cannot even imagine at present. Not only will they have to make contracts for acquiring halls for their meeting place, but also they will be obliged to create new institutions to care for their sick, poor and aged people. We hope that before long the Bahá'ís will even be able to afford to have schools that would provide the children the intellectual and spiritual education as prescribed in the writings of Bahá'u'lláh and the Master.

“For such duties that will naturally devolve upon the Local Spiritual Assemblies there will be an increasing need for a legal standing. They will have to be considered as a legal person with the power of making binding contracts.

“In small centers where the friends are still few, the taking of such steps is rather premature and may add to the complexity of Bahá'í administration. Not so, however, with New York which, I suppose, is the largest center in the United States.”

The Guardian added the following words in his own handwriting: “Kindly convey to the members of your distinguished Assembly and through them to the entire Bahá'í Community in New York, the expression of my heartfelt gratification, admiration and gratitude for the historic step that has been taken by the Bahá'ís of New York, the City of the Covenant, for the consolidation of their local activities. I am entirely in agreement with the provisions of the Declaration of Trust, endorse its principles, approve its purpose, and believe it to be eminently practicable, useful and serviceable to the interests of the Cause. It will serve as a pattern for every Bahá'í Local Spiritual Assembly in America and a model for every local community throughout the Bahá'í world. This document, being the first of its kind, should, I feel, be published, in its final form and in its entirety, in The Bahá'í World.”
The foregoing letter was dated December 25, 1931. Three days later the Guardian dispatched this cablegram: "Urge mail promptly two photographs, one of New York Assembly, another of entire local community to accompany the publication in (the) Baha'i World of New York's splendid Declaration of Trust. Heartfelt congratulations." (Signed) Shoghi.

NEW YORK

New York City: The Baha'i Activities of this city have continued with undiminished ardor and consecrated effort during December—inspired by the presence at the Center of the splendid portrait of 'Abdu'l-Baha which was painted by Mr. Sigismund Ivanowski of Westfield, New Jersey, a gift from one of the Buffalo believers to Shoghi Effendi for the holy shrine of 'Abdu'l-Baha on Mt. Carmel.

The presence of the portrait provided the central theme for the meetings of the month. On the first Sunday, Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford and Hooper Harris spoke on "Who is 'Abdu'l-Baha?" Mrs. Ford stressed the mystery and bounty of the station of 'Abdu'l-Baha as the Center of the Covenant of God, the divinely appointed channel through which the creative Word and Power of God could reach the whole of humanity, the one who should make clear to humanity the revelation, the purpose, and the power of the Great Manifestation for this Day. Mr. Harris cited most clearly and convincingly those passages of our Old Testament which describe the One who is to come, the Servant, the righteous Branch, the man who shall build the Temple of the Lord, the Sun which should rise in the West, etc., concluding with the promise of 'Abdu'l-Baha Himself that He would be with all those who turn their hearts to the Great Orb of Guidance of which Bahá'u'lláh proclaimed him, 'Abdu'l-Baha, to be the Center.

On Sunday, the 13th, Mrs. Loulie A. Mathews conducted a most beautiful and uplifting "Symposium on Prayer." Mrs. Mathews emphasized these reasons for praying: first, in order to unite ourselves with the Source of Bounty for all our needs; second, in order to connect ourselves with the love and assistance of those who have gone on before; third, prayer—meditative prayer—is the surest way to help us to distinguish between the selfish ego and the spiritual reality in each one of us.

On December 20th, Mr. Harris explained "the Message of 'Abdu'l-Baha," referring again to the Old Testament prophecies.

On December the 27th, Mr. Safa Kinney gave the Christ Message for this Day. He reminded us that no message was ever given as unique as the message of the Christ Himself for this Day. Christ brought out the intimate relation of the fatherhood of God to man and in this Day we have in the two lives of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Baha, the perfect demonstration of this fatherhood and sonship, each giving as the message and gift to the world, the Kingdom of Heaven on earth with Shoghi Effendi as guardian.

The Tuesday afternoons in December under the direction of Mrs. Ford, gave the public the privilege of hearing more about the qualities and reality of 'Abdu'l-Baha which Mr. Ivanowski strove to reveal in the portrait itself.

On Thursday, the 17th, Mrs. Krug began a series of intimate talks at the Center, to which she invited the many friends to whom she has given the message during many years. The spirit of 'Abdu'l-Baha, a living and ever-present reality in Mrs. Krug's life, was felt by all.

The Young People's Tuesday meetings continued as usual with a splendid social time on the 27th.

The Friday Night Study class continues to hold the attendance and devoted study and effort of a large group.

On Wednesday evening, the 23rd, the study class invited the members of the Local Spiritual Assembly to its "party." The hearty singing of many old beloved Christmas carols, the joy of learning a new carol which Safa Kinney wrote for the occasion, and the games, all contributed to the joy and pleasure of true fellowship.

In response to a suggestion made at one of the open consultation meetings of the Baha'i community, the Local Spiritual Assembly appointed a special Committee whose function will be to watch out for articles, editorials, speeches, etc., given by those who seem to have sensed the underlying causes, realities and remedies for the problems of this Day. The Committee will then communicate with such persons and send to them some appropriate Baha'i literature which clearly substantiates, develops, and fulfills their vision and hopes.

Finally the year 1931 was brought to a close and the new Christian year of 1932 was ushered in during a feast given to the friends by Mr. and Mrs. Kinney and Mrs. Krug, held at the home of the Kinneys. It was a happy ending to the Christian year of 1931 though as one of the friends pointed out there was still some time before the close of the 87th year of the Baha'i Era.

In response to an appeal from the Baha'i Peace Committee of New York, the New York Local Spiritual Assembly compiled and published a little sixteen-page pamphlet on The Most Great Peace, to be used at this auspicious time for free distribution in New York City.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

We have had the great privilege of a visit from Miss Martha Root. To give an accurate account of her busy five weeks or more in this city would require many pages. At all times Martha's attitude was that of implicit obedience to the Guardian's wishes; therefore her first consideration was to find opportunity to proclaim the Glad-tidings to the students in the universities, colleges and schools of the city and surrounding towns. This was done most acceptably—doors to the great institutions opening for her by the confirmations of the Almighty.

Washington is a vastly different city from any other American city. It is the national capital and there are innumerable obstacles in the way of making important contacts, but all who seem to be swept away when spiritual laws are in operation. It was a great achievement, therefore, to proclaim the Name of Bahá'u'lláh before so many students—in one High School alone fifteen hundred students were assembled. Thus we can see that in figuring up the total number of students present at these various gatherings, many thousands must have heard the Name of Bahá'u'lláh and the great principles of our religion. The students for the most part gave wonderful attention. We hope in many instances follow-up work will be done by personal contacts. We feel the final result will be of this great service rests with God and the confirmations He gives to the friends who strive to do personal work with those who manifest an interest.

In addition to this, and probably equally as important if not even greater, was the dynamic service which Martha, accompanied by Mrs. Parsons, rendered in connection with their personal visits to officials from foreign countries who are members of the Diplomatic Corps in this city. This was indeed an outstanding and superb service, and one which will doubtless be very far reaching in its effect. No one save these two servants could have had entrance to this exclusive circle, and even they could not save through the Power of God.

On Martha's program also there were many group meetings, and she had several interviews with people in private life as well as with an important government official. Also the Message reached many thousands through her broadcasting.

Altogether we feel that she served the Cause of God in this city most efficiently.
and with that spirit of devotion and loyalty for which she is justly famous.

Another service we would like to touch upon in this report is the work done by Orcella Rexford. Her way of serving is decidedly unique and different. She certainly is an enthusiastic Bahá’í, and she has the ability and capacity to reach thousands of people. The audiences gathered to hear her primarily talk about Diet and the Chemistry of Food. She was traveling her living now as a Food Scientist, and at her free lectures for six nights in succession she had an audience of from eight hundred to a thousand each night.

At her private classes she prepared her students for the Great Message by dropping seeds of Truth continually so that by the time she was ready to give her great public lecture on the Bahá’í Religion she had prepared many hearts. In one Bahá’í lecture she gave the most important historic points in Bahá’í history, and did so in no uncertain way, referring to the Great Bab, Báb’u’lláh and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi; she very definitely stated the principles and many of our most wonderful teaching, and held the attention of an audience of around one thousand people for two hours and a half.

She invited those who wished to hear more about the teachings to join a study class. Mr. Cobb was chosen as the teacher for this class. At the first meeting about one hundred were present. This class will continue one night every week for an indefinite period, and out of this group we are praying there will be some confirmed souls actually willing to join our ranks in full membership.

CALIFORNIA

Pasadena: Genuine interest and enthusiasm is centered here in the group of young believers, all college graduates and members of the Communities of Glendale, Los Angeles and Pasadena, who are meeting regularly to study and equip themselves so that they will be ready at any time to answer questions, or to speak in public on the Cause. A few Sundays ago this group took complete charge of the Sunday public meeting and gave a very able presentation of the “Solution of the Economic Problems from the Bahá’í Standpoint.” Not only was the program intellectually sound but a profound spiritual atmosphere prevailed which filled the audience with reverent awe and wonder.

Los Angeles: A World Friendship Dinner was given on February 1st by the Bahá’í Assembly. Mr. Horace Hahn, a student at the Los Angeles High School, spoke on “Education of the Multitudes for Peace”; and Mr. Emmett Smith, a student at the Venice High School, spoke on “The World Court and Peace”. Both of these young men were successful contestants in the fifth annual World Friendship oratorical contest held in December and sponsored by the Speech Arts Association of Southern California, the Efe­bian Society of this city and other organizations interested in world friendship.

Dr. Getzinger is conducting his fourth annual series of lectures and classes in which he gives the Bahá’í message from a scientific and philosophical standpoint with blackboard illustrations.

The Los Angeles Bahá’ís have also a self teaching class meeting the first and third Monday of each month. This class has no teacher but each one attending is given the opportunity to speak or present a paper on any phase of the Bahá’í Revelation. The object of the class is to enable those speaking to develop and improve their method of giving the message to individuals or groups of people.

Another class to be started in January is a study class the object of which is to assist all the friends to deepen in the Cause and obtain a better understanding of the Teachings. A chairman will arrange subjects for discussion and will assign to individuals the preparation of answers to questions that will be brought up. It is hoped that many of the Bahá’ís and others in and around Los Angeles will participate in this class. Plans are at present under way to hold several large public meetings in the city during January and February.

Berkeley: An inter-racial group of college students, many of whom had never before attended a similarly mixed gathering, were recently invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Yazdi to discuss the Bahá’í teachings. A brief introductory talk was given, after which the meeting was devoted to questions and answers. Interesting questions upon the Bahá’í view of race inter-marriage, the duty of the new negro generation in associating with other races, and the inadequacy of most internationally-minded groups due to their influencing only internationally-minded people and their failure to overcome the far more numerous ranks of the prejudiced. The Bahá’ís of Berkeley present an Amity Meeting every month, and are doing much toward eliminating race self-consciousness in their community.

Long Beach: The little group all take part in the meetings for study, working in love and harmony. The Nineteen-Day Feasts are held in the various homes. A series of public meetings is planned for the Third Friday of each month throughout the spring. Mr. Willard P. Hatch and Dr. W. M. Madson, a young medical student of Pasadena, opened the campaign, January 29th. Mr. Hatch spoke on the Bahá’í Principles and Dr. Madson presented the Bahá’í Economic Plan, both being well received.

COLORADO

Letter from Loulie A. Mathews
 Colorado Springs had the privilege of being visited for three days by 'Abdu’l-Bahá who spoke in glowing terms of its future. It is a region where the sick come to regain their health and is the scene of sacrifice and exile. Here many illuminated Bahá’í teachers have visited, Martha Root, Mrs. Ella G. Cooper, Orcella Rexford, Mrs. Brent and others. Building upon the foundation of their brief giving of the Message, a class was formed last summer. The faithful and regular attendance, in one season, brought such results that upon my return to New York I was happy to leave the class to Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hadsell, who are confirmed believers. All the members of the class have become earnest students and are fired by the enthusiasm which inspires success. The class of fifteen members is now meeting at the home of Miss Katherine Bachus, and we confidently expect to form an Assembly in the Spring upon my return to Colorado.

Anyone having friends going there should invite them to attend this brilliant class by writing to either Miss Bachus at 311 East Uniah St., or Mrs. H. H. Hadsell of 827 East Willamette St.

ILLINOIS

Chicago: Great things are happening in Chicago. Day by day we can see how the Cause of Báb’sulláh is growing in this great cosmopolitan center, which 'Abdu’l-Bahá called the heart of America. Greater strides have been made, numerically, in the last year than in many preceding years. Undoubtedly the erection of the Temple is the underlying cause for this phenomenal expansion. The beautiful room in the Lake View Building, which we opened on December 31, 1930, has already been out-grown and we have taken a much more beautiful and commodious suite in the same building. We hope that any visitors to Chicago will make it a point to call at our headquarters, 116 S. Michigan Avenue. The rooms are open daily from 12 to 4 p.m. Every Wednesday, from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m. there is a public meeting; every Friday from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m. there is a public prayer service. Wednesday eve-nations at 8 o'clock there is a study class. Every Friday evening at 8 o'clock there is a public meeting. In our new quarters we will be able much more efficiently to serve the Cause and the friends and confidently expect an even greater expansion than that which has taken place in the last year.

_Springfield:_ Word comes to us that one of the young Bahá'ís of that city, a student at the University of Illinois, took for the subject of his last address in his public speaking work, "The New World Religion," addressing the instructor and twenty class mates. He was graded "A" on this work. This is a field which offers the young Bahá'ís who are students in the colleges and universities of the country boundless opportunities for spreading the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh.

_WISCONSIN_

_Milwaukee:_ The Feast on December 31st was a very happy event for Milwau- kee Bahá'ís, for at that time ten new believers were formally accepted. Public meetings are held on an average of twice a month on Sunday evening in the Med ford Hotel. For these meetings we have a visiting speaker whenever available. Friday evening Study Groups are held in the home of Mrs. Bruss. Several teaching groups have been meeting regularly each week for those just becoming interested in the Cause. There are also classes for the study of Esperanto, public speaking and singing. An inter-assembly party was given at the home of one of the friends and the splendid co-operation of Racine and Kenosha Assemblies made this an affair that will long be remembered.

_INDIAH_

_Indianapolis:_ Since April, 1931, a number of teachers have visited this city with the result that several classes have been organized. These classes now meet jointly and it is hoped that by April of the current year an assembly may be formed.

_MONTREAL_

The Bahá'í Community in Montreal has been steadily increasing its numbers, becoming well known in the city and enlarging its activities during the weight of aversion and bigotry, that for so long has made our headway slow and in the face of truly colossal opposition, is giving way. During the heat of the summer months our Tuesday evening young people's group filled to overflowing the Bahá'í Hall. This same group also held weekly picnics on Sundays by the river about twelve miles from the city, making economical arrangements by train and truck. They were enabled in this way to meet in hours of companionship and relaxation, the young people who have been attending their discussion group, forming those personal bonds so essential to the spirit of the Cause and transmitting it "from heart to heart" as well as from speaker to listener.

The development of our young people's group has been by a most natural growth and we owe it entirely to the foresight and liberality of our Spiritual Assembly. Having been given at first perfect freedom to do as they felt best, subject of course to supervision by the Local Assembly, they were allowed to develop and adapt themselves to best spreading the Teachings among young people. Within the last year, however, that initial separateness that was needed to give them strength has entirely disappeared and the Tuesday group is a most integral and co-operative part of the community at large.

Montreal has received many stimulating visitors during the past year; Mrs. Sonita Knowles, following the suggestion that Shoghi Effendi gave her in Haifa, has been traveling all over the country to different Assemblies, and bringing us tidings of our Guardian and reports of Bahá'í activities in other places. We were happy to have her with us a week in August. Over the New Year we also had the great pleasure of a short visit from Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf from Boston, accompanied by Miss Roushan Wilkin- son, refreshing and gladdening us by her continuous devotion and steadfastness in her service to the Guardian.

The 13th and 14th of January Martha Root spent in Montreal. We have all been drawn into the deeper realms of our great and blessed Cause through her finding our reason (which we overwork) at a standstill to explain or account for the openings we were able to get for her and the response in believer and stranger alike to the power of Bahá'u'lláh which she mirrors. For the first time in Canada the names Bahá'u'lláh, 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and Bahá'í, were voiced into the listening air. Her broadcast was merely a symbol, to us, of the power of an "Apostle of Bahá'u'lláh.". She also spoke to the Montreal Social Workers Club at a luncheon of seventy-five or so, and to a public meeting of over two hundred; a luncheon to twenty people who had hitherto made no organic contact with the Cause, and to a round table meeting of thirty before taking her train, as well as meeting the friends at a reception and at a tea.

_HAIFA_

A recent letter from the Guardian to The Bahá'í World Committee chairman mentions the interesting fact that he expects to create two new sections in Volume IV of The Bahá'í World, one devoted to Bahá'í poems, and another to Bahá'í music. He says: "I hope that the friends will gradually arise to enrich these sections and improve the standard of their contributions."

In the same letter Ruhi Afsaa says that "If in every center, the friends could win the co-operation of at least one of the local papers, they could thereby start a teaching campaign far more effective than anything yet attempted."

_GERMANY_

_Hamburg:_ The young people of this assembly have a wonderful workshop where they are trained in all manner of arts and crafts. The products of their labors are sold and the proceeds contributed to the Cause. They have sent a beautiful assortment of doilies and hand painted covers to America to be sold for the Temple fund. All such things should henceforth be sent to our American official Sales Committee Chairman: Mr. George Spendlove, 1700 K Street, Northwest, Washington, D. C., U. S. A.

Speaking of the beautiful arts sent by the German Assembly children for the Temple fund, our National Chairman, Mr. McDaniel, says: "We are glad to have these lovely art works which we will sell for the Temple. These little mats or doilies are so attractive that I am sure that we shall find a good sale for them. We are happy to keep some for our own use. This is a very fine and generous contribution to the Temple and I am sure that these loving labors of the children will be confirmed. Our Temple utilities are now completed so that this glorious structure will be protected and preserved and can be used in the future. Now we must make every sacrifice to raise additional funds to proceed with the exterior ornamentation."

_NEWS NOTES FROM THE BRITISH ISLES_

The Guardian, Shoghi Effendi, sends the following message through the National Spiritual Assembly: "I deeply sympathize with the increasing difficulties confronting the believers in Great Britain, but I feel that these will serve to deepen their faith in the power of the Cause and will enable them to reinforce the spirit of Bahá’í solidarity among them. I strongly feel that the maintenance of the Center (Walmart House) is indispensable and vital to the interests of the Cause, and I will continue to pray that Bahá’u’lláh may protect and bless and sustain the upholders of His Faith in that land.”

A paragraph from Ruhi Afzal written under the direction of the Guardian seems also so significant that it is here quoted.—“He hopes that the friends will display a certain amount of faith and courage and not fear present economic conditions. We should not let financial considerations hamper our work and discourage us in rendering our services. Giving lavishly during days of plenty cannot be termed sacrifice. It applies only to our activities when depression and economic difficulties seem to block the way. Whatever we sacrifice at present is to assure the welfare of humanity and ourselves as members of it in the future.”

Nellie S. French, International Correspondent, December, 1931.

THE PASSING OF MME. deLAGNEL

Once again the friends of Washington, D.C., were called upon to translate into the world of action the divine injunction of Bahá’u’lláh, “I have made death to thee as glad-tidings.” Without this teaching the devoted friends of Mme. Josephine Cowles deLagnel would have been a sorrowful group, for her passing into the life eternal and radiant would have meant a bereavement inexpressibly great and very deeply felt. This faithful maid-servant was for many years an active and beloved member of the Washington Bahá’í Community and for many years she had served on the Local Spiritual Assembly.

Mme. deLagnel became a Bahá’í in 1902, and from the day she entered the Fold she was a comprehending follower of the Faith—loyal, devoted, sincere at every point and at all times. She had “found her Lord,” as she so often said, and so all of the Teachings emanating from the Source of Life and Light and Love in this Great Day constituted her armor and buckler and were indeed all-in-all to her. Through the creative effect of the Holy Utterances she had developed spiritual ears and spiritual eyes and a keen spiritual perception. Her greatest charm was her firmness in faith and her longing to serve the Most Great Cause. She was eighty-five years of age, yet she was active up to the time of her serious illness which began about six weeks before the final dissolution of that once very strong body. She was well equipped for service for she had a strong spirit and a strong mind in a strong body.

Those who knew her well during all the thirty years of her devotion to the Cause will remember her unique and beautiful character, and the Washington friends in particular will always remember that her home was the Bahá’í meeting-place for years. When ‘Abdu’l-Bahá was in Washington in 1912, He visited her home, and thereafter she herself and many others considered the home was especially blessed and that it had an unusually pure spiritual atmosphere.

‘Abdu’l-Bahá said of her, “She is my real daughter, there is no one who could be dearer to me than she is because she really serves. I love her. I love her very much.” And in one of her own Tablets from Him, these words, “Every soul has a protector, but praise be to God thou hast God.” And during the storms and stress of life she held firmly to these Holy Words.

A SUGGESTION FOR TEMPLE FUND

Some of the friends will recall that during the sojourn of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá in America there were times when the meal consisted of bread and gravy—nothing more. Shoghi Effendi once said to an American pilgrim that when the spirit of sacrifice and devotion which permeated the believers in the Orient appeared in the Occident, the Temple would be built. With these two memories fresh in mind and heart, the following plan was set in operation and is proving to be a blessing to all, so we send it forth; perchance those in other cities might like to try it also.

Once a week the believers gather at one of the homes for an Economy Dinner. The host gives the meal which consists of one main dish. All who come give to the Temple Fund what their dinner would cost them at home. For instance: a large dish of rice and gravy or bread and gravy with plenty for everyone, water to drink, will cost around five cents per person for the hostess. The more there are of course the smaller the cost per person.

No one can provide such a meal at such a cost at home. After the meal there is an opportunity to build up, in the Bahá’í Community, a greater social and friendly bond that is not possible in the regular Bahá’í meetings. Discussions, music, prayers or readings according to the inspiration of the occasion, follow.

As a result there is something “Extra” in the Treasury each week to keep sending, small though it may be, to the National Fund. Just try it and see what happiness will come as a result! A rotation of homes is a good plan.

STUDY COMMITTEE ANNOUCEES NEW COURSE

Dear Bahá’í Co-workers:

The recent letter from the Guardian with its clear statement of oncoming world events is a call that awakens us to the urgent necessity of a wide expansion of our teaching activities. We must transform ourselves to the idea of dealing with large numbers, while pondering in our hearts what service we can best render to mankind in this transitional period. Surely a solution offered to a world which knows not which way to turn, shall attract to the Cause a multitude of people made alert by suffering and the apprehension of world chaos.

To seize this opportunity a band of trained Bahá’í teachers will be needed. In the words of Shoghi Effendi: “How pressing and sacred the responsibility that now weighs upon those who are already acquainted with the teachings! How glorious the task of those who are called upon to vindicate their truth, and demonstrate its practicability to an unbelieving world!” Certain it is no true believer can remain silent when confronted with the burning questions of the age, for which we alone have the answer.

The Bahá’í Study Committee wishes to point out that with the turning of a new cycle in human history, a fresh and timely approach to the teachings must be thoughtfully considered. This enlarged scope of Bahá’í subject matter is suggested in the statement of Shoghi Effendi, who says: “For Bahá’u’lláh, we should readily recognize, has not only imbued mankind with a new and regenerating Spirit. He has not merely enunciated certain universal principles, or propounded a particular philosophy, however potent, sound and universal these may be. In addition to these, He, as well as ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, after Him, have, unlike the Dispensations of the past, clearly and specifically laid down a set of Laws, established definite institutions, and provided for the essentials of a Divine Economy.”

Would it not be well for Bahá’í teachers and students to re-study the history, principles and precepts of the Cause with a special view to attaining to a more profound comprehension of the background which they furnish to the inauguration of the New World Order? How glorious will be our victory if the teaching work can go forward in accordance with a plan in which all, in the briefest possible time, can equip themselves with a sound knowledge of the Cause and its application to this significant hour.

The Study Committee is offering at this time a course of thirty-six lessons on the Baha'i Teachings. The course was designed to fit, not only the needs of the many new groups throughout the country, but also to furnish a framework for Assembly Study Classes and public meetings.

Unlike other courses offered by the Outline Bureau, a large library of Baha'i books is not required. Nor is it a correspondence course. The course is based upon three text-books, Baha'u'llah and the New Era, The Wisdom of 'Abdu'l-Baha and The Foundations of World Unity. Each lesson consists of one or more quotations on the subject from some other Baha'i source, a prayer, definite reference to the text-books and questions for discussion. A lesson is short enough to be easily covered in one evening.

In order to make this course available to all, we will sell the three text-books and the thirty-six lessons for two dollars. The set of lessons without the books will sell for one dollar.

The Study Committee has on hand a large edition of the outline on "Material and Divine Civilization", which it recommends for close study since it consists of reference material on the social, economic and administrative teachings of the Cause. The outline is on sale at fifteen cents.

Orders will be filled after March first from the office of the Baha'i Study Committee, 2704 Tilbury St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE ANNOUNCEMENT

The members of the Publishing Committee share with all believers the recommendation received from the Inter-Assembly Teaching Conference held in Washington, D.C., on November 8, 1931. The Baha'i Communities of Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, D.C., participated. As reported by Mr. Spendlove, the Conference adopted the following resolution: "That this Conference bring to the attention of the Baha'i Publishing Committee the need of having a full and sufficient supply of literature calculated to interest and appeal to people with a fundamentalist Christian outlook."

The Publishing Committee appreciates the rapidly increasing need of literature in book and pamphlet form dealing with the Teachings from the Christian fundamentalist and many other prevalent group points of view. As a committee functioning under the conditions laid down by the National Spiritual Assembly, however, it does not initiate literature but merely manufactures and sells the books and pamphlets approved by the Reviewing Committee and chosen by the National Spiritual Assembly.

It seems advisable to make it clear that those believers who write books and pamphlets should submit them first to the National Spiritual Assembly for review and approval. When approved by the Reviewing Committee, the question of how to use available publishing funds in the manufacture of new books and pamphlets is subject to final decision by the National Spiritual Assembly.

The Publishing Committee would like to explain to the friends that the delay in publishing the Guardian's translation of The Dawn-Breakers: Nabil's Narrative of the Early Days of the Baha'i Faith has been due to the extreme complexity of this work, involving so many hundreds of pages of text and in addition so many illustrations and colored frontispiece. No Baha'i work ever issued compares with this volume in the care required to produce a perfect book.

The publishing date on both the Standard and Deluxe (autographed) editions will now, it is confidently expected, be early in February, but the date during which the advance, reduced price can be accepted has been extended to March 1, that all the believers may have ample opportunity to take advantage of the lower price on advance orders. Until March 1, the Standard Edition will be $6.75—after March 1, $7.50. The Limited Edition autographed by Shoghi Effendi is $35.00, and this price will remain unchanged until the 150 copies are sold.

LETTER RECEIVED BY THE PUBLISHING COMMITTEE

Persian Colony
Haifa, Palestine
12-29-31.

Dear Mrs. Little:

Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, written on behalf of the Publishing Committee, regarding the Publication of the Divine Art of Living.

Shoghi Effendi has laid down a principal that the Baha'is should not attribute much importance to talks, reported to have been given by the Master, if these have not in one form or other obtained His sanction.

Baha'u'llah has made it clear enough that only those things that have been revealed in the form of Tablets have a binding power over the friends. Hearsays may be matters of interest but can in no way claim authority. This basic teaching of Baha'u'llah was to preserve the Faith from being corrupted like Islam which attributes binding authority to all the reported sayings of Muhammad.

This being a basic principle of the Faith we should not confuse Tablets that were actually revealed and mere talks attributed to the founders of the Cause. The first have absolute binding authority while the latter can in no way claim our obedience. The highest thing this can achieve is to influence the activities of the one who has heard the saying in person.

Those talks of the Master that were later reviewed by Him and corrected or in some other form considered authentic by Himself, such as the Some Answered Questions, these could be considered as Tablets and therefore be given the necessary binding power. All the other talks such as are included in Ahmad's diary or the other diaries of pilgrims, do not fall under this category and could be considered only as interesting material to be taken for what they are worth.

For this reason Shoghi Effendi has not been encouraging the publication of reported sayings that were not authenticated by the Master Himself. Shoghi Effendi is trying to prevent the friends from considering as actual words of the Master things that were not authenticated by Him.

Now in so far as the Divine Art of Living is concerned, some of the friends wrote Shoghi Effendi and stated that the book is very much liked, so he did permit its publication in its old form. The question, however, totally changes when the prices are no more exist. For we would not advise you to undertake that expense at this time and bring out a book where authentic and non-authentic material is hopelessly confused. It greatly detracts from the worth of a book to have in it quotations from Tablets which are absolutely binding and reported sayings that have no authority.

In closing may I assure you of Shoghi Effendi's prayers and best wishes and assure you of his loving greetings.

Yours ever sincerely

(Signed) RUH'I AFINAN.
ENLIST WORLD-WIDE SUPPORT FOR THE NEW PLAN OF UNIFIED ACTION

Assemblies of His Divine Plan of Unity: We are all one! Although humble and defective is this poor one's effort, may it indicate the beauty and power of the Word of God in action, in Unified Action and Deeds! The Temple invites you all. Mashriqu'l-Adhkár invites you all. The New Plan of Unified Action is the prelude so sweet and tender to the melody of world order and international commonwealth of God! This is the Truth—this is the test for us—this is the path of our advancement all over the whole of the world. Help support this Plan. Make it a joyful noise in the As-semblies. Make it a song of the heart and hand of every living believer. Support the World-wide Plan. Build up Mashrigu'l-Adhkár everywhere! If you will support the New Plan endorsed by our Guardian, if you will recommend it amongst your Local Spiritual Assemblies and groups, you will have served the Threshold of 'Abhá and its advancing strides of justice and selflessness and cooperation, preparing thus and developing the Cause toward the ultimate end of the Creative Will, upholding the international relations and universal ideals of the Bahá'í world community!

In service to our Guardian,

BUILDING THE TEMPLE

Thus, the Guardian has set a definite objective for us in the completion of the exteriors of the dome and ribs to the top of the first gallery or second story by the latter part of Spring of 1933. To accomplish this great task requires having $30,000 available within the next two months, or by June 1st, 1932, and the balance of $120,000 on hand by November 1st, 1932, for the continue and completion of the work.

On a firm foundation has arisen the present Temple structure. The exterior ornamentation, which will reveal the beauty and glory of the design, will be applied beginning with the dome and its ribs. Our supervising engineers have estimated that it will require six months of labor and expenditure of about $30,000 to prepare models and molds. Subsequently an additional six month period will be necessary for the manufacture and erection of the sections of the ornamentation.

In a time of great financial difficulties and business depression, we are confronted with a task that will truly test our faith, our courage, and our capacity to unselfishly and wholeheartedly sacrifice to do His will.

"If we falter or hesitate, if our love for Him should fail to direct us and keep us within His path, if we desert Divine and emphatic principles, what hope can we any more cherish for healing the ills and wrongs of this world?"

GUARDIAN CABLES
CONCERNING CONVENTION

A cable from Shoghi Effendi was received on March 9th commenting upon the action of the National Spiritual Assembly in calling the Twenty-fourth Annual Convention as disclosed by the Minutes of the Assembly meeting forwarded to him.
The cable is as follows:

Haifa, Palestine, March 9, 1932.

Spiritual advantages derived from deliberations of delegates in Convention assembled outweigh financial considerations. Urge eliminate unnecessary expenses.

CONVENTION ANNOUNCEMENT
BY THE NATIONAL
SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

The National Spiritual Assembly has approved the following program for the coming Twenty-fourth Annual Convention of the Bahá'ís of the United States and Canada, to be held at Temple Foundation
Hall, Wilmette, Illinois, April 29th, April
30th and May 1st, 1932.

The Hospitality Committee for the Convention has been named consisting of —
Miss Edna True, Chairman
Mrs May Scheffler
Dr. Zia Bagdadi
Mr. Willis Hilpert
Miss Sophie Loeding

who will have headquarters at the Evans-town Hotel, chosen as the official Convention Headquarters. We have arranged with the management of the Hotel Evans-town to provide room and meals to all attending Bahá'ís and their friends, without racial discrimination. Delegates and friends should in all cases, however, consult the Hospitality Committee at the Hotel before applying for rooms. A special dining room will be assigned to Bahá'ís guests so that we may all be together.

THE GOAL OF MANKIND

It is with joy, assurance and gratitude that we peruse and study the great epistle of our revered Guardian, dated November 28th, 1931, and published under the caption The Cause of a New World Order. This luminous document is not, in circulation, limited to believers, but it is our hope that it will mould the thoughts and enlighten the hearts of many people of influence and capacity who are in a state of inquiry. It brings us measureless aid by its clear, simple and forceful analysis of the world situation; by the faith it deepens, the hope it brightens, the love it inspires. Wonderful is its exposition of that great principle of Bahá'ulláh, the Oneness of Humanity and its binding power in the new cycle. There is the gentleness, yet decisiveness of the true physician who lays bare the wound he would treat, in the very striking picture of the way of fiery trials through which mankind must pass in its journey to the desired goal. The vanity of adherence to out-worn dogmas and forms that have no bearing upon present needs; the stirring appeal for general recognition of the Supreme authority of Bahá'ulláh, the impressive quotations from the Manifestation of God and from the Center of His Divine Covenant, the focussing of our attention upon the signs that make it clear that human problems have over-reached human control, while humanity totters to the brink of a great cataclysm; and the supreme guidance and confirmation that animate every syllable of this eloquent missive, compel our reverent homage. Graphic is our Guardian's vision of mankind as a whole, regenerated by the Breath of the Infinite and at length finding its reality in a world that reflects the light of Heaven.

The Guardian has paid a tribute to the fathers of the American Government for the vision and sacrifices that created so noble a structure. Students of our constitutional history may well be amazed by the range of his knowledge, yet nothing is hidden from the One who sees with divine insight. That he sees in some of our institutions and the early struggle for their erection, an analogy, in some ways, to the form which a federated world is to take, places upon American Bahá'ís both an honor and a responsibility. It is nothing short of divine favor that we have been privileged to live in a system from which some ideals are to be used for the building of a universal structure. Can we value too highly the opportunity of service and sacrifice that arises for the restoration and expansion of ideals now veiled in darkness, as well as the greater panacea which showers upon mankind the wealth of God in new principles of light and a world system that banishes strife?

While it is made clear that frowardness of spirit on the part of weak mortals will take their toll in mortification and mental agony, in heart-breaks and the ordeal of fire and blood, yet it is consoling to know that this, too, will ultimately pass. The time is here authoritatively set when the many shocks that befal mankind will be absorbed by the music of real life. May our efforts be increased that the Divine Cause, although its adherents be but clay, should at all times express perfect harmony, the effect of which both as object lesson and magnet will attract and tranquilize the world.

Letters written by Shoghi Effendi since this great epistle makes it clear that he wishes us to emphasize its positive program and not dwell too much upon the thought of calamity.

CHICAGO ASSEMBLY INCORPORATES

Under date of February 16, 1932, incorporation papers were filed with the Recorder of Deeds of Cook County, Illinois, to meet the requirements of the Illinois State laws for religious organizations.

We quote the following paragraph which was used as an introduction to the Articles of Incorporation and By-Laws:

"The Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'í's of Chicago adopts this form of corporate association in order to supply proper legal status to its conduct of the affairs of a religious community, which has had continuous existence for thirty-six years, and continuous organized existence since 1901. A.D., in the City of Chicago, County of Cook, and State of Illinois, being the first local Bahá'í community established in North America. During the period from 1901 to the present date the Spiritual Assembly has been recognized, encouraged and instructed in nineteen Tablets and letters addressed to it by 'Abdu'l-Bahá. This first Local Spiritual Assembly of Bahá'ís in North America was vested with the responsibility of founding the first Bahá'í Temple—Masriqui'l-Adhkar—in the Western Hemisphere, until the organization of a National Body in 1909 A.D.

The Spiritual Assembly was visited by 'Abdu'l-Bahá three times in the year 1912, during His sojourn in North America. The Spiritual Assembly has been recognized since the Ascension of 'Abdu'l-Bahá in letters addressed to it by the Guardian of the Bahá'í Faith. The Chicago Bahá'í community has been continuously and uninterruptedly represented by delegates in the Annual Meetings held by the recognized National Bahá'í body of North America, since the foundation of that body in 1909 A.D. The Spiritual Assembly is at present enrolled in the list of Local Spiritual Assemblies recognized by the National Spiritual Assembly.

"The members of the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Chicago have taken this action in full unanimity and agreement. They acknowledge for themselves and on behalf of their successors the sacred meaning and universal purpose of the Bahá'í Faith, the teachings and principles of which fulfill the divine promise of all former religions."

NEW YORK

New York City: During the month of February the Sunday meetings, for the public, were as follows: February 7th, Mr. Hooper Harris spoke with interesting and illuminating detail concerning "Prophecies Fulfilled," explaining how the seven great cycles of history fulfilled the great vision or prophecy revealed by God of ultimate accomplishment.

On February 14th, Mr. Horace Holley inspired his audience with his portrayal of "Spiritual Citizenship" which would through man's complete and harmonious development of physical, mental and spiritual capacities, enable him, through cooperation with all, to evolve the World Federation for which Bahá'u'lláh has given the plan, the power and the promise of ultimate accomplishment.

On February 21st, Ex-Governor W. E. Sulzer of New York spoke eloquently on "Abdu'l-Bahá Marching On." He rejoiced with us in his account of meeting 'Abdu'l-Bahá in New York and Washington, and with his appreciation of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's message which he earnestly summoned the people to study and follow.

On February 26th, New York was indeed happy to hear Louis G. Gregory, who spoke on the "Consciousness of Peace," stressing the thought that all peace, whether between individuals or nations, can result only through definitely organized effort of those inspired by justice and love for their fellow beings.

The "Tuesday afternoon teas" afforded much pleasure and profit and opportunity to demonstrate the Bahá'í culture. Those who were able to attend enjoyed hearing, on February 2nd, Charles Edward Davenport's dramatic reading of his "Silent Forces," and on February 28th, Miss Grace Stanistreet's beautiful rendering of modern poems, and some brilliant piano selections by Mercedes Ramírez. Then on February 9th, following the glorious song recital by Mrs. Caroline Wallace Murray, we had the opportunity to witness and take part in a demonstration of the Czez method of teaching Esperanto, given by Professor Jen Schjerf of Stockholm. On February 16th, Jennie M. Davis gave a masterful talk on "The Way of Peace"—peace that cannot be enforced but must be provided for and promoted by definite steps in education for appreciation of unity and justice.

The Friday night Bahá'í Study Class affords great comfort and progress to those who avail themselves of the opportunity to read, ponder, and clarify their views through the effort to clearly express those views.

The Nineteen Day Feast held February 7th was given by Mrs. Marion Little and the selections from the Holy Utterances were most inspiring.

Mrs. Florian Krug's informal gatherings on Thursday afternoons are a joy and inspiration to the friends who are thereby enabled to hear from Mrs. Krug her personal experiences with the Master and with the Holy Family.

An hour of prayer and meditation is held at noon at the Center, daily.

During February there were started Sunday evening meetings for prayer, meditation, and the reading of the Tablets of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

On Wednesday, February 17th, the Young People's Committee was asked to meet with the Local Spiritual Assembly to discuss their activities and budget in relation to the work of the Bahá'í Community as a whole. The reports of their regular Tuesday night meetings for discussions, and other monthly meetings for spreading the Bahá'í principles through social contacts, and of the personnel of those attracted were very encouraging. The Local Spiritual Assembly felt that the young people, sensing and experiencing the need for some solution of the economic conditions of the world today might in their discussions formulate some practical suggestions for bettering the economic condition along with Bahá'í principles, amongst the members of the Bahá'í community itself. Therefore, the Young People's Group was made a committee for this purpose and they will report back to the Local Spiritual Assembly.

The Saturday, February 27th issue of the New York World-Telegram printed in full a long and scholarly article on the Bahá'í Cause which Horace Holley was requested to write for it. This is the sixth in a series of articles explaining the "Little Known Religions in New York."

As a superb climax to the activities of the month the National Bahá'í Committee for Racial Amity and the New York Local Spiritual Assembly gave a dinner in honor of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People and the New York Urban League, "in appreciation of their devoted service in the cause of justice and protection of the Negro People"—at the Hotel Shelton.

Mrs. L. A. Mathews and Louis G. Gregory presided. All felt that the evening was unique in the history of inter-racial love and fellowship. All shared in making the occasion one to be remembered and recalled with joy—those who spoke, those who gave their message through piano selections or through song, and those who demonstrated their love and fellowship through genuine appreciation, enjoyment and accord. A full report of this meeting will be given elsewhere.

The portrait of 'Abdu'l-Bahá painted by Sigismund Ivanowski seemed to have become an integral part of the Center, when it was taken from the rooms and placed in the Art Center at 55 East 56th Street, where the public has been very responsive to it. A leaflet telling about 'Abd'l-Bahá and his mission was prepared for distribution to those who wished to know.

The New York Assembly was pleased to record that the Committee appointed during December availed itself of the opportunity to send to each delegate who sailed on the President Harding for the Disarmament Conference at Geneva, two or three of the Bahá'í leaflets including a copy of the new leaflet on "The Most Great Peace."

On January twenty-seventh, the Bahá'í Community assembled to bear the letter of Shoghi Effendi, dated November 28, 1931, to the believers of the West. After the reading we were pleased to hear Mr. Albert Windust of Chicago who had just returned from Haifa, tell about his recent visit and the seriousness and purpose of Shoghi Effendi in sending this letter at this time. After allowing a week for the members to re-read and study the letter individually the community will meet again on February 3rd, to discuss the letter, its meaning, and what we might do toward preparing for the great days immediately ahead of us—days of final victory to be sure, but following these days of great tribulations.

Pennsylvania

Philadelphia: Recently Mr. Horace Holley of New York City came here to follow up the Bahá'í work done by Miss Martha Root. In the morning he spoke at the Friends Meeting House in Lansdowne, Pennsylvania, to a splendid audience. His talk covered, in general, some of the points in Shoghi Effendi's letter of November 28th, 1931. In the evening he addressed a very appreciative audience at the rooms of the Ethical Culture So ciety. His subject was "A World Economy—The Reconciliation of Ethical Values and Human Needs." The address was followed by an open forum.

NEW JERSEY

Newark: During the past year the activities of the Newark Community have increased. On November 12th the birthday of Bahá'u'lláh was celebrated in a beautiful and impressive manner at the home of Mrs. Clark. At that time Mrs. Knowles of Portland, Oregon, paid the Community a visit. On February 10th a public meeting was held, at which Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford spoke on "The New Day." Much interest was manifested and questions were answered. It is planned to hold further public meetings from time to time. On March 2nd a Bahá'í meeting was held at the home of Mr. Henry Grasmere. Mrs. Ford was the speaker and gave interesting reminiscences of 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

ILLINOIS

Chicago: The Feast of February 7th was given by Peter Walrath, it being the occasion of his fourteenth birthday, and was the last one celebrated in our old room. The large attendance proved to us again the inadequacy of the quarters we had occupied for a year. It was a gathering long to be remembered because of the items of interest marking the event. Mr. Windust had just returned from the Holy Land and it was the "Welcome Home of the Chicago Community" to this devoted servant. At this time the marvelous letter from our Guardian, "The Goal of a New World Order" was read for the first time to the friends.

On March 1st our next Nineteen Day Feast was celebrated in our new home, in the same building at 116 S. Michigan Avenue, Suite 308-310. It comprises a large hall for public meetings and a smaller room which serves as office and library. There is also a well-equipped kitchenette which greatly simplifies the serving of feasts. The carefully planned furnishings, the softly carpeted floors, beautiful hangings and comfortable chairs, lend to the room that air of grace and dignity so beautifully in keeping with our beloved Cause.

The public addresses given on Wednesday evenings and Friday evenings are meeting with splendid response, enabling us, as they do, to convey the Message of Bahá'u'lláh to seekers who find it difficult to attend the Sunday afternoon lectures in the Temple. Our desire is to utilize our new hall to the fullest possible extent, and for that reason further public meetings are being planned.

Once each month an inter-racial amity meeting is held. In furtherance of the spirit of amity, a delightful dinner was given at the home of one of the believers, at which forty-two friends were present. The spontaneity of the love and happiness manifested on this occasion will long be remembered. Because of the results of this gathering, which are now becoming apparent, other amity dinners are being planned.

Our Sunday School is filling an important place in the development of the Cause in this city. Under the guidance of Mrs. Maria Joas and her daughter, Mrs. Viola Tuttle, the attendance is rapidly growing and the children are being trained in the historical and spiritual aspects of the Cause. A new activity, the study of Esperanto, has recently been added to the Sunday School curriculum.

In addition to the public meetings, study classes each week are being conducted in the homes of believers and in the hall. It is these classes that are the means of attracting and training the many new believers who are becoming members of the Chicago Community.

A report from Chicago would hardly be complete without a word about Mr. Windust's recent pilgrimage to the Holy Land. This beloved brother, who has given so many years of service and devotion to the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, was, we feel, the true emissary of Chicago to that blessed spot, and has brought to us a vision of what it means and will in the future mean, to the world. We feel that the fulfillment of his deep desire to visit the Holy Shrines has enriched not only his life, but that of the Community as well.

WISCONSIN

Racine: We are happy to share with our Bahá'í brothers and sisters the result of four weeks of intensive teaching in our vicinity which created a great deal of interest in the Bahá'í Movement.

A series of lectures was given by Mrs. Ruth Moffett of Chicago, Illinois, which were the means of adding thirty-one new believers to our community. Realizing the importance of fellow-work, classes for study and teaching have been organized. These are well attended by large and interested groups of students.

Sunday evenings are devoted to public meetings where addresses on the Bahá'í Cause are given by visiting teachers. Among the recent guest speakers were Mr. Robert Lee Moffett, Dr. Zia Bagdadi, Mr. Benjamin Shapiro, Mrs. Sarah Walrath, Miss Sophie Leeding and Mr. Albert R. Windust, all of Chicago. Mr. Windust having just returned from the Holy Land, brought to us a clearer vision of the greatness and wisdom of our beloved Guardian.

MINNESOTA

Saint Paul: We are pleased to inform you that the Bahá'ís of St. Paul have opened an Assembly Room at 414 Midland Trust Bldg., Number 8, East 6th Street. We have a seating capacity of seventy-five people. It is equipped with a kitchenette for "Feast" purposes.

Our program at present consists of an Esperanto Class, Advertising Lectures, a meeting for Bahá'ís to study the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and a public meeting Sunday afternoon. We lovingly solicit from other Assemblies any helpful suggestions which may be offered.

MONTANA

Wiltoned: The Wilcott family wishes to thank all the assemblies for the help rendered during the economic shortage in their vicinity. They are relieved and grateful.

ARIZONA

Phoenix: Mrs. Shahnaz Waite of Los Angeles visited our city from January 16th to February 16th, during which time she gave her twelve lessons compiled from the Bahá'í writings. We are deeply appreciative of the inspiration brought to us by this beloved teacher.

Mrs. Cimita Knowles from Portland, Oregon, and Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Ioas of San Francisco, California, also visited our Community. Such visits are tremendously helpful and stimulating and a great aid in the spread of the Cause.

CALIFORNIA

San Francisco: Mrs. Ella G. Cooper was recently asked to address a group of musicians at the home of Mrs. F. Stenberg in St. Francis Wood, and her talk on the Bahá'í Cause was received with enthusiasm. Mr. LeRoy Ioas has just returned from a trip, in the course of which he spoke on the Bahá'í Cause in Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, and Phoenix, Arizona; as a result of this several groups have accepted the Bahá'í Faith.

Bahá'í study classes such as those held by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Shaw and Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Matieson are interesting weekly events and prove continually that Bahá'í home meetings are an effective means of offering the Bahá'í teachings to attracted inquirers.

The San Francisco Extension Division of the University of California announces a course in Esperanto beginning Wednesday, March 16th.
BAHA’I NEWS

Oakland: The Oakland Assembly has conducted two study classes all during the fall and winter. The one on Friday night was arranged for the friends who wished to deepen their knowledge and understanding of the Teachings, and the Monday night class was organized as a result of the interest in the Cause aroused through a series of inter-racial amity meetings held monthly through the spring and summer. The Friday classes have also been most worth while. In addition to the two adult study classes there is a Sunday School. The theme for the Nineteen Day Feasts this spring is based on passages chosen from our Guardian’s recent document. The Assembly continues to hold one public meeting each month with a good speaker on some aspect of the Baha’i Movement.

Pasadena: Since the receipt of the recent letter from Ruhi Effendi Afshan emphasizing the importance of using the medium of the good local newspapers for bringing out the Teachings, the Editor of the Pasadena Star News has been approached by the Secretary of the Spiritual Assembly and he has graciously accorded the privilege of the use of space for five hundred words on the Baha’i Cause each week. It is the intention to send in excerpts from the teachings chosen with a view to interesting the public in a general way, and probably entitle the articles the “Loom of Reality” as this name seems to have a special application to the teachings, and may arouse interest because of its novelty. The first article will be a somewhat condensed reproduction of one which appeared in the New York World-Telegram of Saturday, February 27th.

The friends of Pasadena sincerely hope that in other cities this very helpful policy may obtain a foothold as there is no more efficient way of presenting the Cause to the public.

Los Angeles: On February 27th an interesting inter-racial amity dinner arranged by Mrs. Sarah Witt was given at the Metropolitan Club under the auspices of the Los Angeles Assembly. The American Indian, the Chinese, Japanese, Filipino and Negro were represented. Mrs. Stuart French of Pasadena acted as chairman and among the principal talks given were: “First America and Peace” by Chief Standing Bear; “World Court and Peace” by Emmet Smith; “Esperanto and World Friendship” by Joseph R. Scherer; and “The Oneness of Mankind” by Willard Hatch. Shorter talks were given by representatives of the various races. Many favorable comments were made by friends who were guests of the Baha’is and there was much rejoicing over the spirit manifested in a meeting that brought together the various races in friendship and fellowship.

NEWS OF THE CAUSE IN FOREIGN LANDS

INDIA

A real “New Era” for the Cause must have dawned in India, judging from copies of the Poona Edition of the Indian Daily Mail of Bombay, of the dates of January 24th and 26th which have just been received by the International Correspondent of the National Secretariat.

The Secretary of the Poona Spiritual Assembly, in a fine Baha’i letter, announced that he was sending copies of this newspaper which contained the advertisement of the Baha’i Book Stall in the National Hotel at Poona. This very well worded advertisement which appears in the upper corner of one of the most important pages of the paper is devoted to a statement of the Baha’i Principles headed by large type announcing “The New Era.” Below, there appears a beautiful statement of the purpose and Founder of the Baha’i Cause with a description of Dr. Esslemont’s book, and the information that catalogues of Baha’i Literature will be furnished gratis to any one applying.

A printed catalogue of the complete list of English translations with their prices quoted in Indian money has also been received, and we heartily congratulate our Indian brothers on the efficiency and initiative which they have displayed.

PALESTINE

‘Akka: Upon a request a correct translation of the Holy Koran has been sent by Yadollah Irani, Secretary of ‘Akka Assembly, to one of the friends of ‘Akka for intense study of God’s knowledge from that direction for the sake of enlightenment of the Christian seekers. A fine edition has been obtained from Ispandiar Bakh­tiari, Secretary of Karachi, India, Assembly, and brought by an Indian pilgrim to ‘Akka. It is now in the grateful hands of “Auntie Victoria,” and whosoever wishes such a Koran may note the publishers: The Koran, Translated from the Arabic by Rev. J. M. Rodwell, M. A., J. M. Dent and Sons, Ltd., E. P. Dutton and Company, New York City.

ENGLAND

London: A delightful letter from Mr. Zia’ullah Asgarzadeh of London, that faithful and devoted servant of the Cause who is the medium through which all communications are sent to the National Spiritual Assemblies of the Caucasus and Turkestan, and who will always be remembered as the donor of that marvelous silk carpet now reposing in the Foundation Hall of the Temple which was originally his gift to ‘Abdu’ll-Baha and by Him placed in the Holy Shrine of Baha’u’llah, tells of the success of the weekly meetings in Isbogbad, and also of the meetings which are held by the Baha’i women of that city. He is rejoiced, as are we, to learn of the progress of the Cause there.

Mr. Asgarzadeh also mentions a publication called “My Magazine” in the February issue of which there appears an article entitled “The Garden on Mt. Carmel.” He comments that although not quite accurate as to the history of the Cause, it gives a very good description of the Garden and of our aims.

NEWS ITEMS FROM INTERNATIONAL BUREAUS AT GENEVA

“The foundation of the Palace of Peace is the Consciousness of the ‘Oneness of Mankind.’”

Shoghi Effendi said to a believer recently in Haifa that “by ‘Oneness of Mankind’ is meant an organized unification, not mere brotherhood. It is not a humanitarian principle, it does not imply a theoretical abstract conception, but a promise that the world is going to be unified politically, socially, economically and religiously.”

The question of Iraq entering the League of Nations is being discussed in the Council of the League and in the Mandates Commission even as we write these lines. It will be remembered that one of the conditions of Iraq’s admission as member of the League was a solution, in the spirit of justice, of the question of the Baha’i property at Baghdad. We shall incorporate in our next Circular extracts from the Minutes of the next Session regarding the final decision on the matter.

We are happy to welcome to the Bureau our indefatigable worker in the Cause, Miss Martha Root, who arrived in Geneva on the 29th of January. She is attending diligently the public sessions of the Disarmament Conference. She is meeting also many people privately, and we hope will find time to give some public talks at the Bureau.

We are happy to announce that the French translation of Dr. Esslemont’s book is going to press, and soon will be ready for distribution.

On the 29th of December, Mr. Windust of Chicago, Illinois, arrived in Geneva on his way from Haifa, and we were very happy to welcome him at the Bureau. He left for Germany on the 2nd of January, where he visited friends in Weinheim and Berlin, thence proceeding to England before sailing for America.
BAHA'I NEWS

Mme. Dreyfus-Barney finds time in between the Sessions of the Disarmament Conference and her activities with the International Council of Women to pay occasional visits to the Bureau. Mme. Dreyfus is one of the Vice-Presidents of the Disarmament Committee of Women's International Organizations representing fifteen organizations with branches in fifty-six countries and a membership of forty-five million. The first week of the meeting, this Committee presented a petition to the Disarmament Conference through Mary A. Dingham, its President.

Mr. Mountford Mills is in Geneva again attending to the Baghdad question. He spoke recently at the Bureau on disarmament from the Bahá’í approach, when Martha Root was hostess.

Several inquiries about the Cause have been addressed to us by people who have read Dr. Auguste Ford’s Testament, which has been published in pamphlet form by “Edition de la Libre Pensee Internationale,” 4 rue de la Paix, Lausanne. The reference is as follows: “In 1920 I learned at Karlsruhe of the non-confessional, world religion of the Bahá’is, founded in the Orient seventy years ago by a Persian, Bahá’u’lláh. This is the real religion of ‘Social Welfare,’ without dogmas or priests, binding together all men of this small terrestrial globe of ours. I have become a Bahá’í. May this religion live and prosper for the good of humanity! This is my most ardent desire.”

Two Hebrew translations of Dr. Esslemont’s book, and one in the Portuguese language have been donated by the Guardian to the International Bureau Library.

Albania: Our friend, Mr. Reo Chapary (N. K. Luno Skendo, Tirana), writes us that he is translating some Answered Questions and the Book of Iqan into the ancient language of Squip (Albanian). Quite recently we heard that he has also begun to translate Bahá’u’lláh and the New Era. He has published a very handsome edition of the Hidden Words in the same language.

Bulgaria: Miss Jack’s enthusiastic and laudable work in Bulgaria has resulted in the establishing of a group in Sofia. There are five declared believers, all of whom are helping with the work.

Germany: From Mr. Paul Wustrow we have received a notice of a very interesting public meeting held at Berlin on the 12th of November in commemoration of Bahá’u’lláh’s birthday. The program was interesting and many outsiders were present. This is very encouraging. We hear from Herr Kitzing of Ostebad Muritz that he is preparing a compilation of biblical texts referring to this Day and especially to Bahá’u’lláh and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, as explained and elucidated by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá.

New York: Mr. Ludwig Anjer of Oslo writes that he and Miss Schubarth, the only believers in that country, meet twice a month and are working on the translation of Dr. Esslemont’s book into the Norwegian language.

Pelanda: We hear from Miss Lidia Zamenhof that she is especially happy to know that Martha Root is to be in Europe this year, and hopes to meet her and other friends in Paris where she is going to attend the Esperanto Congress.

Switzerland: Mr. Leo Bernhard of Zurich, writes that he and Mme. Vauthier meet twice a month to discuss possibilities of spreading the knowledge about the Cause. Mr. Bernhard is a new believer who came into the Cause through Dr. Ford’s Testament.

Hungary: Mr. Nicholas Erdelyi of Gyor writes us that he is translating the Bahá’í literature into Hungarian. He and Mr. George Stein are isolated believers. So far there have not been any publications in the Hungarian language excepting the pamphlet “The Dawn of the New Day.”

MRS. KEITH RANSOM-KEHLER IN NEW ZEALAND

The long hoped for visit of a Bahá’í teacher in New Zealand materialized on November 10th, 1931, in the arrival of Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler of New York. Her charming and gracious personality won the hearts of her hearers, but not more so than the “light of illumination” on her countenance as she delivered the “Most Great Message,” a light peculiar to those who have “seen the Glory.”

On the evening of her arrival Mrs. Ransom-Kehler attended a great Disarmament Meeting. This afforded an opportunity for her to meet some of the representative people of Auckland, and later to speak for the League of Nations Union at their monthly luncheon.

The next day Mrs. Ransom-Kehler met the Bahá’í Group at the home of the chairman Mrs. E. M. Axford who welcomed her on behalf of the Bahá’ís of New Zealand. In a very helpful talk Mrs. Ransom-Kehler urged the necessity for consultation, and stressed the importance of individual consecration to Bahá’í ideals and service.

Mrs. Ransom-Kehler spoke for the Theosophical Society on the evening of Sunday, November 15th, on the subject: “The Hope for the New Day.” On the 29th at the Higher Thought Temple, and Sunday, December 6th, she occupied the Unitarian Pulpit for the evening service, the subject being “The Most Great Peace.”

In furtherance of the object of her visit to this country, namely the promotion of the Bahá’í Cause, Mrs. Ransom-Kehler gave a series of six free public lectures in the Friends Meeting House, kindly lent for the purpose.

On the last Sunday of her stay she spoke from the wireless station on “The New Adventure,” a plea for peace and goodwill. To us Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler has been an inspiration and a benediction. Our faith has been strengthened, our power increased, and our vision extended and clarified. We pray that she may be permitted to return to these shores in the not distant future—the field is wide, the workers are few.

REVIEW AND PUBLICATION OF BAHÁ’Í LITERATURE BY LOCAL ASSEMBLIES

With the development of the Cause, the increased opportunity for teaching arising among local Bahá’í Communities will from time to time bring up the question of whether a Local Spiritual Assembly has the right to publish Bahá’í literature. This question, in turn, brings up the parallel question of how far the jurisdiction of a Local Spiritual Assembly involves the right of review.

In order to anticipate these and similar questions, the National Spiritual Assembly has noted in its minutes a general policy which is now brought to the attention of the believers.

By “publication” several different activities are implied. Many Local Spiritual Assemblies already issue printed programs and bulletins which contain excerpts from the literature. In this case no question arises as to the jurisdiction of the local body. Each Assembly has not only the right but also the duty and responsibility of presenting its activities to the Bahá’í Community and to the public in the most dignified and effective form.

Similarly, a Local Spiritual Assembly is responsible for the accuracy of the teachings as presented by members of its Community or by visiting believers. This, in a way, corresponds to the function of review. Moreover, a Local Spiritual Assembly alone can pass upon the material furnished to the press on behalf of its Bahá’í Community.
LETTER FROM
SHOGHI EFFENDI
TO MR. ALBERT WINDUST
Haifa, Palestine.
February 28, 1932.

Dear Mr. Windust:

Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated February 7th, 1932, written on your arrival in Chicago.

The account of your trip, of the centers you have visited and the friends you have met, was very interesting. Shoghi Effendi is sure that they have enjoyed seeing you as much as you have obtained from meeting them. There is always a mutual give and take in such visits and commerce of love. How much Shoghi Effendi hopes that other pilgrims would do the same! The service rendered is far beyond what we can estimate at the time.

Shoghi Effendi was especially glad to hear of the nice re-union you had with your relatives in England. He sincerely hopes that this introduction you have given them to the Cause, will awaken their interest and induce them to study the teachings. While visiting the Shrines, Shoghi Effendi will pray for them and ask for them all divine guidance and blessings.

The Cause in England is at a standstill. It is only occasionally that someone enters the fold as a confirmed believer. They generally get interested and then drop off. The friends there are constantly writing Shoghi Effendi to ask the Baha'is who come to Haifa, to so arrange their plan as to visit England on their way home. They need assistance and the friends in America are in a position to render it.

Shoghi Effendi hopes that by now your business has taken some shape and that you do not find life so very exacting. Please convey his greetings to all the friends, especially to your daughters. Assuring you of his prayers and loving greetings.

Yours ever sincerely,

RUHI AFNAN.

Let the Guardian's instructions in Baha'i Administration make it clear that all Baha'i literature of a general character, that is, aside from programs and bulletins, are to be reviewed by a committee of the National Spiritual Assembly. This makes it evident that, as far as the review function is concerned, a Local Spiritual Assembly (apart from local teaching and publicity work) is subject to the general jurisdiction of the National Spiritual Assembly.

Still another point to be considered is whether a Local Spiritual Assembly can publish, as a pamphlet or book, any literature (such as excerpts from the recognized writings) already approved by the Reviewing Committee of the National Spiritual Assembly.

Here the policy adopted by the National Spiritual Assembly makes a distinction between publishing for sale and publishing as free literature. According to this policy, the publishing of Baha'i literature for sale is vested solely in the Publishing Committee appointed by the National Spiritual Assembly, as otherwise it would be impossible to develop one well-organized, responsible and efficient national publishing activity.

On the other hand, if it is a matter of a Local Spiritual Assembly publishing a pamphlet for free distribution, as part of its teaching activity, the National Spiritual Assembly feels that this is permitted by Baha'i administrative principles, provided that the material so published has already been approved by the National Reviewing Committee. To sum up the attitude of the National Spiritual Assembly, Local Spiritual Assemblies are requested, for the sake of the well being and orderly progress of the Cause in the United States and Canada, to observe this policy. Aside from evident causes, like programs, a Local Spiritual Assembly has no right of review or publication of Baha'i literature except in the one case that it may issue, as free literature, printed leaflets and pamphlets containing material already in its entirety, approved by the National Reviewing Committee and subsequently confirmed by action of the National Spiritual Assembly. The members of the National Spiritual Assembly sincerely hope that this policy will be universal and applicable to all Baha'i Communities, as a just and reasonable attitude based upon the Guardian's instructions.

Visit to the Baha'i centers testify to the deep impression you have made upon the believers. I will from the depth of my heart supplicate for you and your daughters, the Almighty's richest blessings.

Your true brother,

SHOGHI

LETTER FROM
SHOGHI EFFENDI TO
MR. AND MRS. HARLAN OBER
Haifa, Palestine.
February 2, 1932.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Ober:

Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated January 22nd, 1932. You inquired concerning the Huquq. Shoghi Effendi would much prefer if the friends in America concentrate their financial resources towards the completion of the Temple, rather than dissipate their energy along the channels that do not as yet call for immediate attention. When the time comes that the Cause would need the enforcement of this religious donation Shoghi Effendi would say it and would set forth, the amount prescribed. It is only gradually that the teachings of Baha'u'llah can be enforced. The time has to become ripe if the desired result is to be obtained.

Concerning the number of Baha'is throughout the world. This is a very difficult question to answer. Shoghi Effendi has been trying hard to obtain even an approximate figure but without result. This is true especially in Persia where besides the large number of the friends who are declared believers, there are innumerable souls who for some reason or other prefer to keep their faith a secret.

Orientalists who wrote many years ago gave the figure as two million. Sir Denison Ross in an article published last year in the London Times said that over one-half of the educated people of Persia are Baha'is. All these, however, are personal impressions, the best thing is to say that we do not know. Shoghi Effendi hopes that before long the friends in Persia would send him an approximate figure, but he does not know when that will be, for he has been waiting for this figure ever since he took up the reins of the administration.

In closing may I assure you of Shoghi Effendi's prayers and best wishes for the services you are rendering the Cause.

Yours very sincerely,

RUHI AFNAN.

Dear and Precious co-workers:

I wish you to urge the friends, far and near, to concentrate their energy, attention and resources on the immediate needs and requirements of the Temple. Everything else, except the Teaching work, must be sub-ordinated to this pressing issue, this high enterprise, this noble ideal. I will continue to pray at the Shrine of Bahá'u'lláh for the success of your unspiring efforts, and wish to assure you in person of my great love and appreciation of your many past and present services to our beloved Faith.
Your true brother,
SHOGHIL.

CONCERNING GREEN ACRE

At last Green Acre plans for the coming Summer are forming and the prosp pect looks well for a constructive season.
Mrs. Valentine has taken over the Inn,
Tea House and cottages and will care for all who can be there with the same cooporative spirit as in the past two years.
The dates for opening have not yet been set but at the Convention more details will be available.

In the effort to follow the Guardian's instructions of January 9th, 1932 to the National Spiritual Assembly that "Green Acre is to be developed into a center where teachers are created to go out into the field as able servants" there will be held at Fellowship House a Teacher's School conducted by a faculty Committee composed of well known teachers in the Cause.

In spite of depression and hard times we hope the friends will make every effort to spend at least part of their vacation in Green Acre.

IN MEMORIAM

Robert J. Edgar, member of the Phoe nix Assembly, passed on to the "Abhá, Kingdom on February 13th, 1932. He will be greatly missed by all who knew him because of his beautiful and illuminated character. Always a seeker after knowledge, Robert attended Orcella Rexford's classes and thus became acquainted with the Bahá'í Teachings. The Bahá'í service was the first one in Phoenix and very beautiful and impressive to all those who attended.

Our dear brother is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. R. J.
Edgar, and two brothers, Earl and Everett.

A young daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Kendricks, new believers of Hinsdale,
New Hampshire, has ascended to the Kingdom.

To its many readers, The extends to the bereaved felt sympathy.

SYRIA

Beirut: We supplicate for the success of the wonderful and lofty Plan initiated by the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of America. We all pray to the Almighty Father, and to the Threshold of Bahá'u'lláh, that we may prove worthy to behold that great day in all its splendor and glory. This enterprise of ours is a great one, a divinely supported one, an age-marking and epoch-making one! It is a command of Bahá'u'lláh, and that is sufficient to make the Bahá'í world rally to its wafted banner! We hope to make our contribution, although insignificant it may be, very soon. Our beloved Guardi an tells us of the Promised Day at hand.
Let us march on courageously and unselishly, trusting in His supreme guidance!

SWITZERLAND

Geneva: Now about the Plan—you know that we are very poor in Geneva and our little incomes must carry us along with the work here, but your energy is certainly worthy of a great attempt, so we are going to try and save our pennies. The "mite" will certainly be small, but it will be a help.

ENGLAND

London: That vast and poverty ridden greatest city in the world is giving its blessed "mite" to the Mother Temple of Wilmette. Although the friends of God just manage to pay the rent for their headquarters which the Guardian recommends, ye are able to put aside a sum for the Holy Structure of Nations. Isabel Slade, beloved Treasurer, writes that as soon as she is able to she will buy a ten pound draft for the collected contribution for the Temple from London Community. This is great news and a sign of the workings of the Divine Plan through the New Plan. Verify this is a glorious beginning, and poverty is no object, for the Lord provides. He turneth stones into jewel and poverty into riches! We are thrilled with the accounts of the Temple. It will be as the Master said, the cause of a great blessing to the Movement. Progress is slow here and we have no great increase in numbers, but the seed is being sown and we must not expect to see the harvest at once.

ILLINOIS

Springfield: Hurrah! Our plan for Springfield, Illinois Bahá'ís is 100 percent. Each of the believers (14) is pledging a regular sum each month, beginning January, 1932. That brings the total to $14.85. Some of us who can spare more at times will just add to this amount.

Committee and this will be held on the evening of Friday, April 29th at six o'clock in Foundation Hall.

The delegates will assemble on Friday, April 29th, at 9:30 A. M. The sessions will be continued throughout Friday morning and afternoon; Saturday morning,afternoon and evening; Sunday morning and Sunday evening. Sunday afternoon will be devoted to a public meeting to be aranged by the Temple Program Committe at 3:30 P. M. in Foundation Hall.
The Sunday evening session will be for consultation with all believers present including both delegates and non-delegates.
The election of the National Spiritual As-ssembly is scheduled for four P. M. Friday, April 29th. Printed programs giving Convention details will be available at the Convention.
The National Secretary requests us to include in this announcement the desirability that all elected delegates who are unable to attend and hence unable to cast their ballots in the Convention, mail their ballots and other required papers to Alfred E. Lunt, Secretary, 89 State Street, Boston, Mass., or before April 15th. In case of inability to do this, ballots may be mailed after April 15th to the Secretary, care of the Evanston Hotel, Evanston,
Illinois. Ballots received after four P.
M., Friday April 29th cannot be counted.

The believers will be happy to read the cablegram recently received from our Guardian calling us to realize the spiritual advantages which these annual consults bring. The National Spiritual Assembly is certain that the coming Convention possesses a great potentiality for service to the Cause and to the world, and hopes every delegate as well as every believer will seek guidance for the evolution of far reaching plans which will promote the "Oneness of Mankind" and achieve victory in the face of the unprecedented conditions of the present hour.

TEACHER'S CONFERENCE
APRIL 28, 1932

The National Teaching Committee is planing to hold a Conference the day before the Convention. Detailed announcement will appear in the next issue of the Bahá'í News. It is hoped that the delegates and friends will all participate in this most important phase of Bahá'í work, as "teaching is one of the twin outstanding activities of the believers in America."
LETTER ADDRESSED TO THE VARIOUS NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLIES OF THE WORLD FROM THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'ÍS OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA.

The National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States and Canada greet their beloved co-workers of the National Spiritual Assemblies throughout the world, and seek from the Hand of Divine Bounty the great gift of an enduring and ever more radiant unity with you. May this unity, and the spiritual love that is inseparable from it, attain to the supreme degree residing within the Spirit of Faith, as defined by 'Abdu'l-Bahá (Bahá'í Scriptures, pp. 815, P. 447-48). The radiance and warmth of Bahá'í love, and that rare spiritual joy that ever accompanies the deepening of consciousness of the Divine Knowledge, must be our common possessions. Through the attainment of these priceless gifts the vigorous health of the Cause becomes assured, its triumphant advance confirmed, and its resistance to every attack immeasurably strengthened,—for this degree of unity is impregnable. It destroys both wavering and doubt, and converts the ignorance of uncertainty into the light of wisdom and guidance. The National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States and Canada earnestly desires for itself, attainment to this degree of oneness, so that we may work hand in hand with you in service to humanity, and the accomplishment of the noble aims recorded by Bahá'u'lláh, to which we all have steadfastly aspired.

We are informed, from time to time, recently, of the problems that have assailed the integrity of the Cause in certain countries and centers of Bahá'í life, which though minor and negligible in effect, have saddened the hearts of the true and faithful friends of God. These disturbances gravitate around that failure in vision and faith which sees in the blessed Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá a mere human document susceptible only, for proof of its validity, to the capricious and fallible judgments of men. This attitude is but a repetition of the dissensions following the execution of His Holiness, the Báb, and the departure of the Manifestation of God, HImself. Logically and consistently those who question the truth of the Will of the Master on this ground, should demand the submission of Bahá'u'lláh's Testament, Kitáb-i-'Ahd, as well as the documentary evidence relied upon by Subí Ezel to establish his spurious claim, to handwriting experts, and meanwhile, to disavow their faith in Bahá'u'lláh as well as in 'Abdu'l-Bahá, until proof satisfactory to them is adduced,—for those proofs of the succession were never treated in the manner now demanded concerning the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. The adherence of the believers to Bahá'u'lláh, as "He whom God shall manifest," and later, to 'Abdu'l-Bahá as "The Center of His Covenant," was not based upon the imaginations, or the findings of non-believing experts, but upon an inherent and understanding Faith, upon the illumination of the inner consciousness, and the recognition of the innate qualities that ever differentiate the genuine from the counterfeit.

Notwithstanding the bounty that this great instrument confers upon all humanity, certain souls have arisen to weaken and, if possible, destroy one of its greatest bestowals, the institution of the Guardianship. The rock of test upon which these souls have cast themselves, is the divine law of consultation and obedience to its considered decisions. Consultation in turn, implies detachment from (insistence upon) individual opinion. Unwillingness to accept the results of consultation of the duly elected administrative bodies, we believe, is the real basis of this agitation. It is the reappearance of the disorganized forces, composed of those whose faith is too weak to allow them to yield their opinions to the collective opinion), which have appeared at the dawn of every great religious cycle, to breed schism and compromise. These forces, at the present time, utterly disregard the divine bounty which, in this age, is intended to safeguard the divine Cause from autocracy and tyranny through the institution of the electoral franchise in each individual believer. They are impatient and do not care to await the gradual evolution of this unprecedented addition to the previously ordained religious foundations of the past. This is manifest blindness, for it supports a kind of freedom contrary to the Tablet of Bahá'u'lláh. They do not apparently realize that every reasonable right of individual initiative has been preserved, and a balanced order established. May these souls reconsider and witness the real divine purpose hidden and manifest in the

BUILDING BAHÁ’Í CHARACTER

Are We Equal to Our Task?

The thought that is uppermost in our hearts is the building of the Mashriqu’l-Adhkár—the Bahá’í Temple. To that thought let us add also the building of Bahá’í Character. Without the strength of the one the other can never be fully realized in all its beauty.

The architect’s plan for this beautiful edifice is clearly and perfectly defined. There is symmetry and harmony in every line, and by following the plan accurately, we know what we are producing.

How about ourselves? What kind of character are we producing? What are we trying to produce? Evidently this is our task as a religious movement, as a religious agency. For are we not the agents and disciples of Bahá’u’lláh? As such we are called upon to serve many purposes, but the building of Bahá’í character is fundamental to them all.

The fact is that Bahá’í character is a perfectly definite type. The plan has been given by Bahá’u’lláh. While it does not reduce all persons to the same level of lifeless sameness, its outstanding marks, its dominating spirit, are the same for all.

Do we know as much about the spiritual plan for the building of Bahá’í character as we do about the architectural plan of our Mashriqu’l-Adhkár? Do we know enough about this character because of the way we are living to be able to reproduce it? This is our first great business; the completion of the Temple will naturally follow. We must think this question through until we have an answer as clear and definite as the architectural plan. We must think this question through until we have an answer as personal and definite as the individual who is to be influenced by what we are and by what we are doing as followers of the Bahá’í Faith.

We are all aware that nothing but the power of the Holy Spirit is able to create Bahá’í character so necessary to meet the test of the days that lie ahead. A few years back the followers of Bahá’u’lláh supplicated the Master to grant them the privilege of building a Mashriqu’l-Adhkár in America. We all know the answer and are familiar with the many Tablets in which ‘Abdu’l-Bahá pointed out the blessings and benefits that would accrue to all mankind when it was completed. But he also pointed out that during the interim great self-sacrifice had to be made and ceaseless effort exercised to attain to the “Standard” set before us is the building of a living temple to our God.

In passing might we not say that our temptation has been to depend too much on the beautiful promises to secure results, and too often fail utterly to hold ourselves solemnly to the requirement that brings about the result that is reached only by uniting effort!

In the dome of the Mashriqu’l-Adhkár there is to be a beacon light that will illuminate the country for many miles around. In the heart of Bahá’í character Bahá’u’lláh has placed a light that is far more permeating. When we move about in this light we become the real soldiers of light, fighting against the forces of darkness. Our Supreme Commander is Bahá’u’lláh; from the heights of Glory He is directing us. To the degree of our attraction and exultation will the searchlight of Truth penetrate our being; and little by little the darkness of self will vanish.

Self is effaced, every longing, every ambition, every plan that is not loved by God is given up completely to the “Will of God.”

Bahá’í character means the willingness to sacrifice everything and submit ourselves entirely to expressions of real obedience to Bahá’u’lláh and absolute readiness to follow through and perform whatever we are called upon to do in the Cause of God.

LETTER FROM SHOGHI EFFENDI TO THE WASHINGTON ASSEMBLY

Haifa, Palestine, February 20, 1932.

Dear Mr. McDaniel:

Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated Dec. 8th, 1931. You mention the need of the Cause for capable and enlightened souls who would arise and help the promotion of our beloved Faith and the carrying through of its divine plans. This has been for long the earnest prayer of Shoghi Effendi but for some reason or other it does not seem to be realized. It may be because we have failed to do our best, in living the life, and promoting the spread of the Message to the best of our ability. We have first to create the material with which we have to work and then hope to succeed. In the Bayán the Báb says that every religion of the past was fit to become universal. The only reason why they fail to attain that mark was the incompetence of their followers. He then proceeds to give a definite promise that this would not be the fate of the revelation of “Him whom God would make manifest,” that it will become universal and include all the people of the world. This shows that we will ultimately succeed. But could we... not through our shortcomings, failures to sacrifice and reluctance to concentrate our efforts in spreading the Cause, retard the realization of that ideal. And what would that mean? It shall mean that we will be held responsible before God, that the race will remain longer in its state of waywardness, that wars would not be so soon averted, that human suffering will last longer.

Shoghi Effendi will pray that the friends of God be helped in their task, that the hand of divine mercy lead us on to victory and that we may win the good-pleasure of our Lord.

Assuring you of his loving greeting, I remain,

Yours ever sincerely,

RUHI AFNÁN.

LETTER FROM SHOGHI EFFENDI TO MRS. CORINNE TRUE

"Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated January 28, 1932, together with the enclosed photograph of the Master.

Concerning the number nine: the Bahá'ís reverence this for two reasons, first because it is considered by those who are interested in numbers as the sign of perfection. The second consideration, which is the more important one, is that it is the numerical value of the word "Bahá." (B equals 2, h equals 5, a equals 1, and there is an accent at the end of the word which also equals 1; the "a" after the "B" is not written in Persian so it does not count.) In the Semitic languages, both Arabic and Hebrew, every letter of the alphabet has a numerical value, so instead of using figures to denote numbers they used letters and compounds of letters. Thus every letter had both a literal meaning and also a numerical value. This practice is no more in use, but during the time of Bahá'u'lláh and the Báb it was quite in vogue among the educated classes, and we find it very much used in the Bayáns. As the word Bahá also stood for the number nine it could be used interchangeably with it.

Besides these two significances the number nine has no other meaning. It is, however, enough to make the Bahá'ís use it when an arbitrary number is to be chosen.

RUHI AFNÁN.

Dear and precious co-worker:

The news of the splendid results of the completion of the Temple superstructure is a source of great joy and satisfaction and greatly heartens me in my arduous work. I would urge you to do all in your power to arouse the believers, far and near, to continue in their heroic efforts for the completion of their great enterprise. You should regard it as your first and most sacred obligation to stimulate the friends to maintain, nay to raise, if possible, the already high standard of their self-sacrifice. You will thereby be ennobling and enriching the record of your manifold and unforgettable services to the Cause in that land.

Your true brother,

SHOGHI.

EXTRACT FROM LETTER FROM RUHI AFNÁN TO MR. ROY WILHELM

Haifa, Palestine,
January 29, 1932.

My dear Roy:

Many thanks for your card of Jan. 12th.

Shoghi Effendi and the rest of us are delighted as to the work that is being accomplished in America. This failure of material civilization should bring man near to spiritual matters. Working for material comfort and prosperity is becoming so useless and hopeless that we may well turn our attention more to God and the future life. The Temple also seems to be attracting so much attention and arousing so much interest in the teachings. We do hope that the friends are availing themselves of these opportunities and are really active in spreading the Message.

Shoghi Effendi and the rest of the family are well and send you their loving greetings.

Yours ever sincerely,

RUHI AFNÁN.

EULOGY OF ABU'L-QÁSIM KHURÁSÁNÍ BY SHOGHI EFFENDI

[It is with deep regret that we learn of the passing into the Realm of the Unknown, of the faithful Custodian of the Sacred Shrine of the Báb on Mt. Carmel, Abu'l-Qásim Khurásáni. He was greatly loved by ‘Abdu'l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi and recognized as an outstanding servant of the Cause. His loving devotion to the care and upkeep of the gardens surrounding the Shrine was reflected in the exquisite beauty of that Sacred Spot recognized as the most beautiful in Palestine.]

Haifa, Palestine.

Dear Mr. Lust:

Shoghi Effendi sent today a cable addressed to “Bahá'í, New York” conveying the sad news of the sudden death of our dear and beloved friend, Abu'l-Qásim Khurásáni, custodian of the international archives and caretaker of the gardens surrounding the Holy Shrine of the Báb on Mt. Carmel.

Though originally from Khurásán, Persia, he had spent most of his life in the near East, especially Egypt and Palestine. He came to Haifa at about the same time that the Master returned from Egypt, after His tour in the West. All during the history of the Cause, the friends of Khurásán have been known for the tenacity of their faith and their desire to sacrifice all in the path of God. During the war, the caretaker of the Shrine of Bahá'u'lláh in Bahji passed away, and the Master, seeing in Abu'l-Qásim the same spirit that animated the friends that came from that part of Persia, chose him as custodian of that blessed spot. With such sincerity did he serve the Shrine that the Master looked to him with great admiration. He used often to say that “when Abu'l-Qásim is in Bahji, my heart is at rest.” He was confident that that servant of His would perform his duties properly and use true love and worship in pursuing his noble task. So conscientious was he, that when the Master passed away, instead of rushing to Haifa to attend the service and partake of that wondrous honour and privilege, he remained at his post, even more vigilant than before—knowing that at such a crisis the enemies of the Cause would become even more active than before.

His fears were not wholly unwarranted, for only a few days later the violators pretending to desire to visit the Shrine of Bahá'u'lláh wrested the keys from his hands. He refrained from violence but informed Haifa immediately and remained himself on the spot to see that no object was taken away. Fortunately, the government immediately stepped in, took over the keys and placed guards to see that peace was kept. After thorough investigation on the part of the government as to the rightful successor of the Master as custodian of the Shrines—in connection with which the Will of the Master was seen and authenticated—and constant cables from all parts of the world saying that the keys should go to Shoghi Effendi, the governor in Haifa withdrew the guards, delivered the keys in person to Abu'l-Qásim and returned to our exclusive care the service and custody of our Most Sacred Shrine.

All during this period, Abu'l-Qásim showed wisdom coupled with devotion and unerring vigilance. Those were difficult days, but he performed his task in a most exemplary manner.

A few years later, Shoghi Effendi transferred him to Haifa and put the gardens surrounding the Shrine of the Báb under his care. Those who have had the privilege of visiting that beautiful spot will bear witness to the wonderful spirit of love, absolute self-abnegation, strenuous exertions and exemplary fidelity that he put in his work. He showed his devotion to the Báb and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá by making the gardens adjoining their resting place the most beautiful in the country.

When Shoghi Effendi decided to create an international archives, he chose Abú’l-Qásim as its caretaker. He tried to keep the place spotlessly clean and night after night kept watch over its precious contents.

Besides these services, he was always ready to contribute from his meagre means to the progress of the Cause. When Shoghi Effendi made an appeal to the friends to contribute to the Temple fund, he was the first in Haifa to send his share and also donate the little sacred treasures he possessed to the archives in America.

His funeral was very simple but the service was led by Shoghi Effendi. The sense that everyone of us had of losing a precious and devoted friend has undoubtedly gladdened his spirit. We are sure that in the world beyond he will receive the blessings and bounties that await every true and devoted servant of the Master. Knowing how Shoghi Effendi was attached to him and how deeply he mourned his loss, we feel a certain sense of envy. But, however much Shoghi Effendi’s affection, Abú’l-Qásim fully deserved it—he has on his record almost nineteen years of devoted service to the Shrines. Shoghi Effendi hoped to include in The Báb’s World a copy of his photograph. Maybe the friends would desire to see the face of one of the most selfless and humble servants of our Beloved Faith.

In closing may I assure you of Shoghi Effendi’s best wishes and loving prayers. Yours ever sincerely, RUHI AFTÁN.

P. S.—Shoghi Effendi would like you to publish this letter in the Bahá’í News. He wishes the friends to know something of Abú’l-Qásim Khurássání, the faithful gardener of the Shrines.

RUHI.

A DISTINGUISHED SERVANT OF HUMANITY

On the fifth of February last, a remarkable woman completed her earthly journey and ascended to her Lord—Mrs. Nora Burt Dunlap, wife of Senator Henry M. Dunlap, who for some thirty years has been a noble member of the Legislature of the State of Illinois.

Mrs. Dunlap was a member of Mr. Albert Vail’s congregation in Urbana, Illinois and became a Bahá’í while Mr. Vail was living in Urbana. She was one of the most beloved women of the State of Illinois, and spent her life in traveling throughout the State, speaking to thousands of people upon making better homes and upon scientific and spiritual education. She served high and low, rich and poor as though each one was her best friend. A leading magazine recently published a long account of her life and services. The University of Wisconsin awarded her special recognition as a “Master Homemaker.” It was while preparing to leave her home to speak at a meeting of the Urbana Bahá’í study class that the call came and her spirit was released.

Following is a quotation from the Champaign News Gazette:

“A life characterized by ‘personalized friendliness, pioneering spirit, pleasure in the beautiful, preference for home-making, public service of an unselfish sort, and pursuit of knowledge,’ was honored by state executives, Home Bureau leaders, educational organizations, and women’s clubs of many types, at the funeral service of Mrs. Henry M. Dunlap, at 2 o’clock Friday afternoon at Senator Dunlap’s "Rural Home," on the Savoy Road.

"On the bright sunshine afternoon of Lincoln’s birthday, this country home was the scene of one of the largest gatherings ever assembled at any event in this part of the community in some years. Old and young, men and women, from state administrator to farm homemaker, assembled to pay high homage to the life of a woman whose work in the last several decades stands as a high symbol of her character and her efforts.

"The house, although spacious and roomy, could not hold many of those who gathered in silence, to honor their friend, and co-worker. Expressions of sympathy in the nature of huge floral offerings banked the entire east end of the living room, there being flowers from state officials, agricultural organizations, women’s societies, the University of Illinois, and individual friends.

"Following a dignified service at the home conducted by Mr. Albert R. Vail, national Bahá’í teacher, from Evanston, and Rev. H. Clifford Northcott, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Mrs. Dunlap was laid to rest in the Dunlap family lot, in Mt. Hope Cemetery alongside the graves of her four children.”

MRS. KEITH RANSOM-KEHLER IN BURMA

Our distinguished Bahá’í teacher and the indefatigable promulgator of the Word of God, Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler of New York, came from Singapore to Rangoon according to her itinerary, on the morning of February 16, 1932. The Rangoon friends received her at the wharf and welcomed her with spiritual affection. She was the guest of Dr. ‘Abdu’l-Hákim, the President of the Bahá’í Spiritual Assembly of Rangoon.

At the decision of the friends Mrs. Ransom-Kehler left for Mandalay by the noon express on the very day of her arrival in Rangoon. After delivering instructive lectures and giving the divine Message with much success in cultural circles, in Mandalay and Maymyo, she returned to Rangoon on Wednesday, February 24th, accompanied by the well known American Bahá’í, Mrs. Schoppficher, who is touring around the world with the object of taking motion pictures of interesting places. It is understood that these pictures will enable Mrs. Schoppficher to illustrate her lectures which she intends to deliver in the United States and Canada next winter.

In Rangoon, Mrs. Ransom-Kehler delivered her first lecture on Wednesday, February 24th, at 6 P.M., at the Theosophical Society, on the subject of “Universal Brotherhood,” and her eloquent and inspiring discourse was deeply appreciated by the President, Mr. Anek Selma, B. A., and the enlightened members of the Society.

On Thursday, February 26th, Mrs. Ransom-Kehler and Mrs. Schoppficher visited the Bahá’í village Koongyangoo with a party of friends and returned to Rangoon on the same day at about six o’clock in the evening. Mrs. Ransom-Kehler, by her lively talks relating to the Bahá’í Cause infused quite a new spirit in the friends in that village, who immensely enjoyed her pleasant and highly inspiring company. Mrs. Schoppficher took some motion pictures of the Koongyangoo Bahá’ís.

Three public lectures were arranged for Mrs. Ransom-Kehler after our return from Koongyangoo, the announcement of which was duly published in the two leading papers, the Rangoon Gazette and Rangoon Times. A large number of handbills advertising her lectures were also printed and promptly circulated.

Mrs. Ransom-Kehler’s addresses delivered in the above mentioned Societies before an audience composed of men of all shades, creeds and thought, were enthusiastically received. After every lecture pertinent questions were asked and their answers by Mrs. Ransom-Kehler were received by the audience with great satisfaction. Both Mrs. S. N. Sen and Mr. B. R. Rao, who took the chair, expressed their profound appreciation of the glorious principles and teachings advocated by the Bahá’í Faith.

The reporter of the Rangoon Times, who had an interview with Mrs. Ransom-Kehler, caused an article to be published with her photograph in that newspaper.
A meeting of the Bahá’í ladies of Rangoon was held on Sunday evening, February 28th at the residence of Mr. Sya Abd’l’Hassan Shreeze where Mrs. Ransom-Kehler addressed the ladies on the Teachings of the Cause and proposed to them various measures for their spiritual advancement.

On the morning of the first of March, 1932, all the friends met at the Rangoon wharf to bid farewell to our precious and well beloved teacher, Mr. Keith Ransom-Kehler, who sailed on that day for Calcutta. We are all fervently praying at the Divine Threshold for her health and happiness as well as her success in spreading the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh throughout the world.

With high spiritual regards, your humble brother in El’Abba,

S. G. Murtaza All

LETTER FROM ORCELLA REXFORD

The Bahá’í Message was given in Miami, Florida, to about seven hundred people. It was most fortunate that Miss Fanny Knobloch of Washington, D. C. was present to take charge of the study classes which were formed as the conclusion of the lecture on the Cause. Miss Knobloch reports that the first meeting was attended in the evening by about one hundred and fifty people and the morning class by about seventy-five. The number has dwindled somewhat in the weeks that have passed, but the attendance in the evening class is averaging around seventy-five and eighty and the morning class around thirty-five and forty. All are very much delighted with her presentation of the Bahá’í Teachings and many of the students have written expressing their gratitude at having the privilege of hearing her.

The Message was presented to about one hundred people at the home of Mrs. Clayton Sedgwick Cooper, one of the leaders of society of Miami Beach, who was conducting a study class of comparative religions at her home. There was great enthusiasm shown by the audience and many inquiries received regarding literature and where further instruction could be obtained.

On March 22nd the Message was delivered in Jacksonville to an audience of four hundred. The Seminole Hotel, one of the leading hotels in the city, very kindly offered the use of the ballroom for the occasion and the management was most co-operative in assisting us to have our Bahá’í class there. Again, fortunately, a Bahá’í of many years’ experience was able to take charge of the class. Dr. Walter Guy came up from St. Augustine, a distance of forty miles, to teach the class. Dr. Guy reports there were about seventy present at the first class and that much enthusiasm was expressed. The meetings continue at the Seminole Hotel and it is hoped that a center will be established in Jacksonville in the future as the outcome of these efforts.

We ask that the friends supplicate the Master’s blessing on the work in Florida, that it may be productive of results, and upon the dear teachers who are so earnestly striving to bring about these results.

TO THE SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLIES AND BAHÁ’Í TEACHERS OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA

The National Teaching Committee wishes to bring to your attention certain matters of vital importance in teaching work.

At a recent meeting the National Spiritual Assembly considered in detail the relation of the work of traveling teachers to the spread of the Cause and the feasibility of supplementing it effectively by the distribution of literature to progressive, broad-minded non-Bahá’ís. As a result of their discussion, the National Teaching Committee was asked to present to you the three following points:

1) The National Spiritual Assembly wishes all teachers to realize more fully the importance of instilling into the heart of the believers whose groups are visited the need of their own arising for action in teaching. It is felt that every group conceals latent teaching talent that is sorely needed in the service of the Cause and that perhaps can best be detected and encouraged by a sympathetic and experienced individual from outside the locality. It is the earnest hope of the National Spiritual Assembly that the traveling teachers will continually bear in mind this important, though perhaps less obviously conspicuous, part of their work.

2) The National Spiritual Assembly wishes to have both the traveling teachers and the Local Assemblies send to the National Teaching Committee from time to time the names of people in various places who they believe would welcome Bahá’í literature. This would include both representative people already interested in the Cause and broad and progressive types who would be responsive to our universal program. The National Spiritual Assembly believes that a careful use of literature with such a list would have excellent results in spreading information about the Cause among people whose opinion is of value, as well as introducing the teachings to some who may be personally attracted.

3) The National Spiritual Assembly wishes to urge upon both the teachers and the Local Communities the importance of having the teacher stay long enough in a place so that newly attracted individuals or groups may be established on a firm basis; and that when the work of the teacher is turned over to the local believers, the latter should carefully plan and carry out follow-up contacts that will bring to fruition the labor already expended.

In bringing these three items to the attention of the Local Assemblies and the traveling teachers, the purpose of the National Spiritual Assembly is to co-ordinate the entire teaching program by both reaching representative people of capacity through the distribution of literature and serving immediate seekers through direct teaching.

Present world problems not only make the spread of the Message of Bahá’u’lláh imperative but economic conditions within the Cause are placing the responsibility for this expansion more and more upon the individual and the Local Assembly. We, therefore, urge your community to analyze critically the effectiveness of its teaching work and to seek a new vision and impetus for the coming year through the Teachers’ Conference and the Convention.

Sincerely in the service of the Guardian,

National Teaching Committee
by Charlotte Linfoot, Western Secretary.
Mary Collison, Eastern Secretary.

TO THE BAHÁ’Í YOUTH OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA

Dear sisters and brothers:

Was there ever a more thrilling age to be alive in? The recent stupendous letter from our Guardian makes us realize this more clearly than ever. It is a challenge to us and a bounty so great that we do not comprehend it now.

Perhaps we are beginning to understand more vividly than ever before that we must arise, individually and collectively, and that it must be at once! From day to day world events are shaping with terrific speed. Shall we turn our hearts to Bahá’u’lláh, have faith, and call to the four corners of this continent the Message of salvation for the world, or shall we wait just too long and find ourselves repenting eternally for opportunities lost? With these glorious words of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá ringing in our hearts we can accomplish anything we desire! “The triumphant Hosts of the Celestial Concorce arrayed and marshalled in the Realms above stand ready and expectant to assist and assure victory to that valiant horseman who with confidence spurs on his charges into the Arena of service.”
What shall we do? Could we not hold Youth Conferences in co-operation with important organizations in each city? This idea has been enthusiastically received by leading youth groups in Montreal with the result that a mass meeting for peace, for ten thousand people, is being planned for the middle of April. Plays and pageants are another means of reaching people, liberal clubs and large public speaking classes, also. Through consultation we can evolve worthwhile plans. Will you please send us your ideas, quickly! What do you feel would bring the thought of Peace most forcefully to the greatest number of people in the quickest way?

Although we know that a world catastrophe is upon us, yet 'Abdu'l-Bahá has said: "I charge you, each one, to concentrate all thoughts of your heart on love and unity. When a thought of war comes oppose it by a stronger thought of peace, a thought of hatred must be destroyed by a more powerful thought of love." This does not mean that we can be inactive, it calls us to a greater effort than we have ever made, in these drastic times.

When we receive your suggestions for service and action we will write again telling you the consensus of opinion. Then together as one unified body throughout the country we can help set in motion a powerful force for peace. It seems as though this is a period when only through the country we can help set in motion a powerful force for peace. We are longing to hear from you all, throughout the country.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT TEACHING CONFERENCE

The Fourth later-Assembly Teaching Conference of the Southern District, in which the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, D. C. Communities participated, was held in Baltimore on Sunday, March 27th. In view of the enormous importance of the Guardian's letter on the New World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, this subject was selected as the general subject of the Conference, and different aspects of it were touched upon by various speakers. At the morning session, at which Miss Jessie Revell presided, the first speaker was Miss Doris Lohse, who discussed the Bahá'í Economic Plan and Economic Co-operation; next Mr. Howard C. Ives discussed the activity of the Bahá'í in World Reconstruction, followed by a general exchange of constructive thought. Mr. Ives presided at the afternoon session, at which the first speaker, Mrs. Pauline Hannen, gave ways and means of hastening the New World Order by obedience to the Master's injunctions to spread the Cause. Mrs. Howard C. Ives then spoke on "The Spiritual Significance of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh" after which general discussion followed.

JAPAN

This is to convey to the friends the glad news that a Bahá'í Assembly of Tokyo has been formed, and this week, March 25th, we will hold the first gathering. Now we know that the work here will take on new life and progress. Our Assembly is composed of five ladies, two of whom are American (myself and Mrs. Naganuma, who is married to a Japanese), and four men.

Yesterday we held a happy Naw-rúz gathering in Dr. R. Masujima's garden and library where we had some talks, heard the record of the Master's voice and started a work for the poor in the northern districts where they have been almost starving because of loss of crops last year, besides starting a Memorial Library of Bahá'í books to the memory of our dear brother, Mr. Susumu Aibara, who died last December leaving his daughter, one month old, and young wife. He was thirty-two years old and was working in the League of Nations' Tokyo office.

Last evening I sent a cable to our Guardian to let him know the happy news of the Assembly formation and this morning a reply has come: "Loving remembrance, Shoghi."

Our Assembly may be addressed in care of Agnes B. Alexander, 31 Nichome, Fujimicho, Kudan, Tokyo, Japan.

In his great love, your sister,

AGNES B. ALEXANDER.

“BAHÁ’U’LLÁH AND THE NEW ERA” IN BRAILLE FOR THE BLIND

Subsequent to the transcribing of the Hidden Words in Braille for the library at Bahjí, by command of the Guardian, a request has just been received from him to transcribe Bahá'u'lláh and the New Era also, if feasible. It has been found entirely feasible to do this and the work has been ordered and should be ready for delivery by July first.

The plates are being made in Los Angeles and will be the property of the National Spiritual Assembly when finished, and the intention is to order printed from them a certain number of copies which will undoubtedly be placed in circulation through the medium of the larger state Bahá'í libraries, of which there are now nineteen. The details of circulation and disposal of the books will rest entirely with Shoghi Effendi, as this matter is not one which is at present being handled by the National Publishing Committee.

To render the book in Braille will require four months and the text will make three large volumes, so that in ordering, if the friends desire to do so, they should understand that the sets of three volumes will cost $7.00. The sets which have been ordered thus far are for public circulation, but wherever the friends desire to acquire a set the orders should be placed at once, or before June first.

NELLIE S. FRENCH.

MINNESOTA

St. Paul: The St. Paul Bahá'í Spiritual Assembly, 414 Midland Trust Building, St. Paul, Minn., has been the recipient of a beautiful oil painting reproduction, of the "Paris" photograph of our beloved 'Abdu'l-Bahá, painted by the donor, Dr. Charles Frink, of the Minneapolis Bahá'ís. Dr. Frink expressed his willingness to make more of these portraits, with the idea that they might be hung in the various Public Bahá'í Assembly Rooms throughout the country.

"The only cost," he said, "to any Assembly having a public meeting place, who might wish to have a life-size, oil portrait of our beloved Teacher, would be for actual materials such as an enlarged photo copy which greatly facilitates accuracy and saves time in drawing, canvas, transportation and suitable framing; all of which should not exceed $12.00." Should any Assembly, having a public meeting place, desire to have such a portrait of the Master, it is suggested that they communicate with Dr. C. S. Frink, 24 West Grant St., Minneapolis, Minn.
ILOINOIS

Chicago: The recent outstanding activities were the Inter-Racial Amity meeting on March 25th and the Pageant presented by the Sunday School children at the last Nineteen-Day Feast on April 9th. The Inter-Racial Amity meeting was one which will long be remembered by the friends who were present, not only because of the spirit of loving fellowship manifested, but also because of the exceptionally fine program presented. Many races were represented, and each had a part in the evening's entertainment. The meeting was opened with a chant by Said Mehrem, after which Biblical references pertaining to the Message were read by Mr. J. V. Richardson. The address of the evening was given by Mrs. Ruth Moffett on "The Great New Mosaic."

The musical part of the program consisted of songs by Miss Edna Ketchum and Mrs. June Fischer, a piano solo by Miss Mame Hampton and several charming numbers by Professors Franklin Gordon, tenor, Ncanor Abela-carlo, composer and violinist, and Randolph Coreajo, pianist, members of the faculty of the Chicago Musical College.

Refreshments were served and a delightful social hour gave the friends an opportunity to strengthen the bonds of friendship.

The children called their little play the "Pageant of the Prophets," the underlying idea of which was the progression of the prophets since the time of Abraham, and the Message each brought to the world. The readings given outlining the teachings of each Manifestation were short essays prepared by the children in their Sunday School work. The Hidden Words, which struck the note for the New Day, were recited by the children individually and in unison. The third part of the Pageant beautifully brought out the Plan of Universal Action in a dialogue emphasizing the need of sacrifice and devotion for the building of the Temple. By contributing $63.91 during the last six months, these children have demonstrated that "sacrifice" is not merely a word to them, but a fact which they are actually living.

The musical part of the program was delightful. In chorus the children sang the "Song of Peace," the words of which were written by the late Jane Patten, set to music for this occasion by Nina Mattheson. A duet, "The Making of the Temple," and a violin solo, "Concerto" by Seitz, followed. This was a joyous occasion and we hope that our children will continue to live and radiate the Message of Baha'u'llah with ever increasing beauty.

NEW YORK

Yorkers: It is with a feeling of deep joy that we convey to the Baha'i News the activities which the Yorkers Center is able to report.

This past winter in Yorkers witnessed the enthusiastic awakening of a number of young people. In the last month our Assembly has received and accepted the declaration of four confirmed believers in all the requirements of voting members of the Cause, from the ages of twenty-one to forty. We now have a Tuesday afternoon study class in addition to our regular Friday night meetings. All show absolute devotion to the Nineteen-Day Feasts. At our Feast of Naw-Ruz the friends came out in spite of a very dangerous ice storm. A committee had prepared a pilau feast and there was much joy and happiness throughout the evening. The last Baha'i News was read and very enthusiastically discussed as one of the inspiring contributions to the Temple readings.

For the Feast of April 9th we have invited some of the young believers of New York City, West Englewood and Montclair to join us in a unity Feast and we hope to have Mrs. Edith Inglis sing for us and tell us some of the wonderful stories of the Master, of which she has such a rare store, as the Master was many times in the home of her beloved mother, Mrs. McGee.

FLORIDA

Miami: As a result of a unique and convincing lecture given by Orcella Rexford in Miami on March 4, 1931, a class of sincere seekers has been formed. It has been the privilege of Miss Fanay Knoblock to follow up the interest so marvelously awakened in the blessed Cause of Baha'u'llah. The first evening the class met there was an overflow attendance, many standing during the entire evening. During a four-week period of intensive teaching, the attendance was very well sustained. Some of the subjects upon which Miss Knoblock spoke were: "History of the Baha'i Cause," "Golden Rule and Comparative Religions," "Baha'i Calendar," "Taking the Message to South Africa," "A Pilgrimage to Akka" and "The Baha'i Temple."

The members of the classes were invited to join with the friends in celebrating the Naw-Ruz Feast at which Miss Knoblock spoke on "The New Year and New Dispensation."

Deeply grateful for the opportunity to spread the Cause, the friends in Miami hope that God will continue to send teachers of ability and influence to carry on the work so splendidly begun.

A WORD OF INSTRUCTION FROM THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

From time to time, requests have been received from Local Spiritual Assemblies, as well as from individuals, to apply for exemption from active military service from the respective Governments. In this connection reference has been made to "Pilgrim Notes," published in a former issue of the Baha'i News. For the information of the friends, Shoghi Effendi made it clear to the National Spiritual Assembly that he would advise us in ample time whenever he wishes to have the necessary steps taken to register our attitude towards the shedding of blood and the wanton destruction of property and lives, and that our services should only be called upon towards those activities which would alleviate suffering, such as service in ambulance corps, hospitals and convalescent homes, services which, by no means, are easy to perform, exposing the friends to utmost danger, but would not be designed to arouse the ire and ill-feeling of a war-mad populace. In truth, these services would be worthy of a Cause whose adherents and followers in the past have given to a suffering world thousands of martyrs, who have willingly and unflinchingly given their property, their lives, and their spirits towards the welfare of humanity by upholding the Faith of Baha'u'llah.

It should also be kept in mind that these "Pilgrim Notes" would not necessarily call for action, as Shoghi Effendi has repeatedly emphasized that everything he wishes to be acted upon would be sent to the National Spiritual Assembly over his own signature. We trust, therefore, the friends will rest assured that this Body is fully aware of its solemn and sacred obligations.

This does not mean, however, that the friends should not continue to make suggestions, preferably through their Local Body, but they must not, however, feel hurt if these suggestions are not at all times acted upon, but should continue to give expression to new ideas. The friends should at all times direct their thoughts, activities, and heart-felt desires into positive channels and keep away from the negative.

The greatest need at this moment is the completion of the Temple. No effort should be spared and no sacrifice could be too great to attain this end, and all communications received from our Guardian point out to us the necessity of fulfilling this obligation. We must always be reminded of Shoghi Effendi's statement—that the Cause will suffer, its prestige be impaired, should we fall short in the fulfillment of this great obligation.
Baha'i law. On their part, the organized Assemblies must ever look to the preservation, application and expansion of the indwelling holy spirit of Baha'i administration, which is loving and humble fellowship with all believers and with the people of the whole world,—free from every hint or trace of autocracy or unauthorized domination, and animated solely by the consciousness of a wise and loving service to the beloved of God. This attitude of love and servitude is, in many instances, divine healing to the disaffected.

These wavering faith and understanding, are inevitable in the growth of so great a Cause; and have always emanated from those who are unwilling to accept the implications and direct definition of the Most Great Infallibility, as stated in the Tablet of Ishragati. These people would substitute for the divine Word, "Verily, He doeth whatsoever He willeth and commandeth whatever He desireth," their words "we do what we will."

We are speaking here of the fomenters of this effort to break down the orderly processes of the Baha'i administration. Unaware of those authentic writings of 'Abdu'l-Baha, revealed long prior to His passing, which deal directly and positively with similar instances, they advance the idea that He, 'Abdu'l-Baha, could not have used the words found in the Will and Testament, wherein the wrath and indignation of God is invoked against those who deviate and turn away from the Guardian and the established representative bodies. Nevertheless, in many Tablets, the Master made mention of these things, involving identical situations, and quoted extensively from the Words of Baha'u'llah. Himself, to the same effect. These pretexts, and false interpretations are all definitely described in the Will, itself, (see p. 12 Baha'i Administration), as the means by which the Covenant of God is sought to be broken, by the stubborn and rebellious. Can it be the hope of these few leading spirits to bring adverse publicity to bear upon the Cause of God, to suit it asunder, and to destroy the unity of the people of faith? Little do these misguided ones realize what chaos would follow such a result. They are ignorant of the requirements of Divine Civilization, and of the World Order created by Baha'u'llah. Were they in the least aware of the inner realities of the Divine Unity, they would know that the Holy City, which is the Law of God, is organized in accordance with the universal requirements; that a center is found and exists in every essential organism; that the Guardianship represents and is that Center in the establishment of the Kingdom of God in this universal cycle. Defining Shoghi Effendi as the "primal branch," "the blest and sacred bough," "that shadoweth all mankind," "Abdu'l-Baha, in His Will, has established this merciful Center, an office and an identity, not only as an absolute requisite of the world-wide Baha'i organism, but also as the channel through which the blessings of Providence may continue to flow to humanity. Without this function, so divinely bestowed, no spiritual equilibrium in the world of the Kingdom could be attained, for this exquisite balance is necessary to preserve harmony and order between the otherwise conflicting forces of human will and destiny.

This third agency, hitherto lacking in the organizations of nations and peoples, from antiquity to the present hour, is the advent of the divine lineage itself into its appropriate field of the World Order, as that third or triune principle existing in every universal organic form. It is the fulfillment of the promise mentioned in the Holy Books, the establishment of the continuous divinely sanctioned office of protection to all peoples, in this cycle of the Day of God. It is a mark of permanence and eternal. Nations of the past, having fulfilled their brief cycles of glory, have crumbled and passed. Their weaknesses are found in the lack of true equilibrium in their governmental order. Monarchies and Republics alike have respectively exacted, on the one hand, the power of the individual sovereign, or on the other, the will of the people. A few nations have essayed to combine the two, even though, inevitably, one must need find subordination. But in this glorious age, when the spiritual realities must needs be unfolded, that missing vitality, vitality needed to harmonize and balance the age-long conflict,—the true supplement of that which otherwise imperfect and divided,—has been revealed and made a part of the World Order, in the institution of the Guardianship. It is the spiritual fulcrum, as it were, holding in equilibrium these two otherwise conflicting and incompatible forces or tendencies of individualism and collectivism in human society, the monarchical and republican schools of thought. This alone would amply justify the new World Order.

But the divine outpourings are not purely static. Through this Center, the emanations of love, wisdom and justice radiate as water from a full, pure and undiminished reservoir, reviving, restoring and refreshing the souls, and sustaining in full co-operation every agency of Baha'i government. Through this divine agency, the blessings of unity find their ultimate guaranty, for the door of the guidance, protection and love of God is thereby left open. In former cycles, confusion, discord and even warfare have fallen upon the believers who survived the passing of the Manifestation of God. Compromises were set up in the effort to preserve unity, and lacking access to an appointed Center, the people at times became the prey of mistrust and of the ambitious plots of wolves in sheeps' clothing, in the guise of true believers. The world was not yet ready to avail itself of or to accept an established continuity, through divine appointment, of the guardianship succession, which would protect not only from worldly compromise but from hypocritical attack. But in this "Promised Age" the matured thought of humanity sees the introduction of this new principle as the utmost bounty of God, while the prophetically minded find in it the brilliant light of God's presence, foreshadowed yet concealed in countless divine texts.

But even apart from these essentials, the authenticity of the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Baha is as clear as limpid water to any discerning eye. Only dullness of vision, and willful lack of support with His spirit, and with His inimitable, unique mode of expression, could account for failure to witness in this epoch-making document the very essence of the heart and mind of the Master, whose style none has ever been able either to imitate or emulate. As Mohammed said to the scoffers of His time, "Produce a Sura (of the Qur'an) like unto this, if ye speak truth"; so let these questioners and doubters of the validity of the Will, who ascribe its brilliant and eloquent words to mere forgery, strive to produce its peer.

With an ever-increasing realization of the sacredness and vital importance of this hour in the history of the Cause, and wholly assured that every basic principle of the divine teachings will, like the great waves of the ocean, cast every opposing element upon the shores as innocuous foam, and become firmly established in the hearts and minds of all mankind,—we inscribe ourselves as your loving and devoted brothers and sisters.

In His Path,
NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHAI'S OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA
By Alfred E. Lunt, Secretary

"O ye servants of the Merciful One!
Arise to serve the Cause of God, in such wise that cares and sorrows caused by them that have disbelieved in the Day of the Sign of God may not afflict you. At the time when the Promise was fulfilled and the Promised One made manifest, differences have appeared amongst the kindred of the earth and each people hath followed its own fancy and idle imaginings."—BAHA'U'LLAH.
Twenty-fourth Annual Convention Report

By LOUIS G. GREGORY

The Convention is always a time of festival and spiritual refreshment among the followers of the faith and they are assisted by the Unseen Powers to convey these favors to others. Each occasion has its distinct features which are woven into the history and progress of the Cause. Each unfolds treasures and capacities hidden in minds and hearts. Each calls into play the service and sacrifice which glorify man. Each involves resignation to the Divine Will which brings guidance and establishes peace. The most striking feature of this Convention was its light, contrasted with the world’s gloom.

The twenty-fourth annual Convention, opened by prayer to the Throne of Guidance and in charge of the Chairman and Secretary of the National Spiritual Assembly, an organization afterwards made permanent, was called to order in the Foundation Hall of the Mashriqu’l-Adhkár in Wilmette, Illinois, April 29th and remained in session three days. Mr. Allen McDaniel, presiding, read from the volume, Baha’i Administration and referred to the beautiful music that was rendered as having a correspondence with the Spirit of the Divine Utterances and the music overflowing our hearts. Quite feelingly he referred to the divine ideals of love and service set before us by the Master, now so nobly exemplified in the services of our Guardian. He stated that the Guardian was now trying to raise the standard of administrative efficiency and to help America realize its high destiny as revealed in the Sacred text. He hoped that deliberations might proceed in the spirit of the beautiful message of Shoghi Effendi.

The Secretary, Mr. Alfred E. Lunt, then read the latest message from Shoghi Effendi, one replete with heavenly illumination and guidance, and conveniently printed for circulation among the delegates. The title given this letter is The Golden Age of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh.

"That the Cause associated with the Name of Bahá’u’lláh feeds itself upon those hidden springs of celestial strength which no force of human personality, whatever its glamour, can replace; that its reliance is solely upon that mystic Source with which no worldly advantage, be it wealth, fame, or learning can compare; that it propagates itself by ways mysterious and utterly at variance with the standards accepted by the generality of mankind, will, if not already apparent, become increasingly manifest as it forges ahead towards fresh conquests in its struggle for the spiritual regeneration of mankind."

 Depths of assurance are in those beautiful lines. The Convention listened with deep reverence to the further reading of the message from Haifa, which unfolded the heroic days of the Cause in Persia; the great contribution to come from America; the inevitable decline of all that is born from the fleeting passions of a sordid world; the contrast of the majestic revelation of today with those revelations of the past; the fundamental unity of religion; the wisdom of the Holy Manifestations and their compassionate teaching of men; the meekness of the Divine Teacher; His disclaimers of finality; yet withal, the days’ dire need of a new revelation. Other weighty utterances shed light upon the Station of the Great Bab, or First Point of Revelation, the peerless exaltation of Bahá’u’lláh; the mighty seas of spiritual out-pouring; admonitions against political activities, bartering the faith for power, surrendering its essential ideals of lowering its standards in the hope of progress. Other sections reveal the serious harm that may come to a universal Cause by its adherents in any land, taking a political stand; a plea for solidarity among the friends; the claims upon our devotion of the beloved Temple; a feeling tribute to the Greatest Holy Leaf and the opportunity offered by the Great Fair of 1933 in Chicago, Illinois, to the American Bahá’ís to present their Temple in such a way as will challenge the admiration of the world.

The Convention expressed its gratitude by the following telegram to the Guardian: "Profoundly impressed by America’s divine destiny. Conscious incapacity for heroic task. Will unitedly press forward under Guardian’s invincible leadership in fulfillment of plan ushering in the golden age of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh."

(Signed) Bahá’i Convention.

The Convention was reminded of the cosmic range of Bahá’í activity by messages, by letter or wire, from various cities at home and abroad. Phoenix, Los Angeles, Rockford, Philadelphia, Seattle, Rodondo Beach, Geneva (Switzerland) and the National Spiritual Assembly of India and Burma, indicating the oneness of spirit which identifies distant friends, by sending loving greetings.

The Convention sent its own felicitation to Mr. Montfort Mill, praising his international services to the Cause, the Greatest Holy Leaf and the newly established Spiritual Assembly of Japan.

SECRETARY’S REPORT

The annual report of the Secretary of the National Spiritual Assembly was read by Mr. Alfred E. Lunt. It was a fine presentation of the progress of the Cause during the past year, marked by the formation of new centers and the stirring to new life of many who have been inactive; the constructive record of eleven National Spiritual Assembly meetings. It contained an eloquent tribute to The Dawn Breakers, which the friends should place in public libraries; report of the new translation of theFS; an explanation of the power of consultation and the Guardian’s ceaseless efforts in the translation of these works; the number of Spiritual Assemblies, now fifty-three; the consideration of five hundred and fifty separate matters forming subjects of consultation by the National Spiritual Assembly, a volume increasing with the growth of the Cause, the distribution of fifteen hundred copies of The Goal of the New World Order; the expansion of the Cause from nine delegates who attended the first Convention in 1909 to the present Convention with ninety-five accredited delegates, fifty-five of whom were in attendance and ending with a high note of optimism and spirituality.
GREEN ACRE

An important item of the Secretary’s report covered Green Acre, the Bahá’í Summer Colony in Maine. The former program committee has been retired and a Faculty Committee appointed in lieu thereof. The purpose of this was the wish of the National Spiritual Assembly to put into effective operation next summer the ideal of the Guardian for the study of Nabil’s Narrative and the conversion of Green Acre into a training school for the preparation of Bahá’í teachers. This is in line with the wishes of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá and His vision of a great university there in the future. To end classes for study, earnest, serious study, will be conducted, Nabil’s Narrative being used as a text book. It is hoped that the marvelous spirit revealed in this book will sweep America. It is hoped that the Guardian’s preference will bring on the part of all a ready and active response.

The report of the Secretary on motion of Mr. Harlan Ober was received with marks of appreciation and thanks.

Percentages of increase of the number of Bahá’ís in various cities were reported as follows:

Oakland, California, 15%; San Francisco, 16%; Columbus, Ohio, 18%; Berkeley, California, 20%; Peoria, Illinois, 20 or 25%; Seattle, 25%; Youngsters, New York, 30%; West Englishwood, 40%; Milwaukee, 37%; Miami, Florida, 90%; Racine, Wisconsin, 110%. Besides these, Cleveland, Ohio reported eight new believers. Thereupon the delegate from St. Paul asked if numerical gain only should be considered. He assured the Convention that St. Paul has gained 75% in quality. This sally provided laughter. Both quality and numbers mark the increase of the Cause. The former will assuredly bring the latter.

TREASURER’S REPORT

Mr. R. C. Wilhelm in presenting his report, stated that his office was consolidated action on the part of Messrs. Holley, Matthias, Miss Herklotz and himself. In reality it was a “treasurer-ist.” He referred to the day of small things when there was but a very small sun, $2,000, to purchase land which was to be the future site of the Temple. Now the work is well advanced and sums are sent in by more people than ever before. Various countries as remote as China and Japan are listed, among other givers there is a family of four generations even the little members of which are sending in their gifts. Yet at this time the contributions are only enough to pay running expenses. Once before this happened, yet a large sum was raised through consultative judgment. The Guardian and the Greatest Holy Leaf have both expressed hopes that the present Plan of Unified Action will succeed.

Mr. Holley, associate treasurer: Our economics in regulating our lives, our sacrifices, visions and co-operation, will bring results. We must raise our incomes and earnings to the place where they reflect the Divine Cause. This may save the country from a calamity that may take place. How quickly, in the crash of 1929, did the country lose the big profits it secured on foreign warfare. The thousand people whose incomes were a million or more a year, had they but realized how soon they would lose them, would doubtless have used them more largely for human relief. Unified Action is a plan with a foundation of spiritual reality. This Convention will set forces in motion which will bring spiritual victory.

Mr. Matthias, as a practical Bahá’í, presented figures to show how regular and systematic giving on the part of all the American friends on the basis of their number, will soon bring the $150,000.00 needed to complete the work on the dome. It was reported that the number of givers in Washington, D. C. has been increased from fifty to one hundred percent.

MASHRIQU’L-ADHKAR

The Temple trustees reported $350,000.00 required for the projected expenses in the completion of the Temple. The beautiful Temple model through the effort of Mr. Schopflocher and Mr. Benjamin Shapiro, was in evidence during the Convention and appealed by its beauty to the interest of the friends. It is deemed wise to complete the dome of the Temple first. This will eliminate danger to the lower section in placing the derricks, etc. The architectural concrete will be very strong to meet various meteorological conditions. The ornamentations will carry out the spirit of the architect’s design.

Mrs. True read the Master’s Tablet to the first Convention, held in 1909, when there were but nine delegates from as many centers. In this Tablet it is made clear that this is the “Mother Temple” which will give birth to many others and now is the beginning of the organization of the Kingdom. Of the sums needed for work on the dome $30,000.00 should be immediately available. Outside aid is not allowable or usable. The Temple must be erected through the sacrifices of the friends.

FEAST OF RIDVAN

This greatest of all celebrations was held in the Temple foundation, Mr. Leyroy Ioas of San Francisco presiding. After reading passages from the Book of Isin he said, “The dynamic Words of Bahá’u’lláh enable us to understand the hearts of those pioneers who were with Him in the Garden of Baghádí when He made His immortal declaration, fulfilling both ancient and modern prophecies. Realize the mental misery and spiritual anxiety that filled their hearts just prior to this declaration, how the deepest gloom was suddenly turned into joy. And today we have the letter of Shoghi Effendi, with its challenging note, revealing more of the Divine Plan of Bahá’u’lláh. Forty years after the ascension of Bahá’u’lláh we have come in greater effort and sacrifice to hear His message and to rededicate ourselves to the great task that He has laid before us.

In a short time people from all over the world will come to visit this Temple.”

Mr. Albert R. Windust read prophecies from the Bible about the appearance of the Lord of Hosts, also the words of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá about the future of Aká and Haifa, then gave a detailed description of the scenes around Aká and Haifa and a report of his pilgrimage and conversation with Shoghi Effendi. The gardens on Mt. Carmel, he said, were the most beautiful in Palestine. He described Shoghi Effendi’s charming manners, insight and great abilities as a master of detail. He wants us to be ourselves, to worship God, but not to be imitators of others. During his visit he said that Shoghi Effendi never took the head of the table, but gave that honor to the oldest pilgrim. He pours forth a stream of divine eloquence and wisdom, both intellectual and spiritual. In his presence all imaginations flee as mists before the sun’s rays. He wants the friends to avoid political positions although they may do administrative work. Bahá’u’lláh forbade His followers to take part in politics. Even voting at this time may result in serious consequences for the Cause and the believers in other lands. But the time will come in the future when all Bahá’ís will vote.

Russia sent emissaries to Persia to find out if Bahá’ís take part in politics.

The visit to Bahjí is a great event today. Its entire structure has been repaired by Shoghi Effendi. It is a great Bahá’í Archives as well as a Holy Shrine. The room in which Bahá’u’lláh received Professor Brown in 1890, has been completely restored.

The Guardian sent greetings to the believers in Europe and America, laying emphasis upon the Temple and teaching work. Mr. Windust referred to page fifty-seven of Some Answered Questions as shedding light upon the station of the Guardian. He is establishing the Kingdom of God upon Earth.

The only other speaker was Orella Rexford who displayed two sets of pictures of Palestine, ancient Christian shrines and Bahá’í shrines of today end-
SECOND DAY
A prayer read by Mrs. Harlan F. Ober began the work of the second day. Greet­ings were received from various cities and from Mrs. French, detained by illness.

TEACHING
The report of this committee was presented by Mr. Leroy Ios and justly occupied a great part of the time of the Convention. Mr. Ios said, "a new situation confronts the Cause. The progress of the Temple and the work of traveling teachers have drawn the attention of people. Local communities must show forth a mode of living which will unite all races and nations, impress and motivate people. New methods are now more effective in producing results. Recommendations as follows were made by the Teaching Conference:

1. In all assemblies individual teaching service should be encouraged. Confirmations come through service.
2. Be sure to follow up the work of traveling teachers. Nurture and protect those attracted, supply teachers in a small area.
3. Train the children. Remedy defects in education. Mrs. Gift and Miss Linfoot should be made the nucleus of a National Committee on training children.
4. Outline studies for the development of Baha'i teachers. Summer schools should function this way.
5. Traveling teachers should not scatter their seeds too widely but more deeply. Both preliminary and follow-up work should be associated with them.

This report was amplified by talks by Mrs. May Maxwell for the youth, showing strides made by the group in Montreal through their elders granting them freedom.

Mr. George Latimer who felt that too much of the teaching journey in the South, the many contacts made and the reading of a letter from the Guardian that the Message should reach every man, woman and child. The Guardian, like the Master before him, has at all times taken the keenest and liveliest interest in every phase of the Amity work and has given his blessing and confirmations in many beautiful letters written those who are active.

ELECTION
At this point the tellers reported the result of the election of the new National Spiritual Assembly as follows: Messers. McDaniel, Holley, Lunt, Wilhelm, Schop­flocher, Mrs. French, Messers. Scheffler and Leroy Ios and Mrs. Collins. With one exception the personnel of the new body is the same as that of last year.

As touching the matter of whether or not those chosen to teach should serve on committees a letter from the Guardian to Mr. Willard W. Hatch read in part as follows:

"You raise in your letter the question whether teachers should become members of different committees and assemblies. Shoghi Effendi prefers to lay no hard and fast rule on such a matter. The teachers are free to accept such posts or not. But it would be much preferable if they would keep themselves free from administrative duties and concentrate upon teaching."

SACRIFICE
Mr. Harlan Ober gave emphasis to the need of sacrifice, inspired from Nabii's Narrative. Do not think, he said, of accumulat­ing, but of what we can dispose of. Make a definite sacrifice from present resources.

Mrs. May Maxwell: In this discussion we are really addressing ourselves. The Guardian knows the resources of the American friends and that through their sacrifices the work can be done by this group of believers. May not this convention in cash and pledges raise the $30,000.00 now so urgently needed?

A'budal-Bahá once told one of the believers who was His companion to give to a poor person the only coin he possessed. He obeyed. The next day this donor of his all was taken into an enterprise which made him the richest man in Persia. Then he made himself poor by giving again. When his all was spent, he went to the bazaar and declared himself a Bahá'í. Then the enemies took him out and beheaded him. Thus he gave his all, not excepting his life. This, said A'budal-Bahá, is the standard of giving.

Friends told various ways of saving by cutting out needless expenses and saving extras. One of the stories was that of Ocella Rexford, about saving small
PUBLIC MEETING

The public meeting for teaching was held on Sunday afternoon and was one of the most brilliant and attractive ever held on such an occasion. The seating capacity of the Temple foundation was entirely taken, with standing room only, and hundreds turned away for lack of room.

Presiding was Mr. Allen B. McDaniel who read the divine utterances on the Day of God. He referred to the visit of 'Abdu'l-Bahá twenty years ago coming to spread the message of the oneness of mankind. Who warned of the danger of the great war and urged all to unite in amity and accord and bring the millennium. The universal getting together is the Divine Plan and the only one that can bring a remedy for existing ills.

Mr. Alfred Lunt spoke with deep earnestness and power on "The Spiritual Aspects of the Divine Plan." He said in part:

"We are meeting in a structure devoted to the greatest light and teachings that have ever come into the world. In the past great teachers and founders of religions have appeared and have done great service to humanity. But in this age a great teacher has arisen giving us remedies for the ills of today. This Temple is a symbol of brotherhood and oneness, joining all the races and religions together. It is one of the greatest symbols of God in all the world.

Man has strayed away from the Path of God, like a child separated from his father. God reveals Himself today to bring again the Holy Spirit, the flaming fire of His Love. Some think Him remote. But in the colorful and wonderful history of the Baha'i Movement in Persia, it is seen how the Power of the great teacher moved thousands of souls to give up life and more than life for the love of God and to remove the slaughter of warfare and the barriers between races and nations. The speaker read the inscription of 'Abdu'l-Bahá in the Bible in the London Temple. He then made clear the mystery of the resurrection as explained in the Gospel and its application to the great changes in this day. The spirit of Baha'illah is making living beings out of dead beings. He voiced the need of release from misunderstandings through connection with the Great Reality and gave eloquent expression to the power of love and sacrifice.

Mr. Horace Holley was the second speaker. He said, whenever any living organism becomes cognizant of danger it instantly recoils. This is true whether in the jungle or the State. It is the instinct of self-preservation. When a danger persists the rational mind awakens and feels the need to remove it by understanding the real nature of the attack. The human organization has been subjected to danger for many years. It is sinister and widespread. He then reviewed the great civilizations of the past, including Greece and Rome, showing how great was the culture of the one and the might of the other, yet how rapidly they were consumed by the forces of disintegration because of the lack of spiritual cohesion. Marcus Aurelius, a man of culture and vision, tried to stem the tide of dissolution in the state he ruled. But his wisdom and might were insufficient. Rome could not recover from its degradation until its emperors bowed to Christ. This held only so long as spiritual ideals were followed. Mr. Holley then spoke of the modern world, reviewing the events which led to the great upheaval of 1914, showing how the body of Europe lacked in spirit which can be supplied only by Divine Love. A true unity must be a sign of human association and not purely a regulation of material things. Both Europe and America must now turn, amidst their great difficulties, to the world of spirit and find the ingredient of love. It is necessary to bring the world of mind and heart together. 'Abdu'l-Bahá warned of the present difficulties. He compared the world to the body of a sick man, grievously in need of healing. It is a great privilege to be alive at this time. People of various races are inspired by the One Holy Spirit. Talents of inventors and workers, turned to the good. Now we turn from selfishness and death to ideals of human fellowship and peace. This meeting, whose spiritual atmosphere was blended with beautiful music and the aroma of flowers, left its divine impress upon the hearts and minds of the visitors and believers.

FINAL CONSULTATION

The evening meeting was informal. Mr. Albert R. Wendt presiding for the delegates. Visitors had the privilege of the floor. The Baha'i News, The Baha'i Magazine, Green Acre, Geyserville, Lew-Helen, Amity in the South, etc., came in for expression and consultation. The general plan for Green Acre as modified by the Guardian's instructions and wishes for Nabil's Narrative, the report of the editors of the Baha'i News; the plan of the Summer School at Lew-Helen to study Nabil's Narrative; a very interesting report from The Baha'i Magazine with the reading of fine letters of commendation from many parts of the world, the reading of a letter from Haifa, later to be published, were among the matters considered at this session.

Despite the depression, this year's Convention appeared to show an increased volume of work, a large number of delegates and visiting friends from afar and near, many signs of humanity and kindness, expressed by simplicity, to visiting friends and the happiness, peace and spiritual attraction which mark the majestic onward movement of the Cause.

Report of the Secretary of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States and Canada---1931-1932

In the general field of Baha'i activity in this western world, the past year, appeared several thrilling, enheartening and outstanding accomplishments. Undeterred by the depressing economic conditions, the believers of God in many towns and communities have displayed divine courage and a radiant faith in advancing the Cause of God.
Particularly in the middlewest, the favored region of the Temple, and on the Pacific Coast, the Baha'i cohorts have set up new frontiers in the teaching and the affirmation of many new souls who have joyfully accepted the Great Message and have enrolled in the army of Love and Peace. Almost everyone of the Baha'i communities contiguous to Chicago and Wilmette has witnessed a new birth. Baha'i communities and groups which have remained seemingly stagnant and without progress for many years, have this year arisen to great heights of devotion in the service. Our brothers and sisters in Racine, co-operating with true Baha'i fervor with the resourceful and able teaching provided by Mrs. Moffett, have held public meetings in a room opening upon a main street. Many new souls have joined that community. A leading newspaper has been most helpful in co-operation.

Milwaukee, Los Angeles, Seattle, Montreal, Pittsburgh are other Baha'i communities gleaned from the rolls, that have made substantial gains in membership. But in this report a complete survey of the whole field would be too extended. In many of the places not named here stellar activities have been carried on, which will become recorded in American Baha'i history.

Chicago, upon whose willing shoulders so much responsibility rests, in caring for the throngs of seekers who visit the Temple, has achieved a new unity and performed a truly great service this year. This is evidenced by a twenty per cent increase in enrolled believers. Chicago, the heart of our Baha'i organism, is, with heart and soul, drawing ever nearer to the sublime vision of the Master for that city. Love and unity are the keys not only to His good pleasure for that city but to every Baha'i community in the United States and Canada, which sincerely desires to accomplish its divine destiny. Action and yet more action is the fairest fruit of those two great attributes, and we may be certain that where action and accomplishment are lacking the surest proof is at hand that somewhere along the line unity and love have not found entrance into the hearts. The water may be clear but Baha'u'llah tells us that if it is also bitter with discord and personal differences it cannot quench the thirst of the weary traveller.

Equally true is it that unity and love are never found where a true regard for the great gift of consultation and obedience to its results, is not fully understood and applied by all the members of a Baha'i community. Consultation is one of the great pillars of the New World Order, a truly divine bounty to humanity. The believers of God must ever march forward, a disciplined spiritual army, with the results of true Baha'i consultation. For this divine law enables us to draw nearer to the Mind and Will of the All Glorious One, than has any means previously evolved by man, or revealed by the former Prophets. Consultation is our shining armor, our shield and buckler against the divided hosts of the world. For Baha'i consultation is kindred, open-minded, solicitous for the well-being of every soul, impregnable in its unity and power. It is the strong arm of the Administration in which every soul has a part. Obedience to its behests both purifies and glorifies the body of the Cause and this light is shed upon every sincere believer. For thus Unity is served, against which no human power can prevail. Unity is the song of the morning stars with a million voices, forth the sublime and divine Unity and Simplicity of the Lord of all men. Praise be to God, who has, in this unexampled century, laid the foundation of unity. His greatest mystery, in the hearts of His servants. Let us, this coming year, drink of this cup more deeply than ever before. No greater step can be taken to achieve oneness than in a closer study of the refinements of consultation which feeds the life-blood of the great Baha'i organism.

The fair city of New York, the City of the Covenant, has, likewise, this year, consolidated its ranks, performed a notable service in reaching out to the public, carried on a varied and attractive program of teaching continuously, and shows, too, a twenty per cent increase in its membership.

This new spirit has pervaded yet other communities and in giving these notable examples, the purpose is mainly to show the trend of events in conspicuous Baha'i centers.

The outstanding factor is the astonishing fact that in a world of gloom and doubt, whose initiative has been largely lost and beset with fear, the believers have advanced. Forgetting their personal hardships and lack of means, they have shaken off fear and now displaying traces of the unconquerable spirit of the men of Tabarsi and Zanjân, have attained these spiritual victories in their own communities. It is the same spirit, directed along the lines of giving and sacrifice, that will victoriously place upon the Temple its radiant covering within the time asked for by our beloved Guardian.

I wish there were time to tell you in detail of Keith Ransom-Kehler's beautiful and vigorous Baha'i work in Honolulu, Japan, China, Java, Australia and India. She has written us some most informative reports, and if any time is available during the sessions, all will be inspired to hear these reports read. They bring us new facts, never before known, of conditions in those countries, and particularly of the operation of the Baha'i Assemblies and groups.

I would refeer you to the Teaching Conference and reports for details of the numerous goings and comings of our teachers in this country.

Although the enrollment shows a net gain in organized Assemblies over last year, fifty-three Assemblies in all, Geneva, New York; Flint, Michigan; Burlingame, California and Dayton, Ohio, have been dropped from the list, because of various local conditions, all of which pertain to decreased membership. In some cases, the believers have moved away or death has intervened; in others at the request of the Assemblies and themselves for local administrative problems.

A year ago, at the Convention, the National Spiritual Assembly announced the receipt of the precious manuscript of The Dawn-Breakers. This unique volume with its multitude of reproductions, photographs, the priceless original Tablets of His Holiness, the Bab, and its stirring text was completed early this year and has already found distribution almost throughout the world. The preparation of this book for the printer required months of the most painstaking and ceaseless effort, to which the Publishing Committee gave its unremiring attention.

This truly great volume is bound to have a profound influence upon the western world. It is similar to the Book of Acts in the Bible, only multiplied in scope and sheer heroism to include the very flower of Persia's entire population, depicting a spiritual dynamic so tremendous as to rock the very foundations of that ancient state. And all this within the few short years of the Bab's ministry. Nowhere in human religious history can an event like this be found. One becomes breathless as one goes with Mullá Husayn into the darkened abodes and cities of cruelty and ignorance after his marvelous conversion at the hands of the Bab. And, later, as we mingle, in the consciousness of a holy reality with the starving, heroic, severed men who, at Tabarsi, discomfited so many long months the flower of the Shah's army, we witness, as it were, veritable swords of light flashing in the midst of murky darkness. What divine elixir was this these men had drunk! An elixir that severed them from the world of "I" and "thou," changing them into companions of the Supreme Concourse while yet living upon the earth. Truly, these exalted souls were the companions of the Lord, consumed with the fire of love for Him, thereby becoming an example in action, to the believers of God. They were men of action. In them, the holy mystery of the Divine Reality was unloosed.

As we read this supreme account of the dawning of the Day of God in the world, our hearts turn with gratitude and love to our beloved Guardian whose pain-taking and brilliant labors of translation and translation have alone made its perusal possible.

Another great milestone in the history of Bahá’í publications, the past year, was achieved through the printing and distribution of the Guardian’s new translation of the Kitáb-i-Íqán. This noteworthy production now brings us Bahá’í’íllah’s matchless work in a form more readily understood and appreciated by western readers. Like a powerful, flowing stream, this divine exposition of the mysteries of prophethood, and the prime reasons for their rejection by the people of every age, sweeps away the debris of the past, and builds a new and glorious hope and an assured knowledge in the hearts of men. Before its resistless logic and its all compelling knowledge, every merely human dogma is swept away. The dark superstitions and cruel prejudices of the nations and ecclesiastical orders are revealed in their true light. There is no possible answer or refutation to this divine exordium. Truly the Word of God is an immeasurable bounteous to all mankind.

It is the earnest hope of the National Spiritual Assembly that every Bahá’í Community in the United States and Canada will take two important steps in the very near future. First, place a copy of The Dawn-Breakers and the Kitáb-i-Íqán in their local public library; second, themselves read and study both these books with a new and concentrated attention, beginning now.

The National Spiritual Assembly, on behalf of every believer in the United States and Canada, wish to thank each and every member of the various National Committees of the past year, for their faithful, willing and at all times able services rendered in carrying out their manifold and arduous responsibilities. Few realize the care and attention incident to the constantly growing obligations of Bahá’í National Committees. Our Guardian has made it plain that their work is of a most important and essential character. In proportion to the increase in the work of the Committees, the National Spiritual Assembly has to face the task of the ever growing responsibility of supervision of each branch of the work, keeping in constant contact with each committee and communicating to them the new policies which are constantly being inaugurated. In the field of Bahá’í Administration, the National Committees occupy not only an important place but one which affords unrivaled opportunities for learning and applying the great administrative principles.

The National Spiritual Assembly realizes more keenly every day—and this knowledge should be in the possession of every believer—the vital and really transcendent significance of the early days of Bahá’í Administration. Only intense devotion, meditation and prayer—coupled with unity—can protect us from deviating from the sword-like and hair-like road that has been marked out for us by the Founders of the Cause, and by Shoghi Effendi. The slightest deviation today, the least compromise in principle will, history shows, become the cause of infinite suffering to succeeding generations. The world is always eager to offer its compromises, its temptations to incorporate in the pure body of Bahá’í principles the many half-truths that are at present rampant in the minds of men, to introduce some outworn dogma or suggestions that more believers will be won if we accept some former religious custom or belief. These very things, however, in the early days of Christianity, polluted and diluted the pure teachings of Christ, and caused the presentation of a distorted picture of His Divine Reality and purpose throughout the centuries. Hold fast, therefore, to the firm rope of the Manifestation. Permit no circumstance, however grievous, to lead you astray from the firm highway of the administrative order. In your local communities, follow its precepts, become enamored of consultation, learn obedience to it, and drink deeper and deeper of the cup of divine love and unity. For the administration is the body, the vehicle of the Holy Spirit. Let us learn and apply the divine mystery mentioned by the beloved Master at Green Acre, when He said—in effect—that the believers of God must show forth such love to one another that the world will marvel and say—"what manner of love is this that we witness among the Bahá’ís."

And so we say that if in any Bahá’í Community in any group of believers, conditions exist that are not conducive to this divine love of friend for friend, if personalities are clashing, if rivalry exists, if worldly ambitions are chilling the hearts,—that community must awaken to the realization that the most precious gift of God is being cast aside, that the distinguishing mark of a Bahá’í is being mingled with clay, and the Holy Cause in that place is being withheld from the souls who dwell therein. This dwindling love, this sacrifice for one another is the greatest power the Cause possesses. When these divine attributes are expressed in every act of Bahá’í Administration, that marvelous instrument becomes a mercy and a fortress to every believer, and foreshadows the new world order in shining light to all mankind. How great then, our individual responsibility.

This year the National Spiritual Assembly has gathered for eleven meetings, all in West Englewood, New Jersey and New York City, and has dealt with, in consultation, approximately something over five-hundred and fifty separate matters. Sessions usually occupy two full days and nights until about 11 p.m. Within these forty-eight hours no respite is taken—the meetings, with the exception of meals, are continuous. In the United States and Canada, an ever increasing volume of Bahá’í work pours in from the Assemblies and believers. Our Guardian has recently written that the duties and obligations of the National Spiritual Assembly in this respect will constantly increase, from now on.

We have recently distributed nearly fifteen hundred free copies of the Goal of a New World Order to a splendid list of intelligent and well known people outside the Cause all over the country. The responses from a large number of the recipients have been astonishingly cordial and appreciative. These lists were furnished by the Bahá’ís themselves from all the various centers. Through this and similar methods the Cause is winning friends and well-wishers among people of influence and capacity. Few realize the keenness with which the world without is watching the spiritual strength, fortitude and resourcefulness with which the believers are meeting the problems of the Faith, both great and small. The search-light of public opinion will before long cast its rays into every phase of Bahá’í activity. The mirrors of the hearts must become very pure so that only universal reflections will radiate; that the dynamic beams of the Orb of Truth may, from our hearts, show the world what Light really is, that the Holy Spirit is active in the world, that we are fully performing our part of the Divine Covenant.

The National Spiritual Assembly several months ago supplicated for the guidance and the advice of Shoghi Effendi, concerning the future policy of Green Acre. In this connection we sent him various data and reports covering the entire field of the work there. His reply recently received was that “Green Acre is to be developed into a center where teachers are created to go out in to the field as able servants.” Previously he told us that Green Acre should be made self-supporting and, if possible, income producing. Immediately following these instructions, the National Spiritual Assembly dissolved the former Program Committee and instituted a new Committee which we call the Green Acre Faculty Committee. Through this means, we believe we will be able to apply our Guardian's policy concerning Green Acre with a new and greater efficiency. We can never forget the Master's prophetic saying, when He stood on Mount Salvat, in Green Acre, and definitely pointed to the spot where the second Mashriqu'l-Adhkár in America would be built, and beside it, the great institution of learning. These projects, He said, were ordained matters. The new Faculty committee is the first trace of a succeeding line of trained Baha'i servants who will gradually evolve the greatly needed plan of 'Abdu'l-Baha for true Baha'i education, concerning which He revealed so many basic and stirring Tablets. We are assured the friends of God will put forth a great effort to help this first Baha'i educational institute, so that the children of this and future Baha'i generations may receive the divine blessings of studying in a school or college whose classes and courses will be based, without reservation, upon the original teachings and rules revealed by the Center of the Covenant of God.

It is now many months that we have been publishing in Baha'i News the moving appeals of Shoghi Effendi, ever increasing in power and directness, for the completion of the exterior ornamentation of this Divine Edifice. During the winter substantial and necessary interior improvements were installed, made possible by the generous gifts of the loving friends. But up to this hour, the Temple Construction Fund remains practically dormant, being just now but a little over one thousand dollars. The first Plan of Unified Action attained no successful momentum until its final year. The benefits of regular and systematic giving during the first three years were almost entirely lost. Our Guardian, however, has appointed, under the New Plan of Unified Action, a new period of three years for fulfilment. One of these years has already elapsed.

Beloved friends, no merely human power sustained the defenders of Tabarsi, or filled with terror the serried ranks of their foes. In repeated instances a little band of sixty men raising their resounding cry of "Ya Sathibu-z-Zaman" caused the flight of sixty thousand of the regular army of Persia. In the hearts of that little band remained no attachments to the things of the world. An invincible and unified will accompanied by a unity like unto that of the Supreme Concourse itself, completely dominated the minds of their earth-bound besiegers. The laws and mysteries of the heavenly realm, flowing through those pure and revered souls, paralyzed and numbed those lesser laws which govern the lives of those who are enmeshed in the miry clay of fear and cowardice. Each hour a miracle was performed, a miracle to those unable to understand the Might and Power that flows from the Pure Realm of Reality.

It is this lesson that our beloved Guardian wishes us in America to learn. He desires for us no less than the attainment of a consciousness like that possessed by the men of Tabarsi, Nayriz and Zanjan. He wishes us to step into that realm of brilliant heroism, as the Temple builders of the west. And he knows that if the tried and true believers of America and Canada bend their united wills to reflect a trace of that measure of sacrifice, the Temple can and will be completed within the fixed period. The Master told us that nothing is impossible to the possessors of pure intentions and divine determination. The unification of our collective power constitutes a divine magnet so compelling that victory hastens to its aid.

The delegates to this Convention are capable of generating a unity and a love sufficient to electrify and win the entire Baha'i body into an unquestionable flame of sacrifice and achievement. "For every hour"—Baha'u'llah said, "there is a fate." Our Guardian has signified this hour as an hour of fateful import in a world whose ramparts are progressively crumbling. He tells us we should complete the Temple while there is yet time. Will history record the vain regrets of the present body of believers as they look back from the midst of the on-coming crisis upon an uncompleted task, or will an astonished world in 1932 and 1933 pause to witness the final tap of the hammer that converts this builded symbol of the Law of God for this glad new Day, into its finished symmetry? Strange to say, there has been granted to us, unworthy as we are, the opportunity to answer, yes or no, at this hour which all the atoms of creation have longed for and awaited. Our supreme hope is that the consultation you will give this all important and pre-eminent matter, during the Convention sessions, will evolve such measures as will stream, like golden light, into the hearts and wills of every sincere believer in His Manifestation.

Annual Reports of the National Committee of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States and Canada---1931-1932

REPORT OF RACIAL AMITY COMMITTEE

The past year has been the banner year in this particular line of activity during the period since it was started. Information has come to us from over a wide area, extending from Maine to California of notable successes won by those working to establish in the world the divine ideal of human solidarity. But first of all, let us mention with deep reverence and grateful appreciation, the stimulus, encouragement, protection and mighty confirmation that have come to us from and through our beloved Guardian. With his powerful arm of assistance every difficulty has been met and successfully overcome.

The first undertaking was the Amity Conference of Portsmouth and Green Acre last August. Mr. Alfred E. Lunt, chairman, as the opening session and keynote speaker, gave the message of Baha'u'llah with a wealth of imagery and spiritual attraction. The cities represented by those who appeared upon the program were New York City, N. Y., Washington, D. C., Boston, Mass., St. Augustine, Fla., Pitsfield, N. H., Eliot, Me., Portsmouth, N. H., Cleveland, O., New Haven, Conn., Portland, Ore., and Auckland, New Zealand. Science, religion and music unfolded their treasures of enlightenment. A greater number of people of capacity than were ever attracted by a similar meeting at Green Acre came for this congress. Consultation over matters of very practical value in human relations was a valuable feature of this effort.

The Pittsburgh, Pa. Spiritual Assembly, in collaboration with the National Amity Committee, held an Amity Conference in October. The local branch of the National Urban League gave valuable assistance, as well as other welfare organizations of the city, a learned Rabbi and several liberal clergymen. The three sessions were held at the Colored Branch Y. M. C. A., at the Oakland M. E. Church and in the Auditorium of the Frick Training School. The Baha'is of that city, few in number, showed great courage in boldly upholding their principles and ideals in such a stronghold of orthodoxy. As a result of their efforts and sacrifices the fame of the Divine Cause was spread and several rare and beautiful souls became attracted to the investigation of the Cause. This applies to both races.

The New York friends planned two Amity Conferences on their program of activities for the season. The first was held in November, with two sessions, one held in the Auditorium of the Urban League in Harlem and the other at Bahá’í Center. Among the speakers were Prof. Hunsberry of Howard University, Messrs. Hubert and Allan of the Urban League, Mrs. Jesse Fawsett Harris and the chairman and the secretary of the National Amity Committee. These gatherings were notable in attracting to the Cause the flower of the colored race in Harlem.

Some years ago Shoghi Effendi wrote, asking that a white teacher and a colored teacher go South together to spread the Bahá’í Cause. His directions were specific.

“A vital necessity, a step fraught with immense possibilities for our beloved Cause,” He wrote, “May ‘Abdu’l-Bahá guide every step you take and protect and inspire you, who are his chosen, dearly beloved standard bearers in that vast continent. Teach, teach, teach and the victory, the most glorious victory is ultimately yours.”

The two inter-racial parties, the first traversing the states of Virginia, North and South Carolina and consisting of Messrs. Philip Marangella and Chauncey Northern, and the second, consisting of Mr. Willard J. McKay and Mr. Louis G. Gregory and traveling through Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky and Southern Ohio, bear testimony to the fine contacts they were able to make among people of both races, large audiences addressed, very great interest and attraction of souls and the signs of a mighty, spiritual confirmation. Shoghi Effendi has again written, expressing great approval of such efforts and urging their continuance, with follow up work. He further writes: “When one of the friends arises to spread the Cause with absolute determination and complete secession, God will confirm his efforts and guide his steps.”

WASHINGTON, D. C.

In the Nation’s Capital, some of the Bahá’ís conduct an Inter-racial Discussion Group which meets monthly. This circle they gradually widen, doing an extremely delicate and difficult task in a place where it is greatly needed. During November they arranged an inter-racial dinner at the Grace Dodge Hotel in honor of Miss Martha Root. Mrs. Mariam Haney presided and those in attendance were about eighty of the most influential people of Washington, almost any one of whom would honor an occasion and add to the dignity and beauty of a program. This effort has done much to establish the Cause in the hearts and minds of many very able people. It was a noble and generous sacrifice on the part of its sponsors and its success was a sign of great confirmation. Special music by distinguished artists was a charming feature. Members of the Amity Committee co-operated.

CALIFORNIA.

In California, the Amity Committee at the Oakland Bahá’í Assembly had a series of home meetings. The first was held at Miss Ruth Williams’, with twenty-seven present; the second, at Miss Charlotte Linfoot’s, with thirty; and a third, at the home of Mr. Paul Jones with an attendance of twenty. At the first meeting Mrs. Kathryn Frankland spoke, introducing the Bahá’í Cause to inquirers; at the second, Mr. Leroy Iosas, on the Relation of the Bahá’í Cause to Christianity; at the third, Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, on the Bahá’í Cause and Prophecy. Mrs. Kehler also gave an informal talk at the home of Miss Linfoot on the subject of the Bahá’í Faith and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá. As a result of these meetings, a class of sixteen was formed and valuable contacts have been made.

On two occasions Miss Charlotte Linfoot addressed the members of the Linden Club of Business and Professional Girls of the Young Women’s Christian Association. At the last annual Easter breakfast of this Club, the President read the Bahá’í meaning of Easter, and many of these present expressed their delight in this interpretation. She also spoke of the Bahá’í Cause to the members of the Art and Industrial Club and at the Berkeley Forum, a part of the Acorn Boys Club.

The Berkeley Bahá’ís friends planned two Amity meetings which were well attended. The first was at the home of Mrs. Bur- land with thirty present. Mrs. Holley of Visalia was the speaker. The second, at the home of Professor and Mrs. Ward, was addressed by Dr. Kandwalla of Indiana and Mrs. Ruth Williams.

LOS ANGELES.

In February, a very brilliant Amity dinner and program were successfully conducted by the Amity Committee of the Los Angeles Assembly, Mrs. Sarah L. Witt, chairman. Quoting from the report:

“The presence of a number of American Indians, dressed in their full regalia, added much color and atmosphere to the gathering.” The Leader, Chief Standing Bear, from the picture of the banquet a picturesque figure, spoke on “the first Americans and Peace.”

Representatives of China and Japan were among the speakers. The colored and white races were of course much in evidence.

Other subjects on the program were:

“The Youth; Movement in Japan.” Takeshi Haruki.

“World Court and Peace,” Emmett E. Smith.

“Esperanto and World Friendship,” Joseph R. Scherer.

“Oneness of Mankind,” Willard P. Hatch.

Remarks by other notable speakers, including a Chinese lady. Mrs. Nellie S. French presided and Mrs. G. C. Finks acted as Secretary. The musical program was a treat. A young Negro artist being among the chief attractions.

This delightful occasion ended with the “Benediction” played by its author, Mrs. Shahnaz Waite.

NEW YORK.

Perhaps the most noteworthy success of Amity since the first Convention, held in 1921, was the inter-racial banquet in New York on February 27th, an affair given in the name of the National Amity Committee in honor of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the New York Urban League. One hundred and fifty people were delightfully entertained and the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh was promoted in a most impressive way. The Bahá’ís speakers were Mrs. Louie A. Mathews and Louis G. Gregory who acted as co-chairman, followed in turn by Hooper Harris, Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford and Horace Holley. These facilitated the two great bi-racial organizations upon their fine achievements and stressed the new day of spiritual understanding, peace and brotherhood whose signs are all about us. Responses were made by Dr. W. E. Burghardt Dubois, Editor of The Crisis, William J. Schieffelin, president of the Citizens’ Union and chairman of the Trustee Board of Tuskegee Institute; Dr. John Hope, president of Atlanta University; Arthur C. Holden, president of the New York Urban League; Walter White, secretary of the N. A. C. P.; James H. Hubert, secretary of the N. Y. Urban League and speaking for the Bahá’í youth of the world, Mrs. Wanden Mathews La Farge. The way in which distinguished outside speakers eulogized the Divine Cause was most impressive and beautiful. It was an occasion of spiritual exhilaration and divine happiness. After all, perhaps the most eloquent of all the speakers was Mr. E. R. Mathews who financed the undertaking but said nothing, though so ably represented by his wife and daughter.

The musical program was equal to the other in brilliancy and charm. Saffa Kinsey, David Fontaine, “the Southern sires” a Quartett renowned in radio circles, whose voices were marvelous imitations of
REPORT OF TEMPLE TRUSTEES

The Temple Trustees have held nine meetings during the past year, beginning with their organization meeting on May 4th, 1931, following the last Annual Convention and ending with the meeting on April 28th, 1932.

During the year, steps have been taken and about $11,000 expended to complete the boiler room and the heating and ventilating equipment so as to protect the Temple structure and to provide for its use throughout the year. This work has been completed and has been in satisfactory operation during the past winter and spring months. The details of this installation of utilities and accessories are as follows:

1. Installation of feeders to transformer vault, temporary switchboard, and connection with present equipment. $3,700.00

2. Complete covering of all boilers, breeching, steam supply mains and branch lines, cold and hot water tank in basement. 1,900.00

3. Tile partitions around boiler room, with exception of elevator shaft. 1,200.00

4. Doors in partition around boiler room complete with frames and hardware. 288.35

5. Metal frames and partition around boiler room for future heating and ventilation ducts. 100.00

6. Automatic oil burner. 950.00

7. Radiator enclosures and grills. 100.00

8. Ventilating system exhausts for toilets and kitchen. 1,200.00

9. Plaster patching. 20.00

Total of original contract, $9,458.35

Seven items involving an expenditure of slightly less than $1,000.00 are involved and should be done as funds become available.

The entire extension of these utilities has been made under the general supervision of The Research Service, Inc., and the immediate direction of its Chicago representative, Mr. Benjamin B. Shapiro, to whom credit is due for the successful installation and operation of the equipment.

The Guardian has frequently urged the believers in America to concentrate on the fulfillment of the New Plan for Unified Action, and especially on the completion of the Temple.

In two recent letters, Shoghi Effendi urges the believers to sacrifice to the end that the first section of the exterior ornamentation, including the dome and ribs, may be completed by the end of the Spring of 1933. The preparation of the models and molds will take six months and an expenditure of $30,000, and the casting and erection of the sections of the ornamentation will require an additional six months and cost $120,000.

Thus our Guardian has issued to the believers in America a great challenge; to demonstrate the capacity of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh to transmute material poverty into true wealth, and worldly weakness into spiritual power.

Respectfully submitted,

TEMPLE TRUSTEES,
Mr. Allen McDaniel, Chairman
Mr. Carl Scheffler

REPORT OF BAHÁ’Í NEWS
EDITORIAL COMMITTEE

In July of 1931 the Committee entered upon its duties. The first issue of the Bahá’í News prepared by the present Committee was that for the month of July, Number 53. Since then there have been monthly issues. Numbers 53, 55, 57, 58, 59 and 60 are eight-page publications: numbers 54 and 56 are four-page Issues numbers 53 and 54 were printed by Grier Press, Inc. The other issues were printed by the Lincoln-Ringley Company. The Lincoln-Ringley Company is, we feel, giving us an exceedingly low rate and are further generous in making linotype corrections gratis. This is a most unusual concession, as there is invariably a charge for this service.

The members of the committee wish to take this opportunity of expressing their gratitude for the service they have been permitted to render.

Faithfully yours,

MRS. SARAH S. WALRATH, Chairman
Mr. ALBERT R. WINDUST

REPORT OF GREEN ACRE PROGRAM COMMITTEE

Under the existing conditions, the Program Committee cannot contemplate an elaborate program, but it hopes to elevate the general level of Green Acre activities and to give to the friends, few or many, something that will be of vital assistance in promoting the work of the Cause.

Perhaps we cannot announce the names of all the speakers until later nor can we give dates of all the lectures at this time, but we expect to broaden our field and make it compatible with the maturity of this age.

We are convinced that if we are to carry out the Guardian's wishes concerning Green Acre, we cannot use the entire land for a mere handful of Bahá'ís. We must either make Green Acre a real factor in the intellectual and spiritual life of America or confine our activities to one or two buildings, say the Fellowship House or the Tea House.

Perhaps many of the friends cannot come to Green Acre this season. Perhaps this is not the important thing. It may be necessary to open the inn to those who can afford it and to make Green Acre significant in this way.

Yours faithfully,
PROF. GLENN A. SHOOK, Chairman

REPORT OF GEYSERVILLE SUMMER SCHOOL COMMITTEE

The sessions of the Bahá'í Summer School at Geyserville, again manifested the spirit of "unity and interest" and made a deep impression upon Bahá'ís and strangers alike.

Through the loving service of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Bosch, many improvements in housing conditions were made. To those attending the Summer School, it was truly a demonstration of the statement of Bahá'u'lláh that: "The city is the home of the body, while the country is the home of the soul."

There were about one hundred and seventy-five members and guests in attendance at the annual reunion under the "Big Tree." The registration of the members during the sessions numbered ninety-nine, with an average attendance of forty-five.

The sessions were addressed by Professor William John Meredith, Dean of the Montezuma School for Boys, Mr. Leroy Joas, Mrs. Ella G. Cooper, Miss Grace Holley, Professor Ward, of the University of California, Mrs. Helen Bishop, Dr. George P. Hedley, Archaeologist and Scholar Pacific School of Religion, Mr. George Latimer, Dr. E. C. Getsinger, Mrs. James Otis Lincoln, on such subjects as: "Accord of Science and Religion," "Universal Education," "The Development of a Universal Consciousness," "The Solution of the Economic Problem," "The New Political Outlook," "The Machine Age," "The Relations between Investigation and Universal Value," "The Abolition of Racial Barriers and the Development of Latent Powers in All Peoples," "The Aspects of Christianity," a series of lectures on the Economic Plan as outlined by Bahá'u'lláh and the presentation of the educational film, "The Pyramid of Cheops."

Those who were privileged to attend the Summer School at Geyserville received both spiritual and intellectual stimulation from these varied and comprehensively presented subjects.

REPORT OF BAHÁ'Í MAGAZINE BUSINESS OFFICE

In spite of the great depression on all sides and the increasing number of letters telling of believers out of work for months and even a year, we feel the Bahá'í Magazine has held its own fairly well.

Our cash receipts have fallen off considerably because some of the friends have asked for renewal but deferring payment to a later time (a few subscribers have asked for renewal but deferring payment for teaching purposes."

Our yearly contribution from the National Spiritual Assembly last year was $3,800.00; this year we received $3,529.00, or $271.00 less than the previous year. Having returned to the National Spiritual Assembly last year most of our balance ($700.00), this left us quite uneasy some months to find funds for running expenses, but we emerged at the end of this year—through careful economy on the part of our office manager—with $15.13 less in actual running expense than last year.

We are sorry to have to report a falling off in cash receipts of $328.18, but considering world conditions we do not want to be discouraged, and we are sure that the back payments will be made up as soon as conditions improve.

It is gratifying to see that more people have availed themselves of the Bound Volumes, an increase of $182.50 and an order for three sets waiting to be filled. We also show a gain of $13.22 in Single Issues and only four less in Trial Subscriptions which shows that the Magazine is being used for teaching purposes.

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. MARGARET B. MCDANIEL, Business Manager

REPORT OF BAHÁ'Í ECONOMICS COMMITTEE

This Committee has been active for some months in collecting, arranging and rearranging, also indexing a compilation of the Words of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá on the economic question, and this compilation will be ready by the time the Convention meets. If it is possible to have this compilation multigraphed so that copies may be distributed, this will be done, but this may not be possible until after the Convention.

The National Spiritual Assembly has arranged to have put into type an article on the entire subject of "Bahá'í Economics and the Social Order," which was prepared for The Bahá'í World by the Chairman of the Committee, Mr. Lunt, and it is hoped that advance sheets of this article may be available for the Convention. It is planned to publish this article in the form of a teaching pamphlet through the Publishing Committee.

The Committee keenly appreciates the need for more exact knowledge on the part of all the friends of the universal economic remedies established by Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and we hope that in the coming year, the friends will avail themselves of every opportunity to study this urgent question which has become a world-wide problem in these times of necessity and depression, and it is also our hope that energetic measures may be introduced to spread this knowledge into the hands of the general public, especially economic leaders and those having responsibility for governmental action on this subject.

(1933) RELIGIOUS CONGRESS
COMMITTEE

This committee, appointed after the annual Convention of 1931 in Chicago, was entrusted with the responsibility of securing if possible, adequate and dignified representation during the period of whatever religious congress the authorities of the World's Fair might decide to hold during the Fair.

The Guardian, Shoghi Effendi, having been first consulted as to his wish in this matter, gave explicit instructions to your chairman in the following quotation which is taken from his personal postscript to a letter dated November 30th, 1930:

"I feel that every effort should be made to secure from the authorities their approval for the holding of a special Bahá’í session in connection with the Inter-Religious Congress, at which a paper should be read on the Cause, its purpose, teachings and activities. The American believers, and if feasible, believers from Europe, should be adequately and definitely represented. It would, I am sure, be of great value to the Cause, and if properly organized, would considerably enhance the prestige of the Cause. An international Bahá’í Congress would, on the other hand, due to manifold obstacles in our way, not produce this result. I trust and pray that the Assembly will be divinely assisted and inspired in taking the most effective preliminary measures for such a valuable and far-reaching undertaking."

SHOGHI.

With the utmost zeal and happiness the committee proceeded, through its secretary, Mrs. Maxwell, through Mr. McDaniel and through Mr. Vail, also members of this committee, to secure some definite information as to the identity of those in charge of such matters for the World's Fair Commission, and to obtain an interview in order to present our hopes and make known our purpose. After repeated efforts Mr. McDaniel was able to secure some definite information in Washington, and later Mr. Vail was accorded an interview in Chicago with Dr. Odum who was acting with authority for the proposed Religious Congress.

At the time of Mr. Vail's interview definite statements were made to the effect that the World's Fair Commission had decided that the Fair should be entirely scientific and commercial, and that all thought of a Religious Congress had been abandoned. No encouragement whatever was held out that the plan might be changed and the outlook was decidedly unfavorable. For this reason, and because further efforts were made during the summer of 1931 without any semblance of success, your chairman reported at the National Assembly meeting of October, 1931, and asked that the committee be dissolved. This action was taken by the National Spiritual Assembly.

Some months subsequent to this, through the agency of some circulated literature sent out by some organization, the name of which I no longer recall, your chairman learned that arrangements were under way for a Religious Congress in connection with the Fair after all, and although the committee had been dissolved, called the attention of the National Spiritual Assembly to this matter, urging that a new committee be appointed which should be composed of members resident in or near to Chicago so that any measures found to be desirable might be speedily set in motion. As an additional urge to the National Spiritual Assembly your chairman quoted again the text of the Guardian's letter which appears above, feeling that the tone of that letter was of such character as to almost promise the realization of our hopes. It was suggested that Mr. Holley be asked to approach Dr. Atkinson of the Carnegie Foundation and that he be asked to state our desire to participate in any kind of Religious Congress which might be held during the World's Fair.

In the National Assembly minutes of the meeting of February 12th, 1932, your chairman finds that no action was taken regarding the above suggestions and that the National Spiritual Assembly preferred to await further developments, and further, that the National Spiritual Assembly felt that it "might be very much better to hold our own meetings during that period at the Temple, together with a carefully planned Unitarian meeting at Chicago."

Your chairman desires to express her appreciation to the members of the committee who so diligently served in this capacity, at a time all of us, and in particular Mr. Vail, was stressing that there is no more definite result was the outcome. She beg to state, however, that she still entertains the hope that should any plans for a Congress materialize, that the National Spiritual Assembly will at once remember the expressed wishes of the Guardian and take steps to secure the kind of representation which he, in his wisdom, has indicated.

REPORT OF LEGAL COMMITTEE

Your Legal Committee submits the following report on matters referred to it by your body during the current Bahá’í year:

1. Approval was voted of the settlement made by the Trustees under the Temple Indenture with the Estate of the late Major Burt, whereby sums due his Estate for services rendered in his capacity of Engineer representing Bahá’í Temple Unity were agreed upon with Mrs. Burt and made payable to her in monthly payments. In this connection it may perhaps be well to record again for the information of American Bahá’ís that the Temple Trustees assumed all responsibility for contracts entered into by their legal predecessors, Bahá’í Temple Unity.

2. At the date of this writing it is necessary to record the fact that the Temple Trustees have not yet been able to reach a similar settlement with the Estate of the Temple architect, our Bahá’í brother, Mr. Louis Bourgeois, deceased. This settlement involves several conditions arising under the two contracts entered into with Mr. Bourgeois: one contract covering his services as Architect, the other related to the permission granted him to place a temporary working studio on Temple land. There is also a condition arising from a loan made to Mr. Bourgeois and secured by mortgage on his studio. We feel sure that all American Bahá’ís will appreciate the desire and active effort of the Temple Trustees to effect a final settlement of these matters in full conformity with the spirit of Bahá’í justice and with the definite legal responsibilities laid by the Indenture upon the Trustees.

3. The question of Canadian incorporation has been pending for several years. A member of the National Spiritual Assembly has been appointed to make further investigation and report recommendations to the Assembly. It is hoped that the Declaration of Trust adopted by the National Spiritual Assembly will be recorded in Canada; otherwise the solution may be found in legal incorporation by Local Assemblies in the manner already done by New York and Chicago, as reported under section 6 below.

4. Careful examination has been made of the By-Laws of the National Declaration of Trust related to the Annual Convention, with a view to possible clarification of the status of participating Local Communities, but the present By-Laws were found sufficient as statements of the Bahá’í principles involved. In this connection it might be pointed out that delegates elected to represent a Local Community which, by loss of members or otherwise, loses its status between the date of the election of delegates and the date of the Annual Convention, cannot be recognized by the National Spiritual Assembly as qualified to serve as Convention delegates. That is, all delegates must represent a Local Bahá’í Community in existence at the time the Convention is held.

5. In August, 1931, the National Spiritual Assembly adopted an amendment to Article V of the Declaration of Trust, which now reads as follows: "The central office of the Trust shall be located in such place as may be decided upon from time to time by the National Spiritual Assembly."

6. On November 12, 1931, the New York Spiritual Assembly adopted a local Declaration of Trust, afterward unanimously ratified and approved by the Baha'i Community of that City, and submitted it to the National Spiritual Assembly and also to the Guardian for approval. Your Legal Committee was requested to examine this document. An attorney obtained from Miss Alice Gremacrc, attorney, of Chicago, stating that this Local Declaration conformed to the National Declaration of Trust.

After its own independent study, the Legal Committee reported favorably to the National Spiritual Assembly. The Guardian approved the New York Declaration of Trust in a letter which is quoted hereon account of its general importance to all Local Communities. Writing through his secretary, the letter being dated December 25, 1931, the Guardian stated that: "It is surely very important to give to the Local Assemblies some legal standing, for as the Cause progresses and its adherents increase, they will be confronted with duties they cannot even imagine at present. Not only will they have to make contracts for acquiring halls for their meetings, out of present funds, but also they will be obliged to create new institutions to care for their sick, poor, and aged people. We hope that before long the Baha'i's will even afford to have schools that would provide the children the intellectual and spiritual education as prescribed in the writings of Bahai'ullah and the Master. For such duties that will naturally devolve upon the Local Assemblies there will be an increasing need for a legal standing. They will have to be considered as a legal person with the power of making binding contracts. In small centers where the friends are still few the taking of such steps is rather premature and may add to the complexity of Baha'i administration." In his own handwriting Shoghi Effendi added these words: "I am entirely in agreement with the provisions of the Declaration of Trust, endorse its principles, approve its purpose, and believe it to be eminently practicable, useful and serviceable to the interests of the Cause. It will serve as a pattern for every Baha'i Local Assembly in America and a model for every local community throughout the Baha'i world." At this date of writing, your Legal Committee has before it the text of the incorporation adopted by the Chicago Spiritual Assembly in February, 1932. The committee has not had time to make its collective report to the National Spiritual Assembly, but there seems to be no doubt of the validity and Baha'i accuracy of the Chicago incorporation.

7. An interesting situation from the point of view of your Legal Committee has arisen this year through the desire of an American believer to constitute the National Spiritual Assembly as the repository for certain papers and documents not coming under the exact classification of the Baha'i Archives. As originally stated, this desire was for the Assembly to serve passively, as custodians of the papers, that they might be preserved for the future under Baha'i auspices. Later, it appeared that certain conditions were laid down whereby the Assembly would be responsible for the specific performance of certain actions, irrespective of the authority and responsibility vested in the Assembly. The wisdom of permitting the National Spiritual Assembly to yield its freedom of acting under all circumstances solely for the interests of the Cause as a whole seemed more than doubtful, and the Assembly felt compelled to refuse to meet the request.

8. In the annual report made by your Legal Committee last year it was stated that the National Spiritual Assembly considered it preferable for Local Assemblies desiring legal status to obtain it by setting up an indenture rather than a Declaration of Trust or other form of incorporation which might confuse the Baha'i status of believers already provided for under the National incorporation. It is therefore desirable to explain in this report that the difficulty mentioned last year has been removed in the local incorporation adopted by New York and Chicago. These instruments give further emphasis to the matter of individual Baha'i status, without confusion as between the National and Local Assemblies.

9. A recommendation from one of the Local Assemblies, that the National Spiritual Assembly hereafter reserve one of the ninety-five delegates to represent the isolated believers, was referred to this Committee. The National Spiritual Assembly accepted the view of the Legal Committee that this proposed plan has no justification in any administrative teachings of the Cause.

Yours faithfully,

Mr. Horace Holley, Chairman
Mr. Allen B. McDaniel

REPORT OF PUBLICITY COMMITTEE
(BAHAI' NEWS SERVICE)

Your Publicity Committee submits the following report on activities undertaken during the current Bahai' year.

1. Articles issued. The publicity articles prepared and sent to Local Assemblies were:

June, 1931—three photographs showing Temple exterior and interior, with descriptive text. In addition to Assemblies, about one hundred sets of photographs were also sent to important newspapers and magazines in the architectural and engineering fields.

During the same month the Committee issued an article on the nine Baha'i Holy Days.

December, 1931—article on Ten New Baha'i Assemblies in America, and article on World Plan of Baha'i'ullah. The text of the "World Plan" article, adapted to the requirements of a general letter, was also issued in the form of a letter and mailed to 1,000 leading educators, economists and ministers. Ten Local Assemblies accepted the offer made by the Committee to furnish extra copies of this letter for local distribution.

March, 1932—article on the subject of the public interest aroused by the Temple; article entitled "International Baha'i Leader Describes Goal of New World Order." The latter article quoted from the Guardian's general letter of November 28, 1931, on that subject. It was prepared in view of Shoghi Effendi's expressed desire that the Baha'i's teachings on a plan for a federated world be promoted throughout the general public, but with care lest the Cause be presented as a political movement.

Special emphasis should be given to the value of the Temple publicity secured by your Supervising Engineers, the Research Service, Inc., in the form of magazine articles and technical journal advertising reprinted for wide distribution.

The Publicity Committee has also participated in the following special work, in some cases as a Committee and in other cases through individual members:

Preparation of book review material for the Kitab-i-Haq and for The Dawn-Breakers.

Distribution of 500 copies of The World Economy of Baha'i'ullah booklet to newspapers, magazines and public men.

Distribution of about 1,500 copies of Shoghi Effendi's The Goal of a New World Order booklet, with letter from the National Spiritual Assembly, to names and addresses supplied by several National Committees and by Local Assemblies. These names provide a valuable mailing list available for similar use from time to time in the future. Many appreciative acknowledgments have already been received.

Preparation of reply to unfavorable review of the Kitab-i-Iqan published in magazine The World Tomorrow for January, 1932. This reply was published in the February issue of that magazine.

Preparation of article on the Cause for Religious Editor of The New York World-Telegram issue of February 27, 1932.

Correspondence of article on the Cause for New Standard Encyclopædia.

Correspondence with Editor of Encyclopædia of the Social Sciences, requesting changes in article prepared for that Encyclopædia by a non-Bahá’í.

Statement on prophecies made by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, for a national radio talk given May 23, 1931.

Preparation of article outlining the Bahá’í teachings on inter-racial amity for a Negro weekly.

Material on the Cause and the Temple for the 1931-32 Church Directory of Vancouver, B.C.

Your Committee appreciates the deep interest and effective co-operation given by the Local Publicity Committees. The “publicity value” of the Cause has greatly increased since the construction of the Temple last spring, but it is obvious that the ground has only been prepared for the real seed sowing to come. Now is our precious opportunity to practice the lesson and perfect ourselves in the art of serving the Cause through the great mediums of newspaper, magazine and radio.

The National Publicity Committee is unable to report on the great services rendered by individual teachers and the Local Assemblies in the publicity field outside our own limited program. These services, we hope, will be brought to your attention by those who know the details.

A scrap book containing clippings was sent to the Guardian on December 5, 1932.

The following comments have been received from Shoghi Effendi since our last Annual Report: “He wishes me to congratulate you on the same, sober but interesting and appealing tone which you have given to all your writings and which he trusts will find a suitable place in the press of the country.” (April 16, 1931).

“Shoghi Effendi wishes me to express his full appreciation of the statement concerning the Temple which the Assembly is going to send out to the news agencies.” (May 6, 1931). “Shoghi Effendi read the open letters written by the Publicity Committee with great interest and he hopes that these appeals will awaken the intelligent people of that country to the importance of the teachings and their need for rehabilitating our dislocated society.” (December 25, 1931).

In view of this year’s experience, the Committee recommends that the incoming National Spiritual Assembly consider carefully the possibility of closer co-operation and consultation between the Publicity, Teaching, Amity and Publishing Committees next year. The total budget required by these National Committees can be greatly reduced if they concentrate on the production of the right teaching material, and leave more of the teaching work to the Local Assemblies. What the Cause in America seems to need most at present is a series of little printed folders (four pages each) outlining the Bahá’í attitude on Peace, Racial Amity, World Order and the Economic Problem. With this material, the problem of arranging public meetings, and doing “follow-up” work would be largely solved. In such a large territory as the United States and Canada, economy and efficiency both indicate the value of equipping every individual believer to give the Message as part of his daily life, in his own community, in contrast to the method of arranging a few public meetings a year, often involving more traveling expense than would be required for a large edition of these printed leaflets.

Yours faithfully,

Mr. ALLEN B. MC DANIEL, Chairman

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENT
(BAHÁ’I SECRETARIAT)

The work of this office for the past year has combined so wonderfully with the work of The Bahá’í World committee that it is difficult to dissociate them in this report, for frequently a letter to an individual or group, or even to the National Spiritual Assemblies has had the two purposes of conveying news and soliciting work for the next volume of The Bahá’í World. And too, one of the greatest means of promoting co-operation and unity has been through the personal contacts enjoyed through the privilege of travel.

For three successive years your international correspondent has met personally the believers in certain parts of Europe and the exchange of ideas and experience in handling the work of the Cause has proven both helpful and inspiring. During the last two periods of summer vacation England, Denmark, Germany, France, Italy, Sweden and Switzerland have been visited, and while only a few of the cities of these countries were reached, it has had a remarkable effect upon the greater understanding of the responsibilities which lie upon the shoulders of the believers in the Holy Cause.

During the past year eight circular letters have been sent to the National Spiritual Assemblies in which the important news of the Cause has been mentioned, while the ideal of establishing for their office the status of official medium for the dissemination of authoritative news of the Cause has always been borne in mind. A letter to this servant written under the direction of the Guardian by Mr. Windust while he was in Haifa, carries this instruction: “In discussing the Bahá’í News with me (I did not introduce the subject) he wished the Bahá’í News committees to receive all National Spiritual Assemblies all of the news of the Cause. He thought that as you were the Secretariat of the National Spiritual Assembly of the United States and Canada, that you should send to the Bahá’í World all information that comes to your hand, as well as all news that comes to the National Spiritual Assembly, direct to the Bahá’í News Committee. He said further, that if they withhold this information it will be of no value to the believers, therefore they should send it to the Bahá’í News so that it can be used if deemed advisable.”

This instruction is immensely valuable, and in time certain methods will evolve which will function smoothly and with no duplication. During this last year there has been some uncertainty on the part of this servant as to how much was expected of this office in summarizing the reports of the various Assemblies and Communities; whether the reports were sent direct, or whether the international correspondent was alone the recipient of the bulletins and alone responsible for the transmission of them to the Bahá’í News. As the volume of work in the various communities throughout the world increases, and the number of communities increase also, it would seem that the most efficient and more economical method of handling the news of the Cause should be the permanently established medium which should be in close co-operation with the Bahá’í News Service. This would apply more particularly to the foreign centers, and therefore would logically come within the province of the International Correspondent.

During the year copies of all printed circular matter have been forwarded at once to the National Spiritual Assemblies, and by this is meant such articles and pamphlets as The Goal of the New World Order of Bahá’u’lláh and all the data printed in connection with the construction of the Mashriq’i-Adhkar to-gather with photographs of the Convention and of the building as it now stands.

It would naturally become the sacred obligation also of this office, to inform the National Spiritual Assemblies of any destructive or adverse actions or criticism of the Cause by disaffected or negative individuals, so that the admonitions of 'Abdu'l-Bahá and the warnings of the Guardian may be closely adhered to and protection afforded to distant communities to whom damaging literature may have been circulated. Indeed contact with the different centers in Europe has proven beyond question the great need for the protection of the friends from the nefarious operations of those whom the Guardian and the National Spiritual Assembly have found to be disturbers of peace and disseminators of evil. Firmness and courage are required to deal with these situations so that they may be removed from any vestige of personal animus, and only emphasize the direct and positive laws of administration in the most dignified and helpful way. Had such wise methods been employed earlier, much of the confusion which it has taken nearly two years to undo might have been avoided. We are only beginning to glimpse the beauty and perfection of the system which must ultimately become the perfectly functioning medium for circulating general information.

As soon as it became evident to this servant that the news was to be distributed in this way, and that co-operation with the Bahá'í News to the fullest extent was essential, every effort has been made to qualify in this capacity and regular news items have been sent in for use in the Bahá'í News at the discretion of the Editorial Committee.

Many personal letters have been received, all of which have been promptly answered and every request for literature or information has received the most careful attention. Isolated believers, like for example, Mr. W. E. M. Grosfeld of Batavia, Dutch East Indies, or the two sons of Mirza Hosein Rubi who now reside in Salt, Transjordania, or that beautiful and devoted Miss Johanna Sorensen of Copenhagen, Denmark, are cheered and comforted by a word now and then from this office, and the hundreds of letters which went to different countries in connection with the compiling of a new address list, brought in many warm and loving words of appreciation.

A letter of grateful appreciation was sent to the friend in 'Akká who sent some pomegranates for the National Spiritual Assembly through Mrs. Bedikian, and the gratitude of the friends was also expressed to 'Abdu'l Ali Khan Mithraqi for the beautiful gifts which he sent to be sold for the Temple Fund.

One of the most delightful experiences which will forever remain indelibly impressed on the mind of this servant was a personal interview with Mr. Zia Agharzadeh in London when he told in detail the wonderful story of the purchase and ultimate delivery of the beautiful silk rug which now adorns the Temple, to 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and the placing of it in the Holy Shrine of Bahá'u'lláh at Bahji. While this narrative may never be available in its entirety to the believers, because of the delicate political circumstances which it involves it is hoped that some portions of the remarkable story may be preserved through the medium of The Bahá'í World.

The acquaintance formed with the group of young Bahá'í students from Persia who had gathered in Paris last summer for the purpose of forming an Oriental Bahá'í Students Union for the mutual comfort and assistance of the young students who find themselves suddenly transferred into strange and somewhat alien surroundings, was helpful and enlightening in the extreme. The hope was expressed at that time that this servant should do all in her power to assist in the establishment of some such students' organization in this country, but the work has come to standstill after its having been urged through the medium of the Bahá'í News.

Only very few letters have been received from non-Bahá'ís, in fact none of importance this year has reached this desk, but the editors of The Bahá'í World received a communication from Dr. Peter Ainslie of the Christian Union Quarterly which is published in Baltimore, enclosing a program for the Christian Union Conference which was to take place in Cleveland on November 17-18 to which a cordial invitation was extended. Through the very helpful suggestion of Mr. Horace Holley a letter was written to Dr. Ainslie thanking him for the invitation, and the Local Spiritual Assembly of Cleveland was asked to see that someone attended the Convention merely as a courtesy, and to show the Bahá'í willingness to co-operate. The Local Spiritual Assembly of Cleveland asked Mrs. Dale Cole to serve in this capacity, and subsequent letters from Mrs. Cole, the substance of which was given in the Bahá'í News, proved how willingly and efficiently this courtesy was extended.

So much of the work of the Cause, and of the Administration is practically pioneering in new fields and blazing new trails, that every step is of the most absorbing and vital interest, and every minute detail gives promise of greater things in the future. To grow, to expand, to step into that spiritual freedom of Bahá'u'lláh which complete and absolute obedience to the Guardian and the Administration only can procure, must be the ideal toward which to direct all our supplications, our ideals and our efforts. Here consultation with the devoted servants of the Cause becomes such a joy and inspiration that one yearns for the constant association of understanding souls such as are only to be found among the believers, those who have been fed by His generous hand and nurtured in the bosom of His faith. To serve more, and to serve more intelligently, to become completely absorbed in the execution of the Holy commands and the instructions of the Guardian, to render "instant, complete and exact obedience" this is the goal. Where wisdom and justice guide the hand and love and patience the heart—these are the needs of the humble and devoted servants of the Cause today.

Faithfully and humbly submitted by, Nellie S. French.

REPORT OF BAHÁ'Í WORLD COMMITTEE

A report of progress of the work of this committee was rendered previous to the expiration of the Bahá'í year—i. e. in March, 1931. In this report the activities of your committee and the various meetings for consultation were stated, together with the general plan of procedure which had been decided upon, and a tentative list of names of persons who might be approached and invited to write for the book.

It was decided to try to collect from those of the believers in every community where 'Abdu'l-Bahá passed some time, a short historical sketch of the beginnings of the Cause in that Community, and the circumstances which lead to the bounty of His visit.

It was further determined to divide the work of the Committee in such wise that your chairman was to solicit by correspondence or otherwise all material to be sent to the Guardian for his approval and possible acceptance. To Mrs. La Farge was delegated some special work of soliciting articles along the line of Racial Amity; to Mr. Holley was assigned the duty of making a general survey of the work of the Cause from the International standpoint, together with the generous and useful aid and suggestions which his skill and experience have so eminently enabled him to render.

To Mr. Windust was assigned the preparation of the material for the Guardian, and the passing on to the Guardian by him of all contributions to the text of the book by December first, 1931.
Pursuant with this general plan therefore, your chairman began at once an extensive correspondence to solicit articles, and also to compile a complete new list of addresses from foreign countries, as many had been changed, and some completely abandoned, so that the list of the former volume was both incomplete and incorrect. Circular letters were sent out to all National Assemblies and groups in foreign countries asking for a correct list of names and addresses of secretaries where communications should be sent. At the same time that this work was undertaken by this committee, the International Bureau at Geneva also started a campaign for the same purpose, and a subsequent comparison of results with the Secretary of the International Bureau, and an exchange of notes has placed in the hands of the Guardian for use in The Baha’i World as nearly complete and correct as it is possible to obtain. Too much cannot be said in appreciation of the splendid co-operation and generous assistance of the force of the International Bureau, and beside making this survey for the assistance of this committee, they are keeping always on file an up-to-date list of all believers in Europe so that travelers may apply to them for addresses of recognized Baha’is in all the cities where the Cause is known.

Frequent letters from the Guardian offering suggestions to be followed in the collecting of manuscripts made the work intensely interesting and vital, and the good fortune which enabled your chairman to visit Europe again last summer made it possible for her to solicit contributions from several sources which might otherwise not have been reached.

When the new issue of The Baha’i World appears it will bear evidence of the blessings which attended the work for this important volume, and to go into detail might seem superfluous, especially as all manuscripts, of which there were a great many, and all very excellent, are subject to the selection of the Guardian and will eventually appear, as he desires.

In England your chairman wrote to General Viscount Allenby asking for his impressions of his various interviews with ‘Abdu’l-Baha. General Allenby responded with the greatest courtesy, saying that he would never forget hearing ‘Abdu’l-Baha explain His Teachings. The letter of General Allenby is in the hands of the Guardian, but in the event that it is not used, it is mentioned here.

Several hours were spent with Lady Blomfield in going over her precious memoirs in which she has preserved her many and rich experiences with ‘Abdu’l-Baha both in England and in the Holy Land. Out of the wealth of material which Lady Blomfield possesses it was necessary to choose only certain parts as the entire collection was too voluminous to be used in The Baha’i World, but it is devoutly to be hoped that these writings will all be made a permanent record in the annals of the Cause, as they are choice and beautiful in the extreme.

A personal approach to Mrs. Alexander Whyte of Edinburgh also, whom your chairman had met during her visit to ‘Abdu’l-Baha in 1921, and who had entertained ‘Abdu’l-Baha in her home during his sojourn in Scotland, brought out certain important details and some personal impressions which will prove of great interest to the world in the future.

In Paris your chairman had a very interesting interview with Mme. Laura Dreyfus Barney, whom she urged to contribute something of her early experiences with the Holy Family in the very early days, and of her marvelous privilege of taking down the notes for Some Answered Questions. Incidentally Mme. Dreyfus-Barney was also urged to begin at once upon the preservation of her memoirs as she has never yet made even a beginning at setting them down. Mme. Dreyfus promised to write for the book, but the subsequent loss of her mother, and the great pressure of work for the interests which she represents undoubtedly were the cause of her failing to do so, to our great regret.

While in Switzerland your chairman received a letter from the Guardian requesting her to send a copy of the last The Baha’i World to Dr. Tagore and also to M. Privet, noted Swiss Esperantist, asking both of these gentlemen to write for the book. No reply of any kind whatever was received from Dr. Tagore, but M. Privet wrote most courteously, acknowledging the receipt of the book and of his appreciation of the Baha’i Cause. He mentioned also the great interest which was aroused by the reading of the Will of Dr. August Forel, in which he stated his belief and acceptance of the Cause. The Will was read before a large and important group of people who were deeply impressed at its contents.

To Miss Martha Root is due the beautiful letter of appreciation from Her Majesty the Queen of Roumania. This letter will appear in the book. Also Miss Root devoted many hours to a survey of her work in Europe and the Orient, and with her characteristic thoroughness and devotion she has given to the book, and thus to the world, an imperishable record of service.

Miss Lidja Zamenhof on being asked to write a beautiful article in Italian, which is an appreciation of the Exemplum book Bah- du’l-lah and the New Era, written by her distinguished Baha’i friend, General Renato Piola Cassi.

Dr. Bayard Dodge, President of the American College at Beirut, Syria, accepted most cordially the invitation to write for us, and sent in a manuscript which pleased the Guardian greatly. Dr. Dodge mentioned incidentally that he had a Baha’i secretary, saying that between them both, he was sure they would be able to present something acceptable for The Baha’i World.

During the absence of your chairman in Europe last summer, the work of The Baha’i World correspondence was carried on from this end by Miss Emmanu Wever, a beautiful young Baha’i college girl, whose devotion to the Cause was fully evidenced by the way she fulfilled her duties as secretary for several months.

On the return of your chairman the last of October, 1931, the work of assembling the manuscripts which had been promised began, and a vigorous correspondence elicited a most gratifying result, but in the meantime Mr. Windust who had been delegated to prepare the material to be sent to the Guardian, himself departed unexpectedly for the Holy Land, and it was necessary therefore, to mail all his care in Haifa. As the Guardian had specifically mentioned the first of December as the date when he wished all the material, every effort was bent toward the execution of his wishes, and practically all the material was forwarded by that time. Whatever was received subsequent to that date was also forwarded at his request, as some unavoidable delay made it possible for him to accept the belated contributions.

A most important part of the work for the book was prepared by Mr. Holley under the direction of the Guardian who expressed the greatest admiration and confidence in his ability to make of the International survey a beautiful and valuable addition to the work. Nor was Mr. Holley’s assistance limited to this subject alone, for he had been collecting suitable data for the book for months previous to that time, and his co-operation was a priceless asset.

A list of the various books, magazines and other publications wherein the Cause was mentioned was prepared by Mr. Bishop Brown of Pittsburgh and this will prove very interesting reading.

It is to be greatly regretted that the entire work of selection, arrangement, and correction must needs be thrust upon the Guardian, for the editing of so voluminous a work, together with his ever increasing responsibilities is one of which we would so joyfully relieve him, but it
REPORT OF THORNTON CHASE MEMORIAL COMMITTEE

Your request of March 11, 1932, for a report regarding the Thornton Chase Memorial, has reached this servant per your esteemed Secretary, Mr. Alfred Lunt.

This servant on his return from Palestine and Europe and the eastern United States, in November, 1931, conveyed to Mr. John D. Bosch, custodian of all Mr. Chase's data and fellow member of this Committee, the statement of the Most Beloved Guardian of the Baha'i Cause to the effect that if Mr. Bosch cared to do so it would be well for him to put all this data in the National Archives.

Mr. Bosch was here in Los Angeles, day before yesterday (March 19th) and stated that he had already sent the tablets of Mr. Chase and that he will forward the balance of Mr. Chase's papers to the Archives. When this is done the wish of the revered Guardian will have been carried out and will consist of the work of this committee—and thus complete the need of its being, as at present constituted.

Cordially in El-Abba,
MR. WILLARD P. HATCH
MR. JOHN D. BOSCH

REPORT OF MUSIC COMMITTEE

Several members of the Music Committee met at Green Acre last summer. Music appropriate for use in the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar as well as in the Community meetings was considered. The first and only possible meeting during the year resulted in discussion as to what would not be acceptable rather than forming decisions.

As the members of this committee live too far distant from one another to meet in consultation, and as through correspondence good results cannot be secured, perhaps a more satisfactory outcome might be obtained if the Committee were selected from some one city where the members could frequently meet to hear the music presented for their consideration and through this close association fruitful results could be expected.

In Haifa last spring, Shoghi Effendi spoke of this subject. He was inclined to favor the use of a single voice when sacred words were used. But after considering the beauty, dignity and spiritual effect of the great Russian choirs, he gave his consent to the use of such choirs when the Words of Baha'u'llah are set to music.

Shoghi Effendi was asked if he thought it advisable for the Western composers to pattern their music after the beautiful Eastern way of chanting. He did not approve of this, he said the West should use its own natural gift of expression, that imitations were never spontaneous and therefore not acceptable.

Regretting that this report cannot be more satisfactory,

REPORT OF THE TEMPLE PROGRAM COMMITTEE

During the year the activities in this great teaching center of the Cause in America have steadily grown. Day by day the number of people, who, attracted by the beautiful edifice, come to inquire regarding its nature and purpose, increases. They are met by believers who conduct them through the building, explain the Teachings of the Cause, present to them some literature and extend an invitation to the meetings. This has continued throughout the winter and many of the friends in Wilmette and Chicago have found there glorious opportunity to give the Message.

The numbers who flow in and out of the building on a Sunday or holiday have become so great that the Program Committee is planning to arrange a public meeting for Sunday mornings in addition to the regular Sunday afternoon meeting. During the winter the attendance at the Sunday meetings averages one hundred and fifty people, two-thirds of whom are not known. In summer the number runs well over two hundred. An increasingly large percentage of these visitors are becoming more or less regular attendants. Over four hundred have placed their names on the list of interested inquirers, expressing a desire to receive notices of future meetings or literature. Many have joined study classes. Such classes have been conducted uninterrupted in Chicago, Evanston, Wilmette, Winnetka, Cicero, Oak Park, Riverside and Maywood, for the purpose of deepening the knowledge of these inquirers.

In addition to the regular Sunday meetings, the major Feasts held in the Temple have become wonderful points of contact with the public, so that these meetings frequently fill the Foundation Hall to capacity. Numerous organizations, bible classes from churches and students from theological seminaries and universities have visited the building, where they have been addressed by Baha'i teachers.
Active opposition to the structure has entirely disappeared and as a result of these before described activities, the misconceptions regarding the nature and significance of the Temple and the Cause are rapidly being dispelled, so that the name, “Bahá’í” is now generally regarded at least with a fine respect.

We feel strongly that the near future will eclipse the recent gratifying growth that has come to the Temple area since the erection of the superstructure of the Temple.

The Committee is aware of the extreme importance of the work that must be done in the Temple and is endeavoring to arrange programs that are of high intellectual and spiritual character, are dignified and simple and give the pure Teaching of Bahá’u’lláh. The Temple is attracting a splendid type of people, spiritually and intellectually representative of every walk of life and capable of maintaining the high standard enjoined upon the followers of Bahá’u’lláh.

REPORT OF ARCHIVES COMMITTEE

The good work of the Archives Committee continues. Many original Tablets of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá have been received during the past year for preservation in the National Bahá’í Archives. The work of indexing and filing preparatory to publication has made progress. The members of the Committee, who have been active in this service, are deserving of the highest praise.

It has been my privilege to see the Archives in the Shrine of the Bab on Mt. Carmel and in front of Bahá’í houses. While there, ‘Abdu’l-Bahá gave me several photographs for the Archives in America.

When the room in front of the Temple is prepared to house the Bahá’í Archives of America, it will be of interest to strangers as well as the believers, and will undoubtedly be an effective means of publicity as well as preservation.

REPORT OF BAHÁ’Í PUBLISHING COMMITTEE

NEW PUBLICATIONS

THE DAWN BREAKERS—NABIL’S NARRATIVE OF THE EARLY DAYS OF THE BAHÁ’Í CAUSE.

Translated by
SHOGHI EFFENDI

The work on this history of the early days of the Cause, was begun last May and completed in March, 1932. During this time the Committee was in constant communication with the Guardian, obtaining his opinion upon any matter of which there was a doubt. Regarding the method of advance sales in the form of subscriptions as well as the limited autographed edition, he gave his wholehearted approval.

The many details made necessary to prepare a book of its size for the press, containing so many illustrations and Persian accents, made it very difficult to produce the finished book at a stated date. Therefore the Publishing Committee wishes to offer its deep regret for the many delays, and to thank all those who have waited so patiently, for their gracious understanding.

KITAB-I-IQAN—THE BOOK OF CERTITUDE.

Translated by
SHOGHI EFFENDI

The manuscript was turned over to the printers in June, 1931, after the National Spiritual Assembly had approved and accepted the estimate. It was completed and ready for distribution in September, 1931. Review copies were sent out with an accompanying letter, through the National Spiritual Assembly to Literary Editors of Newspapers and Magazines, and to many important people in the Educational and Religious world. We quote the following letter from the Guardian since receiving a copy of this edition:

“I am greatly pleased with the new edition of the ‘Iqán’ and I am arranging to send a large number of copies to distinguished people throughout the country.”

WORLD ECONOMY OF BAHÁ’U’LLÁH.

Compiled by HORACE HOLLEY

This compilation was completed in October, 1931, and has filled a great need.

One thousand copies of this pamphlet were presented to Literary Editors, chief Editorial writers, Authors, Educators, Scientists, and a few individuals here and abroad. This was made possible through the generosity of Mr. Holley who purchased this number for free distribution.

MY PILGRIMAGE TO THE LAND OF DESIRE.

By the Late
MARIE WATSON

This small book was printed for the Estate of Mrs. Marie Watson, through its executor, Mrs. Agnes Parsons, of Washington, D. C. In it Mrs. Watson gives the story of her visit to Haifa in 1921, and it contains an interesting account of her healing by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá.

HIDDEN WORDS, ENGLISH EDITION.

The Publishing Committee wishing to co-operate with the English National Spiritual Assembly, who some time ago published an edition of the Hidden Words, a later translation by Shoghi Effendi, have ordered 100 copies. The edition, however, is handsomely bound and we are obliged to sell it at $1.00.

In order to supply the great need for a less expensive edition we have obtained an estimate from London for a paper bound edition which we hope in a short time to have on sale for about 25 cents.

THE GOAL OF A NEW WORLD ORDER.

By
SHOGHI EFFENDI

This letter from the Guardian was printed, and distributed by the National Spiritual Assembly.

This stupendous message to the World, written with such power, makes us halt for a moment at the threshold of a new civilization. The poignancy of the Guardian’s words has awakened the great realization of the inevitable onward march of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh.

The National Spiritual Assembly has turned over 648 copies to the Publishing Committee for handling and distribution, which will be sold for 25 cents each. The amount received to be refunded to the National Spiritual Assembly to defray the expense of publication. There has been some criticism of this charge which does not allow the regulation discount, and for additional postage charged; the impression is given that the Publishing Committee is not consistent in carrying out its own policies. The National Spiritual Assembly considering the importance of this communication from the Guardian, thought it advisable to print this book independently, and were wholly unconscious that this divided activity in the same department of the work would cause confusion.

WHAT IS THE BAHÁ’Í MOVE-

Twenty-five thousand copies were or-

These also are sold in lots of 1,000 and 500 to the Local Assemblies.

Copies of the Calendar were sent to them to put them on sale in their Centers

SELLING EFFORTS

The Publishing Committee has endeavored to stimulate an interest in Bahá’í Literature, by making personal calls upon some of the leading wholesale distributing houses in New York, such as, Baker &
Taylor Co. and Campbell & Leening Co.
The Secretary has also written to A. C.
McClurg in Chicago and to the Library Association also in Chicago. It was considered advisable by the Committee to send this Association one copy of each of our best titles, for their reference file.

They are the guide and source of information for library purchases, the latter depending upon their judgment as to the choice of books for libraries. A letter was also written enclosing catalogue to the Bookmobile, operated by T. J. Mc-Laughlin, who uses this ingenious method of selling books through a traveling book store, in the southwest.

There has been no response up to date from this first effort, but we will soon follow it by another letter.

SUGGESTIONS FOR FURTHER DEVELOPMENT OF THE WORK

Four years ago the Publishing Committee adopted and put into effect the policy of allowing the regulation trade discount of 33 1-3 per cent to all Local Spiritual Assemblies purchasing books.
This was done primarily to create and put into action the spirit of co-operation, and co-relating the work of spreading the Teachings by this reciprocal contact with the Spiritual Assemblies throughout the country. The material benefits received are said to assist in establishing the foundation for the support of a Bahá’í Center in each respective community.

The Publishing Committee feels that the time has come to take another step by uniting all our forces as one body in spreading the Teachings. There is no doubt that it is through circulating the written Word that the greatest and most effective method of teaching can be obtained. The following quotation from a letter written by the Guardian to the Publishing Committee, clearly indicates his feeling on the matter:

"... "Much of the progress of the Cause depends upon you (the Publishing Committee), for more people are attracted through reading than by hearing lectures.
The first requisite, however, is that everything put before the public should be of the highest type both literary and artistic.
The Cause is in great need of first class
publications."..."

Therefore, although it is first the task of this Committee to do its utmost to fulfill the Guardian’s wishes in striving to attain the high standard which he desires us to achieve; the real need which we can readily read in his word is to reach out to the public and get before them the literature, which contains words revealing the true and lasting healing for a sick and distressed world.

It is a great responsibility as well as a blessed privilege to be numbered among those who, fully accepting this message, have been given a great work to accomplish.

Therefore the Publishing Committee feels at this time the need of appealing to all Local Spiritual Assemblies to work with us in establishing in their Communities the need of every individual member to do his utmost to circulate the literature. This can become the greatest force:
to bring to the attention of thinking people the realization and understanding of the Revealed Words contained in the Bahá’í
Literature.

We would suggest that the Local As-semblies through the members of their Communities form committees whose duty it would be to bring the literature to the attention of Librarians of Public Libraries, and to the leading bookstores in their localities. We would also suggest that from time to time they make inquiries regarding Bahá’í Books at these different stores. In time it is natural to suppose that if the demand is persistent enough the book dealers would soon feel it necessary to carry stock of Bahá’í Books, thereby reaching many who otherwise would not hear about the Cause. We ask the Local Secretaries to send us the names of these leading bookstores which have already been made familiar with the literature, by the Committee working in that district. We in turn would place them on our list for notices of new publications. The Publishing Committee feels that this will soon put into motion a spiritual power which is bound to have far reaching results.

The followers of Bahá’u’lláh in this country have been given the stupendous task of completing the Mashriqí’-Adi-ká, in a very short period of time. A task made still more difficult in view of the economic depression which is affecting the whole world. We should all reflect deeply upon the significance of erecting a spiritual edifice at this specific time.

Has this task been given to test merely the capacity of our faith? . . . Could not the answer be, that first we must have the full realization of that Spiritual Edifice which is in itself the very Cause of God as brought to the world today by Bahá’u’lláh? First it must be built in its entirety in the heart, before it can be reflected and find its counterpart upon the material plane. This seems to be the time in the history of the work in the Cause when everything is directed toward the great need of a united effort, for all the believers to focus their activities upon one central point, and that this vital point is the very base of the structure of the Bahá’í Revelation. The realization of the meaning of this revelation in its entirety, we believe to be the manifestation of the spiritual constantly being reflected in the material.

Therefore let us all strive to look upon our activities as one work, interdependent, circulating through one central organi-

REPORT OF BAHÁ’I STUDY COMMITTEE

The Baha’i Study Committee has issued a study course of thirty-six lessons on the Baha’i Teachings, consisting of textbooks, references and questions.

Since the second week in March, when this course was put on sale, about twenty centers have subscribed for the lessons. The course is being used with marked success for subject matter both for study classes and meetings.

The Committee has carried on the sale of the following study courses throughout the year—Study Kits containing study outlines including an outline on Material and Divine Science, Baha’i Teachings Concerning Christ, Material and Divine Civilization and Correspondence Course in the Baha’i Teachings.

REPORT OF BAHÁ’I SALES COMMITTEE

As the Sales Committee has just been organized, its report must be of future prospects and hopes rather than past performance; however, we can report that an adequate assortment of Bahá’i photographs, ringstones, voice records and other articles of interest to the believers, is now on sale by this Committee. It is hoped to have before long a fully comprehensive collection of photographs of places dear to all Bahá’ís by their association with Bahá’u’lláh and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá.

One important part of the duties of this Committee is to appraise and to arrange for the disposal of any articles of value contributed to the National Bahá’í Fund, and there is now in our hands for disposal property conservatively estimated at between four and five hundred dollars in value. Many believers who find themselves unable to give in money may be able to send in jewelry, old gold or silver, unset stones, antiques or art objects, any of which will be welcomed by the Committee and the proceeds sent at once to the National Fund. They should be sent directly to any member of this Committee. Undoubtedly such contributions will greatly increase with the passage of time and may become a very important source of revenue. The Sales Committee feels that it is also possible to build up a remunerative business in unusual articles sent by Bahá’ís from foreign lands, which may be sold not only to believers but to others as well. We have every hope that future committees will be able to render valuable service to our beloved Cause.

Obediently in His Service,

MR. F. ST. G. SPENDLOVE, Chairman

MR. R. Y. MOTTAHEDEH

REPORT OF THE EDITORIAL COMMITTEE

This Committee understands that most of the problems with which it deals are referred to it by other committees, in particular the Reviewing Committee and the Publishing Committee. That is to say, this Committee does not initiate any activities. Because of this fact, and also because we have been organized for work for only the past two months, we have very little to report.

We have made recommendations as to the use of the word “Bahá’í” as applied to music, painting, poetry and other art forms—as published in the February number of the Bahá’í News. We are at present working on a revision of the Glossary in Shoghi Effendi’s translation of the Iqán, at the request of the National Spiritual Assembly.

With cordial greetings,

DR. GENEVIEVE L. COY, Chairman
MR. HORACE HOLLEY

REPORT OF THE NATIONAL REVIEWING COMMITTEE

The work of the National Reviewing Committee for the year 1931-1932 actually began with a special meeting called by the National Spiritual Assembly in New York City on April 12, 1931, for consultation with some of their members and the Publishing Committee to confer in the matter of The Dawn-Breakers, a stupendous manuscript sent by the Guardian for publication in America. The editing of this manuscript by the Reviewing Committee, which was supplied with photostat copies, carried through July, when it was turned over to the Publishing Committee, upon whose shoulders the real burden of the enormous detail involved descended, and this book has just come off the press at the date of writing this report.

In June, 1931, a letter was received by the Reviewing Committee from the National Secretary announcing the re-election of the Reviewing Committee of the year 1930-1931, for the year 1931-1932.

The manuscripts which have been received and approved, were considered in the following order:

The Dawn-Breakers. The several suggestions made by the Reviewing Committee have been accepted by the Guardian.

Baha’i Calendar, compiled by Doris Holley. This calendar (now in print) was composed of quotations from Bahá’u’lláh, ‘Abdu’l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi. It was approved by the Reviewing Committee with the recommendation that in all cases the source of the words should be included. This was done wherever possible, but in the case of quotations taken from Bahá’í Scriptures from the chapter, The Loom of Reality, the source was not always known.

Teaching Lessons, by Shahnaz Waite. Compilations by Flora Clark. Both these manuscripts were returned to the National Assembly as material seemed to belong to the general work of the Teaching Committee to be used in mimeographed form in connection with classes, etc.

The Miracle, by Marie B. Watson. A record of her visit to ‘Abdu’l-Bahá. This manuscript was approved and is now in print.

The Temple of Light, by Allen B. McDaniel. Technical description of the Temple. This manuscript was approved with certain suggestions and recommendations to bring it up to date in regard to time and tense.

Light and Life, by Marie B. Moore. This compilation of short passages for meditation composed of the words of Bahá’u’lláh, ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, Bahá’í Prayers and a few selections from the sayings of Jesus, Buddha, the Psalms, Muhammad, the Gita, etc., was approved with the recommendation that wherever possible the translation of Shoghi Effendi be used in place of earlier ones.

Glossary of the new edition of the Iqán. On request from the National Assembly the Reviewing Committee examined the Glossary published in the Guardian’s translation of the Iqán and recommended that a new glossary be compiled to include only terms contained in the actual text of the book.

The World Economy of Bahá’u’lláh, by Horace Holley. Pamphlet on the economic teachings of the Bahá’í Revelation. The manuscript was approved. Now in print.

The Supreme Affliction, by Alfred E. Lunt. Pamphlet or article on the economic teachings of the Bahá’í Revelation. This manuscript was approved.

The Reviewing Committee begs to bring to the attention of the National Assembly the need of committee members being within consulting distance as joint consultation for review of a manuscript is almost imperative.

The attention of the friends is called to the fact that the National Assembly has appointed an Editorial Committee which will pass upon the general literary and artistic side of Bahá’í manuscripts. This work has previously been assumed by some to come under the work of the Reviewing Committee which really only passes upon the authenticity of the text from a Baha'i point of view.

Respectfully submitted,

REPORT OF THE BAHAI NATIONAL TEACHING COMMITTEE 1931-32

The specific details of the teaching work done under the National Teaching Committee for the past year are so numerous and varied that, in spite of their great interest and significance to the general Baha'i Community, the present report of the Committee will deal only with the general trend of this activity throughout the country during 1931-32. In her most excellent and comprehensive report of the progress of the Cause on the Pacific Coast, Miss Charlotte Linfoot, Western Secretary of the National Teaching Committee, writes of the work in the West:

"No extensive teaching campaigns were carried on in any part of the area, and yet there has been a marked increase in the number of Centers which have opened up for receiving the Teachings and there were during the past year more individual Baha'is engaged in teaching than ever before. The idea of initiating the Cause in a new locality by means of a series of large and widely advertised public meetings has been discarded and the plan of intensive, informal work with comparatively small groups is being found more effective, less expensive and productive of greater results. Because of the many problems which arise as a result of this period of rapid transition in the Cause, new groups cannot be left to struggle through alone and the Western branch of the Teaching Committee, recognizing the importance of frequent follow-up visits by older and experienced teachers, has given special attention this year to the needs of these young groups with gratifying results. We feel that we have reached a new stage when teaching work must associate itself with the organism of the Cause, and that teaching is effective to the degree to which it is reflected in the actual functioning of Local Assemblies. Therefore, the program upon which the members of the Western Teaching Committee have concentrated this year has been that of building up the Assemblies which were already organized, to the highest possible state of perfection and preparing the new groups for organization in accordance with the principles of Baha'i Administration. We feel we have made some progress and above all, we believe that the past year has laid the foundation for rapid growth in the coming year."

In the east there has been a tendency in the same direction.

Throughout the country there is a general increase in the activity within the Local Spiritual Assemblies, which is tremendously strengthening the individual, the Local Community, and therefore the entire structure of the Cause. As Miss Linfoot says, "Practically every Assembly in the west shows that there has been a greater effort than ever before to draw all of the believers into active work by giving them definite responsibilities. This expansion in the activities of individual Bahais is partly due to the larger fields of service opened up as a result of Inter-Assembly activity but perhaps more so to the increased realization that everyone should be given an opportunity for self-expression and a feeling of responsibility for the development of the Cause within the locality."

Individuals and Assemblies, both in the east and the west, are finding opportunities for service in study classes, fireside discussion groups, teas to meet Baha'i teachers, children's classes, inter-racial dinners and meetings, welfare work and Esperanto classes.

The study class is proving to be a versatile and effective medium of teaching. Almost every Assembly in the country sponsors at least one. Twelve home study classes meet weekly in different sections of Chicago. Probably very few study groups are of the same type. They are large and small, public and private, for inquirers, new believers and confirmed Bahais of long standing. They are usually based on one or more of the study outlines distributed by the National Baha'i Study Committee or upon some Bahai book. They have resulted in a deeper knowledge of the Teachings, the development of active workers and teachers, and many new believers.

The fireside discussion group is a semi-social means of attracting one's friends to the Cause and preparing them for more intensive study within classes. San Francisco, with at least four weekly fireside meetings, has concentrated on this form of activity with very remarkable success.

The work of establishing Bahai Sunday-schools seems to us especially important. We commend the recent extension of this phase in many centers and hope it will receive careful consideration from all communities in the coming year.

In certain Assemblies the young people have been drawn into active participation in administration and teaching, with gratifying results. The National Teaching Committee has this year had among its members two young people whose point of view has been most helpful and constructive and feels convinced that not only do young people have a better approach to others of their age, but that a pooling of the contribution that both older and younger people can make will mean added vigor and diversity in the work of the Cause. We urge all Assemblies both to encourage the formation of youth groups and to share with the young people the responsibilities of teaching and administration.

In the west there are now no Assemblies maintaining public headquarters. They are reducing local expenses to a minimum in order to give greater support to the New Plan of Unified Action. In the east where conditions and methods differ, our larger cities are still maintaining public headquarters and results seem to warrant the expense. Some of them are making their headquarters effective teaching centers rather than mere lecture halls.

Some of the encouraging developments of the past year among the Assemblies are the unmistakable evidences of growth and activity in groups that have been dormant for years; and the success of a few Assemblies, notably Racine and Kenosha, in sponsoring an intensive teaching campaign in their localities.

On the other hand, we regret exceedingly that two Assemblies formed last spring have disintegrated. Since both were clear cases of premature organization, the whole question of the formation, strengthening and supervision of new Assemblies is being considered most seriously by the National Spiritual Assembly.

In many places throughout the country the Cause is being introduced into new territory either through the efforts of isolated believers, individuals from nearby communities, or through the co-operative action of an Assembly or group of Assemblies. So far as we know, no Assembly in the east has assumed as a group the responsibility for introducing the Cause into some nearby town or city. This is being done in the west. However, good work is being done by individual believers in Laguna Beach and South Pasadena in California, in New Castle, Pa., Youngstown, Ohio, Rochester, N. Y., and no doubt many other places.

Many Assemblies have received encouragement, assistance and inspiration and many new people have been reached through contacts with such Bahai travelers as Miss Martha Root, Mrs. Cimta Knowles and Mr. Willard Hatch.

Mrs. Louise Waite spent a month with the new Assembly at Phoenix, Arizona, and made many other important teaching trips. Mrs. Bertha Hyde Kirkpatrick lived in Ann Arbor, Michigan, for the winter as a resident teacher. Mr. Howard Ives has been teaching in Washington and Baltimore for over three months. Miss Juliet Thompson and Mrs. Howard Ives visited Indianapolis and the new Assemblies in southern Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Loas visited Phoenix and the Assemblies of southern California. Miss Beatrice Garrison traveled and taught in the south for a month last fall. Mrs. May Maxwell found the opportunities for teaching in Montreal increasing so rapidly that she stayed home all winter. Many other people have given valuable assistance through repeated trips to nearby places.

Mr. Louis Gregory, in addition to the work of his particular committee on inter-racial work, has done important pioneer work in the south through churches, schools and colleges, has visited many Assemblies and has at times been most co-operative.

Mr. Willard McKay accompanied Mr. Gregory on one of his southern teaching trips. Mr. Chauncey Northern and Mr. Philip Mayorga together toured another part of the south and spread the knowledge of the Cause. Both of these ventures were as successful as they were unique.

Another outstanding service in teaching during the past year was that of Mrs. Ruth Moffett of Chicago. Since the last Convention Mrs. Moffett has visited 22 different cities and given 474 lectures, of which seven were radio broadcasts. She spent five weeks in Kenosha and four weeks in Racine, giving an average of over two lectures a day. Many new believers were confirmed in both cities. Milwaukee and Cincinnati were also effectively served.

The work for the year, as a result of her work, thousands were attracted to the Cause, hundreds deeply interested and willing to study further. 57 new believers joined Bahá'í Communities and nine who had left were reunited.

Another outstanding service in teaching was rendered by Miss Oreella Rexford, who, following her series of paid lectures, introduced the Cause to an average audience of one thousand and arranged for a Bahá'í teacher to follow her in Indianapolis, Boston, Washington, Miami and Jacksonville.

The follow-up work is being done in Indianapolis by Dr. Lilian Sielken, in Boston by Prof. Glenn Shook, Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf, Mrs. Mary Coristine, Mr. Alfred Lunt and others, in Washington by Mr. Stanwood Cobb, in Miami by Miss Fanny Knobloch and in Jacksonville by Dr. Walter Guy and Miss Alma Knobloch.

An Assembly will soon be formed in Indianapolis through the constant, devoted and excellent teaching done by Dr. Sielken, the only confirmed Bahá'í in the city when Miss Rexford gave the Message last June. The Boston and Washington Communities will undoubtedly be augmented by a number of new believers. It is too early to predict lasting results in Florida but after a month Miss Fanny Knobloch is still holding four classes a week with an average attendance of 65 each, and having many personal interviews.

Inter-Assembly work has progressed very unevenly in different parts of the country. The most active Inter-Assembly districts seem to be northern California, southern California and the Illinois-Wisconsin district, although conferences have been held and some co-operative work done in the Washington, southern Ohio and Northwestern districts. It is interesting to note that with the exception of a few individual Assemblies, the greatest activity has coincided with the best Inter-Assembly organization.

Miss Linford writes, "Perhaps the greatest accomplishment of these Inter-Assembly activities is that the ability of Assemblies to co-operate has been clearly demonstrated and they can come together and consult freely and openly without any preliminary: Simpsons. The Cause is developing beyond the confines of the Assemblies and there is a rapidly growing need for teachers. A single Assembly does not provide the necessary training for those who plan to go out into larger fields, and in the work of the Inter-Assembly grouping, the individual experiences an enlarged influence, an increased power, and profits by the experiences of the larger group.

"Some of the results traceable directly to the Inter-Assembly program in California are the following: ability to use the time of teachers and delegates to the Convention with the least possible waste; consultation on problems which are sectional in nature; well-rounded inter-racial activity programs; development of children's classes; co-operation in planning participation in the Olympic Festival, and above all larger opportunities for service and a greater outlet for abilities and capacities of the individual Bahá'ís."

Many of the same general constructive results have been noted in the active eastern Inter-Assembly districts. We hope that the success of this co-operative work wherever it has been really tried, will encourage the other districts to greater effort next year.

You may be interested in the financial side of the National teaching work. Last spring the National Spiritual Assembly voted $8,000.00 to the National Teaching Committee and in September reduced it to $2,000.00, when Mr. Vail was removed from the jurisdiction of this Committee. After taking out the amount voted to Mr. Gregory, there was $2,120.00 left for the year's teaching budget, of which we have asked for and received $1,300.00. In view of the urgent need of money for the Temple we spent as little as possible and were glad not to use $820.00 of our budget. We believe it would be only just to divide equally all money received between the eastern and western branches, since the services of our two paid teachers have been entirely in the east for some time. The western division has used very little of its money this year and has a balance of about $300.00 to be used later for teaching activities in connection with the Olympic Games. The eastern division, on the other hand, has spent practically all of the $700.00 received this year. Of this, we spent $100.00 to assist teachers for our summer schools, $250.00 for teachers to new Assemblies, and $315.00 for half rent and teachers to follow up Miss Rexford's lectures.

Before closing this report we must mention several phases of teaching activity that lie outside the jurisdiction of our Committee and will be reported separately, but which are really an integral part of any record of Bahá'í teaching in America.

The inter-racial unity work of the Assemblies is such a fundamental part of teaching that it is really impossible for us to separate them, but the Inter-Racial Unity Committee will report the activities of Assemblies and individuals most closely concerned with different races. We cannot help but rejoice that one of the most effective approaches by Bahá'í Communities to the general public during the past year has been through racial unity work.

The Temple is one of our most potent teaching agencies. The work of Mr. Vail and others at the Temple and in the vicinity has been very valuable. Details of this field will be given by Mr. Vail and the Temple Program Committee.

Our three summer schools at Green Acre, Geyserville and Louhelen Ranch will also be reported separately. The type of program carried out at Geyserville has been especially productive of worthwhile teaching contacts.

The National Teaching Committee believes we are in a new phase of teaching which not only demands new methods in spreading the Cause but also a more effective development in committee organization in order to insure more accurate and prompt knowledge of teaching activities and problems in all sections of the country, closer co-operation of the National Spiritual Assembly, the National Teaching Committee, our teachers and the Local Assemblies, and therefore an increased sense of cohesion in the Cause. May the coming year bring us greater understanding, devotion, selflessness and consecration in this work, which Shoghi Effendi declares of equal importance with the completion of the Temple.

THE Baha'i MAGAZINE

EDITORIAL OFFICE

The twelve copies of the magazine for the year are submitted, primarily, as the most important part of our report since these several issues constitute a report in themselves.

The year has been filled with experiences of absorbing and thrilling interest to the members of the Editorial Staff. Even in these times of depression, the magazine has grown in interest and value to many, inside and outside of the Cause. Letters in great abundance testify to the inspiration and encouragement it brings monthly into many homes. Here is a sample of one of the letters from France:

"I always receive and read The Baha'i Magazine with great joy. It is inspiring written and gives us great encouragement. Many persons are reading it on my copy who unhappily cannot afford personal subscriptions."

And from Australia the following:

"The Baha'i Magazine is very helpful. We cannot do without it. It is always so very helpful whenever I am giving a Peace Talk, and in my other lectures, too, there is a wonderful opportunity to use the magazine."

From England we have had many expressions like this for instance:

"I look upon the Baha'i Magazine as the pure and best magazine in the world, and hope in future News Letters to draw more and more attention to it."

From Geneva, Switzerland, a non-Baha'i writes:

"We beg to thank you most sincerely for the issues of The Baha'i Magazine... and we hope very much that you will be able to continue this generous gift (to our Free Public Reading Room).

Both adverse and constructive criticisms are always valued, and we have been helped, inspired and encouraged by such expresions.

Sometimes we have adverse criticism which perhaps might not be forthcoming did the friends know the instructions under which we are editing the magazine. For instance, we are warned not to condemn the existing religions. There is, we can see at a glance, tremendous wisdom in this. We have so much that is beautiful and constructive to herald—that which will bring joy to a troubled world—that there is no time or space to devote to that which displeases. One of 'Abdu'l-Baha's most definite instructions about editing the magazine was not to print anything which would displease any one.

A matter of general interest and which we would like to share with you is in connection with the question as to whether it is advantageous to publish in The Baha'i Magazine articles of a general humanitarian nature, such as the splendid article of Mrs. Cook on the subject of Mr. Rosenwald. This question has been answered for us by a direct communication from Shoghi Effendi which reads as follows:

"Shoghi Effendi fully approves the idea of publishing articles that are humanitarian even if they are not purely Baha'i, such as the one by Mrs. Cook and Mr. Rosenwald. Such articles are also educative for the Baha'is, and will enhance the interest of the magazine."

In any such editorial plan we try always to consult our Guardian in order to be sure that he heartily approves. We have felt that such articles would give breadth to the magazine as well as help in its wider circulation.

One of the delicate services we have to render is in connection with the return of manuscripts not usable according to the editorial policy. We feel quite sad to have to return a great many; they are for the most part worthy documents, but so very intimate in nature that they would only fit into a publication which would be strictly for Baha'is. We may offend some in the discharge of what we know to be our duty, but on the other hand, we often derive great encouragement from contributors who write like this, for instance:

"This little incident helps us to realize the world in which we would be living. Such a spirit and such instances serve in strengthening our faith."

And still another writes:

"Just received the letter (with returned manuscript). It breathed forth the spirit of the Abhá Kingdom, and also gave me a glimpse of what our business world will be when love permeates it. If necessary refusals of manuscripts of budding authors are like yours, rejection would become more like a benediction and Godspeed."

The past year we have missed the many illuminating articles by Martha Root, the absence of which has been due to her continued traveling and intensive work in this country. The friends will note with joy, we feel sure, that these informing and fascinating contributions have been resumed with the April number, and we have every reason to believe that they will continue of surpassing interest throughout the year.

We are always trying to secure just the type of article best suited to the magazine, especially the kind recommended by our Guardian. We like also articles from every country in the world, if possible, thus showing the universality of the Cause, its world-wide scope. Articles of this type dealing with Baha'i life and activities in the Orient and other countries have a strong appeal and are always well received. The past year we have had several, dealing with the life and activities in Pernia, the wonderful articles about China, India, etc. After much writing we finally secured the stories now running in serial form about the history of the Cause in India. This story is being especially written for the Baha'i Magazine, and it is a noteworthy and valuable contribution to Baha'i history. We would like the friends to know that it is a painstaking effort on the part of the author. It is written in ink by his own hand. We think the entire original manuscript should be sent, eventually, to the Archives for preservation. Ruhi Afnán, writing for the Guardian, says: "Shoghi Effendi found the articles written by Siyyid Mustafa Roumie excellent and deeply enjoyed reading them. He is an old war horse and has won many battles for the Cause."

Our editorial policy for any number is to make it as varied as possible, to make it readable, vital as to teaching the Cause, and to have the articles short.

Very important additions to the Editorial Staff of the magazine have been made by the National Spiritual Assembly. Mrs. Bertha Hyde Kirkpatrick was appointed as one of the Editors about two months ago. Her efficient and even brilliant assistance cannot be over-emphasized, and her appointment caused us to rejoice exceedingly. Mrs. Kirkpatrick has been associated with us for many years as a regular contributor, and her outstanding ability is recognized. She is eminently qualified for the position she occupies, and her good judgment, her wise decisions, her purity of purpose and real sincerity, her co-operative spirit and her spirituality, have brought joy to us all. Her absolute freedom from any Another new plan is that a number of friends in different parts of the country have been chosen by the National Spiritual Assembly to especially serve the magazine by furnishing material for its pages from time to time,—thus subjects such as the Temple, inter-racial, economics, teaching, etc., will be kept in mind by these various helpers who will make it their special business to keep the magazine supplied with good material, thus there will be some one representing the magazine for each of the outstanding activities in the Cause. This does not mean that others should not be doing all they can to cooperate, but it does mean that more material will flow to the magazine thru these various channels. We can therefore see how before another year passes the magazine will have to “multiply its pages,” as the Guardian hoped it would be able to do; at least there will surely be a measure of development and expansion which we hope will make happy the heart of the Guardian.

The Staff of the Magazine, therefore, as now definitely appointed by the National Spiritual Assembly is, Stanwood Cobb, Editor; Mrs. Bertha Hyde Kirkpatrick, Assistant Editor; Mrs. Mariam Haney, Managing Editor; these three constitute the Editorial Committee. In addition there are the Associate Editors who are “empowered,” by the National Spiritual Assembly, “to send in suggestions as well as noteworthy addresses or other literary material of interest which has passed through their hands as a Committee. Our vote,” as stated by Mr. Lunt, Secretary of the National Spiritual Assembly, “did not give these Associate Editors any function of editing or reviewing the text of the magazine.” Those appointed are: Mr. Leroy Loas, representing the Geyerville Summer School; Mr. Willis Hilpert, Temple Program Committee; Mrs. May Maxwell and Mrs. Doris McKay, Teaching and Outline Bureau Committees; Mrs. Loulie Mathews, Bahá’í Inter-racial Committee; Mr. Alfred E. Lunt, Mrs. Marjory Morton, Bahá’í Economics Committee.

It is possible that some changes may soon be made in the list of Editors from other countries, like for instance, adding the name of Florence E. Pinchon for England, and Dr. Y. S. Tsao for China. Steps have been initiated to this end.

From around the world comments like the following come to us. They are submitted entirely impersonally, for “the service of the friends belongs to God, and not to them,” as the Master instructed, and for the further reason that this information is due you.

From India: “I congratulate the Editors on the splendid progress made by them in editing this magazine of world-wide importance.”

“Many, many words of congratulation for the joy the magazine always brings. It gets better and better.”

“The Bahá’í Magazine is like a real friend. It grows dearer and more necessary to one each month and we look forward to its coming so eagerly.”

“I appreciate the magazine very highly and it is the last thing I should be slack about settling for.”

“We are so proud to lend the magazine to forward-looking people. It improves every month. I am hoping for more subscriptions from our city this year as we are reaching many people of great capacity.”

“I love the Bahá’í Magazine—all of it. I particularly have enjoyed the life stories, or rather the stories about how friends have come into the Cause (for I am a new believer). I lend my copies and boost the magazine as I have always seen its spiritual leadership among progressive periodicals.”

“Your magazine has some very fine contributors, and I wish for it a wide circulation for your kind of education is much needed.”

“My friend from India has expressed his appreciation of the Bahá’í Magazine and its lofty pure spirit. The extra copies are being wisely used, they are reaching quite a new circle of people. For instance, I am sending some new young workers in Holland, also to an entirely new group in India, and to other circles before untouched. This is what we want—to extend the influence of this pure magazine.”

“I read and re-read the editorials and the spiritually fine articles, and I am always impressed with the pure tone of the magazine. I want you to know it is just like drops of water to a thirsty traveler in a desert.”

“I hope there are a sufficient number of outsiders who come in contact with this magazine to get the benefit of the illuminating editorials and all the other spiritual instructions and suggestions which the magazine contains and which are so vital to the peace and well-being of society.”

“We enjoy the Bahá’í Magazine very much. It is such an inspiration during these trying times. It gives us comfort and courage, and may God bless its readers and those who are contributing to it.”

“Sending my copies of The Bahá’í Magazine for binding, and enclose money for postage and renewal of subscription. I read every word in the magazine, and you can imagine what it means to me out here alone.”

“There is something particularly dynamic about the March issue of the Magazine. The ‘seed’ elements of this number seem charged with creative vitality. They must be scattered about! Perchance some may fall on fertile soil. The dozen extra copies I sent for have just arrived, but the number falls short of the need. Please mail me twelve more; check enclosed.” (It may be interesting to know that this friend ordered forty-one extra copies of the March number).

“I always welcome The Bahá’í Magazine when it comes, and read it with great interest; also with deep appreciation and admiration for the work that is being done.”

The general impression as gleaned from verbal as well as written expressions is that the magazine has improved very much in literary style, in the quality and tone of the articles, and in the fearless heralding of the Bahá’í Teachings without, as our Guardian instructed, “antagonizing any existing institution or peoples.”

In conclusion we should like to leave with you that which is the most important of all, namely, our latest word from our beloved Guardian, Shoghi Effendi: Speaking of the Magazine, Ruhi Afnun, writing for our Guardian, says: “He is fully satisfied with its present rate, and hopes it will keep on developing. He does read its numbers with great interest and really enjoys some of its articles... Shoghi Effendi wishes me to express his deep appreciation for the wonderful work you, as well as those associated with you, are doing in the field of service. May the Master ever guide and assist you in your noble task.” And in our Guardian’s handwriting the following: “I wish to confirm in person the message written on my behalf, and to assure you of my keen and loving appreciation of the many and notable services you are rendering to the Faith.”

And this encouragement from our Guardian and Protector, from the one who is protecting not only the Most Great Cause, but all those fortunate enough, through the Mercy of God, to be included in the ever-increasing numbers of the followers of the Faith, constitutes for us a life-giving message.

Humbly your servants,

STANWOOD COBB,
MARIAM HANEY,
BERTHA HYDE KIRKPATRICK,
Editorial Committee.

During the past year nine meetings of the Green Acre Trustees have been held, beginning with the organization meeting on May 4, 1931, following the last Annual Convention and ending with the meeting on April 28, 1932, just prior to the Twenty-fourth Annual Convention.

The Green Acre season of 1931, was a successful one in the further carrying out of the policy established by the National Spiritual Assembly three years ago—the operation of Green Acre as a teaching and training center for the believers in the Cause. In order to provide suitable living accommodations, the Inn was operated by Mrs. Flora Valentine on a co-operative basis and at a profit both for the Trustees and herself. The lectures, classes and group meetings were held in the auditorium of the Inn and at the Fellowship House and were well attended. During July, Miss Martha Root inspired the friends with her enthusiasm and spiritual fervor. In August, Miss Pearl Easterbrook, Miss Orcella Rexford, Mr. Albert Vail and others carried on the classes and did most effective work among the friends in instructing them in methods of teaching and in the presentation of the Cause under varying conditions and circumstances.

Late in the fall, the Trustees sent to the Guardian the available reports and financial statements relative to Green Acre, and requested his wishes as to the policy under which Green Acre should be operated during the season of 1932. Under date of January 9, 1932, Shoghi Effendi wrote the National Spiritual Assembly as follows:

"Concerning Green Acre, Shoghi Effendi believes that the National Spiritual Assembly has to devise some method whereby this institution will become profit-bearing or at least self-supporting and not remain a source of constant expense to the Cause. There are more important activities such as the Temple construction and teaching work to be carried through and these absorb all the funds available.

"Besides being self-supporting, Green Acre should be developed into a center where teachers are created to go out into the field as able servants. What are the means to be used? This is for the National Assembly. They may deem it wise to have a larger committee for Green Acre or call an Esperanto Congress to meet there in the summer, or invite Miss Lydia Zamenhof for a trip to Green Acre. Such things, however, should be undertaken if it is not going to add to the financial burdens of the Cause. The Assembly knows best whether such steps are advisable or not and whether their advantages outweigh their disadvantages."

The Trustees at the meeting on March 20, 1932, acting on the recommendations of the Properties Committee, authorized the operation of the Inn and Tea House during the coming season by Mrs. Flora Valentine. These properties are to be open to the public and at rates to be established by Mrs. Valentine, who, however, has agreed to work in close co-operation with the Properties Committee and in harmony with the policy of Green Acre.

The Guardian's instructions that "Green Acre should be developed into a center where teachers are created to go into the field as able servants," will be fulfilled by a newly appointed Faculty which will conduct classes at the Fellowship House. It is hoped that a large number of believers will avail themselves of this unusual and timely opportunity to prepare themselves for the important work of teaching our glorious Cause.

In order to carry out Shoghi Effendi's wishes to make Green Acre self-supporting as soon as practicable, steps will be taken to lease the Inn property in the future and to operate the other properties somewhat along the lines recommended in the report of The Research Service, Inc., made to the Trustees two years ago.

Respectfully submitted,

GREEN ACRE TRUSTEES,

ALLEN McDaniel,
Chairman.
"O My beloved friends! You are the bearers of the name of God in this Day. You have been chosen as the repositories of His mysteries. It behooves each one of you to manifest the attributes of God, and to exemplify by your deeds and words the signs of His righteousness, His power and glory. The very members of your body must bear witness to the loftiness of your purpose, the integrity of your life, the reality of your faith, and the exalted character of your devotion. . . . Be­seech the Lord your God to grant that no earthly entanglements, no worldly afflictions, no ephemeral pursuits, may tarnish the purity or embitter the sweetness of that grace which flows through you. I am preparing you for the advent of a mighty Day. Exert your utmost endeavor that, in the world to come, I, who am now in­structing you, may, before the mercy-seat of God, rejoice in your deeds and glory in your achievements."—The Báb’s parting words to Letters of the Living. A LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

The Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada, through the Spiritual Assemblies.

Beloved friends:

The National Assembly elected by the recent Convention has sought, by consultation and by prayer, those sources of Guidance which alone can make its services to Shoghi Effendi and to the believers truly effective at this crucial time.

This coming Bahá’í year, for every American believer, will be one of profound significance. Little by little we will be able to understand the Providential forces which inspired the Guardian to give us his translation, and his discerning editorship, of Nabil’s Narrative, and immediately after its publication to issue to us the communication dated March 21, 1932, recently sent to all American Bahá’ís under the title of "The Golden Age of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh," in which we are addressed as "Fellow-defenders" of the Faith.

"In the blood of the unnumbered martyrs of Persia," Shoghi Effendi writes in that communication, "lay the seed of the Divinely-appointed Administration which, though transplant­ed from its native soil, is now budding out, under your loving care, into a new order, destined to overshadow all mankind. For great as have been the attainments and unforgettable the services of the pioneers of the heroic age of the Cause in Persia, the contribu­tion which their spiritual descendents, the American believers, the champion builders of the organic structure of the Cause, are now making towards the fulfillment of the Plan which must usher in the golden age of the Cause is no less meritorious in this strenuous period of its history.

When read at the Convention, these words evoked in every delegate and believer present a deeper understanding of the vital importance of the Plan of United Action, adopted in order to complete the external decoration of the Temple. Since, as our Guardian has affirmed, the completion of the Temple is the condition laid down by Divine Wisdom for the golden age of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh, nothing must prevent us from making, collectively, the contribution of $150,000 needed for the first unit of external decoration by June, 1933.

It was in the form of a united, heart-felt pledge that the Convention responded by sending Shoghi Effendi this message: "Profoundly impressed America’s Divine destiny. Conscio­us our incapacity for heroic task, will unitedly press forward under Guardian’s invincible leadership in fulfillment Plan ushering in golden age of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh."

"Would to God," Shoghi Effendi writes in concluding his message of March 21, "that by the end of the spring of the year 1933 the multitudes who, from the remote corners of the globe, will throng the grounds of the Great Fair to be held in the neighborhood of that hallowed shrine may, as a result of your sustained spirit of self-sacrifice, be privileged to gaze on the arrayed splendour of its dome—a dome that shall stand as a flaming beacon and a symbol of hope amidst the gloom of a despairing world."

It is the essence of faith to recognize that with a call from on high there comes, simultaneously, the kindling flame which, entering the hearts of the believers, inspires the superhuman power to give the call effect. That call from on high has reached the hearts of American Bahá’ís—may we be among the faithful who, by self-sacrifice, can contribute to the full success of the Temple Plan!

Sacrifice and Concentration of Effort

The first endeavor of the National Assembly has been to find ways and means by which the combined efforts of the believers, fed from the "hidden springs of celestial strength," can move forward steadily toward the mighty goal.

Not only sacrifice, but concentration of effort, is needed throughout the coming year in greater measure than ever before. The Assembly urges each American believer, anxious to respond to the Guardian’s plea, to acquaint himself with the details of the Plan and associate himself whole­heartedly with its progressive unfold­ment.

In order to bend every energy of the Cause in America to the one supreme task, the National Assembly takes this first opportunity to explain its general aims and methods.

Bahá’í News

The monthly and also special numbers of Baha'i News recently published have made a great advance in the direction of Shoghi Effendi's expressed hope that this publication shall one day become the foremost Bahá'í newspaper in the world.

Not merely for economy but also in order that under the special conditions facing us at this time Baha'i News may do its part in maintaining continuous and immediate communication between the National Assembly and all the believers called upon to support the Plan of Unified Action, it has been decided to reduce its size to four pages and have it edited and published from the National Office. During this period of sacrifice and concentration, Baha'i News is to be conducted as the National Assembly's bulletin, or monthly letter, to the friends. We hope that the result of success in completing the Plan will be, in the near future, to provide far larger facilities for the extension both of Baha'i News and The Baha'i Magazine than either publication has been granted so far.

Monthly Reports

The National Assembly requests each Local Spiritual Assembly to make a monthly report of its activities in the various fields of Bahá'í effort: Teaching, Inter-Racial Amity, National Fund, etc. These reports will have a twofold value—first, in permitting each Local Assembly to grow in responsibility and administrative capacity by more careful study of its affairs and more efficient planning of all local activities; and second, by enabling the National Assembly to become better acquainted with the progress of the Cause in America as a whole. These reports may deal frankly with problems and difficulties as well as with constructive service and accomplishment. In our Cause, many obstacles vanish when sincerely and humbly faced.

Assemblies in the Pacific States are instructed to send their monthly reports to Mr. Leroy Ions, 640 46th Avenue, San Francisco; Assemblies in the Central States should send them to Mr. Carl Scheffler, 1821 Lincoln Street, Evanston, Illinois; and Assemblies in the Eastern States to Mr. Siegfried Schopflocher, 1102 University Street, Montreal, Quebec. Through these channels the reports will be transmitted to the National Assembly.

Monthly reports are also requested from each Committee of the National Assembly. These are to be sent to the Secretary, Evergreen Cabin, West Englewood, New Jersey. To meet the new conditions of the world, and effect every possible economy of effort and money, National Committees are urged to plan their work so as to build Bahá'í activity upon the substantial foundation of the Local Assemblies. The National Assembly, and its Committees, will seek to avoid unnecessary and complicated arrangements not part of the permanent, administrative body of the Cause. To assist in releasing the tremendous spiritual forces latent in all local Baha'i communities, and must be our highest aim. As the Guardian pointed out many years ago, authority is vested in the National Assembly, power in the Local Assembly. Obviously, such institutions as our three Bahá'í Summer Schools do not fall within the range of this general principle.

Since the new plan for Baha'i News will not permit the National Assembly to publish all news of interest and importance, Local Assemblies are urged to issue Inter-Assembly letters conveying details of the activities and services of local character rendered by members of their communities.

The Supreme Objective

To finish the Temple dome before the opening of the Chicago Exposition, contributions to the National Fund will be required in the amount of $150,000, plus the annual budget, approximately $25,300 for activities administered by the National Assembly, approximately $10,000 for Temple operation administered by the Temple Trustees, and approximately $2,500 for Green Acre operation administered by the Green Acre Trustees, a total of $187,300.

We need not be dismayed by this seemingly impossible sum.

The item of $150,000 for Temple construction has been analyzed as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Cost</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Cost of molds</td>
<td>$30,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Decoration of the nine ribs</td>
<td>72,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Decoration of the nine dome</td>
<td>48,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sections</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>$150,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Under this analysis the cost of each of the ribs is $8,000. Each dome section consists of three strips, cast and applied separately, making twenty-seven units of external decoration, the cost of each being one-twenty-seventh of $48,000, or $1,777.77/7.

Thus, as soon as the molds are prepared, which requires $30,000, the actual external decoration can proceed at the rate of less than $1,000 per unit until the nine sections are cast and applied, after which the nine ribs will be made at the cost of $8,000 each.

$10,000 has already been made available toward the cost of the molds. (Note: All the molds made for this first Temple in the West can be used for other similar Bahá'í Houses of Worship in the future.)

Assuming 1,800 contributing believers, it follows that donations averaging only $1.00 each (over and above the current yearly budget) will produce one of the twenty-seven strips. By considering the matter in this light, the Temple construction resolves itself into the wholly spiritual problem of maintaining unswerving, conscious and loving devotion among all the believers for the supreme objective established by the Guardian for his present Bahá'í year.

"Spiritual Descendants of the Persian Martyrs"

In terming the American believers the "spiritual descendants" of those whose complete sacrifice of self revealed the power of the Cause of God in the land of its birth, the Guardian has described the greatness and also the true character of our task. We, too, must sacrifice self in the path. In the ordering of our daily lives so that every penny of surplus funds may be transmuted by consecration to Bahá'í use; in the rending of those veils of personality which separate the workers in each local community and prevent the outpouring of the Light of Truth and the Fire of Love; in raising our hearts to the plane of prayer and our minds to the degree of meditation; in constant, unremitting study of the creative Word; in the faithful performance of every Bahá'í duty assigned us by our co-workers and enthusiastic association with our fellow-believers at Nineteen-Day Feasts, Anniversaries and other meetings—thus, and thus alone may we arise to the heights of the privilege foreseen for us collectively by Shoghi Effendi, the inspired Mouthpiece on earth of the celestial powers.

This communication is long and detailed. The members of the National Assembly can only ask for your loving consideration of the needs of this tremendous hour which have made full explanation imperative.

Faithfully your co-workers,

The National Spiritual Assembly,

HORACE HOLLEY, Secretary

"Fear not the threats of the wicked, neither be dismayed by the clamour of the ungodly. Each one of you has his appointed hour, and when that time is come, neither the assaults of your enemy nor the endeavours of your friends will be able either to retard or advance that hour. If the powers of the earth league themselves against you, they will be powerless, ere that hour strikes, to lessen by one jot or tittle the span of your life."—Quddus to his companions. (The Dawn-Breakers, page 92.)

BAHA'I SUMMER SCHOOLS

"Shoghi Effendi feels that the real purpose of these Summer Schools is to deepen the knowledge of the friends. Lectures are very essential for they give a wonderful picture of the subject matter. But it is not sufficient to have a picture; the friends should deepen their knowledge and this can be achieved if, together with the lectures, there are study classes and seminar work carried on, by the same lecturer. The world is undoubtedly facing a great crisis and the social, economic and political conditions are becoming daily more complex. Should the friends desire to take the lead in informing the world, they should start by educating themselves and understand what the troubles and problems really are which baffle the minds of men. It is in these Summer Schools that this training should be provided for the friends." (Shoghi Effendi, through his secretary, to Mr. John Bosch.)

1. Green Acre

Green Acre will be open from July first until Labor Day. The efficient and devoted services of Mrs. Flora Valentine have been secured again this year.

Room and board at the Inn and adjacent cottages may be obtained at prices ranging from $15 to $25 per week for single room with board, and from $15 to $20 per week for double room and board. By the middle of July the Tea House will be opened and tea and light refreshments served a la carte. Rooms at the Inn and cottages can only be obtained at the rate which includes the price of meals. Guests taking rooms at Fellowship House may board at the Inn for $12 per week, or $1.85 per day, Sundays $2.00.

Inquiries concerning rooms at Fellowship House, including lodging in the dormitory, and concerning camp sites and facilities for a community kitchen, should be directed to Miss Agnes O'Neill, Vice-Chairman, Green Acre Properties Committee, Eliot, Maine.

Green Acre imposes no distinction of race, class or creed.

Dr. and Mrs. Glenn Shook announce that their home will be open to several girls at $7 per week, or $1 per day per person, for room and board. Inquiries should be addressed to Mrs. Glenn Shook, Norton, Mass., to June 20, and after that date, Eliot, Maine.

The Bahá'í Summer School to be conducted at Green Acre by the Faculty appointed by the National Assembly (Dr. Glenn Shook, Chairman, Dr. Genevieve Coy, Mrs. May Maxwell, Mr. Louis Gregory, and Mrs. Mary Coristine, Vice-Chairman) will include the following interesting courses—a detailed announcement will be made next month:

1. Early History of the Bahá'í Cause in Persia (From The Dawn-Breakers).
2. The New World Order: Economic Questions; Human Relations.
3. The New World Order: Universal Peace; Education for Peace.
4. The New World Order: Abolition of Racial Prejudice; Progress toward Reconciliation; Organizations Promoting Better Racial Relationships; Artistic Achievements of the Colored Race.
5. Bahá'í Economics.
8. Psychological Principles for the Control of Personality: The Remaking of the Personality.
9. Teaching the Bahá'í Cause: Equipment of the Teacher; Varying Methods of Approach to People of Different Backgrounds.

Special Conferences: On Experiences in Teaching the Cause; On Esperanto Around the World; On the World We Want to Live In.

Of special interest to Esperantists, and to Bahá'ís wishing to study Esperanto, is the announcement that one of the cottages adjacent to the Inn has been placed at the disposal of Esperanto Informo, 50 Congress Street, Boston, Mass. This Esperanto organization will conduct the cottage as an "Esperanto-Domo" during the Green Acre season. Only Esperanto will be spoken within the Domo, and an hourly lesson in Esperanto will be given free each day. On March 14, 1932, Shoghi Effendi, through his secretary, wrote the following letter to Mr. Winthrop Lee, one of the officers of Esperanto Informo: "The Bahá'ís have always considered with deep interest and esteem the wonderful work the Esperantists are achieving in putting into practice one of the foremost principles of their Faith. Many of their numbers have been encouraged to study that language and participate in promoting its many interests. They would therefore be very willing to cooperate with you in matters that are of mutual interest. . . . May God hasten the day when your hopes as well as ours will be realized."

2. Geyserville, California

(Preliminary Announcement)

The sixth annual season of the Bahá'í Summer School at Geyserville, California, will open with the Unity Feast at noon on Sunday, July 3, 1932, and continue for two weeks to July 16th inclusive. The school dates have been set earlier this year so as not to conflict with the meetings planned by the friends in Southern California for the Olympic Games which start the end of July.

The program and study courses of the school this year will center around "The Goal of a New World Order." The daily program, therefore, will consist of two lectures followed by seminars each morning, study and round-table discussions on certain afternoons and public meetings on various evenings. There will also be a prepared course of instruction and recreation for the children under the supervision of a special committee.

The friends are requested to bring any Bahá'í and secular literature that bears on the New World Order and Bahá'í Administration.

The program is being prepared and will be issued in the near future.

On Sunday, July 10th, an informal teaching conference will be held, under the direction of the National Teaching Committee, to review the latest teaching work; inter-Assembly cooperation and new methods of approach.

The housing and eating arrangements will be the same as last year. Excellent camping locations are available.

It is very important for the friends and students who plan to attend the Summer School to notify Mrs. John D. Bosch, Geyserville, just as soon as possible of their time of arrival and length of stay.

The Committee appointed by the National Assembly consists of Mr. L. W. Eggleston, Mrs. Dorothy Baker and Mrs. Bertha Hyde Kirkpatrick. From this Committee the following announcement has been received:—

The Summer School will hold its second session at Louhelen Ranch, Davison, Michigan, July 30 to August 8.

Those attending the session last summer were enthusiastic over it. The confirmations of the Spirit were present in that harmony prevailed, the Glad Tidings were spread, souls were confirmed. In regard to it Ruhi Abbasi wrote:

"To achieve success in such manner the first year is surely beyond what we could expect. Shoghi Effendi hopes that the friends will make the necessary preparation to do even more next season. Such gatherings will give chance to friends from different localities to come together and exchange views on the different problems of the Cause and also attract new souls to the spirit and teachings of the Faith. Not only will their knowledge of the writings deepen but also the unity of the Cause will be strengthened and the work of teaching be enhanced. It is surely a wonderful service Mr. and Mrs. Eggleston have rendered to the Cause. It is only God that can compensate them for it.

"Shoghi Effendi was very glad to hear that so many souls were confirmed there. As we see the suffering around us, caused by the prevailing financial crisis, we should redouble our efforts in bringing the message of comfort and peace to those desperate souls, and add to our labors, that the golden age promised by Bahá'u'lláh may dawn sooner."

In Shoghi Effendi's own hand are added these words:

"The account regarding your Bahá'í summer school is most encouraging and augurs well for the future. I wish you to persevere in your efforts and extend its scope and influence. I will especially pray for the success of your devoted and continued efforts."

(Signed) Your true brother, Shoghi.

On account of the high cost of this work, and the importance of meeting the cost without calling upon the National Assembly for an appropriation, the Publishing Committee does not allow Librarians the usual discount in remitting for this book.

THE DAWN-BREAKERS

Believers who read this issue of Bahá'í News are urged to pay most careful attention to the several excerpts chosen from "The Dawn-Breakers," the Guardian's translation of the early history of the Bahá'í Faith. In Local Communities where a beginning has been made on the study of this miraculous book, the friends are stirred by the profound realization that in this work they have received a source of new and precious spiritual inspiration.

Once more we quote the cablegram sent by Shoghi Effendi to the National Assembly on November 2, 1931: "Urge all English speaking believers concentrate (on) study (of) Nabil's Immortal Narrative as essential preliminary to renewed intensive Teaching campaign necessitated by completion (of) Masrichul-Adhkár. Strongly feel widespread use of its varied, rich and authentic material constitutes most effective weapon to meet challenge of critical hour."

The first of the numbered, special edition of 150 volumes containing the Guardian's autograph has been sent to Shoghi Effendi inscribed with the love of the American Bahá'ís. The Publishing Committee, through Mrs. Marion Little, Secretary, has received a cablegram from Shoghi Effendi expressing his gratitude and high appreciation of the excellence of the printing.

A sample copy has been sent by the Publishing Committee to each Assembly Librarian, that the friends may inspect the book and come to realize its vital importance. Local Assemblies may obtain copies on consignment, and have full right to allow members of their communities to purchase the book by installment payments, payable to the local Librarian. The standard edition sells for $7.50; the autograph edition for $35.00.

"The palatial residence I have built with the sole intention that it should be eventually demolished in the path of the Cause, and the stately furnishings with which I have adorned it have been purchased in the hope that one day I shall be able to sacrifice them for the sake of my Beloved. Then will friends and foes alike see that he who owned this house was endowed with so great and priceless a heritage that an earthly mansion, however sumptuously adorned and magnificently equipped, had no worth in his eyes; that it had sunk, in his estimation, to the state of a heap of bones to which only the dogs of the earth could feel attracted. Would that such compelling evidence of the spirit of renunciation were able to open the eyes of this perverse people, and to stir in them the desire to follow the steps of him who showed that spirit."—Vahid to his wife. (The Dawn-Breakers, page 473-474.)
O SON OF SPIRIT!
My first counsel is this: Possess a pure, kindly and radiant heart, that shine may be a sovereignty ancient, imperishable and everlasting.

A CABLEGRAM FROM SHOGHI EFFENDI
"Assembly's momentous decision fraught with incalculable consequences, worldwide benefits. Greatest Holy Leaf filled with delight. Both devoutly praying (for) unrelaxing determination (to) consummate heroic enterprise. Abiding gratitude."
(Signed) SHOGHI.
Haifa, June 10, 1932.

LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY
The Baha'is of the United States and Canada.
Beloved friends:

The Guardian's cabled message, quoted above, clearly indicates the importance which Shoghi Effendi attaches to an action taken by the Temple Trustees since the June number of Baha'i News was issued.

This action consisted in the decision to make an immediate beginning of construction work on the Temple dome unit—the goal of our collective effort this year—rather than to await until the entire sum of $150,000 had been raised.

The Trustees had on hand a Temple Construction Fund of $10,000. They were informed of the urgent need to have the work begun at once, as otherwise the time required on construction would make it impossible to complete the dome by the date, June 1, 1933, fixed by the Guardian. The Trustees were also informed that it would be possible to make a contract under the terms of which the construction might proceed as rapidly as permitted by funds in hand, without assuming liability for any amount aside from whatever definite appropriations are voted from time to time.

"Feel impelled appeal entire body American believers (to) henceforth regard Nabil's soul-stirring Narrative as essential adjunct to reconstructed Teaching program, as unchallengeable textbook in their Summer Schools, as source of inspiration in all literary (and) artistic pursuits, as an invaluable companion in times of leisure, as indispensable preliminary to future pilgrimage (to) Baha'u'llah's native land, and as unfailing instrument to ally distress and resist attacks of critical, disillusioned humanity."
(Cablegram signed) SHOGHI.
Haifa, June 21, 1932.

Such a contract, therefore, has been made. The contractor is John J. Earley of Washington, D. C. Mr. Earley has perfected a process which the late Louis G. Bourgeois, Temple architect, considered by far the best for the carrying out of his unique plan of external decoration. Mr. Earley, furthermore, has been recommended by two different committees appointed to investigate the matter of material adapted to the external decoration of the Bahá'í House of Worship. The model prepared by Mr. Earley a few years ago and since then exposed to the weather on the Temple grounds, has perfectly met the test. Moreover, specific requests made to other firms for an estimate of cost have brought no satisfactory result.

The believers may have full confidence that in Mr. Earley we have a creative genius and an experienced, conscientious craftsman whose skill and whose enthusiasm fit him ideally for the task of producing a material embodiment of Mr. Bourgeois' marvelous and intricate design which will reflect its beauty and endure for centuries to come.

The Research Service, Inc., which supervised the building of the Temple superstructure, have been appointed the engineering representatives to supervise the work for the Trustees, at the special request of Mr. Earley.

Among the structures which have already proved the quality of the Earley process are: Church of the Sacred Heart and Ambulatory of the Monastery, Washington, D. C., the Parthenon, Nashville, Tenn., the Fountain of Time, Chicago, and the great Du Pont Conservatories, Wilmington, Del.

The vital thing is that an important step has already been taken to fulfill the Guardian's ardent hopes respecting the completion of the Temple dome unit (as made known to the believers in Baha'i News for June) before the opening of the Exposition at Chicago next spring. The $10,000 already appropriated on the contract will make a substantial beginning, but the members of the National Assembly must rely upon the power of the Faith, inspiring the believers throughout the United States and Canada, to continue a steady flow of contributions so that the mighty task may proceed without interruption.

The progress of construction work, illustrated whenever possible by photographs, will be reported regularly to the believers.

Imbued by steadfast faith, steered by true spiritual understanding, inspired by Shoghi Effendi's Providential leadership, and whole-heartedly unified in an indomitable effort to play our part at this time of worldwide confusion, may the American believers give evidence, as it has been given by the Persian believers before us, that the Bahá'í Faith offers the sole source of regeneration and order in this Day of God!

Do we feel the lack of capacity; are we inclined to the attitude that inaction at least has the merit of real humility? But the Guardian—in a cablegram appearing in this same issue... of Baha'i News — asserts that if we turn to the Nabil Narrative we shall find a source of power greater than ourselves.

Ten years have passed since the Guardian evoked the station of maturity among the believers. Surely now at last we can put behind us the doubts and troubles and hesitations of spiritual childhood, and concentrate calmly and firmly upon our constructive task.

Faithfully your co-workers,

The National Spiritual Assembly, Horace Holley, Secretary.

NATIONAL COMMITTEES

Requests to accept committee appointments have been sent to the believers named in the following lists. The National Assembly hopes that each of these believers will recall the Guardian's advice about not refusing the results of Baha'i elections and appointments, and endeavor to render active service, despite any obstacles that may confront him or her at this time.

Inter-Racial Amity Committee: Loulie A. Mathews, Chairman, Louis G. Gregory, Secretary, Mrs. Witt, Dr. Bagdadi, Mabelle L. Davis, Coralie Cook, Mrs. Shelley N. Parker, Dorothy Richardson, Mrs. Edwin Horne.

Temple Program Committee: Carl Scheffler, Chairman, Mrs. Bartholomew, Secretary, Willis Hilpert, Sara Walrath, Mrs. Albert Matthiesen, Mrs. Shelley N. Parker, Dr. Edris Rice-Wray, Monroe Ioas, Mrs. Ullrich.

Study Outlines: Mary Collison, Marguerite McKay.

Training and Teaching Children: Mrs. J. W. Gift, Chairman, Miss Charlotte Linfoot, Secretary. (Other members to be appointed.)

Free Literature: George Latimer, Chairman, Louise Caswell, Helen Bishop.

Publishing Committee: Horace Holley, Chairman, Marion Little, Secretary, Roy C. Wilhelm, Marie B. Moore, Bertha Herklotz, Clara B. Wood.

Baha'i Magazine—Business Manager: Margaret McDaniel.

Reviewing Committee: Doris Holley, Chairman, Marie B. Moore, Dr. Genevieve Coy.

Editorial Committee: Dr. Genevieve Coy, Chairman, Marie B. Moore, Horace Holley.

Editing Tablets of 'Abdu'l-Baha: Corinne True, Chairman. (Other members to be appointed.)

Archives Committee: Albert R. Windust, Chairman, Gertrude Buckena, Secretary, May Scheffler.

Green Acres Faculty: Glen A. Shook, Chairman, Mary S. Coristine, Vice-Chairman, Dr. Genevieve Coy, May Maxwell, Louis G. Gregory.

Baha'i Summer School at Gelsey: John D. Bosch, Chairman, George Latimer, Leroy Ioas, Amelia Collins, Ella G. Cooper.

Baha'i Summer School at Louhelen Ranch: L. W. Eggleton, Dorothy Baker, Mrs. John Kirkpatrick. Editorial Committee: The Baha'i World (Volume V): Horace Holley, Chairman, Nellie S. French, Secretary, Albert R. Windust, Wanden LaFarge, Marion Holley, Bahiyih Lindstrom.

Committee on Bahai Music: Louise D. Wright, Chairman, Mrs. Albert Matthiesen, Secretary, Albert R. Windust, Edith Inglis, Margaret Klehs, Ruth Lunt.

Sales Committee: Grant Spaulding, Chairman, R. Y. Mottahadeh, Ali M. Yazdi.

Accountant: Albert Matthiesen.

Economics Committee: To be appointed.

SON OF SPIRIT!

The best beloved of all things in My sight is Justice: turn not away therefore from Me, and neglect not that I may confide in thee. By its aid thou shalt see with thine own eyes and not through the eyes of others, and shalt know of thine own knowledge and not through the knowledge of thy neighbor. Ponder this in thy heart; how it behooved thee to be, Verily justice is My gift to thee and the sign of My loving-kindness. Set it then before thine eyes.

NATIONAL TEACHING

To the Baha'is of the United States and Canada:

Beloved Friends:

In appointing the National Teaching Committee this year, the National Assembly has sought, by consultation with officers of this Committee and by consideration of recommendations made by the officers of the previous Teaching Committee, to adopt a general policy and attitude conforming to the special needs of this time.

The Teaching Committee, through its Western and Eastern executive members, takes this opportunity to convey to the Local Spiritual Assemblies and to the body of American believers its understanding of the aims and methods to be embodied in the National Teaching program during the present Baha'i year.

The Committee feels profoundly the immensity of our mutual responsibility, as American believers, to present the Baha'i Faith as the sole solution of the dire conditions threatening the collapse of civilization throughout the world. The time surely has come to give to humanity in greater and purer measure the constructive principles and regenerating spirit revealed by Baha'u'llah. No longer can we be passive and silent in the face of the progressive disintegration of human hopes, for knowledge of the path to God is identical with the most active and self-sacrificing efforts to summon others to that path.

The completion of the physical structure of the Temple, and the publication of the Guardian's translation of The Dawn-Breakers, combine as evidences that a new and mighty wave of spiritual power has arisen to reinforce the efforts of every faithful believer.

The hearts of the friends, we are assured, are stirred to the depths by the consciousness of the divine task we are called upon to do. The only question is agreement upon ways and means, and true inner unity necessary to attract the confirmation of the Holy Spirit.

The following outline of a National Teaching Plan contains no essentially new elements, but is rather the result of endeavor to penetrate more deeply into the realities of the Faith in relation to the needs of this crucially important year.

1. Let us regard every confirmed believer as a teacher, sharing his or her measure of responsibility for the triumph of the Cause. Unlike the older religions, we are not divided into a clerical and lay body. Even though some souls have greater capacity and experience than others in teaching, nevertheless this does not create arbitrary distinction nor confer special privilege. Our spiritual status is one — all are servants, all have the same rank as voting members of the Bahá’í community.

The hope is that this year more individuals will become active in the teaching field. None can hide behind the accomplishments of others. The same Power will confirm the efforts of one as confirms the effort of another.

2. The essential administrative unit is the Local Spiritual Assembly and its community. The Cause must go forward on the knowledge, loyalty and unified action of the Local Assemblies. An important part of the work of the Teaching Committee this year is to assist Local Assemblies to become more energetic and more efficient in promoting teaching plans which will include, if possible, every member of their community. Bahá’í teaching, unlike the work of formal churches, can and must be done in hundreds of different ways. Every type of believer is needed. As the Guardian has said, the most useful suggestion might be advanced by the humblest believer. The Teaching Committee hopes that the subject of teaching will be discussed continuously in all Local Communities, until each Assembly becomes the focal center of a mighty outflowing spiritual power.

Specifically, each Local Spiritual Assembly is requested to undertake the development of at least one new Bahá’í community in its locality, sending a succession of teachers there until the community is prepared to elect its own Assembly. The more work we do in a new field, the better we can serve in our own home community. Let us kindle the enthusiasm of all Bahá’í workers, and give free rein to initiative in serving the Cause.

3. To achieve complete success, every teacher should work directly under the supervision and recognition of his or her Spiritual Assembly. A teacher traveling to another city, where an Assembly exists, is to serve under that Assembly while in its sphere of jurisdiction.

4. With increased individual service, more Assembly effort and the expansion of the Cause into new localities, the need of mutual assistance in providing teachers and planning follow-up work will tend to bring neighboring Assemblies into active cooperation.

Where conditions justify it, inter-Assembly conferences can be held at intervals, the result of which will be to stimulate new ideas, increase enthusiasm and energy and lead to more openings for believers hitherto inactive. In some localities, inter-Assembly conferences have been the greatest factor in developing teaching activity. These conferences, however, are not a direct part of Bahá’í administration, and should be regarded as having consultative value but not special authority.

5. A new National Committee has been appointed to perfect ways and means for the education and training of children. When this Committee reports, Local Assemblies will be better fitted to discharge their responsibility toward children.

6. With means lacking to meet the expenses of large public meetings, and for any considerable travel on the part of teachers, the right use of Bahá’í literature seems of vital importance. Other Committees are at work studying the field of free literature, and this subject will be referred to more adequately at a later date.

7. Most essential of all is the holding of local Study Classes, that the believers themselves may become better grounded in the Teachings, and that those attracted by lectures and addresses may have opportunity for continuous progress until they become fully confirmed. The vital importance of “The Dawn-Breakers” as a textbook is emphasized in the Guardian’s cablegram of June 21, published elsewhere in this issue.

8. Each Assembly, and every individual believer, should keep in close and constant communication with the National Teaching Committee in the development of new communities. The National Assembly has voted that before any community is accepted as having a Spiritual Assembly, the recommendation of the National Teaching Committee will be secured that the new group is prepared for service in the Cause.

9. In order to carry on its work more effectively, the Teaching Committee has been organized with an Eastern and a Western branch, with regional members covering all parts of the country.

The duties of the regional members will consist particularly in visiting Local Assemblies, encouraging the extension of teaching work, and serve the aims described above by maintaining constant contact with Assemblies and groups in their respective regions. They will also initiate inter-Assembly conferences and assist in their success.

In conclusion, we express the heartfelt hope that this year, as never before, all believers will become conscious that their Bahá’í life depends upon active service as cells in the new spiritual organism, and that as the result of deeper consciousness and greater devotion, the Guardian’s wishes for the Temple may be completely realized.

Yours faithfully,
National Teaching Committee.

O SON OF MAN!
Veiled in My immemorial being and in the ancient eternity of My essence,
I knew My love for thee; therefore I created thee, have engraved on thee
Mine image and revealed to thee My beauty.
LETTERS FROM HAIFA

The National Assembly is grateful to the Assemblies and individual believers who from time to time share the contents of letters received from Shoghi Effendi. Excerpts from such letters recently received are here published for the inspiration and guidance of our co-workers.

"Public speaking is undoubtedly very important for a person who desires to teach, but this should be learned in schools and classes especially arranged for such training. We should not permit an inferior presentation of the Cause to the public for the sole reason that we desire to learn to do it better in the future. The youth should be encouraged to train themselves in public speaking while they are still pursuing their studies in schools or colleges.

"It is surely very necessary that the friends should keep in touch with the modern social movements, but their main objective should be to draw more people to the spirit and teachings of the Cause. They should learn from the experience of others and not permit themselves to go (off) at a tangent, and finally be so absorbed in other movements as to forget the Cause of God." (To Mrs. Harding, Urbana, through Ruhi Afnan. Received December 25, 1931).

"You mentioned in one of your letters that some of the old believers who for many years had kept away are now coming back and attending the meetings. How wonderful it would be if all such persons, together with all those who met the Master and whose life was changed through His influence would come along and help us in spreading these divine teachings! Perhaps the friends should take the initiative and make their meetings so inspiring and their activities so interesting and far-reaching in importance that they would of their own accord come forward and lend us their help." (To Roy C. Wilhelm, West Englewood, through Ruhi Afnan, March 9, 1932.)

"Every now and then we hear that a new Assembly has been formed and that more people are being attracted to the Cause, but there is still much to be desired. As you mention in your letter the Cause needs some more people who are able to shoulder its responsibilities and extend real help in promoting its many interests, both spiritual and material. These people whom we are so eagerly awaiting to appear will not, however, come of their own accord. They have to be brought in. It is for us to become active and really spread the Message." (To Allen B. McDaniel, Washington, D. C., through Ruhi Afnan, April 4, 1932.)

"Another essential thing is that those who do embrace the Faith should be constantly urged to study the literature of the Cause. It is not sufficient that our numbers should increase, we want people whose faith stands on a rock no trial can move. We want people who in turn arise and carry the message to other people and guide others.

"From every corner of the earth letters come to Shoghi Effendi asking for teachers, but he is far, far from being able to answer all the demands. The only way we can satisfy that need is to have every Baha'i follow the command of Baha'u'llah and become himself a teacher. And that task is not so very impossible; it only needs a thorough knowledge of the teachings and a burning desire to spread the message." (To Spiritual Assembly of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Franyce, Secretary, through Ruhi Afnan, April 13, 1932.)

"As to teaching work in colleges and universities, this is very important, for students as a whole are open-minded and little influenced by tradition. They would easily enter the Cause if the subject is properly presented and their intellect and sentiments properly satisfied. This, however, should be attempted only by persons who have had university training and are therefore acquainted with the mind of the intelligent and educated youth.

"The movement surely needs educated and devoted souls who will through their deeds as well as pen promulgate the teachings throughout the world." (To Mrs. Mabel Paine and Miss Sylvia Paine, Urbana, through Ruhi Afnan, received in April, 1932.)

"A group that does not progress and show signs of life will soon die out and be forgotten. We have to keep virile and remain active and desire our Cause to prosper and become an active force in shaping the destiny of the world... You asked concerning some plans whereby funds could be gathered for the Temple. Shoghi Effendi believes that the best and noblest method is to have free donations that are made spontaneously and with the sense of making some sacrifice in furthering the Cause. It is with sacrifice that this Temple is to be built. This is the truly worthy method. This principle therefore excludes any method whereby the help of non-Baha'is is included." (To Kenosha Spiritual Assembly, through Ruhi Afnan, April 14, 1932.)

"He (Shoghi Effendi) was very sorry to learn that you are passing through difficult times, but such seems to be the fate of every single person on the surface of the earth at the present time. When such a crisis sweeps over the world no person should hope to remain intact. We belong to an organic unit and when one part of the organism suffers all the rest of the body will feel its consequences. This is in fact the reason why Baha'u'llah calls our attention to the unity of mankind. But as Baha'is we should not let such hardships weaken our hope in the future. Read the last general letter of Shoghi Effendi ("The Golden Age of the Cause of Baha'u'llah") and see the description of the future which he has tried to put before our eyes. We may be suffering at present but that will soon cease and glorious days will dawn.

"In all such matters as you mention in your letter, Shoghi Effendi wishes the friends to take the Assemblies into their confidence and discuss it with them. Being on the spot they can judge better and take into consideration all the different aspects of the problem. We should always trust the Assemblies and go to them for advice. Our debts, however, should be considered as sacred and take precedence over any other thing (i.e., payment of debts comes before contributions to the Cause) for upon this principle does the foundation of our economic life rest." (To a Baha'i family of Kenosha, through Ruhi Afnan, April 14, 1932.)

BAHA'I DIRECTORY

Each Local Assembly will be supplied with a Baha'i Directory for Inter-Assembly correspondence as soon as the National Assembly receives the Assembly Enrollment forms which were sent out in May. Returns are awaited from Buffalo, Eliot, Visalia, Racine and Baltimore.

A CORRECTION

On page 2 of the special Convention Issue of Baha'i News, in the Convention Report under sub-heading "Feast of Ridvan," where Mr. Windust refers to Some Answered Questions as shedding light upon the station of the Guardian, the reference should be to page 67 and not 57 of that volume.

O SON OF MAN!

If thou livest Me, turn away from thyself; and if thou seest My pleasure, regard not thine own, that thou mayest die in Me and I may eternally live in thee.
O SON OF SPIRIT!
There is no peace for thee save by renouncing thyself and turning unto Me; for it behoveth thee to glory in My name, not in thine own; to put thy trust in Me and not in thyself, since I desire to be loved alone and above all that is.

THE ASCENSION OF BAHIYYIH KHANUM

On July 15 the National Assembly received from the Guardian the following cablegram:—

Shoghi Effendi’s Message

“Greatest Holy Leaf’s immortal spirit winged its flight Great Beyond. Countless lovers her saintly life in East and West seized with pangs of anguish. Plunged in utterable sorrow humanity shall erelong recognize its irreparable loss. Our beloved Faith, well nigh crushed by devastating blow of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s unexpected Ascension, now laments passing (of) last remnant of Bahá’u’lláh, its most exalted member. Holy Family cruelly divested (of) its most precious great Adorning. I for my part bewail with pangs of grievous loss the joy and solace of my life. Remains will repose (in the) vicinity (of the) Holy Shrines. So grievous a bereavement necessitates suspension for nine months throughout Bahá’í world every manner religious festivity. Inform Local Assemblies and groups hold (in) befitting manner memorial gatherings (to) extol a life so laden with sacred experiences, so rich (in) imperishable memories. Arrange holding additional Commemoration Service of strictly devotional character (in the) Auditorium (of the) Mashriqu ’Adhkar. (Signed) Shoghi Effendi.

On that same day the Assembly dispatched cablegrams as follows:—

Messages to Haifa and National Assemblies Abroad

To Shoghi Effendi. “Throughout America the followers of Bahá’u’lláh will share your extreme sorrow in loss of one whose life exemplified the perfect believer. May we faithfully walk upon path lighted by her glorious Faith and attain the goal she steadfastly upheld to East and West since earliest days of divine Cause.” (Signed) National Assembly.

To Munirih Khanum. “Our profoundest grief and sorrow unites us with each and every member of the Holy Family in the hour of withdrawal of that supreme embodiment of love.” (Signed) American Bahá’ís.

On July 18 a letter was sent to Local Assemblies and groups, quoting the Guardian’s message and requesting that Memorial Gatherings be held on Sunday, July 24. With that letter was sent a copy of the communication addressed to the Friends of the Lord and the Hand-Maidens of the Merciful throughout the West by Bahá’í Khanum on March 30, 1924.

The Temple Program Committee has been requested to prepare the Commemoration Service in the Mashriqu’Adhkar. Notice of this Service will be sent to Local Assemblies and groups.

Up to the date of this writing, the National Assembly has had no opportunity to consult upon the exact meaning for the American believers of the Guardian’s statement that every manner of religious festivity is to be suspended for nine months. The letters of inquiry already received will be answered as soon as possible.

It is not within the capacity of the National Assembly to add any comment to our Guardian’s message concerning the ascension of the Greatest Holy Leaf. May each believer ponder this occurrence within his or her own heart.

BABIYYIH KHANUM’S APPEAL

That the friends may draw near the spirit of that exalted Bahá’í soul who has rejoined her Father Bahá’u’lláh, let us consider anew some of the words written us in 1924.

“Let us then, affectionate brothers and sisters, ponder for awhile upon the underlying reason that had made God’s divine Messengers prefer a life of torture to one of ease, and those blessed martyrs, so many of them cut off in the springtime and promise of their youth, choose death with faces radiant with joy. What did the Bab sacrifice? His promising youth except out of a burning desire to have mankind live in unity and peace; and what was the spirit that animated those bold and heroic martyrs but love and adoration to a Cause they wished to triumph? What made Bahá’u’lláh, born and brought up in opulence, fling away all earthly possessions and choose upon Himself unspeakable hardships and deprivation, save for an earnest appeal to the world at large to turn their hatred for one another into genuine love and to make a world seething with blood a peaceful home for God’s children; and why did ‘Abdu’l-Bahá who could have chosen a life of ease and comfort, prefer to lead a crusade against the strongholds of human hearts and make a direct appeal to individuals as well as groups that unless we love one another with all our might and with all our heart.
we are absolutely doomed. He carried a crusade not with a sword of steel but with a sword of love and affection. And if we dare call ourselves Bahá'ís, it simply means that we have to follow in their wake. It means that we must always have the public weal in mind and not give up ourselves wholly to our inclinations and desires, and it means that we must picture before us the perseverance and self-sacrifice of those early volunteers and make a whole-hearted effort to be like unto one of them; and it shall be only in this way that we can safeguard this great Cause of God.

"This in brief, is what our beloved Guardian, Shoghi Effendi, is patiently and eagerly expecting from every single one of us. This, he says, should mark us from all other men and this should differentiate us from those to whom such a mission is something to believe in and not to inspire to action . . . .

"Finding that the individual letters were too many to answer in person and not wishing the progress of the Cause to be hampered by the slightest thing he sacrificed sending his personal messages of love and encouragement to the individual friends and he expressed his heart-felt sentiments in general letters to Assemblies and countries. The organization of the Assemblies was thus moving rapidly forward, the Cause was being spread in every country and Shoghi Effendi's heart the happiest for it all. Such were the circumstances when he received to his utter astonishment letters that he noted showed lack of love and unity among the loved ones of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. It grieved him very much to see some of those whom the Master so dearly loved, bear ill feeling towards one another and through their lack of love and unity and through denial to follow the advice of their Spiritual assemblies, relegate the whole standard of the Cause to a mere philosophy of life. Such news had great effect upon his tender heart and it reflected upon his physical health. Whereupon the wish and desire of the friends then present in Haifa, and through mine and the family's insistent appeal, he consented to take a rest during the hot summer season.

"All the happy news that we had received from abroad and that we had forwarded to him so filled his blessed heart again with encouragement and joy that upon his return from his summer rest he resumed his work with an astonishing zeal and activity. His heart was joyful and in his evening meetings with the friends he always shared the news he had received from abroad and through his encouraging words he instilled such a fervor in every single one present that they all felt they would fly away and share in this noble task. Indeed his love for those earnest workers had grown so great that he had decided to make an effort and append to the answer of each letter a short personal message in his own handwriting.

"Again the unexpected took place and the news reached from some centers that the spirit which 'Abdu'l-Bahá said should characterize every Bahá'í community does not prevail and that many have belittled the guidance of the different spiritual assemblies. His heart was thus sore and depressed and he again decided to seek seclusion until the friends realized their great responsibilities and make an effort toward real unity. I and the members of the house have put our power in our power to give him the happy news we had received from some countries and we begged him to change his decision but he said: 'My heart is very sensitive to such things. Inasmuch as I am rejoiced when I hear of true love and fellowship among my brothers and sisters, in an equal measure if not more I am grieved when I hear that such is not the case. It is quite true that every Bahá'í heart swells with love and adoration at the mention of the Báb, Bahá'u'lláh or the Master's name, and stands firm and true to the last word of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and for that I am very thankful to them, but you agree with me that this alone cannot be the emblem of this world Cause. There should be love and sympathy among the individuals of every group and true affection for one another should be the stamp for their hearts. Suppose a non-Bahá'í should ask us as to what should denote a Bahá'í and to differentiate him from everybody else, and were we to answer a hero-worship and adoration to the Center of the Cause that makes a Bahá'í willing to give up his life and property, he would be sure to answer you that that alone will not bring about the regeneration of the world. That alone will not wipe out international hatred fostered for ages past, and will not solve the economic plight before which the world stands aghast today. And were we to tell him that our religion proclaims certain principles that no one can challenge or deny, we would be told that principles alone are no proof of its effect either, and not until the Bahá'ís first translate these principles into their own everyday life and live according to the standard of the Cause they proclaim, will they be qualified to invite the whole world to come and follow their teachings. It is when the Bahá'ís prove their religion by no greater argument but actions and deeds that we are truly to be promoting the Cause and that men will come and willingly join our ranks.' And when he said, 'Many are carefully watching today the life and behaviour of the Bahá'ís and many are trying to estimate the true value of the Bahá'í Movement and the effect that it shall have in future through the ideas and self-sacrifice of its followers. The friends must therefore be very careful to wipe out of their ranks all feeling of hatred or misunderstanding and to replace it by genuine love. Just as discord among the friends has deeply grieved me, in every manner will their unity and harmony fill my heart and win over my life and strength to themselves. I shall now leave and when I see that the circumstances have changed and that sincere affection is the reigning force in every Bahá'í community, I shall at once return and cooperate with them with my heart and soul. Send this message to all my friends abroad.' After these touching remarks, two weeks ago he again left us to ourselves.

"Now brothers and sisters remember what our Master 'Abdu'l-Bahá tells us in His last Will. Let us recollect the passage where He asks us not to do anything that will depress and grieve Shoghi Effendi or mar the shining brightness and radiance of his heart, but always to try to help him in raising this lofty edifice of world-brotherhood. May we not keep that always in our memory and strive forward toward a unity that shall not only win the heart of every non-Bahá', but shall to a larger and larger measure gladden our own and dear Guardian. My days are numbered and my life is flying to a close and yet I feel certain that those dear ones abroad will accept this eager and humble appeal, and will make me cherish the hope that before I am called away and ready to separate in body from you, I can see genuine love and unity prevail among those my Master so dearly loved and I can witness with human eyes my Guardian's heart overflow with joy. This is what I beseech you and may it be fully realized.

The Guardian's Renewed Appeal

The unveiling guidance of the Guardian now once again points the path of true service in this cablegram.

* March, 1924. received July 21 —

"Entreat sorrow-stricken American believers never allow consciousness of their agonizing loss (to) paralyze (their) determination (to) prosecute an enterprise on which (the) adored Object (of) our mourning centered her brightest hopes."

As the friends know, this refers to the completion of the Temple.

LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

The Baha’is of the United States and Canada.

Beloved friends:

More than ten years ago, on January 21, 1922, the era of Justice dawned in the Cause with the Guardian’s first message to his “dearly beloved brethren and sisters in ‘Abdu’l-Bahá.”

During this period of time, the believers in all parts of the world have received loving instruction, tender exhortation and heart-felt warning concerning the vital importance of a Baha’i government which combines the two essentials of spirit and form, the two factors of free initiative and discipline, the two divine principles of love and justice, and the threefold elements of local, National and International jurisdiction.

The heart-felt warning, oft repeated, indicated to us that adherence to this government was, first, a test of the purity of each individual soul, and second, a matter of establishing the only perfect Baha’i unity capable of surviving the public calamities and social upheavals plainly foretold for this great Day of God.

Your associates and servants, the members of the National Spiritual Assembly, believe that the time has come when all American believers, without exception, should appreciate the infinite value of the Guardian’s loving instruction and understand the import of the note of exhortation and warning that sounds so dearly in his messages to the Baha’i world.

Surely, a period of ten years is sufficient for us to learn and apply the fundamental principle of the Cause in this new era—the principle of consultation which brings together all ideas and suggestions in a Local or National Baha’i community, and then establishes a definite source for final decision in the Spiritual Assembly.

It has become apparent to the National Assembly that in many Local communities the principle of full and frank consultation has not yet become thoroughly developed. The National Assembly has no power nor resources that will enable it to perform the obligations laid upon Local communities by the world order of Bahá’u’lláh. The National Assembly longs to see many and impressive evidences that Local Assemblies are arising to fulfil more of their wonderful opportunities for Baha’i service. Amid the threatening perils that surround humanity today, there is dire need for Local Baha’i communities fully conscious of their high mission and endeavoring to realize it with every available resource of prayer, consultation, study and action.

Faithfully your co-workers,

The National Spiritual Assembly,

Horace Holley, Secretary.

"The day wherein I found Thy beloved One, O my God, and recognized in Him the Manifestation of Thy eternal Spirit, I foresaw the woes that I should suffer for Thee. Great as have been until now my sorrows, they can never compare with the agonies that I would willingly suffer in Thy name. How can this miserable life of mine, the loss of my wife and of my child, compare with the blessings which the recognition of Thy Manifestation has bestowed on me! Would that a myriad lives were mine, would that I possessed the riches of the whole earth and its glory, that I might resign them all freely and joyously in Thy path."—Hujiya.

QUALIFICATIONS OF MEMBERSHIP IN A BAHÁ’Í COMMUNITY

On October 24, 1925, in response to a request for information on how Local Spiritual Assemblies should determine the qualifications of those to be enrolled as members of a Baha’i community, the Guardian (Baha’i Administration, page 81) gave the following explanation: "Regarding the very delicate and complex question of ascertaining the qualifications of a true believer, I cannot in this connection emphasize too strongly the supreme necessity for the exercise of the utmost discretion, caution and tact, whether it be in deciding for ourselves as to who may be regarded as a true believer or in disclosing to the outside world such considerations as may serve as a basis for such a decision, I would only venture to say very briefly and as adequately as present circumstances permit the principal factors that must be taken into consideration before deciding whether a person may be regarded as a true believer or not. Full recognition of the station of the Fore­runner, the Author, and the True Exemplar of the Baha’i Cause, as set forth in ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s Testament; unreserved acceptance of, and submission to, whatsoever has been revealed by His Pen; loyal and steadfast adherence to every clause of our Beloved’s sacred Will; and close association with the spirit as well as the form of the present day Baha’i administration throughout the world—these I conceive to be the fundamental and primary considerations that must be fairly, discreetly and thoughtfully ascertained before reaching such a vital decision. Any attempt at further analysis and elucidation will, I fear, lead us in barren discussions and even grave controversies that would prove not only futile but even detrimental to the best interests of a growing Cause. I would therefore strongly urge those who are called upon to make such a decision to approach this highly involved and ever-recurring problem with the spirit of humble prayer, and earnest consultation, and to refrain from drawing rigidly the line of demarcation except on such occasions when the interests of the Cause absolutely demand it."

With the adoption of the Declaration of Trust, which required some clear definition whereby the National Assembly might establish the status of voting members of the local communities, the problem of applying the Guardian’s standard became one of the most important duties of a Spiritual Assembly. That this problem is being considered very seriously is evident from the number of inquiries which have come to the National Assembly for specific instructions on method and procedure.

It is evident that if the Guardian’s standard is too rigidly applied, a community will be choked and stifled, while if it is too loosely applied, the result will be to make a Baha’i community lose its distinctive character, its spiritual integrity, its very reason for existence.

For some months the members of the National Assembly have given special thought to this subject, in the hope that it might be found possible to lay before all Local Assemblies some statement in the form of suggestions and recommendations that will prove useful to their members in meeting what the Guardian has termed a "very delicate and complex question."

First of all, we feel, should be emphasized the fact that the enrollment of new voting members is the function of a Spiritual Assembly as a whole. Such a matter cannot be left to one or more members, or be met by passively accepting the endorsement of a teacher, no matter how well-informed and loyal the teacher may be.

The act of passing upon the qualifications of one who seeks enrollment surely involves consultation, the distinctive attribute of a Spiritual Assembly, followed by decision representing unanimous or at least majority vote. The members of an Assembly assume no higher responsibility than in determining the character of their community by controlling its new growth. In admitting a new voting member, they recognize and affirm his or her right to be eligible to every office in the Cause. Since those elected delegates to the Convention elect the members of the National Assembly, and since later on the National Assembly will be one of the electoral bodies constituting the International House of Justice (see Article I, By-Laws of the National Spiritual Assembly), the degree of this responsibility is manifest.

The question has been raised as to whether a Spiritual Assembly may not most effectually meet this responsibility by having the applicant sign an application blank which sets forth the exact qualifications of membership.

The question has also been raised as to whether it would not be well to lay down a definite period of time—for example, a year—before an Assembly can act upon an application after it is received.

Both these suggestions are admirable; but the National Assembly is not yet prepared to adopt any standardized system. The Cause is too new and inexperienced to justify such an important step at this time. The chief requisite is that each Local Assembly shall possess sufficient insight to discriminate between those who are qualified to serve in the Cause and those not qualified to serve. The Master has warned us that the time will come when hypocrites will seek to enter the Cause in order to work destruction, consequently it is the capacity of the Spiritual Assembly in each case, and not the operation of any standardized system of enrollment, which stands as the safeguard against such invasion.

One requirement, however, the National Assembly does lay down at this time: that Local Assemblies shall read to applicants the qualifications of voting membership as defined in the By-Laws, and record in their minutes the full and complete acceptance by each applicant. This appears to be the irreducible minimum of procedure in the admission of new voting members. In reporting new members to the National Assembly, Local Assembly Secretaries are requested to submit, in each case, an extract from the minutes proving that this procedure has been followed.

The essence of the matter seems to be that each Assembly is called upon faithfully to stand as witness that the spirit of the person seeking membership has turned to Bahá'u'lláh and become quickened for life in His Cause. Quality, and not numerical quantity, must ever determine the power of a Bahá'í community.

Therefore we are not a board of examiners on the one hand nor a mere committee of welcome on the other. The qualifications do not imply that the applicant must please us personally, nor satisfy our human ideas as to whom we would like to associate with in Bahá'í service. The qualifications have come from the Manifestation Himself: to the degree that we are ourselves true Bahá'ís, we can determine who else is likewise a true Bahá'í.

The National Assembly has been vested with the responsibility of passing upon local membership rolls, and thus in cases where a Local Assembly has clearly been in error in enrolling a member, the mistake can be corrected and the matter transferred to a Bahá'í body not affected by exclusively local conditions.

Being charged with this ultimate responsibility, the National Assembly feels great concern that all the Local Assemblies function as wisely as possible in carrying out their share of the Guardian's instructions. The members of the National Assembly see no way to establish definite procedures and uniform methods for the performance of a spiritual task. It is for each Local Spiritual Assembly to take whatever steps it deems necessary and advisable in conferring with each applicant, ascertaining his or her acceptance of the Báb, Bahá'u'lláh and `Abdu'l-Bahá, the provisions of the Master's Testament, and association with the world-wide Bahá'í community. Before the application can be made, there exists the prior and vitally important problem of how inquirers are taught. Thus, attempting to follow the sequence of all the steps leading to enrollment of new members, we realize how urgent it is for Assemblies to assure themselves that those serving as Bahá'í teachers make the focal point of all their efforts the preparation of souls for service in the Bahá'í community. It is not enough to promulgate the "principles" of the Cause, most of which have already been adopted by the liberal public unconscious of their Source—a teaching program must include classes in which inquirers are brought into full acceptance of the Faith.

We are dealing with matters of deep mystery, as one perceives on reading the following words which Bahá'u'lláh uttered in the presence of Nabí (The Dawn-Breakers, page 386)—

"Be thankful to God for having enabled you to recognize His Cause. Whosoever has received this blessing must, prior to his acceptance, have performed some deed which, though he himself was unaware of its character, was ordained by God for a means whereby he has been guided to find and embrace the Truth. As to those who have remained deprived of such a blessing, their acts alone have hindered them from recognizing the truth of this Revelation. We cherish the hope that you, who have attained to this light, will exert your utmost to banish the darkness of superstition and unbelief from the midst of the people. May your deeds proclaim your faith and enable you to lead the erring into the paths of eternal salvation."

ANNOUNCEMENT BY SALES COMMITTEE

In view of the present urgent need of money for the completion of the Temple, the Sales Committee wish to appeal to all the believers for contributions of jewelry, diamonds, old gold or silver, ringstones, antiques, and anything else having a realizable value to be sold for the benefit of the National Bahá'í Fund. Any member of the Sales Committee is authorized to receive such contributions, to give receipts for them and to arrange for their disposition. They should be sent directly to the addresses given below. The Sales Committee also have available ringstones, photographs and records of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and other articles of Bahá'í interest. Price list on request.

BAHÁ'Í NEWS
THE GUARDIAN’S TRIBUTE TO BAHYIIH KHANUM

A tribute, poignant in feeling and exquisitely beautiful in character, has been paid by Shoghi Effendi to the life and spiritual nature of the Greatest Holy Leaf. Received by the National Spiritual Assembly in the form of a communication, entirely hand-written, addressed to the believers, this tribute is being reproduced photographically in its entirety. Local Secretaries will receive a copy, in entering into the profound spirit of the Guardian’s words, we shall be making effort to respond to the plea recently cabled by Shoghi Effendi, and reproduced in this issue of Baha’i News as the final paragraph of the article entitled “The Crucial Matter.”

Undoubtedly every believer will cherish the possession of this precious Bahá’í document, the more because it is a true facsimile of the original. It would be well to have the tribute read at the next Nineteen-Day Feast.

SERVICE OF COMMEMORATION IN THE BAHÁ’Í HOUSE OF WORSHIP

The Guardian’s cablegram informing us of the ascension of the Greatest Holy Leaf concluded with these words: “Advise holding additional Commemoration Service of strictly devotional character (in the) Auditorium (of the) Mashriqul-Adhkár.”

In accordance with this beautiful suggestion, the National Spiritual Assembly has requested the Temple Program Committee to hold the Service of Commemoration in the central Hall of Worship at eight P. M., Saturday, October 8.

This Service is a National Bahá’í observance. It will be held under the auspices of the National Spiritual Assembly in the name of the Bahá’í community of the United States and Canada.

The passing of this last remnant of Bahá’u’lláh on earth is a momentous event in the history of His Faith. Those of the friends who cannot be present in person will direct their hearts yearningly to so impressive a gathering representative of the devotion of Bahá’ís throughout the world.

THE CRUCIAL MATTER

The Guardian’s Words to America on the Completion of the Temple

In lieu of a letter from the National Assembly this month, it seems more essential to place before the Local Assemblies, Bahá’í groups and isolated believers throughout the United States and Canada the several statements which the Guardian has made on the most important matter, the completion of the external decoration of the Temple dome unit by June, 1933.

This is the focal point of our collective capacity, the test of our faithfulness.

“The New Plan of Unified Action conceived, adopted and published by your Assembly is an admirable one. It is at once concise, appealing in tone, dignified in presentation and practical in its conception. It fully and truly deserves the unreserved support of every American believer. I shall be glad to associate myself with this further collective and heroic effort exerted by the friends by contributing to your National Fund every month for a period of three years, the sum of ninety-five dollars. Your Assembly, faithful to its trust and conscious of its high calling, has sounded the call for a further and final effort on the part of the followers of Bahá’u’lláh in that land. It is for them, now if ever, to arise for the speedy consummation of a divinely appointed task.”

August 25, 1931

“I deeply appreciate the continued and self-sacrificing endeavors of the American believers in the face of the grave financial and economic depression into which their country and the whole world is now plunged. That the Temple edifice should arise under such circumstances, that its elaborate and exquisite ornamentation should be carried out, through the efforts of a mere handful of Bahá’í followers despite the gloom, the uncertainty and the dangers which surrounded them is another evidence of the mysterious, all-compelling power of Bahá’u’lláh whose blessings will be bountifully vouchsafed to all who arise to carry out His purpose. The Cause is entering upon a period of unprecedented achievements. The full measure of its glory and power will be gradually manifested, if we, on our part, execute in their entirety the instructions and bequests bequeathed to us by our beloved Master. The American believers have made a splendid beginning. Let them bring to a speedy and successful termination a task which they have so nobly initiated and which they alone are destined to accomplish.”

December 20, 1931

“I wish to add a few words in person in order to reaffirm the paramount, the urgent necessity of devising ways and means that will ensure the success of the Plan of Unified Action, and compensate for the disadvantage it has, unavoidably and owing to unforeseen circumstances, suffered. I would appeal to every conscientious follower of the Faith in that land not to rest until the means have been made available to ensure the completion of the decoration of the Dome of this imposing and marvelous Edifice before the end of the spring of next year. The Cause will suffer, its prestige will no doubt be affected if the Plan, so admirably conceived, should again fall into abeyance. This we must at all cost prevent." February 2, 1932.

"I grieve, beyond words, to learn of the scanty response of the friends to the Plan of Unified Action to which the sacred interests of the Faith are at present so vitally and closely related. I am acutely conscious of the unprecedented character of the depression under which you labor. I am fully aware of the sacrifices you have already made, and realize the urgent need of allaying the burden which weighs so heavily on some of the poor and distressed believers. But I realize also the uniqueness of the opportunity which it is our privilege to seize and utilize. The world is watching the progress of our Faith and the steady expansion of our institutions. The eyes of countless men and women, both high and low, whether in the East or in the West, friendly or critical, are fixed upon the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar, eager and expectant to know whether the growing vicissitudes and the successive crises that affect your country are such as to paralyze their efforts in the prosecution of their sacred task. Ours is the duty to vindicate the vitality and invincible power of our Faith." March 14, 1932.

"In the blood of the unnumbered martyrs of Persia lay the seed of the Divinely-appointed Administration which, though transplanted from its native soil, is now budding out, under your loving care, into a new order, destined to overshadow all mankind. For great as have been the attainments and unforgettable the services of the pioneers of the heroic age of the Cause in Persia, the contribution which their spiritual descendents, the American believers, the champion builders of the organic structure of the Cause are now making towards the fulfillment of the Plan which must usher in the golden age of the Cause is no less meritorious in this strenuous period of its history. . . . Would to God that by the end of the spring of the year 1933 the multitudes who, from the remote corners of the globe, will throng the grounds of the Great Fair to be held in the neighborhood of that hallowed shrine may, as the result of your sustained spirit of self-sacrifice, be privileged to gaze on the arrayed splendor of its dome—a dome that shall stand as a flaming beacon and a symbol of hope amidst the gloom of a despairing world." March 21, 1932.

"May completion dome Mashriqu'l-Adhkar crown united labors newly elected National Assembly." (Cablegram) May 3, 1932.

"I am eager to learn of the status of the national finances of the Cause, and of the prospects of an early resumption of the construction of the Temple. I have already appealed to the American believers in this connection and wish to reiterate my plea and reaffirm my conviction that the completion of the dome before the end of the spring of 1933 is vital to the highest interests of the Cause in that land, and is the supreme obligation of every conscientious and loyal believer in the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh. Great damage will be inflicted on the prestige of the Cause if this glorious plan fails to materialize, while, on the other hand, its fulfillment will confer untold blessings on all branches of the activities of our beloved Faith." June 8, 1932.

"Entreat sorrow-stricken American believers never allow consciousness their agonizing loss paralyze determination (to) prosecute an enterprise on which (the) adored Object (of) our mourning centered her highest hopes." (Cablegram) July 21, 1932.

"Pray assure American believers (on) behalf (of) the Holy Family (and) myself abiding gratitude (for) the numerous evidences (of) their valued sympathy. Our sorrow laden hearts much relieved (and) filled with gratitude. Out of (the) pang of anguish (which) bereaved America experienced in her sudden separation from 'Abdu'l-Bahá, (the) administration (of) God's invincible Faith was born. Might not this present grief at loss (of) Bahá'u'lláh's precious daughter release such forces as will ensure speedy completion (of) Mashriqu'l-Adhkar, (the) administration's mighty bulwark, (the) symbol of its strength and harbinger (of) its promised glory." (Cablegram) August 8, 1932.

A NEW SPIRIT IN BAHÁ'Í TEACHING

Suggestions from The National Spiritual Assembly

Reports from the National Teaching Committee, and correspondence from Local Assemblies and individual teachers, indicate that a great forward movement is taking place in the promulgation of the Bahá’í Faith. The suffering and restlessness of the public on one hand, and the partial completion of the Temple on the other, create an altogether new and favorable social environment for the teacher, and release in the hearts of all faithful believers a mighty impetus which gives to each delivery of the true Message a mysterious confirming power.

The members of the National Spiritual Assembly feel assured that in America the Cause has already entered the first stages of an era of unprecedented expansion. The spirit of progress and achievement can be discerned in all parts of the body of the Cause.

Such a profound movement, surely destined to multiply the numbers of the believers in every community, must necessarily bring to us a few evidences of misunderstanding and temporary confusion. Between impetuous enthusiasm and the conservative instinct there is a wide chasm which here and there must be bridged with unshakeable sympathy and full knowledge of the simple but essential principles which assure success in the teaching field.

It has therefore seemed necessary for the National Spiritual Assembly to assist in alleviating the sources of misunderstanding that may exist by reminding the friends of those principles on which successful teaching effort must depend.

In the first place, the Assembly would emphasize the right of every individual believer to undertake some kind of teaching activity. A Bahá’í life is identical with effort to serve and promote the Cause. There should be no obstacle placed in the way of any believer desiring sincerely to contribute to the promotion of the Cause.

On the contrary, Local Assemblies and their committees should recognize this desire as the very life-blood of our blessed Faith, and spare no effort to encourage and assist each and every active believer who arises to teach the divine Faith. The ideal of the Bahá’í Cause is not a few active teachers in an inactive Bahá’í community, but a community in which every single member, to the degree of his capacity, is ever active. A healthy body is equally alive in every organ and limb.

Of paramount importance, if we as the American Bahá’í community are to meet our vast opportunities, is the whole-hearted effort and encouraging attitude of Local Assemblies and committees on behalf of the individual believers who long to render active service. Let us consider membership on an Assembly or committee as a sacred obligation to serve our fellow-Baha'is—to enlarge their sphere of usefulness, to find for them specific things to do, to encourage them to fulfill their utmost capacity in the Cause. The divine Power itself protects all souls who desire to serve by teaching—any unjustifiable obstacle placed in the path of the teacher will eventually be removed.

On the other hand, the Power which confirms the teacher has also revealed principles of unity which control individual action and initiative. The ideal teacher is he who most clearly recognizes the wisdom of these principles and most conscientiously obeys them. It does not profit the Cause if, through unwise zeal, a teacher expounds the Faith to a group of seekers under conditions which enhance the teacher's personal influence at the expense of the prestige and due authority of a Local Assembly. It cannot be called Baha'i teaching unless the end of one's effort is to bring people fully into the general community of believers. Without discipline no really useful teaching work can be accomplished.

Purity of motive is the great essential on the part of all Baha'i's who stand before the public in the distinction of a Baha'i teacher. As the Bab declared to His apostles, the Cause of God is served only through self-sacrifice. If, even though unconsciously, we seek either honor and influence or material gain, we are not ourselves confirmed and we cannot therefore quicken any other soul into spiritual life.

The National Spiritual Assembly devoutly prays that no believer, under any circumstances, will fall into the error of considering that the intention of teaching is in itself sufficient. With the intention should go willingness to consult with the Local Assembly, that the Cause may be protected against the calamity of disagreement and division and that only pure teachings may, without admixture of personal belief or imagination, be given to the public. The authority of a Local Assembly is unquestionable when it asserts itself against improper teaching methods—this authority, however, should not be exercised against any teacher, no matter how humble and inexperienced, on grounds of mere prejudice or personality.

Teachers who are able to visit other cities can render the utmost service, especially at this time when the National Spiritual Assembly is endeavoring to concentrate upon the Temple Construction Fund. Just as their activities in their home community are under the supervision of the Local Assembly, so in traveling from city to city the teachers should recognize the same authority in the Local Spiritual Assembly wherever they serve. Let the invitation to visit a city come from the Assembly in that city—let plans be made and thoroughly understood in advance—if misunderstanding and grief are to be avoided. A sincere, well-informed teacher is always welcome, and Local Assemblies will be happy to learn of the traveling plans of such a believer prepared to serve without interference with the Assembly's budget, which this year is necessarily devoted first of all to the National Fund. The Bab's words to His disciples reveal the conditions under which teaching becomes truly fruitful in the Cause of God.

Cities without Local Assemblies, whether they have Baha'i groups or no believers at all, have been placed by the National Spiritual Assembly under the supervision of the National Teaching Committee. It is to this Committee that teachers should turn for cooperation and guidance in places where no elected Assembly yet exists. The Teaching Committee has also been requested to assist, encourage and cooperate with all Local Assemblies, but this relationship in no way detracts from the authority of a Local Assembly in its own community.

By heeding the law of consultation—by recognizing the fact that even the most experienced teacher can continually learn and improve—by Local Assemblies becoming alive to their opportunities and sacred obligations—much of the confusion inevitably attendant upon periods of expansion can be overcome. When, however, an issue arises that brings grief and discouragement to any of the believers, the National Spiritual Assembly would remind them of the tremendous words of steadfast assurance from Shoghi Effendi: "We should welcome, therefore, not only the open attacks which its avowed enemies persistently launch against it, but should also view as a blessing in disguise every storm of mischief with which they who apostatize their faith or claim to be its faithful exponents assail it from time to time. Instead of undermining the Faith, such assaults, both from within and from without, reinforce its foundations, and excite the intensity of its flame."

COMMITEE ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Publishing Committee, P. O. Box 348, Grand Central Station, New York City, informs the friends that two new publications are now available: Hidden Words (the latest, revised translation by Shoghi Effendi) in paper covers, $0.25 per copy; and Pilgrimage to the Land of Desire, by Marie Watson, $0.50 per copy. The proceeds from the sale of this book go to the Temple Construction Fund.

The Reviewing Committee requests believers who submit manuscripts to supply two copies of each manuscript, typewritten double spaced, that one copy may be retained in the files of the National Assembly in the exact form in which it is approved. Where manuscripts are submitted in long hand, and only one copy, the Committee does not wish to be held responsible for loss or destruction by fire or other accident. Authors are urged always to retain one copy, for safety. Manuscripts are submitted to the Reviewing Committee through the channel of the National Assembly and not direct.

An Inter-Assembly Teaching Conference under the auspices of the National Teaching Committee was held... at Green Acre on Friday, August 19 and Saturday, August 20. Subjects for discussion: The Reconstructed Teaching Program; How Can the Local Assemblies Function More Vitality According to Bahá’í Administration and the Reconstructed Teaching Plan; Nabil’s Narrative, the Basis for the Success of the Reconstructed Teaching Plan and the Completion of the Temple.

An Inter-Assembly Teaching Conference similar to that announced above was held at Louhen Ranch on Sunday, July 31.

TEACHING AND TRAINING OF BAHÁ’Í CHILDREN

To the Bahá’ís of United States and Canada:

We are happy to report that the National Spiritual Assembly has appointed a special committee this year to give special attention to compiling material and stimulating the organization of classes for the teaching and training of Bahá’í children. The task is an enormous one and progress this first year may be slow. The cooperation of the Local Spiritual Assemblies in trying out the various types of study outlines which may be submitted is essential and at first the work must necessarily be largely consultative and experimental. The exchange of ideas, suggestions and the results of experiments with the various types of courses will be of infinite assistance in laying the foundation and selecting reference material for the future.

With the multitudinous educational systems already in existence, the only justification we have for offering another is that the Bahá’í Faith has something vital, something fundamental which is quite unique. Not only that but this divine educational plan has been given by the Messenger of God for this particular age. Its purpose is two-fold: To give to individual souls the impetus necessary to their eternal unfoldment, and to enable them to function in all human relationships in such a way as to bring into objectivity those divine laws which are the basis of the true civilization.

Such a supreme objective is the aspiration of these inadequate instruments. The courage to face such a responsibility is engendered only by the assurance that we will be divinely assisted when we arise to serve the Cause of God, and that we may rely upon the active cooperation of the entire body of the friends.

To that end we are asking two things: (1) That every one will definitely and continuously pray for the guidance of this committee, and (2) that each believer will send in to the secretary (Miss Charlotte M. Linfoot, Oakland, California) all suggestions and materials that may assist in making this effort representative of the collective wisdom of the friends. May we have any Tablets on this subject that may not be generally available—notes of conversations with either ‘Abdu’l-Bahá or Shoghi Effendi; or letters from Shoghi Effendi? We shall appreciate suggestions from our friends in the educational field both as to our objective and the sound pedagogical methods for attaining that goal, and particularly shall we welcome their analysis of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s methods. Also, will each community send us definite information as to their classes: the ages of the children, length of class periods and class season, their material, their methods including charts, diagrams, stories, etc., their suggestions, their difficulties and their needs?

Will each one of the friends respond to this general request just as if it were a personal letter, giving us speedily and according to their guidance all possible assistance? This whole-hearted cooperation can alone make possible a service to our beloved Faith of such far-reaching consequences as we can scarcely imagine. Surely we owe at least this much to that body of our youth who will be the ones to face great difficulties and to achieve great victories!

Maye Harvey Gift, Chairman.
Charlotte M. Linfoot, Secretary.

COMMITTEE APPOINTMENTS

The following members have been added to the Committee on Training and Teaching Children: Miss Dorothy Baker, Miss Alice Parker, Miss Doris Lohse and Prof. Stanwood Cobb. Additional members from the Western States will be added later on.

The Committee on Bahá’í Economics has been reappointed. The members being: Mr. Alfred E. Lunt, Chairman; Mr. Dale S. Cole, Secretary; Mr. George O. Latimer, Mr. Harlan F. Ober, Mr. Siegfried Schopflocher, Miss Elsa Russell, Mr. Willard McKay, Mr. Robert Moffett, Mr. Wright.

Please note change of address for Miss Charlotte Linfoot, Secretary, Western Division, National Teaching Committee, and Secretary of Committee on Training and Teaching Children. New address: 376 60th Street, Oakland, Calif.

To the Committee on Editing the Tablets of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, Mrs. Corinne True, Chairman, have been added the following members: Mrs. Slater, Mrs. Nourse, Dr. Zia Baghadi.

Mrs. Ella G. Cooper has been appointed third executive member of the National Teaching Committee, Western Division.

Miss Martha Woodsum has been appointed member of the Publishing Committee to represent the activities of this Committee whose function has been assumed by the Publishing Committee.

SPIRITUAL ATTITUDE OF BELIEVERS TOWARD POLITICAL AFFAIRS

Believers who have given special thought to the Guardian’s recent references to the importance of non-participation in political matters are requested to note the following excerpt from a Tablet revealed by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá to the Spiritual Assembly of Mashad, Persia, during the year 1910.

“In these days the banner of political dissension and revolution is raised throughout Persia. Every part is afflicted with disturbance and each district is in the grasp of turmoil. All the people are in the utmost confusion. But, praise be to God, the friends of God did not mix with any of the political affairs, neither did they interfere with the plans of either party. They were the friends of all parties and kind to everyone, inviting all to unity and concord, which is the fundamental basis of progress and civilization. They did not utter a word, neither did they offend any one; they made no complaint against any one; but they praised and glorified the unity and concord of the world of humanity. Therefore they were protected and preserved. Whosoever acted otherwise became afflicted with great calamity.”

A CORRECTION

Last month it was stated that among the Assemblies which had not yet reported the results of the election held on April 21 was the Assembly of Racine, Wis. This was an error. The Racine Assembly reported promptly soon after May 1, but their reply was somehow mislaid or lost in the mails.

THE BAHÁ’Í WEEKLY

Believers desiring to enter subscriptions for the admirable Bahá’í Weekly of India, are advised of the following rates: United States, $2.00; England and British Colonies, 8s.
Beloved Friends:

Last month we quoted excerpts from the Guardian’s letters which refer directly to the supreme urgency of Temple construction at this time. While each group of believers is inclined to lay chief emphasis upon some one detail of Baha’i activity, the Guardian alone brings us the world vision by which matters of primary and immediate importance can be separated from lesser matters or from matters which may be deferred to a later time.

Therefore the National Spiritual Assembly desires to renew, again and again, its conviction that the steady, uninterrupted prosecution of Temple construction is our greatest privilege and unequaled responsibility—every other affair must be made not merely secondary but directly contributive to that end.

In order to bring home to all the friends what has already been accomplished on the external decoration of the dome unit, and what remains to be done before June 1, 1933, this letter will quote passages from the three reports received to date by the Temple Trustees.

From the first report, dated June 30, 1932: “Mr. Earley has set aside his plant in Virginia near Washington for the work involved in this project. The preliminary work involves the laying out on the ground of a dome panel and its adjacent rib and the establishment of definite points of reference and of elevation. On the points located on the ground will be erected a wooden framework that will afford a full size template which will be an exact replica of the steel framework of the present dome. This entire structure has been designed, using the dimensions given on the general structural drawings and checked with the structural steel shop drawings. Mr. Earley expects to start the laying out of this structure at the plant on the first of July and to proceed with it uninteruptedly until completed.

“As soon as this dome framework work has been erected it will be carefully checked and templates made. These templates will be taken to Chicago and checked with the existing dome structure.”

From the second report, dated August 2, 1932: “During the month of July, Mr. Earley and his associates made layouts of the plan or horizontal projection of a dome panel and rib and of a vertical cross-section or projection of the outer dome framework. The outlines of the outer steel framework which will support the dome ornamentation were first accurately outlined on concrete. On the outline plan a wooden framework has been erected and will give a full-sized model of a section of the actual outer steel framework of the dome.

“As soon as this framework work has been completed, templates will be made and shipped to Wilmette where they will be checked up with the dome structure. This check will make it possible to reproduce the wooden framework as an exact model of the steel framework work of the present dome.

“The purpose of this wooden framework work is to serve as a basis for the study of the architect’s design and the preparation of the models and molds of the various sections that will constitute the external decoration of the dome, including the dome panels and ribs. . . . “A large sign will be erected on the top of the structural frame work at the plant and this will explain to the thousands of people who pass the plant yearly the nature and purpose of this project.”

From the third report, dated September 3, 1932: “About the middle of August the check template was completed and shipped to the Temple, where it was applied to the steel framework work of the dome by Mr. Taylor and three assistants.

“During the latter half of August plaster surface molds have been prepared to serve as a base on which to model the panel sections.

“At the date of this report the modeling of the first and lowest section of a dome sub-panel is being finished. This panel as modeled in clay has a width of about ten feet and a height of about seventeen feet. If cast in one section it would weigh about four tons, hence the panel will be cast in two sections weighing about two tons each.”

These interesting facts enable us to visualize just what is going on during the present, preliminary phase of the work. The present month of October will probably conclude this preliminary work and bring us to the point where Mr. Earley can commence casting some of the dome sections.

Up to the present time, $15,000 has been available for Temple construction, and this amount will be used up by November. The sum of $35,000 is still required in order to complete the dome unit by June, 1933. The National Spiritual Assembly reports this fact with full conviction that every American Baha’i will do his utmost to make this tremendous achievement possible.

The devoted believers of Persia, longing to assist their American brothers and sisters, but unable to send any donations in the form of cash on account of the law that prohibits exporting gold or currency, have sent four bales of rugs to be sold here for the benefit of the Temple Fund. The believers of the British Isles likewise have a Temple fund which will be made available later on. What an inspiration this worldwide unity brings to us in our effort to meet the Guardian’s high standard!

Above all, we can appreciate the urgency of this task in the light of the prevailing international economic and political difficulties, analyzed so clearly by Shoghi Effendi in his letter on the "Goal of a New World Order." Our Bahá’í House of Worship is more than a beautiful structure—it is the evidence of the new Revelation, the new manifestation of the Holy Spirit, which can alone afford guidance and protection to mankind.

Faithfully your co-workers,
The National Spiritual Assembly, HORACE HOLLEY, Secretary.

IN MEMORIAM

The prayers of the friends are besought for the following believers who have entered the spiritual Kingdom:
Mother Beecher, Lima, Ohio.
Dr. Frederick W. D’Evelyn, San Francisco.
Mr. Charles Greenleaf, Texas.
Miss Mary Vistue, Denver.
Miss Martha Robinson, New York.
Miss Ann Boylan, New York.
Miss Jennie Bishop, New York.
Mrs. Cora C. Horn, New York.
Mrs. Marion Hotchkiss, New York.

THE SUSPENSION OF RELIGIOUS FESTIVITIES

On September 12, the National Spiritual Assembly wrote the Local Spiritual Assemblies to announce the Service of Commemoration for the Greatest Holy Leaf, and in that letter quoted a cablegram received from the Guardian which explains what religious festivities are to be suspended.

"Festive Anniversaries should be suspended. Administrative gatherings, including Nineteen-Day Feasts, should be held with the utmost simplicity."

The Anniversaries affected by this message are: the Birth of the Bab, the Birth of Bahá’u’lláh, the Fête Day of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, the Feast of Naw-Rúz.

PURCHASE OF LAND ON MOUNT CARMEL

On September 2, Shoghi Effendi cabled this important information: "Prolonged delicate negotiations resulted purchase (for) $5,000 a lot adjoining the precincts of the Bab’s Shrine. The deed has been officially registered (in the name of) American National Assembly, Palestine branch. Mailing documents to national Secretary. Inform all believers to transmit their donations through the National Assembly."

This refers to the appeal which the Guardian made in his letter dated October 24, 1925, at which time it had become apparent that certain non-Bahá’í interests were contemplating the purchase of land on Mount Carmel. As the result of that appeal, a number of believers sent contributions to the Guardian, who purchased various pieces of land in the name of the individual donors. Other believers contributed to this special fund through the National Spiritual Assembly, and it is these combined and joint donations which have made possible the latest purchase mentioned in the cablegram.

Within the past few months, the Spiritual Assembly of Honolulu has taken steps to transfer to the National Assembly, Palestine branch, the title to the property on Mount Carmel which they purchased some years ago through the Guardian and had held in the name of one of their members as trustee.

It is for the best interests of the Cause that as many individual believers as possible, who now hold land on Mount Carmel, follow the example of the Honolulu friends. The Guardian will have the transfer of title made at Haifa, and believers may write him of their intention.

THE SPIRIT OF SUCCESSFUL TEACHING

As conditions change, it is incumbent upon local Spiritual Assemblies to initiate new methods and policies in the teaching field.

Having accepted as its first responsibility, the promotion of Temple construction, the National Spiritual Assembly is unable to provide facilities for teaching sufficient to meet the needs and opportunities made known by local communities and groups. The National Assembly feels this inability keenly, and longs for such resources as will make it possible to establish teaching circuits covering the entire country.

There is a mystery, however, in the contrast between the material weakness and the spiritual power of our Faith. Perhaps the time has come when Local Assemblies are called upon to develop a greater degree of responsibility in all that concerns the progress of the Cause in their own communities. This reflection seems to be confirmed by a statement which the Guardian wrote on August 25, through his secretary, to Mr. and Mrs. Bishop Brown, members of the National Teaching Committee: "You have rightly realized that there is a great need for the Local Spiritual Assemblies to learn to function, and they have hitherto been rather passive in the hope that the National Assembly can by itself do all the work."

What is a Local Assembly to do in the teaching field when its community possesses no trained public speakers? It is the conviction of the National Assembly that this condition offers an opportunity and not merely a hardship. Public speaking is by no means the only or most important method by which to attract qualified souls to the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh. It is merely one of many channels of service.

In the case of small communities, the method of intimate home meetings offers the greatest possibility for successful teaching at the present time. The older religious organizations have no provision for such meetings, because they function through a professional clergy and not through the body of the believers. Even in the largest cities, thousands of seekers will respond to the appeal of true fellowship and frank discussion, who have given up all hope of religion in its traditional forms.

The National Assembly offers this suggestion, with an earnest prayer that all Bahá’í communities, large and small, will abandon false conceptions of religious meetings and realize the overwhelming power of sincerity and devotion. May Local Assemblies encourage and cherish every effort to begin as many intimate home study groups as possible this year, trusting to the Spirit to confirm new souls and increase the ranks of faithful workers.

TEACHING REPORT FOR WESTERN STATES

July, 1932

All Assemblies report their major activities during the summer period. First, the study of the "Dawn-breakers," concentration on the Unified Plan of Action, and careful consideration of the re-constructed Teaching Program of the National Spiritual Assembly.

These efforts became crystallized in the gathering of the Friends at the Summer School of the Bahá’í's of the Pacific Coast area, at Geyserville, the first two weeks of July, and the Teaching Conference held during the Summer School on July 10th.

Outstanding, and unequalled, was the new spirit continuously sustained in all the meetings. Nothing was able to disturb the quiet and calm of this elevating force that seemed to lift everyone from the things of the world, into a new realm that knew only the onward roll of progress. This spirit was directly attributable to the study of the lives of the heroic examples of perseverance and selflessness of the early pioneers of the Faith in Persia. Their indomitable courage permeated...
the souls of the Friends bringing a renewed determination to assist in the glorious work. Shoghi Effendi has given the American Bahá’ís.

In considering at the Teaching Conference, the new Teaching program, the following are briefly the more important fields of service that may be advantageously carried out:

Individual Service:

As never before is it realized that the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh is one of increasing joy and enthusiasm; that it is a vibrant life, looking ever to the happier paths of human fellowship. No Bahá’í should permit the gloom and distress of the distracted and chaotic world to enter his consciousness. Each Bahá’í should radiate that spirit of alluring spiritual felicity that will become a beacon light to all.

The Bahá’ís should not separate themselves from the activities of the world, but engaging in, and taking part in the progressive efforts of all, become the centers of guidance. Each Bahá’í, to the extent possible should associate himself with some liberal progressive movement in his community, not in order to become mere attachments, but to seek out people of capacity who are looking for fresh hope and inspiration.

Fireside group meetings to attract friends and develop discussion of the Teachings is a most effective manner to bring about.

Expansion of Assembly teaching activities:

Isolated Believers, if given continuous assistance afford one of the most effective immediate doors of endeavor in establishing new Bahá’í Communities. The Teaching Committee will give to each Assembly a list of the isolated Believers in its territory, so this important field may early be utilized.

Whenever a group of Bahá’ís can travel together to a new center or group, this is most effective. The presentation of the Cause by the various ones in a slightly different manner, proves particularly impressive, and the contagion of the Bahá’í spirit more potent. A group of the Portland Friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bishop, Mrs. Louise Caswell, and Mrs. Alta Krenger, recently made such a trip to the Bahá’í centers in the Pacific Northwest, Vancouver, B. C., Seattle and Monroe, Washington. In Vancouver, at one of the meetings, Prof. Charles Hill-tout, eminent anthropologist, and Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, stated that the fact that the Bahá’í Teachings were given to the world from darkest Persia in the nineteenth century, was proof of the divine origin of Bahá’u’lláh. Professor Hill-tout is president of the International Club, and has aroused much interest in the Cause by his many favorable comments to people of capacity. At this same meeting a former member of parliament of British Columbia was asked to speak about the doings of the League of Nations at Geneva. She replied that anything she had to say was less important than what had been said and she felt the Bahá’í Teachings held the most prominent solution of world problems.

Each Assembly should make it a duty of first importance to see that Bahá’í Literature is properly catalogued and available in public libraries. Increasing demands are being made for Bahá’í books in the libraries, and it is our duty to see that the latest and best books are continuously available. Shoghi Effendi has particularly stressed the importance of the Dawnbreakers; and to make it possible to have these priceless books in all public libraries, the Publishing Committee has made a special price of $5.00 for library copies.

Teachers should endeavor to spend a month or two in new centers until either a strong group is actively studying the Teachings, or the basis laid for the establishment of a new Bahá’í Assembly. Mrs. Laura Luther in response to this advice of Shoghi Effendi, has gone to Monroe, Washington, for an indefinite period to assist the Friends there in establishing an Assembly.

Inter-Assembly Cooperation:

The benefit of inter-assembly cooperation cannot be too strongly emphasized. Inter-Assembly Conferences are of the greatest benefit, as they give all the Friends the benefit of the wider service and experiences of the Bahá’ís of other centers, a fuller feeling of mutual dependence is developed, and a greater spirit of enthusiastic service achieved.

Most important is the continuous exchange of speakers, as each new speaker, brings a new wave of interest; and often contacts are made, which the local friends had been unable to accomplish. As an illustration, Mrs. Gale Marsolais, of Monroe, Washington, visited the Bahá’ís in Vancouver, B. C. and while there, contacted the outstanding Bible prophecy authority among the Jews of Great Britain. He became greatly interested in the Bahá’í explanation and fulfillment of Bible prophecy, and promises to visit with the Bahá’ís at their study group in Mon­rie in August. Up to that time the Bahá’ís of Vancouver had not been able to contact this distinguished gentleman.

The Bahá’ís in Southern California are to hold two important meetings of International Friendship during the Tenth Olympiad at Los Angeles, July 28th to August 13th, inclusive. The first meeting will be in the nature of a seminar, with speakers from inter-racial and international groups, while the second will be purely a Bahá’í meetings to explain the World Order of Bahá’u’lláh.

Study classes to gain a closer knowledge of the Cause, and a more intimate contact with its conquering spirit, are being held in all Assemblies, the text book being of course, the Dawnbreakers. Teachers’ preparation classes are also being organized with great effect.

All of the Bahá’í centers are anxiously awaiting the course of instruction for Children, which the new National Committee on Training and Teaching of Children are shortly to issue. Miss Charlotte Linfoot, Secretary of this Committee, urges that any Friends or Assemblies having important data of Bahá’í training of children, send it to her, for correlation with the data already in hand.

Radio Stations are becoming more liberal in their attitudes toward addressing on progressive movements, looking to the betterment of the social conditions, and many Assemblies are able to make openings for Bahá’í discussions. In Seattle many talks are given on Esperanto, while one or two have been given on the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh. Likewise in Portland, talks have been given on Esperanto, with a recent talk by Mrs. Louise Caswell, on the “New Era,” being an exposition of the Declaration of the Bab, and His Teachings.

All Assemblies report renewed activity in the Inter-Racial activities. The Oakland Assembly holds inter-racial gatherings once a month, in the homes of the various Bahá’ís. They now have a study class, developed from these inter-racial gatherings, which promises to be beneficial in furthering our contacts with the colored races of that city. In Berkeley inter-racial gatherings have been held with good effect; one of the largest being a dinner, May 23rd, at which there were some 100 present and great interest developed in the Bahá’í attitude toward the Oneness of the World of Humanity.

INTER-RACIAL AMITY CONFERENCE

The National Committee on Inter-Racial Amity, through Mr. Louis G. Gregory, Secretary, reports on its activities as follows:

"Your Committee on Racial Amity is happy to report that its major activity since the Annual Convention has been the holding of an Amity Conference at Green Acre. It was carried through as planned, except that Miss Orcella Rexford very capably supplied the place of Mrs. Grace Ober, unavoidably absent. The number of sessions, six, was greater than before attempted in Amity Conferences since their beginning in 1921. They were interesting and well attended and supported by an enthusiasm which did not lag from beginning to end."

The program used with this report lists the following speakers: Mr. Harlan F. Ober, Judge Edward H. Adams, Portsmouth, Mr. Samuel A. Allen, Industrial Secretary, New York Urban League, Mrs. Mabel Ives, Mr. Carl Cartwright, Cambridge, Mass., Mr. Louis G. Gregory, Mr. Philip A. Marangella, Mrs. May Maxwell, Mr. F. St. George Spendlove, Rev. Henry Benton Harris, and Mrs. Grace Ober.

LETTERS FROM HAIFA

"Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler is now with us in Haifa and in a few days will start for Persia. She rendered wonderful services in both Australia and India and Shoghi Effendi trusts that she will do the same in Persia. One of the things the Guardian has asked her to do is to obtain the permission of the authorities to bring Bahá’í literature into Persia. This is a very difficult task but it is also so important that Shoghi Effendi feels we ought to attempt it.

"Regarding the hoarding of gold, Shoghi Effendi would not advise that, but have your investments very secure." (To the Secretary of the National Assembly, through Ruhi Afnán, June 8, 1932.)

"Shoghi Effendi hopes that you two, who have come to appreciate the light of guidance shed so gloriously by Bahá’u’lláh, will first try and deepen your knowledge of the teachings and then arise to lend an effective hand in spreading them throughout the world. For it is only with the saving grace of God, revealed this day through the Bahá’í Faith, that the world can hope to be relieved from its many social and spiritual ills." (To Mr. John B. Richardson, Chicago, through Ruhi Afnán, April 6, 1932.)

"Shoghi Effendi has never said that the members of the National Assembly have to be renewed partially every year. The important thing is that they should be properly elected. It would be nice if there should be new members elected, for new blood always adds to the energy of the group and will keep up their spirit. But this depends entirely upon the will of the delegates as represented in the result of their voting.

"The teachers of the Cause can surely become members of any Assembly or committee. There should be no incapacity attached to them. But Shoghi Effendi would just prefer to see them devote all their time to teaching and leave the administrative functions for those who cannot serve as teachers." (To Mr. Willard Hatch, Los Angeles, through Ruhi Afnán, April 27, 1932.)

"How wonderful it would be if all the friends could arrange to spend at least a few days in one of these summer schools and take an active part in their development. These centers could attract many souls if properly planned; those non-Bahá’ís who visit them will then have some time to get into the spirit of the place and make a study of the Cause ... We constantly receive letters from people who became Bahá’ís by visiting one of these centers and obtaining the Message there." (To Miss Cora Gray, received about May 1, 1932, through Ruhi Afnán.)

The Dawn-Breakers

"You may be interested to know that many of the distinguished men to whom Shoghi Effendi sent a copy of The Dawn-Breakers as a present, wrote him in answer that it is one of the most beautiful books they have seen for a long time. This proves how successful you have been in that important task." (To Mrs. Marion Little, Secretary of the Publishing Committee, New York, through Ruhi Afnán, May 7, 1932.)

In the same letter, written by the Guardian: "I wish to reaffirm in person the cable I was moved to send to your address expressing my keen appreciation of and profound gratitude for the manner you as well as your collaborators have cooperated in producing such a splendid and impressive edition. It is a striking and abiding evidence of the efficiency and exemplary devotion which characterize your work for the Cause."

"Shoghi Effendi was glad to hear of your work among the ranchers. He sincerely hopes that they will advance in spiritualty and become imbued with the Spirit of Bahá’u’lláh. Country people should be much reader for the Message, for they are not so completely carried away by material civilization and its blinding influence. They ought to be more receptive and more pure in heart." (To Mrs. Shahnaz Waite, Los Angeles, through Ruhi Afnán, May 13, 1932.)

"Shoghi Effendi undertook the translation of The Dawn-Breakers only after being convinced that its publication will arouse the friends to greater self-sacrifice and a more determined way of teaching. Otherwise he would not have devoted so much time to it. Reading about the life and activities of those heroic souls is bound to influence our mode of living and the importance we attach to our services in the Cause. Shoghi Effendi therefore hopes that the friends will read, nay rather, study that book, and encourage their young people to do that as well.

"It is also very important to hold study classes and go deep in the Teachings. A great harm is done by starting to teach without being firmly grounded in the literature. Little knowledge is dangerous' fully applies to the teaching work. The friends should read the Writings and be able to quote from the Tablets when discussing subjects pertaining to the Faith." (To Mrs. Edith Hildebrand, Clearlake Highlands, California, through Ruhi Afnán, May 9, 1932.)

On Teaching

"Administrative work and teaching do not exclude each other. Even though you will find yourself forced to give more time to the former, Shoghi Effendi hopes that you will keep up the latter form of service and continue to draw new souls into the movement. Shoghi Effendi read the plan of work you have set for the National Teaching Committee with great care. It surely depends ultimately upon the National Assembly to approve it, or to modify it, but it seems as a whole to be most promising.

"Shoghi Effendi has seen, through the experience of the international teachers that keep him informed regarding their activities, that intensive work is ultimately of a more lasting nature. It has proven to be far better that a teacher should spend a month or two in one center and wait until a group is formed, than to cover a larger area and not stay enough in a center to help the progress of those interested to the stage that they would feel themselves able to embrace the Cause and identify themselves with it." (To Mr. Leroy Ioas, San Francisco, through Ruhi Afnán, May 30, 1932.)

On Collection of Babá’s Funds

“Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated May 8th, 1932, telling him of some incidents that transpired during the Convention this year, especially when funds were collected for the Temple. He was very glad to learn of the wonderful spirit that prevailed in those gatherings; for it is only through such a spirit of devotion and sacrifice that the Cause can prosper and its message embrace the whole world. It was also wonderful to see the interest shown by the public in the general gatherings that formed part of the Convention program.

“Shoghi Effendi hopes that as the Temple is gradually completed this interest will increase and they will try to share in the spirit that motivates the friends and accepting the Faith of Babá’u’lláh, arise to serve it and dedicate their life to its spread.

“Such gatherings for collections of funds are permissible if it is done with a true spirit of sacrifice, not when the audience is especially aroused to a frenzy and mob psychology is used to induce them to pay.

“Shoghi Effendi has repeatedly stated that no pressure should be used upon the friends and psychological pressure falls under that category. But there is much difference between such gatherings often used by religious bodies, and a true, prayerful atmosphere when a person is, of his own accord, aroused to make some sacrifice. The distinction is very delicate, but it is for the Chairman to use his power to see that one desirable form is not corrupted into the other. All the activities of the Cause should be carried through in a dignified manner.

“Shoghi Effendi is sure that the funds gathered at the last Convention were not due to the play of mob psychology but to the prayerful attitude of the friends and their desire to make further sacrifice.” (To Mrs. Corinne True, Wilmette, through Ruhi Afnán, May 28, 1932.)

Persian Government Removes Ban on Entry of Bahá’í Literature

One of the great obstacles in the path of the Cause has apparently been removed by the recent action of the Persian government in raising the ban on entry of Bahá’í literature into that land, and its free circulation within Persia.

Information of this important action was conveyed to the National Spiritual Assembly by Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler in a cabledram dated Teheran, August 20, 1932. Following this announcement the Assembly has received from Mrs. Ransom-Kehler a letter containing the following explicit statement: “On August 15 I saw his Highness Teimourtash and received from him the direct, unqualified assurance that Babá’í literature would be admitted freely into Persia and permitted to circulate.”

Mrs. Ransom-Kehler in this meeting with the Court Minister was the personal representative of the American National Spiritual Assembly, in accordance with the wish of the Guardian, who had requested her to journey from Haifa to Teheran and undertake the important mission of presenting a petition to the Shah.

The successful performance of this mission reveals the power of the Cause in the land of its birth, where only a few years ago martyrdom was still inflicted upon faithful followers of Babá’u’lláh.

On September 14, the National Assembly dispatched the following cablegram: “His Highness Teimourtash, Court Minister, Teheran. On behalf of American Bahá’ís we express abiding gratitude for removal of ban on entry of Bahá’í literature into Persia. This noble action of His Imperial Majesty’s government has profoundly impressed Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada, who have already felt strong attachment to Babá’u’lláh’s native land. We wish to assure your Highness of our sympathy for his Imperial Majesty, our great interest in the progress and welfare of his empire and our desire to assist in enhancing its prestige throughout the world.” (signed) American Bahá’í Assembly.

News from Other Lands

As space permits, every effort will be made to publish the important news received in letters from Local and National Assemblies throughout the world. The following excerpts are taken from communications received by the American National Assembly since the Convention.

“You would be very much pleased to learn that Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, who recently visited Burma under the direction and with the sanction of our dearly beloved Guardian, Shoghi Effendi, rendered excellent services to the Cause in Mandalay and Rangoon, and was the cause of creating great zeal and enthusiasm among many enlightened persons for investigating the truth of the Bahá’í Revelation. Her heart-stirring speeches given at the Brahmo Samaj and the Theosophical Society of Rangoon were simply wonderful.”—S. G. Murtaza Ali, Secretary, Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of Rangoon, March 7, 1932.

“In this hour of desolating gloom when the very thought of the rest of mankind falters, does not the work we Bahá’ís have set our hands to demand of us a more continued and tenacious devotion than ever before, does it not call for a persistent and unyielding effort greater than any we have displayed in the past? We are blessed, indeed, in that we know the cause, understand the significance and are assured of the outcome of the crises that convulse present-day society. But every trial with it a responsibility—and grievous will be our loss if we fail to set aside our cares and carry the Message of Salvation to a despairing world.”—Hormuzdy Khodabaksh, Secretary, Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of Poona, March 12, 1932.

“The friends in India and Burma are extremely pleased and very happy for the visit of Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler to India and Burma. She addressed public meetings in Rangoon, Mandalay, Benares, Lucknow and Aligar. Amritsar and Lahore, was welcomed in the universities at Benares, Lucknow and Aligar and did very splendid work in spreading the Most Great Cause in India and Burma. She was in Bombay for a week and addressed large meetings almost every evening. She has gone to Deccan Hydrabad and will be there for a week. We in India are most grateful to the friends in America for sending such able teachers to India to spread the Holy Cause.”—N. R. Vakil, President and Treasur er, National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of India and Burma, April 8, 1932.

“We learn with the greatest joy of the activities and wonderful efforts which are being made by the friends in that beloved country (America) for the completion of the construction of the Temple in Wilmette. We had
The Publishing Committee will cooperate with Assembly Librarians in promoting the sale of The Dawn-Breakers, by sending copies on consignment, to be paid for when sold. The price of the Standard Edition is $7.50; of the Limited Edition, autographed by the Guardian, $35.00. In view of the fact that the cost of this book has been guaranteed by the National Spiritual Assembly, no discount can be allowed to local Librarians. Local Assemblies are requested to give all possible consideration to the spiritual importance of having every believer possess a copy of this unique work. In a number of cities, arrangements have been made by which believers can purchase copies on installment payments.

DUTIES AND OBLIGATIONS OF A LOCAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY
From New York By-Laws Approved by the Guardian

Article III—The Spiritual Assembly, in the fulfillment of its obligations and responsibilities under this Corporation, shall have exclusive jurisdiction and authority over all the local activities and affairs of the Bahá’í community of the City of New York, including paramount authority in the administration of this Corporation. It shall be responsible for maintaining the integrity and accuracy of all Bahá’í teaching, whether written or oral, undertaken throughout the local community. It shall make available the published literature of the Faith. It shall represent the community in its relations to the National Spiritual Assembly, in its relation to the Guardian of the Bahá’í Faith, to other local Bahá’í communities, and to the general public in the City of New York. It shall be charged with the recognition of all applicants requesting membership in the local Bahá’í community. It shall pass upon the right of any and all members of the community whose membership is in question to retain their status as voting members of the community. It shall call the meetings of the community, including the Bahá’í Anniversaries and Feasts, the meetings of consultation, the Annual Meeting and the meeting for the election of delegates to the Annual Meeting of the National Spiritual Assembly. It shall appoint and supervise all committees of the Bahá’í community. It shall collect and disburse all funds intended for the maintenance of this Corporation. It shall have full and complete custody of the headquarters or meeting place of the Bahá’í community. It shall report to the National Spiritual Assembly annually, or when requested, the membership roll of the Bahá’í community, for the information and approval of the national Bahá’í body. The Spiritual Assembly, however, shall recognize the authority and right of the National Spiritual Assembly to declare at any time what activities and affairs of the Bahá’í community of the City of New York are national in scope and hence subject to the jurisdiction of the national Bahá’í body. It shall likewise recognize the right of any member of the community to appeal to the National Spiritual Assembly for review and decision of any matter in which the previous decision of the local Spiritual Assembly is felt by the member to be contrary to the explicit teachings of the Bahá’í Faith or opposed to its best interests. It shall, on the other hand, have the authority and right to appeal from the decision of the National Assembly to the Guardian of the Faith for review and final decision of any matter related to the Faith in the City of New York.

Article IV—The Spiritual Assembly, in administering this Corporation, shall ever bear in mind the ideals upheld in the Sacred Writings of the Bahá’í Faith respecting the relationships of a Spiritual Assembly to its Bahá’í community, respecting the relationships of Bahá’ís to one another in the community, and the relationships of Bahá’ís to all non-Bahá’ís, without prejudice of race, creed, class or nationality. The Assembly shall therefore above all recognize its sacred duty to maintain full and complete unity throughout the Bahá’í community, to relieve and comfort the sick and distressed, to assist the poor and destitute, to protect the orphans, the crippled and the aged, to educate the children of Bahá’ís according to the highest religious and intellectual standards, to compose differences and disagreements among members of the community, to promulgate the principles of Divine Civilization revealed by Bahá’u’lláh, and to promote in every way possible the Bahá’í aim of the oneness of mankind. It shall faithfully and devotedly uphold the general Bahá’í activities and affairs initiated and sustained by the National Spiritual Assembly. It shall cooperate whole-heartedly with other local Spiritual Assemblies throughout North America in all matters declared by the National Spiritual Assembly to be of general Bahá’í importance and concern. It shall rigorously abstain from any action or influence, direct or indirect, that savors of intervention on the part of a Bahá’í body in matters of public politics and civil jurisdiction. It shall encourage intercourse between the Bahá’í community of the City of New York and other recognized Bahá’í communities, issuing letters of introduction to Bahá’ís traveling from New York and passing upon letters of introduction issued by other Bahá’í Assemblies. It shall regard its authority as a means of rendering service to Bahá’ís and non-Bahá’ís and not as a source of arbitrary power. While retaining the sacred right of final decision in all matters pertaining to the Bahá’í community, the Spiritual Assembly shall ever seek the advice and consultation of all members of the community, keep the community informed of all its affairs, and invite full and free discussion on the part of the community of all matters affecting the Faith.
A LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

Beloved Friends:

Last month we quoted excerpts from the Guardian’s letters which refer directly to the supreme urgency of Temple construction at this time. While each group of believers is inclined to lay chief emphasis upon some one detail of Bahá’í activity, the Guardian alone brings us the world vision by which matters of primary and immediate importance can be separated from lesser matters or from matters which may be deferred to a later time.

Therefore the National Spiritual Assembly desires to renew, again and again, its conviction that the steady, uninterrupted prosecution of Temple construction is our greatest privilege and unequalled responsibility—every other affair must be made not merely secondary but directly contributive to that end.

In order to bring home to all the friends what has already been accomplished on the external decoration of the dome unit, and what remains to be done before June 1, 1933, this letter will quote passages from the three reports received to date by the Temple Trustees.

From the first report, dated June 30, 1932: “Mr. Earley has set aside his plant in Virginia near Washington for the work involved in this project. The preliminary work involves the laying out on the ground of a dome panel and its adjacent rib and the establishment of definite points of reference and of elevation. On the points located on the ground will be erected a wooden framework that will afford a full size template which will be an exact replica of the steel framework of the present dome. This entire structure has been designed, using the dimensions given on the general structural drawings and checked with the structural steel shop drawings. Mr. Earley expects to start the laying out of this structure at the plant on the first of July and to proceed with it uninterruptedly until completed.

“As soon as this dome frame work has been erected it will be carefully checked and templates made. These templates will be taken to Chicago and checked with the existing dome structure.”

From the second report, dated August 2, 1932: “During the month of July, Mr. Earley and his associates made layouts of the plan or horizontal projection of a dome panel and rib and of a vertical cross-section or projection of the outer dome frame work. The outlines of the outer steel framework work which will support the dome ornamentations were first accurately outlined on concrete. On the outline plan a wooden framework work has been erected and will give a full sized model of a section of the actual outer steel framework work of the Temple dome.

“As soon as this frame work has been completed, templates will be made and shipped to Wilmette where they will be checked up with the dome structure. This check will make it possible to reproduce the wooden framework work as an exact model of the steel framework work of the present dome structure.

“The purpose of this wooden framework work is to serve as a basis for the study of the architect’s design and the preparation of the models and molds of the various sections that will constitute the external decoration of the dome, including the dome panels and ribs. . . . A large sign will be erected on the top of the structural framework work at the plant and this will explain to the thousands of people who pass the plant yearly the nature and purpose of this project.”

From the third report, dated September 3, 1932: “About the middle of August the check template was completed and shipped to the Temple, where it was applied to the steel framework work of the dome by Mr. Taylor and three assistants.

“During the latter half of August plaster surface molds have been prepared to serve as a base on which to model the panel sections.

“At the date of this report the modeling of the first and lowest section of a dome sub-panel is being finished. This panel as modeled in clay has a width of about ten feet and a height of about seventeen feet. If cast in one section it would weigh about four tons, hence the panel will be cast in two sections weighing about two tons each.”

These interesting facts enable us to visualize just what is going on during the present, preliminary phase of the work. The present month of October will probably conclude this preliminary work and bring us to the point where Mr. Earley can commence casting some of the dome sections.

Up to the present time, $15,000 has been available for Temple construction, and this amount will be used up by November. The sum of $135,000 is still required in order to complete the dome unit by June, 1933. The National Spiritual Assembly reports this fact with full conviction that every American Bahá’í will do his utmost to make this tremendous achievement possible.

The devoted believers of Persia, longing to assist their American brothers and sisters, but unable to send any donations in the form of cash on account of the law that prohibits exporting gold or currency, have sent four bales of rugs to be sold here for the benefit of the Temple Fund. The believers of the British Isles likewise have a Temple fund which will be made available later on. What an inspiration this worldwide unity brings to us in our effort to meet the Guardian’s high standard!

Above all, we can appreciate the urgency of this task in the light of the prevailing international economic and political difficulties, analyzed so clearly...
by Shoghi Effendi in his letter on the "Goal of a New World Order." Our Bahá’í House of Worship is more than a beautiful structure—it is the evidence of the new Revelation, the new manifestation of the Holy Spirit, which can alone afford guidance and protection to mankind.

Faithfully your co-workers,

The National Spiritual Assembly,
Horace Holley, Secretary.

IN MEMORIAM

The prayers of the friends are besought for the following believers who have entered the spiritual Kingdom:

Mother Beecher, Lima, Ohio.
Dr. Frederick W. D’Evelyn, San Francisco.
Mr. Charles Greenleaf, Texas.
Miss Mary Viste, Denver.
Miss Martha Robinson, New York.
Miss Ann Boylan, New York.
Miss Jennie Bishop, New York.
Mrs. Cora C. Horn, New York.
Mrs. Marion Hotchkiss, New York.

THE SUSPENSION OF RELIGIOUS FESTIVITIES

On September 12, the National Spiritual Assembly wrote the Local Spiritual Assemblies to announce the Service of Commemoration for the Greatest Holy Leaf, and in that letter quoted a cablegram received from the Guardian which explains what religious festivities are to be suspended. "Festive Anniversaries should be suspended. Administrative gatherings, including Nineteen-Day Feasts, should be held with utmost simplicity."

The Anniversaries affected by this message are: the Birth of the Bab, the Birth of Bahá’u’lláh, the Fete Day of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, the Feast of Naw-Ruz.

PURCHASE OF LAND ON MOUNT CARMEL

On September 2, Shoghi Effendi cabled this important information: "Prolonged delicate negotiations resulted purchase (for) $5,000 a lot adjoining the precincts of the Bab’s Shrine. The deed has been officially registered (in the name of) American National Assembly, Palestine branch. Mailing documents to national Secretary. Inform all believers who, in response to my appeal, transmitted their donations through the National Assembly."

This refers to the appeal which the Guardian made in his letter dated October 24, 1925, at which time it had become apparent that certain non-Bahá’í interests were contemplating the purchase of land on Mount Carmel. As the result of that appeal, a number of believers sent contributions to the Guardian, who purchased various pieces of land in the name of the individual donors. Other believers contributed to this special fund through the National Spiritual Assembly, and it is these combined and joint donations which have made possible the latest purchase mentioned in the cablegram.

Within the past few months, the Spiritual Assembly of Honolulu has taken steps to transfer to the National Assembly, Palestine branch, the title to the property on Mount Carmel which they purchased some years ago through the Guardian and had held in the name of one of their members as trustee.

It is for the best interests of the Cause that as many individual believers as possible, who now hold land on Mount Carmel, follow the example of the Honolulu friends. The Guardian will have the transfer of title made at Haifa, and believers may write him of their intention.

THE SPIRIT OF SUCCESSFUL TEACHING

As conditions change, it is incumbent upon local Spiritual Assemblies to initiate new methods and policies in the teaching field.

Having accepted as its first responsibility the promotion of Temple construction, the National Spiritual Assembly is unable to provide facilities for teaching sufficient to meet the needs and opportunities made known by local communities and groups. The National Assembly feels this inability keenly, and longs for such resources as will make it possible to establish teaching circuits covering the entire country.

There is a mystery, however, in the contrast between the material weakness and the spiritual power of our Faith. Perhaps the time has come when Local Assemblies are called upon to develop a greater degree of responsibility in all that concerns the progress of the Cause in their own communities. This reflection seems to be confirmed by a statement which the Guardian wrote on August 25, through his secretary, to Mr. and Mrs. Bishop Brown, members of the National Teaching Committee: "You have rightly realized that there is a great need for the Local Spiritual Assemblies to learn to function, and they have hitherto been rather passive in the hope that the National Assembly can by itself do all the work."

What is a Local Assembly to do in the teaching field when its community possesses no trained public speakers?

It is the conviction of the National Assembly that this condition offers an opportunity and not merely a hardship. Public speaking is by no means the only or most important method by which to attract qualified souls to the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh. It is merely one of many channels of service.

In the case of small communities, the method of intimate home meetings offers the greatest possibility for successful teaching at the present time. The older religious organizations have no provision for such meetings, because they function through a professional clergy and not through the body of the believers. Even in the largest cities, thousands of seekers will respond to the appeal, and frank discussion, who have given up all hope of religion in its traditional forms.

The National Assembly offers this suggestion, with an earnest prayer that all Bahá’í communities, large and small, will abandon false conceptions of religious meetings and realize the overwhelming power of sincerity and devotion. May Local Assemblies encourage and cherish every effort to bring as many intimate home study groups as possible this year, trusting to the Spirit to confirm new souls and increase our ranks of faithful workers.

TEACHING REPORT FOR WESTERN STATES

July, 1932

All Assemblies report their major activities during the summer period being, first, the study of the "Dawn-breakers," concentration on the Unified Plan of Action, and careful consideration of the re-constructed Teaching Program of the National Spiritual Assembly.

These efforts became crystallized in the gathering of the Friends at the Summer School of the Bahá’ís of the Pacific Coast area, at Geyersville, the first two weeks of July, and the Teaching Conference held during the Summer School on July 10th.

Outstanding, and unequalled, was the new spirit continuously sustained in all the meetings. Nothing was able to disturb the quiet and calm of this elevating force that seemed to lift everyone from the things of the world, into a new realm that knew only the onward roll of progress. This spirit was directly attributable to the study of the lives of the heroic examples of perseverance and selflessness of the early pioneers of the Faith in Persia. Their indomitable courage permeated the souls of the Friends bringing a renewed determination to assist in the glorious work Shoghi Effendi has given the American Bahá'ís.

In considering at the Teaching Conference, the new Teaching program, the following are briefly the more important fields of service that may be advantageously carried out:

Individual Service:

As never before is it realized that the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh is one of increasing joy and enthusiasm; that it is a vibrant life, looking ever to the happier paths of human fellowship. No Bahá'í should permit the gloom and distress of the distracted and chaotic world to enter his consciousness. Each Bahá'í should radiate that spirit of alluring spiritual felicity that will become a beacon light to all.

The Bahá'ís should not separate themselves from the activities of the world, but engaging in, and taking part in the progressive efforts of all, become the centers of guidance. Each Bahá'í, to the extent possible should associate himself with some liberal progressive movement in his community, not in order to become mere attachments, but to seek out people of capacity who are looking for fresh hope and inspiration.

Fireside group meetings to attract Friends and develop discussion of the Teachings is a most effective manner of serving. These informal home gatherings should be semi-social, so as to give opportunity to discuss the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh in an intimate manner otherwise difficult to bring about.

Expansion of Assembly teaching activities:

Isolated Believers, if given continuous assistance afford one of the most effective immediate doors of endeavor in establishing new Bahá'í Communities. The Teaching Committee will give to each Assembly a list of the Isolated Believers in its territory, so this important field may early be utilized.

Whenever a group of Bahá'ís can travel together to a new center or group, this is most effective. The presentation of the Cause by the various ones in a slightly different manner, proves particularly impressive, and the contagion of the Bahá'í spirit more potent. A group of the Portland Friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bishop, Mrs. Louise Caswell, and Mrs. Alta Kreuger, recently made such a trip to the Bahá'í centers in the Pacific Northwest, Vancouver, B. C., Seattle and Monroe, Washington. In Vancouver, at one of the meetings, Prof. Charles Hill-tout, eminent anthropologist, and Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, stated that the fact that the Bahá'í Teachings were given to the world from darkest Persia in the nineteenth century, was proof of the divine origin of Bahá'u'lláh. Professor Hill-tout is president of the International Club, and has aroused much interest in the Cause by his many favorable comments to people of capacity. At this same meeting a former member of parliament of British Columbia was asked to speak about the doings of the League of Nations at Geneva. She replied that anything she had to say was less important than what had been said and she felt the Bahá'í Teachings held the most prominent solution of world problems.

Each Assembly should make it a duty of first importance to see that Bahá'í Literature is properly catalogued and available in public libraries. Increasing demands are being made for Bahá'í books in the libraries, and it is our duty to see that the latest and best books are continuously available. Shoghi Effendi has particularly stressed the importance of the Downto-breakers; and to make it possible to have these priceless books in all public libraries, the Publishing Committee has made a special price of $5.00 for library copies.

Teachers should endeavor to spend a month or two in new centers until either a strong group is actively studying the Teachings, or the basis laid for the establishment of a new Bahá'í Assembly. Mrs. Laura Luther in response to this advice of Shoghi Effendi, has gone to Monroe, Washington, for an indefinite period to assist the Friends there in establishing an Assembly.

Inter-Assembly Cooperation:

The benefit of inter-assembly cooperation cannot be too strongly emphasized. Inter-Assembly Conferences are of the greatest benefit, as they give all the Friends the benefit of the wider service and experiences of the Bahá'ís of other centers, a fuller feeling of mutual dependence is developed, and a greater spirit of enthusiastic service achieved.

Most important is the continuous interchange of speakers, as each new speaker brings a new wave of interest, and often contacts are made which the local Friends had been unable to accomplish. As an illustration, Mrs. Gale Marsolais, of Monroe, Washington, visited the Bahá'ís in Vancouver, B. C., and while there, contacted the outstanding Bible prophecy authority among the Jews of British Columbia. He became greatly interested in the Bahá'í explanation and fulfillment of Bible prophecy, and promises to visit with the Bahá'ís at their study group in Monroe in August. Up to that time the Bahá'ís of Vancouver had not been able to contact this distinguished gentleman.

The Bahá'ís in Southern California are to hold two important meetings of International Friendship during the Twelfth Olympiad at Los Angeles, July 28th to August 13th, inclusive. The first meeting will be in the nature of a seminar, with speakers from inter-racial and international groups, while the second will be purely a Bahá'í meetings to explain the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh.

Study classes to gain a closer knowledge of the Cause, and a more intimate contact with its conquering spirit, are being held in all Assemblies, the text book being of course, the Dawn breakers. Teachers' preparation classes are also being organized with great effect.

All of the Bahá'í centers are anxiously awaiting the course of instruction for Children, which the new National Committee on Training and Teaching of Children are shortly to issue. Miss Charlotte Linford, Secretary of this Committee, urges that any Friends or Assemblies having important data of Bahá'í training of children, send it to her, for correlation with the data already in hand.

Radio Stations are becoming more liberal in their attitudes towards addresses on progressive movements, looking to the betterment of the social conditions, and many Assemblies are able to make openings for Bahá'í discussions. In Seattle many talks are given on Esperanto, while one or two have been given on the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh. Likewise in Portland, talks have been given on Esperanto, with a recent talk by Mrs. Louise Caswell, on the "New Era," being an exposition of the Declaration of the Bahá'ís, and His Teachings.

All Assemblies report renewed activity in the Inter-Racial activities. The Oakland Assembly holds inter-racial gatherings once a month, in the homes of the various Bahá'ís. They now have a study class, developed from these inter-racial gatherings, which promises to be beneficial in furthering our contacts with the colored races of that city. In Berkeley inter-racial gatherings have been held with good effect; one of the largest being a God, revealed this day through the Bahá’í Faith, that the world can hope to be relieved from its many social and spiritual ills.” (To Mr. John B. Richardson, Chicago, through Ruhi Afnán, April 6, 1932).

“Shoghi Effendi has never said that the members of the National Assembly have to be renewed partially every year. The important thing is that they should be properly elected. It would be nice if there should be new members elected, for new blood always adds to the energy of the group and will keep up their spirit. But this depends entirely upon the will of the delegates as represented in the result of their voting.”

“The teachers of the Cause can surely become members of any Assembly or committee. There should be no incapacity attached to them. But Shoghi Effendi would just prefer to see them devote all their time to teaching and leave the administrative functions for those who cannot serve as teachers.” (To Mr. Willard Hatch, Los Angeles, through Ruhi Afnán, April 27, 1932.)

“How wonderful it would be if all the friends could arrange to spend at least a few days in one of these summer schools and take an active part in their development. These centers could attract many souls if properly arranged and made interesting; those non-Bahá’ís who visit them will then have some time to get into the spirit of the place and make a study of the Cause . . . We constantly receive letters from people who became Bahá’ís by visiting one of these centers and obtaining the Message there.” (To Miss Cora Gray, received about May 1, 1932, through Ruhi Afnán.)

The Dawn-Breakers

“They may be interested to know that many of the distinguished men to whom Shoghi Effendi sent a copy of The Dawn-Breakers as a present, wrote him in answer that it is one of the most beautiful books they have seen for a long time. This proves how successful you have been in that important task.” (To Mrs. Marion Little, Secretary of the Publishing Committee, New York, through Ruhi Afnán, May 7, 1932.)

In the same letter, written by the Guardian: “I wish to reaffirm in person the cable I was moved to send to your address expressing my keen appreciation of and profound gratitude for the manner you as well as your collaborators have cooperated in producing such a splendid and impressive edition. It is a striking and abiding evidence of the efficiency and exemplary devotion which characterize your work for the Cause.”

“Shoghi Effendi was glad to hear of your work among the ranchers. He sincerely hopes that they will advance in spirituality and become imbued with the Spirit of Bahá’ulláh. Country people should be much render for the Message, for they are not so completely carried away by material civilization and its blinding influence. They ought to be more receptive and more pure in heart.” (To Mrs. Shahnaz Waite, Los Angeles, through Ruhi Afnán, May 13, 1932.)

Shoghi Effendi undertook the translation of The Dawn-Breakers only after being convinced that its publication will arouse the friends to greater self-sacrifice and a more determined way of teaching. Otherwise he would not have devoted so much time to it. Reading about the life and activities of those heroic souls is bound to influence our mode of living and the importance we attach to our services in the Cause. Shoghi Effendi therefore hopes that the friends will read, nay rather, study that book, and encourage their young people to do that as well. “It is also very important to hold study classes and go deep in the Teachings. A great harm is done by starting to teach without being firmly grounded in the literature. Little knowledge is dangerous” fully applies to the teaching work. The friends should read the Writings and be able to quote from the Tablets when discussing subjects pertaining to the Faith.” (To Mrs. Edith Hildebrand, Clearlake Highlands, California, through Ruhi Afnán, May 9, 1932.)

On Teaching

“Administrative work and teaching do not exclude each other. Even though you will find yourself forced to give more time to the former, Shoghi Effendi hopes that you will keep up the latter form of service and continue to draw new souls into the movement. “Shoghi Effendi read the plan of work you have set for the National Teaching Committee with great care. It surely depends ultimately upon the National Assembly to approve it, or to modify it, but it seems as a whole to be most promising.”

nature. It has proven to be far better that a teacher should spend a month or two in one center and wait until a group is formed, than to cover a larger area and not stay enough in a center to help the progress of those interested to the stage that they would feel themselves able to embrace the Cause and identify themselves with it.” (To Mr. Leroy Ioa, San Francisco, through Ruhi Afnan, May 30, 1932.)

On Collection of Bahá’í Funds

“Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated May 8th, 1932, telling him of some incidents that transpired during the Convention this year, especially when funds were collected for the Temple. He was very glad to learn of the wonderful spirit that prevailed in those gatherings; for it is only through such a spirit of devotion and sacrifice that the Cause can prosper and its message embrace the whole world. It was also wonderful to see the interest shown by the public in the general gatherings that formed part of the Convention program.

“Shoghi Effendi hopes that as the Temple is gradually completed this interest will increase and they will try to share in the spirit that motivates the friends and accepting the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh, arise to serve it and dedicate their life to its spread.

“Such gatherings for collections of funds are permissible if it is done with a true spirit of sacrifice, not when the audience is especially aroused to a frenzy and mob psychology is used to induce them to pay.

“Shoghi Effendi has repeatedly stated that no pressure should be used upon the friends and psychological pressure falls under that category. But there is much difference between such gatherings often used by religious bodies, and a true quiet, prayerful atmosphere when a person is, of his own accord, aroused to make some sacrifice. The distinction is very delicate, but it is for the Chairman to use his power to see that one desirable form is not corrupted into the other. All the activities of the Cause should be carried through in a dignified manner.

“Shoghi Effendi is sure that the funds gathered at the last Convention was not due to the play of mob psychology but to the prayerful attitude of the friends and their desire to make further sacrifice.” (To Mrs. Corinne True, Wilmette, through Ruhi Afnan, May 28, 1932.)

Persian Government Removes Ban on Entry of Bahá’í Literature

One of the great obstacles in the path of the Cause has apparently been removed by the recent action of the Persian government in raising the ban on entry of Bahá’í literature into that land, and its free circulation within Persia.

Information of this important action was conveyed to the National Spiritual Assembly by Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler in a cablegram dated Tehran, August 20, 1932. Following this announcement the Assembly has received from Mrs. Ransom-Kehler a letter containing the following explicit statement: “On August 15 I saw his Highness Teymourtash and received from him the direct, unqualified assurance that Bahá’í literature would be admitted freely into Persia and permitted to circulate.”

Mrs. Ransom-Kehler in this meeting with the Court Minister was the personal representative of the American National Spiritual Assembly, in accordance with the wish of the Guardian, who had requested her to journey from Haifa to Tehran and undertake the important mission of presenting a petition to the Shah.

The successful performance of this mission reveals the power of the Cause in the land of its birth, where only a few years ago martyrdom was still inflicted upon faithful followers of Bahá’u’lláh.

On September 14, the National Assembly dispatched the following cablegram: “His Highness Teymourtash, Court Minister, Tehran. On behalf American Bahá’ís we express abiding gratitude for removal of ban on entry of Bahá’í literature into Persia. This noble action of His Imperial Majesty’s government has profoundly impressed Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada, who have already felt strong attachment to Bahá’u’lláh’s native land. We wish to assure your Highness of our sympathy for His Imperial Majesty, our great interest in the progress and welfare of his empire and our desire to assist in enhancing its prestige throughout the world.” (signed) American Bahá’í Assembly.

News from Other Lands

As space permits, every effort will be made to publish the important news received in letters from Local and National Assemblies throughout the world. The following excerpts are taken from communications received by the American National Assembly since the Convention.

“You would be very much pleased to learn that Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, who recently visited Burma under the direction and with the sanction of our dearly beloved Guardian, Shoghi Effendi, rendered excellent services to the Cause in Mandalay and Rangoon, and was the cause of creating great zeal and enthusiasm among many enlightened persons for investigating the truth of the Bahá’í Revelation. Her heart-stirring speeches given at the Brahmo Samaj and the Theosophical Society of Rangoon were simply wonderful.”—S. G. Murtaza Ali, Secretary, Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of Rangoon, March 7, 1932.

“In this hour of world-encircling gloom when the very life of the rest of mankind falters, does not the work we Bahá’ís have set our hands to demand of us a more continued and tenacious devotion than ever before, does it not call for a persistent and unyielding effort greater than any we have displayed in the past? We are blessed, indeed, in that we know the cause, understand the significance and are assured of the outcome of the crises that convulse present-day society. But every blessing carries with it a responsibility—and grievous will be our loss if we fail to set aside our cares and carry the Message of Salvation to a despairing world.”—Hormuzdyar Khodabaksh, Secretary, Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of Poona, March 12, 1932.

The friends in India and Burma are extremely pleased and very happy for the visit of Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler to India and Burma. She addressed public meetings in Rangoon, Mandalay, Benares, Lucknow, Aligarh, Amritsar and Lahore, was welcomed in the universities at Benares, Lucknow and Aligarh and did very splendid work in spreading the Most Great Cause in India and Burma. She was in Bombay for a week and addressed large meetings almost every evening. She has gone to Deccan Hyderabad and will be there for a week. We in India are most grateful to the friends in America for sending such able teachers to India to spread the Holy Cause.”—N. R. Vakil, President and Treasurer, National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of India and Burma, April 8, 1932.

“We learn with the greatest joy of the activities and wonderful efforts which are being made by the friends in that beloved country (America) for the completion of the construction of the Temple in Wilmette. We had some time ago collected a small sum to be offered as a contribution to the Mashriqu’-i-Adhkar Fund, but we have so far not been able to transmit the money to you owing to the difficulty we had in connection with the obtaining of foreign exchange. . . . The Spiritual Assembly in Tihran has thought it advisable to purchase some carpets for the equivalent of the contributions collected and send the same to America.

"We have learned with greatest satisfaction and joy of the completion of the wonderful portrait of 'Abdu’l-Bahá. This is indeed a wonderful and important service rendered by the beloved friends in America which will be remembered through ages to come and of which the friends in that country should rightly be proud. . . . Another noteworthy service rendered by the friends is the publication of the Nabil Narratives translated by the beloved Guardian. We have so far received a few copies of this book. It is indeed a wonderful work."—Massoud Vedad, Secretary, Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of Persia, April 20, 1932.

"Bahá’ís of Persia, and especially the older ones who have been subject to all kinds of humiliations and tor­tures until recent years, now shed tears of joy to see the evident glory of the Cause and the freedom of Bahá’ís. In many of the Bahá’í public meetings of Tihran one meets non-Bahá’ís who are naturally attracted to these meet­ings and among them are many who formerly opposed the Bahá’ís. Now when these individuals see with their eyes the Bahá glory they pretend to call themselves Bahá’ís or at least friendly toward them. True is the promise of His Holiness ‘Abdu’l-Bahá who said a time will come when many a person would pretend to be a Bahá’í and would try to prove this by saying that he has a distant relationship with a Bahá’í. Bahá’ís of Persia feel certain that the Bahá’í Glory will, most decidedly, be established in its fullest form in the time of their Master, Shoghi Effendi.

"You will be pleased to hear that a Bahá’í Committee called ‘Association of the Bahá’í Youth’ is progressing well. The plan of this Committee is to manage a Bahá’í Club and prepare the means of progress for Bahá’í youth, mentally, physically and spiritually. It has two hundred and forty mem­bers at present.

"For the first time the Bahá’í Lib­rary of this Assembly called by the Spiritual Assembly ‘Central Bahá’í Lib­rary of the Bahá’ís of Persia’ has announced its establishment in the Bahá’í News Letter of Tihran, and would like to have all Bahá’í Assemblies and Committees of Bahá’í Pub­lications informed that copies of Bahá’í publications together with any contributions will be thankfully ac­cepted."—Zikrahn Khadim, Unity Rela­tions Committee between East and West, Iraq Legation, Tihran, April 21, 1932.

"Here in Persia we still have our difficulties to fight with; the general tendency in the world against religion is gradually gaining ground here still worse than the prejudice and religious bigotry and persecution which it re­places and which led to martyrdoms so many thousands of our dear brethren in the past. The Mulas, although on the decline, still have enough malig­nancy left for as long as we have congregations, whose ranks are admittedly thin and wavering, to passive animosity and revengeful hatred. No persecution is manifest but still no freedom of even recognition is accorded. . . . We would advise you to address all letters to us as follows in order to avoid all possible delays, in care of: ""For Persian, Tihran."" A. A. Rouhani, Secretary, National Spiritual Assembly of Persia, April 24, 1932.

"A fit termination to the eventful year was the visit of Mrs. Keith Ran­som-Kehler to our city. She was with us the three days prior to Ridván. . . . The three days she was with us were truly remarkable. For each succeeding lecture the hall engaged chance to be larger than that of the previous day and yet it proved too small to hold all those who had come to hear her. What better evidence of the attractive spirit of this noble teacher? . . . Our beloved sister speaks as she inspired. Possibility of her to all the other cities that she has visited, was en­rapured by her engaging personality and pleaded that she extend her stay here. Owing to other engagements elsewhere it was not possible for this tireless worker to comply with this wish.

"Some Poona friends have donated outright to the Bahá’í Archives Com­mittee of America all the original Tab­lets received by them from the beloved Master. The Guardian has approved of this course of action and has recom­mended that all the Indian friends likewise adopt this measure to ensure for future generations the preservation of these precious relics of the Foun­ders of our Faith."—Hormuzdyar Khodabakhsh, Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of Poona, April 21, 1932.

"The Annual Convention of this year was very successful and proved more clearly its great significance. Delegates as well as many friends from various centers in Egypt have at­tended. Redoubled by the visit of our radiant sister, Mrs. Schopflocher, whom our Guardian wished to attend the meeting, was the joy of the Con­vention and also the celebration of Ridván. It might be mentioned that Mrs. Schopflocher took some moving pictures of the gathering of the friends. It is hoped that these pictures will be of interest to our western friends.

"During the last months of last year negotiations (with the Egyptian gov­ernment) have made wider progress. Directed by the beloved Guardian, friends kept up a continuous appeal to the Prime Minister, Minister of the Interior and Minister of Justice. Pet­i­tions were submitted and copies of the letter lately coded and revised by Shoghi Effendi have also been fur­nished. The National Assembly of America has supplied this body with an appeal together with a copy of the official recognition of the American Government, which documents were duly submitted to the Egyptian author­i­ties. The Convention has also sent a telegram to the Prime Minister solicitating sympathetic consideration of the Bahá’í case. We have great hopes in the final success and will keep you acquainted with further results."—Abdul Fattah Sabry Effendi, Secretary, National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of Egypt, May 1, 1932. (Note: the Bahá’í case mentioned above was described a few years ago by the Guardian in one of his general letters published in Bahá’í Administration.—Editor).

"In compliance with the repeated in­structions of the Guardian, the Na­tional Assembly last year held several extraordinary sessions to discuss the important matter of applying to the local government for the recognition of the Bahá’í Cause. The Assembly, with the cooperation of committees ap­pointed for the purpose, prepared and submitted to the Guardian the necessary drafts and documents which included: Declaration of Trust, By­Laws, By-Laws of Local Assemblies. Shortly afterward a letter from the Guardian revealed the fact that all the National Assemblies in the world should adopt without any alteration one kind of Trust and By-Laws. The best model existing being that of the U.S.A. and Canada, which he strongly recom­mended; and as to the By­Laws of Local Assemblies, that of the New York Local Assembly, which is to be published in the forthcoming Bahá’í World, Volume IV, must be actu­ally adopted."
"We are delighted to say that the Cause, in Iraq in particular, has been gaining widespread publicity while its prestige and dignity has been greatly enhanced in the estimation of non-believers. The people have begun to perceive that the Bahá’í Cause, which has attracted the deep attention and concern of all the nations of the world, is other than what they were taught by those who did all in their power to disparage its fair name and noble purpose. The minutes of the Council of the League of Nations, declaring the urgency of expropriating the House of Bahá’u’lláh were duly published by the local press, thereby causing joy to the believers. And although, in the words of the Guardian, gloom and humiliation has now beset the Bahá’í Cause in Iraq in particular, has been given more and more definitely heard by the people through the efforts of a steadily increasing number of friends.

"During the last three months the London friends have had the pleasure of welcoming these visitors from abroad: Mr. Dorakhshan, of Paris and Tehran; Mr. Mountfort Mills, of New York and Geneva; Mr. Albert Windust, of Chicago, on his way home to America from Haifa; and Mr. Paridoon, of Kerman and Berlin. At a Unity Feast held at the Bahá’í room on February 29, short talks were given upon the subject, "The World Crisis and the Bahá’í Movement." Professor Savastri joined whole-heartedly in the appeal for more enthusiasm in spreading the universal Message of Bahá’u’lláh in this critical time, Lady Blomfield, Mrs. Slade, Miss Pinbon, Miss Baxter, and Mrs. Romer have given the Message in many places, including New Thought, Quaker, and Esperanto meetings, the International Guest House, and the London Fields Fellowship. In connection with this latter Mrs. Romer and Miss Phillips have spoken to a group of about one hundred children from eight to sixteen years of age.

"Mrs. George, indefatigable and faithful at all times, has continued her Sunday afternoon meetings, the most precious function of which is to deepen in the souls of people the profound spiritual teachings of the Cause."--News Letter from Bahá’ís of the British Isles, March. 1932.

"The most pleasant and encouraging feature of the year ending April 21, 1932, was the visit of our international teacher, Mrs. Keith Ranson-Kehler; with her transparent sincerity and honesty of purpose, she has enthused in us the spirit of real work which we hope will enable and hearten us to work for the general welfare of the community and the teaching work in particular. The account of our beloved Keith's activities in Bombay is enclosed." (The account mentioned is, unfortunately, too long for publication here. It gives details of addresses made by Mrs. Keith Ranson-Kehler of the Ridvan Feast at the Arva Samat Mandir, at Theosophical Hall, and at meetings of the Bahá’í community.—Editor)—O. Mollier, English Secretary, Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of Bombay, May 3, 1932.

"The construction of the 'Hazíratu’l-Quds' was the first decision of this Assembly. A plan was drawn and a copy sent to our beloved Guardian. The building work took five months, and it was decided by the Assembly to hold the opening ceremony on the first day of the month of Bahá, the Bahá’í New Year Day. To our great joy we heard that our spiritual sister, Mrs. Keith Ranson-Kehler, of New York, intended to come to Karachi to dedicate the Bahá’í Hall. It was a miracle that an American lady could come at such a time to India, for opening the 'Hazíratu’l-Quds' which is the first Bahá’í Hall in India."—M. R. Momenzadeh, Secretary, Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of Karachi, May 5, 1932.

As frequently as possible, similar excerpts from our International Bahá’í Correspondence will be published in Bahá’í News.

IMPORTANT WORK ON THE BAB

The Bahá’ís of Paris, in a letter dated August 19, 1932, announce that they are consulting with M. Nicholas, the well-known French historian, who has written a number of books concerning the Bab. As result, it is hoped that a new edition, in French, can be published of his work "Seyyed Ali Mohamed le Bab." The book will contain 350 pages and sell for 15 francs, postage additional.

American believers who read French will find this work of great interest. While not listed as an authoritative Bahá’í publication, it nevertheless has importance as a source of historical information.

Advance orders can be sent to: Mr. C. Kennedy, 104, Avenue de Versailles, Paris, France.

Mr. Kennedy has received a letter from the Guardian strongly encouraging the publication of this new edition and offering to contribute to its expense.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY PUBLISHING COMMITTEE

A new edition is available of the Study Outline, and copies may be obtained with or without the three Bahá’í books needed as sources of reference in the use of this Outline.

Price of Study Outline ........ $0.50
Price of Study Outline and one copy of the following books: Bahá’u’lláh and the New Era; Wisdom of 'Abdu’l-Bahá; and Foundations of World Unity ............. 1.50

This Study Outline is invaluable for individual students of the Teachings, and especially for communities and groups who desire to follow a definite course of study.

A small number of copies of Religious Education Magazine for September, containing Mr. Albert Vail's review of The Down-Breakers, are offered for sale at 60¢ each, postpaid.
The Publishing Committee will cooperate with Assembly Librarians in promoting the sale of The Dawn-Breakers, by sending copies on consignment, to be paid for when sold. The price of the Standard Edition is $7.50; of the Limited Edition, autographed by the Guardian, $35.00. In view of the fact that the cost of this book has been guaranteed by the National Spiritual Assembly, no discount can be allowed to local Librarians. Local Assemblies are requested to give all possible consideration to the spiritual importance of having every believer possess a copy of this unique work. In a number of cities, arrangements have been made by which believers can purchase copies on installment payments.

DUTIES AND OBLIGATIONS OF A LOCAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY
From New York By-Laws Approved by the Guardian

Article III—The Spiritual Assembly, in the fulfillment of its obligations and responsibilities under this Corporation, shall have exclusive jurisdiction and authority over all the local activities and affairs of the Bahá’í community of the City of New York, including paramount authority in the administration of this Corporation. It shall be responsible for maintaining the integrity and accuracy of all Bahá’í teaching, whether written or oral, undertaken throughout the local community. It shall make available the published literature of the Faith. It shall represent the community in its relations to the National Spiritual Assembly, in its relation to the Guardian of the Bahá’í Faith, to other local Bahá’í communities, and to the general public in the City of New York. It shall be charged with the recognition of all applicants requesting membership in the local Bahá’í community. It shall pass upon the right of any and all members of the community whose membership is in question to retain their status as voting members of the community. It shall call the meetings of the community, including the Bahá’í Anniversaries and Feasts, the meetings of consultation, the Annual Meeting and the meeting for the election of delegates to the Annual Meeting of the National Spiritual Assembly. It shall appoint and supervise all committees of the Bahá’í community. It shall collect and disburse all funds intended for the maintenance of this Corporation. It shall have full and complete custody of the headquarters or meeting place of the Bahá’í community. It shall report to the National Spiritual Assembly annually, or when requested, the membership roll of the Bahá’í community, for the formation and approval of the national Bahá’í body. The Spiritual Assembly, however, shall recognize the authority and right of the National Spiritual Assembly to declare at any time what activities and affairs of the Bahá’í community of the City of New York are national in scope and hence subject to the jurisdiction of the national Bahá’í body. It shall likewise recognize the right of any member of the community to appeal to the National Spiritual Assembly for review and decision of any matter in which the previous decision of the local Spiritual Assembly is felt by the member to be contrary to the explicit teachings of the Bahá’í Faith or opposed to its best interests. It shall, on the other hand, have the authority and right to appeal from the decision of the National Assembly to the Guardian of the Faith for review and final decision of any matter related to the Faith in the City of New York.

Article IV—The Spiritual Assembly, in administering this Corporation, shall ever bear in mind the ideals upheld in the Sacred Writings of the Bahá’í Faith respecting the relationships of a Spiritual Assembly to its Bahá’í community, respecting the relationships of Bahá’ís to one another in the community, and the relationships of Bahá’ís to all non-Bahá’ís, without prejudice of race, creed, class or nationality. The Assembly shall therefore above all recognize its sacred duty to maintain full and complete unity throughout the Bahá’í community, to relieve and comfort the sick and distressed, to assist the poor and destitute, to protect the orphans, the crippled and the aged, to educate the children of Bahá’ís according to the highest religious and intellectual standards, to compose differences and disagreements among members of the community, to promulgate the principles of Divine Civilization revealed by Bahá’u’lláh, and to promote in every way possible the Bahá’í aim of the oneness of mankind. It shall faithfully and devotedly uphold the general Bahá’í activities and affairs initiated and sustained by the National Spiritual Assembly. It shall cooperate whole-heartedly with other local Spiritual Assemblies throughout North America in all matters declared by the National Spiritual Assembly to be of general Bahá’í importance and concern. It shall rigorously abstain from any action or influence, direct or indirect, that savors of intervention on the part of a Bahá’í body in matters of public politics and civil jurisdiction. It shall encourage intercourse between the Bahá’í community of the City of New York and other recognized Bahá’í communities, issuing letters of introduction to Bahá’ís traveling from New York and passing upon letters of introduction issued by other Bahá’í Assemblies. It shall regard its authority as a means of rendering service to Bahá’ís and non-Bahá’ís and not as a source of arbitrary power. While retaining the sacred right of final decision in all matters pertaining to the Bahá’í community, the Spiritual Assembly shall ever seek the advice and consultation of all members of the community, keep the community informed of all its affairs, and invite full and free discussion on the part of the community of all matters affecting the Faith.
A PLEA FOR INCREASED EFFORT IN BAHÁ'Í TEACHING
A Statement by the
National Spiritual Assembly

In order to give release to all available resources for teaching at this time when world depression is quickening the hearts of countless people, the National Spiritual Assembly authorized and heartily endorsed the outline of plans and policies prepared by the Teaching Committee and published in the July issue of BAHÁ'Í NEWS.

The Teaching Committee, through both its Western and Eastern divisions, has with notable energy and devotion labored to carry out the aims adopted after consultation with previous Teaching Committee members and careful thought of the changed conditions in the outer world. Every Local Spiritual Assembly has received valuable suggestions, and each individual believer has, through successive issues of BAHÁ'Í NEWS, been urged to feel his or her measure of responsibility in promoting the Cause.

As friends of our Faith point out, if Bahá'ís cannot carry this Message to the people now, when do they hope to prove their knowledge and vindicate their loyalty?

Perhaps, as seems inevitable, there still exists here and there among us a conception of teaching based on facts and conditions of former years. When we realize how everything else has progressed, how the world has been transformed, how our administrative institutions have all been renewed and revitalized since the appointment of the Guardian only eleven years ago, development of teaching activities cannot lag behind.

In the early days, most of the teaching was carried on by a relatively few people, whose capacity was such that Bahá'í communities gradually appeared in all parts of this vast country. Lacking our present supply of published authentic literature, seekers turned to teachers as the only available source of information about this new and mighty Revelation. Without knowledge, moreover, of the law of consultation as exemplified in the institutions of Local and National Spiritual Assemblies, the early gatherings rallied around human personalities and took courage from the constant devotion of these outstanding pioneers. Little by little, some of the Bahá'í texts were translated and circulated, but the friends for a time still continued to look for inspiration and guidance to the Master's Tablets revealed in reply to personal letters.

The first step toward unity was the adoption of Bahá'í Temple Unity as the national organization, which above all emphasized the construction of the Temple as the centralizing responsibility and most important task. Teaching and other Committees existed from year to year, but could not be fully coordinated as aspects of Bahá'í community life as a whole. The older friends will recall periods when individual believers were uncertain whether to contribute to the Temple or to the Teaching Fund, since these matters seemed somewhat separated before the present National Fund came into existence. Generous believers made it possible for teachers to give their whole time to visiting local communities and extending the fame of the Cause. The Star of the West was a separate activity, carried on with tremendous sacrifice by a few, while for years Green Acre was also distinct and separate, with only bonds of sympathy uniting it with the Cause in other fields.

With the establishment of a National Spiritual Assembly began a new era which we still understand only in part, so tremendous are its possibilities with the full unfolding of the innate capacities of the worldwide Faith. But we can already see that a real beginning has been made in unifying and coordinating all Bahá'í activities, and in constituting true centers of unity not only for the local but also for the national and international community of believers. With one central Fund, it is now for the first time possible to decide between the relative needs of the different activities, bring them all into harmony not only one with another but all with the ultimate aims of the Cause as a whole. The Bahá'í Faith, in brief, has under the Guardian already become a "federated world" and hence a prototype of the World Order which is the outer goal of the teachings.

Nearly all our difficulties and misunderstandings have arisen from the need to adjust ourselves mentally and spiritually to this organic unity. Not only did each national committee have to subordinate its special work and function to the authority of the Cause as a whole, but each local community also found much of its early independence and spiritual isolation sacrificed to the new principle of true unity explained in the Guardian's general letters.

It is perfectly clear today that the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh contained all these provisions from the beginning. The principles of the Faith have not been altered, but due to our immaturity they could only gradually be applied. The change has been in ourselves. As children who pass from class to class in a school, so we collectively were first given easy, simple lessons, then little by little more difficult ones, and this process will surely continue through all the worlds of God. Until our daily attitude and outlook.
corresponds to the worldwide immensity of the Cause, we are behind in our Bahá’í education.

The completion of the Temple structure, the economic depression, and the Guardian’s translation of The Dawn-Breakers, are all recent factors compelling us collectively to take another great step in our growth. An attitude which became crystallized and rigid before we received the inspiration of The Dawn-Breakers must, if we do not willingly abandon it, become a source of inner conflict and suffering and a cause of outer confusion in the general work of the Cause. The principle operating here does not and cannot arise from the exercise of Assembly authority—it is a universal and divine law. It is for Local and National Spiritual Assemblies to strive to make their decisions conform to the ever-changing conditions of a living, irremissibly widening and deepening world movement. No Assembly could ever enforce any part of Bahá’í service if it failed to keep pace with this growth and development emanating from the invisible realm.

No where more than in the mighty field of teaching does this truth apply. Teaching is identical with living the life. Teaching opportunities surround every faithful believer at every moment, attracted by the presence of radiance, enthusiasm, knowledge and integrity. Greater and greater opportunities will come to us without artificial effort on our part, when our local communities manifest unity among all the friends. In this blessed Faith, teaching is far removed from the methods and practices of the creeds, where one is set apart in a special position, and religion is divided into “lay” and “clerical” bodies.

In taking the attitude that all believers are teachers, each according to his or her capacity, the National Assembly has brought forth no “new” teaching policy, but has on the contrary succeeded in asserting a vital Bahá’í principle that has always existed in the Sacred Writings but has not sufficiently become part of our daily lives.

Since all believers are teachers, it follows that the National Spiritual Assembly could not always be justified in maintaining an institution or method, begun before the National Assembly was instituted, which tends to make Bahá’í teachers a special class of believers and thus tends to keep the local communities undeveloped and passive in their highest spiritual function.

The members of the National Assembly can only point out the underlying reasons for terminating this method during the present Bahá’í year, when difficult conditions make it imperative to study the operation of all activities more intensely than ever before, and to trust that the friends will see for themselves that the decision was not arbitrary but arose from fresh consideration of the nature of the Cause itself.

It is profoundly hoped that the period of transition will not be difficult, and that as all communities begin to appreciate their responsibility for teaching, individually and collectively, a great new wave of sacrificing and ardent effort, like that displayed by the heroes of The Dawn-Breakers, will sweep over the continent of America. Divine protection will surely be extended to any sincere and loyal believer on whom this transition lays any special burden.

In a letter dated Haifa, September 10, 1932, the Guardian has written to the National Spiritual Assembly, through his secretary, as follows: “The Guardian fully agrees with your idea that the permanent welfare of the Faith demands the steady development of local Bahá’í community life. The policy your Assembly has adopted regarding the publication of Bahá’í News, the signing of a new contract regarding the dome of the Temple, and various measures involving a strict retrenchment of administrative expenditure, have met with the Guardian’s whole-hearted and unqualified approval. He truly admires the spirit which enabled you to face the rigors and surmount the obstacles of a crisis unprecedented in its gravity and world-wide in its effects. The constancy, wisdom, courage and loyalty you have so thoroughly displayed are beyond all praise, and are worthy of your high station as the standard-bearers of the Administration of the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh.”

To this letter the Guardian added the following words: “I am moved to add a few words with my own pen, to what has been written on my behalf, renewing my plea to you, and through you, to each member of your beloved community, to prosecute, with undiminished vigor, the enterprise which you have so splendidly inaugurated. The Greatest Holy Leaf, from her retreat of Glory, is watching over you, is interceding for every one of you and is expecting you to play your part in the great task with which the prestige of her Father’s glorious Cause is so closely associated. You have, while she lived among us, contributed to a remarkable degree to the brightening of her earthly life. By your persistent, your heroic endeavors, you will, I am sure, bring added joy to her soul, and will vindicate afresh your unyielding loyalty to her memory.”

IN MEMORIAM

The prayers of the friends are asked for those believers who have passed into the Kingdom.

Mr. Thomas Lovenore, New York City.
Miss Georgiana Dean, Pasadena, Calif.
Mr. Charles Stewart Campbell, Portland, Ore.

PROGRESS OF TEMPLE CONSTRUCTION

The Temple Trustees have received from The Research Service the following interesting report on the work up to October 8.

“The work during the month of September has largely consisted of the moulding and carving of the two lower segments of sub-panels of the field of the dome. This work has been completed and these two sections are ready for the preparation of the moulds in which the casting of the final segments of the dome ornamentation will be made. The completed plaster of Paris models of the two dome sections begin to reveal the real beauty of the final structure. Every one who sees these models is impressed with the uniqueness of the design and the impressiveness of the structure.

“The clay models for the third and fourth sections of the sub-panel of the field of the dome have been completed and steps are being taken to convert these into the permanent plaster of Paris form. This work will be completed during the month of October.

“The lower section of the dome rib has been started and will also be completed during the month of October. This part of the ornamentation is especially beautiful in its conception....

“You will be interested to learn that this work has already aroused considerable interest and a statement concerning the work to date is to appear in the October 13th issue of our leading civil engineering journal, Engineering News-Record, of New York City.”

TEMPLE CONTRIBUTIONS FROM OTHER LANDS

American Bahá’ís will rejoice to learn that contributions have been made to the Temple Fund this year, or are soon to be made, by the following National and Local Spiritual Assemblies in other lands: National Assemblies of Egypt, Persia, India and Burma, and the British Isles; Local Assemblies of Adelaide, Baghdad and Pretoria. In addition, individual believers have contributed from China, Japan, France, Germany, Geneva, Turkey and Irish Free State.

Such evidence of solidarity in sacrifice, in thought and in faith, manifested at a time when the civil populations of these countries are desperately divided by material and also moral barriers, should redouble the efforts of the American friends.

Recently the National Assembly received a letter from a believer in another country inquiring why we did not apply the "New Plan of Unified Action" outside the United States and Canada. The reason, of course, is that the American National Assembly, while conscious of the unbreakable spiritual tie uniting all Bahlis', has no jurisdiction outside the United States and Canada, and moreover is unwilling even to suggest that believers elsewhere should assume any of the responsibility placed upon America. Each country and locality has its own direct responsibility in promoting the Cause, and the Temple is first and foremost a goal set up for American Bahlis'.

The Guardian has, however, greatly encouraged Mrs. Victoria Bediian in her service of internation correspondece on the subject of the Temple, and to her is due most of the credit for bringing the Temple close to the hearts of our co-workers abroad. In a recent letter to her the Guardian has written, through his secretary: "I need not remind you of the importance the Guardian attaches to your worldwide correspondence on behalf of the Bahai Cause, and he wishes me to assure you, once more, that such an exemplary effort on your part constitutes an inexhaustible source of spiritual and moral strength."

LETTERS FROM HAIIFA

"The present condition of the world—its economic instability, social dis-sensions, political dissatisfaction and international distrust—should awaken the youth from their slumber and make them inquire what the future is going to bring. It is surely they who will suffer most if some calamity sweep over the world. They should therefore open their eyes to the existing conditions, study the evil forces that are at work and then with a constituted effort arise and bring about the necessary reforms—reforms that shall contain within their scope the spiritual as well as the social and political phases of human life." (To Mrs. Mande Gaudreary, Yonkers, New York, through Ruhi Afnan, Haifa, March 13, 1932.)

"He (Shoghi Effendi) was very glad to see you offer to help Mr. and Mrs. . . . to stay in . . . . and serve the spread of the Movement. They are surely wonderful souls and very competent to deliver the message to others. They are versed in the teachings and have the true Bahai spirit, and these are the only capital a real teacher of the Bahai Cause needs to be successful in his work. Moreover, it is the duty of the Bahais to help one another in time of difficulty—in times such as these when our economic life is disrupted and and as a result innumerable people are left without work and proper means of livelihood.

"But though your offer is most commendable, Shoghi Effendi would prefer to have the local Assembly of . . . . or the National Assembly decide whether the stay of Mr. and Mrs. . . . . in . . . . is vital enough for the Cause as to necessitate so much sacrifice on your part." (To Mrs. Besie F. Seker, Pittsburgh, Pa., through Ruhi Afnan, Haifa, April 26, 1932.)

"As regards the statement of our own views and explanations of the teachings: Shoghi Effendi believes that we should not restrict the liberty of the individual to express his own views so long as he makes it clear that these views are his own. In fact, such explanations are often helpful and are conducive to a better understanding of the teachings. God has given man a rational power to be used and not killed.

"This does not, however, mean that the absolute authority does not remain in the revealed Words. We should try and keep as near to the authority as we can and show that we are faithful to it by quoting from the Words of Bahai' Allah in establishing our points. To discard the authority of the revealed Words is heretic and to suppress completely individual interpretation of those Words is also bad. We should try to strike a happy medium between these two extremes." (To Dr. E. C. Getsinger, Los Angeles, Calif., through Ruhi Afnan, Haifa, June 18, 1932.)

"Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated May 1, 1932, as well as the enclosed general letter of the Los Angeles Spiritual Assembly. He was deeply interested to read of the activities of the friends in attracting new souls to the teachings of the Cause.

"Of special interest was the fact that the talents of the younger members of the group were also used. The best Assembly is the one that capitalizes the talents of all the members of the group and keeps them busy in some form of active participation in serving the Cause and spreading the message." (To Oni A. Finks, Corresponding Secretary, Spiritual Assembly of Los Angeles, through Ruhi Afnan, Haifa, August, 1932.)

"Every day has certain needs. In those early days the Cause needed Martyrs, and people who would stand all sorts of torture and persecution in expressing their faith and spreading the message sent by God. Those days are, however, gone. The Cause at present does not need martyrs who would die for their faith, but servants who desire to teach and establish the Cause throughout the world. To live to teach in the present day is like being martyred in those early days. It is the spirit that moves us that counts, not the act through which that spirit expresses itself; and that spirit is to serve the Cause of God with our heart and soul." (To Tahrihm Nawi, Baltimore, Md., through Ruhi Afnan, Haifa, August 3, 1932.)

PUBLISHING ANNOUNCEMENT

Through the generous action of the Teaching Committee in foregoing part of its annual budget, the Publishing Committee has been able to issue a new edition of the Guardian's letter, "The Goal of a New World Order."

Shortly after the first edition was published, the National Assembly received word from Haifa that the Guardian would like the believers to make the contents of that letter known to "every man and woman in the world."

Local Assemblies and also individual believers can thus make an important effort in the teaching field by arranging to distribute copies of this pamphlet far and wide. The new edition sells for only 5c a copy, but the Publishing Committee can supply orders only in lots of ten copies, and units of ten. Please order, then, at least ten at a time, the cost of which will be 50c plus postage.

Announcement is also made of a Study Guide based upon The Dawn-Breakers, prepared by Mr. and Mrs.
Willard McKay and Mrs. Bahiyih Lindstrom. This Study Guide will enable classes and also individual students to become thoroughly acquainted with the contents of this inspiring book. Per copy, 25c.

In view of the fact that some of the earlier pamphlets dealing with Bible Prophecy are no longer in print, the Publishing Committee reminds the friends that the book "Baha'i Revelations," by Thornton W. Chase, is a remarkable approach to the Cause from the Christian standpoint. This book may be obtained for $1.00 per copy.

The Committee feels very responsible for repaying, from sales of The Dawn-Breakers, the sums advanced by the National Assembly to defray the cost of this work. It is therefore hoped that Local Assemblies which received copies on consignment will remit for these as soon as possible.

BAHA'I NEWS SERVICE

The publicity committee during October issued a general letter to the Local Assemblies enclosing a newspaper article on the subject of the Persian Government's action in raising the ban on entry of Bahá'í literature. The general letter offered very useful suggestions on how to secure publicity on local events of interest.

In connection with this important phase of our activities, the words written by the Guardian on November 27, 1924, should be borne in mind: "It is our bounden duty to give the Cause from day to day a fuller publicity, to maintain and stimulate the interest aroused, and to concentrate at the same time our attention on a chosen few, endeavoring tactfully and persistently to make them earnest and unreserved supporters of the Bahá'í Faith."

BAHA'I MAGAZINE RENEWALS

The National Spiritual Assembly desires to assist the business office of The Bahá'í Magazine by reinforcing their effort to maintain old subscriptions and also secure new readers. At present it appears that a considerable number of subscribers have not sent in their renewals. The difficulties and hardships of the friends are fully appreciated, but it is necessary to point out that the National Fund is responsible for all deficit incurred in publishing the magazine. In cases where believers feel it preferable to contribute for the Temple the amount formerly given for a magazine subscription, there is no real gain to the National Fund. The Temple Fund can receive only what the National Spiritual Assembly has left after defraying the cost of all current Bahá'í activities.

Local Spiritual Assemblies are requested to consider the needs of our magazine in the light of the many Tablets revealed concerning it, and to make this a subject for discussion at a Nineteen Day Feast.

INTER-ASSEMBLY CORRESPONDENCE

The National Spiritual Assembly makes grateful acknowledgment of the receipt of the following general letters issued by Local Spiritual Assemblies: Los Angeles, dated April 15; Honolulu, dated July 15; and San Francisco, dated May, June, July, and September-October. The Spiritual Assembly of San Francisco appears at present to be the only one which issues a circular letter at regular intervals.

These Inter-Assembly general letters play an important part in upholding the solidarity of the Bahá'í world. Until Bahá'í News can be developed to the capacity of serving as a national or international newspaper, with sections devoted to local affairs in all parts of the world, no medium exists by which local communities may convey to fellow-believers detailed information about their plans and activities, their methods for rendering service, their overcoming of special problems, and their loving interest in the general progress of the Faith.

This matter is commended to all Assemblies for their careful consideration. Even the smallest community might issue at least an annual letter, while the larger communities, like San Francisco, can prepare a general letter or news bulletin at frequent intervals.

CREDENTIALS FOR TRAVELING BELIEVERS

A few years ago the suggestion was published in Bahá'í News that believers planning to visit other centers should secure from their local Secretary a letter of introduction which would constitute proper credentials establishing their status as recognized Bahá'ís. At the suggestion of the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Chicago, this thought is once more advanced. Particularly should such letters be carried by friends who change their residence and therefore are required to transfer their voting right to a new community.

Such a practice may at first glance appear to be excessively formal in a spiritual Cause. Deeper consideration, however, will lead to the realization that it rests upon a sound basis. The word "spiritual" has too long been associated with the idea of some type of individual "freedom" whose greatest duty is to resist the false claims of "organization." In a Cause, possessing a worldwide administrative plan, spiritual values become identical with common sense. There is every reason why a Local Spiritual Assembly should inform itself about the status of a person before granting him the great privileges due to a true Bahá'í.

HOW TO ENROLL NEW BELIEVERS

Following the outline supplied by the National Spiritual Assembly in its article on "The Qualifications of a Voting Believer," published a few months ago, the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Chicago have recorded in their minutes the acceptance of a new believer in such a clear and comprehensive manner that an excerpt from these minutes is now published as a model that might well be followed by other Assemblies.

"This is to certify that on (date), 1932, the Local Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Chicago met in consultation with (who had made application for affiliation with the Chicago Bahá'ís, and in compliance with suggestions made by the National Spiritual Assembly, the following procedure was carried out). The Chairman, Mr. Windust, read to the applicant excerpts from Baha'i Administration, the qualifications for voting membership in a Bahá'í Community as outlined in the By-Laws and excerpts from the Will and Testament of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and gave a very interesting and complete explanation of Bahá'í organization.

"It was ascertained that Mr. (name) had carefully studied Baha'i Administration and the Will of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, as well as much other Baha'i literature, and following the above procedure acknowledged his understanding and complete acceptance of the tenets of Baha'i Faith. It is therefore upon the unanimous vote of those present that Mr. (name) be accepted as a voting member of the Chicago Bahá'í Community."

"UNITED WILL AND CONCERTED ACTION"
Words of Shoghi Effendi to the Chairman of the National Spiritual Assembly

"I am deeply conscious of the many obstacles that stand in the path of the American believers in their stupendous endeavor to attain their goal—a goal on which our dearly beloved Greatest Holy Leaf had set her fondest hopes. I cannot, however, overlook, much as I sympathize with them in their financial tribulations and anxieties, the mysterious power that resides in the United Will and concerted action of all the members of that self-sacrificing community—a community which, since the passing of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, has put an impetus to the advancement of the Cause out of the many evidences of youthfulness and experience of the powers latent in this sacred Faith. What an untold wealth of blessings will flow out of a renewed, an irrevocable resolution, representing the combined will of all the steadfast lovers of the Cause of God in that land, to carry out in its entirety during the few remaining months a Plan on which so much that is vital to its world-wide interests depends! The American believers, the stout-hearted supporters of the Faith of Baha'u'llah, have already given too many evidences of their preponderating influence in the direction of its affairs to allow the slightest disappointment to mar the radiance of their past achievements. Their will to succeed must eventually triumph."

PRESENT CONDITION AND FUTURE NEEDS OF TEMPLE CONSTRUCTION

The work of the preparation of the dome ornamentation of the Temple has gone ahead with encouraging speed and success at the plant of the John J. Earley Studio at Rosslyn, Virginia. We wish that it were possible for each and every believer in America to visit the plant at this time and to see the remarkable demonstration that Mr. Earley and his associates are making in the preparation of the models for the dome panels and ribs.

During the summer a wooden frame-work was erected at the plant so as to reproduce exactly in shape and size the outer structural frame-work of one panel of the Temple dome. As soon as this frame-work was completed a set of templates were made and these were taken to Wilmette and checked up with the existing steel structure of the dome. Astonishingly slight deviations were found and allowances have been made for these discrepancies in the wooden structure at the plant.

The accompanying illustrations will show the frame-work and four plaster sections of Paris models of a dome panel in place. As these plaster of Paris models are completed, they are set in place so as to check them up for size and appearance as regards percentage of openings, lighting, shadows, etc.

Each section of a dome panel is first modeled in clay in the Studio. A plaster cast is then made from the clay model and the plater of Paris model is cast in the rough from these molds. The rough plaster of Paris models are then carved to their final shape and form. These plaster of Paris models serve as the basis for the preparation of the architectural concrete sections which will form the ornamentation to be erected on the present dome structure. A set of molds will be made of plaster of Paris from each model and each set of molds will be used for the casting of the 27 sections of the dome ornamentation. Each of these panels will be made up of 9 parts or sections, and these parts or sections there will be 243 pieces or sections in the entire field of the dome.

The ribs will similarly be made up of parts or sections, each rib being composed of 14 sections and as there are 9 ribs, it will be necessary to prepare 126 parts or sections.

The entire work is being done at the Rosslyn, Virginia, plant and when completed the sections will be shipped to the Temple and erected in place.

An interesting phase of the work is the design of the light structural frame-work necessary to support the architectural concrete sections on the present structural frame-work of the dome. A careful investigation is being made to secure a non-corrosive and enduring material. After the sections are in place, it will be impossible to paint this supplemental structural frame-work and hence it is necessary to secure a non-ferrous alloy material that will not be affected by the alkali of the concrete, or by climatic conditions. It is likely that some such material as stainless steel will be used for the preparation of the special shapes and fastenings.

Research is being made to secure a suitable surface material for the architectural concrete. This material must be white in color, opaque and have a high reflecting surface. We have decided upon a particular type of quartz and it is now necessary to find a sufficient deposit of this material in this part of the country. We are visiting many quarries and outcroppings of quartz material through the Piedmont region of the South. It is likely that we will find a suitable and sufficient quantity near Washington.

The estimated cost of the construction of the ornamentation for the dome panels and ribs is approximately $150,000.00. Our estimate for the dome panels is $82,300.00 and for the ribs $67,700.00. This estimate includes the preliminary work which will probably be completed at a cost of about $30,000. Each of the 27 dome panels will cost about $2,440.00. As each dome panel is divided into 9

It is suggested that Baha’i communities or believers may find it possible to take as an objective the furnishing of an entire dome panel or one or more sections of a dome panel or rib. By establishing a definite objective of service and sacrifice it will soon be possible to guarantee sufficient funds to proceed with the making of the architectural concrete sections without delay during the coming spring months. The funds in hand provide for the carrying on of the work until early in January, 1933. At this time Mr. Earley will be ready to go ahead with the casting of the sections of the dome panel and ribs, and funds must be available at the rate of $25,000.00 a month for five months in order to complete the work and have the Temple Dome Ornamentation in place by June 1, 1933, in accordance with the instruction of our Guardian.

"YOUR ENDEAVORS IN THE PATH OF DETACHMENT"
A Letter from the National Spiritual Assembly

Beloved Friends:

Those imbued with true conscious faith sacrifice their all for the sake of the Divine will. But when the inner and outer substance of their lives has been consumed on the altar of devotion, meager is their gift to the Cause in comparison to what they receive from the Treasury of the Merciful. And those who, by lack of faith, withhold their hearts, their lives and their fortunes, eventually lose all, and have nothing but emptiness and regret.

Consider the toll the world has paid for its blindness and selfishness during our own generation! The lives destroyed in war and revolution, the homes laid waste, the lands made desolate! Estimate, if possible, the fortunes that have melted away even in the past three years! Had there been faith and knowledge, every town and city in America could have had, with a fraction of this wasted wealth, a Mashriq’ul-Adhkâr to attract the blessings of the highest heaven!

But under Providence, that was not to be. Instead, the little Community of the Greatest Name, that humble band of devoted believers, poor and insignificant, struggle valiantly to raise, stone upon stone, the Dawning-Place of the Remembrance of God in the heart of a vast continent!

Do we think the task easy, an undertaking that may be indefinitely deferred to a more convenient season, a responsibility that others will assume? Can we slumber and seek repose trusting that when we awake the House of Worship to the Glory of God will, somehow, have been completed?

Beloved friends! Even as we delay, the forces of that final World Conflict foretold by all the Prophets plunge forward swiftly to their terrible consummation. When that hour comes, shall we have done our part by building, in the Temple, the "bulwark of Baha’i administration," that strong fortress of sacrifice which alone can protect the races, nations and tribes of earth from destruction?

Until the Guardian’s hopes have been fulfilled, and the external decoration of the Temple dome unit is completed in the allotted time, other Baha’i matters must be given secondary importance. Our individual aspirations and hopes and means must merge and be completely unified in the unshakable intention that our collective loyalty is to be achieved.

Therefore the members of the National Spiritual Assembly request Local Spiritual Assemblies to emphasize, throughout their communities, the facts presented by our Chairman in the statement on “Present Condition and Future Needs of Temple Construction.” Let us no longer feel overwhelmed by the total Temple Fund of $150,000 required before June 1, 1933, but rather aim to make possible, one by one, the completion of the 27 dome panels at $2,440 each, and the 9 ribs at $6,020 each—each panel constituted of 9 parts, at $270 each, and each rib constituted of 14 sections, at $430 each. Surely, this division of total cost into small units enables each Local Baha’i community, and each smaller group, to visualize the vital part it can play in contributing to the final result.

Failure in this undertaking, at such a crucial stage, is unthinkable for a single true follower of Baha’u’llah. As He declared in Hidden Words: "I bear witness, O friends, that the favor is complete, the argument fulfilled, the proof manifest and the evidence established. Let it now be seen what your endeavors in the path of detachment will reveal. In this wise hath the Divine favor been fully vouchsafed unto you and unto them that are in heaven and on earth. All praise to God, the Lord of all worlds."

Yours faithfully,

The National Spiritual Assembly
By: Horace Holley, Secretary.
presented to the National Spiritual Assembly her interesting scrap-book on race relations, a treasure that has been put at the service of this committee. From the Michigan metropolis monthly reports are sent, showing well nigh ceaseless activity in contacts with persons, groups and organizations, in the effort to overcome prejudices and to widen the vision of humanity. Liberal members of the clergy are lending aid to the amity workers and many hearts are gladdened by these cooperative endeavors.

The Chicago and Wilmette friends are happily united in amity meetings which largely center around the residence of Mrs. Fanny Lesch, chairman of the Chicago amity committee, and she has the cooperation of Dr. Zia M. Bagdadi of this committee. From time to time these meetings find larger expressions and audiences in the new Bahá’í Center, one of the largest and best equipped to be found among the American friends. It is our suggestion that these capable workers will, in cooperation with the Temple Program Committee, arrange periodically an Amity Congress in the basement of the Mashriqu’l-Adhkar, the sacred monument to human understanding, and in such meetings have the cooperation of nearby Assemblies.

Mrs. Sara E. Witt, our far western member, writes a letter bubbling over with happiness and amity news, accounts of activities which give a picturesque coloring and radiance to the Los Angeles friends. The Olympic games, the program of Japan night, honoring the Japanese officials, the schedule of the international soirée, under the auspices of the Chinese Club of Los Angeles, the work of reconciliation between the white and colored, all give play to the devotion of our very able committee member, who is stalwartly supported by her husband, Dr. Charles R. Witt and members of the local Amity Committee. May their joys increase.

The benefit concert arranged by the Bahá’ís of West Englewood, N. J., to aid the unemployed was a brilliant success. Mr. Chauncey Northen and his Negro Art Group, Mr. Hans Helms, described as a unique musical entertainer, Mr. Nicholas Marangella, concert accordionist, were the noted contributing artists. A substantial sum was raised for humane service and this has served to strengthen the bond of love and understanding for the Cause among the people of that section. The widely circulated program contained the majestic words:

"The poor among you are My trust:"

Guard My trust."—Bahá’u’lláh.

Such accounts happily illustrate ways in which the friends apply the Divine teachings of racial amity so as to heal the ills of the world. Contacts with individuals, races and groups through the sociability of homes, welfare endeavors and teaching have a full measure of value and achieve limitless results.

That form of activity which seems especially favored, however, is the Racial Amity Conference, initiated and organized under the Master’s direction and guidance. There has yet been no record of a single failure among undertakings of this sort. The program, social features and expenses may be varied and adapted to suit time and place; but the great principles that govern are eternally set. Commingling of various racial groups in such meetings has its psychology as well as spiritual attraction. It is our hope that all the centers, despite the pressure of the times, will fully appreciate the value they can render by such a service. The awakening of the world is apparent. Shall we not seize the opportunity to bring balm to countless souls? The Supreme Commander bids us march!

With Abhá love and high hopes.

IN MEMORIAM

The prayers of the friends are besought for the following believers who have entered the spiritual Kingdom:

Frederick Huether, Bloomfield, New Jersey.

William R. Ripley, Orlando, Florida.

"See how through national hatreds, economic shortsightedness and racial prejudice the world is reaching the verge of ruin. Should we stay our hand and fail to apply the Divine remedy Bahá’u’lláh has prescribed in His Writings, all the people of the civilized world will perish."

THE NON-POLITICAL CHARACTER OF THE BAHÁ’Í FAITH

A Statement by the National Spiritual Assembly

Through these messages of our inspired leader, the true and sincere adherents of the Faith find themselves parts of a world body whose existence is protected by a Providential power and whose future path amid the confusions and disturbances of a disordered aged is laid down in accordance with Divine will. Nothing is more essential to believers at this crucial time than clear and intimate knowledge of the Guardian’s considered statements to the Bahá’í world, and firm resolve that both locally and nationally the affairs of the Cause shall be conducted in the light of his highest hope.
Now, in the swift movement of human affairs, the time has come for Baha'is to take one more forward step in our progress as the community of the Greatest Name—one more step in the direction of separating the Baha'is body from the negative influences and disintegrating forces working for destruction throughout the world.

This step consists in the conscious realization of the fact that our Faith is non-political in character, raised above the plane of worldly ambition and selfish competition, striving to establish the pure spirit of Baha'u'llah's Word, and forever apart and different from other movements which would "fish in troubled waters" and directly or indirectly seek to benefit by the difficulties and sufferings of their fellow men.

The friends will recall that in the letter published as "The Golden Age of the Cause of Baha'u'llah," Shoghi Effendi declared, "I feel it, therefore, incumbent upon me to stress, now that the time is ripe, the importance of an instruction which, at the present stage of the evolution of our Faith, should be increasingly emphasized, irrespective of its application to the East or to the West. And this principle is no other than that which involves the non-participation by the adherents of the Faith of Baha'u'llah, whether in their individual capacities or collectively as local or national Assemblies, in any form of activity that might be interpreted, either directly or indirectly, as an interference in the political affairs of any particular government."

This instruction raised among American believers the important question whether the act of voting, in the normal pursuance of the function of citizenship, should be construed as a participation in political matters. The question was referred to the Guardian by the National Spiritual Assembly, and the following explicit reply has now been received.

The reply is dated Haifa, Palestine, October 22, 1932, and consists of a letter written by Shoghi Effendi through his secretary, with a postscript in the Guardian's own hand. "As regards the participation of the friends in general elections, Shoghi Effendi has written about it in his letters explaining his views on the subject. He strongly feels that the friends should abstain from any election that is along party lines. In elections that are not political the friends can enter but not when it is in any way political. The Assembly can judge best as to what is political and what is not."

The postscript: "The Baha'i Faith as it forges ahead throughout the western world and particularly in lands where the political machinery is corrupt and political passions and prejudices are dominant among the masses, should increasingly assert and demonstrate the fact that it is non-political in character, that it stands above party, that it is neither apathetic to national interests nor opposed to any party or faction, and that it seeks through administrative channels, rather than through diplomatic and political posts to establish, beyond the shadow of a doubt, the capacity, the same patriotism, the integrity and high-mindedness of its avowed adherents. This is the general and vital principle; it is for the National representatives to apply it with fidelity and vigor."

Your National Spiritual Assembly feels a great responsibility in applying the principle to all the detailed situations that can arise among the local communities. The following statement, however, summarizes the Assembly's understanding of this new instruction. Whatever incident or situation that may arise not covered by this statement should be referred to the National Assembly for further consideration.

1. Recognized believers of the United States and Canada shall not hereafter take part in any local, provincial or national election conducted by political parties, where votes are to be cast for one or two or more rival candidates.

2. Recognized believers shall not run for any public office as candidate of any political party, nor take part, directly or indirectly, in the promotion of any party or party platform.

3. Political issues of a partisan character shall not be discussed at Baha'i meetings.

4. Recognized believers shall abstain from affiliation with movements of a radical and disruptive character, whether avowedly political in nature or, while non-political in name, advocating social changes that presume partisan political action.

5. Baha'is are loyal to the government of their country and will obey the laws of that government.

6. Believers who speak on Baha'i platforms shall refrain from making negative and critical statements about any particular Government or National policy.

7. Every Local Spiritual Assembly shall be responsible for the carrying out of these instructions by the believers in their respective communities. Local membership lists shall include only the names of those believers who faithfully preserve the non-political character of the Faith.
LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

Beloved Friends:

The response to the Temple appeal published last month has been gratifying and significant. The members of the National Spiritual Assembly are convinced that the determination of the American believers to complete the Temple by June first has become unshakable. Despite the overwhelming material and economic difficulties, the Baha'i community stands firm in its faith that "a mysterious power" will confirm the union of minds and hearts in one supreme resolve.

The fact that one section of the dome ornamentation can be made and put in place for $270, and one section of a rib ornament similarly costs $430, has inspired individuals and communities alike to contribute definite sums which already assure the completion of a number of sections.

At the meeting held on December 27 and 28, the Assembly adopted a plan which Local Communities will find extremely helpful and interesting. Large drawings of the Temple dome are being prepared on which will appear the 243 sections costing $270 each, and the 126 rib sections costing $430 each. One of these drawings will be sent to each Local Spiritual Assembly early in January.

The aim of this plan is to make it possible for each local community to follow each step in Temple construction.

The plan will work out as follows:

Once a month in BAHAI NEWS, and two weeks later by postcard, all Local Assemblies will be notified of the amount which the National Assembly has been able to appropriate for the Temple Fund. When the financial reports are received, each Local Assembly can fill in with a colored pencil on the drawing as many sections of the dome as are provided for by the appropriation announced in the report.

For example: if on February first Local Assemblies are informed that $9,700.00 has been appropriated since the previous report, the friends can check off 20 dome sections at $270, and 10 rib sections at $430. If $4,050 is reported, that would mean the completion of 15 dome sections at $270 each. Thus, every two weeks the Assemblies can bring the drawing up to date, and have before them at all times a simple, graphic illustration showing how much of the external decoration has been provided for, and how much still remains awaiting further donations.

Each Spiritual Assembly is requested to have its copy of the drawing on view at its meeting place, so that the entire community may follow the progress of our glorious enterprise. In the case of the larger local communities, it would add further interest if the sections paid for by local contributions are given a different color than is used in filling in the other sections.

The status of the Temple Fund on January first, 1933, is as follows: A total of $18,500 has been received toward the expenses of the preliminary work of making the models and moulds. About $5,000 additional will be required for the preliminary work. After that amount has been received, every contribution will go directly toward casting the actual sections in final form, ready for putting in place on the Temple dome.

As stated in BAHAI NEWS for December, contributions in the amount of $25,000.00 a month must be made from January to June in order to complete the task which our Guardian has assigned.

The members of the National Spiritual Assembly fully realize their own heavy responsibility in effecting the utmost economy in all departments of activity, so as to concentrate every possible resource upon the Temple Fund. At the meeting held on December 27 and 28, it was voted to suspend the entire Budget adopted after the Convention of 1932, and to pass upon every individual request for funds from the various Committees. For example, a Committee which received an appropriation of $2,000 in the Annual Budget, and has received $1,100 up to December 28, can no longer expect to receive the balance of $900 between now and April 1. If that Committee needs additional amounts before April 1, it must apply for a special appropriation, and the National Assembly will only approve... appropriations which seem absolutely necessary. Moreover, the Assembly has notified the Green Acre Trustees that it will contribute only enough to pay the fixed annual charges this year—taxes, fire insurance, etc.—and that the Trustees must therefore adopt some plan by which Green Acre can be used throughout the season of 1933 without any Budget.

These two decisions will reveal to the friends how important the National Assembly considers it to subordinate all activities to the needs of the Temple Fund until the dome has been completed.

Now let us ponder these words written by Shoghi Effendi to the National Treasurer on December 4, 1932: “The photograph of a section of the exterior decoration of the dome has thrilled me. What a great and priceless opportunity lies before the American believers! How great a responsibility rests upon their shoulders! It is in their power by their self-denial, their heroism, and concerted efforts, to lend an impetus to the world-wide spread of the Faith, such as no believer has ever yet witnessed since the inception of our glorious Cause. Let them ponder the assurances, the promises, the warnings, of our departed Master and, despite the prevailing depression, arise to carry out the last wishes of His beloved sister, the Greatest Holy Leaf.”

May each Local Spiritual Assembly appreciate the fact that to its members the National Assembly looks as the instrument to arouse the ardor and sacrificing effort of every individual Baha’i in its community.

Yours faithfully,

THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY AND ITS COMMITTEES
Their Inter-Relationship Explained

The focal point of effort on the part of the National Spiritual Assembly is to encourage greater initiative and activity among all local Baha’i communities.

In the gradual application of this principle, the Assembly has found it desirable to make a distinction between the special services rendered by each National Committee and the general problem of making these services available throughout the body of the Cause.

It has therefore been voted to record the fact that the function of each Committee is of an advisory rather than of an administrative character. The results of Committee consultation are to be referred to the National Spiritual Assembly for approval, and then (as far as possible) after approval, issued to the friends in Baha’i News. Thus will be established one definite, responsible channel of communication representing the National Assembly and its Committees as one spiritual unit and organism.

The National Spiritual Assembly assumes responsibility for applying Committee recommendations and plans to the conditions of local community life, and also for meeting any administrative problems that may arise therefrom. Each Committee is requested to submit, as far as possible, its recommendations and suggestions in a form adapted to publication in Baha’i News for the information and encouragement of all believers.

In explaining this general principle, the National Assembly is conscious of the fact that the National Committees are entrusted with different types of activity. For example, the three Summer School Committees not only make programs but carry them out in classes, while the Publishing Committee has its own continuous and direct contact with communities and individual believers through the sale of the literature. The essential principle, however, is clear, and the members of the Assembly believe that as time goes on the result will be a tremendous concentration of our collective spiritual and material resources for the development of the Cause along the lines laid down by the Guardian.

INFORMATION FOR BELIEVERS OWNING LAND ON MOUNT CARMEL

Believers who purchased land on Mount Carmel are informed that the National Spiritual Assembly has received from the Guardian, through his secretary, a form of Power of Attorney for use in transferring title of such land to the Cause. A copy of this Power of Attorney, and necessary details, may be obtained by writing the National Secretary.

It should be pointed out that this transfer must be made during the owner’s lifetime, and not attempted through a codicil in the owner’s last will and testament. On account of a specific provision in Palestinian law, lands not transferred during the owner’s lifetime must, under the law, revert to heirs according to certain principles of proportionate shares. Thus, in cases where the believer who owns land has natural heirs not believers, control of the land on Mount Carmel would pass outside the Cause.

IN MEMORIAM

The prayers of the believers are behooven for the following Baha’is who have entered the spiritual Kingdom:

Mr. Frank Miller, Los Angeles, California.
Mrs. Ellen Davies, Detroit, Michigan.
Mr. Miller for many years was a member of the New York Baha’i Community, and Mrs. Davies was one of the early believers of Chicago.

1933 ANNUAL CONVENTION
Preliminary Announcement

On December 15 an application form for participation in the next Annual Convention was mailed to all Local Spiritual Assemblies elected on April 21, 1932. The Assemblies are requested to fill out and return these forms to the National Office by January 15, so that the National Assembly may have all the data necessary in order to assign the 95 delegates by proportionate representation among the Local Baha’i Communities.

By February 15, the National Assembly plans to issue the Convention Call, as provided in the By-Laws of the Declaration of Trust.

The Annual Reports of the National Assembly, Temple Trustees and Green Acre Trustees, as well as of all National Committees, will be published in a special number of Baha’i News in advance of the Convention. The Convention Agenda will be entirely devoted to the discussion of important current Baha’i subjects, aside from the act of electing a new National Spiritual Assembly, and no time will be spent on the presentation of Reports already supplied to delegates in printed form.

The Convention can therefore function as a consultative body, concerned with the discussion of such subjects as: The Qualifications of Voting Membership, The Place of Baha’i Summer Schools in the National Teaching Program, Baha’i Youth Activities, etc. It is confidently expected that the result of this plan will be to clarify many important matters and stimulate greatly our collective capacity to serve the Cause throughout coming years.

A detailed announcement will be published in Baha’i News for March.
TEACHING THROUGH UNITED COMMUNITY ACTION
A Statement by the National Teaching Committee

The world is looking for a way out.
At no time since the birth of our Faith has the call for guidance from the whirlpool of material civilization been so forceful. Every member of the human family has been seriously affected, first by the World War, later by the war, and now by the world-wide depression. Everyone realizes that existing religions do not respond to the spiritual hunger of the people, nor do the existing institutions of social control respond to the complex problems of social life.

Where is the Divine Call and where the life of the New Day to solve these problems? There have been so many new movements arising from day to day, claiming the panacea for spiritual and material problems but which like the mirage have faded away, when put to the test of actual correction of life's problems, that humanity is now seeking a movement born of the spirit with teaching of universal scope; and demonstrating in the organism it necessarily develops a perfect coordination of all human actions and relations.

The article in the November Bahá’í News "A Plea for Increased Effort in Bahá’í Teaching" outlines the gradual growth of the organism of the Cause in America particularly as it has brought into play the unifying element of the Faith. Now that methods of administration under the guidance of the Guardian are responding to the ever-widening scope and capacities of the friends, we must give increasing consideration to the spirit that must motivate all these services.

Only as each individual and each community carries forth the full Bahá’í life can the Movement go forward and its influence be felt in the world at large. If the Faith does not solve our problems and establish among us a new life, then how can it solve the problems of, or establish a new life in, the world at large?

The greatest teacher of the Cause, therefore, is the perfect Bahá’í Community. In such a community all difficulties have been overcome, a happy, radiant, and enthusiastic group of people have coordinated their activities to the welfare of humanity and are motivated by a spirit of love and devotion that exists nowhere else and could only come from the force of a new Manifestation of God.

Let us see how the Teaching Program can aid in bringing this most important result into fruition.

The head cornerstone of Bahá’í life is teaching the Cause. Bahá’u’lláh says, "Verily, God hath made it incumbent upon every soul to deliver His Cause (the Message) according to his ability. Thus hath the Command been recorded by the Finger of Might and Power upon the Tablet of Majesty and Greatness." How can a Bahá’í individual or community mirror forth the full splendors of Bahá’u’lláh when its most important virtue, that of teaching the Cause, is not adequately developed?

The doors of service are open on all sides as never before and only waiting for the friends to step forth. So astonishing are the confirmations that the National Teaching Committee hesitates to offer specific suggestions as to methods to be used in the new teaching service, feeling that these suggestions themselves might crystallize effort into too definite channels. As the dynamic spirit which animated the early pioneers of the Faith sweeps through the body of the American believers, new methods and new opportunities will present themselves unequalled in previous American Bahá’í experience. The magnet the individual requires to gain these confirmations is: self-analysis, increased study of the teachings, meditation and prayer, to become a purified channel, and then action; not a single attempt, but, continuous sustained teaching effort. Persuere! "Learn ye perseverance from your Heavenly Father, Bahá’u’lláh," is the injunction of 'Abdu’l-Bahá. In this period of unification in service will one finally find how and where he can best serve and thus perfectly perform his responsibilities in the Cause.

As one becomes more active in the work of promoting the Cause, he becomes more enthusiastic over the efforts of other believers, complete confidence is established and the full fellowship of a spiritually united group becomes manifest. Increased individual service will establish a resplendent Bahá’í Community life.

In encouraging each Spiritual Assembly to endeavor to establish the Faith in a new center there will develop a new attitude in each Spiritual Assembly toward all its problems and responsibilities. Shoghi Effendi says, "As the administrative work of the Cause steadily expands, as its various branches grow in importance and number, it is absolutely necessary that we bear in mind this fundamental fact that all these administrative activities, however harmoniously and efficiently conducted, are but means to an end, and should be regarded as direct instruments for the propagation of the Bahá’í Faith." Therefore, this effort will tend to divert our attention from merely routine data, and bring constructive and positive action in all our deliberations. The Spiritual Assembly will become the source of inspiration to all the Bahá’ís; and will direct by leading.

Inter-Assembly Teaching Conferences are of greatest importance. They give each and every one the benefit of the experiences of every other. They bring to small Communities and groups the benefits of the work and experience of the larger Communities. The general understanding of the tenets of the Faith, the sanctity of Bahá’í service, as exemplified by those of wider and longer periods of service, and the raising of the consciousness of every one is brought about. In this way the entire body of the believers is elevated to the degree of understanding and service of the most devoted of the friends.

When we realize that ours is the privilege of expounding a new world order, wherein all human difficulties are solved and all men are at peace, we can see that our program can succeed not by aggressive service on the part of a few, but by every individual and unit doing its part; the entire Cause surging forward as a single organism. The secret of our success in saving humanity from the destruction into which man-made theories are plunging it, is by our promoting the World Order of Bahá’u’lláh and shedding its radiance by our teaching activities. Let us have an unending Faith in the efficacy of Bahá’u’lláh and realize that He will direct our efforts to victory if we act and serve with complete devotion.

REPORT OF CENTRAL STATES BAHÁ’I SUMMER SCHOOL

The Central States Summer School held its second session at Louhelen Ranch, Davison, Michigan, July 31 to August 9 inclusive. Mr. and Mrs. Eggleston own this farm and plan to turn over 80 acres of it to the N. S. A. for Bahá’í use as soon as it is able to take charge of it. Meanwhile the Egglestons, in consultation with the N. S. A. and a committee appointed by it, use the buildings and raven for a summer school for Bahá’ís. This lasts for only nine days, but the house is open all summer and is used for weekend outings for Bahá’i groups and short vacations for city folk who want a quiet rest in the country. The natural environment of the place is beautiful and conducive to the development of "the world of the heart and spirit." Besides that, the owners have done much to improve the place, adding and remodeling buildings for the convenience and comfort of the guests and making the grounds attractive and usable.

The average attendance for the week was a little less than sixty. This was twice as many as last year and just about as many as could be cared for comfortably. On one or two days when groups came from Detroit there were seventy or seventy-five. This increase is largely because it is becoming more widely known that there is a summer school for the Central States. But the fruits were not measured by numbers merely and never can be.

The first Sunday was largely devoted to a teaching conference under the guidance of Mr. and Mrs. Bishop Brown of the new National Teaching Committee. What an inspiring beginning their leadership, enthusiasm and devotion made for the week! For one of the chief objectives which our Guardian has set for the summer schools is the instruction and inspiration of teachers. In the morning Mrs. Brown explained the new outline of the study of "The Dawn-Breakers" which the teaching committee in collaboration with others have developed and which they told us would be available for all this fall. This outline has been worked out on the foundation laid by our Guardian in his cablegram dated June 21, 1932. (see Baha'i News for July, 1932). In the evening Mr. Brown unfolded for us the reconstructed teaching plan. Earnestly and convincingly he showed us that this plan puts greater responsibility not only on all local Assemblies but on each individual Baha'i. This calls for larger knowledge of the teachings, greater devotion, greater severity. It gives an opportunity for individual as well as group initiative. It demands the cooperation of the Assembly with the individual desiring to serve and the consultation with and dependence on the Assembly of such individuals as arise to serve.

This conference between the group and Mr. Brown was continued during the consultation period Monday morning.

On the afternoon of that first Sunday a public meeting was held at a community hall about sixteen miles from the ranch. The meeting was arranged for by the Reverend J. M. Pengelly who became interested in the Cause during the summer school of 1931. This was the beginning of seed sowing in an entirely new field. Mr. Pengelly also invited Mrs. Ruth Moffatt to speak on the Baha'i Cause from his own church pulpit on that Sunday morning.

The daily program for the week was a period of prayer and meditation conducted by Miss Pearl Easterbrook; a period devoted to the study of Nabil's Narrative conducted by Mr. Vail; a consultation period for adults and one for youth; a public lecture; a class in public speaking; and informal evening talks around a camp-fire when conditions were favorable. This left some of the afternoon free for recreation.

We were proud of our fine group of eighteen or twenty young people. A few of these were glad of an opportunity to pay their way by assisting in the kitchen and dining room. Some of this group of youth were awakened to the true meaning and power of the Baha'i Cause and went away eager to serve in spreading the Glad Tidings. One of this group writes: "I love to think of the days at Davidson; it really was almost perfect." Mrs. Dorothy Baker was the wise, inspiring and beloved guide of these young people. The young people conducted their meetings as a forum, headed by a chairman elected from among their own number. Their own program committee, working in consultation with the summer school committee, planned the course of study and called upon two ten minute speakers for each meeting, one from their own group and the other a guest speaker. At the close of these talks an open forum was held to which all contributed. At all times the guest speaker remained silent unless called upon, thus insuring delightfully free expression among the members.

Mr. Vail's contribution to the study of Nabil's Narrative was especially valuable as he gave us some of the history of Muhammedan religion, of the long line of saints—material which it is difficult for the average reader to get hold of and which furnishes a valuable background for the understanding of the early history of the Cause.

On the last Sunday afternoon ten or a dozen young people from Detroit drove out and were present at the public lecture. Some of these who had understood little of the Cause before were greatly stirred if we can judge from their words.

Appraising as well as we may the results of this brief session we think we did accomplish something in each of the objectives set us by our Guardian: our study did deepen our knowledge of the Cause; our widened acquaintance and friendship and knowledge of each other's problems strengthened the unity in the Cause; much teaching was done right there and those in attendance became better fitted to teach; new souls were attracted. One very tangible result was the collection of a gift of $50 for the Temple. This was inspired by Orcella Rexford at a sewing and tea party where she helped us make little orange colored "prosperity bags." We hope these bags are still collecting money for the Temple!

Revised Glossary for Kitab-i-Iqan

The Publishing Committee has issued a revised Glossary to be inserted in all copies of the new edition of the Kitab-i-Iqan translated by Shoghi Effendi. Believers who possess copies of this book may obtain the revised Glossary by applying to their local Librarians. The Glossary will be sent without charge by the Publishing Committee to Librarians in whatever quantity is requested. Believers not members of a community having a Librarian may write direct to Baha'i Publishing Committee, P. O. Box 348, Grand Central Station, New York City.

Registration of Local Groups

A general letter has been issued by the National Spiritual Assembly to all local groups of Baha'is in the United States and Canada, requesting them to meet and appoint one of their number as Corresponding Secretary. When this is done, it will be possible for the National Assembly to cooperate more closely with these small groups and assist them to develop to the point of electing a Spiritual Assembly.

With the letter was enclosed a number of registration cards, to be filled out and returned to the National Office.

Any group which failed to receive a copy of this letter is requested to apply for one as soon as possible.
Dear Co-Workers:

Your National Spiritual Assembly has recently been able to make Authorization No. 6 in the amount of $5,000.00, which makes it possible to proceed with the Temple dome ornamentation work until about the middle of March, 1933, without interruption or delay to the work. A total of $23,500 has been made available for this project. At this time (February 4), the four lowest rib section models have been cast and carved and the molds for the lowest and largest rib section completed. This mold is a unique plaster of Paris structure, which will be shipped to the Temple structure and used nine times to cast the lowest section of the inner dome ribs in place.

The preliminary work of the preparation of the 10 molds for the dome sections and the 13 molds for the rib sections is well under way and will be completed by the last of March. Then the work of casting the 270 dome panel sections and the 117 rib sections will begin.*

In this issue is enclosed for the information and use of each believer a diagram showing the panel and rib sections of the dome. This diagram and accompanying table can be used by each Local Assembly, group and believer to keep an up-to-date progress record of the sections of ornamentation provided for by the funds contributed after the preliminary work has been completed, beginning about April 1, 1933. As stated in the Letter on page 1 of the January, 1933 (No. 70) Baha'I News, each believer will receive detailed monthly reports in Baha'I News, and intermediate reports will be mailed to all local Assemblies at two week intervals.

The construction of the panel and rib models has resulted in the final division of each rib into thirteen (13) sections, and of each panel into ten (10) sections. Thus a revision of the figures given in the December, 1932 and the January, 1933 issues of Baha'I News is necessary, as regards the cost of each section. Assuming a dome panel as costing $2,440.00, each of the 10 sections would cost about $244.00. Similarly, with a rib costing about $6020.00, each of the 13 sections would involve an expense of approximately $463.00. These costs are of course approximate estimates, but of sufficient accuracy as the basis for contributions.

Your managing and supervising engineers are conducting an extensive research to locate sufficient quantities of a suitable quality of opaque, white quartz, which is to form the outer, radiant surface of the ornamentation. A large number of outcrops, deposits and quarries from Washington, D. C. to northern South Carolina have been visited and investigated. Recently 8 panels of the material from various localities have been made and are being studied for color, texture, light reflection and refraction, etc., at various times of the day in an outdoor location at the plant.

Another and most interesting research has concerned the design of a suitable metal furring system or framework to support the dome ornamentation on the present dome steel structure. To provide a permanent and enduring structure, a type of non-corrosive metal must be used. Your engineers have consulted with metalurgists and scientists and are studying various alloys of aluminum, steel and the non-ferrous metals.

In a letter dated November 30, 1932, our beloved Guardian in his own handwriting utters these inspiring words:

"Dear and Precious Co-Worker: I would infinitely deplore any cessation, or even an interruption, however brief, in the magnificent work which is now being undertaken by Mr. Earley and his associates. It is for the American believers, and particularly those whose financial resources have been relatively less impaired, to ensure, through their concerted, their constant and self-sacrificing endeavors the uninterrupted progress, and the successful termination of an enterprise on which so much that is vital to our beloved Faith must depend. Blessings, unimaginable and incomparably more potent than any in the past, will assuredly crown their efforts if they only persevere. Your true brother, Shoghi."

May this significant utterance arouse the believers of America individually and collectively to the supreme effort of sacrifice and service to do His Will!

Yours in loving service,

THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY
ALLEN B. MC DANIEL,
Chairman.

THE GUARDIAN'S LETTERS TO INDIVIDUAL BAHAI'S

The exact status which Shoghi Effendi has intended the friends to give to those communications he sends to individual believers is explained in the following statement written through his secretary to the National Assembly on November 16, 1932: "As regards Shoghi Effendi's letters to the individual Baha'is, he is always very careful not to contradict himself. He has also said that whenever he has something of importance to say, he invariably communicates it to the National Spiritual Assembly or in his general letters. His personal letters to individual friends are only for their personal benefit and even though he does not want to forbid their publication, he does not wish them to be used too much by the Baha'i News. Only letters with special significance should be published there.

LETTERS FROM HAIFA

"Shoghi Effendi wishes me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated October 24, 1932, regarding elections in the United States.

"The Guardian has written the National Assembly in detail and given them the principle upon which he would like to see them act. He has asked them to advise the friends accordingly and also to expound the principle so as to apply to the local conditions in America.

"To facilitate matters and avoid misunderstandings he prefers to refer you and the individual friends to them (the National Assembly). He is sure that you will obtain full satisfaction by putting the question to them. The purpose of the Guardian in this is not to avoid the issue but only to facilitate matters and eliminate misunderstandings. In all such matters the friends should first approach the Local, then the National Assembly and only in case they cannot obtain any satisfaction should they approach the Guardian on these matters. This way many difficulties will be avoided."—(To Mrs. Corinne True, Wilmette, Illinois, through Ruhi Afnán, Haifa, November 11, 1932).

"The friends have a great duty, first towards the Cause and then towards society at large. Bahá’u’lláh has come to the world with a divine Message and devoted all His life and strength to strengthen all forms of persecution in the hope of establishing it firmly. We are now the trustees of that Mission. It is for us to bring that task begun by Bahá’u’lláh to a final consummation. Should we fail, we have been untrue to our Lord and also remained deaf to the cry of humanity seeking salvation."—(To Miss Elsa Nordquist, Seattle, Washington, through Ruhi Afnán, Haifa, November 15, 1931).

"The report of your teaching work in Milwaukee made him (Shoghi Effendi) very happy. He sincerely hopes that every one of those individuals who expressed his desire to join the Movement will gradually become so confirmed that no amount of trials and tribulations will deter him from sharing in the work of spreading the Faith throughout the world.

"Before undertaking such a task, however, it is necessary that they should deepen their knowledge of the Teachings. They should learn to study the words for themselves and both grasp their significance and also become imbued with their spirit. The hope of Shoghi Effendi is not only to increase the number of the friends but also to have true and more understanding Bahá’í’s. The task of the teachers is to produce such efficient servants for our beloved Faith. These nine months, during which the Guardian has asked the friends to discard Feast Days, are meant to be months of mourning for the passing away of the Greatest Holy Leaf. The friends should also use them as a period of redoubled energy in serving the Cause, in expression of our deep love for her as well as for the Cause for which she suffered so much."—(To Mrs. Ruth Moffett, Chicago, Illinois, through Ruhi Afnán, Haifa, October 18, 1932).

"What impressed him (Shoghi Effendi) most in the account of your services was the statement that the old and the young Bahá’ís are firmly united and cooperating in bearing the burden of the Faith in that locality. Nothing will attract God’s blessings and grace more than the unity of the friends, and nothing is more destructive of their highest purpose than divisions and misunderstandings. Cling therefore to unity if you desire to succeed and abide by the will of your Lord Bahá’u’lláh; for that is the true objective of His Mission in this world."—(To the Spiritual Assembly of West Englewood, New Jersey, through Ruhi Afnán, Haifa, October 11, 1932).

"The Guardian values your Hymns which you so beautifully composed. They certainly contain the realities of the Faith, and will indeed help you to give the Message to the young people. It is music which assists us to affect the human spirit; it is an important means which helps us to communicate with the soul."—(To Mrs. Shawnaz Waite, Los Angeles, California, through Ruhi Afnán, Haifa, November 15, 1932).

THE DIVINE POLITY

In adopting the statement on "The Non-Political Character of the Bahá’í Faith," published in Baha'i News for December, the National Spiritual Assembly sought not merely to make perfectly clear the definite instructions contained in the seven numbered paragraphs, but also to indicate the general principle involved in the instructions by explicit reference to the Guardian’s words.

For example, the statement quoted from the Guardian’s letter of March 21, 1932, issued as a pamphlet entitled "The Golden Age of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh." Those who read and ponder that letter as a whole will be prepared to grasp the deeper significance of the new instruction about non-participation in political affairs, which applies to the Bahá’í world as a whole, and not simply to North America.

Moreover, intimate knowledge of the Guardian’s preceding letters—more especially that published under the title "The Goal of a New World Order"—enables a Bahá’í to realize that the Master’s definite prophecy concerning another war compels a Guardian responsible for a worldwide Cause to foresee changing conditions and prepare the minds and hearts of the friends. Without this providential guidance, so varied and so widely separated a Bahá’í community could not hope to survive the “fiery ordeals” that must come between now and 1963.

The members of the National Assembly are assured that even though at first the importance of this instruction may not be appreciated and fully realized by every individual believer, nevertheless through local consultation the matter can be illumined, its details clarified, and thus made for us all not merely an occasion for blind obedience but rather for conscious, grateful cooperation.

One or two points raised in correspondence since December should perhaps be more definitely explained. The instruction not to take part in political elections leaves us free to vote in any election where the various political parties have combined upon one candidate or one ticket. While Bahá’ís should not run for offices dominated by party politics, they are perfectly free to hold administrative posts based upon personal capacity, as for example the posts within the field of civil service examinations. In considering this general instruction, Local Spiritual Assemblies should surely assume that each believer is entirely loyal to the Guardian’s request, and not take the step of requiring explicit obedience in advance. It is only in the event of deliberate disloyalty, when every effort of local consultation has failed, that the question of denying to anyone of his Bahá’í membership is involved.

We should recall the fact that the qualifications of a voting believer include the element of “loyal and steadfast adherence to every clause of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s sacred Will; and close association with the spirit as well as the form of present-day Baha’i administration throughout the world.” Thus, numbered paragraph 7, in the statement published in December, does not create any new degree of either responsibility or authority for Local Spiritual Assemblies, but merely calls to their attention the fact that it is incumbent upon believers to accept this particular instruction from the Guardian as well as those which preceded it and those which will follow it in the future.

Moreover, the quality of sympathetic understanding with which a Local Spiritual Assembly approaches its task of explaining a new instruction makes a vast difference in the response the community will make. The Cause of Bahá’u’lláh has no arbitrary commands—every positive teaching and instruction emanating from its spiritual Center carries a divine blessing which makes obedience not blind and meaningless but an act of devoted faith fulfilling our individuality.

The Guardian’s cablegram, quoted elsewhere in this issue, informing us that believers in Turkey have been imprisoned by the government on the charge that they are members of a movement intending to carry on political intrigue—charges no doubt instigated by Muhammadan sources—now serves to give us a concrete example of the vital importance of this whole issue. In less than two months after the National Assembly published its statement on the non-political character of the Faith, its members are called upon to appeal and intercede on behalf of their suffering brothers in a far-distant land! This instance surely reminds us in a most emphatic manner how essential it is to cast aside all provincial limitations, all traditional values, and assert our devotion to a Cause whose vision includes mankind.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

The text of the National Declaration of Trust and By-Laws, and of the By-Laws approved for use by Local Spiritual Assemblies, has been published in pamphlet form at the special request of the National Spiritual Assembly, that all believers may inform themselves of these elements of Baha’i administration. Per copy, 10c. Local Librarians are requested to order a supply and bring this pamphlet to the attention of the friends.

A new, revised edition of “Divine Philosophy,” for some years out of print and greatly missed by the friends, is now available. Per copy, $0.75.

During recent months there has been great demand for copies of “Study Guide to the Dawn-Breakers,” at 25c per copy. The Study Guide can be used in classes or by individual believers making an intensive study of Nabil’s inspiring Narrative.

TEACHING COMMITTEE REPORT

Such encouraging news has been received from various parts of the country where earnest attempts are being made to put into effect the reconstructed teaching program, outlined in detail in the Baha’i News of July, 1932, that the National Teaching Committee feels it essential to give all the friends the benefit and inspiration of some of them as new opportunities of service.

First: Let us assure ourselves that the source of confirmation in successful teaching work is complete reliance on the power of Bahá’u’lláh to remove all obstacles before the pure in heart and sincere in service. We must place all our faith in the unfailing guidance of God; knowing of a certainty that in this day of supreme affliction, He will lead his devoted followers to victory.

Second: Our efforts must be filled with the irresistible spirit of the invincible Pioneers of the Faith in Persia, who so ably assisted the Bab in preparing the way for the coming of Bahá’u’lláh. This spirit can be achieved through study and re-study of Nabil’s Narrative. ‘Abdu’l-Bahá wrote that Shoghi Effendi’s purpose in translating this display of spiritual force was that the power of the Holy Spirit, which animated those beings, might likewise now animate our activities. Shoghi Effendi writes: “I feel an organized, systematic and thorough study of Nabil’s Narrative should constitute this year a valuable adjunct to the teaching program.”

In order to assist the friends in this thorough and systematic study, Mrs. Doris McKay and Mrs. Bahiyyih Lindstrom at the request of the Teaching Committee, prepared a Study Guide of the Dawn-Breakers, which can be secured from the Publishing Committee, 25 cents per copy. It has come to our attention that many of the friends have refrained from purchasing copies of the Dawn-Breakers because they felt it more important to send the funds to the National Fund. The National Spiritual Assembly must meet all expense of the activities of the Faith in America out of the one Fund. There is still over $3000 due to the printers for the publication of the Dawn-Breakers, a portion of which is being paid monthly by the National Assembly. Therefore purchasing copies of the Dawn-Breakers does not withdraw money from the Temple Fund. Each and every Baha’i should have a copy of this invaluable book, with the fact now understood that purchase of the Dawn-Breakers by funds which otherwise might be sent direct to the National Funds, does not divert that money from its intended purpose, but in this instance does double service, giving you the much needed Nabil’s Narrative, and aids the Temple Fund by decreasing the indebtedness of issuing the Dawn-Breakers.

Third: Bahá’ís should keep in touch with those progressive groups whose principles are in accord with Bahá’í principles. In each city, if one Bahá’í could keep in contact with the people of capacity in each progressive and universal group, numerous doors would be opened for Bahá’í service. Social Service Agencies and workers are almost always prepared soil for the seeds of the New Life.

“I would infinitely deplore any cessation, or even an interruption, however brief, in the magnificent work which is now being undertaken by Mr. Earley and his associates. It is for the American believers, and particularly those whose financial resources have been relatively less impaired, to assure, through their concerted, their constant, and self-sacrificing endeavors, the uninterrupted progress and the successful termination of an enterprise on which so much that is vital to our beloved Faith must depend. Blessings, unimaginable and incomparably more potent than any in the past, will assuredly crown their efforts if they only persevere.”

Your true brother,

Haifa, Palestine
November 30, 1932
To Mr. Allen B. McDaniel

SHOGHI
Where it is impossible to have individual membership, Assemblies might accomplish the same ends, by appointing a Contacts Committee, or making it a part of the specific responsibilities of the local Teaching Committee, which would keep in constant touch and cooperation with all desirable groups and activities.

Fourth: Attend all Conference of an Inter-racial, Inter-religious, or International nature, endeavoring, if possible, to have Bahá’ís active delegates and workers in the Conference. This is a field which presents almost unending sources of Bahá’í work. Astounding results are always achieved, as in the case of the young Bahá’ís of Southern California at the World Council of Youth, held in Pasadena, immediately after the Olympic Games; or as the individual work of Mr. C. G. Nordquist in meeting the leaders of the Rotary Clubs, during their 10th International Convention held in Seattle.

Fifth: Too much cannot be said of the holding of “fireside” meetings. This is worked out in many ways. In one community a very carefully picked group of key people are invited to tea once every two weeks, a program planned, which will present aspects of the Cause in a manner to incite interest in it. In another community, an authority on some subject with which the Cause deals, is invited for an informal evening at which people interested in that subject are invited. The Bahá’ís present, after the lectures, lead the individual discussions over the tea cups in a constructive and universal manner, into the paths of the Faith. If every Bahá’í once a Bahá’í month will invite their friends in for an educational evening, they will find soon the deepest thoughts of each will find expression, and those thoughts always are concerning life and its purpose.

Sixth: A Public Program on Universal Subjects is very beneficial. It is always possible to secure speakers for such meetings: particularly from those who are interested in Universal Peace and International Welfare. Always have a Bahá’í Chairman. Be sure the meetings are attractive, full of the warmth of Bahá’í fellowship, and the alluring spirit of the Cause present. Usually excellent newspaper publicity can be secured. In one center a two months program was arranged, with speakers including College Professors, Ministers, Peace Workers, Bahá’ís, etc. General interest was created, which brought fine publicity in the daily papers. This publicity in turn established interest on the part of a local broadcasting station, which asked for certain of the talks to be broadcast, and other releases.

Seventh: Newspapers and magazines are daily publishing addresses, statements, and articles by leaders of thought, on current problems and their solution. Bahá’í literature dealing with the specific subject can be sent to the individual, usually with very beneficial results. Data sent to a man broadcasting on current topics lead to a discussion of the Cause by him in a subsequent broadcast. The “Goal of a New World Order” usually is an excellent document to send to public spirited men and women. Each Assembly would do well to appoint a special Committee to handle this important, delicate function in the appropriate manner it deserves.

May we reiterate that the Teaching Committee feels itself the servants of the friends in putting into action the new wave of teaching enthusiasm reaching the friends and Assemblies. Therefore if the Committee can be of special assistance in any particular function, we know you will not hesitate to call upon us.

LEROY IOAS, Chairman
BISHOP BROWN, Vice-Chairman

LETTER FROM LIBRARY COMMITTEE

Dear Co-Workers:

The Library Division of The Publishing Committee is very anxious to stimulate a new activity in the circulation of the Bahá’í Literature, as we believe that this is a very important branch of the Teaching Program. The field is a large one and many people can be reached, who perhaps could not be in any other way.

Our plan is to create a definite demand for the Bahá’í books in the Public and University Libraries, as there is a great urge for the study of Comparative Religions throughout the world today, particularly among University students.

We have sent out a Questionnaire to all the Local Assemblies asking for their cooperation in supplying us with a list of all the Bahá’í Literature now catalogued in their respective Public and University Libraries, and also the heading under which they are listed, for we find that The Bahá’í Cause is classified under several different headings, which we wish to correct.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank the Assemblies for their prompt response to this Questionnaire.

We now would like to suggest that each Local Assembly assume a personal responsibility in creating this demand, by having members frequently going to the Libraries and asking for certain books, books of particular importance such as Bahá’í Scriptures.

If the Libraries recognize sufficient demand, they will no doubt put those they have of these particular books out on the open shelves where they can be seen, and if they haven’t them, we are in hopes that they will buy them. Several Assemblies have written us to ask if we could supply Public Libraries with a complete set of Bahá’í books. We are sorry to say that this is impossible, as there is no fund for such an expensive undertaking. We want the demand to force the Libraries to purchase them, and we also would like each Assembly to make some contribution to their Public and University Libraries of one or several of the most important books, including The Dawn-Breakers, if possible.

However, there are a few books which we can supply: The Book of Assurance, due to the new publication of the Kitab-i-Iqan, Volumes II and III of The Bahá’í World, Bahá’í: The Spirit of the Age, and The Bahá’í Revelation, which we will gladly supply upon request, to any Local Assembly for the above purpose.

We also wish to call your attention to another important matter. We find that many Libraries have certain books listed under “Bahá’í” heading which should not be catalogued as such.
as they are not authentic, and in some cases are directly opposed to the Cause. Each Assembly can render a great service by taking steps to correct all such errors. We therefore suggest that your Assembly appoint a representative to take up the matter with the local Librarian in this way: Show the Librarian the complete list of authorized Bahá'í books given on pages 242, 243, 244, 246 and 247 of The Bahá'í World, Volume Three, and appeal to her to give some other listing to any books in her Library not mentioned in The Bahá'í World. For example, a book attacking the Cause by a Christian missionary should logically be listed under Christianity, while a book which may be partly favorable and partly untrue could be listed under the general heading of Religion. The important point is to make the Librarian understand that the Cause is properly organized and that real Bahá'í literature is that which is recognized as such by the official representatives of the Cause. While we do not fear attacks, we think it only fair that people inquiring for Bahá'í books should be given only such as are recognized as accurate.

We trust your Assembly will give this matter due consideration, as the main object in sending out this appeal is to try to stimulate every believer in the country to cooperate with active service in a national effort to spread the Literature, and make known to the world the power which exists in this Message of Báb, through spreading the Creative Word to a people who are in sore need of knowledge and guidance.

Faithfully yours in His Service,

Martha Woodsum, Chairman,
Library Division.

COMMITTEE ON TRAINING AND TEACHING CHILDREN

Bulletin No. 1

As this Committee begins its first year's work, it is mindful of the immediate need for lessons for children's classes already organized or about to begin. Bulletin No. 1 is addressed to this particular problem. To meet this situation, as well as to lay the foundation for the future, we offer a series of experimental lessons, and have devised the following plan for their distribution and use:

We are sending to each Bahá'í Assembly, free of charge, the first installment consisting of six lessons, together with pedagogical suggestions and the list of objects for the entire course of thirty-six lessons. We wish to ask each local group to take definite responsibility along two lines in order that our work may develop in the spirit of true consultation and cooperation.

First: Will each group desiring the orders, remaining three installments at the rate of twenty-five cents each or seventy-five cents for the entire set. Early orders will be appreciated.

Second: As each installment is completed, will the teacher report this or her experience with the lessons already covered? This is of utmost importance to the future usefulness of the work we are developing together. Without this active cooperation at this point the work will lose much of its effectiveness and a more adequate program will be considerably delayed.

We suggest only in the most general way the information we desire so that your reports may be as varied as possible.

To what extent do these experimental lessons meet your needs:
1. as to age?
2. as to sufficiency of material?
3. as to definitiveness of material?
4. as to references both from Bahá'í and outside sources?
5. What changes or additions would you suggest?
6. Report any experiences or methods you think would help others.

Please be sure to send answers to the above questions with your order for the second installment of lessons.

Charlotte M. Linfoot, Secretary.

Oakland, Calif.

1933 CONVENTION DATE

On January 28, 1933, the National Spiritual Assembly cabled Shoghi Effendi as follows: "Please advise Convention date whether as usual or later for Chicago Fair."

This cabled reply was sent by the Guardian on February 2: "Advise June 1st. Research entire body American believers by love they bear departed Greatest Holy Leaf not allow slightest interruption progress Temple work, so near her heart, (to) dim (the) splendor (of their) past achievements. Beg them ponder (the) extreme urgency (of my) entreaty."—Shoghi.

DIAGRAM OF DOME ORNAMENTATION

Inserted in this issue of Bahá'í News is a diagram showing every unit casting which enters into the ornamental plan designed by Mr. Bourgeois for the Temple dome.

Last month the believers were informed that one diagram would be furnished to each local Spiritual Assembly, but in view of the extreme importance of completing this ornamentation by June 1, a task which requires self-sacrificing effort on the part of each and every American Bahá'í, it was considered advisable to provide a copy of the diagram to all the friends. It will be noted that each section has been divided into ten casting units instead of nine, as first planned by the Earley Company. The cost of each casting unit will consequently be slightly less than the figure of $270 announced last month.

The purpose of the diagram is to make it possible for the believers to check off the units as fast as they are paid for from contributions actually received. The National Spiritual Assembly will report the progress of Temple construction to all believers once a month in Bahá'í News, and to Spiritual Assemblies more frequently by mail.

Mr. McDaniel's letter in the present issue supplies the important details. Since his letter was prepared, it is possible to report that approximately $3000 additional can be appropriated for Temple work.

BAHÁ'Í YOUTH ACTIVITIES

Many plans have been adopted from time to time during recent years to provide some definite channel for the proper expression of the special capacities of Bahá'í youth. Recently this matter has been brought to the Guardian's attention by the National Spiritual Assembly, and as the result of this correspondence the Assembly has appointed a Bahá'í Youth Committee.

In announcing this appointment, the Guardian's advice are shared with the friends. In a letter dated Haifa, Palestine, October 27, 1932, written through his secretary, the Guardian's views were expressed as follows: "Shoghi Effendi believes that the best solution is to have some reasonable age limit for the actual membership of the body of the organization so that only the young people may take part in the different activities and have no older person usurp the floor or deprive them..." of their chances to train themselves and express their ideas. At the same time the National Assembly could appoint on the National Committee that is to supervise their work some older and experienced persons who could cooperate with them and guide them in their activities. The National Committee should be composed both of people within the age limit and also older people.

The Guardian likewise wrote to Mrs. Stuart W. French, in reply to a letter written by her after the meeting of the World Council of Youth which was held in Pasadena during August, 1932. "The activities, hopes and ideals of the Bahá’í youth in America, as well as in all other parts of the world, are close and dear to my heart. Upon them rests the supreme and challenging responsibility to promote the interests of the Cause of God in the days to come: to coordinate its worldwide activities, to extend its scope, to safeguard its integrity, to exalt its virtues, and translate its ideals and aims into memorable and abiding achievements. There is a mighty task, at once holy, stupendous and enthralling. May the spirit of Bahá’u’lláh protect, inspire and sustain them in the prosecution of their divinely appointed task." (Dated October 26, 1932.)

The Bahá’í Youth Committee appointed at the December meeting of the National Spiritual Assembly includes:

Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf, Chairman, Mrs. Grace Holley and Mrs. Dorothy Baker; Miss Marion Holley, Secretary, Miss Allison McDaniel, Miss Gertrude Gewirtz, Miss Sylvia Paine, Miss Rosemary Gillies, Miss Florence Mattoon, Miss Parvin Bagdadi, Mr. Paul Haney, Mr. James McCormack, Mr. James Stone.

This Committee has been requested to make a study of the range of activities suitable for Bahá’í young people and to recommend plans and programs to be carried out by Bahá’í Youth Committees to be appointed by Local Spiritual Assemblies.

As soon as the Committee makes its report to the National Assembly, the latter body will, after approving it, transmit the report to all Local Assemblies with the request that Local Youth Committees be appointed.

INSTRUCTIONS ON THE RECEPTION OF ORIENTALS

Statements on this subject have been published from time to time, but the National Assembly feels it advisable to remind the friends of the latest instructions received from the Guardian. From Minutes of National Spiritual Assembly, April 11 and 12, 1931—

"The Secretary read a letter from the New York Spiritual Assembly quoting a passage from a letter written that Assembly by our Guardian recently referring to the reception of Orientals in America. This letter was dated March 9, 1931 and the extract is from the Guardian's own handwriting, as follows:

"My dear Co-workers: I wish to add a few lines and remind you of the necessity of refusing to admit to your Assembly, or associate with, any Oriental who does not have proper credentials from a recognized Spiritual Assembly. No excuse whatever is acceptable. I am sure that a few are trying to cause mischief and bring about a split in the ranks of the believers in these days of stress, and the utmost caution should be exercised, lest these mischief-makers succeed in undermining the foundation of the Cause.

Your true brother and well-wisher, (signed) SHOGHII."

From Minutes of National Spiritual Assembly, March 14 and 15, 1931—

"A cable from Shoghi Effendi to the New York Assembly concerning the reception of Orientals in this country, dated February 7, 1931, a copy of which had been sent this body by the New York Assembly, was read, as follows:

"Appeal believers recall Master's repeated warnings exercise vigilance discrimination reception Orientals otherwise great mischief will result; their credentials behavior should be critically examined."

REGISTRATION OF ISOLATED BELIEVERS

A general letter has recently been issued to all Bahá’ís who have been listed as “isolated believers.” This letter requested all such believers to fill out and return a registration card; thus permitting such believers to record their adherence to the Bahá’í Faith and giving the National Assembly a true and correct mailing list.

Copies of Bahá’í News and other communications will in future be sent only to those isolated believers who register themselves with the National Assembly.

Any isolated believer who fails to receive a registration card is requested to notify the National Office.

ON CORRESPONDENCE WITH INDIVIDUAL BELIEVERS

At the meeting held on November 12 and 13, 1932, the National Spiritual Assembly voted to adopt the policy that general Bahá’í matters must first be presented by individual believers to their Local Spiritual Assemblies, and the National Assembly will respond to all such matters presented to it by a Local Assembly, it being understood that communications received from individual believers on personal matters will be answered directly. It was the sense of the meeting that this action should be brought to the attention of all believers in Bahá’í News.

The purpose of this vote is to discourage individual believers from undertaking correspondence with the National Assembly on matters related to the Cause in general and not confined to the individual’s personal affairs. In the case of matters concerning the Cause as a whole, if individuals wish to seek information or make suggestions, they are requested to do so through their Local Assembly. In the case of personal affairs, the National Assembly will be happy to carry on correspondence with individual believers to the extent of its capacity.

Let us learn to make fuller use of our facilities for local consultation.

THE ATTITUDE OF THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY ON APPEALS FROM LOCAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLIES

In order to clarify the important subject of the right of individual members of local Bahá’í communities to make appeal to the National Spiritual Assembly for reconsideration of actions taken by a Local Spiritual Assembly, and to set forth for the information of the Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada a definite procedure controlling the making of appeals to the National Bahá’í body, the members of the National Spiritual Assembly have adopted the following statement and incorporated it in the minutes of the Meeting held on December 27 and 28, 1932.

1. The By-Laws of the National Spiritual Assembly contain the following references to the subject of appeals.

Article I. "It shall, in such cases as it considers suitable and necessary, entertain appeals from the decisions of Local Spiritual Assemblies and shall have the right of final decision in all cases where the qualifications of an individual or group for continued voting rights and membership in the Baha’i body is in question.

Article VII. Section 6. “The Local Assembly shall pass upon and approve the qualifications of each member of the Baha’i community before such members shall be admitted to voting membership; but where an individual is dissatisfied with the ruling of the Local Spiritual Assembly upon his Baha’i qualifications, such individual may appeal from the ruling to the National Assembly, which shall thereupon take jurisdiction of and finally decide the case.”

Article VII. Section 9. “All questions arising between two or more Local Spiritual Assemblies or between members of different Baha’i communities, shall be submitted in the first instance to the National Assembly, which shall have original and final jurisdiction in all such matters.”

Note: Article VII. Section 9, properly speaking, does not refer to the subject of appeals, since an appeal is from a lower to a higher jurisdiction, and the National Spiritual Assembly is the only Baha’i body having jurisdiction in cases of an Inter-Assembly character. It is quoted here, however, as an instruction to be noted by believers in their study of the principles of administration.

2. It will be seen from the above quotations that the right of individuals to appeal is subject to the decision of the National Spiritual Assembly whether the appeal is important enough to be considered or of a trivial nature and therefore not to be entertained. This brings out the vital principle that the National Spiritual Assembly is not a passive body compelled to deal with all matters brought to its attention, but has paramount executive and legislative powers in addition to its function as a judicial body.

3. Since with the lapse of time it becomes difficult to bring together all evidence bearing upon a situation or matter, the National Assembly has voted that all appeals must be received within sixty days of the date when the action or decision of the Local Spiritual Assembly has been made known to the believer appealing from that action or decision. The period of sixty days is ample in which individual believers can take steps to safeguard their legitimate rights.

4. The National Spiritual Assembly will entertain only such appeals as are made from decisions of a Local Assembly after the individual believer who makes the appeal has presented his views to the Local Assembly and endeavored sincerely to solve the problem by local consultation. The members of the National Assembly believe that practically every Baha’i problem can be removed by full and frank consultation on the part of the believers directly concerned. But this does not mean that a dissatisfied believer is to agitate any matter among the members of the local Baha’i community apart from the Local Spiritual Assembly. The responsibility for decisions is clearly placed upon the Local Spiritual Assemblies and not upon the believers of the community.

5. The National Spiritual Assembly can rightly entertain only those appeals which express dissatisfaction with actions or decisions of a Local Assembly—it cannot be expected to deal with appeals which are an effort to deny the authority and power of the Local Assembly in general. The authority and power duly vested in Local Spiritual Assemblies will always be upheld and defended by the National Assembly. But where a duly elected Local Assembly acts unjustly toward a believer, or acts in such a way as to work some harm upon the Cause, an appeal to the National Assembly is entirely justified after consultation with the Local Assembly has proved fruitless.

6. The National Spiritual Assembly, in entertaining an appeal, will deal only with the believer or believers by whom the appeal has been made. The National Assembly will not recognize any believer’s right to be represented by another believer nor by a non-Baha’i attorney, advocate or representative. In becoming a voting member of the Baha’i community, every believer accepts the recognized qualifications for membership, which include full acceptance of the power and authority duly vested in Local and National Assemblies, including the power to remove any name from the voting list if the recognized qualifications for membership are no longer observed. The right of every believer to be a member of the Baha’i community is conditional upon continued faithfulness to the Cause, and that right is acquired by asserting one’s acceptance of the qualifications for membership, and is not in any way a vested right nor a right that may be permanently claimed without permanence of loyalty and faithfulness to the Cause.

7. Appeals must be made in writing, and on receiving an appeal the National Assembly will request the Local Assembly to furnish an attested copy of its minutes or other records bearing upon the matter in question, including a record of the consultation requested by the appellant. The nature of the appeal will be made known to the Local Assembly, and the Local Assembly be given opportunity to furnish a written explanation of the matter, before the National Assembly decides whether to entertain the appeal. By “attested copy” is meant a copy signed by the Secretary or other Officer of the Local Assembly duly chosen by the Local Assembly to furnish the record.

8. The National Assembly will announce both to the appellant and to the Local Assembly its decision, which decision is binding upon the appellant, the Local Assembly and the local Baha’i community. In entertaining an appeal, the National Spiritual Assembly will endeavor to raise the problem from the realm of personality to the plane of the Teachings and Principles of Administration, and seek not merely to announce a final decision but also to point out wherever possible the grounds for true understanding and reconciliation on the part of the believers immediately affected by the problem appealed.

9. Unless the National Spiritual Assembly is entertaining an appeal of a strictly personal and private nature, the Local Spiritual Assembly should present the decision of the National Assembly to the entire local Baha’i community, for the information and guidance of the community.

10. Local Assemblies are requested to give individual believers every opportunity for full and frank discussion of matters which seem to cause dissatisfaction, in order to prevent local problems coming to the point of formal appeal to the National Assembly. Local Assemblies should freely receive appeals for reconsideration of its decisions from members of the local Baha’i community, and endeavor to turn these into occasions for increasing the spirit of true unity between itself and all members of the community. Believers having a grievance against their Local Spiritual Assembly, or against another believer in the community, have a right to present that grievance privately to the Local Assembly. If the Local Assembly considers a grievance between two or more members of the community, and cannot remove that grievance, it should refer the matter to the National Assembly for advice and assistance, after securing the approval of all parties to the grievance that the matter be referred to the National body. Any believer unwilling to have the grievance referred to the National Assembly must accept the decision of the Local Assembly in regard to the grievance. But when the grievance has been referred to the National Assembly with the approval of all the individual believers directly affected, all such believers are bound to accept the decision of the National body. Local Assembly and National Assembly, should deal with believers directly and not through any representative.

11. Individual believers may justifiably appeal to the National Assembly not merely in matters affecting themselves personally but also in larger matters affecting the Cause in their community. For example, if there be real evidence that a Local Assembly has not been properly elected, any Bahá'í in that community may and in fact should join with other local Bahá'ís in making the matter known to the National Assembly. In the same way, if a duly elected Assembly for any reason is unable or unwilling to hold regular meetings and function as a Local Assembly, it is incumbent upon the Bahá'ís of that community to report the matter to the National Assembly. In such case the National Assembly may order a new election.

12. A Local Assembly which finds itself in dispute with another Local Assembly may refer the matter to the National Assembly if the matter can not be settled by the two Local Assemblies in accordance with the Teachings and Principles of the Cause.

In conclusion, the members of the National Spiritual Assembly would emphasize the vital fact that in the Bahá'í Faith, all rights are balanced by the obligation to maintain true unity among the followers of Bahá'u'lláh. But "Justice is loved above all," and this statement on appeals has been prepared in order to make it possible for every believer to obtain the fullest measure of justice in relation to his Local Assembly and to his fellow Bahá'ís.

BAHÁ'Í NEWS

London

At the end of September the Bahá'í centre was moved from Walmar House to 19, Grosvenor Place, S.W.1.

Here we have a large room for meetings and also a small one opening out of it which is very useful. These rooms are on the third floor and the windows look out over the trees of Buckingham Palace Gardens, so there is plenty of light and fresh air. By this move we have obtained a most suitable centre at slightly less cost, but even this has only been achieved by sacrifice and generous help from friends abroad. It will need continued effort and unshakable faith to keep this Bahá'í Home during these troubled times, but we believe that God will help us as He has in the past.

Since our last Letter was circulated we have had many visitors. Miss Grünzweig who was brought up in the Bahá'í Cause in Stuttgart and now lives at Beirut in Syria and is in frequent communication with Haifa.

Miss Julia Goldman from Honolulu is now in England and we have been very much pleased to welcome her at our meetings, at which she has spoken several times.

Other visitors who have been with us are: Dr. N. P. Nigan, Mr. A. C. Chakiavartti and Miss A. Allen.

The Bahá'í Room is open daily from 1 to 5 (except Saturdays and Sundays) for consultation and reading. A well stocked Library of Bahá'í writings is available.

A "Youth Group" has recently been formed among the London Bahá'ís, and it is exceedingly promising for it is full of enthusiasm and fire.

They have their meetings every Friday night at 8 o'clock, tea is served at 10, but they often do not separate till 10:30, so great is their interest.

The energetic committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Alisade, Mrs. Brown, Mr. Balyuzi, Mr. Dekkan, Mr. Dear, Miss Phillips and Mr. Aziz Yazdi, and the two Misses le Gray, seem to have hit on a most successful plan for keeping up this interest and including everyone in its activities, for though at the first meeting there were only 6, ever since the numbers have run to 19 or 20, with the young men and the girls in about equal proportions.

Mr. Aziz Yazdi from Egypt, and the young Persian men students here in London at present, help the meeting a good deal.

One week the "Youth Group" has half-an-hour's address given by one of its members, a reading from the Bahá'í writings, and questions and discussions. The following Friday every member present has to speak for 5 minutes on a given subject. This is a most excellent way of overcoming their self-consciousness and nervousness, and learning to put their ideas in order and express them.

Tibráin

At the Eastern Women's Congress held in Teheran recently, Rouhanguz Kahanum Fat'h A'zam, representing the Bahá'í women, delivered an inspiring address, the gist of which we are delighted to report herewith to our many friends throughout the world. After mentioning the spiritual power and the astute wisdom and knowledge of the famous Persian heroine Qur-rat'ul' Ayn, the speaker called attention to the fact that this great emancipator of women reached the height of glory as a result of her becoming inspired by the life-giving Teachings of Bahá'u'lláh. Since her martyrdom, many Persian women have followed in her path and endeavored to demonstrate their equality to men. In the Bahá'í religion the teachings on the equality of men and women are numerous. The Spiritual Assemblies whether local or national, do their best to promote social, educational and spiritual organizations to help in the development of men, women and children, giving them all equal opportunities, and as a matter of fact attaching more importance to the education of girls as the latter are going to be the mothers of the future generation. That is why the Bahá'ís emphasize the progress of women. The "Tarbiat School for Girls" in Teheran was established when there were no other girls' schools in that city. In the district of Yazd, there are eleven Bahá'í schools, seven of which are for girls and four for boys. In His Western tours, 'Abdu'l-Bahá mentioned frequently that men and women should enjoy equal rights and privileges, equal education and opportunities. "Humanity is like a bird with two wings," said He, the one is male, the other female. The Bahá'í woman does not interfere in politics, nor does she uphold any revolutionary methods for her progress and development which are greatly facilitated by the fact that the Bahá'í men, in obedience to the Teachings of Bahá'u'lláh, hold themselves responsible and are very desirous and willing to grant woman her freedom and consider her equal to them in obtaining her rights and privileges. This is the reason why the endeavours of Bahá'í men and women have led to united action in an atmosphere free from any disturbance or agitation, thus winning the approval of the Persian nation and Government.
TEMPEL CONSTRUCTION

1. The Guardian’s Prayer

“Would to God that by the end of the spring of the year 1933 the multitudes who, from the remote corners of the globe, will throng the grounds of the Great Fair to be held in the neighborhood of that hallowed shrine may, as the result of your sustained spirit of self-sacrifice, be privileged to gaze on the arrayed splendor of its dome—a dome that shall stand as a flaming beacon and a symbol of hope amidst the gloom of a despairing world.”—Shoghi Effendi to the American believers, March 21, 1932.

2. Progress to Date

Between June, 1932 and March, 1933, a total of $27,500 was donated toward the sum of $150,000 estimated as the cost of completing the external decoration of the dome unit. On March 25, 1933, the National Spiritual Assembly was able to appropriate $6,000 additional, which provides for the continuation of the work until the end of April.

This work goes forward in several definite stages.

- The first stage consisted in making a model of each different unit of Mr. Bourgeois’s plan of decoration, and from these models making molds from which the final sectional units are to be cast.

- During this stage it was also necessary to find a source of quartz in the required quality and quantity, and to decide upon a system of non-rusting metal fittings for holding the decorative units in place upon the dome.

- The second stage consists in casting the many units of the dome sections and the ribs, and the production of the metal fittings. These fittings have to be set in place before the decorative units are applied to the dome.

- The third stage will be the actual placing of the beautiful sectional units upon the dome.

The National Spiritual Assembly understands that the first stage is now completed as far as the molds are concerned. Orders have been placed for the quartz and the metal fittings.

3. Progress by June 1

The original estimate of $150,000 has been reduced to $135,500 as the result of economies and decreased labor costs. Under the financial schedule represented by the flow of contributions to date, the work on June 1 will be brought up to the following point:

A. The lower portion of the nine ribs, extending from the bottom of the dome to the second gallery, will be completed and set in place.

B. The metal fittings (technically known as the “furring system”) will be set in place, ready for the various sectional units.

C. A certain number of the units will be cast.

4. Financial Schedule

It is emphasized that this construction is a new type of work, a piece of pioneering work, that could not be rushed through in the same way as ordinary construction. The dome unit demands a certain period of time during the preliminary stages, and this period could not be shortened very much even if millions of dollars had been available.

The casting and final application of the units to the Temple dome can, however, be hastened if the flow of contributions is from now on greatly increased. But the Temple Trustees have been obliged to set up a tentative schedule corresponding to an estimate of future donations based upon experience in the past.

In publishing this schedule, the National Spiritual Assembly utters a heartfelt prayer that not only will this considerable sacrifice be met throughout each of the coming months, but that the devotion of the American Baha’is will so exceed it that a far more rapid construction schedule can be substituted.

Please note that the following schedule contemplates final completion of the Temple dome unit by November 30, 1933.

- Amount required by April 30, 1933—$9,000.
- Amount required from April 30 to May 31—$13,000.
- Amount required from May 31 to June 30—$16,000.
- Amount required from June 30 to July 31—$16,000.
- Amount required from July 31 to August 31—$16,000.
- Amount required from August 31 to September 30—$16,000.
- Amount required from September 30 to October 31—$16,000.
- Amount required from October 31 to November 30—$16,000.

Your National Assembly can but lay these facts before you, together with the Guardian’s inspiring words, that each and every believer may, by prayer and meditation, achieve his or her own standard of sacrifice in contributing to the Mashriqu’l-Adhkár.

THE FIRST MESSAGE OF ‘ABDU’L-BAHÁ TO HIS FRIENDS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

He is the All-Glorious

The world’s great Light, once responsive upon all mankind, has set to shine everlasting from the ‘Abha Horizon, His Kingdom of fadeless glory, shedding splendor upon His loved ones from on high, and breathing into their hearts and souls the breath of eternal life.

Ponder in your hearts that which He hath foretold in His Tablet of “The Divine Vision” that hath been spread throughout the world. Therein he saith: “Thereupon she wailed and exclaimed ‘May the world and all that is therein be a ransom for Thy woes, O Sovereign of heaven and earth! Wherefore hast Thou left Thyself in the hands of the dwellers of this prison-city of ‘Akka? Hasten Thou to other realms, to Thy retreats above, unknown as yet to the mortal glance of the children of the world.” We smiled and spake not. Reflect upon these most exalted words, and comprehend the purpose of this hidden and sacred mystery.

"O ye beloved of the Lord! Beware, beware, lest ye hesitate and waver. Let not fear fall upon you, neither be troubled nor dismayed. Take ye good heed lest this calamitous day slacken the flames of your ardor, and quench your tender hopes. Today is the day for steadfastness and constancy. Blessed are they that stand firm and immovable as the rock, and brave the storm and stress of this tempestuous hour. They, verily, shall be the recipients of God’s grace, verily shall receive His divine assistance, and shall be the truly victorious. They shall shine amidst mankind with a radiance which the dwellers of the Pavillion of Glory laud and magnify. To them is proclaimed this celestial call, revealed in His most holy Book: "O my people! Be not perplexed should the star of My presence disappear, and the ocean of My utterance be stilled. In My presence among you there was the wisdom of God, and in My absence from you there is yet another, inscrutable to all but the One, the All-Knowing. Verily, We behold you from Our realm of effulgent glory, and will graciously aid whosoever striveth for the triumph of Our Cause with the hosts of the celestial Concourse and a company of Our chosen angels."

The Sun of Truth, that most great Light, has set upon the horizon of the world to rise with deathless splendor over the Realm of the Limitless. In His most holy Book He calleth the firm and steadfast of His friends, “O peoples of the world! Should the radiance of My beauty be veiled, and the temple of My body be hidden, feel not perturbed, nay arise and bestir yourselves, that My Cause may triumph, and My Word be heard by all mankind.”

ANNUAL REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

The National Spiritual Assembly requests each of its committees to submit an annual report not later than April 10, 1933.

It is the intention of the Assembly to issue its annual report and the annual reports of its committees, in BAHA’I NEWS for May, a month previous to the Convention, which as you know, will be held this year on June first, second, third and fourth.

By placing all annual reports in the hands of the delegates previous to the Convention, it is the hope of the Assembly that the Convention this year can concentrate upon present and future problems and not merely review the details of the various activities during the previous Baha’i year. While brevity is very desirable, the National Assembly will welcome reports which are not only complete as to important details, but also contribute to the future growth of the Cause by making constructive suggestions based upon past experience.

Reports received by April 10th will be referred to the Assembly for approval, and it is urgently hoped that no committee report need be omitted from the Special Pre-Convention Number of BAHA’I NEWS.

CONVENTION CALL

Dear Baha’i Friends:

The National Spiritual Assembly sends this notice that the Annual Meeting, known as the Baha’i Convention, will be held at Foundation Hall of the Mashriqui’l-Adhkar, Wilmette, Illinois, on June 1, 2, 3 and 4, 1933, this being the Twenty-fifth Annual Convention.

The attention of Local Spiritual Assemblies is called to Article VIII of the By-Laws, which provides that each Assembly shall call a meeting of the Baha’i community for the election of the delegate or delegates to the Convention assigned to its community as shown on the attached list of “Participating Baha’i Communities.” Immediately following that election, each Spiritual Assembly shall fill out and return a Certificate of Election of Delegates, a copy of which is also enclosed.

This notice carries the following enclosures related to the forthcoming Convention: (1). List of Participating Baha’i Communities. (2). Certificate of Election of Delegates. (3). Information for Delegates. (4). Nine ballot slips, one ballot envelope and one mailing envelope for each delegate. (5). Individual Registration Blank for each Delegate. We trust that the information furnished herein, and reference to Article VIII of the By-Laws, will enable each Delegate to fulfill his or her responsibility in the Convention.

As stated in February BAHA’I News, the date of June 1 was chosen for this Convention on advice cabled by the Guardian. It is on that date that the Guardian centers his hopes that American Bahais shall carry out their supreme privilege of completing the external decoration of the Temple dome.

Never before have we believers of the United States and Canada borne such responsibility in the worldwide development of the Cause of Baha’u’llah. The present Baha’i year began with the whole-hearted pledge of the Delegates and friends present at the last Convention to meet the Guardian’s standard of achievement. May it end with that standard completely observed.

Faithfully yours,

National Spiritual Assembly.

HOW TO TRANSFER

MT. CARMEL LAND TO THE PALESTINE BRANCH

Since the preliminary notice on this matter was published a few months ago, a number of individual believers have taken steps to transfer their land on Mt. Carmel to the Palestine Branch of the National Spiritual Assembly. By these generous donations, thousands of dollars worth of this precious property is now held in perpetuity for Bahá’í use.

Specific instructions how to effect the transfer of legal title are now supplied in the following letter and Power of Attorney.

“Shoghi Effendi wishes me to send you these few lines to enclose a copy of the power of attorney that our lawyer here has framed in case any one of the friends desires to transfer the property he holds around the Shrine to the name of the National Assembly. As I told you in my previous letter, by law such lands can only be transferred during one’s lifetime. Otherwise it will go to the heirs according to prescribed shares. The will of the deceased is inoperative in such cases. Shoghi Effendi does not want to bring any form of pressure upon the friends. They are naturally free to keep the property in their name and have it go to their heirs.

“In case they express the desire to make such a transfer and have the property revert to the Cause then they have to sign this power of attorney before a Notary Public and then have it countersigned by the British Consul in that locality.

“The power of attorney is in my name and not in the name of the Guardian because he represents the N. S. A. and will sign for them. He cannot represent both parties to the transfer.

For the transfer there are some expenses, among them 3 percent of the value of the land, which is government taxes. They do not, however, amount to very much.

“Please note that besides putting their name and signature, they have also to state the situate of the deed which is mentioned on the Certificate of Registration which they hold.

“Assuring you of Shoghi Effendi’s prayers and best wishes, I remain,

Yours ever sincerely,

RUHI AFNAN.

Haifa, Palestine,
October 2, 1932.”

Power of Attorney

I/we the undersigned ................. do hereby give power of attorney to Mr. Ruhi Agnan of Haifa, authorizing him in my/our place and name to sell, transfer and register in the name of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’í’s of the United States and Canada—Palestine Branch the property registered in my/our name under deed No.......... situate in Haifa and also to administer the said property, to effect partition, parcellation, correction of area and boundaries, sue in Courts and generally do such things and steps in connection with the said property as my said agent shall think fit, and for that purpose to appear before the Land Registries, Courts and Government Offices, sign applications, deeds and other documents, admit receipt of purchase price, and also to appoint other or others in his place and revoke at pleasure such substitutes.

In Witness Whereof I/We Have Set Hereunto My/Our Hands.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOLY LAND

The responsibility which the American believers have so generously and spontaneously assumed through their national elected representatives for the preparation and publication of The Bahá’í World—an international activity of the utmost importance—is yet another evidence of their preponderating influence and their decisive share in the prosecution of this mighty Cause. (signed) SHOGHJI. Haifa, Palestine, November 16, 1932.

I wish to express to your distinguished Assembly my gratitude for the action they have taken in reproducing in facsimile my humble tribute to the Greatest Holy Leaf. The hundred copies you sent me have been received and are splendid reproductions of the original. The finest and most enduring tribute which can be paid to her memory lies within the grasp and constitutes the supreme opportunity of the American believers. Her earthly life, as it drew to a close, was much brightened by the brilliant accomplishments of her devoted lovers in the American continent. May her pure, angelic soul in the realms above derive satisfaction from the uninterrupted progress and the eventual completion of an enterprise on which she centered the one remaining joy of her life. (signed) SHOGHI. Haifa, Palestine, October 27, 1932.

Before you extend any sort of help to, or affiliate yourself with, the World Fellowship of Faiths, Shoghi Effendi feels that the N. S. A. should find out whether its purpose is in any way political, especially now that its leadership is transferred from Rabbi Wise to Mr. Das Gupta. In case it is non-political and its purpose is not in any form of Indian propaganda, then the Guardian feels you should take part in their gatherings. The first task is to find out the underlying motive of the Society and then, in case it coincides with the Bahá’í spirit, lend them help and advise the friends to cooperate with them. Otherwise the Guardian believes we will be involved in grievous difficulties. (signed) RUHI AFNAN. Haifa, Palestine, November 16, 1932.

Your letter of November 17 reveals the character of the Fellowship of Faiths and I would urge the Assembly to exercise the utmost possible pressure on any believer no matter how influential he or she may be to withdraw from participation in its political activities. (signed) SHOGHI. Haifa, Palestine, November 30, 1932.

The Guardian wishes me to draw the attention of the friends through you that they should be very careful in their public utterance not to mention any political figures—either side with them or denounce them. This is the first thing to bear in mind. Otherwise they will involve the friends in political matters, which is infinitely dangerous for the Cause. (signed) RUHI AFNAN. Haifa, Palestine, January 12, 1933.

From Mrs. French’s letter I gather that steps are being taken to gather the necessary material for Vol. V of The Bahá’í World. I am delighted, for it seems to indicate that Vol. IV will soon be published. I earnestly hope that its early publication will be reconsidered by your Assembly, as an indefinite postponement of such a valuable international record will damage the prestige of our beloved Cause. (signed) SHOGHI. Haifa, Palestine, January 12, 1933.

LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

Beloved Friends:

The matter of the non-political character of the Bahá’í Faith has arisen this year for the purpose of stimulating deeper awareness of our privileges and responsibilities in the World Order of Bahá’u’lláh. Only four years ago the Guardian first upheld that glorious conception of the goal toward which humanity is being so rapidly impelled by the power of divine Will.

For many of us, the idea that we should no longer take any part in the normal political activities of our environment came as a distinct shock. The need that we arise to a higher level of our existence than that of the partisan-is, above all else, a higher spiritual level.

The need that we arise to a higher level of our existence than that of the partisan—this inspiring new attitude the Guardian first upheld February 18, 1933.)

The Guardian’s letter of January 26, already quoted in part, has the following words in his own hand: “Dear Co-workers: I feel it incumbent upon me to clarify the above statement, written on my behalf, by stating that no vote cast, nor office undertaken, by a Bahá’í, should necessarily constitute acceptance, by the voter or office-holder, of the entire program of any political party. No Bahá’í can be regarded as either a Republican or Democrat as such. He is, above all else, the supporter of the principles enunciated by Bahá’u’lláh, with which, I am firmly convinced, the program of no political party is completely harmonious. Your true brother, Shoghi.”

On receipt of this letter, shortly after the February meeting, the Assembly requested the Guardian to advise how this subject should be treated in the next issue of BAHÁ’I NEWS. On March 16 the following cablegram was received: “Elaborate, emphasize in News Letter excellent explanation paragraph five, page two, February News Letter. (signed) Shoghi.”

That paragraph was as follows: “The instruction not to take part in political elections leaves us free to vote in any election where the various political parties have combined upon one candidate or one ticket. While Bahá’ís should not run for offices dominated by party politics, they are perfectly free to hold administrative posts based upon personal capacity, as for example the positions in the field of civil service examinations. Local Spiritual Assemblies should surely assume that each believer is entirely loyal to the Guardian’s request, and not take the step of requiring explicit obedience in advance. It is only in the event of deliberate disloyalty, when every effort of local consultation has failed, that the question of depriving anyone of his Bahá’í membership is involved.”

Now the members of the National Spiritual Assembly respond to the Guardian’s instruction that the explanation outlined in February’s BAHÁ’I NEWS be elaborated and emphasized.

It seems clear at this time that we have no absolute prohibition not to vote in public elections, but rather a warning against allowing any exercise of our Franchise as citizens to embroil the Cause or ourselves (as individuals) in partisan politics. We are all free to vote in such elections as are non-partisan—that is, where the parties have combined upon one set of candidates, and voting is not merely a choice between two or more party tickets. In enrolling ourselves upon the voting list, we should enroll without any party designation. Bahá’ís are free to hold office, when such office is of an administrative character.

Above all, we are reminded that Bahá’ís are invariably loyal and obedient to the Government, irrespective of change from one party control to another. Let us recall those words written by the Guardian in his general letter dated January 1, 1929 and published soon afterward in BAHÁ’I NEWS: “To all these (i.e., actions of the Soviet Government) the followers of the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh have with feelings of burning agony and heroic fortitude unanimously and unreservedly submitted, ever mindful of the guiding principles of Bahá’í conduct that in connection with their administrative activities, no matter how grievously interference with them might affect the course of the extension of the Movement, and the suspension of which does not constitute in itself a departure from the principle of loyalty to their Faith, the considered judgment and authoritative decrees issued by their responsible rulers must, if they be faithful to Bahá’u’lláh’s and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s express injunctions, be thoroughly respected and royally obeyed. In matters, however, that vitally affect the integrity and honor of the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh, and are tantamount to a recantation of their faith and repudiation of their innermost belief, they are convinced, and are unhesitatingly prepared to vindicate by their life-blood the sincerity of their conviction, that no power on earth, neither the arts of the most insidious adversary nor the bloody weapons of the most tyrannical oppressor, can ever succeed in extorting from them a word or deed that might tend to stifle the voice of their conscience or tarnish the purity of their faith.”

The instruction of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá referred to above was as follows: “Thou hast asked regarding the political affairs. In the United States it is necessary that the citizens shall take part in elections. This is a necessary matter and no excuse from it is possible. My object in telling the believers that they should not move against the opinion of the Government, but obedience to the laws and the administration of the Commonwealth is necessary. Now, as the government of America is a republican form of government, it is necessary that all the citizens take part in the election of officers and take part in the affairs of the Republic.”

Cablegram from the Guardian to the Assembly, dated January 1, 1929: “The Broad and all these (i.e., actions of the Soviet Government) the followers of the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh have with feelings of burning agony and heroic fortitude unanimously and unreservedly submitted, ever mindful of the guiding principles of Bahá’í conduct that in connection with their administrative activities, no matter how grievously interference with them might affect the course of the extension of the Movement, and the suspension of which does not constitute in itself a departure from the principle of loyalty to their Faith, the considered judgment and authoritative decrees issued by their responsible rulers must, if they be faithful to Bahá’u’lláh’s and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s express injunctions, be thoroughly respected and royally obeyed. In matters, however, that vitally affect the integrity and honor of the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh, and are tantamount to a recantation of their faith and repudiation of their innermost belief, they are convinced, and are unhesitatingly prepared to vindicate by their life-blood the sincerity of their conviction, that no power on earth, neither the arts of the most insidious adversary nor the bloody weapons of the most tyrannical oppressor, can ever succeed in extorting from them a word or deed that might tend to stifle the voice of their conscience or tarnish the purity of their faith.”

In a world through which runs so many conflicting torrents of popular passion and partisan struggle, the spirit of calm peace, of steadfast faith and unswerving assurance marks the true Bahá'í and sets off a Bahá'í community from every other type of human gathering. The wisdom of the Guardian's appeal, its conformity to the essential teachings of Bahá'u'lláh and also to the present transitional condition of society, will not fail to win the heart and convince the reason of every avowed Bahá'í.

We believers, having no concern with the fruitless political and economic efforts of those endeavoring to maintain the structure of the past, but concerned heart and soul with the privilege of contributing our life to the Cause, can turn to an unfailing source of confidence, of wisdom, of courage and of power. In the establishment of Local, National and International Bahá'í communities, we have the most glorious field of service ever granted to man. In this field the innate capacities of human being will gradually unfold, grow in discipline and mature in sacrifice. Emotion transmuted to the higher plane of devotion to the Bahá'í community; thought ennobled and expanded by the daily vision of the needs of a dynamic Faith; will and action severed from the vicissitudes of the world, however distressing, can never shake. Are not these words wherein He assures us of the onward march of the Cause—a march which no one can resist and which is sure to lead humanity to its glorious destiny—(abundantly sufficient)?

“Now in the world of being, the Hand of Divine Power hath firmly laid the foundations of the all-highest bounty and this wondrous gift. Whatever is latent in the innermost of this Holy Cycle shall gradually appear and be made manifest, for now is but the beginning of its growth and the dawning of the revelation of its signs. Ere the close of this century and of this age it shall be made clear and evident how wondrous was that springtide and how heavenly was that gift!”

“And as the outlook grows darker and despondency overtakes the hearts, it is incumbent upon us to arise with greater confidence than ever before, endeavoring to clear the mists of hate and prejudice that have dimmed the vision of mankind and, relying upon these assuring words of His, point out to a weary world the way of true Salvation.”

“I very eagerly await the news of the progress of the Movement in your cities and shall be grateful and delighted to hear that you have reinforced your numbers, extended your activities, established a center and founded a Spiritual Assembly that shall direct and coordinate your efforts for the promotion of the Cause. Awaiting your joyful news and beseeching the blessings of the Almighty on your efforts, I am your brother and co-worker, Shoghi.”

ANNUAL LOCAL ELECTIONS

On April 21 members of local Bahá'í communities will gather together for the purpose of electing their Spiritual Assembly.

Reports recently received makes it evident that this year a number of new Spiritual Assemblies will be established. This is a matter of extreme importance in the steady growth of the Cause.

Representatives of the Teaching Committee will make every effort to visit the groups which have become ready to form an Assembly, to lend advice and assistance and encourage the believers undertaking this great step.

IN MEMORIUM

The friends are requested to remember in their prayers the spirits of these beloved departed believers:

Mr. S. T. Ditmars, Spokan, Washington.

Mr. Arthur James, Bloomfield, New Jersey.

Mr. Augustus Dobleman, Baltimore, Maryland.

Mrs. Henrietta Wagner, Santa Barbara, California.

Dr. Emma McKay Appel, Chicago, Illinois.

“Concerning funeral services, Shoghi Effendi wishes me to state that there are no special ceremonies provided by Bahá'u'lláh and the few that exist are written in the book of Akdas. Whenever that book is translated into English and published, then you will undoubtedly obtain the necessary guidance by its contents.” (Letter from the Guardian, through his secretary, to Mr. Willard Hatch, dated Haifa, Palestine, November 20, 1932.)

CENTRAL STATES SUMMER SCHOOL

Plans are being made for the third session of the Central States Bahá'í Summer School at Louhelen Ranch, Davison, Michigan, nine miles from Flint.

The dates set are June 25 - July 3 inclusive, a month earlier than last year. Courses are being planned in Bahá'í administration, the Iqán, Náhibí Narrative, the Influence of Religion on Society. There may be other courses if there is demand. There will be special classes for young people under the counsellorship of Mrs. Dorothy Baker. New Pullman apartments have been added in the big barn so that many more can be accommodated than last year.

Look for further announcements in the May issue of the BAHA'I NEWS. Reservations may be made by writing to Mrs. L. W. Eggleston, 201 E. Kirby Street, Detroit, Michigan.
CONVENTION COMMITTEES

The Committees named by the National Spiritual Assembly to serve in connection with arrangements for the Convention are announced at this time. Next month will be published the Convention Agenda, setting forth the topics on which consultation is considered most important. Suggestions for the Agenda will be welcomed from all elected to be delegates at the forthcoming Convention.

Committee on a Decoration of Foundation Hall—Mrs. Hilpert, chairman, Mrs. Barton.

Committee on Music and Selection of Prayers for Opening Business Sessions—Mrs. Walrath, chairman, Mrs. Matthisen.

Feast Committee—Mrs. Amelia Collins, chairman, Mrs. Nourse, Dr. Leonora Morris, Mr. Andrew Matthisen.

Committee on Devotional Services in Temple Auditorium—Mr. Scheffler, chairman, Mr. Albert Windust, Mrs. Gift, Mrs. Andrew Nelson, Mrs. True, Mrs. Paine, Mrs. Barnard Jacobson.

Committee on Hospitality—Miss Edna True, chairman, Mrs. May Scheffler. Note: Inquiries about rooms and board, and reservations for hotel accommodations, should be directed to this Committee. In view of the unusual demand for rooms on account of the Century of Progress Exposition, the Committee urges all delegates and Bahá'í visitors to make their arrangements as soon as possible.

PUBLISHING ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Publishing Committee announces three important additions to the Bahá'í literature.

National and Local By-Laws. The text of the National Declaration of Trust, and also By-Laws suitable for a Local Spiritual Assembly, has been issued in pamphlet form, to sell at 10c each. Librarians are urged to order a supply, that all believers may acquaint themselves as to the details of our administrative principles.

Bahá'í Administration—New Edition. The volume containing the Guardian's letters, published in the early months of 1928, has been enlarged to include all his general letters up to the present time. Among the important communications received from Haifa since the date of the first edition are: the two World Order letters, The Goal of a New World Order, The Golden Age of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh and the Guardian's Tribute to the Greatest Holy Leaf. The National and Local By-Laws are also included. This edition is an indispensable part of every believer's Bahá'í library. Per copy, $2.00.

The Bahá'í World—Volume IV. The Guardian considers this biennial record of Bahá'í activities a work of international importance, second only to the construction of the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar. The new volume—ready in April—is rich in illustrations as well as textual content. As the National Spiritual Assembly guarantees the cost of publication, all purchases of this book represent contributions to the Temple Fund just as though the same amount were sent direct. Each month the Publishing Committee will remit to the National Assembly all receipts from sales of The Bahá'í World, in the same way as is done in the case of The Dawn-Breakers. In order to know the international aspects of the Cause, believers must make a careful study of this work. Shoghi Effendi is its editor in chief, and gave much time to arrangement of its content. $2.50 per copy.

INTER-RACIAL AMITY ACTIVITIES

The outstanding events since my last report in the way of racial amity, which in view of pressure of work must be given in very brief compass, follow:

December 9 and 10, 1932, an amity conference was held in New York City, with the local and National Committee cooperating with the Urban League of New York. An overwhelming number of the speakers and workers were Bahá'ís and there was a fine and enthusiastic response on the part of the most cultured circles of Harlem and other parts of the city. The conference was divided into several sessions. At the first, devoted to economics, our noble brother, Mr. Louis Wanden M. LaFarge and Mr. James W. Bechtold presided was held in the auditorium of the Harlem Branch of the New York Public Library. One of its special charms was African music. This was followed by a session devoted to art, at which the speakers were Mr. Saffa Kinney, who strongly advised the colored race to improve their wonderful native gifts in music uninflected by foreign masters, so as to make a great contribution, and Mr. Arthur A. Schomberg, director of the Schomberg collection of books about the Negro, who exhibited and explained his fascinating studies. This session was followed by an interracial social. For a number of years, in fact since the first amity convention in Washington, Dr. Alain Locke has during the years been a contributor to the work of the Cause, without formally identifying himself with it. Perhaps the most significant feature of this conference was his strong, eloquent and beautiful address, in which he took a decided and definite stand for the ranks of the Cause. This attitude we believe will increasingly with the years influence people of capacity to investigate the mines of spiritual wealth to be found in the Revelation of Bahá'u'lláh. It will also make what has long been a grandly useful life more glorious, serviceable and influential than ever before. It is to be hoped that the friends both locally and nationally, will largely make use of the great powers of Dr. Locke both in the teaching and administrative fields of the Cause. He has made the pilgrimage to Haifa. The Master in a Tablet praised him highly and it is known that the Guardian shares his love for our able brother.

The Committee of Arrangements for this conference, led by Mr. Samuel A. Allen and including Miss Laurretta Noisette, Mrs. James H. Hubert, Mrs. E. P. Roberts, Mrs. Ludmila Bechtold and Mrs. Lois Allen, merit much admiration for their wise and proficient services. An interracial dinner was another feature.

The Bahá'í Assembly of Portsmouth, N. H., cooperated well with the Citizens Committee in observance of the commemoration of emancipation day on January 2. A dinner was followed by a large meeting of both races. The newly elected mayor of Portsmouth spent the entire evening with this occasion, as did a municipal judge. A Bahá'í served as master of ceremonies and another Bahá'í as principal speaker. Mrs. Loulie Mathews, chairman of this committee, on her amity tour has reached Honolulu. Another interracial tour is about to start for the South.

The National Bahá'í Committee for Racial Amity, By Louis G. Gregory, Secretary.
NATIONAL TEACHING COMMITTEE

Activities of Western Division

During the month of January practically all of the Baha'i communities in California were visited by friends from other sections who brought them much inspiration as well as gratifying news of Baha'i activities in various parts of the United States. Mrs. Florence Morton of Worcester, Massachusetts, was one such visitor to the state. Her inspiring report of the teaching work of the Assemblies in the region which she represents on the National Teaching Committee gave great joy to the friends in the west as well as suggestions for new lines of endeavor. Mrs. Morton spoke at a Sunday morning meeting on the San Francisco Assembly and later in the week at a joint meeting of the Oakland and Berkeley friends in Oakland and in both places she impressed the friends with the fact that the earnest desire to teach opens the way and that united action upon any plan such as that of the National Teaching Committee this year brings opportunities and results, the like of which could not have been anticipated. From Central California Mrs. Morton went to Los Angeles and Pasadena where she spent a few short days with the friends before leaving for the east. While she was in San Francisco the executive of the Western Section had the pleasure and privilege of consulting with her on many items which were discussed at its committee meeting.

Mr. George Latimer of Portland and Mrs. Millie Collins of Pasadena were also in San Francisco a few days, primarily in connection with Geyserville Summer School plans but they were able to attend a Sunday morning meeting of the friends and as usual brought them fresh enthusiasm and joy.

Mr. Forsyth Ward and Mrs. Ward spent several days in Southern California early in the month, visiting Visalia, Long Beach, Pasadena, Glendale and Los Angeles. Meetings were arranged for the friends in each of these cities and Prof. Ward in his talks dealt mostly upon the unified plan of action and the extreme importance of completing the plans for the Temple as set forth by Shoghi Effendi and the National Spiritual Assembly.

Late in the month Mrs. Loulie Mathews and Mrs. Marion Little, who spent several weeks in Honolulu, returned to San Francisco where they spent a few days before going to Geyserville for a short visit. Both met with the San Francisco friends at their regular Sunday morning meeting and gave interesting news of the work being done by the friends in the Pacific.

The Bahais of San Francisco Bay area were the participants in three rather important events among the negroes during the month. By invitation, Mrs. Ella Cooper addressed one section of the annual convention of the Federated Colored Women's Clubs of California which met in San Francisco. Her subject, "Co-operation," was very timely because of the fact that a serious effort was being made to draw the clubs of the northern and southern parts of the state into closer relationship. Many inquiries regarding the Cause have been received as a result of Mrs. Cooper's address.

Mr. Cooper was also the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Colored Branch of the Oakland Y. W. C. A., being advertised on the programs as a Bahai. Her subject which dealt with the removal of differences was exceedingly well received and the Oakland friends are hopeful that it will do much toward drawing the two branches of the Y. W. C. A. in that city into closer cooperation.

Miss Charlotte Linfoot was the speaker at the 20th Annual Women's Day program among the Colored Baptist Churches in Oakland, taking as her main theme the Bahai teachings concerning the equality of men and women and referring to the new station made possible for women through the great sacrifices of Tahirih and Zaynab. A minister from one of the Baptist Churches for white people in East Oakland was present and asked many questions concerning the Cause following the service.

Reports have reached the Committee of two new study groups which have been organized during the past month—one in San Diego and the other in La Jolla—as a result of the efforts of Mr. Stephen Kittsmiller who is making his residence in San Diego for some time. Literature and assistance in his work have been provided by the Teaching Committee.

The consignment of books in Chinese and Russian sent the committee in December has been distributed among the various Assemblies in the West. As far as possible the requests for a definite number of the books were filled and to those Assemblies from which no orders were received a few samples were sent with suggestions for their use. Each Assembly has been asked to report on its local distribution of these books. When these reports have been received a general statement will be compiled for the N. S. A.

The Committee has decided to send to each Assembly a small supply of "The Goal of the New World Order," with suggestions as to its distribution in the community. So far as possible the Committee is cooperating with the N. S. A. in its endeavor to get this publication into the hands of all leaders in this country.

Plans have been made to follow up recent communications sent by the N. S. A. to groups, with offers of assistance from the Teaching Committee and encouragement to enlarge the number of Bahai's looking toward the organization of Assemblies. Continued efforts are being made to stimulate activity among the isolated friends as well.

Letters have been sent to all Assemblies in the west asking for reports from which the committee may compile its annual report for the Convention. Special requests were made for information as to applications which have been made of the teaching program as outlined to the Assemblies early in the summer.

A Committee meeting was held in San Francisco, January 14th, of which the N. S. A. has already had a copy of the minutes.

Committee on Teaching and Training of Children

The work of the Committee on the Teaching and Training of Children continues to be more or less in the nature of study and research and planning for future development. The second set in the series of four sets of lesson outlines has been approved by the Reviewing Committee and will be mimeographed and mailed to the Assemblies upon receipt of their orders. Only a few Assemblies have ordered these lessons to date. The Committee is not discouraged, however, since the Christmas holiday is not long past and time is required to consult and plan for the work. The third and fourth sections of the outline will be submitted to the Reviewing Committee at the same time and it is hoped that the full set of lessons will be in the hands of the teachers who want them by the first or middle of March at the latest.

Several teachers and secretaries have sent in letters expressing complete satisfaction with the material received to date. The Chicago classes are using the subject matter in the first set of lessons and building excellent programs out of it, including plays, poems, etc.
The Pasadena Assembly plans to introduce the material to a class of colored children; other Assemblies are also planning classes for the spring.

Requests are being received from a number of Assemblies for suggestions for adolescent groups. This is a matter to which the Committee plans to give special attention as quickly as possible. Some of the groups in existence at the present time are studying various Bahá'í books, a number of them studying portions of "The Dawn Breakers."

The Geyerville Summer School Committee has placed upon the western members of the Committee on the Teaching and Training of Children the responsibility for planning the children's department of the Summer School this year. A large number of village children attend the school each year and the tentative plan at present is to present to them certain portions of the outlines which are already available.

The Committee is greatly encouraged over the splendid letters of suggestions which are coming in, and yet, as the work develops the field becomes wider and wider and there comes an ever-growing sense of responsibility and opportunity in this new phase of Bahá'í activity.

CHARLOTTE M. LINFOOT,
Secretary.

POONA BAHÁ'ÍS' TEMPLE CONTRIBUTION

Dear Friends:

Recently our Guardian was graciously pleased to bestow on us a gift of five copies of the Persian Translation of Dr. Esslemont's famous book. Moved with gratitude too deep for words at this fresh token of his grace, the believers of Poona prayerfully resolved to make a special contribution for the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar. For most of the friends this was too truly an occasion of emptying themselves, fountain-like, of all that they had, relying on the unfauliting bounty of the source of all wealth and all good. One noble soul, who had three mouths dependent upon him for bread, who was under notice to quit within a fortnight from that date the small shop that yielded them the necessities of life,—whose uncomplaining wife, even then, was sorely ill and with child—gave, with a radiant smile, gave till nine lone annas was all that was left to him of his capital. To take the instance of another soul, a heroic Bahá'í who, despite the burden of a debt which he was courageously striving to repay, was yet regularly contributing his mite to the Assembly's fund. From his meagre earnings he had laid aside a pitance throughout the summer and autumn months for the purchase of a rug with which he hoped to ward off, in a measure, the severity of the cruel nights of winter, but, wishing not to be deprived of the privilege of contributing his share to our Mother Temple, he forthwith offered all his savings, joyfully deciding to forego the "luxury" of a rug and to endure the long wintry nights even as before, without a cover over him, with but cheerless plank under him.

Thus did the friends give, thus was a collection made. We then informed our Beloved and he came to us, this precious reply, this cheering, loving message:—

"He (Shoghi Effendi) was very glad and gratified to learn that the friends of Poona have contributed the sum of one thousand rupees towards the construction of the Temple in America. It is a most appropriate and timely contribution because the friends have undertaken to complete the exterior decoration of the dome before the end of spring, that is, before the opening of the World Fair that is to take place in Chicago about June of next year. And the sum needed for the purpose, due to the existing depression, is not flowing in. Any sum offered by the friends at this time is most welcomed and will be deeply appreciated by Shoghi Effendi and the friends in America.

"The Guardian is most pleased with the way the friends in Poona are striving to serve the Faith and consecrate their life for its promotion. In his hours of prayer at the blessed Shrines he will think of them and ask God to help them and sustain their noble endeavors. He trusts that, through their persistent efforts and Bahá'u'lláh's infinite blessings the Cause will be established in that land and thousands of pure souls will be brought under its banner." Ruhi Afnan. And in our Guardian's own blessed hand this postscript:—

"Dear co-workers: I am eagerly awaiting the news of the completion of the Urdu, the Hindi, the Gujarati, and the Burmese translations, and eventual publication of Dr. Esslemont's valued book, for I regard them as essential preliminaries to an intensive campaign of teaching among the unbelieving masses in that great and promising country. May your efforts, in collaboration with the believers of that land, hasten the fulfilment of this, my heart's cherished desire."—Shoghi.

In the general Epistle dated December 6, 1928, our Guardian defines what the nature of our contributions to the Temple fund should be:—"Not by the abundance of our donations, not even by the spontaneity of our efforts, but rather by the degree of self-abnegation which our contributions will entail, can we effectively promote the speedy realization of 'Abdu'l-Bahá's cherished desire. How great our responsibility, how immense our task, how priceless the advantages that we can reap!"

May our Almighty Father from on High bless our united efforts and enable us, one and all, to attain that station to which our Guardian calls us—the station of utter self-renunciation. Ya-Bahá'u'll-Abha!
The Poona Bahá'í Spiritual Assembly,
RUSTOM KHOSE ROVE,
Secretary.

Telegram to American Assemblies. March 30, 1933:—

"THE INTENSEST EFFORT AND A STILL HIGHER, A MORE COMPPELLING EVIDENCE OF THE VITALITY OF OUR FAITH ARE REQUIRED TO INSURE THE REALIZATION OF OUR FONDEST HOPES." THIS MESSAGE RECEIVED TODAY FROM BELOVED GUARDIAN. CONSUMMATION (OF TEMPLE CONSTRUCTION BY JUNE FIRST) REQUIRES ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IMMEDIATELY. URGE HOLDING WEEKLY MEETINGS CONSULTATION AND FERVENT SUPPLICATION. LOVING GREETINGS.

NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY.
On April 26 the National Spiritual Assembly sent out the first of a series of weekly letters, to continue until the date of the Convention, reporting on what new efforts are being made by Assemblies and individual believers to serve the Temple Fund. On April 30 the National Spiritual Assembly was able to appropriate the sum of $13,000 toward Temple construction. The total appropriated previously has been $33,000. There has thus been devoted to the dome contract up to May 1, 1933 the sum of $46,000. As reported in April Bahá’í News, this contract calls for a total appropriation of $135,000. In order to meet the Guardian’s hopes there still remains to be donated the sum of $89,000.

The weekly letters issued in May to Assemblies and groups will show what the National Treasurer is receiving as the friends make final effort to complete that sum by June 1.

Work done by Mr. Farley on the dome contract during April is described in the following excerpts from the Temple Trustees dated April 28.

“During the month of April the work has involved the continuation of the preparation of the models and molds, the building of a special shed and runway for the casting of the concrete sections, the follow-up of the three important contracts for material awarded during March, and other miscellaneous work.

“The models and molds of the ten sections of the field of the dome have been completed and are now being placed in position in the casting shed for the making of the concrete sections.

“The sculptor is working on the final and top section of the great rib. The models and molds for the three parts of this last section will probably be completed by the middle of next month. The models and molds of the lower dome sections of the great rib are completed and ready for casting of the concrete sections.

“Mr. Farley and his associates plan to begin the casting of the sections at the Virginia plant next week. We are making every effort to expedite the work so that the casting of the lowest 19-foot sections of the ribs of the dome may be begun at the Temple as soon as possible during the early part of May.”

GREEN ACRE PROGRAM

The significance of Green Acre has been greatly augmented this year by the unexpected discovery of the original Tablets revealed by the Master to Miss Sarah J. Farmer. The dates cover the period April, 1900 to July, 1908. A few of these Tablets have been published in past years, but the greater number are made available for the first time.

In the Master’s own words we can now trace the history of the founding and development of Green Acre as an institution destined to play an important part in the future growth of the Cause. After the lapse of more than twenty years, one can perceive and appreciate how the Master surrounded that great believer with His protection and guidance, inspiring her to an achievement that will endure throughout coming centuries.

“I hope that through the favor of the Blessed Perfection thou wilt become the lamp of the society of Green Acre, and wilt become the cup bearer of the wine of the love of God; that thou wilt invite a great number unto the Kingdom of the powerful Lord, and wilt teach numerous souls.”

“O maid-servant of God! By God, the True One, verily ‘Abdu’l-Bahá invokes God to strengthen thee through the mightiest power, so that thou mayest become a star of guidance in Green Akka, to diffuse the fragrance of God, to blow forth the spirit of God, to summon (people) to the Word of God, and speeches may pour forth from thy pure mouth as a torrent which rapidly pours down from the loftiest mountains."

"Verily, 'Abdu'l-Bahá was with you in Green Akka, in His Spirit, Soul and in all His spiritual graces, and He was your companion in your meetings, and was bearing unto you His spiritual tongue the glad tidings of the divine splendors which shall in a short time be poured upon you from the Kingdom of God.

"O maid-servant of God! Be rejoiced at this glad tidings, whereby the hearts of the people of the Kingdom of El-Abba are moved with joy. Verily, I beseech God to make Green Akka as the 'Paradise of El-Abba,' so that the melodies of the nightingales of sanctity may be heard from it, and that the chanting of the Verses of Unity may be raised therein, to cause the clouds of the great Gift to pour upon it the rains falling from heaven, to make those countries become verdant with the myrtles of truth and inner significance, and to plant therein blessed trees, with the hand of Providence, which may bring forth pure and excellent fruits wherefrom the fragrance of God may be diffused throughout all nations. These signs shall surely appear, and these lights shall shine forth."

"O maid-servant of God! Opposition shall surely pass away, the dark clouds in all regions will be dispelled, and the Lights of the Covenant shall shine forth. At that time your value shall appear among the nations of the world, and tribes and peoples will arise to praise you. Take warning of the former cycles and the bygone Manifestations."

"O thou beloved maid-servant of God, exert thyself with all heart and soul that Green Acre may become the arena for the action of the beloved of Bahá and its administration pass into the hands of the friends. If such become the case, good results will ensue, otherwise all endeavors will come to naught. Devise thou a plan by which that place become the Lamp of the Light of the Cause of God and whereby the old sects and beliefs, like unto spurious decayed and unproductive trees produce no influence there, that the time of those assembled there be not uselessly spent. Should the friends of God buy Green Acre and make that place the center for the diffusion of the fragrance of God and establish meetings for teaching the truth unquestionably good results will be manifested!"

These are a few of the Master's words. In a letter dated March 27, 1933, the Guardian wrote as follows to Mrs. Ivy Edwards, Secretary of the Eliot Spiritual Assembly: (through his secretary) "Your group occupies an important position in the Bahá'í world for you are situated in that locality where the Green Acre Summer School is held—the most important institution of its kind in the world. Through your persistent efforts all the people living in that vicinity should learn of the true spirit of the Faith and be drawn to it. They should not only be made to befriend the Cause, but arise for its active service."

"The world is in great turmoil and its problems seem to become daily more acute. We should therefore not sit idle; otherwise we would be failing in carrying out our sacred duty. Bahá'u'lláh has not given us His teachings to treasure them and hide them for our personal delight and pleasure. He gave them to us that we may pass them from mouth to mouth until all the world becomes familiar with them and enjoys their blessings and uplifting influence."

"You inquired regarding the meaning of the sentence, 'The Mysterious Power that creates new spiritual worlds.' This, Shoghi Effendi believes, refers to the transcendentinal Essence of God who is the Creator of this world and the worlds to come; for as Bahá'u'lláh says, God's worlds are infinite." And in the Guardian's hand: "May the Almighty bless you and enable you, together with your diligent, able and devoted collaborators in Eliot to hoist the standard of the Faith in that part of your native land, where its institutions are fast developing and where its light will be fully and resplendently revealed."

Living Arrangements This Season

The ideal upheld for Green Acre at this time is "the lowest possible cost for the largest possible number of believers."

Mrs. Ella Guthrie has volunteered her loving and efficient services in conducting the Inn and adjoining cottages. The following rates have been fixed: Room and board, $6.00 a week for guests who give two hours daily of service; room and board $8.00 and $10.00 a week without service; board alone, $7.00 a week; single meals at $7.50 for breakfast, 65c for dinner and 40c for supper. Mrs. Guthrie plans to surround the Inn with a homelike, informal and cordial atmosphere. Tea is to be served daily, to be called "Temple Teas," there being no charge made but a silver collection taken for the Temple Fund.

Fellowship House will not be opened, but it is hoped that it can be rented for the season and so add to the income of Green Acre. All Bahá'í classes, cultural lectures and other social activities will be held in the Inn auditorium.

The National Spiritual Assembly expresses the profound hope that believers will come to Green Acre in great numbers this summer from all cities in the East of Canada and the United States. Under existing social conditions, it is most desirable for believers to make special effort to attend the study classes, exchange views on Bahá'í subjects, and deepen their sense of fellowship in the Cause.

Study Classes

General plan: Four Courses of one week each, each Course to cover six days, the last day devoted to general discussion and review. The aim of the Study Courses at Green Acre is to train believers to serve actively as teachers in their local communities. The Study Course leaders are preparing their subjects directly from Bahá'í literature, and all attending the Courses will be provided with a list of references. The first Course aims to provide a suitable background for the better understanding of the appearance of the Cause in 1844.

Course I. July 31-August 5. Leader, Dr. Genevieve Coy. Subject: "The Dawn of the New Day."

Course II. August 7-12. Leader, Dr. Stanwood Cobb. Subject: "Bahá'u'lláh: The Sun of Truth."

Other Activities

During July, before the Study Courses begin, there will be various lectures and activities at Green Acre. Dr. Glenn Shook of Wheaton College will give four evening lectures on "Modern Aspects of Science and Religion." Dr. Genevieve Coy will re-act her discussion of "The Psychological Approach to Bahá'í Teaching" for the benefit of those who were not able to attend her classes last year. Miss Louise Wright, if she returns from her teaching work in Holland in time, will hold morning meditations and conduct a study of the Tablet of Iqan. Mr. Harland Ober will give several lectures on "The New World Order." There will be opportunity to study Persian and Esperanto. The Arts and Crafts Studio, where most attractive pottery was made last summer, will again be under the direction of Miss Agnes O'Neill. There will be evenings of music and poetry, picnics and social gatherings, so that although the regular Study Courses do not begin until July 31, those who are at Green Acre earlier in the season will find ample opportunity for recreation and study.

Further details will be announced as soon as plans for Teaching and Amity Conferences have been perfected.

REPORT OF GREEN ACRE FACULTY COMMITTEE

Last year the N. S. A. appointed a Faculty Committee to organize a Bahá'í summer school for serious study. While its primary object was class room work it did undertake other activities which are a necessary part of any summer school. This year it will confine its work to preparing believers for more efficient teaching.

Under present conditions Green Acre must be self-supporting, i. e., the N. S. A. cannot take any financial risks so that we may not be able to utilize all of our material equipment. However, provision will be made for all who wish to attend the school.

Last season we did not have very definite ideas as to the nature of this future Bahá'í university, the way seemed to open as we proceeded and in the end we all felt that we had had an unusually good season.

Our success was due largely to the singular fact that practically all who attended the classes, regardless of age or experience, made some contribution to the work. We soon discovered that we accomplished far more with a few active members than with a large number of passive ones.

We wish to stimulate profound study and our discussions must be based upon study rather than accumulated opinions.

It is not too much to say that in the long run the lecture system has very little, if any permanent value.

To be sure everyone will be welcome to any class and may derive some benefit from it, but we must not forget that the real success of the school depends upon individual study.

If a number of believers, with a real desire for study, can assemble at Green Acre this summer we can make it one of the best seasons we have had. Where Bahá'ís are gathered to study the Word there is no priest, no teacher; we are one.

A STATEMENT BY THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY ON MIRZA MEGHAMI'S GIFT TO THE TEMPLE FUND

The Bahá'í News Letter issued in January, 1927, included an announcement of a visit made to this country by two Persian Bahá'ís, Mirza Meghami and Mirza Benan, their arrival at New York having been preceded by a cablegram from the Guardian which introduced them as distinguished Persian believers.

On page 8 of the News Letter dated April, 1927, reference was made to a generous contribution which Mirza Meghami had made to the Temple Fund.

This reference was based upon a letter written by Mirza Meghami to the National Spiritual Assembly on February 7, 1927, in which he enclosed a receipt for Persian art objects which Mirza Meghami had left on sale with Dr. Ali Kuli Khan at an agreed net valuation of $9,000.00. The letter informed the Assembly that Mirza Meghami wished to make these objects or their proceeds a donation to the Fund of the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar.

The Treasurer of the National Assembly was instructed at the meeting held in April, 1927, to write Dr. Khan that the Assembly felt that these objects should be exhibited at the forthcoming Convention to be held in Montreal. At that same meeting a letter was presented from Dr. Khan informing the Assembly that he had given Mirza Meghami a number of shares of stock in the Persian Art Center of New York City in exchange for these objects and that he would turn the objects over to the National Assembly on return of those shares of stock.

At the meeting held in June, 1927, a letter was presented from Dr. Khan, dated May 15, of that year, stating that the Assembly held in the Persian Art Center, held by the latter, be returned to Dr. Khan, since the certificate was given as a guarantee for the value of the art objects and does not represent ownership in the corporation of the Persian Art Center. After discussion of this letter it was recorded as the sense of the meeting that the Assembly could not enter into any arrangements made between Dr. Khan and Mirza Meghami.

A letter from Dr. Khan dated November 30, 1927, was presented at the meeting of the National Spiritual Assembly held in January, 1928, again referring to this business arrangement with Mirza Meghami, and the Secretary was instructed to reply that the Assembly make no claim to the art objects donated to the Temple Fund by Mirza Meghami in view of these business arrangements, but is content to wait until Mirza Meghami and Dr. Ali Kuli Khan have come to a mutually satisfactory settlement.

The meeting of the Assembly held in August, 1932, gave consideration to a letter written to the Assembly by Mirza Meghami, dated May 20, 1932, at Teheran. This letter requested the Assembly to explain its years of inaction with reference to his donation of $9,000 in merchandise to the Temple Fund, and expressing surprise and disappointment at the Assembly’s failure to send him the usual receipt for his donation.

The minutes and records were thereupon searched for the history of the matter, and the original documents located. On October 17, 1932, the National Spiritual Assembly wrote Dr. Khan to inform him of this letter from Mirza Meghami and to state that the Assembly had voted to request him to make the payment of $9,000 to its Treasurer or to return the original merchandise as itemized in the receipt which Dr. Khan had signed and delivered to Mirza Meghami in 1927.

At the meeting held in November, 1932, a letter was presented from Dr. Khan dated October 28, 1932, stating that the letter written him by the Assembly on October 17th, ignored his (Dr. Khan’s) rights in the matter, and claiming that Mirza Meghami could not have donated this merchandise to the National Spiritual Assembly or transfer it to any other party whatsoever in view of the fact that Dr. Khan’s possession of it was confirmed by an agreement signed by Mirza Meghami in New York during 1927 under the terms of which Mirza Meghami received shares in the Persian Art Center as security for the $9,000 in merchandise.

On December 18, 1932, the Guardian wrote the National Spiritual Assembly as follows: "In the minutes of the Assembly and other communications he has received from America, the Guardian has read of the gift Mirza Ghaem Meghami made to the Temple Fund several years ago. He thinks that the Assembly should communicate with him and find the real truth of the matter and take a decision. It is the sacred duty of the Assembly to safeguard the interests of the Faith, and such gifts dedicated to the Cause fall under such interests. If such a gift was really made the Assembly should secure it and face any odds."—P. S. "Read and approved. Shoghi." The Assembly invited Dr. Khan to attend the meeting held in December, 1932, and explain his views of the matter. As the result of this conference the National Spiritual Assembly was called upon to decide whether, in the face of the other, separate agreements and contracts entered into between Dr. Khan and Mirza Meghami in 1927, (dealing with the shares of corporation stock and various unlisted items of Persian merchandise), the transfer by Mirza Meghami to the National Assembly for the Temple Fund of the receipt for merchandise executed by Dr. Khan constituted a valid gift and transfer of rights in this merchandise to the Temple Fund. or whether that merchandise to the Temple Fund.

The National Assembly has studied all the documents and correspondence bearing upon this matter with extreme care. At the meeting held in April, 1933, the Assembly made its decision, which was that:—

1. The National Spiritual Assembly is the trustee of a legal gift to the Temple Fund made by Mirza Meghami in 1927 by transfer to the Assembly of his rights in the merchandise listed in the receipt duly signed by Dr. Ali Kuli Khan.

2. Dr. Khan, as consignee of the merchandise intended to be conveyed by the gift, was obligated to turn the merchandise over to the National Spiritual Assembly, or its equivalent in cash.

3. The Assembly understands from Dr. Khan that none of this merchandise has been sold and that he still holds it intact.

4. The National Spiritual Assembly has no concern with any other and personal business arrangements that in 1927 existed or may now exist between Mirza Meghami and Dr. Ali Kuli Khan.

5. In making this decision, and in asserting its responsibility as trustee of the Temple Fund, the National Spiritual Assembly is dealing only and exclusively with the realm of objective fact and does not to any degree attempt to enter the realm of human motives.

Relation of the Case to the Baha'i Law and the Believers

Quite apart from the controlling facts of this case having to do with the property rights involved, and upon which the above decision is based;—other considerations, relating to the spiritual foundation of the Cause, have, we regret to say, intruded themselves. Had this case been left to the decision of the National Spiritual Assembly as to the facts and the evidence alone, as it should have been, much sorrow and wounding of hearts would have been avoided.

But, from the time this case became acute, in August, 1932, the spiritual law binding upon us all, i.e., to utterly refrain from gossip and backbiting, has been violated, by certain believers. We can only hope that this breach of one of Baha'u'llah's greatest commandments was unhinging rather than deliberate; in other words, that no motives of personal hostility, envy or suspicion darkened the atmosphere of this deplorable episode.

Unfortunately, the consequences of backbiting are the same, whether ignominiously or deliberately inflicted. In this particular case, untrue and wholly unfounded reports were whispered about, from ear to ear, which questioned the honesty of our brother, Dr. Ali Kuli Khan, in this transaction. As is always the case, these fleeting reports gained strength and significance as time went on, until a point was reached where reputation and Baha'i standing were, alike, affected. Because of this, deep sorrow penetrated the heart, not only of our brother, but the hearts of many believers and Assemblies to whom these reports were carried.

The poison thus instilled is the greatest enemy of unity and of the divine happiness of the friends. Our Master admonished us all, without exception, to praise the friends, and not to detract or condemn; and in this instance, His luminous utterance "to look to the good qualities" in all matters, is like unto a gleaming sword of truth.

Nevertheless, instances like these, continually arise among us. This carelessness, in the face of the new, Divine Command, withholds the Cause from advancing as it otherwise would. Not only are we commanded to refuse to listen to gossip mongers and slanderers, but, more especially, to rebuke them when they approach us with tales of others' faults.

All this was done while the matter was still before the National Spiritual Assembly and before its decision as to the ownership of the property involved, and deplorably these calumnies were spread without any proper or just basis, expressed or implied, for any suspicion or criticism concerning the motives of anyone involved in this matter. Those responsible for the rumors, were unjustifiably asserting their personal views without knowledge of the facts and without willingness to await the decision of the National Spiritual Assembly.

For these reasons, the National Spiritual Assembly feels it necessary, representing as it does the entire Baha'i body, and responsible in a definite sense, for the correction of any manifest injustice substantially affecting the spiritual status and purity of the Cause in this Country,—to publish this statement to the entire body of believers as an expression of regret and sorrow that such things could still happen.

The National Spiritual Assembly feels it incumbent to state that Baha'u'llah's command applies equally upon those who agitate for and those who agitate against any human personality. For such agitation leads to partisanship, and we must recall the Master's warning against those who form a party round about themselves. The Guardian also has stated that partisanship must be eradicated from the Cause.

We unitedly appeal to every individual believer, that from this time on, no similar incident will darken the pages of American Baha'i history; that those few who have made a breach in the Temple of His Command will make spiritual restitution; and that from this incident, we may forever trace a new and divine acceleration in the purity and integrity of our beloved Cause.

How true the searching Word of Baha'u'llah: "He must never seek to exalt himself above anyone, must wash away from the tablet of his heart every trace of pride and vain glory, must cling unto patience and resignation, observe silence, and refrain from idle talk. For the tongue is a smouldering fire, and excess of speech a deadly poison. Material fire consumeth the body, whereas the fire of the tongue devoureth both heart and soul.
The force of the former lasteth but for a time, whilst the effects of the latter endure a century."

"LIKE THE GOOD SHEPHERD"

A Letter from the Guardian

The Guardian is fully familiar with the difficult circumstances facing the Assembly, especially in providing for the financial needs of the Cause and completing the construction of the dome. Yet he is confident in God's blessings and assistance and the persistence and sacrifice of the friends in fulfilling their sacred pledges. In his moments of prayer at the Blessed Shrines the Guardian will think of you all and ask God to assist you and reinforce your efforts.

As regards the admittance of new members into the different groups as declared Bahá'ís, and the expulsion of any from the community, Shoghi Effendi believes that the Assemblies should not act hurriedly. They should be wise and most considerate, otherwise they can do much harm to the body of the Cause. They should see to it that the new-comer is truly conversant with the teachings, and when he expresses his belief in the revelations of Bahá'u'lláh, knows what he is saying and what are the duties he undertakes.

On the other hand when any person is expelled, the Assembly should not act hurriedly. There is a great spiritual responsibility attached to the act. The Assemblies do not have only rights against the individuals, they have great duties also. They should act like the good shepherd whom Christ mentions in His well-known parable. We also have the example of the Master before us. The individual Bahá'ís were organic parts of His spiritual being. What befell the least one of the friends brought deep affliction and sorrow to Him also. If by chance one of them erred he counselled him and increased His love and affection, if the Master saw that that friend is still stubbornly refusing to reform his ways, and that his living among the other Bahá'ís endangered the spiritual life of the rest, then He would expel him from the group. This should be the attitude of the Assemblies toward the individuals. The best criterion whereby you can measure the spiritual attainmet of an Assembly, is the extent its members feel themselves responsible for the welfare of the group. And perchance they feel forced to deprive a person from his vote it should be only to safeguard the rest and not merely to inflict punishment.

Dean and prized co-workers:
The handling of this delicate and vital problem regarding non-participation by Bahá'ís of East and West in political affairs, calls for the utmost circumspection, tact, patience and vigilance, on the part of those whose function and privilege it is to guard, promote and administer the activities of a worldwide, ever-advancing Cause. The misgivings and apprehensions of individual Bahá'ís should be allayed and eventually completely dispelled. Any misconception of the same and genuine patriotism that animates every Bahá'í heart, if it ever obscures or perplexes the minds of responsible government officials, should be instantly and courageously dissipated. Any deliberate misrepresentation by the enemies of the Cause of God of the aims, the tenets and methods of the administrators of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh should be vigorously faced and its fallacy pitilessly exposed. The Cause to which we belong stands on the threshold of an era of unprecedented expansion. Its problems are many, diverse and challenging. Our methods and ways of approach must likewise be characterized by unusual sagacity, consummate skill and wisdom. He will surely never fail us in meeting the needs of a critical hour.

To the National Spiritual Assembly.

Dear and precious co-workers: I greatly value the Tablets addressed to Sarah Farmer and I thank you for having sent them to me. Will you kindly send me a few more copies of the Study Guide to Nabil's Narrative and the reprint of the Declaration of Trust, copies of both of which I wish to distribute among those who are deeply interested. Your letters of March 31 and 30th, written on behalf of the Assembly, have just reached me. Concerning the removal of believers I feel that such a vitally important matter should be given the most serious consideration and preferably be referred to the National Assembly for further consideration and final decision. We should be slow to accept and reluctant to remove. I fully approve and whole-heartedly and unreservedly uphold the principle to which you refer that personalities should not be made centres around which the community may revolve but that they should be subordinated under all conditions and however great their merits to the properly constituted Assemblies. You and your co-workers can never overestimate or over-emphasize this cardinal principle of Bahá'í Administration.

Your true brother,
Shoghi.

INVESTIGATION OF RESOURCES FOR BAHÁ'Í MAGAZINE

During 1932, the World Unity Magazine gradually adopted and developed a policy for the presentation of the direct Bahá'í teachings to its readers. Toward the end of the year, the work of the World Unity Foundation was drawing to a close, the World Unity Publishing Committee, through its secretary, Mr. Horace Holley, wrote to Shoghi Effendi, offering the resources of its publication for the direct teaching work of the Cause in the following statement:

"Discussing these matters, we three also agreed to write you and express our hope that the time has come when it may be possible to bring World Unity into union with the Bahá'í Magazine, and thus give the National Assembly a broader and more influential medium for the public expression of the teachings."

"The thought is that World Order is not an isolated conception but represents the fulfillment of social policy in connection with a new spirit, a new mind and a new heart in mankind. In combining the magazines, all these aspects of the teachings can be balanced and harmonized, with World Order the public objective, and the different aspects of the teachings as the necessary mental and moral preparation. But this thought is only our effort to explore the possibilities of such union. Our real aim is to lay the intention before you and seek your advice. We fully appreciate the fact that if World Unity can bring a new asset to the Cause, the various elements of policy and plan must be established by proper consultation on the part of the Assembly or by your guidance. What we would deeply appreciate from you is whether our intention and aim are acceptable to you in your vision of the Cause and the world as a whole, and if so, what should be our next step. Perhaps it should be added that this possibility of union has been brought to Dr. Randall's attention and he is quite willing to withdraw from the work so that the magazine may enter a new phase."

Under date of Nov. 30, 1932, the Guardian, in a letter to the National Spiritual Assembly, referred to this matter as follows:

"The Guardian welcomes such a proposition with deep gratification for it means that the energy that has been until now dissipated along channels not strictly Bahá'í, will now be used solely for the progress of the Faith, and the promotion of its principles in their entirety. He was sure that sooner or later those directing the policy of the World Unity will take this step, for they believe in the Cause of the Bahá'í with the highest idea of the age and the highest goal towards which they can work. This is the logical result of those forces that operate in their hearts."

The Guardian also welcomes this proposition because it means the strengthening of the organ of the Cause in America and bringing to its support both the talent and means that are now at the disposal of the World Unity Magazine. Both will therefore profit from such a unity.

"There are, however, certain questions that Shoghi Effendi would urge the National Assembly to take into consideration before deciding on this important issue. First and foremost is the fact that the Magazine which is to result from such a union should become the organ of the Cause and under the full jurisdiction of the National Assembly. Non-Bahá'ís can cooperate but the responsibility for its policy should be in the N. S. A. In other words, the World Unity should become fully Bahá'í."
winter suit, with profuse apologies that she had nothing more to give to the Mashriqui'-yehi in Chicago.

Three ardent friends in the villages of Mazindaran gave their gold earrings to be contributed to the Temple Fund. These are only a few of many similar instances.

One very poor servant brings small coins from week to week, too small to have any equivalent in our American currency, and has thus amassed several tumanas as her contribution.

In far away, Adelaide, Australia, the zealous and loving friends have offered through me an ancient gold coin, all, all working to the same great end, that in the midmost heart of the world may appear the unanswerable argument of human love and brotherhood—a Temple of universal worship.

Courage, my beloved Friends! The far-off places of the globe are not mere locations on a map; for round this pulsating world are faithful hearts beating in unison with yours, loving devotees willing to sacrifice to the full, that your joy may be complete, loyal companions in the pathway of God who see no difference between your great aims and their own.

May the glorious blessings of Bahá'u'lláh encircle forever in the Temple of men's hearts the shining hosts of those who toiled and suffered to animate with His Beauty the "Dawning Place of His Praises."

"IN ITS FULL SPLENDOR"

Mrs. Clara Weir of Hollywood has received a letter from the Guardian which carries an inspiring message to all believers.

Last spring Mrs. Weir staged a "Pageant of Nations" at her school which attracted widespread attention. Most of the lines spoken in the Pageant were selected by Mrs. Weir from the Promulgation of Universal Peace." A copy was sent to Shoghi Effendi, whose reply, written through his secretary, follows:

"Shoghi Effendi was very much interested to learn of the success of the "Pageant of Nations" which you produced. He sincerely hopes that all those who attended it were inspired by the same spirit that animated you while arranging it.

"It is through such presentations that we can arouse the interest of the greatest number of people in the spirit of the Cause. That day will the Cause spread like wildfire when its spirit and teachings are presented on the stage or in art and literature as a whole. Art can better awaken such noble sentiments than cold rationalizing, especially among the mass of the people.

"We have to wait only a few years to see how the spirit breathed by Bahá'u'lláh will find expression in the work of the artists. What you and some other Bahá'ís are attempting, are only faint rays that precede the effulgent light of a glorious morn. We cannot yet estimate the part the Cause is destined to play in the life of society. We have to give it time. The material this spirit has to mould is too crude and unworthy, but it will at last give way and the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh will reveal itself in its full splendor."

The National Spiritual Assembly has voted to request Mrs. Weir to bring the Pageant to the particular attention of the three Bahá'í Summer Schools, and if the use of the Pageant by believers becomes an important matter, the Pageant can be approved by the Reviewing Committee and copies made available to Local Assemblies.

"TURKISH BELIEVERS RELEASED"

A cablegram received from the Guardian on April 2 brought the important news that the believers imprisoned at Adana, Turkey, on charges of belonging to a radical political movement, have been released.

The National Assembly, at the Guardian's request, has conveyed appreciation to the Turkish Ambassador at Washington.

ON BAHÁ'Í ECONOMIC ACTIVITIES

The Guardian's instruction concerning the activities of the Economics Committee, conveyed in a letter written through his secretary to Mr. Dale S. Cole, Secretary, on January 11, 1933, has great importance at this time:

"As regards the activities of the economic committee of the National Assembly; Shoghi Effendi fully sympathizes with the desire of some of the members to see the committee find ways and means to put into practice the economic teachings of the Cause, as explained in some of the recorded writings and sayings of Bahá'u'lláh and the Master. But he believes that the time is not yet ripe for such activities. First we have to study the economic teachings in the light of modern problems more thoroughly so that we may advocate what the founders of the Faith say and not what we conjecture from their writings. There is great difference between sounding a great general principle and finding its application to actual prevailing conditions.

"Secondly, the Cause is not financially in a position to launch itself in such undertakings at present. Such plans need great financial backing to be worked out in a permanent form. In time, Shoghi Effendi hopes all these things will come to pass. For the present we have to consolidate our basic institutions and spread the teachings and spirit of the Faith among the public.

"This is, in short, the attitude of the Guardian; but as you are a committee of the National Assembly he wishes you to follow its directions. In creating your committee the N. S. A. had undoubtedly some definite purpose in mind for which they asked you to labor and it is your task to work for that purpose.

"In his moments of prayer at the Blessed Shrine the Guardian will think of you as well as the members of the Committee and ask God to guide and assist you in the service of His Faith."

LETTER FROM VIENNA ASSEMBLY

"In reporting the activity of the Vienna Assembly we are glad to say that our work is constantly increasing. Our weekly meetings are without exception well attended and during the year we have had the privilege of receiving several prominent Bahá'ís. Among these were Mrs. Schopflocher and Mr. Loveday, who visited us on their return from Haifa and told us many things concerning the Cause. To keep up the great interest which resulted was the task of Mrs. Anne-Marie Schweizer, who arrived a few days afterwards, and presided over three meetings a week during a period of six weeks; these meetings were advertised in the newspapers and attracted a great many people. Mrs. Schweizer began each session by reading from the Bahá'í writings and devoted all the rest of the time to answering questions, and her success revealed her love and self-sacrifice.

During the summer Mrs. Louise Gregory at the Guardian's direction visited Austrian provincial towns, as well as Czechoslovakia and Hungary, in order to do preliminary work there, and was especially interested in the Esperantists. Mr. Kluss, an American citizen born in Czechoslovakia and well known in Vienna, also visited us recently and was enabled to work in an effective way. Dr. and Mrs. Howard Carpenter of San Francisco are now with us, giving English lectures and also a course in the Dawn-Breakers, which last is proving of tremendous importance in our understanding of the Faith.

"As for our methods of teaching, we advertise our meetings in the newspapers, and have a statement of the Bahá'í principles posted on our street door; numerous people have become acquainted with the Cause in these two ways. We keep a register of interested visitors. At the present time there are fifty Bahá'ís in Vienna. The city authorities here are fully aware that we have nothing to do with politics, and so do not interfere with our activities. There is very little official inter-religious work here, of the type that exists in America: that is, religious leaders do not usually come together to discuss their views. To supply this lack, we have recently inaugurated a series of lectures by distinguished representatives of other Faiths, and presided over by a Bahá'í chairman.

"In closing, we send loving greetings to our co-workers everywhere."

In the Guardian's service,

Vienna Spiritual Assembly.

Twenty-Fifth Annual Convention of the Bahá'ís of the United States and Canada

June 1, 2, 3 and 4, 1933 — Foundation Hall
Bahá'í House of Worship, Wilmette, Illinois

Agenda

Convention sessions will be held from 9:30 A. M. to 1 P. M., from 2 P. M. to 5 P. M. and from 7:30 P. M. to 9:30 P. M. daily, except that on Friday evening will be held a Bahá’í Feast, and on Sunday, June 4, the afternoon session will be omitted in order to hold a public meeting at 3:30 P. M. The morning sessions on Friday, Saturday and Sunday will begin with a devotional service in the Temple Auditorium. The Convention will close with the public meeting on Sunday afternoon.

Order of Business

Opening of Convention by Chairman of the National Spiritual Assembly.

Roll Call of Delegates.

Election of Presiding Officer and Secretary of Convention.

Reading of Communications from Shoghi Effendi.

Convention Message to Shoghi Effendi.

Discussion of Annual Reports of National Spiritual Assembly and National Committees. (These reports are published in the present issue of Baha'i News.)

Election of National Spiritual Assembly at 3 P. M., Friday, June 2.

Deliberation on current Bahá’í subjects of national and international importance:

1. Completion of the Temple.
3. Functions of a Local Spiritual Assembly.
4. Appeals from Local to National Assembly.
5. Qualifications of Voting Members in Local Communities.
7. Inter-Assembly Activities.
8. Teaching methods — new approaches to the public in the Guardian’s World Order letters.
9. Publicity, local and national.
10. Youth Activities.
11. Importance of Nineteen Day Feasts.
12. Economic and Social Aspects of the Teachings.

Note: These general topics are proposed in order to induce deeper consideration of fundamental Bahá’í matters. The time devoted to any topic will be decided by the Delegates in Convention. Any Delegate may move to introduce other subjects for discussion at any time. Non-Delegates may only participate in the Convention through representation by a Delegate, except at the morning session on Sunday, June 4, when discussion is open to all Bahá’ís without distinction. The Twenty-fifth Annual Convention has been planned so as to devote to active consultation the time hitherto given to the reading of Annual Reports. Delegates are requested to study the Annual Reports before attending the Convention.

ANNUAL REPORT

NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE Baha’ís OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA 1932-1933

To the Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada, through the Delegates of the Twenty-fifth Annual Convention.

Beloved Friends:

In a rapidly evolving Cause, the ultimate aim of which is to fulfill the principle of the oneness of mankind in the realm of spirit, and to establish that principle by means of a World Order in the realm of affairs, the relations between any one Bahá’í body, such as the National Spiritual Assembly, and other Bahá’í bodies and the believers, cannot remain rigid and static, but are in a state of constant development representing degrees of progress made by all Bahá’í efforts to attain the common goal.

An Annual Convention represents, among its many important functions, a proper and suitable occasion for the believers to mark carefully what steps of progress appear to have been made during the year now terminated, and to ponder deeply what specific lines of progress should be attempted in the year to come.

Every American believer will agree that this past Bahá’í year has been characterized by three supremely important events: First, the receipt of the Guardian’s general letter known as “The Golden Age of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh”; second, the Ascension of the Greatest Holy Leaf; and third, the sacred obligation laid upon us to complete the external decoration of the Temple dome.

It will be recalled that copies of “The Golden Age of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh” were distributed first among the Delegates who attended the Twenty-fourth Annual Convention, and its text read at the opening session of that Convention. Then it was that we American believers became aware of the fact that predominant responsibilities were henceforth to rest upon the shoulders of American Baha'is, to the same degree that in the early days of the Cause they were laid upon our Persian brothers. That same letter likewise set forth clearly the non-political character of the Baha'i Faith, and closed with the Guardian's prayer that the Temple dome might be completed by the date of the opening of the Chicago Fair.

In these days, Reality in terms of human development and of Baha'i action enters the world through Shoghi Effendi and is by him communicated to the followers of Bahá'u'lláh in East and West as their supreme privilege and highest obligation. We who share possession of his words may and indeed must precede all human beings in our understanding of world events and our capacity to stand firm in the operation of the Divine Will. Since it has been made known to us that this continent is to lead in the establishment of righteousness, and that the supreme hour has come for the completion of the House of Worship, the Guardian's fervent wishes concerning the Temple dome can only be interpreted by us as a plea that by unremitting struggle and sacrifice the American believers make their full contribution to the Cause of Universal Peace. Far more than any architectural achievement; far more than any new Shrine dedicated to God, the building of this Temple is a conscious assertion of the power descended from on high to unity mankind and bring humanity under the rule of divine Justice. There is thus for each of us a unique measure of possibility in even the trivial actions of our daily lives, since we have power to determine whether these actions are aimed to assist the work of the Temple or are merely confined within the little circle of our personal affairs.

Whatever we find accomplished when as Delegates we approach the Temple on June first, that accomplishment will be far less than could have been achieved. The Guardian cannot wish the impossible for us. Rather do his wishes reveal what is possible if we but rise above our limited selves and move in the radiant atmosphere of the Holy Spirit.

The present National Spiritual Assembly in taking up its duties had before it the unanimous pledge made by the Delegates at the last Convention that they would strive to meet the Guardian's wishes concerning the Temple dome.

As soon as possible the Temple Trustees accordingly entered into an agreement with John J. Earley under which the external ornamentation of the dome as rapidly as permitted by funds placed at his disposal on a total estimated cost of $150,000. The amounts available for construction from time to time during the year have been duly reported in Baha'i News. Not until the local communities received the telegram sent by the National Spiritual Assembly on March 30, 1933, was the heart of the Cause in America truly inspired with determination to achieve the difficult but necessary task.

Very significant sacrifices have been made, and tremendous efforts put forth by believers in every local community for the sake of the Temple. In this connection it might be remarked that we are all called upon to realize that no matter how important are the results accomplished by spurs of enthusiasm, the nature of this task, and its magnitude, demand the working out of plans carefully made far in advance, and require, in addition to the power of enthusiasm, the sustained vigor of effort maintained day by day over long periods of time.

It was in June, 1931 that the National Spiritual Assembly issued the "New Plan of Unified Action" which contemplated the accumulation of sufficient funds to make possible a renewal of Temple construction. Difficult as the economic situation was at that time, it was from 20% to 40% more favorable than conditions at present. Vital as enthusiasm is in a spiritual Cause, it seems evident that a steadily maintained effort begun in June, 1931, could have produced a larger Temple Fund by now than the method we have actually pursued, of remaining quiescent for one year and then attempting to press forward during the last few months of the allotted time.

As a matter of record it is significant to note that in December, 1931, the Guardian sent this cablegram: "Kindly cable approximate time and expense required to complete external ornamentation first Temple unit, stop. Cable date opening Chicago Fair." Thus the Guardian, after it became apparent that the "New Plan of Unified Action" (which he had strongly endorsed), had not penetrated our hearts, himself assumed control of the matter and from that time to the present has sought to quicken our spirits and concentrate our efforts upon the one goal. This brief history is recounted here in order to emphasize the vital fact that devotion to the highest interests of the Cause, to be completely fruitful, must be translated into steady daily thought and action, and not into occasional "drives" under emotional stimulus which will inevitably recede.

The Holy Leaf, made known to us by cablegram from the Guardian in July, 1932. Then began that period of mourning fixed by Shoghi Effendi for the worldwide Baha'i community that the believers might undergo inner purification; and then came to us that Tribune which Shoghi Effendi wrote in his own hand—words of the most poignant grief, exquisite love and ardent aspiration, before which the hearts of all Baha'is were bowed in silence.

The Guardian's Tribute has since, together with his other general letters written to America since 1927, been incorporated in a new edition of Baha'i Administration, prepared by the National Spiritual Assembly and published by the Publishing Committee this Spring. This text has basic importance in that it reveals to us both the nature of the Cause at this stage of its development and also lays bare... the ills afflicting the society in which we live. Our collective association and action for the Cause receives its guidance and inspiration from this source.

From the letters and cablegrams which the National Spiritual Assembly has received from the Guardian since the last Convention — letters written through his secretary — excerpts have been published in Bahá’í News embodying all general instructions and information. The Assembly has also published excerpts from letters written by the Guardian, through his secretary, to individual believers and Local Assemblies. Thus, Bahá’í News for July, 1932, quoted two cablegrams; the August issue quoted the message concerning the Greatest Holy Leaf; in September a number of references to the Temple were published; the December issue contained an important statement addressed to the Chairman of the National Spiritual Assembly; in January, 1933, a statement written to the National Treasurer was quoted; the February number contained Shoghi Effendi’s explanation of the status he intends us to give to his letters to individual believers and also two cablegrams; while in April was quoted the cablegram received February 18, 1933 conveying such joy to American Bahá’ís.

Late in April the Guardian’s translation of Tablets revealed by Bahá’u’lláh and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá to the Greatest Holy Leaf, at his request, was published as a pamphlet and copies given to believers throughout the World.

The Bahá’í World, Volume IV, will according to present information be published about May 12th. The friends understand, from statements made by Shoghi Effendi during recent years, that this work has special significance as an international Bahá’í activity. Volume IV would normally have been published shortly after April, 1932, but the National Spiritual Assembly felt unable to authorize this rather considerable expenditure until February, 1933.

Communications from the Assembly have as far as possible been published in Bahá’í News in order to place them in the hands of all the friends. Reference might be made to several statements on subjects of permanent importance: The statement on “Qualifications of Membership in a Bahá’í Community,” published in August, 1932; on “A Plea for Increased Effort in Bahá’í Teaching,” published in November; on “The Non-Political Character of the Bahá’í Faith,” in successive statements published in December, 1932, and in February and April, 1933; and on “The Attitude of the National Spiritual Assembly on Appeals from Local Spiritual Assemblies,” published in February, 1933. It may be in order to suggest that each Local Spiritual Assembly might maintain a special file in which to preserve all such general statements the effect of which is not limited to one brief period of time. For while personal attention is subject to change, and personal memory has definite limitations, an institution of the character and importance of a Local Spiritual Assembly can and in fact must transcend the limitations of human personality so as to carry forward the results of general Bahá’í experience from year to year.

In the field of international Bahá’í action the year has been extremely significant. Among the matters of international importance to be recalled are: The appointment of Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler as representative of the American National Assembly to submit to the Shah of Persia a petition that the ban on entry and circulation of Bahá’í literature be raised; the generous and beautiful gift to the Temple Fund made by the Persian believers in the form of a number of costly rugs; the request made by the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá’ís of Egypt that pending its recognition by the Egyptian Government as an independent religious body a branch of the American National Assembly be duly constituted in Egypt, after the manner of the American branch constituted by the Guardian in Palestine; the imprisonment and subsequent release of believers in Turkey, after urgent representations had been made to the Turkish Government by the American Assembly at the Guardian’s request; the continuance of notable teaching work by Miss Martha Root, Mrs. Louise Gregory, Miss Marion Jack, and Miss Louise Wright in Europe, and by Dr. Moqy, Mrs. and Miss Sharp and Mrs. Ransom-Kehler in Persia; the cooperation extended in the publication of Bahá’í literature in Chinese and Russian; and above all, the Guardian’s plan of establishing Palestine branches of other National Spiritual Assemblies and of creating American branches in Persia and Iraq, a comprehensive and far-sighted plan which will no doubt have an important bearing upon the international growth and stability of the Cause in future years.

The results of the mission undertaken by Mr. Mountfort Mills for the Guardian in connection with the effort to secure the Holy Shrines at Bagdad are not known at the moment this report is being prepared.

The National Spiritual Assembly has this year sought to define more carefully the scope and operation of individual teachers, the relation of Committees to the Assembly, the conditions under which believers may appeal from decisions of Local Spiritual Assemblies, the acceptance of new members by Local Assemblies, and the recognition of local groups and isolated believers.

A distinctly new trend set in motion has been the assumption of fuller responsibility by Local Spiritual Assemblies for the promotion of all Bahá’í activities in their respective areas of jurisdiction. The day when local communities may passively await representatives of National Committees to initiate teaching, racial amity and other activities has passed. The result will be to stimulate each Local Assembly in development toward its final consummation as a Local House of Justice.

Two amendments have been duly voted in the By-Laws of the National Spiritual Assembly, and incorporated in the revised text recently published.

A full report cannot yet be made on the number of Local Spiritual Assembles newly constituted or re-established on April 21, 1933, but from information already received it is gratifying and encouraging to note that at least four new communities had the intention of forming an Assembly on April 21.

A very large portion of the activities of the Cause are reported in the Annual Reports of the various National Committees, so that further detail in this report would only be duplication. Committee reports are in fact to be viewed as supplementary to this statement.

A great measure of gratitude is due the members of the many Committees whose active efforts, maintained under a very minimum of expenditure, have enabled the National Spiritual Assembly to administer an ever-increasing range of Bahá’í activities in America. The Assembly, in fact, took the unprecedented step some months ago of cancelling all the customary Committee budgets for the sake of the Temple Fund. The National Fund, however, bears a permanent responsibility in addition to Temple construction and maintenance, as will be readily appreciated by careful analysis of the different interests represented by the list of National Committees.

To create a complete record of the year it would be necessary to add to this report not only the Committee reports but also statements from each Local Spiritual Assembly covering its activities during the same period. Since it is not yet feasible to publish so much material, the Assembly has requested the Local bodies to keep the believers informed through circular letters. We hope that the practice of issuing monthly circular letters will be more generally adopted next year.

If we may venture an opinion on the most important development to be met in the immediate future, it would seem that the Bahá’í world, and particularly the Bahá’ís of North America, are being prepared to bear an increasingly heavy responsibility in relation to the general public. Swiftly is the Cause being transformed from a small, weak and inconspicuous movement into a movement which will be carefully studied and emphatically challenged from pulpit and press. Only with true inward assurance, calm courage, sound knowledge of the Teachings and administrative principles and with confidence in our administrative institutions can we successfully pass through such an era and transform its problems and difficulties into occasion for the advancement of the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh.

Faithfully yours,
National Spiritual Assembly

SUPPLEMENTARY STATEMENT
Since this report was prepared, the National Spiritual Assembly has received two communications from the Guardian to which the friends will give most careful attention.

The first of these was the letter dated Haifa, April 11, 1933, and published in Bahá’í News for May. In this letter the Guardian explains his views on the matter of removing names from the voting lists of local communities. It was written in reply to a letter from the National Assembly which outlined a general problem arising recently in a few localities and requested the Guardian’s advice. Shoghi Effendi’s reply gives each Local Spiritual Assembly the true standard to observe both in admitting new voting believers and in acting to take the voting right away from any believer for due cause. Hitherto the National Spiritual Assembly has held the attitude that it was within the jurisdiction of a Local Assembly to remove a name from the voting list, after which any believer so affected might appeal to the National Assembly for reconsideration of the case. In this letter the Guardian indicates that the matter should be given the most serious consideration and preferably be referred to the National Assembly for further consideration and final decision. This statement makes it advisable for a Local Assembly, before taking final action against any believer, to place the circumstances before the National Assembly and seek its view.

It is becoming increasingly clear that a great measure of responsibility lies upon each Local Spiritual Assembly, and in fact upon every believer, to become deeply conscious of the Guardian’s general instructions concerning the form as well as the spirit of the Cause. As the Master wrote in a Tablet, “As conditions change, new instructions will be sent.” The Guardian has for many years been preparing us all for service in a Cause destined to pass through many tremendous experiences before its mission can be fulfilled.

This observation is confirmed by the most recent communication from Shoghi Effendi—a general letter addressed to all American believers and dated April 21, 1933. In this letter the Guardian unveils the rôle of the American believers in the future of the Cause. Copies are being published as rapidly as possible, in pamphlet form like that in which the “World Order” letters have been issued, so that Delegates and other believers may have this inspiring message before the opening of the Convention.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE TEMPLE TRUSTEES 1932-1933
The believers throughout America will recall the urgent supplication contained in the Guardian’s letter, presented at the 24th Annual Convention, for the completion of the Temple dome ornamentation by the opening of the Chicago Exposition — Century of Progress. With this supplication still ringing in their ears, your Trustees at their first meeting gave immediate consideration to the formulation of a definite plan whereby work might be started as soon as practicable on this monumental task.

Your Chairman was requested to investigate the whole situation and to present a plan whereby the contract might be entered into and the work commenced although funds for the construction of the dome ornamentation, amounting to about $150,000, were not then available and might not be made available for a period of several months.

A thorough study of the whole situation was made and conferences held in Washington with Mr. John J. Earley, who had been studying this whole project over a period of 12 years and whose special process of architectural concrete had been recommended favorably to the Temple Trustees by The Research Service in a special report in 1930. This process was also preferred by Mr. Louis Bourgeois.

As a result of this investigation, the Temple Trustees took action at their meeting early in June and entered into a contract with Mr. John J. Earley as of June 6, 1932 for the construction of the ornamentation of the Temple dome and on the basis that work should be started within ten days and should proceed on the basis of authorizations which would be made by the Trustees as funds became available. The first authorization was made as of June 6, 1932, in the amount of $10,000 and Mr. Earley and his associates began work within a week of this time. The work has proceeded with all possible expedition as additional funds have become available and authorized to the contractor as follows:

Authorization

- No. 2 Aug. 25, 1932... $3,000
- " 3 Oct. 1, 1932..... 2,000
- " 4 Dec. 2, 1932..... 500
- " 5 Dec. 29, 1932..... 3,000
- " 6 Jan. 30, 1933.... 5,000
- " 7 Feb. 15, 1933..... 3,500
- " 8 March 27, 1933. 6,000
- " 9 April 29, 1933. 13,000

making a total of $46,000 appropriated as of April 30, 1933. Of this amount the total construction expenses, contractor’s service fee and engineering fees as of the same date amount to $38,258.47. It should be noted that the construction work has proceeded as fast as funds have been made available, and the Trustees at each of its monthly meetings have appropriated every cent they could spare from required maintenance and operation expenses of the Cause to the Temple construction fund. The various Committees have cooperated in cutting down their budgets to a minimum. For example, the National Teaching Committee has spent only $600.00 for its activities during the past year and other Committees have functioned without any expenditures.

In each issue of Baha’i News, the National Spiritual Assembly has made an urgent appeal for the greatest sacrifices and the fullest cooperation on the part of the believers throughout America in order that funds in increasing amounts might become available so that the work might be expedited with a view of carrying out our Guardian’s wishes. The Guardian’s appeals have been published in Baha’i News and have been presented to the spiritual communities from time to time at our Unity Feasts. As the result of an inspiring appeal received from our Guardian under date of March 7, 1933, the National Assembly sent out a telegram transmitting this appeal to all of the assemblies in America and urging their immediate cooperation toward the raising of the balance of $100,000 so that The Research Service and Mr. Earley might plan construction operations ahead with a view of carrying on the work toward its completion as early in the year as practicable. This appeal was followed up by visits to groups of assemblies by Mr. Philip Sprague and by weekly Temple meetings held universally throughout the United States and Canada. The results of this supreme appeal have been encouraging but we are still far short of our objective.

It has been necessary for The Research Service, your managing and supervising engineers, to arrange weeks ahead for the various phases of this unique and remarkable construction project. During the fall and winter of 1932 several months were spent in a search for suitable deposits of quartz to serve as the radiant white aggregate for the concrete ornamentation and for suitable structural materials to be used in the framework to support the dome ornamentation. No effort has been spared to secure the best possible materials available in the fields of science and industry. Your Temple Trustees have set up the highest standards of materials and workmanship with a view of producing a structure that will be not only beautiful in accordance with the design, but permanent and enduring through the ages. The project has been a pioneer one in every sense of the word and has involved the use of new methods, processes and materials.

It has been necessary for The Research Service to assume responsibility for ordering ahead various materials, including the quartz, the fittings for the concrete sections, and the structural framework. Although funds were not available and authorization made to the contractor, your engineering representatives have assumed this responsibility in order that the work might not be delayed and these materials available when required. These actions have been taken with the knowledge of and subsequently confirmed by the approval of the Temple Trustees.

As this report is being written, May 1, 1933, the casting of the sections is being started at the Virginia plant. Steps are being taken to initiate within the week the beginning of the casting of the clerestory sections of the nine ribs of the dome. The Trustees are making every effort to have one or more of these sections of the great ribs and some sections of the field of the dome available for your inspection during the 25th Annual Convention.

During the year, in the maintenance and operation of the Temple structure, a number of minor improvements and repairs have been made especially in connection with the mechanical equipment. Due to the incomplete status of the building, it has been necessary to check up on the various parts of the building in order to make the dome window spaces and floors waterproof and storm tight. Much of this maintenance work has been done without any expense to the Temple operation fund as the sub-contracts were accompanied with five-year guarantees, which provide for the repair of any leaks or defects over this period of years. We are happy to mention the tireless and devoted efforts of the caretaker, Mr. Edward D. Struven. The report of the operation cost during the past year indicates a considerable saving over our original estimate.

Let us unitedly supplicate that individually and collectively we may rise to the supreme task of true obedience and sacrifice in making available the necessary resources for the earliest possible completion of the dome ornamentation. As our beloved Guardian points out, in his many appeals to the believers in America, this is our day of spiritual opportunity and responsibility. Let us unite and arise, ere it is too late, to do His Will.

Respectfully submitted,

TEMPLE TRUSTEES,

ALLEN McDaniel, Chairman.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE GREEN ACRE TRUSTEES
1932-1933

The Green Acre season of 1932 was unique in the initial step toward the development of a teaching and training center for the believers of the Cause under the direct supervision of a faculty appointed by the National Spiritual Assembly. Emphasis was placed on the conduct of classes that required outside preparation, and cooperation in real study.

Classes were held in the New World Fellowship House and were attended by enthusiastic and appreciative groups of believers. Dr. Glenn L. Shook, Dr. Genevieve L. Coy, Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf and others gave generously of their time and efforts in the conduct and supervision of the class work.

Mrs. Flora Valentine operated the Inn, cottages and Tea House during the season under unfavorable conditions. During the early part of the season the number of believers living at the Inn were small and even with the strictest economy and greatest care the operation of the Inn involved a deficit of about $500 at the close of the season. This deficit sustained by Mrs. Valentine was shared by the Green Acre Trustees.

At the meeting of the Trustees at Green Acre in August, 1932, arrangements were made with the caretaker, Mr. Burt Hagadorn, for his employment in the future on the basis of $500 per month.

The Green Acre Trustees, in cooperation with the caretaker, Mr. Edward D. Struven, had made a number of repairs and improvements, including a new roof for the Tea House, repair of the roof of the Fellowship House, grading of the road to the Inn, etc.

During the spring of 1933, the Green Acre Committees have given considerable study to the formulation of a plan whereby the Green Acre season of this year might be carried on, without any expense to the National Assembly outside of the overhead expenses, including taxes, insurance and caretaker's salary. At a meeting of the Green Acre Trustees on March 26, the plan submitted by the Properties Committee was approved. This plan contemplates the concentration of all living and teaching activities during the season of 1933 at the Inn and cottages. The Fellowship House will be closed and the Tea House will be continued as a home and teaching center for Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf and headquarters for the National Spiritual Assembly. Mrs. Guthrie will have charge of the maintenance and operation of the Inn and cottages and be assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Cress. Mrs. Guthrie has offered to cooperate with the Green Acre Committees in the operation of the Inn and cottages as inexpensively as possible and with a view of providing living facilities at a minimum of cost to the believers.

As referred to in the report of the Legal Committee, the settlement of the Sarah J. Farmer Estate has been finally effected.

The survey and platting of the five separate parcels of the Green Acre properties has been completed and the official plats of these properties are now recorded with the Register of Deeds at Alfred, Maine.

Respectfully submitted,

GREEN ACRE TRUSTEES,
ALLEN McDaniel, Chairman

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Teaching Committee

Teaching the Cause of God and conveying the message of the dawn of universal peace is in a most unique position due to a remarkable combination of circumstances.

The crumbling of social institutions, the intensification of the depression with its tragic divisional activities, together with the deepening realization of the inadequacy of established religions to respond to the needs of humanity in travail, have caused an ever increasing number of people to search for a new approach to God and a new way of living.

The steady progress of the work of the ornamentation of the dome of the Bahá’í Temple in Chicago, at a time when practically all great enterprises of this nature are being abandoned, has brought the small body of American Bahá’ís more noticeably to the attention of the public than ever before. This attention is resulting in close scrutiny of our attitude toward world affairs and our application of these ideals in our community life. Thus the very foundation of our teaching work is the perfect functioning of the fully integrated Bahá’í community. In “The Golden Age of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh” Shoghi Effendi states that the direct results of the appearance of Bahá’u’lláh are the communities bearing His name and reflecting the splendors of His Coming World Order.

Since the crowning glory of Bahá’í life is teaching the Cause, the “reconstructed teaching program” was formulated to give that resplendency to individual service as well as group action. Each and every individual, with the approval and support of the Local Spiritual Assembly, was urged to undertake some definite teaching service. Each Assembly was encouraged to introduce the Cause into a new community. In order to bring about a new enthusiasm in these undertakings, as well as to elevate our teaching work generally, inter-assembly conferences were arranged.

To meet the increasing need of qualified teachers, classes were fostered for the study of such important subjects as the history of the Cause, Bahá’í Administration, the fundamental principles of religion, and world unity. Likewise the need for a definite step for the training and teaching of children as well as for stimulating the service of Bahá’í youth was outlined. These two latter functions became so important that the National Spiritual Assembly found it advisable to appoint separate committees to carry that work to fruition.

In the working out of this program most remarkable results have been achieved. Individuals who believed themselves incapable of teaching in the past have risen in response to the call and the results of their work have been most reassuring. The Spiritual Assemblies, in carrying forward their part of this program, report that this unity of effort has produced a healthier and happier attitude on the part of all the friends and is bringing us nearer to that ideal of having all as energetic and qualified workers instead of only a few good workers. The holding of inter-assembly conferences has widened the feeling of mutual confidence and fellowship and has had the further effect of elevating the entire field of Bahá'í teaching.

All of these activities have been intensified as a result of the study of Nabil's Narrative, the translation of which was undertaken by Shoghi Effendi for the express purpose of arousing the friends to greater self-sacrifice and a more determined way of teaching.

While it is impossible to reflect spiritual service by statistical data, yet the spirit the Bahá'ís have shown in meeting their new responsibilities may to a degree be measured by a few figures of the teaching accomplishments during the past year. One hundred and fifty new believers have been brought into the Cause. As a result of their own teaching efforts with the cooperation of the Teaching Committee ten groups increased their numbers sufficiently to have become Assemblies on April 21st of this year. Through the efforts of the Spiritual Assemblies thirty-four new groups have been established.

The Teaching Committee arranged for the printing of five thousand copies of "The Goal of a New World Order," two thousand of which have been distributed by it to important people. A generous gift of two hundred fifty copies of "Baha'u'llah and the New Era" in Chinese and Russian have also been distributed.

Each Assembly reports holding weekly at least one study group and a number of fireside meetings, which indicate the efforts of the individual Bahá'ís.

To assist in furnishing study material, Mrs. Bahiyih Lindstrom and Mrs. Doris McKay, at the request of the Teaching Committee, prepared a study guide for "The Dawn Breakers." There is in course of preparation at the present time a study guide for the "Itqán," a compendium of the compilation on economics, and the translation of the French footnotes in "The Dawn Breakers."

Cooperation with isolated believers and groups is is of the very important duty recently assigned to the Teaching Committee by the National Assembly. This is being accomplished by means of personal visits by members, providing teachers, assisting through correspondence, the furnishing of study material, and so forth. A Secretariat has been established by the Committee to carry on this important correspondence and follow-up service.

One of the most fertile fields of expansion is in the renewed effort of isolated believers and groups to teach the Cause, and Assemblies with isolated believers in close proximity can augment their services by close cooperation with them. Each isolated believer and group is the nucleus for a new Assembly.

Contact with organizations having universal principles akin to those of the Bahá'í Cause is a very important field of service. While these have adopted as their objective service to the world of humanity, they lack "guidance" and do not have the point of view essential to the new order. Within these groups are important people who are receptive and who will become great powers in the Bahá'í Cause. To illustrate: one believer interviewed the outstanding foreign delegates to the Rotary International Convention held in Seattle last summer. All were very receptive to the Message and graciously accepted the literature presented. These contacts have been followed up and have brought most encouraging responses, particularly to "The Goal of a New World Order."

The result of the participation of the Bahá'í youth in the World Council of Youth is indicative of the unique achievements possible through participation in conferences of a universal nature. Youth from all over the world attending this Council learned about the Bahá'í Cause. An active study group has been formed by the young people living in Pasadena who attended the Conference. Another example of the results attendant upon continuous contacts and fellowship is the course of study on living religions conducted in the Y. W. C. A. in San Francisco in which the instructor, an outstanding member of the faculty of one of the theological colleges, included the Bahá'í Cause as one of the Living Religions of the day. This same individual included one of the Bahá'í prayers in the prayer service which he conducted as part of a recent conference of the Christian Unity League, distributing to all in attendance copies of the service in which the prayer was quoted and reference given to Bahá'u'lláh and the Cause. The unique feature of this service was that all the prayers were recited in unison.

Another field of service as yet untouched is that of following up articles, addresses, comments, etc., of notable people concerning trends of thought today in line with the principles of the Bahá'í Faith. A Teaching Correspondence Committee appointed by the New York Assembly wrote to over three hundred such public characters, enclosing literature. One hundred thirty-six replies were received, of which seventy-eight were very favorable, fifty-five complimentary and three negative. So great are the results to be achieved this work is now being developed into a national teaching activity.

The responses from the public receiving copies of "The Goal of a New World Order." have been generally so favorable that plans are now under way to publish from time to time compilations on important subjects before the public to be sent to those especially interested.

It is of interest to know that the teaching work throughout the country was achieved at very little expense to the national fund. Including the expense of issuing the five thousand copies of "The Goal of a New World Order." and the "Study Guide to The Dawn Breakers," the entire teaching expenditures were $600.00.

Deep appreciation is felt by all the friends and the Teaching Committee for the inimitable services, performed at great sacrifice and despite serious difficulties, by those who have risen so energetically to spread the Glad Tidings. Special tribute should be paid to those American Bahá'ís like Martha Root, Keith Ransom-Kehler, and Mr. and Mrs. Hyde Dunn, who have extended our services beyond the American continent and are actively teaching in other countries.

The captivating spirit of Bahá'u'lláh is being felt more and more by all those having contact with the Cause, and in turn it is being reflected in more active cooperation on the part of the public. Bahá'í speakers are being requested by many liberal organizations; invitations to broadcast on the movement are increasing; books and magazines carry mention of it, and newspapers are more liberal in their publicity, one paper giving space regularly to Bahá'í compilation under the heading, "The Loom of Reality." Non-Bahá'ís refer to the Cause in radio addresses, usually favorably, sometimes unfavorably, but the important thing is that the Cause has gained prestige in the eyes of the world sufficient to merit comment.

The friends may justifiably look with satisfaction on their labors in behalf of God's Cause and gain inspiration for future unparalleled services. While established religions have reached in their ministrations, the Bahá'í Faith has extended its frontiers and enlarged its services; while the whole world is depressed and unhappy, the Bahá'ís are radiant and enthusiastic; while the leaders of the world are lost in bewilderment, the Bahá'ís are centered and assured; while the world is wandering hopelessly, through the invincible guidance of the Guardian the Bahá'ís are step by step establishing the "New World Order" and ushering in the Kingdom of God.

Eastern Division of Teaching Committee

The National Spiritual Assembly appointed the following personnel to be responsible for Bahá'í teaching work in the eastern part of the country during the past year:

Executive Committee: Bishop Brown, Ruth Brown, Dale Cole.
Regional Members: Mrs. Florence Morton, Mrs. May Maxwell, Miss Rosemary Gillies, Mrs. Mary Collison, Miss Helen Campbell, Mrs. Sarah Walrath, Mr. Stanwood Cobb.

Teaching Program

The teaching program was agreed upon by the executive committees of both the eastern and western division in joint consultation directly after the Convention. It was based on past experience and suggestions which were made during the Convention. In formulating the steps to be included in the teaching program the committee tried to set up objectives which would be practical and within reach.

The objectives of the teaching program were as follows:
1. Each Local Spiritual Assembly to be responsible for the establishment of a new Spiritual Assembly within the year.
2. The encouragement of every believer by the Local Spiritual Assemblies to take active part in the teaching work of the Community.
3. The establishment of children's classes in all Communities.
4. Inter-assembly and inter-group teaching by circuit teachers.
5. Active classes for the instruction of Bahá'í teachers.
6. The coordination of the Summer Schools and the teaching classes.

Methods Used to Coordinate Teaching Program

The purpose of the teaching program was to have each Local Assembly work toward the same end, realizing, of course, that the accomplishment would vary according to the membership and conditions existing in each Community. The function of the executive committee has been that of making suggestions, initiating new methods and compiling teaching information for Local Assemblies and the National Spiritual Assembly. At the request of the National Spiritual Assembly and the chairman of the National Teaching Committee the executive committee presented the teaching program at the Louhelen and Green Acre Summer Schools. The function of the regional members has been to make frequent and direct contacts with Local Assemblies, groups, and isolated believers within their districts, to distribute information, and to render any assistance which they could give.

In order to answer questions immediately and to have each Local Assembly start its program quickly a series of teaching bulletins were sent out by the executive committee at the beginning of the year. The bulletins not only suggested methods which might be used in starting the teaching program but also formed the basis of monthly reports which each Local Assembly and regional member made. A digest of this information was forwarded regularly to the National Spiritual Assembly in order that that body might keep in touch with teaching activities throughout the eastern part of the country. Later in the year it was decided in consultation with the National Spiritual Assembly that the BAHÁ'Í NEWS should be the medium for distributing teaching information. To this end both the National Spiritual Assembly and the National Teaching Committee printed statements about policies and accomplishments.

The logic of such an organization is quite apparent and fits into the administrative function of the teaching work as Shoghi Effendi has described: "... As it has been observed already, the roll of these committees set up by the National Spiritual Assembly, the renewal, the membership and functions of which should be reconsidered separately each year by the incoming National Assembly, is chiefly to make thorough and expert study of the issue entrusted to their charge, advise by their reports, and assist in the execution of the decision which in vital matters are to be exclusively and directly rendered by the National Assembly."

How effectively the committee has worked can best be judged, first, by what has been accomplished, second, by the criticism of the Local Assemblies and, third, by the comments which the committee itself submits as it reviews its work for the past nine months. This evaluation will be submitted in separate sections of this report.

Accomplishment

Contrary to the method followed on other occasions the teaching work for the past year was outlined with the expectancy that it would be undertaken for the most part by each Assembly. It was understood that little or no help in the way of outside teachers could be given. In order to obtain data which would sum up what has been done the following questions were asked to which each Assembly made reply:

Was the teaching program used? Was it helpful? Was a new Spiritual Assembly formed? Have any groups been formed? Did individual believers become more active in teaching? Have you a children's class or was one established? How many Inter-assembly meetings were held? How many new believers were admitted? Give meetings held each month. Name new centers where your Community has presented the Cause this year. Have you classes in Bahá'í teachers? What are your suggestions about the teaching program? What are your criticisms? Was the Teaching Program Used?

The number of Assemblies reporting were 32. Twenty-four reported the teaching program was used and 8 indicated that it had not been used. In several instances it was stated that the program was used in part or as a basis for teaching work. Most of the summer was taken up getting Assemblies to understand the contents of the program and how it should be used.

Was It Helpful?

Twenty-three Assemblies found the program helpful. In many cases it was found inspiring, suggestive and concise. In such cases the purpose of the teaching program was fulfilled as it was designed to be a guide and an incentive. In some cases very much the same work was already in progress as the program outlined.

Was a New Spiritual Assembly Formed?

No new Local Assemblies were formed this year. The National Teaching Committee did not expect that any overdue expansion would take place. Spiritual development does not occur, automatically. Constant search is necessary to find those who are ready for the Message and then careful preparation must follow to prevent misunderstandings about the principles for which the Cause stands. The creation of new Local Spiritual Assemblies is a long time and never ending process. As a part of the teaching program it should always have its place.

Have Any Groups Been Formed?

Sixteen Assemblies reported that groups have been formed this year. It is to be hoped that close contacts will continue to be maintained in order that these groups may develop into Assemblies by another year. In addition to groups which were formed this year older groups have been accumulating numbers until they are about to become Assemblies. Some of the larger are as follows: Toronto (Canada), Hartford (Conn.), Hinsdale (N. H.), Geneva, Johnstown, Rochester and Buffalo (N. Y.), New Castle (Pa.), Jacksonville (Fla.), Lima, Toledo, and Dayton (Ohio), Indianapolis (Ind.), Rockford (Ill.), Portland (Me.).

Did Individual Believers Become More Active In Teaching?

In almost every case it was reported that individual believers took more active part in teaching than ever before and in some cases believers who never felt they could teach have rendered invaluable service in spreading the knowledge of the Cause. Individual activity of this kind has resulted in visits to many cities and the formation of groups. The New England and Ohio regions report much progress of this nature.

Perhaps of all the factors to be considered individual activity is the most encouraging sign. When Communities can show a united front and when everyone is actually taking part then and only then can we expect to show growth.

Have You a Children's Class Or Was One Established?

The Assemblies which indicated children's classes or classes in the making numbered 14. Out of a total of 33 Assemblies it can be seen that care is being taken to train the younger generation. No reference can be made in this report to the work among the youth groups, but it is to be hoped that another year will not find this part of the teaching work unorganized. It is obvious that from children's classes there should be some stepping stone to adult association.

How Many Inter-assembly Meetings Have Been Held?

Almost every Assembly reported one or more inter-assembly meeting. The value of these meetings cannot be over estimated. In some instances where none took place the Assembly was too remote to make a contact. In other cases as many as five and six inter-assembly meetings were held. This form of meeting is greatly emphasized in the west where climatic conditions are much in favor for those participating. However, in the future we should have many more of these meetings during the summer months than in other years when we have been inclined to excuse ourselves with the thought that “so many people are away.”

Inter-assembly meetings should include sociability and a general good time to which newly attracted people or strangers are invited. Aside from the social function which is strung briefly and sweetly the Bahá’ís should show at this time “a way of living” in its fullest meaning which will be most attractive to invited guests. Such meetings are confirming to Bahá’ís themselves. They are a relief from the routine of fall and winter meetings in homes and halls. Let us have more of these meetings and give more thought to the advantages of closer intermingling of Bahá’í Communities.

The most notable inter-assembly activity in the east has taken place in the Metropolitan New York region where six meetings have been held with surrounding Communities.

How Many New Believers Were Admitted?

The number of new believers which have been taken into Communities during the past year reported to be 105. No comment need be made on this information other than that the teaching committee is delighted with the growth that seems to be taking place in every Community. The addition of new believers is not a business. There is no need for comparative figures with those of a previous year. The important factor is whether or not we are showing our love for the Cause in an active way which is attracting those who are anxious to join with us in the teachings of Bahá’u’lláh.

Name New Centers Where Your Community Has Presented The Cause This Year.

The members of some Communities have been more active than others in giving the Message in new places. This was due partly to their inability to move about more readily. However, here again we should not lose sight of a contribution that every believer can make. The bounty which comes from being the first to herald this Revelation in a new center is marked by that inspiration and enthusiasm for which the early believers were so noted. In some cases members of Communities have given the Message in eight or nine new places.

Give Meetings Held Each Month.

The number and variety of meetings that are held in each Community illustrates the different ways we have of working toward the same end. A summary of meetings will illustrate this point.

Local Spiritual Assembly Meetings
Weekly, monthly and bi-monthly.

Public Meetings—Monthly and weekly.

Feasts—Every nineteen days.

Anniversaries.

Training Class for teachers—Weekly.

Young people's meeting—Weekly.

Children's Class—Sunday.

Study Class for “The Dawn Breakers”—Weekly, twice a week or bi-monthly.

Prayer and Meditation Class—Weekly.

Economy dinners—Weekly.

Teaching Committee meetings—Bi-monthly.

Fireside groups—Continuous.

Administration Study Class—Weekly.

Tea Talks—Weekly.

Esperanto Class—Weekly.

Noonday prayer—Daily.

Amity meeting—Every other month.

*Baha’i Administration, page 131.
At the time this report was prepared no reports have been received from Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Washington.
Many Communities reported classes in the study of Nabil's soul stirring narrative. In Montreal the program for public meetings was based upon this early history of the Cause and an entirely new field of work has developed. Such subjects as, Persia in the Nineteenth Century, The Episode of the Báb, The Red Annals of the Baha’i Faith, and Banished, Persecuted and Imprisoned, were used. This method was followed throughout the season and the report of these meetings reads, “The results of these series of meetings both in attendance, in the interest of the audience and publicity obtained far surpassed our hopes.”

The Racine Assembly has used as a silent teacher a model of the Temple made by one of the believers. Placed in the window of a downtown store where the meetings are held it has been a source of great interest.

The New York Assembly sponsored a series of addresses by Dr. Ali Kuli Khan which were given in a well known hotel. These meetings attracted from three to four hundred and will be followed by a study class.

The Cleveland Assembly started the fall season with a class for Baha’i teachers. The course which was outlined in advance required three hours of reading and study.

The Chicago Assembly reports an Amity meeting every second month. This type of meeting is noticeably missing from all reports.

Criticisms of Teaching Plan.

That there would be criticism of the teaching program and the methods used is to be expected. In no instance, however, has an unfriendly attitude been shown. The criticisms which have been received are printed in full. They should serve as a guide for the next teaching committee to follow.

“In the beginning a little technical but steadily it has broadened to meet the needs of the friends everywhere. It has widened the scope of activities, increased activity and efficiency of the friends and developed a more orderly system.”

“It assumes ideal conditions which have to be modified to a large extent in practice. It is infinitely better than no program.”

“We feel that one member of the teaching committee as regional member should not be given so much responsibility, especially where so many Assemblies are concerned. In recent reports in the News Letter only reference to activities in the West have been made although we know that reports have been sent in from the most active centers in the East.”

What Are Your Suggestions For The Teaching Program.

An equal space should be allowed for comments and suggestions. They express constructive thought which is always deeply appreciated.

“Too make more use of the Baha’i News as a medium of distributing information as to how different Assemblies handle hard problems, and how teaching is progressing and who the most active believers are all over the country, as this will be especially helpful to delegates, to choose wisely the members of the National Spiritual Assembly, and assist different program committees in getting speakers. To reduce numbers of people who as individuals go over our reports (but to have a committee to handle our reports). We recommend that the regional member should be either chairman or one member of an Inter-assembly committee made up of one member from each Community elected by that Community and appointed by his Assembly. In other words there should be more consultation and less responsibility and work falling on the shoulders of one person. As publicity is a teaching method more use of it should be stressed in the National Teaching Program.”

“We suggest more detailed study of conditions in each individual Community. We suggest more inter-assembly meetings with due consideration of transportation costs. We suggest more frequent personnel contacts with the regional representative.”

“I suggest that we re-appoint the same chairmen and secretaries both east and west giving them an opportunity to further unfold their vision and develop their plans. That a Youth Group be developed in the Cause—united, active, inter-communicating according to the explicit wishes of the Guardian.”

“Urge Assemblies use speakers from nearby Assemblies.”

“Emphasize contacts and meetings with individuals of various nationalities. Emphasize study of economic and social problems. Contact with experts on those subjects.”

“We suggest efforts be made to open a radio station in each region where the Cause can be presented. By opening a station we mean a wise plan to secure the use of some already established broadcasting station for our speakers, on universal subjects and aspects of the Cause.”

“Have a teaching program issued every three months.”

Conclusion

In conclusion the teaching Committee would like to point to some of the outstanding accomplishments of the year.

First, the efforts which individual teachers in every Community have made at their own expense have been most gratifying. Now that we know how much can be accomplished by individual effort the work should never cease.

Second, the formation of groups resulting from Orcella Rexford’s classes have added many interested people throughout the east. Portland, Boston, Washington, South Bend and Cincinnati are some of the centers where Miss Rexford has given lectures and left study groups. These groups have been nurtured by teachers who have given unstintedly of their time and energy.

Third, the preparation of the Study Guide for “The Dawn Breakers” by Doris McKay and Bahiyyih Lindstrom was a valuable contribution to teaching. It is being used by many Communities, groups and individual believers as a method of furthering their understanding of the early days of the Cause.

Fourth, the marvelous spirit of cooperation which each Community has shown in working with the National Teaching Committee to carry out the program has been a source of inspiration. If this unity can continue there is every reason to believe that the Cause will develop with increasing speed.

Fifth, the reprinting and distribution of “The Goal of a New World Order” was a means for each Assembly to contact prominent people in its own locality.

Sixth, the success which the New York Assembly reported in writing speakers and prominent people, whose names appeared in the daily papers, about the Cause is an effort which may be of National teaching importance.

For the coming year the attention of the National Teaching Committee could be given to the following policies with advantage.

Close cooperation with Summer Schools.

Further assistance in study of Baha’i literature.

Special attention to the development of groups.

Regular contacts with isolated believers.

Preparation of a reading list on subjects which are associated with Baha’i News.
A wider use of circuit teachers.

Archives Committee

The Secretary of the Archives Committee, Miss Gertrude Buikema, has asked me to report for the Committee.

The gathering of Original Tablets—revealed by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá during His Ministry of nearly thirty years—for preservation in the Bahá’í Archives, contributed throughout the past season of 1932-1933, especially through the splendid work under the direction of Mrs. Corinne True. These precious Tablets, after being catalogued, have been placed in the vault for preservation, and are the outstanding contribution to the Bahá’í Archives during the past year. This time-lock storage vault is one of the finest in Chicago.

Also many Original Letters from our beloved Guardian, Shoghi Effendi, have been sent in and placed in the same vault.

The Committee is deeply grateful to those who have responded to their call, and would remind those who have not sent in their Tablets for preservation, of the danger—in these days of stress and uncertainty—of the loss of these precious documents to this and coming generations.

Respectfully submitted,

ALBERT R. WINDUST, Custodian.

Publishing Committee

The Publishing Committee wishes to submit the following report, showing its activities during the past year:

New Publications

The Golden Age of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh. The Committee was authorized to print 2500 copies. 2209 copies were distributed to local Assemblies and to special list of names supplied by the N. S. A.

This second letter addressed to the Bahá’í World by the Guardian, prepares the followers of Bahá’u’lláh for their great task, and reminds them of their privileged responsibility toward humanity in making known this divine plan which alone can heal a distressed and suffering world, and lay the foundation of the establishment of the “Golden Age” of a new civilization.

Study Guide for The Dawn Breakers. 300 copies were printed in Dec., 1932. Price 25c each. This guide has been an invaluable help to all those studying the early days of the Cause in reading Nabil’s incomparable narrative.

Bahá’í World, Vol. IV. Competitive bids were obtained from several printing houses. Estimate from J. J. Little & Ives Co., was accepted for printing 2500 copies, as terms of payment could be made to cover a period of twelve months.

This volume was prepared for press by the Chairman, Mr. Horace Holley, and is in work at the present date, and is expected to be off the press in time for the annual Convention. The new volume contains many more pages than Vol. 3, is rich in illustrations and it is hoped that all believers will purchase a copy in order to study it and know the international aspects of the Cause. Price, $2.50 per copy.

Revised Glossary for Kitáb-i-Iqán. 1000 copies of the revised glossary were printed and mention made in the News Letter that these were available gratis to all who had purchased this book. Copies were inserted in all unsold copies.

Declaration of Trust and National and Local By-Laws: We printed 1000 copies of this pamphlet to sell at 10c each and made mention in the News Letter urging librarians to order a supply that all believers may acquaint themselves as to the details of our administrative principles.

Bahá’í Administration: A new edition of this title has been printed. It contains all the letters from the Guardian received to date, including the two World Order Letters, the Goal of a New World Order, the Golden Age of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh and the Guardian’s tribute to the Greatest Holy Leaf. The National and Local By-Laws are also included. The price of this new edition is $2.00.

Tablet of Bahá’u’lláh to the Greatest Holy Leaf: In February we received from the Guardian two prints of this Tablet (the best and most significant of her Tablets) also a photographic plate from which he asked us to have a copper plate made similar in size to the Twenty Tablets to the Letters of the Living and to Bahá’u’lláh in the Dawn-Breakers, about twenty copies to be made on good paper and sent to Haifa to be hand illuminated. The negative was shattered in transit but the engravers were able to make a good plate from the print and thirty copies were sent to Haifa. A letter from the Guardian acknowledging their safe arrival expresses satisfaction with the result. The Guardian will present these Tablets to each National Assembly for their Archives.

Tablets of Bahá’u’lláh and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá to the Greatest Holy Leaf: The Guardian has sent these additional Tablets with a photograph of the Greatest Holy Leaf and has asked the National Spiritual Assembly to have a pamphlet made using the photograph as a frontispiece. These pamphlets are to be distributed to the believers of the United States and Canada and Europe by the National Spiritual Assembly. The work is now in process.

Reprints

What Is the Bahá’í Movement? 50,000 copies of this leaflet were printed.

Goal of a New World Order. 5000 copies printed in this new edition. This was financed by the Western Division of the Teaching Committee. 1000 copies were sent to each of the Teaching Divisions. 3000 copies to be handled and sold by the Publishing Company. In packages of ten, to be sold for 30c.

Bahá’u’lláh and the New Era. 5000 copies of this new edition printed. Competitive estimates obtained from three printing houses. Estimate accepted from Kingsport Press, who holds plates and who have printed all previous editions, and whose relations with J. J. Little and Ives Co., makes it possible to ship stock to this firm who handle our stock and shipping.

‘Abdu’l-Bahá on Divine Philosophy.

This valuable teaching book has been out of stock for some time. At the request of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá the notes on Divine Philosophy were compiled by Mrs. Soraya Chamberlain, who published the original edition in 1918. Mrs. Chamberlain has recently had a new edition printed in San Francisco.

The Publishing Committee has purchased 500 copies and is ready to fill orders. Price 75c.

Hidden Words, paper binding: In April, 1932, we received 1000 copies of this title, having ordered them from the London, England Assembly (they were printed as part of a larger order), thus carrying out the instructions of the Guardian, that we cooperate with England whenever possible.

Bahá’í, Spirit of the Age: In December, 1932, we had the 283 sheets of this title which we purchased from Brentano’s, bound. This is one of the titles which we are giving to our local Assemblies that they may present them to their Public or University libraries.

Translations

Chinese
Bahá’u’lláh and The New Era. 400 copies were shipped to us from Shanghai when the city was in danger of destruction, in order to save them. These books are to be used by the Teaching Committee for free distribution, in their teaching work.

Swedish
Bahá’u’lláh and The New Era. 50 copies were ordered through Mrs. Erickson, a New York believer, who assisted Mrs. Rudd in Sweden in the financing of this translation. It was understood that the Publishing Company would pay for these books as sold.

Russian
Kitáb-i-Iqán. 100 copies of unbound sheets shipped to us from London by Mr. Asgarzadeh. Expense for landing. $40.00; expense for clearing. $17.89. This expense was assumed by the N. S. A.

Braille
Bahá’u’lláh and The New Era. This special work prepared for the blind was undertaken and financed by Mrs. Nellie French. The set of plates are stored at our stock room in New York. Orders can be filled by the Publishing Company.

In July the N. S. A. requested the Publishing Company to undertake the work of printing and distributing the Teaching Outlines. This work has heretofore been handled by the Outline Committee. They will in the future concentrate on compiling and preparing this teaching material.

Exchange of Literature with China

The N. S. A. has authorized the Publishing Company to exchange English Bahá’í books to the amount of $50.00 for Chinese books. This was done in compliance with a request from the Shanghai Assembly stating the great need for our literature among the English colonies. Many opportunities for giving the teachings have been lost from not having books. They offered to send the equivalent in Chinese books, hoping that with this cooperation they might be used among the Chinese colonies in this country. All Chinese books are to be used by the Teaching Committee, and distributed free. The expenses connected with this transaction are to be charged to the teaching budget, coming under the head of teaching work.

Library Division of Publishing Committee

The N. S. A. in appointing new committees this year combined the Library with the Publishing. In order to insure the most efficient work, a Library Division was formed, and Miss Martha Woodsum appointed as Chairman. The following report is most encouraging and shows what has been done during her short term of office. Miss Woodsum took up the work in September, 1932.

Library Division Report

Circular form letter sent out to all Local Assemblies asking for their cooperation in creating a demand for Bahá’í books in Public Libraries, and University Libraries. Asking for report of heading given Bahá’í literature when listed. Where Bahá’í books are listed under various headings, requesting Assemblies to interview Librarian and endeavor to have classification made under proper heading of authorized Bahá’í literature.

The following books have been supplied to the Library Division for gift copies to Public Libraries:

Bahá’í World, Vols. II and III.
Assemblies were notified that these books would be supplied to them for donations to their Public Library.

New York Public Library purchased 10 titles for catalogues. Boston Library sent word that they had a call for the Kitab-i-Iqan and asked if Library Division could donate this book. The Book of Assurance was sent as a gift, explaining that this was an earlier translation of the same title.

The following Assemblies have donated The Dawn Breakers to Public Libraries: Evanston, Ill.; Columbus, Ohio; Binghamton, N. Y.; New York City.

The Binghamton Assembly reported that Bahá’í books were being read at Public Library, and that The Dawn Breakers was in demand. Of the twelve books at Library only two left on shelf.

In December the Library Division received $50.00 from the N. S. A. to defray expenses. Disbursements will be shown in financial statement of Publishing Committee.

Respectfully submitted

MARTHA WOODSUM, Chairman Library Division.

Mrs. Mansfield Ferry was appointed a member of the Publishing Committee in September, 1932, and Mrs. Loulie A. Mathews was re-appointed.

SUGGESTIONS FOR FUTURE GROWTH

As the Cause is growing throughout this vast country and the demand for books to be shipped to different points of this country as well as throughout the world is increasing rapidly, the time has come when we must begin to consider a more economic method, for the saving of time and expense and also to divide the labor which up to date has been handled solely by the Financial Secretary.

I would suggest that the country be divided into the Western and Eastern Division: territory being identical with the division made in the Teaching Committee.

That a distributing Center be established on the Western Coast, San Francisco. I mention this City because in my recent visits to different Assemblies, I believe this city to be the logical point. Also the present Librarian of that Assembly has had business experience as well as experience in handling the Bahá’í books. I think that she would be willing to undertake the distribution of books for the Western Division.

If this suggestion be acted upon, the amount of stock sent in first shipment for western distribution would be based on an average of six months sales, additional supply to be sent as needed, all stock to be accounted for to Publishing Committee; so that at all time a stock inventory would be available.

Advantages. Saving of time in shipping from Eastern stock room. Saving of expense to Assemblies ordering books, as bookpost is based on mileage zoning and adds considerably to the cost of books to those ordering from the west and the Hawaiian Islands.

The stock would be sent to the coast by freight.

The secretary in submitting this report wishes to inform the believers that she has been absent from New York since the first week in November, and therefore has not taken an active part in the work of the Committee. This work has been carried on with an untiring spirit of service and efficiency by the Financial Secretary, Mrs. C. R. Wood, in addition to her many duties of bookkeeping and distributing the literature. And it is with grateful acknowledgment that I inform the believers in making this report.

Respectfully submitted,

Baha’i Publishing Committee,
MARION M. LITTLE, Secretary.

COMMITTEE ON INTER-RACIAL AMITY

In New York City three Interracial Meetings were held under the Local Committee Chairman Loulie A. Mathews, and Ludmilla Bechtold who served as acting Chairman during Mrs. Mathews’ absence.

The first public meeting took place at the Urban League Headquarters. The speakers were Dr. Alain Locke, Samuel Allen, Safa Kinney, Philip Marangello, James H. Hubert, Arthur Schomburg, also speaking were Dr. Genevieve Coy, Ira Reid, Warden LaFarge and Elsa Russell.

The second important meeting was held at the Bahá’í Center with James S. Watson as guest of honor. Mr. J. F. Morton, Curator of the Patterson Museum and Loulie A. Mathews Chairman of the National Interracial Committee, were the speakers.

Our Spring meeting was held also at the Bahá’í Center and we had the great pleasure of hearing President Thomas E. Jones, of Fiske University, his subject being “Character Education.” The Bahá’í Message was given by Loulie A. Mathews. The talks were followed by an informal reception and refreshments were served.

On Sunday evening February second a Musical Lecture was given by Mr. Harry Burleigh, composer and musician. This was done under the auspices of the New York Interracial Committee.

The National Interracial Committee gave its annual entertainment in honor of the two organizations who work so tirelessly for the Negro Race; the “National Association for Advancement of the Colored People” and “The Urban League,” on Saturday evening, May 13th, at the New York Baha’í Center.

A series of Motion Paintings were shown. These photographs taken in Hawaiian Islands by Mr. J. H. Rhoades render nature’s colors with absolute fidelity. Landscapes taken in sunlight, moonlight, dusk and dawn pass across the screen. Here we see rare trees and flowers in full bloom and surf of unbelievable beauty.

There was music by two distinguished amateurs, Mrs. George Eustis Corcoran at the piano and Mrs. Murdock Ward, violinist.

Oliver LaFarge told stories of Indian Life. A reception with refreshments served followed. There were more than two hundred people present.

The National Interracial Committee was assisted by the New York Local Spiritual Assembly, Loulie A. Mathews, Chairman of the National Interracial Committee, and Horace Holley, Chairman of New York Spiritual Assembly, acted as co-chairmen of the evening. The Reception Committee were: Mrs. Viola Bibb, Mrs. Minta Trotman, Mrs. Ludmilla Bechtold, and Mrs. Villa Vaughan.

DETROIT

During the year there were seven Interracial dinners given by a group of workers led by Mrs. Mabelle Davis of this Committee. The Committee also reports other intensive activities and meetings. These friends are earnest workers for the unity of races.

CHICAGO

The Chicago Assembly has had a very active Interracial Committee. They report a large meeting and a good will dinner. The two members of the National Interracial, residents of Chicago, Dr. Zia Bagdadi and Mrs.
Shelley Parker, have been able to do very constructive work in cooperation with the Local Spiritual Assembly.

Los Angeles

In Los Angeles a large meeting was arranged by the member of Interracial National Committee a resident of this city; Mrs. Sarah Witt, for the National Chairman Loulie A. Mathews.

There were representatives of many races; Chinese, Japanese, American Indian and Negro. Each nation was represented by a speaker and there was music of the nations represented. Supper was served after the talks.

Later in the year an Amity meeting was arranged by this Committee. The speakers were: Mr. LeRoy Ioaos, Rev. Sheldon Sheppard, Mrs. Margaret Campbell, Gonra Nakamura, a distinguished Japanese, Standing Bear, an Indian Chief, and Willard Hatch. They addressed a splendid audience.

In November the National Chairman, Loulie A. Mathews, visited California. She spoke in the Church Universal, at the McKinley High School in Pasadena, at a meeting of the National Association for the Improvement of Colored People in Oakland, at the Geographical Society at Palm Springs and at the Bahá'í Center in Santa Barbara, also in the Methodist Church in Colorado Springs.

Washington, D. C.

Amity work has been carried on throughout the year in Washington by a group of devoted Bahá'ís inspired by Mrs. C. F. Cook, and although we have no details of these meetings we know that this important work is being successfully done.

Upon reaching the Hawaiian Islands, many opportunities were given the Chairman to explain the plan of Bahá'u'lláh for racial harmony. Notably the Pan Pacific Club, The Representative Club, The Round Table of the Bahá'ís of Honolulu, and there were many private gatherings where the Principles could be explained and questions answered. Through the kindness of Mrs. Samuel Baldwin meetings were arranged on the Island of Maui. Here Mrs. May Fanton entertained us with a feast that was truly royal.

A journey that resulted in great interracial importance was undertaken by Mr. C. A. Wragg and the Secretary, Mr. Louis Gregory. Dr. Glenn Shook had given his Color Organ to these travelers to exhibit. Thus eleven cities in Virginia were visited. The friends were eager for Bahá'í meetings and no trouble was too much to secure these evenings. A week was given to teaching in the State College of Virginia, at the Virginia Seminary and the College of Lynchburg. In Norfolk two social gatherings were especially delightful one was given by The Book Lovers Club where many prominent citizens were, and we encountered no trace of opposition or hostility, and travelling thus together for the purpose of teaching the difference of race was helpful and made a profound impression. On our arrival in Charlotte-ville, we found that Mrs. Louise D. Boyle had gathered together a splendid group for an Interracial meeting. One source of happiness came from meeting isolated believers, once in particular Mr. David had not been able to attend a Bahá'í meeting for seventeen years!

Mr. Wragg, a native of Australia was making his first visit to the South and melted all hearts by relating how loved were the Negro melodies by his native land.

On the return trip to Portsmouth, Bahá'í friends were visited in Washington, Baltimore, New York, Newark and Norton, Mass.

During these travels the head of the Interracial Commission of Virginia in describing the general unrest said, "Unless God raises up a great spiritual leader, a man of clear vision who can point the way, civilization itself is doomed." The "Way" is the oneness of mankind, and the leader the manifestation for this day, Bahá'u'lláh. To do his work we must have unity and for this great purpose workers in the field of Interracial ideals are needed, all parts of the globe must be penetrated with these divine principles.

The Interracial Committee wishes to express sorrow for the loss of its youngest member, Mrs. Edwin Horn of Brooklyn. From the time she joined the Assembly she rendered valued service. The Bahá'í Prayers were her constant solace during her last illness and she died happy in the faith she had embraced. Mr. Horace Holley conducted the funeral services and numbers of the Bahá'í friends were present.

"Abdu'l-Bahá has said, "You are lost from ancient superstitions which have kept men ignorant, destroying the foundations of human solidarity." The spirit of this utterance is reaching round the world. It is blazing a pathway of light. Both the Master and the Guardian attach great value to sincere efforts, their creative words, their noble example, must inspire us to greater trials of strength. The trials and tests that workers encounter will in the end make the fires of divine love burn more brightly. "Mount your steeds, O heroes of God."

Reviewing Committee

The following manuscripts have been approved since the last Convention: (The manuscripts were received in the order given.)

Principles of Progress, by Mabelle L. Davis. An article stressing interracial amity.

Bahá'í Answers, by Olivia W. Kel- sey. A compilation approved in principle, but not in its present form.

Economics Compilation, submitted by Nat. Economics Committee.

A Study Guide to The Dawn-break­ers, by Mr. and Mrs. McKay and Bahá'yih Lindstrom.

Essay on Mysticism, by Ruhi Afnán.

Essays on the Bahá'í Revelation, by Ruhi Afnán.

Section 1 and Section 2, including the first thirteen "Lessons for Children" submitted by the Committee for the Teaching and Training of Children.

Studies in Immortality, a compilation, by Mrs. J. W. Gift. Approved with certain modifications in text.

Racial Amity, by Louis G. Gregory. A general work on the Bahá'í solution of the amity question in America, the author having been for many years executive secretary of the National Amity Committee.

Recurring Cycles, by Ida A. Finch, a four-page leaflet for free distribution.

Study Outline on the Book of Certitude, submitted by the Study Outline Committee. An excellent piece of work whereby any class would have a thorough and complete understanding of this book.

Advanced Lessons, by Shanaz L. Waite. Twelve intensive lessons on the inner significances of the Teachings of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá.

The Reviewing Committee would like to ask the friends to submit two copies of each manuscript, one to be kept in the files of the National Assembly as a permanent record, the other to be returned to the author, and also that all manuscripts be typed double space with not too faint a ribbon.

Respectfully submitted,

Bahá'í Reviewing Committee,

Bahá'í Magazine—Editorial

In considering our annual report we must always keep in mind that The Bahá'í Magazine decidedly differs from other activities in the Bahá'í Cause in that its history, as it were, is being written from month to month as the magazine is issued. Thus all friends are familiar with its character and contents, and those who have supported it have kept closely in touch with its development and progress.

It is encouraging to note that we have had high commendation from innumerable believers expressing great appreciation of The Bahá'í Magazine, referring frequently "to the finished and scholarly productions of today." The Bahá'í Magazine continues to be called "a traveling teacher," and judging from letters received from all parts of the world, we believe the magazine has been a great and very definite help in the teaching field: It has, as these testimonials tend to show, become a universal publication of world-wide interest.

One of the very distinct notes of progress has been the printing of articles dealing with the advancement of the Cause in countries throughout the world, thus demonstrating the universal aspects of our Faith and its far-flung activities. We feel that this is a very important and sure way of informing the world—both Bahá'ís and non-Bahá'ís—of the growth and power of the Movement.

'Abdu'l-Bahá once said that this magazine "would bring about the unity of the East and the West," and we feel that the past year has seen progress in this direction.

"I am very glad to avail myself of this opportunity to extend to you, across deserts and seas, my warmest and heartiest congratulations on the excellent work you are rendering to the Great Cause, namely, the instructive and enlightening Bahá'í Magazine.

Your admirable efforts—may they be richly rewarded by the All-Bountiful as manifested in every issue of the magazine, show clearly what the Word of God can accomplish. I wish you and all those who contribute articles to this progressive magazine, a successful career."—(Abid R. Bagdadí, Baghdad, Mesopotamia.)

We have also received many comments to the effect that the magazine is of a high order, both from a literary standpoint and its make-up or format. A person of distinction in official life in Washington, formerly an editor, said: "What a well organized and professional looking magazine the Bahá'ís are getting out."

In articles solicited and published we have stressed the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh and how His teachings apply to the material problems of mankind and make for a better and happier world. We endeavor to assume in every article a spiritual tone as well as qualities appealing to the intellect, realizing that what will most move hearts and convince souls is the power of the Holy Spirit expressed through the pages of The Bahá'í Magazine.

A progressive step has been to have shorter articles, thereby enabling us to have a greater variety. This is a distinct gain and advance and has been well liked.

We have had several new contributors during the year, among them Hussein Rabbani, the younger brother of our Guardian. His articles have dealt with timely and important subjects, and they have greatly enriched the pages of the magazine. To every contributor, however, we feel we owe a debt of gratitude for it has been through their combined and refreshing cooperation in a true Bahá'í spirit that we have been greatly encouraged, and we wish to emphasize this "true Bahá'í spirit" because we seemed like members of one family working together in harmony and unity to get out the magazine—an experience which has been spiritually thrilling and very real.

Libraries and universities have asked for the renewal of their subscriptions, notably among them Antioch College. We are continuing to send the magazine to some libraries in German universities, to the universities in China which have requested them, to many libraries in Japan, and to the libraries in the universities and colleges of this country. Public libraries throughout the country seem to be glad to get the magazine, and one library has written thus: "The first number of The Bahá'í Magazine has been placed in our Reading Room. We appreciate very much indeed being introduced to his valuable reading matter which I feel sure will be widely read by the thoughtful among our people."

We have much valuable material on hand now for publication: further "Letters Home," by Keith Ransom-Kehler, dealing with her wonderful experiences in Persia; important and historic material from Martha Root—material giving the history of important events never before written about and which need to be known by the friends as well as those outside of the Cause. We have also material from oriental Bahá'ís, and a number of interesting new articles by American friends dealing with timely subjects. Also we hope to secure interviews with important officials which will be recorded.

Shoghi Effendi has said of the magazine: "The Star is decidedly improving in scope, style and effectiveness... I wish to express in person my strong sense of appreciation of your continued services in connection with The Bahá'í Magazine. It is undoubtedly improving in tone, subject matter and general presentation of the Bahá'í theme. You should feel happy and encouraged. Persevere and do not lose heart."

One of the aspects of the work the past year which has greatly heartened the entire staff of the magazine is the fact that through these trying times of depression and the depletion of incomes, The Bahá'í Magazine has kept within the budget allowance, and has thus been able to carry on without additional financial help. We consider this quite like a miracle.

From among the many words of encouragement from subscribers we choose a few which really express the many that cannot be published for too much space would be required:

"This Bahá'í Magazine is most interesting from cover to cover. I never find a dull article in it. It meets the need of a great many people for help, for something that is different from the ordinary. I find not only information about what is going on in the world, but a spiritual uplift. In this day of unrest, of anxiety, of perturbation of every kind, there are many writers in this magazine who give us the information we need. There is a very definite work outlined, and if this pathway were followed it would settle the world problems. I note with what clarity the path is made plain for the civic life of the world. There is much I would like to say about the appearance of the magazine, too. The type is clear, it is attractive in every way, and it is not only welcome but it is looked forward to every month.”

“May I express my appreciation of your wonderful magazine. It is a great exploit for a group still numerically so small to produce and maintain such a periodical.”

“The Bahá’í Magazine always brings edifying and instructive material to me. Having not many hours free for reading, I greatly appreciate these short articles so full of love and peace, and therefore contrasting greatly with many other periodicals which preach but hatred and ill-will. You have gained a humble friend of the good Cause.”

“I look upon The Bahá’í Magazine as the purest and best magazine in the world, and hope in the future to draw more and more attention to it.”

“I always receive and read The Bahá’í Magazine with great joy. I find it very good and inspiringly written, and many persons are reading it on my copy who unhappily cannot afford a personal subscription.”

“Surely the power of Bahá’u’lláh is assisting you in your great work, and you and your associates are blessed many times. The beautiful Bahá’í Magazine is a delight to all hearts.”

“Allow me to express my appreciation of The Bahá’í Magazine. We speak often in our Bahá’í Group of the magazine’s great helpfulness and inspiration. It is a great teacher.”

Bahá’í Magazine Business Office

The operation of the Bahá’í Magazine Office during the past year has been affected, like all business concerns, by the depressed and chaotic financial conditions that have obtained throughout the world. But, unlike other such agencies, this office has received the blessings and bounties of the cooperation of the believers as far as their limited and diminishing resources would permit. The unfavorably high rate of exchange has resulted in the reduction of foreign subscriptions by about one-third. A notable exception and inspiring example of cooperation is the case of the Poonna, India, Assembly, which has increased its subscriptions from four to twenty-five during the latter part of the year. Similar to last year, the Persian list has been gradually reduced and now comprises only one copy sent by first class mail.

Our detailed financial report, copies of which are being sent to the National Treasurer, show total receipts of $3,807.28 from subscription, new and renewed, single copies, bound volume and trial subscriptions, and $7,833.00 from the National Spiritual Assembly to April 30, 1933—a period of 13 months. It should be recalled that this office turned over to the National Assembly a balance of $700.00 as of March 31, 1932, which should have been carried over and applied to meet the expenses of the office this year.

The total expenses for the past 13 months were $6,973.94, and $6,419.83 for the year ending March 31, 1933, as compared with $6,353.43 for the year ending March 31, 1932—or net saving of $113.60 over the corresponding twelve months’ period.

The severe financial conditions and the concentration of our financial resources on the building of the Temple were reflected in a falling off of new subscriptions and renewal of subscriptions and the sale of bound volumes. The sale of single issues increased over the preceding year largely through the demand for copies of the Special July, 1932, issue.

A large number of letters have been received from people all over the world expressing their inability to pay their subscriptions at the time and begging us to continue sending the Magazine until such time as they can resume payments either in whole or part. This office has uniformly replied to these supplications in a loving and sympathetic way and assuring the friends of our desire to cooperate by a continuance of our relations on this basis of true consultation and cooperation. Usually in these cases, the subscribers have sent in their overdue subscriptions and always with words of appreciation.

Respectfully submitted,
Margaret B. McDaniel,
Business Manager.

Publicity Committee

The work of the National Publicity Committee for the year beginning June, 1932, was defined by the N. S. A. under the following headings:

1. Issuing of newspaper articles which were to be distributed to the press by the local Spiritual Assemblies or mailed directly to the larger newspapers.

2. Direct work with the local Assemblies with a view to increasing the efficiency and scope of publicity work in the various centers.

During the year the Publicity Committee has prepared four national news releases on the following topics: the Temple Construction Contract; Persian Shah Grants Bahá’í Petition; the Passing of Bahiyeh Khanum; Imprisonment of Turkish Believers. These were sent to the Bahá’í assemblies and to about fifty leading newspapers.

Three general letters have been written to the local Spiritual Assemblies. In the letter written October 20, 1932, this statement was made in connection with our publicity objective for the year—

“The results desired can be best secured through local publicity effort. National news articles cannot take the place of local notices, write-ups and other news of the Cause. The National Publicity Committee believes that the number of Assemblies active in this method of educating the public should be increased to include practically all Assemblies.

“This committee asks the cooperation of all the local Assemblies. We ask each one of you to appoint a capable representative or a small, compact, active committee whom you can trust to do this important work. The personnel should be enthusiastically interested in publicity and in its possibilities as an educating and attracting medium. We shall appreciate it if all the Assemblies will promptly report the names of those appointed.”

About twenty Assemblies responded to this request and, for the most part it has been with these that the work of the committee has been carried on most advantageously. Especially valuable has been the exchange of letters on the concrete problem of publicity and the suggestions which have been the outcome of this experience.

These suggestions, result of the interchange of ideas between the local and national publicity committees, were listed and sent out to the secretaries of the local Assemblies in March, 1933. We believe that through the application of these helps the policy of the Bahá’í News Service may advance another step toward efficiency and standardization. This list is not conclusive, indeed, further valuable advice from different directions has made another such letter necessary—is now in preparation. The following list of suggestions are quoted:

1. Timely material for Bahá’í publicity embraces such topics as the Bahá’í plan for World Government, Universal Peace and Disarmament, Unity of Science and Religion, Inter-racial Amity, Universal Language, Economic Solution, Oneness of Religions, etc.

2. This material may be incorporated in a public talk, written up with brevity, and handed to the editor.

3. It may be in the form of a letter to the editor, tied in with a comment on some current matter of general interest.

4. It may be in the form of a News Article sent from the Bahá’í News Service. This should be rewritten to include a local lead relating, for example, to “the Bahá’í’s of this city.”

5. It is important to get even the name of the Bahá’í Movement before the public. This has been done in connection with the presentation of library books, benefit entertainments for charity outside the Cause, announcement of programs.

6. One very successful way of spreading the name of the Cause and indicating the trend of our interests is to invite guest speakers from local colleges, ministers, inter-racial leaders, peace workers, etc., to appear with a Bahá’í chairman, on our platform. It is comparatively easy to get publicity for such well known speakers. Many of them are willing to give a short publicity statement to the publicity chairman in advance of the meeting to have ready in the hands of the city editor.

7. Visiting Bahá’í speakers from other cities have “news interest.” They can help by preparing in advance a strong news statement selected from their talk. This is a forehanded assurance of publicity material customary with large national organizations when a speaker is on tour.

8. A suggestion toward the much desired “lead” which is a necessary prelude to acceptance is to tie in material with national holidays, or with some absorbing current event (not political). Talks by local speakers have been taken because a line has been quoted from a book by a prominent local educator.

9. Be on the alert for articles in magazines, book reviews and the like that should be answered by Bahá’ís.

In answer to our request for a report of publicity activity throughout the country (not yet complete) such items as these are of general interest:

At least thirty-one out of fifty-four local Assemblies are actively trying to get into the newspapers.

West Englewood has placed more publicity than any center in the country. Ali K. Kahn, chairman of the local committee writes “The thing to do is to send in articles with local news and a large percentage get in.”

Mrs. H. W. Bivins, of Decatur, Alabama, former newspaper woman and isolated believer, has written a feature article called “Our Crisis in Civilization,” which after some revision she is hoping to place in a Nashville Sunday Supplement.

Racine has been very successful in placing cuts of the Temple, feature articles and notices in the paper, due, in part, to the fact that they have made an objective of gaining the support of the editors by sending their clippings to the other centers with requests that recognition in the form of letters and comments be sent to the editors. For example, such a letter commenting on the Cause, written by the publicity chairman of Los Angeles was printed in Racine.

Mrs. Nellie B. French of Pasadena is responsible for a weekly Bahá’í column called “The Loom of Reality.” She writes

“I always choose some topic of the day taking the observations of some prominent writer and following with the words of Bahá’u’lláh, ‘Abdu’l-Bahá or Shoghi Effendi. I use great tact so as not to embarrass the editor and thus I have never stated the station of the Revelators nor seemed to be using propaganda.”

Montreal sends us a National News release reprinted from Chicago. It is suggested by St. Paul that we send clippings as examples of successful publicity to centers where the editor is still reluctant to cooperate.

The committee have made a large scrapbook of clippings for the files of the N. S. A. and duplicates will be sent to Shoghi Effendi before the Convention. We thank all the friends for their assistance in collecting these records.

Temple Program Committee

In looking back over the year’s activities at the Temple as reflected by the minutes of the Temple Program Committee we become impressed by the fact that this Committee functioned more systematically, we believe, than it has during any previous year. The work was more efficiently organized and many innovations inaugurated, and while many of these were finally discarded, the experiments thus tried resulted in definite lines of procedure which during the year were gradually improved by constructive suggestions and consultation.

Visitors at Temple

For the first time detailed and careful records were kept during the summer months relative to the number of groups as well as the total number of visitors received daily at the Temple. We give below a summary of the total groups and total visitors to the Temple during the months of July, August and September of 1932.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Total Groups</th>
<th>Total Visitors</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>July</td>
<td>397</td>
<td>1889</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>August</td>
<td>541</td>
<td>2186</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>September</td>
<td>539</td>
<td>1964</td>
</tr>
</table>

The above figures are not complete for the reason that on Sundays and holidays there are so many visitors that it is impossible to keep accurate record, but the figures given for July, August and September give some idea of the problem before the National Programme Committee in efficiently meeting the vast number of visitors who will no doubt throng the Temple during the summer months of 1933. The records show that especially during the summer months of last year there were visitors from almost every state in the union as well as from some foreign countries. The names left by all such visitors were forwarded to the nearest Assembly or Group for follow-up work.

World’s Fair

With the coming World’s Fair this Committee realizes the great responsibility placed upon it to meet this unusual opportunity to present the Teachings of Bahá’u’lláh and are giving special consideration to this problem.

The Temple Dome will be visible from the fair grounds on clear days and in the event that the exterior work on the Dome is completed or partly completed so that illumination effects will be produced, it will be visible at night and attract a great deal of attention.

Those in charge of the World’s Fair estimate that there will be between sixty to seventy-five million visitors in Chicago during the summer and if only five per cent of this total visit the Temple it becomes obvious that we are faced with a tremendous problem.

A special committee has been appointed and have already had their first two meetings at which definite plans have been outlined and which contemplate presenting fifteen or twenty minute talks every half hour from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. during the summer months. This committee at present is composed of twenty-five members who will form the nucleus of the necessary number of workers required to be on hand each day at appointed times. It is planned that this special committee will meet twice a month between now and June 1st to discuss and to perfect the plans which have been outlined.

Speakers at Temple

One of the most difficult problems with which this committee has been confronted during the year has been that of providing qualified speakers for the Sunday afternoon public meetings at the Temple, but we feel that the results achieved have been most satisfactory. During the early part of the year it was difficult to make up the monthly calendar, and to provide speakers for every Sunday meeting and at the same time avoid using any one speaker too often but as time went on this problem seemed to solve itself as more and more speakers became available for this work. The following is a list of the friends who served in this capacity most beautifully during the past year:

Dr. E. L. Morris, Miss Pearl Easterbrook, Mrs. Shahnaz Waite, Mrs. Nellie S. French, Mme. Laura Dreyfus-Barney, Mrs. Frank Baker, Mrs. Corinne True, Mrs. Ruth Moffett, Mrs. Sarah Walrath, Mrs. Albert Windust, Dr. Zia Bagdadi, Mr. Carl Scheffler.

The committee feels that this problem has been met satisfactorily and that as time goes on more friends will become qualified to make public Bahá'í talks so that no further difficulty in this connection is anticipated.

Publicity

For the past two years, up to November 1st, 1932, it was the practice to keep interested inquirers posted regarding Bahá'í activities by mailing them monthly calendars. After careful consideration this procedure was abandoned because it was the consensus of opinion that the results obtained were not commensurate with the expense involved.

Since that time we have adopted the plan of co-operating with the Chicago Assembly in arranging to place a weekly announcement in the Chicago papers of the Sunday meetings as well as the mid-week meetings in the Chicago Bahá'í Headquarters and we have also installed a Bulletin Board in the lobby of the Foundation Hall of the Temple which gives information relative to all such meetings. The results have been most gratifying.

Green Acre Summer School

Last year the N.S.A. appointed a faculty committee to organize a Bahá'í summer school for serious study.

In the past various schools have been started at Green Acre but this school undoubtedly went one step further than its predecessors in that it requested and actually obtained some outside preparation for the class work. It is not too much to say that in the long run the lecture system at Green Acre has had very little if any permanent value. We all realize the benefit derived from an inspiring lecture but it may produce no lasting result unless it is followed by some real study.

The indifference to study does not spring from any inability to concentrate or assimilate new ideas but to the fact that we have no real desire for intellectual activity. After all, if we have no time nor urge to study perhaps our opinion upon things in general is not worth stating. We cannot keep intellectually alive upon the information we have stored up years ago.

In the "Dawn Breakers" last summer, references were not only assigned to the text but to books in the public libraries. It is true that less than half the class responded to this sort of thing, but it is also true that it was this minority that made the class worth while. The encouraging part is that most of those who did outside work were not accustomed to formal study. In fact some of them had been away from classroom work for forty years or more. Nevertheless they were all one, and we caught a glimpse of what the great Bahá'í university of the future might be.

It is often discouraging to those new in the Cause, when the class is dominated by the opinions of older Bahá'ís, especially when such opinions are a little removed from the present Bahá'í Commonwealth. However, unity always obtains when young and old approach a subject in the same spirit, and last summer we discovered that this is possible.

Sometimes, in a new field, it is necessary to be trained and guided before we can do much reading. In her course on the Psychological Principles for the Control of Personality, Dr. Coy demonstrated how a group may be drawn out to express not what they think they ought to believe but rather what they really believe. If we can discover the basic desires of a group or the individuals within the group then we are in a better position to estimate what particular phase of the Cause will interest and benefit each. This course was an excellent supplement for the teaching conference which was pressed for time and could not encourage discussions.

Other courses discussed in detail certain aspects of the New World Order, Bahá'í Economics, and the Foundations of Religious Belief.

Practically all of those who took part in the classes feel that we have laid the foundation for the future Bahá'í university. In the very nature of the case, such an institution is too far in advance of our present knowledge to warrant any description of even the broadest outlines, to say nothing of details. On the other hand it must be started sometime and the best we can do is to build upon the principles of modern education, such as they are today. The fact that we have few attending the classes need not discourage us.

Again we must differentiate between enthusiastic gatherings, which assemble for a few days and a group of students assimilating information over a much longer period. The whole atmosphere is necessarily different and the results to be obtained are likewise different. Yet we all know that the Bahá'í principles will have some creative effect in either case.

In this respect Green Acre holds a unique position.

To the friends that have known Green Acre for some time, many of the old associations—people and things—have disappeared. We don't do the things we used to do. We don't have the same reactions. We may even miss inspiring leaders. But may this not mean that we depended too much upon habit and the emotions that result from habit? In short, is it not possible that we have unconsciously built up a system of ritual and priesthood upon which we may lean?

Perhaps after all the salvation of Green Acre is in the inevitable change to which it has been subjected.

G. A. Shook,
Chairman Faculty Committee.
Pacific Coast Summer School

The sixth annual Summer School at Geyersville, California, July 3rd to 16th, 1932, was one of the most unique sessions ever held. The Friends on the Pacific Coast look forward with anticipation from one Summer School to the next, as the intimate association of the Friends and the harmony it develops, brings re- vivification and regeneration for the ensuing year's service to the Cause.

This year the bonds forged in previous years were welded more closely, and a sustaining atmosphere of energetic devotion displayed; notwithstanding difficulties that could have caused confusion. This demonstration among sixty or more Bahá'ís showed that the knowledge gained from study together was not alone of the mind, but of the depths of the heart, which brings about the better way of living. Non-Bahá'ís visiting the school comment freely at the harmonious spirit that animates these gatherings. In commenting on the Bahá'í Summer School at Geyersville, one of the prominent teachers at the Pacific School of Religion, said he had never been in a group where there was such a complete lack of racial consciousness; where each one seemed to be anxious over the happiness of the other, and where a group of people endeavored to live up to their ideals, as did the Bahá'ís!

The Bahá'í lectures on the evolving factors of society; the solution of the present world problems; and the paths to Universal Peace, were in advance of the contributions offered by non-Bahá'í lecturers, specialists along such lines. As the world in its wanderings approaches closer to the implications of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, the Bahá'ís will be called to leadership in directing the way to Universal Peace; as the people of the world are without vision and guidance.

The sessions opened on July 3rd, under the “Big Tree,” with the Annual Unity Feast. This Feast, under the “Big Tree,” has become an unusual pilgrimage of the Friends, for fellowship and devotion. Complete happiness and spiritual fortitude were gained by the one hundred and forty friends in attendance, setting the basis for the enthusiasm developed during the Sessions.

The courses of study included a sociological survey of the situation of society today; the bases of its evolution into the consciousness of the New Day; and the steps to Universal Peace; also a course on the growth of the Faith itself, from the memorable deeds of the Pioneers of the Cause, as portrayed so vividly in the Dawnbreakers, to the unfoldment of the sublime and Universal Teachings of Bahá'u'lláh, culminating in the perfecting of the medium through which His spiritual benedictions may be assured to posterity, namely, the Administrative Basis of the Bahá'í Religion.

The roundtable discussions presented an interesting feature. In the afternoons the Friends gathered in the shade of the towering Redwoods, on the slope of one of the Hills, and informally discussed the various phases of the subject matter presented in the classes in the morning, or other subjects that might require clarification or discussion. Following the creative method of discussion whereby each person presented his opinion freely, so that after the clash of differing views, the Spark of Truth might be found, a new vista of the unending opportunities of true consultation was unfolded.

Four public teaching meetings were held. Great interest was displayed on the part of many new souls.

It is very encouraging to see how the alluring spirit of the Cause is attracting the orthodox people of this small community. Now they look forward to the coming of the Bahá'ís during the summer months, whereas formerly they seemed fearful of these harbinger of a new day.

Twenty-three children, including a few of the village children attended the classes for the training of children. The excellent conduct and results were due to the untiring efforts of the Committee handling this important feature of the school life. Their plans will be further unfolded during the coming summer, under the direction of the new committee appointed by the National Assembly, on the Training and Teaching of Children.

In commenting on the program of the Summer School, Shoghi Effendi, through his secretary, stated:

“The wide range of the topics that are to be discussed and studied by the Friends, cover most of the important aspects of the Cause and such a plan will undoubtedly give them a broad and sound knowledge of the essentials of the Faith. Special stress, however, should be put on the history of the Movement, as well as on the guiding principles of Bahá'í Administration— for on these two points most of the believers are not adequately informed.”

In compliance with these instructions, the Summer School to be held July 23rd to August 5th, 1933, will present detailed courses on the History of the Movement and the Administration of the Faith. A special course for young people will be conducted on “The Influence of Religion on Society.” With these most important subjects for consideration it is urged that everyone who possibly can attend the School this year.

Let us not overlook the fact that the love of the Cause is ever augmented through sacrifice and service. Thus the loving association we enjoy at Geyersville, is assured through the sacrifice and service of John and Louise Bosch to all the Friends. Their sincere efforts could do no other than attract the benevolence of the Holy Spirit to all the gatherings.

Central States Summer School

The Central States Summer School held its second session at Louhelen Ranch, Davison, Michigan, July 31st to August 7th, inclusive. The average attendance for the week was a little less than sixty. This was twice as many as the previous year. On one or two days when groups came from Detroit there were seventy or seventy-five. This increase is largely because it is becoming more widely known that there is a summer school for the Central States. The first Sunday was largely devoted to a teaching conference under the guidance of Mr. and Mrs. Bishop Brown of the national committee. What an inspiring beginning their leadership, enthusiasm and devotion made for the week! For one of the chief objectives which our Guardian has set for the summer schools is the instruction and inspiration of teachers. In the morning Mrs. Brown explained the outline for the study of “The Dawn Breakers.” In the evening Mr. Brown unfolded for us the reconstructed teaching plan showing how this plan puts greater responsibility, not only on the local assembly but on each individual, calling for larger knowledge of the teachings, greater devotion, greater service. This conference between the group and Mr. Brown was continued during the consultation period Monday morning.

On the afternoon of that first Sunday a public meeting was held at a community hall about sixteen miles from the ranch. The meeting was arranged for by the Reverend J. M. Pengeley who became interested in the Cause during the summer school of 1931. This was the beginning of seed sowing in an entirely new field. Mr. Pengelly also invited Mrs. Ruth Moftef to speak on the Bahá’í Cause from his own church pulpit on that Sunday morning.

The daily program for the week was: a period of prayer and meditation conducted by Miss Pearl Easterbrook; a period devoted to the study of Nabil’s Narrative conducted by Mr. Vail; a consultation period for adults and one for youth; a public lecture; a class in public speaking; and informal evening talks sometimes around a camp-fire. This program left much of the afternoon free for recreation—swimming, horseback riding, croquet, walking, riding or quietly searching out the deeper mysteries with some wiser friend.

One of the most important parts of the school was the fine group of eighteen or twenty young people. Some of this group were awakened to the true meaning and power of the Bahá’í Cause and went away eager to serve in spreading the Glad Tidings. One of this group wrote afterwards, “I love to think of the days at Davison; it really was almost perfect.” Mrs. Dorothy Baker was the wise and loved guide of these young people. They conducted their meetings as a forum, headed by a chairman elected from their own number. Their program committee working in consultation with the summer school committee planned the course of study and called upon two ten-minute speakers for each meeting, one from their own group and the other a guest speaker. At the close of these talks an open forum was held to which all contributed. At all times the guest speaker remained silent unless called upon, thus insuring delightfully free expression among the members.

This summer school is held on a farm at Davison, Michigan, nine miles from Flint. The farm house and buildings, the cabins in the beautiful ravine are hospitably opened by the owners to the use of Bahá’ís during these nine days. The host and hostess of this restful country place are also desirous that it shall be used throughout the season for those wishing a short vacation of quiet and inspiration, and for Bahá’í groups for week-end outings and feasts of attraction.

Who shall say what were the results of this session? Our Guardian has set as objectives of our summer schools: to deepen the knowledge of the Cause; to strengthen the unity in the Cause; to teach the Cause and prepare teachers; to attract new souls; to arouse enthusiasm for continued study at home; to widen acquaintance and friendship; to gain knowledge of other problems and find light through consultation on our own. We think there was no one there who failed to inhale the fragrances that are diffused when sincere souls are gathered together in the Name of Bahá’u’lláh or to feel the love that spreads from unity in the love of God.

Plans are under way for the third session. Accommodations are being enlarged and the program is being worked out. The young people are having especial consideration in these plans. After deliberation the committee has decided to set the date a month earlier than last year making it the last of June and the first of July instead of the first of August. This will open the house and grounds for the season and it is hoped that individuals and small groups will avail themselves of its privileges for week-end outings or short vacations. And it is also hoped that some who come from a distance to the convention will be able to linger in the Central States, attend the summer school, help by their presence and inspiration and strengthen the bond of unity between all parts of our country.

BERTHA HYDE KIRKPATRICK.

Committee on Teaching and Training Children

During the past several years there has been a steadily growing realization on the part of educators and parents that while the present system of education in America is quite successfully keeping pace with the advance of science and commerce, it is somehow failing to develop within children those qualities of character that make it possible for them to adjust themselves with ease to the rapidly changing demands of social life attendant upon this progress in other fields. So generally has this fact been recognized that the first petition in the “Children’s Charter” as formulated at the recent White House Conference on Child Health and Protection was: “For every child spiritual and moral training to help him to stand firm under the pressure of life.” ‘Abdu’l-Bahá long ago spoke of the importance of this matter when He said: “The children must receive a divine and material education at the same time and be protected from temptation and vices.” Bahá’í parents and Assemblies have attempted to carry out this injunction to some extent but the increasing responsibilities facing the small body of believers have made it impossible for them to develop child training to the same degree as other branches of teaching service.

Realizing that Bahá’ís can point the way to that kind of religious life that will make it possible for young people to successfully meet the responsibilities that will so shortly fall upon their shoulders in all departments of life, it was deemed advisable by the National Spiritual Assembly to appoint a special national committee to give consideration to this problem. The chief duty assigned to this committee this year was to make a special study of the whole question of training and teaching of Bahá’í children, including the preparation of teaching material and other concrete suggestions for use by local Bahá’í communities. The members of the committee were appointed because of their special training and experiences in various fields of education and each, in addition to collaborating in the general work of the committee, has devoted himself or herself to some particular branch of the service.

This being the first year for such a committee, it is natural that a considerable amount of time would be consumed in organizing the personnel, surveying the field, planning a program of action, and collecting and preparing material. In order that it might have the benefit of the experience and advice of the local Bahá’í communities, one of the first steps taken by the committee was the preparation of a course of lessons which could be used by a sufficient number of Bahá’í communities to serve as a common basis for consultation with the teachers of Bahá’í children. To this end an experimental course of thirty-six lessons, suited to children of seven to eleven years of age, was made available to Assemblies at a small cost. No attempt was made to make this course an exhaustive study, but rather it aimed to give the class using it a very broad view of the purpose of religion and its influence upon the individual and society. References, prayers, and quotations for memory work accompanied each lesson. Twenty-two classes are using this material in some manner and most of the teachers have reported their experiences and expressed their appreciation of the plan.

Voluminous correspondence has been carried on with individual friends on all phases of the work and by this means the committee has gathered some excellent suggestions for future use. It may be interesting to the friends to know that requests for this first course of lessons have been received not only from all parts of the United States but also from Germany, Australia, England and Bulgaria.

In addition to this first step in the preparation of teaching material, the committee has compiled a vast amount of reference material from the best possible non-Bahá’í sources which will be made available to teachers and the Assemblies in the near future. Work is also proceeding on material for teacher training as well as for preschool children and for adolescents.

As a result of the plan for consultation with the teachers, the committee has found there is very definite need for such material as Bahá’í stories for children, music, Dramatics, illustrative material, etc., and it is anticipated that these needs can be met to some degree next year.

As the committee is eager that all it produces or sponsors shall measure up to the Guardian’s standard of authenticity and perfection, it has acquainted Shoghi Effendi with its problems and findings and at the time of the compilation of this report it is awaiting the advice and suggestions of the Guardian on a number of important matters.

In conclusion, the committee wishes to express its sincere appreciation of the valuable cooperation of the National Spiritual Assembly and the National Teaching Committee in stimulating the local Bahá’í communities in the organization of children’s classes. To these, as well as to Auntie Victoria and all the teachers who have been of great inspiration and who have given freely of their time, not only in actually teaching but also in sharing their material and experiences with the committee, is due much of the credit for whatever success has been achieved this year. As in all educational work this field of service is illimitable and great inspiration and who have given the words of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá: this year. As in all educational work its importance can best be defined in receiving not only from all parts of the world, but also from Germany, Australia, England and Bulgaria.

Procedure in appeals: The Legal Committee has furnished the National Spiritual Assembly a statement containing our views of the principles controlling the procedure under which the National body should receive appeals from believers, and suggestions as to the method and conditions under which appeals can properly be considered. This report was approved by your body.

Palestine Branch: One of our members has rendered an informal opinion as to any responsibility incurred by the National Spiritual Assembly in the way of taxes and the submission of annual reports to the Palestine Government arising from the existence of this corporation under Palestine law.

Comment on current legal matters: One or two important matters not referred to the Legal Committee, but having direct legal interest and importance, are referred to in this report in order to give them further emphasis in the minds of all American believers.

1. By-Laws: It seems advisable to record in this report the fact that since the adoption of the By-Laws by the National Spiritual Assembly several years ago, certain amendments have been adopted by the National body. These amendments are incorporated in the text of the By-Laws as published in The Bahá’í World, Volume IV, and in the pamphlet recently issued through the Publishing Committee. In seeking to act in conformity with the By-Laws, local communities are advised to make use of the text as revised to April 1, 1933.

2. International Bahá’í Corporations: Great emphasis should be laid on the Guardian’s letter to the National Spiritual Assembly during the course of the current Bahá’í year informing you of the steps he is taking to incorporate Palestine Branches of other National Spiritual Assemblies. These steps will lead to the existence of a number of Bahá’í Corporations in Palestine, representing the believers of all countries having a National Assembly. It would appear that these steps have been taken in order to lay a substantial foundation for the future International House of Justice.

3. Incorporation of Local Spiritual Assemblies: The Legal Committee would remind the friends that the Guardian wishes Local Assemblies to incorporate when they reach the point of due stability and strength. In addition to New York, Chicago and Washington, we understand that the Assembly of West Englewood, New Jersey has already incorporated or is in process of doing so.

4. Green Acre: During the course of this Bahá’í year, all legal matters arising from the Will and Testament of Miss Sarah J. Farmer have been brought to a final settlement.

5. Geyersville: Steps are being taken to constitute an Indenture of Trust by which Trustees for the benefit of the National Spiritual Assembly can receive from Mr. and Mrs. John Bosch their valuable property as a precious gift to the Cause.

6. Estate of Mr. Louis G. Bourgeois: The Temple Trustees this year have come to a final agreement on all matters outstanding under the two contracts with Mr. Bourgeois, the principal matter being related to the studio constructed by Mr. Bourgeois on Temple lands. The Trustees are purchasing this studio from the estate, and at the same time settling other financial items, under an agreement entered into with Mrs. Pemberton, Executrix.

Respectfully submitted,
Committee on the Training and Teaching of Children.
MAYE HARVEY GIFT, Chairman.
CHARLOTTE M. LINTOFT, Secretary.

Legal Committee

The Legal Committee, as requested, submits the following report of activities for the current Bahá’í year.

Committee on Free Literature

In order to make a survey of the field of free and inexpensive literature in use this committee asked the assistance of the Teaching Committee. The following questionnaire was sent to many assemblies:

1. How much free literature have you on hand?
2. When do you distribute literature?
   a. Public Meetings.
   b. Individually.
3. How do you follow up literature given out?
4. Do you consider distribution of free literature effective in teaching?
5. What is your choice of such literature now available?
6. Have you any suggestions as to preparation of new free literature?
   a. Possible content.
   b. Form.
7. Are you in need of free literature at present time?
   a. What?
8. Remarks.

The following is a brief summary of the many replies to this questionnaire:

1. Most assemblies had very little or none on hand. The small books in use were: What is the Bahá'í Movement, Dawn of a New Day and Temple of Light.

2. Both, mostly at the public meetings.

3. Mostly by personal contact, a few through invitations to the public meetings and notices.

4. Only two assemblies did not think this method effective. Many felt it most effective and important, but suggested it should be controlled with wisdom so as not to be wasted, as it is picked up around the Temple Grounds.

5. The first choice was "Dawn of New Day," second "What is the Bahá’í Movement," third "Bahá’u’lláh and New Era." Other choices were "Bahá’u’lláh and His Message," "Temple of Light," "Goal of New World Order," "World Economy," "Wisdom of 'Abdu'l-Bahá," "Peace Pamphlet," and "Bahá’u’lláh and His Message."

6. a. Possible Content:

   Simplified outline of Economic Plan; Approach to Cause through prophecies of Christian Bible; Some of outstanding talks of Bahá’ís and other Bahá’ís, such as to the Jews, Theosophists, Scientists, etc.; Development of Religion from same foundation, its application to social needs of its time, and what the Cause offers to the Social Program of today; Administrative, showing loyalty to government, world citizenship and federation of nations; a modern, general approach, which does not begin with the personalities and Mohammedan background, that can be given to business men.

   b. Form:

   Leaflets; small for stacks; folders (no staples); pamphlets. Distinctive print and attractive make-up.

7. Only four assemblies replied they had enough for present.

8. Remarks: Many did not make any comment. The most important was the need to expedite new leaflets on present day approach. Time ripe to make people realize the New Age and the New Order of things which cannot be built on old foundations, but on the Manifestation and His Teachings. Another suggestion for different types to reach various groups such as:

   "Reality of Man, his place in Divine Order and need of Divine Educator."

   b. Unity Students, New Thought, etc.

   "Prayer, its place in education. Must man pray?"

   c. For Young thinker and intellectual doubter.

   "Immortality, eternal life, values of the spiritual."

   d. For vast group of active people (social workers) who are perplexed over problems of today.

   "Way of world peace, cooperation of races (quote from scientists) service as standard for this day, new light on social and economic justice (quote from leading thinkers).

   Some feel that quotations from the Word of various questions, such as the history, prophecy fulfilled and being fulfilled, relation of the Cause to Christianity, universal peace, the Temple, etc., is best, while others feel that detailed quotation are not advisable in preliminary pamphlets. Some suggest the use of everyday English, in reference to names of Holy Family. It is interesting to note that some suggest literature for the uneducated person, others to suit the average person, while still others want literature to attract the intellectual people.

After a general survey of all the leaflets, pamphlets and booklets published during the past decade, most of which are out of print at present, together with those that are still available, the committee feels that something new is vitally needed, a series perhaps that will have a universal appeal and that will fit into a definite plan of progressive study and approach to the Cause. This series of small pamphlets or booklets should be of uniform size, attractive print, inexpensive cover (or no cover) to fit the ordinary commercial envelope. The number of pages might vary according to the subject matter, but should be arranged so that the various pamphlets could be put together, if desired. They should be printed in large quantities and sold in at least 100 lots, not to cost as much as the Dawn of New Day.

As to the subject matter to be covered by this new series of booklets, the following suggestions are offered:

1. Religion: Its logical development, showing the same foundation for each of the living religions, the universal teachings and the brotherhood of man, fatherhood of God, Immortality. Need of a Divine Educator. Religion's place in the social development of man, what it is and how the Bahá’í Cause fulfills and answers the needs of today with its social program and the 12 principles.

2. Outline of the Economic Plan. A brief survey of the problems confronting the world followed by a not too detailed presentation of the teachings on the Store-house, distribution of wealth, method of taxation (including the inheritance plan) voluntary giving, work as worship, cooperation in industry, etc., closing with a suggestion of the New World order, loyalty to Government and House of Justice.

3. The Bahá’í Temple. A description (more complete than the Temple of Light) with an outline of its various accessories showing the practical application of spiritual teachings to the material, social and spiritual needs of man. This should help to counteract the statement of just another church and in this booklet the emphasis should be given that it is for all mankind irrespective of religion, race or color.

4. Universal Education. A brief exposition of the Bahá’í ideals, bringing in the equality of women and the need for greater advantages of a universal character, the aid of an auxiliary language and concluding with the underlying principle of agreement between science and religion. Brief quotations from leading scientists on their acceptance of God, the value of the moral principle in life, and that nature is not the last or ultimate word to man. Such men as Osborne, Steinmetz, J. Arthur Thompson, etc., would add testimony to this important subject help to show the concrete application of Bahá’ís Thought to the problems of life.

5. The Oneness of Humanity. This most vital underlying principle of the Cause can be presented in a practical way, also touching the subject of racial, religious and other prejudices. Practical points by authorities such as Dr. Franz Boas and others could precede the conclusion of the spiritual ideal of this Bahá’í Principle.

6. Universal Peace. This principle, in view of another approaching war, needs another presentation of both the human and spiritual appeal. Perhaps a few figures of the appalling costs in life and property, and the means for settling disputes, such as the world court and international tribunal. Again the noble ideal must be translated into practical and reasonable terms.

7. Prophecies. There is still considerable interest and demand for this subject. This subject, if treated, should not be confined to the fulfillment of Christian prophecies, as this matter is well covered by Dr. Esslemont, but should rather include all the important religions, that is in reference to the new day, and the return of the Promised One. Emphasize the renewal of religion, amplified and fulfilled and its divine origin.

8. Power of the Holy Spirit. This in the nature of an appeal to the individual seeking self-development. The efficacy of prayer, ethics, the reality of living, showing that the direct path to reality is self-sacrifice which is service to others and the exemplar of this method is the Divine Teacher who puts these teachings into daily life. This subject would appeal to the vast numbers interested in the various “New Thoughts” of today.

9. The Way of Living. This to be a brief compilation of the Word on various subjects that will refresh the soul through daily reading and stimulate the urge to live a more noble and charitable life. Some of the Hidden Words, quotations on various subjects such as the ideal newspaper should be—beware of prejudice, love, mercy, happiness, the poor, etc., etc. A number of these brief quotations ones not used so often might be a fitting climax to this series.

In listing these subjects we have not attempted to cover the entire limits of the field, but we feel that a new presentation, with a modern approach to the needs of a perplexed and seeking society is most urgently needed. The titles and subject matter are merely suggestions for further consideration. We feel the need of brevity in these booklets and suggest that a short reference list of books for more detailed reading on the subject matter be included.

Each one of these booklets might be the opening wedge with an individual interested in a certain principle and if this interest is aroused then the others can be used for follow-up work. Again we urge an inexpensive printing, with attractive clear type. What is the Bahá’í Movement is neat, dignified and the type is readable. We suggest that only one address for further information be on each booklet. This may be a central permanent address where inquiries can be received and forwarded to an assembly in the locality of the inquirer or a blank space can be left for a stamp of the address of the local assembly or individual distributing the copies.

In closing we would also suggest that the Publishing Committee uses the same size of these booklets when publishing its next List of Books.

We feel there is also a need for longer pamphlets such as World Economy, The Bahá’í Movement, The Goal of a New World Order. We suggest also a uniformity in size and price of these books and also a definite plan in their writing and publication. Many articles written for magazines have an immediate appeal and then are often published and later, because the particular appeal has changed these small books are not longer in popular demand. The human spirit is not as universal as the Holy Spirit.

Respectfully yours,
Free Literature Committee
LOUISE CASWELL
HELEN BISHOP
GEORGE LATIMER, Chairman.

Youth Committee

The Bahá’í Youth Committee, in accord with the instructions of the National Spiritual Assembly “to make a study of the range of activities suitable for Bahá’í young people and to recommend plans and programs to be carried out by Bahá’í Youth Committees appointed by local Spiritual Assemblies;” and in the two months at its disposal, now reports these suggestions:

1. That the local Youth Committee be appointed at once, in such manner as to ensure the maximum freedom of choice to the young people. Whether this be achieved by the appointment of a large central committee, which shall in turn name its own officers, (as in New York, with a Committee of seven); or by the selection of a small committee which shall organize and maintain responsibility to the Assembly, at the same time turning over the election of officers to the group; or whether it be accomplished in some other way, is a matter of local discretion. The Assembly should also appoint an adult advisor.

2. That a youth program for the United States and Canada be inaugurated at the National Convention, through the following channels:
Committee consultation.
A period of presentation and discussion, in the main body of the Convention.
Such informal and social meetings as the Committee shall find it possible to arrange, with authority to invite outside young people, visitors to the World’s Fair, etc.

In order to create interest and enthusiastic attendance, the Committee wishes to invite all young people, through correspondence with the local Assemblies.

3. That this program, although it must be largely shaped at the Convention, include:

The encouragement of all possible types of groups, with special emphasis upon thorough study classes for confirmed Bahá’ís; informal discussion groups for strangers, organized about some inquiry such as “The Place of Religion in Society” (as was done at the World Council in Pasadena); and intensive training courses for teaching, to be conducted at the three Summer Schools. (Following the example of the Geyserville School which this year introduces a course on “The Influence of Religion on Society.”)

The collection and arrangement of available study courses, to suit youth requirements. Where material is lacking, the organization of new outlines. (i.e., There should be papers which connect the various aspects of the Cause with world issues. Also perhaps an outline for strangers indicating the essentials of Bahá’í Faith, etc.) An important phase will be the preparation of bibliographies. The Committee will aim to make this material available to all groups.

The study of techniques and methods of teaching—such as creative discussion, the art of narrative, memorization, etc.—with special attention to ways of acquiring these techniques.

Centralized co-ordination of youth activities, maintaining close inter-connection, and conserving efforts.

4. That a National Youth Committee be appointed for the coming year, not only to guide the national program, but to develop such long-range objectives as:

The continuous evolution of active co-ordination and co-operation among the young Bahá’ís. A census, with special note of the availability of various young persons, for the purpose of filling requests for teachers. National action upon national issues.

A campaign to interest and confirm the children of Bahá’ís.

The encouragement of literary activity: contributions to the Bahá’í Magazine and to papers of other countries; original research and the development of new material, especially that which will correlate the Cause with other branches of learning, and with world problems.

Co-operation with other youth movements and groups. Inform them of our existence, nature and friendliness.
Offer to provide speakers.

The closer inter-locking of Baha'i young people throughout the world.

Become informed of their activities, keep in contact with them, etc.

In the larger centers, planning toward the activities—intellectual and social—of a Youth House.

Co-operation with the Children's Committee, with attention to the needs of our immediate Baha'i juniors.

Constant attention to the gradual entrance of young Baha'is into active and mature responsibility in the Community.

The Baha'i Youth Committee, in sketching this program, is not unmindful of its scope nor immodest in vision. Such growth will depend upon years of work and devotion, happily given by a shifting army of youth. Indeed, there will be no beginning without that devotion. But we are confident of its existence. We discern in our restlessness a desire for action; we perceive in the social chaos a need for that action. We call for the whole-hearted and vigorous aid of our fellows, assured of a response that shall match in enthusiasm our conception of a Faith, the power of which possesses our lives.

Committee on Editing Tablets of 'Abdu'l-Baha

The Annual Report of this Committee consists of a list of Tablets and articles in the Archives which has been gone over carefully and filed alphabetically. This work has great importance as preparation for the publication of additional volumes of the Master's Tablets, but its nature is such that it cannot be reported in the usual way.

The National Spiritual Assembly takes this occasion to express its gratitude for the services rendered by the Committee.
THE STORY OF THE CONVENTION

The day preceding the twenty-fifth annual Bahá’í convention was one of great joy and anticipation as delegates and friends from all corners of the United States and Canada, drawn as if by some great centrifugal force, arrived by train, stage, automobile, airplane, and even on foot, in Evanston and Wilmette to consult together for four days on recent developments in the progress of the Cause in the western world. For many of the friends this day was one of happy reunion with those who had attended the conventions more or less regularly in the past, while for others it was a first and wonderful experience of the kind. Almost without exception the first act of the friends after removing the dust of travel was to visit the Temple.

The first glimpse of this glorious and imposing symbol of our Faith filled one with rapture followed in a moment by a certain sense of disappointment and failure because the dome, contrary to the great hopes of the Guardian, was still unclothed. Only the first clerestory section of one dome rib was in place but, as one gazed, one’s imagination pictured the completed dome and the events which are to follow this work, and there was born a deep determination that nothing whatsoever must be allowed longer to delay or interrupt the achievement of the objective which the Guardian had hoped we would attain before the opening of the Century of Progress Exposition.

The convention opened at 9:30 Thursday morning, June first, with 69 delegates present representing 35 Bahá’í communities. In addition approximately 175 non-delegates were present to receive the information and inspiration of the discussions which were scheduled to occupy the attention of the official delegates during the succeeding days. Almost at the same moment there arrived in New York, later transmitted to Wilmette, a cablegram from Shoghi Effendi which furnished the real motive for the convention and called for the most determined efforts of the American believers to set in operation those forces that will usher in the New World Order. This message, read by the Chairman at the first afternoon session, was as follows:

“Entire Bahá’í world stirred with expectation witness results American believers momentous convention. On its proceedings hang issue of incalculable benefit world-wide faith Bahá’u’lláh. To its delegates given great opportunity release forces which will usher in era whose splendor must outshine heroic age our beloved Cause. Supreme Concourse waiting for them to seize it. SHOGHI.”

In opening the convention Mr. McDaniel, Chairman of the National Spiritual Assembly, called the attention of the friends that this year marks the fortieth anniversary of the International Congress of Religions where, during the World’s Fair in Chicago in 1893, the name of Bahá’u’lláh was first given to the western world. He spoke briefly of the steady development of the Faith in America in the intervening years, the visit of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá to this country, and the leadership of Shoghi Effendi, and expressed the hope that this convention would through harmonious consultation generate the power which would make it possible to achieve that spiritual objective which the Guardian sets forth in the closing paragraph of his latest letter to the American Bahá’ís, “America and the Most Great Peace.”

Following Mr. McDaniel’s welcome to the delegates and friends on behalf of the National Spiritual Assembly, Mr. Alfred S. Lunt was elected by the delegates to serve as convention chairman and Mr. Horace Holley as convention secretary. Mr. Holley then read the Guardian’s letter, “America and the Most Great Peace,” in which Shoghi Effendi reviews the momentous events that have inspired since the first announcement of the Faith in America and calls the American believers to still greater heights and responsibilities. All during the reading of the letter, and as if to stir every physical sense to its mighty appeal, the structure of the Temple resounded with the vibrations of the material operations going on in the dome, and one felt that it truly symbolized “the roar of the Leviathan of the spirit” spoken of by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá. In order that the full power of the message might penetrate the very depths of their souls, several moments of silence were observed by the friends following the reading of the Guardian’s letter and in this silence there surged through the hearts of the followers of Bahá’u’lláh not only the sense of the responsibility which the Guardian has placed upon the American believers to bring forth the harvest referred to in his letter, but also a consciousness of the mercy which has been shown them in overlooking their failures and lost opportunities.

In commenting on the letter, Mr. Lunt called attention to the fact that the Guardian’s message is a record of tests followed by triumphs and triumphs followed again by tests and suggested that the American Bahá’ís might do well to ask themselves which of the two they are now passing through. “May we not, through the guidance of our beloved Guardian, and by the uplifting of this structure, the clothing of the body with its garment, achieve the highest ideals he sets for us?" he asked.

In response to these stirring messages from Shoghi Effendi the following cablegram was prepared and dispatched before the close of the day's sessions:

"Devoted Bahá'í servants United States and Canada assembled twenty-fifth annual convention beseech God to protect us and others results of our failure to complete Temple (in) allotted time. Deeply moved your stirring epistle. Evokes our gratitude, obedience your divine leadership. Renew our dedication, inspires determination (to) strain all resources spiritual and material (to) fulfill highest hopes (of) Greatest Holy Leaf and Guardian's fondest wishes for service (of) the American believers."

The remainder of the first session was devoted to a discussion of ways and means for giving greater publicity to the activities of all Bahá'í communities and making known more generally the qualifications and capacities of the individual Bahá'ís to the end that the election of the members of the National Spiritual Assembly may be done with greater conformity to the principles of Bahá'í Administration. Growing out of the various suggestions from the delegates the following recommendations were made for the consideration of the incoming National Spiritual Assembly: (1) that the Bahá'í News be edited by a committee appointed for the purpose; (2) that there be wider dissemination of Bahá'í news through this organ; and (3) that the National Spiritual Assembly emphasize to the Local Spiritual Assemblies the importance of intercommunication by means of letters from Bahá'í communities as suggested by the Guardian both in his letters and to pilgrims. It was further recommended that the National Spiritual Assembly endeavor to furnish before the next convention a list of the believers and the personnel of the various Local Spiritual Assemblies.

The first part of the afternoon session was devoted to consultation on what action should be taken by the convention on a cablegram from the Guardian dated May 18th concerning the plight of the Persian Bahá'ís. This message read as follows:

"Recent reports confirm the fact that Persian brethren are still maltreated. Ban entry of Bahá'í literature still maintained. Printing and circulation of literature within Persia prohibited. Urge convention delegates earnestly consider grave issues involved."

Mr. Lunt informed the delegates that during the past year the National Spiritual Assembly had sent messages to the Persian government and Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler had talked with the Prime Minister and believed that the order had been revoked. It was later found that the Prime Minister had meanwhile been removed from office and that the maltreatment of the Persian Bahá'ís continues is proven by the Guardian who asks that the National Spiritual Assembly send a strong representation to the government through Keith.

Dr. Ali Kuli Khan, for the information of the delegates, explained that the Court Minister referred to was the only man of authority in Persia except the Shah who is all-powerful and active. The only one to whom the American believers can appeal is the Shah himself who is very just and has risen above all prejudices and is interested in the advancement of the country. Mr. Holley, after reviewing briefly the various steps that had been taken by the National Spiritual Assembly in the past, expressed the feeling that the Guardian wished the convention to take such action as will enable the National Spiritual Assembly to make the sort of representation to the Shah that will be effective. A committee was chosen to study the matter and to draft a recommendation or resolution for the consideration of the delegates. The report of this committee submitted and adopted at a later session was as follows:

"Resolved, that the delegates of the twenty-fifth annual Bahá'í convention representing sixty communities of the United States and Canada, realizing the burdens of oppression still laid upon their brethren of Persia, recommend and urge the National Spiritual Assembly to take immediate action to bring about the cessation of the reported maltreatment of our Bahá'í brethren, to secure the entry of Bahá'í literature and to restore the constitutional provision for the printing and circulation of Bahá'í literature within Persia;

"And be it further resolved that the delegates pledge the support of the local Bahá'í communities in the achievement of our Guardian's appeal to the believers of America."

Before taking up the convention agenda proper, the delegates requested that two subjects in the order of items be changed: postponement of election of the National Spiritual Assembly until Saturday afternoon in order to allow more time for the delegates to become acquainted with each other, and postponement of the discussion on the completion of the Temple until Friday morning, following the address of Mr. John J. Earley Thursday evening. Therefore, the first subject for consultation was "The Non-Political Character of the Bahá'í Faith."

In opening the discussion, the chairman pointed out that with the receipt of the Guardian's letter, The Golden Age of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh," the opposition of the Guardian to participation in party politics became apparent and that later individual Bahá'ís as well as the National Spiritual Assembly received communications saying that Bahá'ís must not vote in any election based upon personal allegiances or partisanship. These instructions seem to have been misunderstood by a number of the friends and it was felt wise that they should be thoroughly discussed in order that some general understanding and action might be formulated by the convention. Mr. Holley in giving the highlights of the subject said that the first intimation that the National Spiritual Assembly had had that the Guardian did not desire the American believers to vote was on receipt of a letter to a believer containing this instruction from the Guardian. About the same time another believer sent in a copy of a tablet from 'Abdu'l-Bahà to Thornton Chase in which 'Abdu'l-Bahà said American citizens must vote. With these apparently conflicting instructions before it, the National Spiritual Assembly wrote to the Guardian to inquire if he were now setting aside the tablet. In his reply the Guardian said that the instruction of 'Abdu'l-Bahà is not conclusive under present conditions and expressed his abhorrence of political affairs, pointing out that the National Spiritual Assembly is obligated to carry out his instructions on the subject. The National Spiritual Assembly therefore drafted the article which appeared in the BAHÀ'í News of December, 1932, and which was considered by some as somewhat drastic. It resulted in the exchange of several communications between the National Spiritual Assembly and the Guardian, the Guardian's latest letter having been received too late to appear as yet in the BAHÀ'í News. A number of the delegates speaking on the subject expressed the opinion that there are many ramifications of the application of the instructions which certainty exist in this instance rank as Bahà'í law. It was the opinion of many that most people are unable to discriminate between partisan and non-partisan politics and that when Bahà'ís begin to question the matter they may be endangering every other Bahà'í community. Bahà'ís must never forget that they are members of a community that extends beyond the borders of one country and that the Guardian's instructions concerning non-participation in politics are not based upon human reasoning in any given community but upon his vision over eons of time and the results which would follow the actions of the present time. Many of the delegates stressed the universality of the Cause and that the question is not one of interpretation of the instructions of the Guardian but rather one of strict obedience to him in the assurance that the wisdom of the principle will become more and more apparent as time goes on. It was also pointed out that one of the causes of the persecutions of the early Christians was due to the non-political character of their faith. Politics was first introduced into the new community when Constantine tried to get them to support his political camp. As the Bahà'ís gain in strength attempts will be made to gain their support. As the new consciousness is universal and not local the believers cannot lower this standard by participation in divisional activities. It was pointed out that in "The Goal of the New World Order," the Guardian referred to the condition of the world and the fact that statesmen, no matter how altruistic their motives, cannot hope to improve it. It was generally agreed that if the world cannot be saved, it matters not at all whether one or another is elected, whereas the Bahà'ís are called by Shoghi Effendi to establish the new world order of Bahà'íllàh. Some of the delegates spoke also of the danger of subjecting the Cause to adverse publicity because of their association with the Bahà'ís with churches, clubs and other non-Bahà'í organizations, and a motion calling for the appointment of a committee to make a study of the instructions of the Guardian with a view to preparing a resolution for the consideration of the convention on the subject included a recommendation that this matter, too, be included in the study. This committee gave much time and thought to the whole subject and at the closing session of the convention introduced a resolution recommending that the incoming National Spiritual Assembly make a thorough study of all of the communications from the Guardian concerning the non-participation of Bahà'ís in political matters and that that body publish and prepare as clear and detailed instructions as possible for the guidance of individual Bahà'ís as well as for the Local Spiritual Assemblies which may be called upon to investigate the nature of local non-Bahà'í organizations in which Bahà'ís may be invited to membership.

The Thursday evening session was devoted to a discussion of the Temple. Mr. Allen McDaniel was the first speaker and he briefly outlined the progress that had been made in the construction since the 1932 convention. In July, 1932, a contract was entered into with Mr. Earley that the work of the ornamentation of the dome would be done as funds were released to him. At that time $10,000 was available and it was immediately turned over to him. Since that time twelve authorizations, amounting to $52,281.47 have been made. The work was started within a week and has continued as funds have been made available. All the preliminary work has been completed—the preparation of the original clay models, the molds, and the making of the casts, and the plant is ready to proceed on a production basis. The tentative schedule now calls for the completion of this work before the close of the Century of Progress Exposition.

Mr. John J. Earley was introduced by Mr. McDaniel and in language that was truly poetic he related to the friends the various steps in the construction of the models, molds and casts of the dome sections, illustrating each process by excellent slides. His address was so instructive, beautiful and spiritual that many of the delegates expressed the wish that it might be recorded and made available for the permanent records of the Cause. His humility and his great reverence for the thing he is doing made a deep impression on the friends and his address was considered by many as one of the outstanding events of the convention.

The second day of the convention opened, as did the succeeding days, with devotional services in the auditorium of the Temple. Chanting and the reading of the Holy Utterances mingled with the sounds of material construction and filled the hearts of the friends with great happiness and determination for greater efforts in both the spiritual and administrative growth of the Cause in America.

The first subject of consultation for this second day was that of the completion of the Temple. Inspired by the addresses and picture of the preceding evening, the friends began to bring in not only contributions in cash but also some of the most precious gifts which have yet found their way into the archives. These gifts continued to come in all during the remainder of the convention period and many of them had associated with them exceedingly beautiful and touching stories. Space does not permit relating more than two or three although all of them are worthy of permanent record. Perhaps the most precious contribution was the small sum of ninety cents—coins sent through one young delegate by the parents of a young man whose life was snuffed out when the rope which had been let down to rescue him from the well in which he had fallen suddenly snapped and dashed him to his death as he carried in his hand a lighted candle which was to have guided his rescuers. One cent for each one thousand dollars required to complete the ornamentation of the dome—a priceless gift of the parents in memory of their son!

Another gift, a priceless treasure of the body of the believers throughout the world, was presented by the hands of a small child, Paree Zia, through Dr. Ali Kuli Khan. This was a lock of the hair of Baha'u'llah, encircled by the words of a supplication in the handwriting of the Blessed Perfection Himself, presented to Paree's parents by the grandmother of Shoghi Effendi when Paree was three days old. Little Paree presented this lock to the archives and offered the friends who wished to make large contributions to the Temple fund the custodianship of the gift for a year. Dr. Khan read the supplication in the original and later provided the translation in English for the records.

Several precious gifts were also presented by Madame Bethlen who carried them to the convention all the way from St. Louis. Among them were a comb used by 'Abdu'l-Bahá, a small bag of rose petals from the Tomb of the Bab, a rosary from the Greatest Holy Leaf, a handkerchief used by 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and two rubies from India. Another friend presented for the archives a tea set used by 'Abdu'l-Bahá on his visit to Minneapolis and St. Paul, with the coffee stains still on the saucer and the undissolved portion of a cube of sugar in the cup. Other gifts similar to these, each of priceless value to the Bahá'ís, rings and other articles sacrificed by those who had nothing else to give, as well as cash and pledges were announced from time to time throughout the sessions. Some of the articles were sold and others will be sold later, but at the close of the convention a total of approximately $10,000 in cash had been received for the National Fund.

In opening the discussion of the Temple construction, Mr. Holley outlined the three types of trusteeship which had been set up in order to comply with the laws of the United States, the state of Illinois and the Bahá'í laws and he also spoke of the importance of not labelling funds intended for general use in the Cause. He reported that funds which are labelled pass under legal restrictions as to their use which might under certain conditions deprive the National Spiritual Assembly of the capacity to meet some emergency in the Cause while at the same time it might have more than enough funds on hand to meet the needs of other activities. A general Bahá'í fund, on the other hand, creates an agency by means of which the National Spiritual Assembly can render effective service.

Several hours were spent in presenting and discussing ways and means for stimulating regular contributions to the Bahá'í fund and it seemed to be the opinion of most of the delegates that it was not the response to more or less intermittent appeals but rather the steady flow of contributions, large and small, from all of the believers in every community which would bring the desired results. In order that some practical plan for achieving the objective of one hundred per cent contributing membership might be evolved, the convention elected a committee to draft a resolution for the consideration of the delegates. This committee reported at a later session, offered the following recommendations which were approved by the convention:

1. That the National Spiritual Assembly consider the distribution of this resolution together with Tablets of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá relevant to the principles of love, service, unity and solidarity in their internal and external relationships necessary to the establishment of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh, including the Master's Tablet to a believer in New York City which appeared in the Bahá'í Magazine, Vol. I, No. 17, page 1:

2. That various practical suggestions for the establishment of a system of economy amongst all our communities for stimulating a permanent and steady flow of funds into the national Bahá'í Fund made by delegates in convention be distributed to the Local Spiritual Assemblies;

3. That the incoming National Spiritual Assembly discourage independent attempts made on the part of individual believers in the interest of wider contacts with the outside world because of expenditure of money and efforts involved, since it is only by direct contribution of such monies to the National Bahá'í Fund that the desired goal can be achieved. If such activities should be undertaken they should be carried on only with the permission of and in consultation with the Local Spiritual Assembly and the National Spiritual Assembly.

4. That stress be laid upon the permanent support of the National Bahá'í Fund for the ever-increasing activities in the promotion of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh.

5. That the National Spiritual Assembly consider the advisability of associating from the Guardian whether or not the present time is opportune for the principle of tithing enjoined by Bahá'u'lláh to the end that believers desiring to do so may voluntarily assume the responsibilities and obligations involved in the development of Bahá'u'lláh's divine economy.

The third subject on the agenda, "The Functions of a Local Spiritual Assembly," although permitting of a general discussion of all of the duties and responsibilities of that body, seemed to revolve about the question of enrolling Bahá'ís in the community and of removing names from the membership list. A number of questions were asked and these were all answered by references to Bahá'í Administration and articles in Bahá'í News. Several friends expressed the opinion that Local Spiritual Assemblies are sometimes over zealous in the matter of increasing Bahá'ís membership and new believers are enrolled before they have sufficient understanding of the requirements of membership which often results in later tests and difficulties both on the part of the individual and the Local Spiritual Assembly concerned. It was generally conceded that Local Spiritual Assemblies should give more thorough study to Bahá'í administration as well as to the Bahá'í News which is published for the information and instruction of the friends in the application of administrative principles. One delegate speaking to this point said: 'When Bahá'u'lláh said: 'Ye are all the leaves of one tree,' He not only meant that the principle of equality should apply but that each individual in a community should assume his or her own responsibility. This spirit can be preserved only so long as every member of the community does his part, but if he does not read and study these things, no matter how many laws are made, he fails to live up to the spirit of equality. If only a few of us study we may become experts because of our study. If the spirit of equality is to be preserved, then all must study these things." The importance of more careful study of Bahá'í Administration was stressed. The Chairman pointed out that this question is becoming one of vital importance. He said that when a person comes into contact with the appearance of a Divine Manifestation, there is born within him a spirit can be preserved only so long as he reads and studies these things. The importance of the friends gathering before the beautiful stone sections which were unveiled in a most impressive manner, after which all assembled on the steps of the Temple to be photographed.

The first business of Saturday afternoon was the election of the National Spiritual Assembly for the coming year. At the request of some of the delegates the convention cablegram from Shoghi Effendi was reread and then, following the instructions of the Guardian having to do with election of national representatives, the delegates cast their ballots while the majority of the non-delegates sat in silent prayer for their guidance.

Following the election the agenda was resumed with brief discussions on the importance of inter-Assembly activities, amity activities, and teaching methods. Mr. Louis Gregory was invited by the delegates to participate in the discussion of amity work particularly and in his usual eloquent manner he spoke of the necessity of harmonious relationships and of teaching people the reality which will enable them to stand the severe tests which come to try their progress. Mr. Bishop Brown, also participating in this discussion, spoke of the importance of studying and following Bahá'í Administrations as well as the necessity of each Local Spiritual Assembly working out for itself the best possible plan of action and type of program suited to the needs of its community. He spoke also of the sense of humility that ought to be present in all Bahá'í service, and particularly in the face of the disappointment caused the Guardian by the failure of the American Bahá'ís to complete the Temple in the time desired by him. Mr. Philip Sprague, also invited to speak, continued this latter thought of Mr. Brown's and called upon the delegates to appreciate the full significance of the words of 'Abdu'l-Bahá when He spoke of the Temple as the "mystic chain which links us to the Source." He urged that all return to their communities mindful of the fact that the first link in that chain has been broken, that the body of the Temple is still unclothed, and that the determination that the work must be done forthwith.

Mrs. Orcella Rexford gave some very helpful suggestions for developing teaching technique and for the organization and conduct of new classes. She said the Bahá'ís are "standing in the smile of God" and recalled the instruction of 'Abdu'l-Bahá that the friends of God in this day must be happy and radiant; "If you cannot be ers of these newly attracted souls have a great variety of qualifications and methods it seems necessary that there should be some course of instruction in Bahá'í Administration which would help them to understand that Bahá'í Administration is not simply a set of laws for conduct and work in Bahá'í community life but also the very ethics of Bahá'í living. Dr. Lenore Morris of Racine, pointed out that the variety of methods and capacities of teachers is often very confusing to new people and expressed the opinion that there ought to be some sort of measuring rod by which one could measure his or her own ability to instruct these people. She recalled that 'Abdu'l-Bahá had once said that three things were needed in every institution: good intentions, confirmation, and action. She presented stage of the duty of the Guardian to the delegates to appreciate the full significance of the words of 'Abdu'l-Bahá when He spoke of the Temple as the "mystic chain which links us to the Source." He urged that all return to their communities mindful of the fact that the first link in that chain has been broken, that the body of the Temple is still unclothed, and that the determination that the work must be done forthwith.

Mrs. Orcella Rexford gave some very helpful suggestions for developing teaching technique and for the organization and conduct of new classes. She said the Bahá'ís are "standing in the smile of God" and recalled the instruction of 'Abdu'l-Bahá that the friends of God in this day must be happy and radiant; "If you cannot be happy in this day for what day are you waiting?"

The report of the tellers was presented at this session and the elected members of the new National Spiritual Assembly were announced as follows: Mr. Allen McDaniel, Mr. Horace Holley, Mr. Roy C. Wilhelm, Mr. Alfred E. Lunt, Mr. Fred Schoppfrother, Mr. Leroy Toas, Mrs. Nellie S. French, Mr. Carl Scheffler, Mr. George O. Latimer.

The session closed with a showing of the moving picture of 'Abdu'l-Baha and some scenes in the Holy Land.

Sunday morning the gifts of money and precious possessions for the Temple poured in more profusely than ever before and it was some time before the convention program could be resumed.

It began with a discussion on publicity, led by Mrs. Doris McKay who outlined what sort of publicity is acceptable by editors and how it must be prepared for their use. Dr. Lawrence Morris of Racine gave an interesting story of some personal experiences in getting space for Baha'i News articles, and Mr. Holley outlined the steps which are taken by the National Spiritual Assembly for the release of news of national or international character through the press associations. The question of the representation of the Cause at the Century of Progress Exposition came up at this point and it was announced by Mrs. May Maxwell that it would be possible to secure a hall on the grounds once a week at a very moderate cost. A motion was adopted by the convention recommending to the National Spiritual Assembly that it consider the advisability of this suggestion.

Miss Marion Holley, reporting on behalf of the Baha'i Youth Committee, spoke of the purpose of the Baha'i youth activities as being (1) to educate themselves and (2) to educate those with whom they come into contact. She stressed elasticity in organization for youth work in Baha'i communities and suggested two methods of procedure: the gathering together of young people in an informal manner for the discussion, under the leadership of a Baha'i chairman, of the subject of the place of religion in society or some similar topic, gradually drawing the group into actual and systematic study of the Baha'i teachings; and in order that the Baha'i youth may be trained to lead such discussions she recommended a course of this nature in connection with the Baha'i summer schools this year. Miss Mary Maxwell, following Miss Holley's report, spoke of the need of the energy and enthusiasm of youth in the Cause and mentioned particularly the contributions they can make to the cause of amity. There was some discussion as to the ages which might be considered as belonging to the youth group and it was suggested by Mr. Paul Haney that since Baha'i Administration makes no provision regarding age groups, the discrimination should be left to the Local Spiritual Assemblies concerned. It was suggested by another delegate and adopted by the convention that in organizing the Youth Committee for the coming year the National Spiritual Assembly consult the Local Spiritual Assemblies concerning those best qualified to serve in this capacity. The young people were permitted to adjourn following this discussion to gather together for dinner and the discussion of questions of particular interest to themselves. Later in the evening there was presented to the convention a contribution of a considerable sum of money and some jewelry collected by these young people as their special gift to the Temple.

Although the convention was planned to continue only to Sunday noon, it was found necessary to call an extra session in the evening to complete several items which had not been covered earlier. These included the consideration of the resolution on the non-political character of the Baha'i Faith referred to above. Just before adjournment a motion was adopted that the convention send words of greeting to the Baha'i teachers abroad, including Miss Agnes Alexander who at that moment was on her way to Honolulu from Japan. Because of the rapidly expanding activities of both the National Spiritual Assembly and the Local Spiritual Assemblies it was suggested that consideration be given to extending the convention next year over at least six days in order that there may be ample time for the discussion of some subjects which could not be more than briefly touched this year.

To those who had not attended a convention for some years the twenty-fifth gathering impressed them with the rapid growth which is taking place in the understanding and appreciation of the opportunities and responsibilities of those who have been chosen to set in motion those forces which are destined to establish a new social order, while those who experienced for the first time the meeting of the friends left with a sense of grave concern and yet joyful determination to make of themselves channels through which there might be released some of that force which the Guardian promises will usher in an era more glorious than has yet been recorded in the history of the Cause.

AMERICAN CONTINENT!”

With these words our Guardian in his latest general letter to the believers of America initiates the following spiritual challenge:

“Great indeed have been your past and present achievements! Immeasurably greater are the wonders which the future has in store for you! The Edifice your sacrifices have raised still remains to be clothed. The House which must needs be supported by the highest administrative institution your hands have reared is as yet unbuilt. The provisions of the Chief Repository of those laws that must govern its operation are thus far mostly undisclosed. The Standard which, if ‘Abdul Baha’s wishes are to be fulfilled, must be raised in your country has yet to be unfurled. The Unity of which that standard is to be the symbol is far from being yet established. The machinery which must needs incarnate and preserve that unity is not even created. Will it be America, will it be one of the countries of Europe, who will arise to assume the leadership essential to the shaping of the destinies of this troubled age? Will America allow any of her sister communities in East or West to achieve such ascendency as shall deprive her of this spiritual primacy and which she has thus far so nobly retained? Will she not rather contribute, by a still further revelation of those inherent powers that motivate her life to enhance the priceless heritage which the love and wisdom of a departed Master have conferred upon her?

“Her past has been a testimony to the inexhaustible vitality of her faith. May not her future confirm it?”

Friends of the Cause of God in America, what is to be our reply to this clarion call from our beloved Guardian? Shall we weakly, supinely and blindly continue on our way, or shall we arise as one great soul in many bodies, set aside the trivialities of the Temple dome. The ornamentation of the Temple dome. The national decoration of the Temple dome. The Shoghi Effendi has stated in his momentous cable to the recent Convention concerning the opportunity confronting the delegates: “The Supreme Concourse waiting for them to seize it.” Shall we not seize our great opportunity?

By: ALLEN McDaniel, Chairman.

PLANS AND POLICIES FOR THE COMING BAHÁ’I YEAR

A Statement by the National Spiritual Assembly

The National Spiritual Assembly since its election has given deep thought to the ever-increasing opportunities and responsibilities laid upon the faithful believers throughout the United States and Canada. The sacred obligation to complete the external decoration of the Temple dome; the urgent need to assist in bringing about immediate amelioration of the hardships and disabilities still afflicting the Bahá’ís of Persia; the grave problem of forging steadily onward through a society stricken with severe malady and tormented with suffering; the proper discharge of our collective duties as Local Spiritual Assemblies, National Committees, and as National Spiritual Assembly; the fulfillment of our personal and individual obligations as members of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh—these and the many other issues confronting us at this time require our most earnest consideration if we are to meet even the most modest measure of our loving hope.

In this brief summary, the National Spiritual Assembly will attempt to emphasize some of those means and instruments afforded to American believers, the full and proper use of which will continually augment our combined power to render effective service to our holy Faith. A Cause destined to encircle the earth and to unify mankind possesses even in its early days of weakness and inexperience, latent powers and instrumentality for the eventual achievement of all its essential aims. Let us, therefore, attempt to examine with new and deeper insight some of those spiritual and material institutions already in existence, no matter how unassuming and how undeveloped they may hitherto have appeared.

Bábí News

This publication, established by the National Spiritual Assembly several years ago, affords the only responsible and authoritative medium of communication among the American Bahá’ís.

Its functions include: the publication of letters received from the Guardian; the publication of all letters, statements and letters prepared by the National Spiritual Assembly; the publication of National Committee reports approved by the National Spiritual Assembly; the publication of such letters and news items as are received from other National Spiritual Assemblies and also from Local Assemblies in America as have general interest and importance.

National Committees and Local Spiritual Assemblies are invited to send in regularly reports and news items suitable for use in Baha'i News. Individual believers are requested, in order to avoid confusion, to submit their news items through their Local Assembly or through the National Committee directly concerned with that branch of Baha'i activity—as for example, teaching—under which each news item is classified.

It was the opinion of a number of delegates at the recent Convention that all believers should give more careful attention to Baha'i News. Since the Baha'i Faith goes forward by the power of unity, and unity is based upon common knowledge of all important instructions and policies issued from time to time, as well as upon the deeper element of adherence to the same Revelation, it would appear to be a very special duty for each believer to inform himself concerning what the Guardian wishes and what the National Spiritual Assembly advises.

The Nineteen Day Assembly

This institution, established by Baha'u'llah, has been described by the Guardian as the foundation of the new World Order. The National Spiritual Assembly understands that it is incumbent upon every believer, unless ill or absent from the city, to attend each of these Feasts.

In a general letter issued to Local Spiritual Assemblies several years ago, it was pointed out that the Guardian instructs that the Nineteen Day Feast be held according to the following program: the first part, entirely spiritual in character, is devoted to readings from Baha'i Sacred Writings; the second part consists of general consultation on the affairs of the Cause, at which time the Local Spiritual Assembly reports its activities to the community, asks for suggestions and consultation, and also delivers messages received from the Guardian and the National Assembly. The third part is the material feast and social meeting of all the friends. Only voting believers are invited to attend the Nineteen Day Feasts, but young people of less than twenty-one years of age, who are declared believers, especially when members of a Baha'i family, can also be present.

These meetings may be regarded as the very heart of our Baha'i community life. When properly conducted, and attended by a Baha'i community which fully appreciates their importance, the Nineteen Day Feasts serve to renew and deepen our spirit of faith, increase our capacity for united action, remove misunderstandings and keep us fully informed of all important Baha'i activities, local, national and international in scope.

The Masbiru'ul-Adhkhar

A letter from the National Spiritual Assembly, published through its chairman, appears on another page of this issue. It deserves, and will surely receive, not merely close individual attention but also extensive consultation on the part of each local community. The financial needs of these coming months are great beyond our human capacity. They in fact call for a truly superhuman resource.

The very greatness of this undertaking, its call for more and more sacrifice, more and more faith, more and more unity, is of the very essence of the mystery of the edifice blessed and dedicated by 'Abdu'l-Baha. It is the mighty purifying instrument by which God tests the hearts of His friends in a land where general social oppression and state restrictions do not obtain. Without this test, the body of the Cause in America could not undergo that purification requisite in the Cause of God.

Therefore let us throw off every feeling and attitude except that of being blessed with a task of superhuman immensity. May our resolution deepen day by day, until our will has become fused in one steadfast determination, one calmly burning zeal of achievement and triumph.

Unity and Intimacy in Service

The physical immensity of the area served by the American National Spiritual Assembly makes impossible frequent personal association among the believers of the different cities, towns and villages, and between the National Spiritual Assembly and all the friends on which one aspect of mutual intimacy is always based.

To offset this factor of distance, the members of the National Assembly have resolved this year to pay individual visits to as many local communities as possible. It is hoped that this practice will assist in removing some of those subtle veils that so frequently intervene between personal association and intimate knowledge cannot obtain.

But beyond these considerations the friends are reminded that the true intimacy on the spiritual plane is inde-
Classes will begin Monday morning and continue for eight days through Monday, July 3.

As planned so far the courses include one on Baha'i Administration conducted by Mr. Allen McDaniel, chairman of our National Assembly, and one on the influence of Religion on Society, conducted by Mr. Harlan Ober. There will also be a course bringing out the high lights of Nabil's Narrative. The day will open with a period of Iqan meditation. There will be a special forum for young people and the young people will undertake the planning of the evening programs for all. Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf and Mrs. Dorothy Baker will be there as advisors for the young people and co-operators in the program for adults. Mrs. Ober, Miss Fanny Knobloch and Dr. Lillian Sielken will also be there to lend inspiration and service. A course in public speaking will be arranged if desired.

As the session lasts only nine days it is a time for intensive study and concentration, but the afternoons are to be largely free for recreation and personal and group conferences. The life is that of one big family, simple, free, outdoors as much as possible. The Ranch is beautifully located. There is opportunity for swimming, horseback riding, croquet.

More Pullman apartments have been added in the big barn and the lower floor made into an assembly room. The rates are such as to just cover the immediate expense for food and service. Since these expenses were not covered last year the charge is somewhat higher than last year. The rates below include room and three meals a day for nine days:

Louhelen Ranch is situated on route M15 three miles south of Davison and nine miles southeast of Flint. Persons arriving by train or bus at Flint will be met there if notification is given in advance. Buses from Detroit and Flint pass the door. Communications should be addressed to Mrs. L. W. Eggleston, 201 East Kirby Street, Detroit, Michigan and reservations made as soon as possible, as a number have already been made.

If any expect to bring young children (5-12) please let Mrs. Eggleston know as soon as possible. If there are five or six such an effort will be made to secure a play director.

This brief session at Louhelen Ranch offers an opportunity for friends of the Central States to promote fellowship and unity and by intensive study to gain a real and inspiring knowledge of the Baha'i Cause. Shoghi Effendi wishes the summer schools to become more places for genuine study and for training teachers.

The Program Committee:
L. W. Eggleston, Chairman,
Dorothy Baker,
Bertha Hyde Kirkpatrick.

Green Acre

The program announced last month can now be somewhat supplemented.

During July, before the four weekly study courses which begin on Monday, July 31, Dr. Glenn Shook of Wheaton College will deliver a series of four lectures on "Modern Aspects of Science and Religion."

Next will be three addresses by Mr. Harlan Ober on "The New World Order."

Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford is to take the third week of July and deliver lectures on a subject to be announced at the later date.

Mr. Saffa Kinney, on whose supplication 'Abdu'l-Baha consented to visit Green Acre in 1912, will present discussions on "Baha'i Technology."

In addition, Mr. George Winthrop Lee will hold Esperanto classes, and the Activities Committee has arranged for poetry evenings, music and picnics on Mt. Salvat. It is hoped that a Youth Conference can be arranged under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf.

In Memoriam

The friends are requested to bless with the reading of prayer the spirits of these departed believers:
Miss Mahel Sankey, San Francisco.
Mr. Herman Pauli, New York.

REPORT OF THE NATIONAL ECONOMICS COMMITTEE

Notwithstanding that the economic question has been the most widely discussed issue before the American people, the past year, and acute suffering has been experienced by millions of unemployed and their families, your Committee has been unable to make any substantial headway in any practical sense, owing largely to lack of appropriations for carrying out some of the things that might have been undertaken. This is in no sense a criticism, since all the branches of administrative work have had to be subordinated to the pressing needs of the Temple.

The actual application of the Baha'i economic principles to the upbuilding of a Baha'i Community, as outlined by 'Abdu'l-Baha, must evidently be postponed to the future, although we are informed of efforts being made to that end by little groups of believers, notably in Eliot, Maine, to formulate the beginnings of this great spiritual possibility. To attempt this, however, in any national sense is apparently not our immediate task, in view of our Guardian's letter to this Committee published in full in the May number of Baha'i News. Briefly, the Guardian emphasizes two immediate possibilities, or, rather, urgent steps that ought first to be carried out. First, a deeper understanding by the believers themselves of the real basis of the Baha'i teachings on this question. This, of course, means careful reading and analysis of the Word in all its references to the subject. This would be greatly helped by a broad distribution of the compilation made by the Committee, and by intensive reading and study of the various articles and commentaries of Baha'i origin that have been published and circulated in America.

The second point emphasized by our Guardian is that, once having acquired understanding of the Baha'i position on economics, there should be launched an educational effort to bring these healing remedies to the serious notice of the public generally, including students of business operations, agriculturists especially, and other classes of society including of course the worker's organizations.

Your Committee has during the year been active in planning although we think the number of the Committee should be reduced, and a selection of personnel made from those capable of meeting together at least occasionally, and possessing a keen interest in the subject. Besides preparing the compilation referred to, the Committee, at the instance of the National Spiritual Assembly, drew up questionnaires directed to all the Baha'i Communities, dealing with various phases of economic needs of the believers, exchange of unemployed believers from community to community where they could be employed in their particular vocation, and other data.

NATIONAL ECONOMICS COMMITTEE,
by Alfred E. Lunt, Chairman, Dale S. Cole, Secretary.
REPORT OF SALES COMMITTEE

Owing to the fact that the enclosed financial report of the Sales Committee for the last Bahá’í year covers the period of greatest depreciation in the value of jewels and other contributed articles, it has not been found possible to equal our first expectations of results. It is hardly possible to realize, unless assisted by actual experience, the difficulties in the way of selling almost anything but gold for an adequate price under present conditions.

Jewelry contributions in general have not proved satisfactory, owing to the divergence between the contributor’s idea of the value and the actual amount realizable; the one exception to this has been the contributions of old gold for “scrap” purposes, an estimated amount of $271.00 having been received from this source during the year.

A total of $1,105.07 has been remitted to the Treasurer from all sources, leaving accounts collectible of $389.50, sixteen Persian rugs valued at about $1,500.00, a string of Oriental pearls which may realize $1,000.00 and some “scrap” gold (included in the above estimate) for which we may receive $200.00. The total gross sales for the year (to May 10) were $1,648.21.

It is to be hoped that it will be possible to dispose of the articles still unsold without further delay. Although the prices realized are disappointing from the standpoint of purchase price, the buying power of the money realized is greatly increased per dollar.

DELEGATES AND BAHÁ’Í GUESTS AT TWENTY-FIFTH ANNUAL CONVENTION
THIS CRUCIAL TIME
A Letter from the National Spiritual Assembly
To the Bahá'ís of the United States and Canada.

Beloved Friends:
The National Spiritual Assembly feels a profound responsibility in assisting the American Bahá'í community to arrive at a unified understanding of the crucial nature of this period in the history of the Cause.

The Guardian's urgent emphasis of the extreme necessity of completing the Temple dome; his unusual cablegram to the Convention delegates; and the tone of many letters received from Local Spiritual Assemblies since the Convention, all combine to impress the members of the National Assembly with the need of thoughtful analysis and firm grasp of the essential elements in our present universal task.

What was that opportunity which the Convention was so passionately called upon to seize? What is the limit of that fateful time granted us in which to achieve our share of success in the development of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh?

The members of the National Spiritual Assembly do not presume to have full knowledge of the Guardian's thought and purpose. The Assembly, however, can perhaps suggest some important considerations that will serve as a basis for the collective sacrifice and positive action required on the part of American believers in these swiftly passing days.

We are all witness to the rapid and momentous trend toward nationalism throughout the East as throughout the West. We have recently seen the outbreak of revolution on a large scale in one of the great civilized nations—revolution with its inevitable result in increased domination of society by the civil state. Such tension has come to exist within a preponderant area of the world that not only in Persia but in several other countries also the Bahá'ís are unable to exert any effective public influence. Save in America, the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh is grievously hampered and confined.

Anticipating this fateful trend, the Guardian more than a year ago informed us that the qualities of the "heroic age" of the Cause were now transferred from Persia to America. It is to America that Shoghi Effendi now looks for such powerful action on the part of Bahá'ís as to more than counterbalance the new limitations imposed upon the faithful believers in other lands. In the completion of the Temple dome we have been charged with responsibility for the one public achievement which will have greatest results for the Cause everywhere upon earth.

We must therefore attain to a fresh and greatly enlarged conception of what it means to the Cause to complete the Temple dome in the "allotted time."

It means nothing less than a manifestation on earth of the spiritual power and grandeur of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh—a manifestation in a form and to a degree corresponding to the particular requirements of the present hour. Just as the era of the Bab called for a manifestation of faith in the form of physical martyrdom, so now the era of the first Guardian calls for a manifestation of faith in the form of that collective sacrifice and unified action which the Temple involves.

The Temple, we are assured, will in its completion vastly extend the Guardian's range of influence to include the liberal and progressive members of the general public. Such messages as "The Goal of a New World Order" will become factors molding the public consciousness, and not merely communications directed to the believers. But until the world has been given a visible and material evidence of the innate power of the Cause, it will not recognize the full significance of the Guardianship.

The Master's prophetic statements are more clearly understood when we realize that Shoghi Effendi is the focal point of the world order of Bahá'u'lláh. Our devotion and sacrifice in completing the Temple are to reveal him as head of a World Faith compelling attention and respect. When the power of the Teachings is exemplified by the achievement of the believers, the "Golden Age" of the Cause will dawn.

Within a few months, with the completion of the dome, we have his positive assurance that the Cause will enter a new phase, the very "Golden Age of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh." Then, when the enemies begin to assail the impregnable Shield of the Covenant, and the friends seek the shelter of the divine Will,—then can at last the believers be fulfilled spiritually in living and teaching the Cause; then can the Guardian begin to bring to the general public the principles of the Most Great Peace.

This, we believe, is in outline the thought that every American Bahá’í can well take to heart—the conscious resolve to sacrifice his all for the sake of the Temple, and concentrate mind, heart and substance upon the achievement of this single purpose.

Consider these words which the Guardian has sent to America since the Convention: “Critical situation calling for further sacrifice combined resources. My heart yearns for immediate response.” (Cablegram to Mr. Siegfried Schopflocher). “The completion of the Temple dome is, indeed, of an imperative necessity, and the Guardian feels that during these five months the believers should persevere more than ever in order to safeguard the prestige of the Cause. Great as has been the measure of their self-sacrifice, yet, unless they redouble their efforts and concentrate all their resources to bring the whole work to a successful completion, their energies will have been spent in vain . . . In these exceptionally hard days we have to do our best and be confident in God’s unfailing guidance and help. He will surely inspire us with hope and will lead us out of this worldwide and unprecedented chaos.” (Letter to Mr. Philip Sprague.)

And in a letter addressed to the National Spiritual Assembly, dated June 17: “The thing, however, that is most urgent and of supreme importance is to insure by every means at our disposal the uninterrupted progress of the ornamentation work of the Temple. The cessation of work in connection with so noble and so sacred an edifice at so critical a time would not only create an unfavorable impression in the minds of the millions of visitors who will gather in Chicago this summer but will inflict grave injury on the prestige and the international standing of the Cause throughout the world. That the American believers, who have already on several occasions contributed so strikingly to the strengthening and widening of the basis of Bahá’í institutions will allow them to suffer as a result of their failure to prosecute this glorious enterprise, the Guardian refuses to believe. He will continue to pray, and has sufficient confidence in the vitality of the Faith that animates them to feel assured that the hopes and expectations centered on them by the Bahá’ís of the world will not be disappointed, and that the successful termination of what is only the first stage in this historic enterprise will serve to enoble the heritage bequeathed to them by a wise and loving Master.”

In the Guardian’s hand: “I am so eager to hear of the latest developments in connection with an enterprise in which so much that is vital to the immediate future of the Cause is involved. The American believers are deeply and solemnly committed to this stupendous task. It was gloriously conceived and nobly initiated. Its triumphal progress must suffer no setback. Its termination must be hastened with zeal, determination and vigor. Its concluding stages must redound as much to the glory and fair name of our beloved Faith as the initial steps taken for its establishment. I appeal to each of the champion builders of this majestic and unique Structure not to rest until the final section of the external ornamentation of the dome has been cast and set in position.”

Do these words leave room for either divided opinion or hesitation? Can any conscientious believer hope to render true and effective service by performing any Bahá’í action that involves or implies neglect of the one overwhelming duty? Is it the time for conspicuous teaching plans devised as an alternative measure of Bahá’í service? Our hopes depend entirely upon the full realization of Shoghi Effendi’s oft-repeated plea for the completion of the Temple dome. We shall be straying outside the Kind Shepherd’s fold if we think that Bahá’ís success can be erected upon any other basis than this one supreme task. But the task has already gone far toward completion. The $15,000 appropriated for Temple construction in June, and the $18,000 appropriated in July, leaves only four more months of equal effort and sacrifice, since the present schedule calls for a completion of the work in November. The considerable sum required for materials—quartz, steel, hoisting equipment, etc. (aggregating some $24,000) will all be paid in August, which means that the work of casting the sections can go forward more rapidly than ever. At the present schedule of $18,000 a month, all the sections will be cast by October 21. Meanwhile the work of placing them on the dome will soon begin, so that by maintaining this financial schedule the work will be entirely completed by November first.

The response to the telegram sent to Local Assemblies a month ago has been truly extraordinary. Not only was it possible by July 15 to appropriate the entire $18,000 needed for the July schedule, but by July 25 the National Spiritual Assembly also had on hand $6,000 toward the $18,000 needed for August. Much depends upon our collective capacity to contribute the additional $12,000 which the August schedule requires.

The Guardian’s appeal to “each of the champion builders of this majestic and unique Structure” will, we trust, be emphasized by all local Spiritual Assemblies. We urge the believers to give most thoughtful consideration to the facts brought out in this general letter, and the communities to discuss them freely at the Nineteen Day Feasts. When we have one will and one mind, no power on earth can prevent us from meeting the Guardian’s standard of success; but response to every passing mood and division of our precious powers by undertaking this or that local suggestion can only result in having our energies up to this point spent in vain.

Faithfully yours,

NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY.

ASSOCIATION WITH THE WORLD FELLOWSHIP OF FAITHS

A letter to the National Spiritual Assembly dated Haifa, June 17, 1933, conveys the Guardian’s explanation of the general principle underlying the association of Bahá’ís with the World Fellowship of Faiths and similar Societies. This statement merits careful
THE STANDARD OF SACRIFICE

"The important visits you have made to various Baha'i centers throughout the United States, together with the enthusiasm you have been able to create among the friends are, indeed, highly praiseworthy. You have set a good example before the friends. It is hoped that every one of them will arise to serve, as devotedly as you did, the beloved Temple and will be ready to suffer for its sake every possible deprivation."

THE BAHÁ’I WORLD, VOLUME IV

The Guardian has given special emphasis to this international Bahá’í work on the appearance of each successive volume. The American believers are urged, one and all, to acquire a copy if possible, and if not to borrow one from the Lending Library of their Spiritual Assembly. In this work we have before us the mighty worldwide panorama of the Cause, its international character, as in no other Bahá’í text. It is, besides, a necessary reference book in its various address lists, bibliographies and reproductions of such important documents as the Declaration of Trust and By-Laws, as well as its extensive quotations from the Bahá’í writings. The present volume contains a large number of special articles, preceded by the Guardian’s “The Goal of a New World Order.” Its large collection of photographs will acquaint all the friends with the sacred shrines and places associated with the Cause, and with representative groups of their spiritual brothers and sisters in other lands.

In size Volume IV represents a great enlargement over previous volumes, having a total of 547 pages.

All its material was gathered together and sent to Shoghi Effendi, who added new material and arranged the contents for publication. We quote his words concerning The Bahá’í World, written in December, 1928: “This unique record of worldwide Bahá’í activity attempts to present to the general public, as well as to the student and scholar, those historical facts and fundamental principles that constitute the distinguishing features of the Message of Bahá’u’lláh to this age.”

Copies may be obtained from the Bahá’í Publishing Committee at $2.50.

Recognizing its value in the field of general publicity and also teaching, the National Spiritual Assembly has placed copies in newspaper editorial offices and also with the directors of important educational, peace and religious organizations. Local Spiritual Assemblies can render great service by donating copies to Public Libraries.

COMMITTEE ON HISTORY OF THE BAHÁ’I CAUSE IN AMERICA

Acting at the request of the Guardian, the National Spiritual Assembly has recently appointed an important special committee to undertake a brief but complete history of the Cause in the United States and Canada. Its members are: Mr. Charles Mason Remey, Chairman, Mrs. Mariam Haney, Mrs. May Maxwell.

This committee has been requested to direct and supervise the preparation of the history of the Bahá’í Cause in America, with authority to request Local Spiritual Assemblies and also groups to delegate qualified believers to be associated with the committee, and with authority to appeal to individual believers for assistance and to search the Archives and any other available sources of information.

Local Assemblies and individual believers are requested to extend every possible cooperation for the early and successful completion of this unique task.

CONTACTS COMMITTEE

Another new national committee recently appointed is the Contacts Committee consisting of Miss Martha Woodsum, secretary, Mrs. Ruth Brandt, Miss Lucy Marshall, Mr. Rowland Estall and Miss Sophie Loeding.

This committee came into being as the result of the very successful experience of a local committee appointed by the New York Spiritual Assembly last year. The local committee sent Bahá’í literature and personal letters to a large number of prominent people, with excellent results.

The Contacts Committee will extend this “teaching by correspondence” work on a national scale. The National Assembly is confident that its activities will fill an important place in our efforts to carry the Message to the general public.

Local Assemblies are requested to cooperate by suggesting names of influential people of liberal outlook, sending the names and addresses directly to the nearest regional member of the Contacts Committee. (Miss Woodsum covers the Southern as well as Eastern States.)

PACIFIC COAST BAHÁ’I SUMMER SCHOOL

The Program which has been issued by the Committee of the Pacific Coast Bahá’í Summer School for its Seventh Session, from July 23 to August 5, 1933, is very impressive. The believers in those States can be heartily congratulated for their privilege of attending such a well developed program of conference and instruction.

The essential elements of the program consist of Round Table Discussions, Training and Teaching Children, Public Meetings, Unity Feast, Teaching Conference, and Courses of Study on the following subjects: “Influence of Religion on Society,” “The History of the Bahá’í Faith,” and “Principles of Bahá’í Administration.”

The classes are conducted by Prof. N. F. Ward, Mrs. Helen Bishop, Miss Marion Holley, Mrs. A. R. Seto, Mrs. Louise Caswell, Mrs. E. G. Cooper, Mr. H. R. Hurlbut, Mr. George O. Latimer, Mr. Ali M. Yazdi and Mr. Leroy Ioss.

PUBLISHING ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Publishing Committee wishes to remind the friends that “Seven Valleys” has been out of stock for many years, and that according to the Guardian’s instruction this Tablet cannot be reprinted until a new and better translation has been made.

On account of the high cost of printing The Bahá’í World, Volume IV, Local Librarians can be given a discount of only 10% on orders for this book. If the Publishing Committee were to extend to Assemblies the usual discount of 331/3 per cent, it would be obliged to raise the price of the book, and this would be undesirable.

The important compilation on inter-racial amity made by Mrs. Mariam Haney and Mr. Louis Gregory, published under the title of “Oneness of Mankind” has been reduced in price from 25c to 15c per copy.

When the present supply of Autographed Edition copies of “The Dawn-Breakers” is exhausted, no more will be available. Believers who wished a copy of the beautiful edition autographed by the Guardian will be well advised to order it without delay.
TEMPLE PROGRESS

The Temple construction budget for the month of August, the sum of $18,000, was entirely met some days before the end of the month. Since the Temple Trustees announced a monthly schedule of operation in April, the believers have carried the work forward without interruption by their united devotion and constant sacrifice.

This great task is now well on its way to a successful termination. By maintaining the monthly budget for September, October and November, the contract involving $150,000 for the external decoration of the Temple dome will be completed during the period of the Century of Progress Exposition and also before the coming of the cold weather which would compel suspension of the work until the spring of 1934.

With the Guardian's urgent wishes in mind, we can all appreciate the vital need of going forward with full speed throughout the three remaining months.

From the August report of The Research Service we quote the following detailed statements:

"During the first two weeks of August, the final (ninth) clerestory section of the great ribs of the dome was cast and the entire work completed on these nine sections. The plaster of Paris mold was taken down and reerected in the Foundation Hall for permanent storage. It is planned that after the completion of the dome ornamentation, the molds will be shipped from the Rosslyn plant to the Temple and permanently stored. In case of damage to any section in the future, the damaged part can be removed and new sections cast and set in place from these molds. (The molds can also be used in the external ornamentation of a similar Baha'i House of Worship in some other part of the country at any future date.)

"During the month the casting of the field and rib sections has progressed with even higher efficiency and better rate of progress than in July. A total of 84 casts was made during the past five weeks, 16 casts in each of the first three weeks of that period and 18 casts in the last two weeks. (It must be held in mind that each unit after being cast undergoes careful hand-finishing. This work is not mechanical but a remarkable example of craftsmanship.)

"During August also the structural furring system of the dome has been placed in position. It is expected that the first carload of ornamentation shipped from the plant at Rosslyn, Virginia, on August 28, will arrive at Wilmette not later than the beginning of the first week of September. Arrangements have been made for the immediate erection of these sections. The second carload went forward on September 2.

The months of September, October and November have the following financial schedules which the National Spiritual Assembly trusts will be fully met:

- September, $18,000.00
- October, 18,000.00
- November, 10,748.65

LETTERS FROM HAIFA

"Shoghi Effendi sincerely hopes that through these sacrifices that Edifice will be completed and become a focal center for the spirit and teachings of the Cause in that land; that from it the light of guidance will spread and bring joy and hope to the heart of this depressed humanity. If you will study the history of Nabil, you will see how the Faith has been fed by the constant sacrifices of the friends. Under hardships, persecutions and constant worries has the Message of Baha'u'llah been established throughout the world."

"As regards what Mirza Abu'l Fazl has said concerning the Seven Religions of the past, Shoghi Effendi wishes to emphasize that what is truly authoritative are the words of the Master. In all such cases we should try and find out what He has said and abide by His words, even though they seem to conflict with the findings of modern scholars. If He does not say anything on the subject, then the individual is free to accept, or refute what scholars, such as Abu'l Fazl, say. Through the discussion of these (statements by scholars), the truth will ultimately be found, but at no time should their decision be considered as final."

"The different nations of the world will never attain peace except after recognizing the significance of the teachings and wholeheartedly upholding them, for through these precepts all international problems will be solved and every man will secure the spiritual environment in which his soul can evolve and produce its highest fruits."

"The Baha'i world should direct its attention towards Europe more than to any other land, because it is a hotbed of strife and rancor. The political hatreds that exist there will not subdue not only consume its inhabitants but will ravage the whole world and bring devastation to the entire surface of the globe."

"Whenever he receives news of the progress of the Temple work he (Shoghi Effendi) becomes extremely happy, not only because that edifice comes thereby one step nearer completion, but also because it is an added proof to the world that there is a mighty spirit that animates the friends, that there is nothing impossible to them and that they shall attain ultimately their goal, which is the spiritual regeneration of mankind. (To Mr. Roy C. Wilhem, National Treasur-er, dated Haifa, March 5, 1933.)

"He (Shoghi Effendi) was deeply gratified to hear that the friends are attaching such a great importance to the teaching and training of Bahá’í children. The education of the youth is, undoubtedly, of paramount importance as it serves to deepen their understanding of the Cause and to canalize their energies along the most profitable lines. Inasmuch, however, as the national expenses of the Cause in America are daily increasing, the members of your Committee should be very careful not to extend beyond their financial resources the sphere of their activities. The plans your Committee has made should not develop to such an extent as to hamper the progress of the Temple work." (To members of Committee on the Teaching and Training of Children, dated Haifa, April 20, 1933.)

"There is a difference between taxes and spiritual offerings. The House of Justice has certain revenues such as inheritance shares, fees and fines. These are the taxes which, according to the Aqdas, go directly not to the Guardian but to the House of Justice. According to the Master’s Will which complements the Aqdas, the Huqúq goes only to the Guardian." (To Mr. George O. Latimer, Portland, Oregon, dated Haifa, June 17, 1933.)

BAHÁ’Í ADMINISTRATION

A Statement Dealing With Certain Current Trends of the Cause

Gradually, through the teaching of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá and the development of the Cause under the guidance of Shoghi Effendi, the believers throughout the world are beginning to appreciate the true significance of the Revelation of Bahá’u’lláh in the provision for a new World Order. The Guardian has emphasized Bahá’í Administration not as an end in itself but as a means toward the gradual evolution of social, economic and political life toward the goal of the new World Order destined to be established by 1963. The principal function of our Bahá’í community life today is to study and practise the administrative principles in order that we may gradually develop and demonstrate individ-ually and collectively the working out of the spiritual power of this Faith.

As we study Bahá’í Administration, we become more and more impressed with its comprehensiveness, practicality and power. Enthusiasm grows upon us and we begin to realize that with all of the increasing number of man-made social plans, the Divine Plan is the only one based on spiritual principles and realities and alone can solve the complex problems of the world and bring about justice and peace. We have infinite opportunities for presenting this plan through word of mouth, but the only true method of teaching, namely, that used by the Christ, Bahá’u’lláh, and the other great Teachers, is by "living the life." Therefore our immediate spiritual opportunity and obligation is to demonstrate through our individual lives and Bahá’í community activities the spiritual principles that are so dear to our hearts and which we so love to expound to others.

Functioning in our community immediately involves the basic Bahá’í principles of consultation and cooperation. In other words, Bahá’í community life implies group action and not the independent activities of a number of individuals each and everyone seeking to fulfill his or her own ideas and wishes. One of the things that our beloved Master emphasized in the lives of believers was selfless service. The harmonious and united functioning of a Bahá’í community is based on this fundamental principle of individual or personal sacrifice. In America where individualism is still rampant, the attainment of this station is most difficult and involves continual self-renunciation and sacrifice. Those believers who have been members of the National and Local Spiritual Assemblies realize that a great majority of the problems that continuously arise for consideration and action result from our inability as yet to function in accordance with the administrative principles. As we view the inharmonious elements of such problems, we see the intrusion of personalities and the outcropping of those human frailties that brought the world to its present status of confusion and chaos. The history of the Cause abounds in outstanding examples of personalities undone as the result of ambition, selfishness, lust for leadership, misguided or misplaced love, and unwise associations. This is indeed the "testing time" that the Master foretold so many years ago.

A very important principle of administration involved in the functioning of our Assemblies is that requiring full, free and frank discussion of all matters and then action taken by majority vote. After such action is taken this becomes the action of the entire Spiritual Assembly. There is no place in Bahá’í Administration for minority action or reports. How often have we heard in Assemblies’ deliberations the expressed wish of one or more members to be recorded as voting in opposition to the action of the majority. Such an expressed wish manifests the ego of our human nature. The Holy Utterances, as given on pages 22 and 23 of "Bahá’í Administration," gives our rules of conduct as follows:

"The honored members must with all freedom express their own thoughts, and it is in no wise permissible for one to belittle the thought of another, nay, he must with moderation set forth the truth and if differences of opinion arise a majority of voices must prevail, and all must obey and submit to the majority. It is again not permitted that any one of the honored members object to or censure, whether in or out of the meeting, any decision arrived at previously, though that decision be not right, for such criticism would prevent any decision from being enforced. In short, whatsoever thing is arranged in harmony and with love and purity of motive, its result is light, and should the least trace of estrangement prevail the result shall be darkness upon darkness. . . . If this be so regarded, that assembly shall be of God, but otherwise it shall lead to coolness and alienation that proceed from the Evil One. Discussions must all be confined to spiritual matters that pertain to the training of souls, the instruction of children, the relief of the poor, the help of the feeble throughout all classes in the world, kindness to all peoples, the diffusion of the fragrance of God and the exaltation of His Holy Word. Should they endeavor to fulfill these conditions the Grace of the Holy Spirit shall be vouchsafed unto them, and that assembly shall become the center of the Divine blessings, the hosts of Divine confirmation shall come to their aid, and they shall day by day receive a new effusion of Spirit."

How wonderful it is if we but stop and contemplate the spiritual significance of this new method of group functioning through true consultation and cooperation! Through the clash of differing opinion, the spark of truth is ignited and illumines the entire problem. Such a deliberative As-and visiting assemblies and visiting mulate and contact and written appeals, to imbue low, poor or wealthy, to conceive, urge every believer, whether high or

There seems to be a growing feeling among a relatively few of the believers that the Administration of the Cause in America is developing into a hard and inflexible machine and that there is a tendency to restrict individual effort and stifle individual initiative and enterprise. This feeling probably results from the lack of adjustment of these believers to the administrative era of the Cause and also in some cases from the personal feeling that administrative efficiency cannot be accompanied with mercy and love. In his letter of Feb. 20, 1927 to the National Spiritual Assembly, the Guardian states the following:

"It is the duty and privilege of the National and Local Assemblies if they find that the pressing requirements of their local and national budgets have been adequately met, to encourage individuals and groups to initiate and conduct, with their knowledge and consent, any undertaking that would serve to enhance the work which they have set themselves to achieve. Not content with appeals addressed to each and every believer to offer any constructive suggestions or plan that would remedy an existing grievance, they should, by every means in their power, stimulate the spirit of enterprise among the believers in order to further the teaching as well as the administrative work of the Cause. They should endeavor by personal contact and written appeals, to raise the body of the faithful with a deep sense of personal responsibility, and urge every believer, whether high or low, poor or wealthy, to conceive, formulate and execute such measures and projects as would redound, in the eyes of their representatives, to the power and the fair name of this sacred Cause."

This instruction of our Guardian has been brought to the attention of the believers by the National Assembly through the Baha'i News and also by Local Assemblies, and referred to in past Annual Conventions. Certainly the principles of consultation and cooperation through group action and individual effort and activity are not incompatible. Difficulties and problems have arisen in many Baha'i communities, however, from lack of proper cooperation of visiting believers with the Local Spiritual Assemblies. It is obvious that confusion and misunderstandings will arise if a believer from one community travels about and attempts to carry on teaching and other activities in other communities without full cooperation with the Local Spiritual Assemblies. It is not to be supposed that such visiting or traveling believers could or would understand local conditions as well as the Spiritual Assembly. Another interesting situation that often arises in the activities of traveling and visiting believers is the tendency to criticize their home conditions, and in extreme cases to secure the cooperation of other assemblies in making protests or appeals to the National Assembly relative to conditions in their home communities. Such activities are obviously wrong and will only result in emphasizing personalities and bringing about confusion.

Recently the National Spiritual Assembly has received a copy of a letter written by the Guardian, through his secretary, to a believer who wrote him frankly to state certain views about some incidents at the recent Convention. "He was, however, grieved to learn that, despite his repeated references on the necessity of unity and concord among the friends, there have appeared some misunderstandings among them. Such negative forces have always hampered the progress of the Cause and have resulted in utter disappointment. The spirit of parti­sanship which is but the outcome of individual passion and selfishness is fundamentally opposed to the basic teachings of the Faith. It is for cooperation, motivated by self-sacrifice, that the Baha'is stand, and nothing short of the adequate realization of this ideal can redeem the world and insure its safe and speedy progress."

As the Master emphasized, in his talks and addresses in America in 1912, the significance of the fact that all forms of activities of the friends whether concerned with the direct teaching, the summer schools, the building of the Temple, or other concerns of our community life, were all phases of teaching or spreading the word of God. Since the Master's visit to the western world, the American believers have not only risen to teach in their own communities but have traveled to the uttermost parts of the earth. We are beginning to see the fruits of the sincere and self­sacrificing efforts of our teaching work during this period of a little less than a quarter century. As we look about us, however, we are inclined to wonder as to why our communities are still so small in number. Why has not this great spiritual force entered the hearts of more people generally and brought more people into the active service of the Cause of God. Through all time, a human movement is judged by its exponents and followers. Undoubtedly this same "acid test" has been applied to our teaching work in America during the past 20 odd years. As the Master so often stated, we are judged not by our words but by our deeds. Our teaching efforts will have been or will in the future be of very little value unless we attract people by our "distinctiveness." The Guardian has set forth in a letter to the believers of America, dated Sept. 24, 1924, the significance of "teaching by example":

"Not by the force of numbers, not by the mere exposition of a set of new and noble principles, not by an organized campaign of teaching—no matter how worldwide and elaborate in its character—not even by the staunchness of our faith or the exaltation of our enthusiasm, can we ultimately hope to vindicate in the eyes of a critical and sceptical age the supreme claim of the Baha’i Revelation. One thing and only one thing will unfaillingly and alone secure the undoubted triumph of this sacred Cause, namely, the extent to which our own inner life and private character mirror forth in their manifold aspects the splendor of those eternal principles proclaimed by Baha’u’llah."

Let us urge each and every believer to give first attention to the development of "the inner life." Our first duty is to set our own house in order before we can hope to interest or attract the people of the world to the glory and power of the Message. Let us endeavor to lay increasing emphasis on attracting people by the beauty, simplicity and dignity of our personal lives rather than through exhortation and the repetition of minor platitudes. We must realize that we must first bring the Kingdom of Heaven into our own hearts and lives before we can help others to acquire this great station.

THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY.

NEWS OF THE CAUSE

Assembly secretaries are requested to make the following corrections in the Directory published in BAHAI NEWS last month: Add Miss June Jarvis, 1828 East 5th Street, Long Beach, Calif.; Change Portland, Oregon address from 1927 N. W. 40th Street to 1927 N. E. 40th Street. Change Columbus, Ohio address to R. F. D. 1, Box 109, Reynoldsburg, Ohio; change Phoenix, Arizona, to Mrs. C. A. Bugbee, P. O. Box 2172.

An article entitled "Colored Concrete Castings Made from Sculptured Models Cover Unique Temple Dome" by Mr. Allen B. McDaniel, was published in Construction Methods (a technical journal) of July, 1933. The article carries ten illustrations.

Another article by Mr. McDaniel appeared in a recent issue of a technical journal was entitled "The Temple of Light" in the June, 1933, issue of the Journal of the American Concrete Institute. The same issue also included "The Project of Ornamenting the Baha’i Temple Dome" by Mr. John J. Earley.

The Publishing Committee is sending out advance notices of two books which have recently been approved by the Reviewing Committee. The paramount importance of Temple construction makes it impossible to publish these works unless sufficient advance orders are received from Local Assemblies. One book is "Security for a Failing World" by Dr. Stanwood Cobb; the other, "Baha’i Answers, a compilation prepared by Mrs. Olivia Kelsey.

The Publishing Committee is also issuing a new edition of the small compilation originally called "Blue No. 9" and later changed to "The Dawn of a New Day." Its present title is "Principles of the Baha’i Faith." Twenty-five thousand copies are being printed, to sell at $3.00 per 100.

Copies of the Swedish translation of Esslemont’s "Baha’u’llah and the New Era" can now be obtained from the Publishing Committee. It would be a great service if Assemblies in cities having groups of Swedish people could present them with one or more copies of this translation.

A book has been written by Mrs. Ruth Moffett on the subject of prayer, and includes a compilation of Bahai prayers and meditations. This has been approved by the Reviewing Committee. Word has been received that the book will be published immediately.

Important Inter-Racial Amity Activities held since the Convention include an entertainment given in honor of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Urban League, New York Chapter, by the National Amity Committee assisted by the New York Spiritual Assembly; and a Conference for Racial Amity arranged by the National Amity Committee at Green Acre on July 28, 29 and 30. This Conference continued the series initiated by Mrs. Parsons in Washington at the Master’s request in 1921. Baha’i speakers were: Mr. Harlan Ober, Mr. Saffa Kinney, Miss Helen Campbell, Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford, Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf, Mrs. Louise Gregory, Mr. Howard Ives, Mrs. Zylpha Mapp, Mrs. Grace Ober and Mr. Philip Marangella. Invited speakers were: Rev. Charles Estes, of Montreal; Dr. T. E. McCurdy, Boston; Rev. Henry Benton Harris and Mr. James H. Hubert, New York. Following the meeting held in New York, Mrs. Louie Mathews, Chairman of the National Amity Committee, received these words from the Guardian, through his secretary: "The entertainment given in honor of the N. S. A. C. P. ... made a dignified effect, interesting and beneficial to the cause of unity between the races. It is hoped that your example will be followed and that in the future meetings of this sort will increase both in number and effectiveness."

Enthusiastic reports have been received from believers attending the sessions of the Baha’i Summer Schools at Green Acre, Louhelen Ranch and Geyserville. The friends generally seem to appreciate more than ever the advantages of these univalued opportunities for study, discussion and becoming better acquainted with believers from other cities. In forthcoming issues of BAHAI NEWS, detailed reports prepared by the various Summer School Committees will be published.

The Green Acre season terminated with a Teaching Conference held from August 27 to 30, attended by believers from Baha’i communities throughout the East. A very comprehensive agenda prepared in advance, and distributed to all in attendance, held the discussion to a high level and concentrated attention upon the most important matters. Dr. Genevieve Coy, of New York, acted as chairman of the meeting.

The Spiritual Assembly of Worcester, Mass., write that the believers have been deeply stirred by the Guardian’s letter on “America and the Most Great Peace,” and the community has consecrated itself anew to the task of perfecting the institutions of the Local Spiritual Assembly and of the Baha’i community.

Miss Ella Quant, an isolated believer of Schenectady, N. Y., has been led to serve by transcribing Baha’i texts into Braille for the blind. She has already completed the work on the compilation published a few years ago entitled “The Spirit of World Unity.”
"THE SEAL OF FINAL AND COMPLETE VICTORY"

Temple Progress

The illustration contained in this issue shows, for the first time, how the Temple dome will appear when the external decoration is entirely completed. Here at last is the picture which the friends had hoped to see in reality when they came to the Convention on June first.

The beauty of this completed portion is indescribable. The perfection of Mr. Bourgeois’ design, unique and indeed inevitable in its effect, combining a stimulating intricacy with a satisfying simplicity; the soft and delicate brilliance of the texture wrought by Mr. Earley and his skilled craftsmen; the impressive strength and endurance of the units when closely inspected; the play of light upon the rounded surface of the magnificent dome, surmounting the House of Worship dedicated to Bahá’u’l’Abá—here, at last, all Bahá’ís may rejoice in a true symbol of our beloved Faith, an inspired expression of its results upon the hearts of its devoted servants.

As the time is short in which to fulfill the Guardian’s highest hopes, the National Spiritual Assembly takes this occasion to report on the present status of the Temple work in some detail, culminating this statement with the most recent words written by Shoghi Effendi.

First, we quote from the report of Research Service for September:

“During the month, the casting of the field and rib sections has proceeded with the efficiency and economy established during the two preceding months of July and August. During September a total of 67 concrete sections of ornamentation were cast. Of this amount, 21 were rib sections and 46 were field sections. It will be recalled that the original estimate of the average labor cost per cast was $80.00. During the past two months this average cost has been reduced to about $70.00, and this lower average has been maintained in September.

“Of the units shipped, 76 were in place on the dome on September 30, 1933. Additional shipments are being made at this time and Mr. Taylor, Mr. Earley’s associate, plans to return to the Temple about October 10 to continue with the erection of the ornamentation, which can be carried on at the rate of about 70 or 80 sections per week.

“To summarize: the total number of sectional units is 387. Of these, 260 have been made, leaving 127 sections still to be cast.”

On September 26, after prayer in the Temple, the members of the National Assembly issued a special letter to all Local Assemblies, from which the following paragraphs are quoted:—
"The flow of funds into the National Treasury this month has not indicated our ability to meet the expenses of carrying on the Temple dome ornamentation program necessary to comply with the Guardian's instructions; nevertheless, the National Spiritual Assembly has been unable to believe that the friends will permit any failure in this the greatest of all present Bahá'í obligations. Therefore, work has proceeded at the degree of efficiency required to complete the dome ornamentation during November.

"As you know, this requires contributions of $18,000 for September, $18,000 for October, and $10,000 for November. For the month of September we are still short $7,500, due to be paid by October first. No credence should be attached to a rumor that seems to have been circulated to the effect that any deficit in the fund has been guaranteed by certain individuals.

"Your National Spiritual Assembly has offered fervent supplications in the Temple, united under the now partially decorated dome, that the increased and sustained sacrifices and united efforts of the friends may achieve the divine goal."

Since that letter was issued, $5,500 has been received. But the sum of $2,000 is still in deficit for construction in September, and the schedule calls for $18,000 additional in October. To maintain the Temple schedule, therefore, the National Fund must receive $20,000 this month.

One point of vital importance should be made clear.

The monthly schedule of work must be determined before the month begins, while payment is made for work done at the end of the month. Thus, the Temple Trustees authorized for September work in the amount of $18,000, although only about $5,500 was actually on hand on September first. If the Trustees had authorized only the work that could be done for $5,000, the Temple schedule would have been fatally interrupted.

The National Spiritual Assembly wishes every believer to take this situation to heart: that the members are called upon to assume responsibility for a decision creating liability at the rate of $18,000 for September and now for October also. If the National Assembly lacked faith, it would only authorize work to the extent of cash in hand, and such a procedure would have two bad results—first, greatly increasing the final cost, and second, delaying the completion of the dome unit far beyond November—perhaps until spring. Under the circumstances, only one decision was possible: namely, to continue Temple construction and have absolute faith that this decision will be vindicated by the unity and sacrifice of the American Bahá'ís.

We now quote the most recent message from the Guardian on the subject of the Temple, written to the National Assembly in his own hand:—

"The magnificent achievement of the American believers, the stupendous efforts they have exerted in the month of August on behalf of the Temple Fund cannot be allowed to pass unnoticed. A fresh record of service, an unexampled standard of self-sacrifice has been attained and established through their concerted, their persistent and heroic efforts. The entire Bahá'í world cannot but feel thrilled as it contemplates such striking evidences of Bahá'í solidarity, of spiritual fervor, of self-abnegation. 'Abdu'l-Bahá, from the realms above, looks down upon those responsible for such deeds with feelings of unmitigated pride, joy and satisfaction. The concluding stages of this stirring episode in the history of the Faith in that land must witness still greater triumphs, must establish a still more excellent standard of Bahá'í stewardship. The remaining months of September and October must set the seal of final and complete victory to an enterprise that stands unparalleled in the annals of the Cause in the West. Your true and grateful brother, Shoghi."

(September 6, 1933).

With these ringing words before us, the National Spiritual Assembly is confident that the American believers will accomplish the full task which the Guardian has given us as our highest privilege in the Cause of God.

NON-PARTICIATION OF BAHÁ'ÍS IN POLITICAL AFFAIRS

The delicate question of the nonpolitical character of the Bahá'í Faith has further clarification in the following words written by the Guardian in a letter dated March 16, 1933. In quoting these words, the National Spiritual Assembly wishes to inform the friends that a special committee has been appointed to draft a statement which is intended to present this subject to American believers in final form.

"The handling of this delicate and vital problem regarding non-participation by Bahá'ís of East and West in political affairs, calls for the utmost circumspection, tact, patience and vigilance, on the part of those whose function and privilege is to guard, promote and administer the activities of a world-wide, ever-advancing Cause. The misgivings and apprehensions of individual Bahá'ís should be allayed and eventually completely dispelled. Any misconception of the same and genuine patriotism that animates every Bahá'í heart, if it ever obscures or perplexes the minds of responsible government officials, should be instantly and courageously dispelled. Any deliberate misrepresentation by the enemies of the Cause of God, of the aim, the tenets and methods of the administrators of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh should be vigorously faced and its fallacy pitilessly exposed. The Cause to which we belong stands on the threshold of an era of unprecedented expansion. Its problems are many, divers and challenging. Our methods and ways of approach must likewise be characterized by unusual sagacity, consummate skill and wisdom. He will surely never fail us in meeting the needs of a critical hour."

IN MEMORIAM

The friends are requested to remember in prayer the believers who have passed into the Kingdom:

- Mrs. Mae Warrick Hughes, Glendale, Calif.
- Miss Lena Geib, Bloomfield, N. J.
- Mrs. Rachel O. North, Chicago, Ill.
- Mr. Charles T. Kerin, Pittsburgh, Pa.

PUBLISHING ANNOUNCEMENTS

The small prayer book issued a few years ago to sell at ten cents, having gone out of print, a committee of the National Assembly has compiled a new prayer book to take its place. It contains representative prayers selected from writings of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá, all taken from accurate and recognized sources.

This new prayer book is now on the press and will be ready during October.

Twenty-five thousand copies of a new booklet on the Temple are also on the press. This was prepared by the Temple Program Committee in order to meet the need of free literature at the Temple, and the material prepared by that committee was amplified by material selected from The Bahá'í World, Vol. IV, at the request of the National Spiritual Assembly.

Of the 25,000 copies ordered, 15,000 are to be given to the Temple Program Committee, and the balance of 10,000 copies held by the Publishing Committee for sale to Assemblies in lots of 100 or more copies. It is suggested that Local Assemblies purchase copies for local free distribution—a most timely teaching aid. Price, $2.00 per 100. (No discount allowed on free literature.)

Copies of the Swedish translation of the Esslemont book are now available. $1.50 each.

The Publishing Committee has established a Western Division at San Francisco, for the more efficient service to Assemblies in the following States: Washington, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Idaho, Oregon, California, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, British Columbia, Hawaii.

Believers in those States and Provinces should send orders directly to Western Division, Bahá'í Publishing Committee, Mrs. Emma F. Smith, Manager, 1245 Broderick Street, San Francisco, Calif. Both time and shipping expense will be saved through the organization of this Western Division. The Committee is grateful to Mrs. Smith for this important undertaking.

TEMPLE MODEL EXHIBITED AT CENTURY OF PROGRESS EXPOSITION

At the suggestion of the Chicago Spiritual Assembly, a beautiful model of the Bahá’í House of Worship was, early in September, placed on display in the Hall of Religions at the Fair. Two believers are at all times stationed near the model to answer questions and give out literature. A special edition of 50,000 copies of Dr. Esslemont’s leaflet, “What is the Bahá’í Faith?” has been provided for this purpose. The exhibit will remain until the termination of the Fair.

The Spiritual Assembly of Chicago reports that the model is making a great impression upon the throng which every day passes through the Hall of Religions.

BAHÁ’Í REPRESENTATION AT WORLD FELLOWSHIP OF FAITHS

Following receipt of the Guardian’s statement (published in the August, 1933 issue) that Bahá’í speakers might take part in the program of the World Fellowship of Faiths, conducted at Chicago coincidently with the Century of Progress Exposition, the National Spiritual Assembly requested Mr. Albert Vail, Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford and Mr. Allen B. McDaniel to represent the Cause.

A special committee was appointed two years ago to arrange for Bahá’í representation in the Parliament of Religions which it was believed the Century of Progress Exposition would surely hold in commemoration of the Parliament held in 1893. This committee learned that the Hall of Religions would not involve any plan for a Parliament of Religions but would merely provide space for religious exhibits on a paid basis. The sessions of the World Fellowship of Faiths have been arranged outside the Fair by a national committee which hopes to continue the tradition of the famous Parliament of 1893.

A LETTER FROM MRS. KEITH RANSOM-KEHLER

With the utmost enthusiasm I have read every word of the July NEWS containing Miss Linfoot’s vivid and refreshing report of the Convention.

The profound social, economic and political changes that have transpired in our dear land since my departure more than two years ago have, perhaps unconsciously, found their echo in the tone, conduct, dedication and determination of the Twenty-fifth Convention.

‘Abdu’l-Bahá exhorts us to make of this world another world but we find that after near a century of the power and authority of this Revelation it is still the world that changes the Bahá’ís, not the Bahá’ís the world.

Shoghi Effendi, the beloved of our hearts, said: “The progress of the Cause depends upon two factors: one is the effort of the believers; the other is God’s own ways that are independent of our efforts.” And then he continued that according to the words and warnings of the Master God’s way was through a quotidian of suffering that would force humanity to the healing and redemptive laws of Bahá’u’lláh.

Well is it with him who, in that “great and very terrible” day has found shelter under the “shade that overshadoweth all mankind.”

My heart is pierced and my spirit uplifted by the new note of profound responsibility, utter dedication, universal vision and indomitable courage displayed by the friends of America under such discouraging conditions.

What does it mean to us whether we, or some other nation carry to their triumphal issue the plans and purposes of Bahá’u’lláh? But one clear and simple task lies before us: not emulation, not competition, though it be a competition in virtue, strength and courage, but that continually renewed effort that lays at every moment before the feet of God the furthest extent of our capacity, the final attenuation of our superhuman endeavor.

When the Bahá’ís of America have attained to that station, let who will lead the Bahá’í world; with humility, joy and gratitude we can then acclaim their leadership.

Having, between 1925 and 1931, visited the great majority of our Bahá’í communities I was particularly gratified to find so many unfamiliar faces in the Convention photograph—I mean, of course, that most of the Bahá’í faces of a few years ago are familiar to me. May this new growth in the Cause speed the day of its ascendency.

With warm Bahá’í love to all the friends,

Your sister in His service,

Keith

LETTER FROM COMMITTEE ON HISTORY OF THE CAUSE IN AMERICA

Dear Friends:

Shoghi Effendi has expressed the desire that a history be published of the first forty years of the Bahá’í Cause in America. The National Spiritual Assembly has, therefore, appointed a committee to gather together the necessary material for this history and to prepare it for publication.

The first work of the committee will be to collect all historical data regarding the founding in the early days and the growth and development of the Bahá’í Cause in this country. For this we need historical information which, for the most part, only the old Bahá’ís are able to give, but which many of the younger Bahá’ís are also able to give because of their association with the older friends. We, therefore, ask each individual Bahá’í who can make any contribution to write out his or her reminiscences and facts and send these to the committee. The original documents sent to us will eventually, in their entirety, be turned in to the National Bahá’í Archives, our committee using the material needed for the printed history.

It is hoped that each individual Bahá’í will lose no time in assisting us in our work by writing out his or her reminiscences and recollections and
These talks were of an inspirational nature as well as such as to acquaint us with the early history of the Cause. The planning of the evenings was given over to the young people who made excellent use of the opportunity. These evenings were joyous occasions which brought fellowship and understanding between young and old. The young people were a most vital and hopeful part of the school. Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Greenleaf served as directors and advisors to this group. Of this work Mrs. Baker writes: "They attended regularly many of the lectures and in addition carried on a forum for discussion of Baha'i subjects from the point of view of youth problems. Wishing to be of service to all they took entire charge of evening social gatherings and United them to music, poetry, stories, talks, and sometimes to good wholesome fun, enjoyed alike by young and old. And beneath the jollity ran always the definite, purposeful undercurrent of Bahá’í feeling. Twenty-six young people, some non-Bahá’í on arrival, went away confirmed in the Faith and with the deep blessing of true spiritual fervor in their hearts. One, an avowed atheist when he came, went away with the love of Bahá’u’lláh with him and looks forward to a life of devoted service in His Cause. Dear, gay, courageous, young Bahá’ís, all setting out to work in His vineyard. I have heard of three youth groups that did not before come in touch with Central States Youth Group expressed surprise that there was such a large group.

Toward the end of the week a number of newcomers arrived bringing fresh inspiration. With the arrival of Philip Sprague special Temple meetings were held though the Temple had already been emphasized and a collection begun. The three hundred dollars already raised was swelled to nearly five hundred. Ruth Moffett's talks with her chart gave us an opportunity to see the value of charts in teaching. They make a strong appeal to the visually minded. Mary Maxwell thrilled us in two talks which revealed the power of devoted and inspired young people. These were based on the Dawn-Breakers and made plain the work that is being done with this book in Montreal.

We are beginning to think and plan for next summer. We are hoping to try the experiment of having a short school just for the young people alone, with teachers and counsellors to guide them.

For the committee, Bertha Hyde Kirkpatrick, Sec'y.

POONIA BAHAI'S SET STANDARD OF SACRIFICE FOR TEMPLE

On October 4, 1933, the following cablegram was received from the believers of Poonia, India: "Cabled 1800 dollars. Though exhausted, Poonia friends wont rest until beloved Temple rises or they fall."

This noble and heroic devotion corresponds entirely to the Guardian's statement that the Temple, when completed, will have an influence proportioned to the amount of sacrifice that has gone into its construction.

The American believers appreciate beyond our power of expression such a remarkable and indeed historic evidence of the oneness of the worldwide Bahá’í community, and accept this contribution as a challenge to our own capacity to serve the Cause in like measure.

NEWS OF THE CAUSE

Mr. C. G. Nordquist makes a correction in that part of the Convention report (published in July Baha'i News) referring to the story told about the young man who perished as the result of the caving in of the walls of a well. After his body was recovered, his mother found $1.40 in the pockets of his clothing, and this she gave to the Temple Fund as one of her most treasured possessions in remembrance of her son.

The Spiritual Assembly of West Englewood held a Public Conference on The New World Order, in commemoration of the twenty-first anniversary of the Unity Feast given by 'Abdu'l-Baha to Bahá'ís of the New York metropolitan district in June, 1912. The meeting had two sessions, 3:30 and 8:30 P. M., June 23, 1933. Mr. Hooper Harris spoke on "The Bahá'í Message for the New Day" and Mirza Ali Kuli Khan spoke on "The Solution to the World Problems." Mr. Roy C. Wilhelm acted as chairman. Several hundred people attended this Conference, which has become an important annual event.

Frequent letters have been received from the Chicago Spiritual Assembly during recent months reporting new members added to the community. Monthly teaching reports have also been received for June and July, 1933, which convey details of many interesting and constructive activities. Among those which might be considered by other Assemblies are: the establishment of Branch Reading Libraries in Bahá'í homes in various parts of the city; the appointment of a committee to establish a Dramatic Department, the first achievement of which was "An Evening of the Fine Arts" held at the Bahá'í Headquarters on July 7, with about 150 people present; a Contact Department, to write to the various clubs, inviting them to call upon the Assembly for speakers and making it clear that there are no charges for Bahá'í speakers. Members of the clubs are also invited to visit the Chicago Bahá'í Reading Room and attend Bahá'í lectures. Fireside groups are conducted at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Edwards and of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Matthiesen. During June, Wednesday noon Lectures were delivered at the Headquarters by Mirza Ali Kuli Khan, and Mrs. Shahnaz Waite. Friday evening lectures were delivered by Mrs. Waite and by Mrs. Willard Baldwin.

Among the more important activities reported by the Philadelphia Assembly for the period of several months preceding the Convention were: an Inter-Assembly Teaching Conference combining the believers of Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia which brought out many suggestions for promoting the Cause; and important contacts made by four Philadelphia Bahá'ís who attended an inter-racial dinner held during Friendship Week, at the time of the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. Prominent educators of both races attended the dinner. The Philadelphia Assembly has also reported additions to the local membership list.

Following the Convention, Mrs. Shahnaz Waite carried out eight weeks of intensive teaching and lecturing in Chicago, making use of her manuscript of lessons which the Reviewing Committee approved a short while ago. After leaving Chicago, Mrs. Waite has taught in Racine and Milwaukee. The Urbana Spiritual Assembly has written that Mirza Ali Kuli Khan addressed a public meeting at Urbana on July 9, the largest meeting the Assembly has held in several years. Mrs. Dorothy Baker spoke at the public meeting on July 30.

On October 1 the Bahá'ís of Birmingham will begin the third year of a class on Comparative Religion which they have found very helpful in attracting people of capacity to direct their attention to the Bahá'í Faith. Two members of the class have already joined the Binghamton Bahá'í community.

The Assembly of Vancouver were happy to receive visits from Mrs. Ella Cooper and Mrs. Katherine Baldwin in June, on their return from the Convention meeting with the Vancouver believers, Mrs. Cooper and Mrs. Baldwin addressed a public meeting.

Mrs. Edwin L. Mattern has been broadcasting for the Peace Council of Erie County, Pa., and has prepared her addresses largely from Bahá'í literature. The broadcasts were to continue Monday mornings throughout September at 7:15 over station WLBW, at Erie.

The Montreal Spiritual Assembly plans a series of four lessons at a hotel salon during November. Mr. Roland Estall is to be the speaker. Fireside meetings will be held weekly at the home of Mr. Siegfried Schopfner. The Montreal Assembly has been placing Bahá'í literature in a number of important Public Libraries.

The Kenoshà Spiritual Assembly has sent a copy of a local newspaper article which appeared on June 8, under the headline "Miniature Temple Built by Kenoshà Bahá'íst Is Marvel," which describes the cardboard model constructed by Mr. Louis J. Voelz and exhibited in the window of the local Bahá'í Center.

The progress of Temple construction, awakening widespread interest in the meaning of such a beautiful structure, is producing some remarkable newspaper publicity. Among the articles appearing recently are: a full column in the Chicago Sunday Tribune of August 27; an illustrated story in Wilmette Life of September 14; and a striking allusion to the Temple in a feature story on the Chicago Fair published in the magazine section of the Peoria Morning Star, of September 3.

The believers of the newly constituted Bahá'í community of Cabin John, Maryland, have received this beautiful message from the Guardian, through his secretary: "Shoghi Effendi was very pleased to learn that you have formed an Assembly and sincerely trusts that it will gradually develop into an important and active Bahá'í center. You have now gone one step further in the administration of the Cause. Such a development carries with it both privileges and responsibilities that are immense.

"Shoghi Effendi will always be with you in spirit and will offer his prayers on behalf of each one of you, so that God may confirm your souls, deepen your vision of the Cause and enable you to render His Faith mighty and imperishable.

"The September program of the Los Angeles community announced a series of Sunday evening lectures by Mr. Willard P. Hatch, Saturday and Sunday evening lectures by Mr. W. F. Kyle, Tuesday evening classes in public speaking conducted by Mr. Hatch, Thursday evening meetings on Bahá'í Administration conducted by Mrs. G. C. Finks, and a social evening with music on September 21.

"The Portland, Oregon, Spiritual Assembly announced the following program for September: "The Secret of Life," a book review by Miss June Addison; "Bahá'í, the Spirit of the Age," by Mr. George O. Latimer; "The Basic Unity of Religions," by Mrs. Pearl Young; "Immortality," by Mrs. Rouhanieh Latimer; and "Temples, Ancient and Modern," by Miss Ella Meissner. Two new believers were added to the membership list in August.

"The Feast Committee of the New York Spiritual Assembly will this year serve supper preceding each Nineteen Day Feast, the food being donated by various believers. This plan brings the friends together for the entire evening, allows more time for the period of community consultation and increases the spirit of fellowship. The New York Committee on Study and Discussion Class has planned a weekly meeting which will take up the following subjects: The World Order Letters of Shoghi Effendi; Interpretation of Mystic Symbolism in Baha’i Writings; The Tablet of Iqan, using the study outline recently published; and Methods of Approach in Presenting the Cause to Non-believers, based on study of the public addresses of ‘Abdu’l-Baha in America. Each meeting is to have a chairman who will briefly summarize the salient points of the subject, the meeting then being open for questions and general discussion.

The Toledo, Ohio, Spiritual Assembly reports that following an address by Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford of New York, a student of the teachings took the step of identifying himself with the Cause as member of the local community.

Thirteen believers from Phoenix, Arizona, attended the Summer School at Geyserville this year. A Wednesday afternoon study class is conducted by Miss Nina Ruppers. On July fourth an Amity dinner was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ruppers. Thirty-one guests were present.

The Columbus, Ohio believers held summer meetings at the Willis High School and Rest Home. The last week in August was devoted to study and training of Baha’i teachers.

The Chicago Spiritual Assembly recommends that attention be once more called to the importance of traveling believers carrying credentials from their Local Assembly. This matter was presented in Baha’i News about a year ago, but apparently has not been fully considered. The subject is again referred to here, for the reason that Spiritual Assemblies who receive visitors who announce themselves as Baha’is cannot be expected to have personal knowledge of all the friends. Since membership in the Cause has great privileges, it is our duty to respect and uphold these privileges by presenting proper credentials when we visit other Baha’i communities. As trained and efficient public speakers are always doubly welcome, it is suggested that in issuing credentials, Local Assemblies add a statement explaining what the believer has done locally in public speaking.

The Spiritual Assembly of Glendale, Calif., reports that the Cause locally is not progressing as rapidly as is desired but the community has great love and unity. Recent visits made by Mr. Leroy Joas and Mr. George Latimer were greatly appreciated.

The Esperantists of Washington, D.C., held a picnic on August 13 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Heman, members of the Cabin John Baha’i community. Believers from Washington and Cabin John were present and gave the Esperantists Baha’i literature. It is stated that the Washington Esperanto Chapter is very active, recruiting its members from high schools and colleges.

The Urbana, Illinois, Spiritual Assembly reports the following activities for September: The Junior Study Class and Young People’s group have been combined and their work reorganized. The group consists of high school and university students. Meetings are to be held twice weekly to study The Dawn-Breakers and Some Answered Questions. On Sunday, September 24, Dr. Zia Bagdadi of Chicago spoke at two public meetings. His subject Sunday evening was the Seven Valleys. The Urbana believers were delighted with the results of this visit. Of special interest is the fact that a group of Urbana public school teachers have expressed desire to study the Teachings, and plans are under way to invite these teachers to meet as a group for study and discussion.
Fellow-believers in the American continent! Great indeed have been your past and present achievements! Immeasurably greater are the wonders which the future has in store for you! The Edifice your sacrifices have raised still remains to be clothed. The House (Universal House of Justice) which must needs be supported by the highest administrative institution your hands have reared, is as yet unbuilt. The provisions of the chief Repository of those laws that must govern its operation are thus far mostly undiscovered. The Standard (of The Most Great Peace) which, if 'Abdu'l-Bahá's wishes are to be fulfilled, must be raised in your own country has yet to be unfurled. The Unity of which that standard is to be the symbol is far from being yet established. The machinery which must needs incarnate and preserve that unity is not even created. Will it be America, will it be one of the countries of Europe, who will arise to assume the leadership essential to the shaping of the destinies of this troubled age? Will America allow any of her sister communities in East or West to achieve such ascendency as shall deprive her of that spiritual primacy with which she has been invested and which she has thus far so nobly retained? Will she not rather contribute, by a still further revelation of those inherent powers that motivate her life, to enhance the priceless privilege which the love and wisdom of a departed Master have conferred upon her?—Shoghi Effendi, April 21, 1933.

On November 2, the following cablegram was sent to all Local Spiritual Assemblies and groups by the National Spiritual Assembly on behalf of the Guardian:—

"Appeal hard pressed American believers heed this, my last passionate entreaty, not to suffer slightest interruption in Temple construction to dim the magnificence of their epoch-making enterprise. The fair name of our beloved Faith is at stake. Its American stalwart defenders will once again vindicate its triumphant glory. I promise one year's respite upon successful conclusion first stage of the ornamentation of our glorious Temple."

(signed) Shoghi.
The emergency which the Guardian entreats us to meet is that by October 31, 1933, when $18,000 was due and payable on work done in October, the National Bahá’í Fund contained only $6,000 which could be appropriated for Temple work. Moreover, on November 1 the Temple Trustees were called upon to approve the construction schedule to be carried out during November. After prayerful consultation the National Spiritual Assembly decided to assume responsibility for the continuance of the full schedule at least until November 15, and on October 31 issued a general letter stating that contributions to the amount of $20,000 must be received by November 15 or the work will have to be stopped.

It is necessary to inform the friends that while the original estimate of $150,000 has not only been observed but actually reduced, the process of constructing the dome ornamentation has revealed the necessity of doing at this time certain parts of the work which, at the time the present contract was adopted, it was thought could be done later on when another unit of external decoration is under way. Moreover, actual experience on the part of Mr. Earley and our engineers in this entirely new type of construction made it desirable to add an additional set of metal fastenings, for the sake of extra safety. The total extras added to the original contract amount to $20,700, making instead of $150,000, the sum of $170, 700. But the economies effected during the construction reduce this amount considerably.

The total contract now amounts to $164,000. The present status of the construction contract is explained in the following report received by the Temple Trustees on November 3. “During recent conferences with the contractor we have estimated that the total cost of the construction work, including contractor’s fee, would amount to about $155,000. The apparent overrun of $5,000 over the original estimate of $150,000 is due to several factors, including the construction of the clerestory sections of the great ribs of the dome, which involved an additional expense of $6,000, the fabrication and erection of the furring system (metal fastenings) costing $5,490 and the labor expense for the perforation of the upper sections of the great ribs of the dome at an estimated cost of about $510. These items, together with the engineering fees of about $9,000, amount to a total of $171,000. If we assume that the total actual cost of the work, including engineering fee, will amount to $155,000 plus $9,000, or $164,000, it is obvious that the contractor will have effected a saving of about $7,000.” It is of vital importance that every believer study this explanation and understand its details fully, because at this time every hour—every hour in fact—will determine whether the American Bahá’ís collectively are to arise in overwhelming vindication of the Guardian’s appeal and the Master’s protecting love, or allow this providential opportunity to fade into oblivion.

A number of believers, anxious to meet the standard of sacrifice set by the Guardian, inquire what proportion of the Temple cost should be considered as resting upon any one local Bahá’í community. The answer is, first, that each faithful believer must determine his own degree of sacrifice; and second, that in the New Plan of Unified Action published by the National Spiritual Assembly in a pamphlet dated June, 1931, the following statement appeared: “This means that the average donation... must be $9.00 per month. Some of the friends can and will contribute much more than this, some can only contribute a small fraction of that amount. But let each of us make supreme effort to take the largest possible part in the most important achievement laid upon the Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada.”

Now is the moment to recall the Master’s words, that the prophets and holy ones yearn for the sake of extra safety. The friends can and will construct a permanent memorial. The friends can and will contribute much more than this, some can only contribute a small fraction of that amount. But let each of us make supreme effort to take the largest possible part in the most important achievement laid upon the Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada.

“Now is the moment to recall the Guardian’s message to the 1931 Convention: “Fervently appeal to all associated with this holy enterprise to consummate their achievement by upholding whatever measures National representatives may deem necessary for provision of exterior ornaments. Inestimable blessing shall crown America’s sustained, self-sacrificing endeavors.”

KEITH RANSOM-KEHLER
First American Bahá’í Martyr

On October 27, 1933, the Spiritual Assembly of Tihran, Persia, cabled the startling news that Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler had passed into the spiritual Kingdom. With burning hearts the Persian Bahá’ís conveyed their grief at this mysterious culminating of our sister’s special mission in the land of the birth of the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh.

The beloved Guardian, on October 30, despatched this message: “Keith’s precious life offered up in sacrifice to the Blessed Cause in Bahá’u’lláh’s native land is a new example to Persia’s sake, she encountered, challenged and fought the forces of darkness with high distinction, indomitable will, unwavering, exemplary loyalty. The mass of her helpless Persian brethren mourns the sudden loss of their valiant emancipator. American believers grateful and proud of the memory of their first and distinguished martyr. Sorrow stricken, I lament my earthly separation from an invaluable collaborator, an unfailing counselor, an esteemed and faithful friend. I urge the Local Assemblies befittingly to organize memorial gatherings in memory of one whose international services entitled her an eminent rank among the Hands of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh.”

A message from the American Consul at Tihran, communicated through the Secretary of State, brought the information that Keith had passed on at Isfahan on October 23.

With the approval of Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler’s nearest relative, a message was cabled to the Tihran Assembly asking that burial be arranged at Isfahan under Bahá’í auspices, and stating that the American Assembly will construct a permanent memorial.

Shoghi Effendi, on November 3, sent this message: “Instructed Isfahan Assembly to inter Keith in the vicinity of the grave of Sultanushuhada, surnamed by Bahá’u’lláh ‘King of Martyrs.’”

The detailed reports which our beloved sister has during the past year sent from Tihran, to convey information on the result of her mission, as well as representations on the American believers chosen by the Guardian, to secure from the Persian government the lifting of the ban on entry of Bahá’í literature and also removal of the difficulties and hardships placed upon the Persian Bahá’ís, form one of the precious and important historical records of the Cause. A summary of these reports will be published in Bahá’í News next month.

Local Spiritual Assemblies and groups are requested to arrange memorial meetings in accordance with the Guardian’s wish.
"THE ADVANCING ARMY OF BAHÁ'ULLÁH"

"Unsatisfied with the achievements which crowned the concerted efforts of their elected representatives within the American continent, and emboldened by the initial success of their pioneer teachers, beyond its confines, in Great Britain, France and Germany, the community of the American believers resolved to win in distant climes fresh recruits to the advancing army of Bahá'ulláh. Seeking out from the western shores of their native land and impelled by the indomitable energy of a new-born faith, these itinerant teachers of the Gospel of Bahá'ulláh pushed on towards the islands of the Pacific, and as far as China and Japan, determined to establish beyond the farthest seas the outposts of their beloved Faith."—Shoghi Effendi, April 21, 1933.

The supreme sacrifice made by Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, while serving in Persia, draws closer those "precious ties of fellowship" which unite the American believers with their fellow-countrymen who, in South America, Europe and the Orient, are undergoing similar hardships, sustaining great responsibilities and promoting with full loyalty their beloved Faith.

To these American Bahá'ís resident or traveling abroad, the believers of the United States and Canada convey heartfelt gratitude and love. They long for that blessed time when, in accordance with glorious prophecy, the Cause will have evolved to such strength and resources that ample cooperation can be extended to each and every pioneer teacher enrolled in the Army of the Lord of Hosts. Not unmindful are they of their duty and privilege towards the Tarbiát School, that particular object of the loving interest of every American Bahá'í, nor towards the mighty work of assisting in the publication of our Sacred Literature in every tongue.

May that time soon come! Meanwhile, prayers and ardent best wishes are sent to all American Bahá'ís working in foreign fields, including Miss Agnes Alexander, Mme. Dreyfus-Barney, Dr. and Mrs. Howard Carpenter, Miss Julia Culver, Mr. and Mrs. Hyde Dunn, Mrs. Max Green, Mrs. Louise Gregory, Mrs. Emogene Hoag, Miss Leonora Holzapple, Mrs. Lynch, Mr. Mountfort Mills, Dr. Susan I. Moody, Mrs. Marjorie Morton, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Romer, Miss Martha Root, Miss Sanderson, Mrs. Edwin Scott, Miss Adelaide Sharp and Mrs. Sharp, Mr. Mark Tobey. The recent services rendered by Mrs. Louise Erickson, Mrs. Grace Krug and Miss Louise Drake Wright are also gratefully in mind. If the records of the National Spiritual Assembly are incomplete, please notify the Secretary.

RECENT MESSAGES FROM THE GUARDIAN

In answer to questions asked the Guardian by the National Spiritual Assembly, he has sent the following explanations in a letter dated September 6, 1933, through his secretary: "Regarding the practice of congregational prayer, the Guardian wishes you to know that this form of prayer has been enjoined by Bahá'ulláh only for the dead. In all other circumstances there is no obligation whatever imposed upon the believers. When the Áqdas is published the form of congregational prayer prescribed by Bahá'ulláh will be made clear to all the believers."

This instruction clarifies a matter which has been discussed here and there among local Bahá'í communities for some years.

"Regarding the nature of the Nineteen Day Feasts, the Guardian feels that the excellent statement on their nature, function and purpose published in one of the recent issues of the News Letter is so comprehensive and faithful in its presentation that he does not find it necessary to restate and enlarge upon the matter. He has no objection, however, if you feel the need to elaborate the thought expressed in that statement, stressing particularly the spiritual, administrative and social aspects of this vital Bahá'í institution."

The statement referred to by the Guardian appeared in the July, 1933, number of Baha'i News, on page 8. It is hoped that the friends have carefully noted what the National Spiritual Assembly set forth as its understanding of the Nineteen Day Feasts in that issue. The subject will only be amplified if any Local Spiritual Assembly reports that the matter is still not understood.

One of the American believers has shared with the National Assembly a letter from the Guardian dated August 30, 1933, which contains one statement so important that it is published here for the information of all believers: "To approach such well-known and important persons is always an extremely delicate matter, since it requires a good deal of wisdom, courage and ability. But those friends who really feel the urge to do so, and possess the necessary qualifications, should cultivate such friendships which, if properly done, can be of an immense benefit to the Cause. In any case, however, the assistance and help of either the local or the National Assembly is not only useful but necessary, if important contacts of this sort are to be fruitful and promising. The principle of consultation, which constitutes one of the basic laws of the Administration, should be applied to all Bahá'í activities which affect the collective interests of the Faith, for it is through cooperation and continued exchange of thoughts and views that the Cause can best safeguard and foster its interests. Individual initiative, personal ability and resourcefulness, though indispensable are, unless supported and enriched by the collective experiences and wisdom of the group, utterly incapable of achieving such a tremendous task."

To make this comment clearer it should be explained that the believer who received the Guardian's letter had written a personal letter to a well known scientist, enclosing Bahá'í literature.

In connection with the Guardian's emphasis on consultation, it is reported to the American believers that the National Spiritual Assembly has voted that Bahá'ís should seek to make contact with Federal and State officials only through the National Assembly, and refrain from personal activities involving the Cause with officials of the government. In the case of municipal officials, contact should be made only through the Local Assembly.

A powerful reinforcement and clear guidance for the future development of Bahá'í Summer Schools has been given by the Guardian in a letter written on September 25, 1933, to Mrs. Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Baker, members of the Central States Bahá'í Summer School Committee: "The basic purpose of all Bahá'í Summer Schools, whether in East or West, is to give the believers the opportunity to acquaint themselves, not only by mere study but through whole-hearted and active collaboration in various Bahá'í activities, with the essentials of the Administration and in this way enable them to become efficient and able promoters of the Cause. The teaching of the Administration is, therefore, an indispensable feature of every Bahá'í Summer School and its special significance can be better understood if we realize the great need of every believer today for a more adequate understanding of the social principles and laws of the Faith. It is now, when the Cause is passing through some of the most difficult stages of its development, that the friends should equip themselves with the necessary knowledge of the Administration. The Guardian wishes you, therefore, to stress again, in all coming summer schools, this vital point, and in this way add to the efficiency and success of your efforts along this line."

The above letter carried these words in the Guardian's hand: "I certainly advise you to concentrate next year on the "Dawn-Breakers" as well as on the needs, the principles and the purpose of Bahá'í Administration. The Cause in your land is still in its formative period. It needs men and women of vision, of capacity and understanding."

Shoghi Effendi on October 23 cabled this beautiful message to Mme. Ali Kuli Khan, daughter of the late Mrs. Alice Ives Breed, one of the active and influential early believers: "Heartfelt sympathy your great sorrow. Mrs. Breed's pioneer services ever gratefully remembered. Assure you fervent prayers. Love." (signed) SHOGHI.

"THE HEAD CORNERSTONE"

While engaged in compiling the Guardian's words on the subject of the Annual Convention, published elsewhere in this issue, the National Spiritual Assembly was greatly impressed by the following statement which Shoghi Effendi wrote to the delegates and visitors to the Convention at Green Acre in 1925. (Published on page 79 of Bahá'í Administration).

"I would also earnestly entreat all the delegates at this coming Convention, through them I appeal to the larger body of believers whom they represent, to ever bear in mind the supreme injunction of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, to teach unceasingly until the 'head cornerstone of the foundation' of the Cause of God is firmly established in every heart. Let those whose time, resources and means allow, travel throughout the length and breadth of that vast continent, let them scatter to the most distant regions of the earth and, fired with enthusiasm and detachment, hand on the torch of God's unifying flame to the waiting multitudes of a sadly-stricken world."

In these words the Guardian calls attention to a fundamental principle of the Bahá'í Faith, confirmed by numerous passages in Bahá'í Scriptures. Thus on page 109: "Every soul is commanded by God to deliver the truth and work for His Cause, and those who comply with His exalted command should first characterize themselves with the best characteristics and attributes; and then try to deliver the truth to the people, who if they be truthseekers will undoubtedly be attracted by the words of such teachers, if not so characterized, his mere words will not have the least effect in the hearts of the worshipers of God."

And, on page 158: "In this day all must serve God with purity and virtue. The effect of the word spoken by the teacher depends upon his purity of purpose and his severance. Some are content with words, but the truth of words is tested by deeds and dependent upon life. Deeds reveal the station of the man. The words (of the teacher) must be according to what has proceeded from the mouth of the will of God and is recorded in Tablets." On page 140: "Of people of God! The rightly guided men of learning, who engage in enlightening the people and are protected and preserved from the temptations of inordinate desire—such men are accounted of the stars of the heaven of knowledge, before God, the Object of all the world." On page 143: "It is made incumbent on everyone of you to engage in some one occupation, such as arts, trades and the like. We have made this—your occupation—identical with the worship of God, the True One . . . Waste not your time in idleness and indolence, and occupy yourselves with that which will profit yourselves and others besides yourselves. Thus hath the matter been decreed in this Tablet from the horizon of which the sun of wisdom and divine utterance is gleaming. The most despised of men before God is he who sits and begs. Cling unto the rope of means, relying upon God, the Causer of Causes. Every soul who occupies himself in an art or trade—this will be accounted an act of worship before God."

Finally, the words on page 145: "Man should know his own self, and understand those things which lead to loftiness or to abasement, to shame or to honor, to affluence or to poverty. After man has realized his own being, and become mature, then (material) means are required. If wealth is acquired through a craft or profession, it is approvable and praiseworthy for men of wisdom, especially those who arise to train the world and beautify the souls of the nations."

The National Spiritual Assembly is convinced that the time has come for all believers to "become mature" and give deeper thought to the spiritual foundations on which individual teaching effort, if it would be successful and reflect honor upon the Cause, is to be established.

We can no longer afford to ignore the fact that, in the past, errors have been made which are pardonable in the early days when enthusiasm inevitably outruns knowledge and personal desires cannot be properly guided by well tested community experience. But now the Teachings are thoroughly known, the Administrative institutions exist by which consultation can always be obtained on any local, national or international Baha'i matter, and moreover the steady progress of Temple construction, coinciding with the collapse of civilization, serves to bring our beloved Faith into greater public prominence than ever before. Teaching activities hitherto carried on within a small and restricted circle will henceforth come into careful scrutiny and frequently unsympathetic analysis by the ablest people of our social environment.

An appeal is therefore made by the National Assembly to each and every member of the American Baha'i community, first, that each follower of Baha'u'llah shall redouble his or her efforts to extend the influence of the Cause, and second, to make sure that all personal teaching activity is put forth under the right conditions. The Assembly hopes above all that no personal considerations of an economic character will be allowed by any of the friends of God to adulterate the purity of their public services. If a believer has the time and resources to travel and teach, the National Spiritual Assembly will reinforce that believer's efforts with all its power; but if the door of means is temporarily closed, zeal should be held in check and courageously self-disciplined until the unfavorable condition is removed. Local Assemblies and groups can assist greatly in the realization of this vital Baha'i law by extending sympathetic consultation to any local or traveling believer who may be found to ignore its application to his or her personal life.

Hasty, ill-conceived measures, as Shoghi Effendi has pointed out, render no real service to the Faith, no matter how much personal self-satisfaction they may arouse. All of us alike are bound by the laws ordained by the Manifestation. Those who are wise enough to lay a strong foundation in the world of material means, and refrain for a time from sacrificing their permanent economic duties to any and every teaching effort adopted in defiance of the divine law, will in the end prove most faithful, and also most useful, to the Cause of Baha'u'llah. And of these, the believers content with a moderate living, that they may have more time and strength for Baha'i service, are surely most beloved in His sight.

IN MEMORIAM

The friends are requested to remember in prayer the believers who have passed into the Kingdom:

Mr. Nels Peterson, Fruitport, Mich.
Mrs. Alice Ives Breed, New York.
Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, New York.
Mrs. Harriet Sprague, New York.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE

When announcement of new books and pamphlets is made, it is suggested that each Local Spiritual Assembly immediately order at least one copy to have on hand as a sample to show the local believers. Only in this way can the activities of the Publishing Committee be made most effective for the Cause.

Will Local Assemblies bear in mind the fact that the Publishing Committee allows a discount on Assembly orders for the sole purpose of enabling each Assembly and group to develop a new and important source of legitimate income to its local Bahá'í Fund. If this discount, in whole or in part, is taken merely to enable believers to buy literature at less than retail price, the purpose of this cooperation is frustrated, and the Publishing Committee in that case would be obliged to ask the National Spiritual Assembly for new instructions.

Of timely interest are: Study Outline for the Tablet of Iqán, $0.25 each, without discount; The Bahá'í Movement, sold in lots of ten copies only, ten for $1.00; Bahá'í Peace Program, in leather, $1.50, in paper, $0.50; The Traveler's Narrative, $2.50; Whence Comes the Light, by Loulie A. Mathews, $0.25; World Economy of Baha'u'llah, in lots of ten only, ten copies for $1.00.

STUDY OUTLINES FOR CHILDREN

The Committee on Teaching and Training Children has issued Section IV, containing lessons 29 to 36, of its remarkable courses for children. A number of Local Assemblies have been using these Outlines for bringing up the next generation as true believers, and report enthusiastically on their value.

Assemblies and groups wishing to have the full series of lessons should write to Miss Charlotte M. Linfoot, secretary, 276 60th Street, Oakland, Calif.

INQUIRY FOR BAHÁ'Í LECTURE SLIDES

The National Teaching Committee would like information on the present location of the Temple and other Bahá'í lantern slides which Miss Martha Root presented to the Cause a number of years ago. These slides can be used in connection with public lectures, and any believer who knows who has them is requested to write the chairman of the Teaching Committee, Mr. Leroy Ioas, 640 46th Avenue, San Francisco, Calif.

BAHÁ'Í YOUTH ACTIVITY

A Statement by the National Assembly

The National Spiritual Assembly, in appointing a new National Committee, the Bahá'í Youth Committee, does so realizing the important position youth can fill in rounding out our Administrative activities, and in the profound hope this appointment may open a new point of teaching contact with the capable and universally minded youth of the world.

The particular functions which this Committee will undertake, are, first, the deepening and broadening of the knowledge of the Faith, both the Spiritual and Administrative aspects, of our younger members, by providing local youth committees with appropriate study courses, bibliographies, reference lists for teaching, courses for training of Bahá'í teachers; second, establishing sympathetic contact with non-Bahá'í youth so as to bring them into an appreciation of, as well as in support of the World Order of Baha'u'llah; and third, intensifying this field of teaching service by outlining methods of establishing Introductory Forums, Discussion Groups, Study Groups among attracted Friends, etc.

In order that the work may go forward with efficiency and enthusiasm will each Spiritual Assembly, at its earliest opportunity appoint a local Bahá'í Youth Committee, consisting of confirmed Bahá'ís, not over 25 years of age. This Committee, it should be understood, is not a separate administrative institution but simply a committee of the Spiritual Assembly, just as any other committee, and entirely responsible to it. In carrying on their activities, the youth should be permitted to study and conduct their meetings, etc., under their own direction, subject to the guidance of the Spiritual Assembly, gained through constant and loving consultation.

Let us all cooperate in this important teaching step that the high hopes of the Guardian, expressed in a letter to the Special Committee appointed last Spring by the National Assembly to investigate the field of Bahá'í Youth service, may be fully realized:

"There are two important points which Shoghi Effendi would like you always to emphasize. In the first place he would strongly urge you to cooperate, heart and soul, with all the various Assemblies, groups and committees throughout the Bahá'í world, to ask for their assistance and help for the successful discharge of your duties and obligations, and in this way to try to build up an active and ready mind among the Bahá'í youth throughout the world. In other words, you should not confine your activities to the national sphere but you should strive to create under the supervision of your N. S. A. an international body of active young Bahá'ís men and women who, conscious of their manifold and sacred responsibilities, will unanimously arise to spread the Holy Word. The second point which the Guardian wishes you to stress and to keep always in mind is the necessity for every loyal and active member of your committee to fully concentrate on the thorough study and understanding of the spiritual and administrative principles of the Faith, as a necessary step for active and fruitful teaching. You should first equip yourself with the necessary amount of knowledge about the Cause, and then, and only then, try to teach."

A LETTER FROM THE BAHA'I YOUTH COMMITTEE

To the Young Bahá'ís Throughout the United States and Canada, Dearest Friends:

The National Spiritual Assembly, in appointing a Bahá'í Youth Committee, has reminded us of an obligation which we had never fully recognized. With some sense of shock at our shortcomings, but with a greater sense of hope, the Committee addresses this letter to you, confident that we, as a united band of youth, will arise to correct our inadequacies.

No one, viewing the past achievements of young Bahá'ís could accuse us of indifference. We have truly loved the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh. But few of us have worked unitedly or greatly for it. Ours has been the fortune to live in an affluent order which supported us and nurtured our whisks. We realized that the Manifestation would usher in "a new cycle of human power," but the idea did not transform our innermost attitudes. But now since the economic failure, since the growing chaos brought on by the impotence of the League of Nations and the inability of governments to cooperate, since the manifest decline of all moral and ethical principles, we have grown firmly convinced that our destiny is indeed to live in the construction of a new world order—an order which must rise from and displace this helpless and decadent civilization.

Within these two years, our convictions have found a rallying-point in the letters from Shoghi Effendi: The Goal of a New World Order, the Golden Age of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh, America, and the Most Great Peace. Surely none of us would now deny that it is the task of this generation, of this Bahá'í generation, to help build the framework for that wonderful conception.

Are we not then the actual citizens of a new world order? Our place is in the future; in a real sense we are the future. And we bear a tremendous responsibility to bring our vision into the world of concrete and everyday existence.

There are but two ways to do this, and these are the objectives of the Youth Committee and of all young Bahá'ís. We have, first, to extend our own knowledge of the Cause and of the world, to deepen our conception, to invigorate our faith; and secondly, we must carry this Faith to all of the young people of the world. We must not only become, ourselves, citizens in a new society, but we must help our friends to become so.

It was to initiate this real campaign that the Youth Committee was appointed. We must have in every Bahá'í community a hearty march against indifference. Will you not ask your Assembly to appoint a local youth committee to start this? Remind them to name members who are steady and energetic, above all firmly grounded in the Bahá'í Faith. We do not suggest any method of conducting such a group. We are sure that these problems you can best solve in consultation with your Assembly.

Let us have these committees appointed at once. Let us begin to organize the classes which we require. Let us work impatiently, and through the medium of the National Committee, keep in close contact. Our methods and vision will grow as our activities increase. Start now! Within a few weeks the National Committee will communicate with you.

Dear friends, this is the greatest opportunity of our lives. We alone, among young Americans, have a plan and an objective. We alone can be certain that each effort we exert is a constructive effort, one which in a forceful way is upraising among men the structure of tomorrow's world.

THE NATURE AND AIMS OF THE ANNUAL BAHA'I CONVENTION

Compiled from the Guardian's Letters to Conventions, to the General Body of Believers and to the National Spiritual Assembly

Foreword

The National Spiritual Assembly has prepared the following compilation for distribution to the entire body of American believers through Baha'i News.

Careful study of the Guardian's explanation of the function and high spiritual possibility of the Annual Convention is incumbent upon all the friends, in order that each may make his or her full contribution to the further development of the Bahá'í Faith.

The members of the National Spiritual Assembly take this opportunity to request all Local Assemblies to provide occasions for community consultation on the subject of the Convention, and to refer to the National Assembly any questions that may be raised or any suggestions that may be made, so that all delegates elected for the 1934 Annual Convention may enter the Convention in full agreement on all the fundamental principles involved in this important meeting. All such questions and suggestions received soon enough will be brought to the Guardian's attention with the request that they be clarified before the Convention opens.

1. You stand at this challenging hour in the history of the Cause at the threshold of a new era; the functions you are called upon to discharge are fraught with immense possibilities; the responsibilities you shoulder are grave and momentous, and the eyes of many people are turned, at this hour, towards you, expectant to behold the dawning of a Day that shall witness the fulfillment of His Divine Promise.

Forgetful of the past and its vicissitudes, conscious of the need for renewed and combined effort, freed from all earthly limitations and motives, with every lingering trace of ill-feeling forever banished from our hearts, freshly united and determined, let us join in deep and silent communion with the ever-watchful Spirit of our beloved 'Abdu'l-Bahá, and with humility and earnestness supplicate for the guidance that will enable us to fulfill the task which is now committed to our charge.—To the Convention delegates. April 8, 1923.

It is expressly recorded in 'Abdu'l-Bahá's Writings that these National Assemblies must be indirectly elected by the friends; that is, the friends in every country must elect a certain number of delegates, who in their turn will elect from among all the friends in that country the members of the National Spiritual Assembly. In such countries, therefore, as America, Great Britain and Germany, a fixed number of secondary electors must first be decided upon (95 for America, including the Pacific Islands; 95 for Germany; and 19 for Great Britain). The friends then in every locality where the number of adult declared believers exceeds nine* must directly elect its quota of secondary electors assigned to it in direct proportion to its numerical strength. These secondary electors will then, either through correspondence, or preferably by gathering together, and first deliberating upon the affairs of the Cause throughout their country (as the delegates to the Convention), elect from among all the friends in that country the nine who will be the members of the National Spiritual Assembly.—To the believers of America, Great Britain, Germany, France, Switzerland, Italy, Japan and Australia. March 12, 1923.

3.

I am deeply convinced that if the Annual Convention of the friends in America, as well as the National Spiritual Assembly, desire to become potent instruments for the speedy realization of the Beloved's fondest hopes for the future of that country, they should endeavor, first and foremost, to exemplify, in an increasing degree, to all Bahá'ís and to the world at large the high ideals of fellowship and service which Bahá'u'lláh and the beloved Master repeatedly set before them. They can claim the admiration, the support and eventually the allegiance of their fellow-countrymen only by their strict regard for the dignity, the welfare, and the unity of the Cause of God, by their zeal, their disinterestedness, and constancy in the service of mankind, and by demonstrating, through their words and deeds, the need and practicability of the lofty principles which the Movement has proclaimed to the world.—To the American National Spiritual Assembly, November 26, 1923.

4.

Again I earnestly appeal to every one of you, and renew my only request with all the ardor of my conviction, to make, before and during the coming Convention, yet another effort, this time more spontaneous and selfless than before, and endeavor to approach your task—the election of your delegates, as well as your national and local representatives—with that purity of spirit that can alone obtain our Beloved's most cherished desire. Let us recall His explicit and repeated assurance that every Assembly elected in that rarified atmosphere of selflessness and detachment is, in truth, appointed of God, that its verdict is truly inspired, that one and all should submit to its decision unreservedly and with cheerfulness.

Let us first strive to fulfill these conditions, difficult yet essential, in our lives, so that, contented and assured, we may make of this new year of activity a year of abundant blessings, of unprecedented achievements.

May this dearest wish be fulfilled! —To the American believers, February 23, 1924.

Hitherto the National Convention has been primarily called together for the consideration of the various circumstances attending the election of the National Spiritual Assembly. I feel, however, that in view of the expansion and the growing importance of the administrative sphere of the Cause, the general sentiments and tendencies prevailing among the friends, and the signs of increasing independence among the National Spiritual Assemblies throughout the world, the assembled accredited representatives of the American believers should exercise not only the vital and responsible right of electing the National Assembly, but should also fulfill the functions of an enlightened consultative and cooperative body that will enrich the experience, enhance the prestige, support the authority and assist the deliberations of the National Spiritual Assembly. It is my firm conviction that it is the bounden duty, in the interest of the Cause we all love and serve, of the members of the incoming National Assembly, once elected by the delegates at Convention, to carry to all and have the utmost regard, individually as well as collectively, for the advice, the considered opinions and the true sentiments of the assembled delegates. Banishing every vestige of secrecy, of undue reticence, of dictatorial aloofness, from their midst, they should radiantly unfold to the eyes of the delegates, by whom they are elected, their plans, their hopes, and their cares. They should familiarize the delegates with the various matters that will have to be considered in the current year, and calmly and conscientiously study and weigh the opinions and judgments of the delegates. The newly elected National Assembly, during the few days when the Convention is in session and after the dispersal of the delegates, should seek ways and means to cultivate understanding, facilitate and maintain the exchange of views, deepen confidence, and vindicate by every tangible evidence their one desire to serve and advance the common weal. Not infrequently, may certain circumstances, the most slowly, unobserved and inexperienced among the friends will, by the sheer inspiring force of selfless and ardent devotion, contribute a distinct and memorable share to a highly involved discussion in any given Assembly. Great must be the regard paid by those whom the delegates call upon to serve in high position to this all-important though inconspicuous manifestation of the revealing power of sincere and earnest devotion.

The National Spiritual Assembly, however, in view of the unavoidable limitations imposed upon the convening of frequent and long-standing sessions of the Convention, will have to retain in its hands the final decision on all matters that affect the interests of the Cause in America, such as the right to decide whether any local Assembly is functioning in accordance with the principles laid down for the conduct and the advancement of the Cause. It is my earnest prayer that they will utilize their highly responsible position, not only for the wise and efficient conduct of the affairs of the Cause, but also for the extension and deepening of the spirit of cordiality and wholehearted and mutual support in their cooperation with the body of their co-workers throughout the land. The seating of delegates to the Convention, i.e., the right to decide upon the validity of the credentials of the delegates at a given Convention, is vested in the outgoing National Assembly, and the right to decide who has the voting privilege is also ultimately placed in the hands of the National Spiritual Assembly, either when a local Spiritual Assembly is for the first time being formed in a given locality, or when differences arise between a new applicant and an already established local Assembly. While the Convention is in session and the accredited delegates have already elected from among the believers throughout the country the members of the National Spiritual Assembly for the current year, it is of infinite value and a supreme necessity that as far as possible all matters requiring immediate decision should be fully and publicly considered, and an endeavor be made to obtain, after mature deliberation unanimity in vital decisions. Indeed, it has ever been the cherished desire of our Master, 'Abdu'l-Bahá, that the friends in their councils, local as well as national, should by their candor, their honesty of purpose, their singleness of mind, and the thoroughness of their discussions, achieve unanimity in all things. Should this in certain cases prove impracticable the verdict of the majority should prevail, to which decision the minority, must under all circumstances, gladly, spontaneously and continually, submit.

Nothing short of the all-encompassing, all-pervading power of His Guidance and Love can enable this newly-enfolded order to gather strength and flourish amid the storm and stress of a turbulent age, and in the fullness of time vindicate its high claim to be universally recognized as the one Haven of abiding felicity and peace.—To the American National Spiritual Assembly. January 29, 1925.

Regarding the method to be adopted for the election of the National Spiritual Assemblies, it is clear that the text of the Beloved’s Testament gives us no indication as to the manner in which these Assemblies are to be elected. In one of His earliest Tablets, however, addressed to a friend in Persia, the following is expressly recorded:

“At whatever time all the beloved of God in each country appoint their delegates, and these in turn elect their representatives, and these representatives elect a body, that body shall be regarded as the Supreme Bayt’l-Adl (Universal House of Justice).”

These words clearly indicate that a three-stage election has been provided by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá for the formation of the International House of Justice, and as it is explicitly provided in His Will and Testament that the “Secondary House of Justice (i.e., National Assemblies) must elect the members of the Universal One,” it is obvious that the members of the National Spiritual Assemblies will have to be indirectly elected by the body of the believers in their respective provinces. In view of these complementary instructions the principle, set forth in my letter of March 12, 1923, has been established requiring the believers (the beloved of God) in every country to elect a certain number of delegates who, in turn, will elect their national representatives (Secondary House of Justice or National Spiritual Assembly) whose sacred obligation and privilege will be to elect in time God’s Universal House of Justice.

Should the appointing of the delegates be made a part of the functions of local Spiritual Assemblies, who are already elected bodies, the principle of a four-stage election would be introduced which would be at variance with the provisions explicitly laid down in the Master’s Tablet. On the other hand, were the local Spiritual Assemblies, the number of whose members is strictly confined to nine, to elect directly the members of the National Spiritual Assembly—thus maintaining the principle of a three-stage election—all Bahá’í localities, which must necessarily differ in numerical strength, would then have to share equally in the election of the National Spiritual Assembly—a practice which would be contrary to fairness and justice. Moreover, the central principle guiding for the present the administration of the Cause has been to make the Bahá’í National Spiritual Assemblies as independent as possible in the conduct of such affairs as fall within their province, and to lessen the hampering influence of any institution within their jurisdiction that might, whether directly or indirectly, impair their authority and prestige.—To the American National Spiritual Assembly. May 12, 1925.

And now regarding this forthcoming Convention, I feel that the dominating purpose inspiring the assembled friends, delegates and visitors alike, should be a twofold one. The first is a challenge to the individual, the second a collective responsibility. The one seeks to reinforce the motive power of our spiritual activities, the second aims at raising the standard of administrative efficiency so vitally needed at this advanced stage of our work. We should first and foremost endeavor by every means to revitalize our precious Cause, rudely shaken by the constant vicissitudes attending the outward departure of a vigilant and gracious Master. Our next object should be to seek to approach, through more intimate association, fuller and more frequent consultation, and a closer familiarity with the character, the mission and the teachings of the Cause, that standard of excellence which should characterize the cooperative efforts of Bahá’í Communities in every land.

High aims and pure motives, however laudable in themselves, will surely not suffice if unsupported by measures that are practicable and methods that are sound. Wealth of sentiment, abundance of good-will and effort, will prove of little avail if we should fail to exercise discrimination and restraint and neglect to direct their flow along the most profitable channels. The unfettered freedom of the individual should be tempered with mutual consultation and sacrifice, and the spirit of initiative and enterprise should be reinforced by a deeper realization of the supreme necessity for concerted action and a fuller devotion to the common weal.

It would be impossible at this stage to ignore the indispensability or to over-estimate the unique significance of the institution of the National Spiritual Assembly—the pivot round which revolve the activities of the believers throughout the American continent. Supreme is their position, grave their responsibility, manifold and arduous their duties. How great the privilege, how delicate the task of the assembled delegates whose function it is to elect such national representatives as would by their record of service ennoble and enrich the annals of the Cause! If we but turn our gaze to the high qualifications of the members of Bahá’í Assemblies, as enumerated in ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s Tablets, we are filled with feelings of unworthiness and dismay, and would feel truly disheartened but for the comforting thought that if we rise to play nobly our part every deficiency in our lives will be more than compensated by the all-conquering spirit of His grace and power. Hence it is incumbent upon the chosen delegates to consider without the least trace of passion and prejudice, and irrespective of any material consideration, the names of only those who can best combine the necessary qualities of unquestioned loyalty, of selfless devotion, of a well-trained mind, of recognized ability and mature experience.—To the Convention delegates. June 3, 1925.

In connection with the annual holding of the Bahá’í Convention and Congress, I feel that although such a representative body need not be convened necessarily every year, yet it is highly desirable, in view of the unique functions it fulfills in promoting harmony and good-will, in removing misunderstandings and in enhancing the prestige of the Cause, that the National Spiritual Assembly should exert itself to gather together annually the elected representatives of the American believers. It would be in some ways be obviously convenient and eminently desirable though not absolutely essential, if the National Spiritual Assembly could arrange that the holding of such a Congress should synchronize with the time at which the national elections are renewed, and that both events should take place, if not on the first of Ridván, at least during the twelve joyous days of what may be justly regarded as the foremost Bahá’í Festival. Apart from the local elections, which universally are to be renewed on the 21st day of April, it is entirely left to the discretion of the National Spiritual Assembly to decide, after having given due consideration to the above mentioned observations, on whatever time and place the Bahá’í Convention as well as the annual elections are to be held. Were the National Spiritual Assembly to decide, after mature deliberation, to omit the holding of the Bahá’í Convention and Congress in a given year, then they could, only in such a case, devise ways and means to insure that the work of the National Spiritual Assembly should be held by mail, provided it can be conducted with sufficient thoroughness, efficiency and dispatch. It would also appear to me unobjectionable to enable and even to require in the last resort such delegates as cannot possibly undertake the journey to the seat of the Bahá’í Convention to send their votes, for the election of the National Spiritual Assembly only, by mail to the National Secretary, as in my view the advantages of such a procedure outweigh the considerations referred to in your letter. It should, however, be made clear to every elected delegate—who should be continually reminded—that it is a sacred responsibility and admittedly preferable to attend if possible in person the sessions of the Convention, to take an active part in all its proceedings, and to acquaint his fellow-workers on his return with the accomplishments, the decisions and the aspirations of the assembled representatives of the American believers.—To the American National Spiritual Assembly. October 24, 1925.

In connection with the best and most practical methods of procedure to be adopted for the election of Bahá’í Spiritual Assemblies, I feel that in view of the fact that definite and detailed regulations defining the manner and character of Bahá’í elections have neither been expressly revealed by Bahá’u’lláh nor laid down in the Will and Testament of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá, it devolves upon the members of the Universal House of Justice to formulate and apply such system of laws as would be in conformity with the essentials and requisites expressly recorded by the Author and Interpreter of the Faith for the conduct of Bahá’í administration. I have consequently refrained from establishing a settled and uniform procedure for the election of the Assemblies of the East and the West, leaving them free to pursue their own methods of procedure which in most cases had been instituted and practiced during the last two decades of the life of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá. The general practice prevailing throughout the East is the one based upon the principle of plurality rather than absolute majority, whereby those candidates that have obtained the highest number of votes, irrespective of the fact whether they command an absolute majority of the votes cast or not, are automatically and definitely elected. It has been felt, with little justification, that this method, although applause in its disregard of the principle that requires that each elected member must secure a majority of the votes cast, does away on the other hand with the more serious disadvantage of restricting the freedom of the elector who, unhampered and unconstrained by electoral necessities, is called upon to vote for none but those whom prayer and reflection have inspired him to uphold. Moreover, the practice of nomination, so detrimental to the atmosphere of a silent and prayerful election, is viewed with mistrust insomuch as it gives the right to the majority of a body that, in itself under the present circumstances, often constitutes a majority of all the elected delegates, to deny that God-given right of every elector to vote only in favor of those whom he is conscientiously convinced are the most worthy candidates. Should this simple system be provisionally adopted, it would safeguard the spiritual principle of the unfettered freedom of the voter, who will thus preserve intact the sanctity of the choice he first made. It would avoid the inconvenience of securing advance nominations from absent delegates and the impracticality of associating them with the assembled electors in the subsequent ballots that are often required to meet the exigencies of majority vote.

I would recommend these observations to your earnest consideration, and whatever decision you arrive at, all local Assemblies and individual believers, I am certain, will uphold, for their spiritual privilege is not only to consult freely and frequently with the National Spiritual Assembly, but to uphold as well with confidence and cheerfulness whatever is the considered verdict of their national representatives.—To the American National Spiritual Assembly. May 27, 1927.

The Guardian wishes the N. S. A. to remind, and make it quite clear to the believers in that land that the supreme body in the United States and Canada, whose privilege and function is to lay down, amend and abrogate the administrative principles of the Faith with the approval of the Guardian, is not the Convention, however representative it may be, but the N. S. A. On the other hand, it is the sacred obligation and the primary function of the National Assembly not to restrict under any circumstances, the freedom of the assembled delegates, whose twofold function is to elect their national representatives and to submit to them any recommendations they may feel inclined to make. The function of the Convention is purely advisory and though the advice it gives is not binding in its effect on those on whom rest the final decision in purely administrative matters, yet, the utmost caution and care should be exercised lest anything should hamper the delegates in the full and free exercise of their function. In discharging this sacred function no influence whatever, no pressure from any quarter, even though it be from the National Assembly, should under any circumstances affect their views or restrict their freedom. The delegates must be wholly independent of any administrative agency, must approach their task with absolute detachment and must concentrate their attention on the most important and pressing issues.
The Guardian believes that the right to elect the chairman and the secretary of the Convention should be vested in the assembled delegates, lest any objection be raised that the members of the outgoing National Assembly are seeking to direct the course of the discussion in a manner that would be conducive to their own personal interests. The National Assembly, however, must at all times vigilantly uphold, defend, justify and enforce the provisions of the Declaration of Trust and By-Laws which are binding on the Convention no less than on themselves. The N. S. A. has the right to lay down, enforce and interpret the National Constitution of the Baha'is in that land. It cannot, if it wishes to remain faithful to that Constitution, lay down any regulations, however secondary in character, that would in the least hamper the unrestricted liberty of the delegates to advise and elect those whom they feel best combine the necessary qualifications for membership of so exalted a body.

Non-delegates, however, according to the Guardian's considered opinion, should not be given the right to intervene directly during the sessions of the Convention. Only through an accredited delegate they should be given indirectly the chance to voice their sentiments and to participate in the deliberations of the Convention. Much confusion and complications must inevitably result in the days to come, if such a restriction be not imposed on a gathering which is primarily intended for the accredited delegates of the Baha'is communities. Bearing this restriction in mind, it is the duty of the N. S. A. to devise ways and means which would enable them to obtain valuable suggestions, not only from the total number of the elected delegates, but from as large a body of their fellow-workers as is humanly possible.

Shoghi Effendi has not departed from any established Administrative principle. He feels he has neither curtailed the legislative authority of the N. S. A. nor invested the Convention with undue powers enabling it to rival or supersede those whom it has to elect. What the Guardian is aiming at is to remind the friends, more fully than before, of the two cardinal principles of Baha'i Administration, namely, the supreme and unchallengable authority of the N. S. A. in national affairs working within the limits imposed by the Declaration of Trust and By-Laws, and the untrammelled freedom of the Convention delegates to advise, deliberate on the actions, and appoint the successors of their National Assembly. The Guardian is confident that you will elucidate and give the widest publicity to these already established principles, upon which the progress, the unity and welfare of Baha'i administrative institutions must ultimately depend.—To the American National Spiritual Assembly, through the Guardian's secretary. August 12, 1933.

The utmost care and vigilance should be exercised lest any fresh misunderstandings arise regarding these fundamental issues. The root principle of Baha'i Administration is unreservedly maintained. No departure from its established tenets is contemplated. The undisputed authority of America's supreme Baha'i administrative body has been reaffirmed, while on the other hand, the untrammelled freedom of individual believers and delegates to exercise their functions has been once again reaffirmed and strengthened. On the continuous and harmonious cooperation of the two leading Baha'i institutions in America, the growth and success of the administration bequeathed by 'Abdu'l-Baha must ultimately depend. May next year's Convention witness the triumph of these basic principles.—To the American National Spiritual Assembly. August 12, 1933 (the Guardian's postscript to the foregoing letter).
THE HOUR OF VICTORY
Present Status of Temple Construction

The devoted sacrifice of the American believers, reinforced by contributions sent from Bahá'í Assemblies in other lands, has by this date (January 6, 1934) produced a Temple Construction Fund of $156,500—exceeding by $6,500 the original estimate of $150,000 for cost of completing the external decoration of the dome unit. That original estimate, however, has proved insufficient to provide for increased labor costs and also for additional work and material it was found necessary to undertake in the present contract.

From a report made to the Temple Trustees by Research Service dated January 2, 1934, it appears that the total cost will be $173,310, and that it is expected that the ornamentation of the entire Temple dome will be completed by January 27, 1934. During December the casting of all sections was completed, and the last shipment will be made on January 8. Between January 8 and 27 the remaining sections will be fixed in place.

In this issue of BAHÁ'Í NEWS we reproduce the text of the cablegram received from the Guardian on November 18, 1933, in response to the announcement sent him by the National Spiritual Assembly that sufficient funds had been received to make it possible to continue the construction.

Local Assemblies, groups and individual believers, one and all, are urged to ponder deeply the Guardian's significant message. "The hour of victory" has many meanings which will appear in later days. Meanwhile it is our greatest privilege and duty to the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh to realize that Victory means our united capacity to complete this tremendous task.

The sum of $16,810 is still due on the total of $173,310, and will be payable by February 15, 1934. The present month must accordingly witness a renewal of our determination to arise as a Bahá'í community to the standard set for us by Shoghi Effendi in the passionate words cabled on November 2: "Appeal hard pressed American believers heed this, my last passionate entreaty, not to suffer slightest interruption in Temple construction to dim the magnificence of their epoch making enterprise. The fair name of our beloved Faith is at stake. Its American stalwart defenders will once again vindicate its triumphant glory."

THE BAHÁ'Í FUND AND THE NEW WORLD ORDER

"As the progress and extension of spiritual activities is dependent and conditioned upon material means, it is of absolute necessity that immediately after the establishment of local as well as national Spiritual Assemblies, a Bahá'í Fund be established, to be placed under the exclusive control of the Spiritual Assembly. All donations and contributions should be offered to the Treasurer of the Assembly, for the express purpose of promoting the interests of the Cause, throughout that locality or country. It is the sacred obligation of every conscientious and faithful servant of Bahá'u'lláh who desires to see His Cause advance, to contribute freely and generously for the increase of that Fund. The members of the Spiritual Assembly will at their own discretion expend it to promote the Teaching campaign, to help the needy, to establish educational Bahá'í institutions, to extend in every way possible their sphere of service. I cherish the hope that all the friends, realizing the necessity of this measure, will bestir themselves and contribute, however modestly at first, towards the speedy establishment and the increase of that Fund."—Shoghi Effendi, March 12, 1933.

The completion of the ornamentation of the dome of the Temple, which will have become an accomplished fact by about the first of February, definitely places another milestone in the triumphant progress of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh in America. It stands physically a wondrous thing of beauty, attractive beyond every expectation, winning for the Faith the respect and admiration of all.

Those who were engaged in the work of building this glorious edifice know that it is a miracle wrought by the hand of God. It stands as a testimony to unity of those who are carrying forward the banner of the Faith under the leadership of the Guardian. There can be no question regarding the value of the effort or the significance of the sacrifice made by the friends.

Now that this step has been taken, may it not be a most proper time to take inventory of the spiritual relationships indicated by the experience we had just gone through in order that we may, through such analysis, be better prepared for the steps that follow.

The work of building the Temple is inextricably bound into the work of promulgation of the Faith in America. The establishment of Bahá’í administration has no doubt been advanced by the enterprise. The edifice is a proof of the vitality of the Faith and it stands as a bulwark to every Bahá’í teacher.

During the years that have elapsed since we undertook to follow the example of the believers in Ishqabad, Russia, and sought the Master’s permission to build the Temple, the Faith in America has grown, and even though our growth as to numbers may be slow there is no question about the strength that has been developed through increased understanding and the consequent adjustments made by the believers.

Through the superb leadership of the Guardian of the Faith, the believers are finding their relationships to the administration, which is the foundation of the new world order. This has effected a unity among them such as we had not known before. It has enabled the friends to accomplish many things, and even though one of the outstanding achievements has been the completion of the most expensive unit of the Temple ornamentation, through a superb demonstration of sacrifice, the members of the National Spiritual Assembly feel certain that it is in the direction of our support of the Bahá’í Fund that we, as a body, must still adjust ourselves to another understanding.

We have quite naturally attempted to carry into our Faith ideas that we cherished before we became believers. Our method of raising money we are sure oftimes bears a closer resemblance to the drives made for similar purposes in the world about us, than to the lofty ideals of devotion and sacrifice that characterize the teachings of the Master and the Guardian.

The Plan of Unified Action, setting before us a goal to be reached in a certain period, augmented by numberless pleas by the National Spiritual Assembly and finally in desperate crisis by the Guardian himself, have no doubt had their desired effect. But careful study of the utterances of the Founders of our Faith, of the Master and also of the Guardian, must convince every thoughtful student that the way of sacrifice in this relation, as in every other, is not a spasmodic effort made under the pressure of enthusiasm but rather constant, unwavering devotion that becomes the basis for our every daily act. Seen in this light contributions to the Bahá’í fund become a steady stream of offerings made out of the fullness of the hearts of the believers, inspired and confident under all circumstances.

The new world order of Bahá’u’lláh is through the establishment of Bahá’í administration gradually evolving. The Bahá’ís everywhere are uniting under this banner to present to a crumbling world an organism that will be standing ready to carry on into an era that today is utterly beyond the concept of all who have not come into that Divine Light. This world order, based upon the love of God and the service of mankind, requires of its followers the sacrifice of old attachments and ideas and it places in their stead new heavenly standards that provide security for all men, individually and collectively. And just as the security for nations and peoples depends upon their obedience to the laws of God, so also does the security of each individual depend upon his acceptance of the Divine principles and his adjustment of his daily life to meet that standard.

A vital part of this Bahá’í administration is the Bahá’í Fund. Like every Bahá’í activity, be it the service of our fellow men, teaching, or the avoidance of evil, it becomes a part of every true believer’s life and out of whatever may be bestowed upon him by God’s bounty, he will day by day set aside a portion, even to the point of sacrifice. This then becomes actively a part of his devotional life, like his prayers. Through it he becomes a vital part of the new world order. He does what he can, demonstrating thereby a constant devotion and uniting with the believers everywhere through the administration.

The affairs of the Faith in our country could be administered with infinitely greater facility if every believer made regular monthly contributions to the local Bahá’í fund. And if the local Spiritual Assemblies likewise regularly contributed to the National Bahá’í Fund there is no doubt that the completion of the Temple could be systematically carried forward with such funds flowing without interruption into the treasury. The many activities of the Faith would prosper and even in difficult times our holy enterprise would not be jeopardized.

How far-reaching the significance of deeds performed in the service of our Faith no one of us presumest to know. The words of the Guardian in his recent pleas not to allow the prestige of the Faith to be jeopardized through our failure to complete the dome ornamentation did, however, give some indication that much depended on our carrying through to success.

We should, therefore, each one individually and as collective bodies again prayerfully reconsider this vital matter. Let us in our Nineteen Day Feasts deliberate on it and then arise to set in motion this step to carry the Faith in America forward on the basis of whole heartfelt support by every man and woman in the Faith. So that the Bahá’í Fund may become in truth an indication of the true unity of us all.

CARL SCHEFFLER, Ass’t Treasurer.
national Assemblies, in any form of activity that might be interpreted, either directly or indirectly, as an interference in the political affairs of any particular government.

"Let them refrain from associating themselves, whether by word or by deed, with the political pursuits of their respective nations, with the policies of their governments and the schemes and programs of parties and factions. In such controversies they should assign no blame, take no side, further no design, and identify themselves with no system prejudicial to the best interests of that world-wide Fellowship which it is their aim to guard and foster. Let them beware lest they allow themselves to become the tools of unscrupulous politicians, or to be entrapped by the treacherous devices of the plotters and the perfidious among their countrymen. Let them so shape their lives and regulate their conduct that the charge of secrecy, of fraud, of bribery or of intimidation may, however ill-founded, be brought against them. . . . It is their duty to strive to distinguish, as clearly as they possibly can, and if needed with the aid of their elected representatives, such posts and functions as are either diplomatic or political, from those that are purely administrative in character, and which under no circumstances are affected by the changes and chances that political activities and party government, in every land, must necessarily involve. Let them affirm their unyielding determination to stand, firmly and unreservedly, for the way of Bahá'u'lláh, to avoid the entanglements and bickerings inseparable from the pursuits of the politician, and to become worthy agencies of that Divine Polity which incarnates God's immutable Purpose for all men. . . .

"Let them proclaim that in whatever country they reside, and however advanced their institutions, or profound their desire to enforce the laws, and apply the principles enunciated by Bahá'u'lláh they will, unhesitatingly, subordinate the operation of such laws and the application of such principles to the requirements and legal enactments of their respective governments. Theirs is not the purpose, while endeavoring to conduct and perfect the administrative affairs of their Faith, to violate, under any circumstances, the provisions of their country's constitution, much less to allow the machinery of their administration to supersede the government of their respective countries."

This instruction raised the question whether believers should vote in any public election. A Tablet revealed to 'Abdu'l-Bahá to Mr. Thornton Chase was sent to the Guardian, and the following reply was received, dated January 26, 1933:

"The Guardian fully recognizes the authenticity and controlling influence of this instruction from 'Abdu'l-Bahá upon the question. He, however, feels under the responsibility of stating that the attitude taken by the Master (i.e., that American citizens are in duty bound to vote in public elections) implies certain reservations. He, therefore, lays it upon the individual conscience to see that in following the Master's instructions no Bahá'í vote for an officer nor Bahá'í participation in the affairs of the Republic shall involve acceptance by that individual of a program or policy that contravenes any vital principle, spiritual or social, of the Faith." The Guardian added to this letter the following postscript: "I feel it incumbent upon me to clarify the above statement, written in my behalf, by stating that no vote cast, or office undertaken, by a Bahá'í should necessarily constitute acceptance, by the voter or office holder, of the entire program of any political party. No Bahá'í can be regarded as either a Republican or Democrat, as such. He is above all else, the supporter of the principles enunciated by Bahá'u'lláh, with which, I am firmly convinced, the program of no political party is completely harmonious."

In a letter dated March 16, 1933, the Guardian sent these further details:

"As regards the non-political character of the Bahá'í Faith, Shoghi Effendi feels that there is no contradiction whatsoever between the Tablet (to Thornton Chase, referred to above) and the reservations to which he has referred. The Master surely never desired the friends to use their influence towards the realization and promotion of policies contrary to any of the principles of the Faith. The friends may vote, if they can do it, without identifying themselves with one party or another. To enter the arena of party politics is surely detrimental to the best interests of the Faith and will harm the Cause. It remains for the individuals to so use their right to vote as to keep aloof from party politics, and always bear in mind that they are voting on the merits of the individual, rather than because he belongs to one party or another. The matter must be made perfectly clear to the individuals, who will be left free to exercise their discretion and judgment. But if a certain person does enter into party politics and labors for the ascendency of one party over another, and continues to do it against the expressed appeals and warnings of the Assembly, then the Assembly has the right to refuse him the right to vote in Bahá'í elections."

LETTERS FROM THE GUARDIAN

1. To the National Spiritual Assembly

Mr. Horace Holley.
Dear Bahá'í Brother:

The Guardian was extremely pleased to receive the photograph of the members of the National Spiritual Assembly taken in one of the outer sections of the Temple, and showing very clearly the strikingly beautiful ornamentation work which, thanks to the generous and continued efforts of our American believers, is proceeding quickly and without any interruption. In a recent cablegram to your Assembly the Guardian has given the promise of one year's respite, provided the dome ornamentation is successfully completed. It is for the distinguished National representatives of the American believers to exert their utmost, and to display the same enthusiasm and the same energetic and wise control which have thus far characterized both their national and their international services to the Faith, in order that this mighty Edifice may come nearer to its completion.

Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler's passing is, indeed, an irretrievable loss which the Bahá'í world has come to suffer at a time when her presence in their midst was so greatly needed, not only because of her inspiring personality, but due to her intelligent, wise and energetic handling of the many and varied problems confronting the followers of the Faith in Persia. For more than one year she toiled and suffered, undismayed by the forces of darkness which so increasingly challenge the devotion and loyalty, and hamper the progress of the work, of our Persian brethren. Nothing was strong enough to sap the vitality of her faith and neither the opposition of the Government, nor the slackness and inefficiency of those with whom she had to work, could possibly discourage and dishearten her. Her faith was deep, her energy inexhaustible. And she was, indeed, fully repaid for all that she did, whether in connection with the teaching of the Message, or in regard to the consolidation of the nascent administrative institutions of the Cause in the very land of its birth.
The Guardian, fully aware of the noble gifts of her heart and mind, has given her not only the station of a martyr but that of a Hand of the Cause of God. In two telegrams addressed to the Tiran and Isfahan Assemblies he has requested our Persian friends to fix her final resting place in the vicinity of Sultanu'sh-Shuhada's grave in Isfahan.

He has also, through the following cablegram, informed your National Assembly of his intention to do so: "Instructed Isfahan Assembly inter Keith vicinity grave Sultanu'sh-Shuhada surmamed by Baha'ullah 'King of Martyrs.'" His instructions on this point have been immediately carried out by the Isfahan Assembly and it is, therefore, very encouraging to learn that our beloved Keith has been accorded such a befitting refuge. For as you may know, Sultanu'sh-Shuhada, to whom Baha'ullah gave the title of the "King of Martyrs" as a result of the glorious martyrdom he suffered for the Cause, was one of the most eminent and ardent followers of the Faith, not only in Isfahan but in the whole of Persia. His brother, sur­named by Baha'ullah the "Beloved of Martyrs" was also a very distinguished and devoted Baha'i, who gave up his life for the sake of the Cause. So, as you see, the interment of Keith in the vicinity of the grave of such an outstanding Persian believer is very befitting, and will pass down through the ages as the symbol of the unity of the East and West.

In another cablegram to your Assembly dated November 2, 1933, which runs as follows: "Holy Land's growing and increasingly appreciative inhabitants long witness model, however small, majestic Temple," he has requested you to send him, without any delay and in case it is not too expensive, a small model of the Temple to be placed either in the International Baha'i Archives on Mt. Carmel, or in any other place, where the many and increasingly appreciative visitors who come to the Shrines can be given a chance to visualize the glory and grandeur of the Edifice which your untiring hands have so well raised.

In closing please extend our Guardian's loving greetings and best wishes to all the members of the National Assembly. His prayers on their behalf will be continually offered to Baha'ullah, that He may impart to them the wisdom, guidance and faith they need for the complete discharge of their manifold duties to the Cause.

Yours in His Service,
(signed) H. RABBANI.

Mr. Horace Holley:
Dear Baha'i Brother:

. . . Regarding the situation in Persia Shoghi Effendi wishes the N. S. A. to renew their representations to the Persian Minister and to persevere in their glorious efforts for the liberation of their persecuted Persian brethren. Now that our precious Keith is no more it is of vital importance to the success of their endeavors that they should work hard and impress the Minister with the urgency and rightfulness of our case. To cease pressing our case at this critical time will give the authorities the impression that our representations were mere formalities and without any solid foundation. To create such a highly unfavorable impression about the Cause is, indeed, an irreparable mistake which may greatly retard the administrative development of the Cause not only in Persia but also in the West.

The latest persecutions to which our beloved Faith has been subjected in the very land of its birth are of a distressing nature and are increasing both in number and in intensity. Not only our literature is confiscated at the frontiers but a number of books are reported to have been burnt by Government officials despite the fact that they contain nothing which can be said to be contrary to the laws of the State or to the basic teachings of its official Church. Furthermore, Baha'is are not permitted to use their own marriage certificates, but are indirectly compelled to use those belonging to other religious communities such as the Moslems, Jews and Zoroastrians. And all this on the ground that their teachings are not in accordance with the prescribed laws of the Moslem clergy, and also because they do not belong to and do not form an essential part of a new religious Dispensation.

Please inform him of the answer which the Persian Minister has given, and if it is a written one, be sure to send him the text of the reply. The Guardian wishes you also to be in close and constant touch with the Tiran Assembly, to obtain from them all the information you need, and to welcome any suggestion they may offer. He hopes that through your continued and diligent labors much that is vital to the immediate interests of the Faith in Persia will be achieved. He will continue to pray on your behalf that your endeavors may be crowned with success.

Yours in His Service,
(signed) H. RABBANI.

Mr. Allen B. McDaniel
Dear and Prized Co-worker:

The situation in Persia is growing more dangerous, more confused and perplexing every day. Bahá'í literature is banned, confiscated and burned. Bahá'í marriage certificates are denied recognition by the civil authorities and the status of those who are married among the believers is fraught with inceivable difficulties and dangers. The printing of Bahá'í news letters, magazines and calendars is tacitly forbidden and constantly interfered with. Intolerable restrictions are being increasingly imposed on Bahá'í gatherings, celebrations, teaching activities, and inter-assembly communications. With the passing of Keith, that indefatigable, brilliant and wholly consecrated international champion of the Cause, the Persian believers may be entering upon a period of systematic persecution reminiscent of the sufferings of a by-gone day. I urge your Assembly to obtain the fullest and up-to-date information from the Tiran Assembly and to exert the utmost pressure on the Persian Minister at Washington.

Your true and grateful brother,

(signed) SHOGHI...

Mr. Roy C. Wilhelm
Dear Bahá'í Brother:

I need not express his (the Guardian's) great joy at the news of the continued progress of the Temple work. For you know only too well how much he is eager to see the entire Edifice brought to successful completion. His repeated emphasis on the imperative necessity of insuring, by every means, the speedy termination of this historic enterprise seems to have created a new spirit of self-sacrifice and of initiative in the entire body of the believers throughout the world. It is of the utmost importance that this spirit be kept alive through continued encouragement. For any slackness in the energy and enthusiasm of the friends, at this critical and most decisive moment, will have severe repercussions on the Cause. The Guardian will fervently pray that during the next few months the ornamentation of the Temple dome may proceed quickly, so as to impress and stimulate the many visitors and... strangers who come to attend the Chicago World Fair. He will also offer his special prayers to Bahá'u'lláh on account of all the members of the Na tional Spiritual Assembly that they may be guided and inspired in all their historic endeavors for the consolidation and the progress of the Cause.
Yours in His Service,
(signed) H. RABBANI.

2. To Individual Believers
He sincerely hopes and prays that the literature and letters you are sending to eminent men in the different parts of the country will have their desired effect and that the Word of God will gradually penetrate into their heart and win it. It however takes time. Such men are generally captive in the hands of some cherished ideas and principles which they cannot give up so quickly. The mere fact that a person is learned does not mean that he is free from prejudice.

The academic life also has its fash-on and fads, even though they are of different nature from the fads of the man on the street. These fashions are not permanent; they are bound to change. Today the fad is a materialistic view of life and of the world.
A day will soon come when it will become deeply religious and spiritual.
In fact, we can discern the beginning of such a change in the writings of some of the most eminent souls and liberal minds. When the pendulum will start its full swing, then we shall see all such eminent men turn again to God.
—(To Mr. Willard Hatch, October 18, 1932.)

As regards the meaning of the Baá'í Covenant: The Guardian considers the existence of two forms of Covenant both of which are explicitly mentioned in the literature of the Cause. First is the Covenant that every prophet makes with humanity or, more definitely, with His people that they will accept and follow the coming Manifestation who will be the reappearance of His reality. The second form of Covenant is such as the one Bahá'u'lláh made with His people that they should accept the Master.
This is merely to establish and strengthen the succession of the series of Lights that appear after every Manifestation. Under the same category falls the Covenant the Master made with the Bahá'ís that they should accept His administration after Him.

To divide the inheritance as it is prescribed by Bahá'u'lláh we have to divide it into 2,520 shares. But we also can divide it into 42 shares. Then every one of the beneficiaries will take so many of these shares. These numbers form like a highest denominator for the different fractions which represent the shares of the different individuals that will benefit in case of intestacy. In case of the non-existence of one class of inheritors the Aqdas mentions how it should be divided. As a general rule a part goes to the House of Justice, a part to the children.—(To Mr. Dales S. Cole, October 21, 1932.)

I wish to urge the necessity of concentrating at your next summer session, on the systematic study of the erly history and principles of the Faith, on public speaking, and on a thorough discussion, both formally and informally, of various aspects of the Cause. These I regard as essential preliminaries to a future intensive campaign of teaching in which the risgenation must engage, if the spread of the Cause is to be assured in that land.—(To Mr. and Mrs. L. W.
Eggleston, November 2, 1932.)

The growth and development of the Bahá'í center of West Englewood is a source of intense and genuine satisfaction. I particularly welcome their exemplary activity in associating themselves with the social and humanitarian efforts exerted by the local authorities in that center and in demonstrating, in a tangible manner, the universality of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh and the vitality of His Faith. May its sister Assemblies follow the example which West Englewood has so nobly set, and by their perseverance and concerted efforts hasten the advent of the golden age of our time.—(To Mr. and Mrs.

Roy C. Wilhelm, November 14, 1932.)

All the spiritual and social movements existing in the world, and undoubtedly there are many of them, have some spark of the divine truth.
Their very existence shows that they have something to offer to man and fulfil some purpose. But what the world needs, at such a critical moment in its history, is not a mere palliative.
It needs a movement that goes deep into its social and spiritual illness and brings about a complete, fundamental change—a change that will include in its scope both the social and spiritual reform of man. But such a movement cannot be inaugurated save by a messenger of God, revealed by Him for that very object. In similar critical moments that have punctuated the history of man in the past, a Zoroaster, a Moses, a Christ and a Muhammad appeared, and in this day, the Bahá'ís declare, Bahá'u'lláh has been revealed.

Just as in the past the Prophets have been persecuted and their Mission was ridiculed, so has the message of Bahá'u'lláh been scoffed at as a mere impractical idealism. From His earliest youth He was put in chains, expatriated and persecuted. But what do we observe in this day? less than forty years after His death, the principles He advocated are the only solution for practical politics, the spiritual truths He voiced are the crying needs of man and the very thing He requires for his moral and spiritual development.

He does not ask us to follow Him blindly; as He says in one of His Tablets, God had endowed man with a mind to operate as a torchlight and guide him to truth. Read His words, consider His teachings, and measure their value in the light of contemporary problems and the truth will surely be revealed to you. Read books such as the Iqán, Some Answered Questions, Nábil's Narrative, and you will appreciate the truth of His mission, as well as the true spirit He creates in whosoever follows His ways.

—(To Mrs. Paxton, February 26, 1933.)

The believers, and particularly those who have not had sufficient experience in teaching, should be very careful in the way they present the teachings of the Cause. Sincerity, devotion and faith are not the sole conditions of successful teaching. Tactfulness, extreme caution and wisdom are equally important. We should not be in a hurry when we announce the message to the public and we should be careful to present the teachings in their entirety and not to alter them for the sake of others. Allegiance to the Faith cannot be partial and half-hearted.

Either we should accept the Cause without any qualification whatever, or cease calling ourselves Bahá'ís.
The new believers should be made to realize that it is not sufficient for them to accept some aspects of the teachings and reject those which cannot suit their mentality in order to become fully recognized and active followers of the Faith. In this way all sorts of misunderstandings will vanish and the organic unity of the Cause will be preserved.—(To Mrs. Shahnaz Waite, June 12, 1933.)

Do not lose heart and never relax in your worldwide activities your magnificent endeavors for the consolidation of the Faith of God and the completion of the Temple. Condone your apppeals to the Bahá'í Assemblies, familizarize them with the deeds, the sufferings, the ideals and sacrifices of the immortal heroes of the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh—heroes the record of whose labors Nabil has so vividly described. May such familiarity arouse those who receive such letters from you to set a still nobler example of self-abnegation, of courage and sacrifice.—(To Mrs. Victoria Bedekian, received June 14, 1933.)

Regarding the principle that the Cause must not be allowed to center around any Bahá'í personality, the Guardian wishes to make it clear that it was never intended that well qualified individual teachers should not receive from local Assemblies every encouragement and facilities to address the public. What the Guardian meant was that the personality and popularity of such a speaker should never be allowed to eclipse the authority, or detract from the influence of the body of the elected representatives in every local community. Such an individual should not only seek the approval, advice and assistance of the body that represents the Cause in his locality, but should strive to attribute any credit he may obtain to the collective wisdom and capacity of the Assembly under whose jurisdiction he performs his services. Assemblies and not individuals constitute the bedrock on which the Administration is built. Everything else must be subordinated to, and be made to serve and advance the best interests of these elected custodians and promoters of the Laws of Bahá'u'lláh.—(To Mr. Alfred E. Lunt, August 12, 1933.)

LETTER FROM PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

Dear Bahá'í friends:

One of the greatest fields for teaching the Cause lies practically unexplored before every Bahá'í Community in this country. Publicity in the daily newspapers presents a tremendous field which we should make every effort to use. What group of people has greater news than have the Bahá'ís?

Newspaper publicity presents difficulties and pitfalls. We should make an earnest endeavor to learn the way to approach an editor, have an interview and be rewarded by seeing the material in print within a reasonable length of time. In time your material can be mailed but it is first necessary to establish confidence that your copy is of value to the reading public.

Material for Bahá'í publicity may include such subjects as these: The Bahá'í Plan for a World State, International Tribunal, Universal Peace, Disarmament, Universal House of Worship, and quotations from the World Order Letters from Shoghi Effendi.

A newspaper editor is a busy person. He should only be approached with properly prepared material and copy that can be called news. It is relatively simple to get a head line if your Community is having a guest speaker who is a public figure. The test real comes in securing space for material that teaches the Cause and still has news element enough to be acceptable to the editor. This is not easy and we should at first be glad to secure any notice no matter how insignificant.

Here are a few simple rules which may be of assistance to those who are new in this field:

1. Copy for the day should be in the office (if an evening paper) before 10 A. M.
2. All copy should be typewritten if possible and typewriting double spaced.
3. Write all names in full or with two initials.
4. Make no abbreviations.
5. Do not say "Mr." John Smith. He is John Smith.
6. All women's names should be prefixed with "Mrs." or "Miss".
7. Make all items answer five questions: who, what, when, where, and why.
8. Make all material pay for space with news value.
9. Remember that news is only news the minute or day that it happens.
10. The A. B. C. of reporting is Accuracy, Brevity, and Clearness.

With these simple rules before you prepare your copy. Be sure that your statements about the Cause or the person who will address you are accurate and dignified. The material which you present may be somewhat changed before it is finally printed but the original statements should be carefully prepared and clearly presented.

The National Publicity Committee will from time to time send you publicity to be used in your local papers. Before sending or taking this material to the editors study it carefully and rewrite perhaps the first paragraph so that it will link up with some local event or contain some local color. Local Spiritual Assemblies leave the publicity work to the corresponding secretary of the Assembly, others have a publicity chairman. The believer doing this work should be chosen with great care. Tact and diplomacy are essential. A reasonable knowledge of the material in the Cause suitable to be used at present and time to devote to the preparation of this material are necessary. A spirit of courage that cannot be quenched by an editor is perhaps the first requirement.

Will you please send to The National Publicity Committee the name and address of the person handling your publicity that we may get in touch with this believer and work directly with them.

The questions before us are these: Are we creating a publicity consciousness among the believers? Are we being impersonal and placing this work in the hands of the person best fitted to carry it forward to success? Is your publicity chairman making a careful research of the newspapers finding out the methods used to present such material to the public? Is your publicity chairman watching for daily events that can be linked up with the principles of the Cause and a news item made? Do we realize the tremendous field which this opens?

It is a difficult problem but an intensely interesting one. We, the Bhá'ís of the world have the only solution for the problems which face humanity today and it does seem as though we should be able to use such a powerful organ as the press for presenting this much needed remedy to the sick body of mankind.

RUTH RANDALL BROWN, Chairman, National Publicity Committee.

LETTER FROM INTER-RACIAL AMITY COMMITTEE

Joyful Greetings in the Greatest Name!

Your National Racial Amity Committee, seeking the Source of unfailing strength and guidance and entering with humility upon the task assigned, share with the friends the results of our first meeting of consultation.

Considering the vital need of cementing the bond of unity and harmony between the white and colored in America as a means of enlightenment and security, both within and without, we submit that racial amity activities and reports should have a prominent rather than incidental place in the agenda of the National Spiritual Assembly, the annual Convention and in the monthly and annual meetings of each Spiritual Assembly and community consultation. Spiritual Assemblies should ever endeavor so to inspire their respective committees and communities that amity work should not only be sporadic and occasional, but an accepted ideal and a means of illustrating in daily life as often as possible the greatest principle of Baha'u'llah, the oneness of the world of humanity.

Conference for racial amity, a practice divine in origin and ever revealing a striking psychology and spiritual fire should be held in each center one or more times a year and be followed by every practical measure of teaching which will bring attracted souls to the station of acceptance of the entire program of Baha'u'llah, an attitude which brings symmetry of life and effectiveness in service. Smaller and informal groups should meet oftener. It is our conviction that in view of the seriousness of the problem to promote better understanding, the colored race should as far as possible have committee assignments wherever their attainments and capacity warrant. At this critical juncture, when conditions already severe are aggravated by economic distress, special efforts should be made to attract the colored leaders. In the absence of colored believers in any community it may be wise for the friends from time to time to consult with colored people of prominence outside of the Cause. Such occasions may be a means of enlightenment and spiritual understanding. Baha'i influence may also at times be used to obtain audiences for colored speakers in white meetings, such as liberal churches, forums, etc.

Strengthening the bond of mutual appreciation and good will between the races is our goal. As an aid to this may it not be reasonable to hope that each racial group will strive to remove within its own ranks whatever prejudices exist. Prejudices are both interracial and intraracial. Distinctions based upon untruths have no standing either in modern science or in pure religion. The difficulties involved in our own advancements should make us more patient over the slow yet certain progress toward universal results. While it is clear that rank based upon merit is essential to the order of the world, yet divisions that signify less than worth are symptoms of a sick world. A consistent attitude on the basis of faith, of freedom from bias, brings joy to the individual, efficiency to the group and harmony to mankind. Blindness to praiseworthy effort with concentration upon mere shortcomings tends to deepen veils and delay relief.

The approach of the amity worker should be that of the kind physician rather than the crusader. He becomes a channel for the pure health which the Spirit of Truth brings to all. Those who harbor prejudices and other attitudes inimical to unity and progress, owe it to their own better natures as well as to humanity to forsake them. On the other hand those victimized by such reactions of pride or tradition will find much solace in cultivating mental and spiritual gifts which draw even the opposer.

When we contemplate the tragic injustices of the world, let us recall with reverent gratitude the fact that in the blessed Cause of Baha'u'llah all prejudice and discrimination does not exist. Our highest contribution, then, is to extend the ranks of the believers, adding new souls of all races as confirmed believers, that the power of Baha'i example may be multiplied throughout America.

Amity work should be as sane, practical, well poised, loving and wisely guided as to attract to its standard representatives of the conservative and influential people of a community as well as those famed for liberality. There are far more liberals in the world today than when this work began. Many such people have voiced their declaration of freedom from the old order in no uncertain terms. The friends of God may lead and inspire such souls nor be content to follow them.

It is our hope that the friends in every section shall fulfill the wishes of our Guardian by sustained activity in this fertile field and shall flood us with letters and reports. The work of establishing harmony between the white and colored, as promulgated by the Master, may be easily kept free from all political entanglements, a danger which may sometimes arise from contacts with other nationalities. Divine Confirmations support resolute wills.

1. Specifically, the National Spiritual Assembly hopes that local assemblies will include in their racial amity meetings definite follow-up work that will be a part of the original program.

2. In order to bring amity workers and the assemblies in all parts closer together, it is proposed to make amity meetings the occasions for talks on science and education, stressing the need of a broader, more universal platform in relation to this work.

3. It is suggested that a study be made of the conditions of colored people within the jurisdiction of each spiritual assembly so that intelligent help may be given, remembering that the more difficult the times, the greater the pressure on oppressed minorities and the greater capacity on their part for the heavenly message. It is hoped that the Nineteen Day Feasts will be an occasion of divine education and that frank discussion will bring each community into more harmonious thought and action in this vital work.

The abiding interest which Shoghi Effendi takes in racial amity is clearly reflected in what is perhaps his latest word on the subject, dated October 24, 1933. His message in part follows: "Your warm and welcome message of Sept. 11, 1933, together with the enclosed reports and program of the annual conference for racial amity at Green Acre, were all duly received and their perusal greatly cheered and gladdened our Guardian's heart. His hope is that these annual gatherings will increasingly develop and will serve to attract well known and important personalities to the Cause. Competent and eloquent speakers are needed who can present the teachings in a scholarly way, and who cannot merely inform, but inspire the attendants to rally themselves under the banner of the Faith. The keen and continued interest which Mr. Vail and yourself have always had in such activities will undoubtedly be of immense help to the cause of Racial Amity and peace throughout the States. You should therefore persevere and be confident in the complete and eventual success of your efforts in this most important field of activity."

Faithfully and lovingly submitted,

Racial Amity Committee

LETTER FROM THE BAHAI YOUTH COMMITTEE TO ASSEMBLIES OUTSIDE THE U. S. AND CANADA

Dear Baha'i friends:

The Baha'i Youth Committee of the American N. S. A., has received some instructions from the Guardian which are of direct interest to all young Baha'is throughout the world. His secretary writes, "He would strongly urge you to cooperate, heart and soul, with all the various assemblies, groups and committees throughout the Baha'i world, to ask for their assistance and help for the successful discharge of your duties and obligations, and in this way to try to build up an active and ready-minded Baha'i youth throughout the world. In other words, you should not confine your activities to the national sphere but should strive to create under the supervision of your N. S. A. an international body of active young Bahá’í men and women who, conscious of their manifold and sacred responsibilities, will unanimously arise to spread the Holy Word.”

Accordingly, we are directing this letter to you, in the hope that we may be put in touch with your young Bahá’ís, and thus proceed, all of us together, to carry forward the Guardian’s desires.

In America the necessary steps have been taken to inaugurate a youth program. It may interest you to know that the N. S. A. has appointed a National Committee of six members, and has called for the appointment of local youth committees by each local assembly. Already, however, many youth groups exist. In a recent count, seventeen were discovered, out of thirty-six assemblies answering the questionnaire. We have, therefore, a considerable body of young believers, whose efforts it is the aim of the National Committee to consolidate.

The Committee’s functions have been set forth by the N. S. A. as follows: “...the deepening and broadening of the knowledge of the Faith ... of our younger members, by providing local youth committees with appropriate study courses ...; second, establishing sympathetic contact with non-Baha’i youth, so as to bring them into an appreciation of, as well as in support of the World Order of Bahá’u’lláh; and third, intensifying this field of teaching service by outlining methods of establishing Introductory Forums, Discussion Groups, etc.”

We in this country feel that an exchange of news and practical suggestions among the youth groups of our Bahá’í world could best serve to stimulate our development. A step in this direction has already been taken by the Youth Section of the Herald of the South (printed in Adelaide, Australia). But in addition, we should welcome direct correspondence with local groups, and we therefore propose to send you a bulletin of our progress from time to time.

The Publishing Committee can now supply copies of an important work only available in the French language: “Seyyed Ali Mohammed dit Le Bab” by A. L. M. Nicholas, First Interpreter of the French Legation in Tehran. This is one of the few works by European scholars on the early days of the Cause. The Frontispiece consists of a reproduction of a water color portrait of the Bab. $1.50 per copy.

The Committee has received from the Guardian a letter inquiring about the sales of The Dawn-Breakers, in which his secretary writes that “he hopes that the demand for this most valuable book will be increased, and will therefore give an unprecedented publicity to the Faith.”

Some weeks ago the Publishing Committee issued to Assemblies two letters announcing that if sufficient advance orders are received, the Committee can bring out two new important Bahá’í works—“Security for a Failing World” by Stanwood Cobb, and “Bahá’í Answers” compiled by Olivia Kelsey, both approved by the Reviewing Committee. Advance orders have been received as follows: “Security for a Failing World,” 284 copies.

“Bahá’í Answers,” 289 copies. The Committee regrets that until a greater number of orders is received, it will not be possible to undertake their publication.

In this connection the friends are requested to consider the Guardian’s view of Dr. Cobb’s book, as conveyed in the following letter written to him on October 28, 1933:

“...its comprehensiveness; and its clear and convincing presentation of the outstanding aims and features of the Bahá’í Revelation, will greatly appeal to every thoughtful student of present-day religious and social problems. It thus fills a big gap in the literature of the Movement, and will greatly assist all the believers in their efforts for the spread of the Message. We do not have as yet any better introduction to the Cause. Doctor Esslemont’s most valuable book is much more than an introduction. It is far more detailed, and treats of the Cause from a totally different angle. Your treatise, therefore, does not replace the “New Era,” but will serve as the best introduction to it. It is not a substitute, but an important addition to a work which is in many ways unique in the entire literature of the Movement, which has already acquired the widest possible publicity.”

Yours in His Service,
H. RABBANI.

Another letter dated November 4, 1933, was also written Dr. Cobb as follows:

“I am directed by Shoghi Effendi to ask you to be kind enough to inform the Bahá’í Publishing Committee of his wish to have fifty copies of your valuable book on the Cause “Security for a Failing World” as soon as it will be published. He feels that this work, together with a recent book published in Germany by our devoted and gifted friend Dr. Hermann Grossmann, have a special appeal to the youth of our present-day generation, and he hopes that their wide circulation, in all circles, and among all types of readers and writers, will greatly stimulate the spread of the Message, and at the same time encourage the friends to reinforce their efforts for the extension and the consolidation of the Faith. It is hoped that all the individual believers, as well as the Local Assemblies, both in America and abroad, will gladly and wholeheartedly respond to the appeal of the Publishing Committee in connection with the publication of your original and much-needed essay on the Cause.”

Yours in His Service,
H. RABBANI.

2. Archives Committee

As rapidly as possible, the Archives Committee is undertaking a thorough survey of the Tablets and other Bahá’í treasures placed in the National Archives over a long term of years. The aim is to transfer them to a special room in the Foundation Hall of the Temple, and develop a filing system and also a method of storage which will make this great wealth of material available.

The Committee urges the believers to take steps to send in their copies of the Master's Tablets, original letters from the Guardian, and other Bahá'í papers and material of permanent value to the Cause. The friends are reminded of the fact that precious Tablets and letters, as well as photographs of historic interest, are subject to constant risk of loss by fire and destruction in other ways. Sometimes, also, those responsible for the personal effects of believers after death fail to realize the importance of Bahá'í papers. The Archives Committee will issue receipts for everything placed in its charge, and arrangements can also be made to have photostat copies of documents made at moderate cost.

Communications can be sent to the Committee through the Secretary, Mrs. May Scheffler, 1821 Lincoln Street, Evanston, Ill.

3. Committee on Bahá'í History

The History Committee, recently appointed by the National Spiritual Assembly, urge every Spiritual Assembly in the United States and Canada to appoint some one who will be responsible for gathering together the historical data about the Bahá'í Cause which this Committee must have in order to compile an accurate history. This is only a suggestion, and if it is favorably acted upon, it should in no wise preclude individual members from doing all they possibly can to further the plan of submitting to the National Spiritual Assembly for our Guardian an accurate account of the inception and steady progress of the Cause in this country.

The friends of God can readily understand that unless we have the most complete cooperation, the account which we compile may not be accurate and important matters might be omitted because of lack of information.

The work of compiling the material in hand will be undertaken before very long and it is our hope that each Assembly and each individual will act just as promptly as possible.

Please address all communications for this Committee to:

Mr. Charles Mason Remey, Chairman, History Committee, 2440 Massachusetts Ave., Washington, D. C.

BAHÁ'Í DIRECTORY

Additions and Corrections

The friends are requested to note the following additions and corrections upon their copies of the Bahá'í Directory issued as a special number of Bahá'í News in November, 1933.

Two new Committees are to be added:

Committee on Braille Transcriptions (Bahá'í Literature for the Blind)—Mrs. Nellie S. French, Chairman, Miss Ella C. Quant, Mrs. Constance Rodman. Address for correspondence: Mrs. Nellie S. French, 501 Bellefontaine Street, Pasadena, Calif.

Photograph Committee (to sell Bahá'í photographs and ringstones)—Mr. George Spendlove, 2811 Albermarle Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Add to list of groups:

Jacksonville, Fla., Miss Kathryn L. Vernon, Secretary, 707 Post Street.

Augusta, Ga., Miss Marguerite Klebs, Secretary, Masonic Building.

Corrections:

Pacific Coast Summer School—the Chairman is Mr. John D. Bosch, the Secretary, Mr. Leroy Iosias. For uniformity with other parts of the Directory, change "Mrs. Thomas H. Collins" to Mrs. Amelia Collins.

New York Spiritual Assembly—for "Mr. Edward B. Kennedy" substitute Mr. Edward B. Kinney.

Committee on Teaching and Training Children—the Chairman is Mrs. Charlotte Linfoot, the Secretary, Mrs. Marion Yazdi.

South Gate group—change address of Mrs. Josephine F. Clark, Secretary, to 8158 San Juan Avenue.

Visalia group—the Secretary is Miss Jane Barker.

The friends are requested to point out any remaining inaccuracies, and especially changes of address, that the Directory may be complete for the present Bahá'í year.

IN MEMORIAM

The believers are requested to offer prayer for these departed Bahá'ís:

Mrs. Annie Stewart, Kooskia, Idaho.

Mrs. Margaret Adams, Johnstown, N. Y.

Dr. Charles Berrien Hall, Chicago.

Mrs. Altia May, Chicago.

Mrs. Leona S. Barnitz, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Frank W. Doty, Yonkers, N. Y.

Miss Katherine Brandle, Cleveland.

Mr. John Hampel, Milwaukee, Wis.

Mrs. E. A. Dillabough, Farran Point, Ontario.

AMERICAN TEACHERS IN OTHER LANDS

The brief reference to American believers engaged in teaching in other countries, published in November, 1933, has received much attention, indicating how much their services are admired and appreciated by their fellow-Bahá'ís. The purpose of that statement was by no means to supply a complete list of teachers over a period of years, but rather to send loving greeting to those now abroad or who have been traveling during the present Bahá'í year.

Miss Marion Jack and Miss Julia Goldman are to be added to the names mentioned in November, and reference is also made to teaching work carried out by Mrs. Nellie S. French and Mrs. Amelia Collins during the summer of 1933 in Europe.

Interesting details of activities have been received from Miss Martha Root, Mrs. Louise Gregory and Miss Marion Jack, excerpts from which will be published in the next issue.
THE UNITY OF EAST AND WEST

American Baha'i Sacrifices Her Life in Service to Persian Believers

Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler’s Mission

The death of Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler at Isfahan, Persia, October 23, 1933, culminated a mission which constitutes one of the most poignant episodes in the current history of the Baha'i Faith. The last year of this heroic believer’s life, devoted to the high aim of securing from the Persian government a removal of the ban on entry and circulation of Bahá’í literature, as well as a final lifting of the heavy disabilities laid for so many years upon Persian Bahá’ís, may be likened to a wave whose concentrated force breaks upon a rocklike obstacle, then recedes to be gathered into the body of the sea. While the obstacle remains, the force has not been spent in vain. In future years the effect of this valiant faith will be fully disclosed.

Mrs. Ransom-Kehler carried forward a mighty task on which the American Bahá’í community has exerted itself over a long period of time; the consolidation of the spiritual unity of the East and West in fulfillment of the universal principles revealed by Bahá’u’lláh. The chief obstacle to this unity has throughout the eighty-nine years of Bahá’í history consisted in the resistance made by Persia to the new conceptions of harmony and fellowship created by Bahá’u’lláh, a notable expression of which was the work known as “The Mysterious Forces of Civilization” written by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá to inspire His fellow Persians with the true spirit of enlightenment and progress.

The present era of the Cause, dating from the appointment of Shoghi Effendi as Guardian in ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s Will and Testament, has witnessed a rapid development of the relations between the Bahá’í communities of Persia and America. By 1921, however, under ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s guidance, a lasting foundation had already been laid in the cooperation by American Bahá’ís in the work of the Tarbiat School at Tehran, through donations for scholarships and also the important services rendered the School by Dr. Susan I. Moody, Miss Lillian Kappes, Dr. Clock and Miss Elizabeth Stewart. The Persian Bahá’ís, meanwhile, had made their own unique and eternal contribution to the American Bahá’í community through the visits of such influential Bahá’í teachers as Mirza Ab’l-Fadl and Jina-e-Fadl.

During 1925 an opportunity was afforded American believers to express their attitude of spiritual unity with their Persian co-workers by the transmission of funds for the relief of the believers afflicted by floods at Nariz. Since 1921, moreover, Dr. Genevieve Coy served for a term as teacher in the Tarbiat School, and her visit to Persia was followed by that of Miss Martha Root and Mrs. Siegfried Shopflocker.

In 1927 a fresh outbreak of persecution led to the preparation of an appeal on the part of the American National Spiritual Assembly to His Majesty Reda Shah Pahlavi, copies of which were published and spread throughout the United States and Canada. Soon afterward a statement on the Cause prepared by the Assembly and addressed to leading Persian Muslims was translated into Persian by the Tehran Bahá’í community, and printed copies of this statement were sent to many hundreds of influential people in that country.

Again, early in 1932 the American Bahá’í Assembly addressed petitions to the Shah and his Prime Minister that the ban on entry of Bahá’í literature be removed. This formal representation failing in its purpose, on June 10, 1932, the American National Spiritual Assembly addressed a communication to His Majesty requesting the recognition of Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler as its representative duly chosen and empowered to present in person its renewed appeal. This letter, sent to Mrs. Ransom-Kehler as her credentials for the important mission with which she had been entrusted at Shoghi Effendi’s request, stated in part:

“Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, an American citizen, a member of the Bahá’í community of this country, and a distinguished student of the teachings and history of the Bahá’í Faith, can, with your Majesty’s gracious permission, amplify and supplement the statements made by this Assembly in the written petition addressed to your Majesty under date of January 12, 1932.

“More effectively than in our written communication, this personal representative can make clear to your Majesty how widely spread throughout America, and especially among the Bahá’ís, is the appreciation of the notable reforms which have been made in Persia as the result of your Majesty’s administration of affairs in that land. Mrs. Ransom-Kehler can likewise affirm for your Majesty the importance of the spiritual ties binding Persia and America through the reverence of the believers in both countries for the enlightened religious teachings of Bahá’u’lláh, the extraordinary effect of these teachings in paying high tribute to the prophetic character of the mission of Muhammad, overcoming the prejudice and misunderstanding prevalent among Christians in opposition to Islam for more than one thousand years, and the high moral value Bahá’í religious teachings have for Persia by inculcating loyalty to Government, forbidding sedition and upholding true ideals of education and humanitarian service.

“The appointment of a representative to journey to Tehran for the purpose of presenting in person the petition of this Assembly will make it evident to your Majesty how profoundly the American Bahá’ís are moved by their inability to communicate fully with their fellow-religionists in Persia by reason of the Postal regulations still prohibiting the entry of Bahá’í books and magazines published in the United States and Canada.”

It will be recalled that in Bahá’í News dated October, 1932, was published this reference to Mrs. Ransom-Kehler from a letter written to the National Spiritual Assembly by the Guardian’s secretary: “Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler is now with us in Haifa and in a few days will start for Persia. She rendered wonderful services in both Australia and India, and Shoghi Effendi trusts that she will do the same in Persia.”

On August 20, 1932, the following cablegram was received: “Mission successful. (signed) Keith.”

On September 14 the National Spiritual Assembly, rejoiced by this swift consummation, dispatched a cablegram to the Court Minister at Tehran as follows:

“On behalf American Bahá’ís we express abiding gratitude for removal ban on entry Bahá’í literature into Persia. This noble action of his Imperial Majesty’s Government has profoundly impressed Bahá’ís of the United States and Canada who have already felt strong attachment to Bahá’u’lláh’s native land. We wish to... assure your Highness of our sympathy for his Imperial Majesty, our great interest in progress and welfare of his Empire and our desire to assist in enhancing its prestige throughout the world." This message was brought to the attention of the Persian Minister at Washington in a letter dated October 21, 1932. A statement to the American press was also issued reporting that Mrs. Ransom-Kehler had received firm assurance from the Court Minister that the postal regulations under which Baha'i literature had been confiscated would be immediately annulled.

Before taking up the events which destroyed this hope, it is interesting to learn of the impressive reception given Mrs. Ransom-Kehler by the Persian Bahá'ís on her arrival in that land. In November, 1932, the Spiritual Assembly of Haifa, Palestine, issued a general letter throughout the Bahá'í world, from which the following excerpts are taken:

"Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, the energetic and faithful Bahá'í teacher, has been the object of great enthusiasm and loving devotion on the part of the Persian believers. . . . In Tabriz several meetings were held in the Hazrat-ul-Qods where large numbers of Bahá'ís, both men and women, had the pleasure of greeting the international Bahá'í teacher. From Tabriz she proceeded to Milan, accompanied by a group of believers. But before leaving Tabriz, the police authorities, apparently disturbed by the scenes of Bahá'í rejoicing, sent warning and forbade the believers to hold any meetings in honor of Mrs. Ransom-Kehler at Tabriz, and requested her to abandon her visit to Milan. But the Spiritual Assembly immediately sent a delegation to the authorities and upon assuring them that no demonstrations held by the Bahá'ís would disturb the public peace, permission was granted for her journey to Milan.

"A most thrilling meeting was held in Milan, where old and young believers witnessed in Mrs. Ransom-Kehler's visit the dawn of the fulfilment of the prophecy found more than once in the Tablets of Bahá'u'lláh and 'Abdu'l-Bahá to the Persian Bahá'ís, that the day will come when 'brothers and sisters from the West will arrive and help you in promoting the Cause.'

"After proceeding to Sisan, Mianej, Azarbayegan and Qazwin, Mrs. Ransom-Kehler proceeded to Tehran. A reception committee, followed by a group of more than a hundred believers, met the guest at a garden about four miles from the city. Her entrance in Tehran was like the visit of a queen, amid the acclamations of thousands of rejoicing Bahá'ís. Never had Tehran so welcomed any guest from the West."

Mrs. Ransom-Kehler's own report of her successful interview with the Court Minister was written to the American National Spiritual Assembly on August 20, 1932, the brevity of the communication revealing the pressure of that physical weakness against which she struggled so gallantly to the end. "On August 15 I saw His Highness Taymur Tash and received from him the direct, unqualified assurance that Bahá'í literature would be admitted freely into Persia and permitted to circulate."

From other sources the American Assembly learned further details of this interview. "His Highness received the Bahá'í delegate kindly and listened with attention to her appeal. He stated that the matter did not require her to seek audience with the Shah nor to send him the written petition. The former letter of the National Spiritual Assembly of the United States has been received and given due attention. 'I hereby promise that the restrictions on the import of Bahá'í books will be removed.' Mrs. Ransom-Kehler thereupon asked whether she could cable America and inform the American Bahá'ís of this assurance. The Court Minister replied that she most assuredly could do so and that she must consider the matter as finally settled. Mrs. Ransom-Kehler then asked whether she might arrange to have her own Bahá'í books sent to her for use while in Persia, and the Minister said there was no reason why she might not do so."

"It was not until the receipt of a letter from Mrs. Ransom-Kehler dated January 20, 1933, that the American Bahá'ís learned that the assurance given their representative by the Court Minister had not become fruitful in action. In that letter she stated that the Bahá'í books shipped to her from Beirut had been confiscated, and that she had written the Court Minister to acquaint him with this fact and renew her petition on behalf of the American Bahá'ís. This letter also conveyed the interpretation of Baha'i literature at this time might cause grave internal disorders that would bring much suffering to the Bahá'ís themselves."

"Since every Bahá'í before he can so designate himself must accept the validity of the Prophet Mahámd and display toward the Quran the same reverence as that shown by the most orthodox Muslim, and since this attitude is inculcated through Bahá'í literature, the point of excluding it because it is opposed to Islam will, I fear, be incomprehensible. . . . I shall await your Majesty's authority to submit the result of my conversation with the Foreign Office, therein set forth, to the proper Bahá'í centers throughout the world; for I have no desire, a second time, to find myself mistaken as to your Majesty's intention."

This appeal to the Shah receiving no reply, the National Spiritual Assembly in America, realizing that its report to the press stating that the ban on entry of Bahá'í literature into Persia had been removed was proved untrue, dispatched to its representative in Persia another communication to be presented to the Shah. This commu-
Information has been received which leads us to believe that the permission granted in your Majesty's name by your Majesty's Minister of Court some months ago removing the ban on the entrance of Bahá'ís literature into Persia has now been withdrawn.

"We trust that events will prove our present understanding of your Majesty's intention to be incorrect. The recent gracious action of your Majesty in asserting the power of religious freedom and opening the door to the amenities of international communication customary in modern times was by us immediately communicated to all leading newspapers in the United States and Canada together with an expression of our grateful recognition of your Majesty's response to our petition.

"This announcement to the press was considered by us of extreme importance in view of the fact that it is among American Bahá'ís that the love and admiration for Persia and its people is most pronounced. The effect of the Bahá'í teachings upon believers in all countries outside of Persia has for many years been to establish not only an attitude of spiritual respect for the historic greatness of Persia, but also a firm and unyielding confidence in the future greatness and worldwide influence of the Persian people.

"The responsibility seems now resting upon us to inform the press that our previous communication, made in perfect good faith, must now be withdrawn.

"The press in America exercises such far-reaching influence that we have ever been most scrupulous and careful in authorizing only the most conservative and accurate statements. The American press has become aware that on account of the existence of Bahá'í communities in many lands the American National Spiritual Assembly is well informed and enjoys unusual sources of information. Our devotion to the spiritual character of the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh makes it incumbent upon us to maintain our reputation with newspaper editors of unfailing sincerity and reliable accuracy.

"Our petition we trust to our accredited representative, Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, who, at our request, traveled to Persia many months ago in order to represent the Bahá'ís of the United States and Canada in our appeal to your Majesty and your Majesty's Government for a favorable and final decision in the matter of the entrance and circulation of Bahá'í literature."

Mrs. Ransom-Kehler presented the foregoing communication to the Shah in a letter dated Tíhrán, April 23, 1933. Meanwhile, on April 3 she addressed his Majesty once again in a letter which pointed out her obligation to report the results of her mission in Persia, and with that letter enclosed a detailed summary of her interview with the Foreign Office.

"Before the opening of the Annual Convention of American Bahá'ís on June 1, 1933 it had become clear to the National Spiritual Assembly that the matter had come to no favorable decision, and reports were received which indicated even a recurrence of the physical maltreatment of Persian Bahá'ís. On advice of Shoghi Effendi the problem was accordingly laid before the assembled Convention delegates, with the result that the delegates unanimously pledged their support in the National Assembly's effort to alleviate these dire conditions.

"In order to carry out the spirit of this action, the Assembly on July 10, 1933, sent personal representatives with a communication to present to the Persian Minister at Washington, thus opening a new phase in the progress of the matter.

"Meanwhile, though her physical illness had increased, Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, as afterward learned, had been continuing her efforts in Tíhrán. Thus, in a letter dated June 8, 1933, she once more addressed the Persian Shah, in a letter which stands as an expression of deep concern at the unfavorable conditions existing for the Persian Bahá'ís, with a most passionate and devoted resolve to leave no stone unturned in effort to change the official attitude. Some excerpts follow:

"A year ago this month I reached Persia as representative of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States and Canada, having traveled halfway around the world to present a petition on their behalf to your gracious Majesty requesting the removal of the ban on entry and circulation of Bahá'í literature in Persia.

"This petition was framed because of the incalculable blessings which your Majesty's reign has bestowed upon Persia; because of the advancement, the liberation and the protection which, under the firm and spectacular power exhibited by your Majesty, have elevated this sacred land of ours to the forefront of progress and revival.

"Certainly it would have been folly to have sent such a communication in any period preceding your Majesty's accession, for at that time ears were deaf to every plea of justice, and Persia had become the tragic playing field of selfish, corrupt and ruthless landlords.

"But mindful of the great blessings which have flowed from your Majesty's enlightened rule, the Bahá'ís of the United States and Canada felt that the time was now ripe, that the amazing accomplishments of your Majesty now favored the idea of summing up the complete emancipation of the Bahá'ís of Persia from the trammels and deprivations inherited from the past...

"We must look not to Shah Abbas nor to Nadir Shah but to the distant past—to the days of Cyrus, Darius and Jamshid—for anything comparable to the accomplishments which in twelve brief years have characterized your Majesty's achievements...

"These were the ideas we had in mind when petitioning your Majesty to remove this last barrier from the pathway of Bahá'í freedom and progress in Persia by according us the privilege of the press, an ordinary civil right in all but the most backward of countries.

"In fact, in the Minutes of the Twenty-second Session of the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations we find the statement (pages 41-42): 'Was it said that the Bahá'ís were such a small minority in Iraq that there was no need to bother about them? It was the very fact that the minority was a small one that made it necessary for the authorities to safeguard its rights. It showed the weakness of the Iraqi Government; the power which an intolerant majority had over it—and this record has gone out not only to the fifty-six nations that comprise the League but to the whole world, carrying this reproach to the Iraqi Government for its treatment of the Bahá'ís.'

"The Bahá'ís of Persia are not a weak and helpless minority; we stand in numbers next to the State religion; but as the League report further says, 'The Bahá'ís are by their religion, tenets and character of an extremely conciliatory disposition.'

"For that reason they patiently endure whatever hardships are imposed upon them by their governments, and for that same reason they are worthy of the utmost trust and confidence from those in authority . . .

"The numerous communications . . . which I have had the honor of addressing to the Crown since my interview at the Foreign Office have had but one purpose: that of ascertaining in definite and dependable form whether or not the amazing and feeble statements given me there were really in accord with your Majesty's intent and desire.

To every Cabinet Minister and to the President of Parliament, Mrs. Ransom-Kehler sent on July 3, 1933 a letter containing the following statements:

"It would give me great pleasure to place in your hands portions of our Baha'i literature in order to prove the great contribution that it has made to the advancement of Islam in countries unfriendly to its reception; but although Jewish, Christian and Zoroastrian literature, all opposed to Islam, is permitted to circulate, our Baha'i literature that upholds and converts to Islam is denied this privilege. Therefore I have nothing available to present to you.

"In the Post Offices and Customs of Persia, however, are thousands of volumes that have been confiscated. Even a brief survey of any one of these will prove that Baha'u'llah lays down as fundamental, loyalty to one's government, and the sanctity and verity of Islam.

On that same day, moreover, the representative of the American Baha'is felt compelled to appeal once more to the Shah. "To my horror and grief I have just heard of the burning, on the part of your Majesty's irresponsible servants . . . of a cablegram which on September 13th we learned that not only is the ban on literature still rigorously applied, but that Baha'i literature is still prohibited from entry and circulation in Persia.

"() 1933, Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, a Baha'i and American citizen, with the request that it be communicated to his Majesty on our behalf.

"To our astonishment and regret, during May, 1933, we learned that not only is the ban on literature still rigorously applied, but that Baha'i literature is still prohibited from entry and circulation in Persia.

"This petition we forwarded to our personal representative in Teheran, Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, a Baha'i and American citizen, with the request that it be communicated to his Majesty on our behalf.

"It is because I am certain that such an infamy was perpetrated without the knowledge or consent of your Majesty that I am presenting this memorandum to acquaint your Majesty with the high-handed and abominable outrages committed by your Majesty's irresponsible servants . . .

"Assuredly the most precious and sacred thing in life to any man is his religious conviction. Without hesitation thousands of Baha'is have given their lives for their faith. That flame that once burned in Persia alone has now enkindled the world. The Baha'is as a body stand ready if necessary to die for the protection of their belief. We are willing to endure any degree of injustice and persecution ourselves, but when it comes to regarding with other than outraged sentiment a gratuitous indignity offered to that illustrious example of human perfection, 'Abdu'l-Baha, the Baha'is of the world arise in the full strength of their solidarity to utter a vehement protest.

"In His Will and Testament, 'Abdu'l-Baha gives us this last instruction: 'Consort with all the peoples, kindreds and religions of the world with the utmost truthfulness, uprightness, faithfulness, kindness, good will and friendliness; that all the world of being may be filled with the holy ecstasy of the grace of Baha; that ignorance, enmity, hate and rancor may vanish from the world and the darkness of estrangement amidst the peoples and kindreds of the world may give way to the light of unity.'

"Is the one who uttered such words of peace and reconciliation worthy of suppression and desecration?

"I now with the most intense fervor supplicate and implore your Majesty to put an end to these fanatical persecutions that disgrace in the eyes of men the annals of Persia's former rulers, by removing this ban against Baha'i literature, that bids fair if it continues to involve the world in contempt for this sacred land."

The Minister of Education, replying in a letter dated "bitarikah 28-4-1312. No. 9880/4320" to the communication which Mrs. Ransom-Kehler sent to all members of the Cabinet, made this significant statement: "I would inform you that today all individuals, departments and organizations in the country, whether Muhammedans or people of other nations, are resting in the cradle of tranquility and security under the shadow of the power and grandeur of His Majesty Shahanshah Pahlavi, may our souls be sacrificed for him, and they benefit equally from the privilege of existing laws. But in the meantime new publications which are considered contrary to the official religion of the country or its political aspect can not be agreed to.

"Meanwhile, as it became apparent that communications addressed to the ruler did not penetrate the official entourage and reach the Shah himself, the American Assembly, as already mentioned, applied to the Persian Minister at Washington. The letter dated July 10, 1933, was presented to the Minister by three representatives. It read, in part as follows:

"Your Excellency: On October 21, 1932, the members of this American Baha'i Assembly sent to the Persian Legation at Washington a copy of a cablegram which on September 14, 1932, had been dispatched to the Minister of the Court in Teheran. "This communication was acknowledged by Mr. Y. Azodi, Chargé d'Affaires, under date of October 22, 1932.

"In substance, the cablegram sent to the Court Minister on behalf of the American Baha'is expressed abiding gratitude for the decision to remove the ban on entry and circulation of Baha'i literature in Persia.

"On March 27, 1933, as the result of unexpected information indicating that this decision had either been reversed or never made effective, we addressed a respectful petition to his Imperial Majesty Reza Shah Pahlavi, expressing our profound hope that our understanding of the matter was incorrect and referring to the fact that the American Baha'is had informed the press that the ban had been removed, and in the event that this statement proved to be unfounded the Baha'is would be reluctantly obliged to make it clear to the press that Baha'i literature is still prohibited from entry and circulation in Persia.

"This petition we forwarded to our personal representative in Teheran, Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, a Baha'i and American citizen, with the request that it be communicated to his Majesty on our behalf.

"To our astonishment and regret, during May, 1933, we learned that not only is the ban on literature still rigorously applied, but that Baha'i literature is still prohibited from entry and circulation in Persia.

"These circumstances were considered by the delegates representing sixty American cities who met in Annual Convention in the Foundation Hall of the Baha'i House of Worship at Wilmette, Illinois, from June 1 to 4, 1933.

"It seems desirable to inform your Excellency that the Twenty-fifth Annual Convention of the Baha'is of the United States and Canada adopted unanimously the following resolution:

"Resolved, that the delegates of the Twenty-fifth Annual Convention representing sixty communities of the United States and Canada, realizing the burdens of oppression still laid upon their brethren of Persia, recommend and urge the National Spiritual Assembly to take immediate action to bring about the cessation of the reported maltreatment of our Baha'i brethren, to secure the entry of Baha'i literature and to restore the constitutional provision for the printing and circulation of Bahá’í literature within Persia; without sanction, active or passive, it would be impossible to forbid the entry and circulation of a sacred literature which one day will be recognized as the glory of Persia, while at the same time permitting the entry and circulation of other religious literature the essential purpose of which is to defame the founder of Islam and overthrow the very foundation of Persian culture and ideals . . .

"The outcome of this representation will, we trust, enable the National Spiritual Assembly to inform the local Bahá’í communities that their determined desire to assist in removing the disabilities and maltreatment of their Persian brothers has been completely realized."

On July 26, 1933, the Assembly reported to Mrs. Ransom-Kehler a summary of actions taken by American Bahá’ís in the matter of conditions affecting the Persian believers, with the request that she communicate these facts and the attitude of the American Bahá’ís, to the authorities of the Persian Government, and report the results, that the Assembly might inform the local American Bahá’í communities whether their Convention resolution had borne fruit. The answer came in this message, cabled by Mrs. Ransom-Kehler on September 10: "Petition unanswered."

The grief and disappointment caused by this outcome of her mission, magnified by exhaustion resulting from self-sacrificing effort to meet every opportunity to visit and address Bahá’í gatherings in Persia, reduced Mrs. Ransom-Kehler’s strength to such a degree that she passed on at Isfahan on October 23, 1933, while at Isfahan, this consecrated follower of Bahá’u’lláh fell victim to smallpox and succumbed within a few brief days.

This grievous event was announced in Baha’í News of November, 1933, as follows:

"On October 27, 1933, the Spiritual Assembly of Tihran, Persia, cabled the startling news that Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler had passed into the spiritual Kingdom. With burning hearts the Persian Bahá’ís conveyed their grief at this mysterious culmination of our sister’s special mission in the land of the birth of the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh."

"The beloved Guardian on October 30 dispatched this message: ‘Keith’s precious life offered up in sacrifice to beloved Cause in Bahá’u’lláh’s native land. On Persian soil, for Persia’s sake, she encountered, challenged and fought the forces of darkness with high distinction, indomitable will, unswerving, exemplary loyalty. The mass of her helpless Persian brethren mourns the sudden loss of their valiant emanicipator. American believers grateful and proud of the memory of their first and distinguished martyr. Sorrow stricken, I lament my earthly separation from an invaluable collaborator, an unfailling counsellor, an esteemed and faithful friend. I urge the Local Assemblies befittingly to organize memorial gatherings in memory of one whose international services entitled her to an eminent rank among the Hands of the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh. (signed) Shoghi’

"A message from the American Consul at Tihran, communicated through the Secretary of State, brought the information that Keith had passed on at Isfahan on October 23."

"With the approval of Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler’s nearest relative, a message was cabled to the Tihran Assembly asking that burial be arranged at Isfahan under Bahá’í auspices, and stating that the American Assembly will construct a permanent memorial."

"Shoghi Effendi, on November 3, sent this message: ‘Instructed Isfahan Assembly to inter Keith in the vicinity of the grave of Sultanushhuada, surnamed by Bahá’u’lláh ‘King of Martyrs.’"

"The detailed reports which our beloved sister has during the past year sent from Tihran, to convey information on the result of her mission, as the representative of the American believers chosen by the Guardian, to secure from the Persian Government the lifting of the ban on entry of Bahá’í literature and also removal of the difficulties and hardships placed upon the Persian Bahá’ís, form one of the precious and important historical records of the Cause. A summary of these reports will be published in Baha’ï News next month."

"Local Spiritual Assemblies and groups are requested to arrange memorial meetings in accordance with the Guardian’s wish."

"The papers of New York and other cities reported in detail the news of the death of this American citizen in Persia. The following statement was published in the New York American on October 28, 1933:

"Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, who spent the last year in Teheran, Persia, as representative of the American National Bahá’í Assembly, died in that city on October 25, it was reported in a cable received yesterday by the Assembly from the secretary of the Teheran Bahá’í community."
“In August, 1932, Mrs. Ransom-Kehler, after two years’ travel in China, Japan and India as a Bahá’í teacher, went to Persia on a special mission to represent the American Bahá’ís in appealing to the Shah’s government for removal of the ban on entry of Bahá’í literature into the country of the origin of the world religion established by Bahá’u’lláh nearly seventy years ago.

“From the Court Minister, Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler received assurance that the prohibition, passed under the former regime while the Mohammedan clergy were at the height of their power, would be rescinded.

“This promise was, however, unfulfilled, and Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler devoted the remaining months of her life to the task of penetrating the imperial entourage and presenting to the Shah in person a formal petition prepared by the American Bahá’í Assembly on behalf of the sixty Bahá’í communities of the United States and Canada.

“The American Bahá’ís will erect in Teheran (correctly, Isfahan) a memorial to commemorate the work of Mrs. Ransom-Kehler, the second American Bahá’í to die in Persia while serving the cause of unity and international peace.”

That memorial, we may be assured, will in future be visited by innumerable Bahá’ís of West and East as a shrine marking the physical interment of a pure and valiant Bahá’í spirit who, not in vain, sacrificed its earthly existence for the sake of the believers in that land.

The above statement has been prepared in reverent acknowledgement of Mrs. Ransom-Kehler’s mighty services to the Bahá’í Faith, that the worldwide community of believers may know what has been done to this date in effort to assist in bringing about freedom and security for the Bahá’ís of Persia.

NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE Bahá’ÍS OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA.

PRESENT STATUS OF TEMPLE CONSTRUCTION

Work To Be Continued Under New Contract

As you read this brief statement, the last section of the ornamentation of the Temple dome will be bolted in place and the many thousands of people who pass daily along Sheridan Drive through Wilmette will be thrilled with the radiant glory of the completed dome. The low temperature and high wind conditions that have prevailed in and about Chicago during the last month have somewhat delayed the placing of the last and topmost ribs and the removal of the great steel Derrick that was used to lift them in place, the 387 great sections of architectural concrete on the steel structure of the dome. When it is realized that the sections varying in weight up to 2½ tons each had to be lifted to a height of 100 feet from the ground and fitted in place, it is remarkable that the entire framework and ornamentation has fitted together without a single error or modification. Never before in the history of the world has a dome with the great ribs of this unique and beautiful character been raised. It will stand evermore as a fitting memorial to the faith and sacrifices of a devoted people throughout the world.

Now that the victory has been achieved the devoted followers of Bahá'u'lláh who have made this possible will be interested in a brief analysis of the extent and cost of the work. Quoting from a letter dated January 15, 1934, from the contractor, Mr. John J. Earley, we have the following explanation of the extent and cost of the ornamentation.

"The approximate estimate of the cost of the architectural ornamentation of the Temple was made in the year 1930 and in the amount $450,000.00. Subsequently in May of the year 1930 an estimate was made of the cost of the first story which amounted to $150,000.00. This was made because at that time it was thought that the ornamentation might be begun at the base of the Temple. In January 1932 an estimate was made of the cost of the dome which was $150,000.00. This left the second story and drum of the dome, which likewise amounted to $150,000.00, but which was subdivided to read $100,000 for the second story and $50,000 for the clerestory or drum of the dome. These estimates were based upon a cost experience of many years with the material but upon no experience with the structure, because nowhere in the world today is there one who has built such a building as the Bahá'í Temple. . . . The bottom sections of the great ribs, which coincide with the elevation of the clerestory, were estimated with the clerestory. But when we came to develop the dome we found that the ornamental motif of the ribs was continuous without regard to dome or clerestory and that the most economical method of construction required the clerestory sections of each rib to be in place for the support and erection of the whole rib." From the statement of the Contractor, it is obvious that with the completion of the recent contract we have finished a work originally estimated to cost $150,000 for the dome plus the cost of the ribs which Mr. Earley's estimate has given as $16,237.60, making a total amount of work done of about $166,000.00. This cost does not include the engineering supervision and management at a fee of 6%. This fee will amount to about $9,000 additional, making a total expenditure slightly over $175,000.00.

Of the amount spent for actual construction costs about $7,000 was required for the casting shed and erecting machinery at the Rosslyn, Virginia Plant and for the hoisting machinery at the Temple. All of this equipment will be of service in the preparation and placing of the remainder of the ornamentation on the Temple. Hence the cost of this equipment should be pro-rated or distributed over the entire cost of the ornamentation which will effect a saving of about $4,500 in the cost of the dome ornamentation.

About a month ago the National Spiritual Assembly sent a cablegram to the Guardian requesting his instructions relative to proceeding with the ornamentation of the clerestory sections of the Temple, as increasing expressions from believers all over the country had manifested the hope that during this year and the re-opening of the Chicago Exposition this additional section of the dome ornamentation might be finished. The Guardian immediately cabled the following reply: "Heartily welcome proposal. Additional sacrifices entailed clerestory ornamentation will add further laurels to crown already won American believers and hasten fulfillment long cherished expectations." The N. S. A. at its meeting at Evanston, Illinois on January 27, unanimously voted to enter into a contract with Mr. John J. Earley for the preparation and placement of the clerestory ornamentation below the dome and between the great ribs. Mr. Earley estimates that this work will cost about $35,000 (not including engineering supervision and management) and if started right away can be completed by next fall and during the extension of the Chicago Exposition. Mr. Earley has generously offered to start the preliminary work right away and to receive compensation over a period of twelve months beginning April 1st. These monthly payments based on services actually rendered will involve an average monthly payment of about $3,000 including all charges.

The Research Service will continue to supervise and manage the work for the Temple Trustees and has offered to reduce its fee from 6 to 4%.
ing the construction of the Temple the services rendered by the engineers in the planning and erection of the work has resulted in savings to the extent of many times the amount of the fee.

In a letter to the Chairman of the National Spiritual Assembly, dated January 17, 1934, the Guardian writes through his Secretary H. Rabbani: "In reply to the N. S. A.'s telegram expressing the hope of the American believers of proceeding with the ornamentation of the clerestory section of the Temple, Shoghi Effendi has sent the following cable and has given his whole-hearted approval to this new step which the friends have been prompted to take and which fully testifies to their exemplary resourcefulness and indomitable will in upholding the Cause of the Temple: (Cable as quoted above).

"The Guardian's motive in giving the believers the promise of one year's complete respite was to alleviate the financial burden which had for so long been weighing on their shoulders. His intention, however, was by no means to check the free and spontaneous desire of the friends to maintain the contributions to the Temple should they find it possible to do so. And it is really gratifying to witness that the promise instead of retarding, however temporarily, the ornamentation work of the Temple, has on the contrary stimulated the friends to redouble their efforts until the entire construction work of the dome and clerestory have been brought to full completion.

This statement on the Temple is completed by reporting to the believers that the sum of $14,300 must still be contributed to make final payment on the present dome contract.

THE BAHÁ'Í FUND
AND THE NEW WORLD ORDER

The Faith of Bahá'u'lláh has without doubt set its roots deep into the soil of America. Even though at present numerically the believers are weak, spiritually they are undaunted because they have a strong courage of conviction and consecration. They are distinguished through the fact that they have had the courage to face the realities of life as they are revealed to them by the very Sun of Reality, and not by the standards set by a complacent and ever-drifting society.

The Bahá'í Faith, with its marvelously beautiful, yet uncompromisingly searching new plan of life, accepting naught but a pure devotion, is so complete in its plan and method as to leave no hiding place whatever for those who would still compromise with it. The machinery of its operation is so designed that sooner or later each soul realizes that his connection with it means the surrender of every last stronghold of materiality, prejudice and selfishness.

No people can come under the penetrating rays of the Sun of real religion and remain the same. But the very perfection of the Bahá'í Faith with its complete plan for the regeneration of mankind, makes it different and makes comparison with past, though similar experiences impossible.

The distinguishing feature of the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh is the oneness of mankind. Consider then that the establishment of the administration in the body of the believers becomes the machinery to effect this unity, and through its functioning the individual is brought face to face with the issues that God the Great Physician has placed before the world and the acceptance of which is prerequisite to solution of the difficulties that now beset it.

The past has shown us that the religious devotee of times is permitted, even led, to separate himself from his fellows and in isolation seeks to attain a higher spiritual development. How different then the proposition presented by the Bahá'í Faith, for here instead of isolation he is thrust into the company of others and he finds that his salvation depends upon his willingness to unite and to work with them. Withdrawal is in no wise permitted and until he has subjugated himself, eliminated destructive prejudices within his own heart, learned to seek the face of God in those around him, he knows that he has not yet really come into the Faith.

Every thoughtful believer who attends unity Feasts knows that there he has entered upon the active working out of the Plan of Bahá'u'lláh to effect the unification of the human race. And as he there actively enters into the spiritual realities he is gradually and definitely brought to a realization that the unity of the friends is the foundation stone of the new world order. The society there developed under the guidance of the words of the Manifestation will, without doubt, have a character quite different than that of the world we have known before.

But to become a member of such a society implies certain things. To assume that an outward acceptance of the glorious teachings is sufficient without a surrender to their requirements becomes obviously impossible. This but very little experience in any Bahá'í community demonstrates. The relationship is two-sided, since the Messenger of God has showered upon us the blessing of His Guidance, it follows that we in turn must also do something. Active participation therefore, implies the recognition of a definite obligation by the individual, just as if he had entered upon a contract with God, so that thereafter no part of the utterances of the Founders and Establishers of the Faith may be neglected, but with an ever increasing devotion he joins with his fellow believers to spread and firmly establish the Faith in the world.

And even though in the passing of time the character of his service may change somewhat, there will without doubt always be ways in which a believer can actively enter the service of God, through some service to mankind. What a glorious concept that makes salvation contingent upon active service to one's fellows.

Our glorious opportunity is in the establishment of the Bahá'í administration and the erection of the Temple. And here again we find in both projects perfect mechanism for our unification. In the administration we unite through cooperation with one another to carry into effect the provisions for the establishment of Bahá'í life and living, so that we reconstruct our lives to conform with the requirements of a divine new world order, and our affairs becoming adjusted to new concepts allow us to make provision for every condition that the circumstances of our time in the general development may make necessary.

The Bahá'í Fund is but a part of such a project. Nevertheless it is a vital part. Conscientious believers who are mindful of their responsibility in respect to the Faith must make it as much a part of their effort to be a part of the Cause as they do every other thing. The erection of the Temple is an added opportunity opening the way for extraordinary service to humanity the world over. And its gradual accomplishment will stand for centuries, a monument to the Power of God that moved our little band to do that wonderful service. Alone no one could do it, together if we have faith, we will succeed.

Let us then, one and all, consider carefully our relation to the Bahá'í administration and the Bahá'í Fund, and solemnly and with a spirit of consecration, undertake to render to the fullest extent of our capacity, such sacrifice as will be worthy of the tremendous part we are called upon to play in the greatest drama of all times.
Chaos and doom are about to overtake a world crumbling from within. The Ark of the Covenant carries forward through fire and storm and in it there is safety for us, for all mankind, but the measure of our devotion must demonstrate our faith to those about us else we fail and like all else perish. Day by day the need increases. The time shortens rapidly. Let us not remain negligent.

NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY
BY: ROY C. WILHELM, TREASURER
CARL SCHEFFLER, ASS'T. TREASURER

THE NATURE AND AIMS OF THE ANNUAL BAHÁ'Í CONVENTION

Note: the following instructions from the Guardian have been received by the National Spiritual Assembly since it compiled the words on the subject of the Convention published in BAHÁ'Í NEWS for November, 1933.

1. Concerning the status, rights and prerogatives of the Annual Bahá'í Convention, the Guardian wishes to make quite clear to all the believers that this annual meeting of the delegates is by no means a continuous consultative body all through the year; that its twofold function of electing the body of the National Spiritual Assembly, and of offering any constructive suggestions in regard to the general administration of the Cause is limited to a definite period; and that consequently the opinion current among some of the believers that the delegates are to serve as a consultative body throughout the year is at variance with the fundamental, though as yet unspecified, principles underlying the Administration. Shoghi Effendi firmly believes that consultation must be maintained between the N.S.A. and the entire body of the believers, and that such consultation, while the Convention is not in session, can best be maintained through the agency of the local Assemblies, one of whose essential functions is to act as intermediary between the local communities and their national representatives. The main purpose of the Nineteen Days of Consultation is to enable individual believers to offer any suggestion to the local assembly in which it will pass it to the N.S.A. The local Assembly is, therefore, the proper medium through which local Bahá'í communities can communicate with the body of the national representatives. The Convention should be regarded as a temporary gathering, having certain specific functions to perform, during a limited period of time. Its status is thus limited in time to the Convention sessions, the function of consultation at all other times being vested in the entire body of the believers through the local Spiritual Assemblies.—To the National Spiritual Assembly, November 18, 1933.

2. Dear and precious co-workers:

I wish to affirm without the least hesitation or ambiguity, that the annual convention is not to be regarded as a body entitled to exercise functions similar to those which an ordinary parliament possesses under a democratic form of government. The administrative order which lies embedded in the Teaching of Baha'u'llah, and which the American believers have championed and are now establishing, should, under no circumstances, be identified with the principles underlying present-day democracies. Nor is it identical with any purely aristocratic or autocratic form of government. The objectionable features inherent in each of these political systems are entirely avoided. It blends, as no system of human polity has as yet achieved, those salutary truths and beneficial elements which constitute the valuable contributions which each of these forms of government have made to society in the past. Consultation, frank and unfettered, is the bedrock of this unique order. Authority is concentrated in the hands of the elected members of the National Assembly. Power and initiative are primarily vested in the entire body of the believers acting through their local representatives. To generate those forces which must give birth to the body of their national administrators, and to confer, freely and fully and at fixed intervals, with both the incoming and outgoing National Assemblies, are the twofold functions, the supreme responsibility and sole prerogative of the delegates assembled in Convention. Nothing short of close and constant interaction between these various organs of Bahá'í administration can enable it to fulfill its high destiny.—To the National Spiritual Assembly, November 18, 1933. (The Guardian's postscript to the foregoing letter.)

3. Concerning the status of members of the N.S.A. at Convention sessions, the Guardian feels that the members both of the incoming and the outgoing Assemblies should be given the full right to participate in the Convention discussions. Those members of the N.S.A. who have been elected delegates will, in addition to the right of participation, be entitled to vote. The Guardian wishes thereby to render more effective the deliberations and the recommendations of the national representatives. He feels that the exercise of such a right by the members of the N.S.A. will enable them to consult more fully with the assembled delegates, to exchange fully and frankly with them their views, and to consider collectively the interests, needs and requirements of the Cause. This he believes is one of the primary functions of the Convention.—To the National Spiritual Assembly. December 25, 1933.

THE CHARACTER OF BAHÁ'Í ELECTIONS

"Let us recall His explicit and often-repeated assurance that every Assembly elected in that rarified atmosphere of selflessness and detachment is, in truth, appointed of God, that its verdict is truly inspired, that one and all should submit to its decision unreservedly and with cheerfulness . . . The elector . . . is called upon to vote for none but those whom prayer and reflection have inspired him to uphold . . . Hence it is incumbent upon the chosen delegates to consider without the least trace of passion and prejudice, and irrespective of any material consideration, the names of only those who can best combine the necessary qualities of unquestioned loyalty, of selfless devotion, of a well-trained mind, of recognized ability and mature experience . . . Nothing short of the all-embracing, all-pervading power of His Guidance and Love can enable this newly enfolded order to gather strength and flourish amid the storm and stress of a turbulent age, and in the fulness of time vindicate its high claim to be universally recognized as the one Haven of abiding felicity and peace."—Shoghi Effendi.

From time to time the question is placed before the National Spiritual Assembly as to what a Local Assembly should do when it has evidence that some believer has attempted to exert influence upon other believers in order to affect their votes in a Bahá'í election.

In deliberating upon this important matter, the National Assembly has sought to arrive at and define, in the light of the Guardian’s instructions, the true Bahá’í attitude toward all elections held within the Cause, whether they are elections for members of a Local Spiritual Assembly, of Convention delegates or of members of the National Spiritual Assembly.

The Guardian’s words quoted above, all taken from the volume “Bahá’í Administration,” clearly create the spiritual standard which each and every voting member of a Bahá’í community must endeavor to attain. Such a standard compels us to leave behind many practices to which we have become accustomed through the influence of the political society existing throughout the world.

Thus, the Bahá’í Faith contains no partisan factions corresponding to the political parties dominating the civil community. The issue before a Bahá’í electoral body is never the obligation to choose between rival candidates nor rival platforms and policies. The sole issue is the spiritual problem consisting in the obligation of each believer to uphold those qualities which the Guardian has enumerated in the selected passages quoted above. If we would meet this obligation faithfully, we must eliminate our own personal likes and dislikes and rise to the station of pure and selfless vision.

Such vision, as Shoghi Effendi declares, is inspired by prayer and reflection. The voter’s vision will only be clouded if he permits any other believer, directly or indirectly, to influence his choice. If it is contrary to the Bahá’í standard for any believer to attempt to influence the votes of other believers, it is likewise contrary to that standard for any believer to allow himself to be influenced.

The character of Bahá’í elections is such that the National Spiritual Assembly feels profoundly that its maintenance depends upon the loyal faithfulness of all believers in the community much more than upon the vigilance and authority of the Spiritual Assembly alone. Methods and practices contrary to the Bahá’í standard can in any locality be quickly extirpated if the believer approached with improper influence and suggestion will immediately, in every instance, not merely reject such invasion of his spiritual rights and duties but also sternly rebuke the wrong doer. It is not the few wrong doers here and there who can do injury to the Cause, but the negative and passive attitude of his or her fellow-believers who fail to assert the power of the Teachings.

DATE OF 1934 CONVENTION

On February first the National Spiritual Assembly called Shoghi Effendi: “On account of reopening of Chicago Fair June first, also continuance Temple construction under new contract, Assembly prefers fix Convention date May thirty-first to June third, subject your approval.”

The Guardian to this inquiry cabled on June second: “Heartily approve. Deepest loving appreciation.”

SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLIES AND THE RIGHTS OF THE INDIVIDUAL BELIEVER

A World Order still in its infancy must inevitably pass through all manner of test and experience in order to become mature and strong, able to detect error and fallacy from any and every source and prevent the entrance of even the subtlest negative suggestion. For this reason the National Spiritual Assembly believes that whatever evidences there may be in any locality at present of unBahá’í electoral practices, the problem in essence is one of educating the believers to understand, appreciate and uphold the Guardian’s standard rather than of disciplinary action on the part of the Local or National Assembly.

As the Guardian recently advised, it is only when repeated warnings are unheeded, and deliberate disloyalty has become manifest, that the extreme measure of expulsion should be undertaken. The test of our collective wisdom now is the capacity to distinguish between deliberate disloyalty and the errors that proceed from lack of knowledge, heedlessness or immaturity.

The National Spiritual Assembly will never fail to assist with all its power any Local Assembly confronted by conditions arising from deliberate disloyalty; but the view expressed here is that most misconduct surrounding Bahá’í elections can be extirpated entirely by wise action on the part of the believers themselves.

The concrete suggestion is however made that each Local Spiritual Assembly, immediately preceding elections, shall remind the friends of the Guardian’s words concerning the spiritual character. Indeed, the importance of developing the World Order of Bahá’u'lláh is so vital that the question of whether a Bahá’í should or should not vote in political elections is merely secondary.
teachers can clearly not be restricted arbitrarily by the Assembly, for such restriction would invade the privacy of the home.

As a matter of fact, since the element of personal initiative is an integral and infinitely precious part of the Faith, the Spiritual Assembly itself is in duty bound to uphold and protect the rights of individual believers just as it is in duty bound to uphold and protect any other organic Baha'i teaching or principle.

This is not to sanction a lesser degree of loyalty to the institution of a Spiritual Assembly on the part of any individual believer, nor should these remarks be taken to imply that "authority" and "rights" are mutually exclusive and incompatible realities. Rather is this statement a plea for more mutual consideration, more encouragement of individuals by Assemblies, more respect for Assemblies by individuals. The inter-relationship of an Assembly and members of the local Baha'i community can not be mechanical, for it is based upon the fundamental principle of unity which, if it is to be achieved and preserved, bids an Assembly deal with all believers in kindliness and forbearance, and bids every individual Baha'i maintain an attitude of true respect for an institution created by Bab, Himself, and as such not to be judged by the personalities of those called to administer the institution during these difficult days of its infancy.

Just as authority and power can be abused, so can individuals abuse their God-given rights. Thus, while the holding of home meetings is a sacred right, there might be an instance in which a home meeting could result in the raising of personal issues affecting the Cause in that community. As the Guardian has declared, "Let us also remember that at the very root of the Cause lies the principle of the undoubted right of the individual to self-expression, his freedom to declare his conscience and set forth his views... Let us also bear in mind that the keynote of the Cause of God is not dictatorial authority but humble fellowship, not arbitrary power, but the spirit of frank and loving consultation. Nothing short of the spirit of a true Baha'i can hope to reconcile the principles of mercy and justice, of freedom and submission, of the sanctity of the right of the individual and of self-surrender, of vigilance, discretion and prudence on the one hand, and fellowship, candor, and courage on the other."

EXPLANATION OF PASSAGES IN "AMERICA AND THE MOST GREAT PEACE"

The Guardian's general letter published under the title of "America and the Most Great Peace," contains two passages which many believers have wished to be explained. The National Assembly therefore requested Shoghi Effendi to state what were the three aims which were the chief objectives of 'Abdu'l-Baha's ministry, and also to give the names of the five teachers sent to America by the Master.

In a letter dated December 14, 1933, the Guardian through his secretary has replied to these two questions as follows:

"As to the three aims which Shoghi Effendi has stated in his "America and the Most Great Peace" to have been the chief objectives of 'Abdu'l-Baha's ministry, it should be pointed out that the first was the establishment of the Cause in America. The erection of the Bab's Temple in Ishqabad, and the building on Mt. Carmel of a mausoleum marking the resting-place of the Bab, were the two remaining ones."

"The following is the list of the five teachers whom the Master sent to America in order to spread the Cause. They were not all Persians. As a matter of fact, the first one was a Syrian. Their names are as follows: Kha'ru'llah, 'Abdu'l-Karim, Haji Mirza Hasan, Mirza 'Abdu'l-Fadl and Mirza Asadu'llah."

THE GUARDIAN'S LETTERS TO INDIVIDUAL BAHAI'S

Recently the National Assembly made a decision in a matter concerning an individual believer, and shortly afterward learned that Shoghi Effendi had written that believer a letter which might be taken as approving a suggestion which the National Assembly had felt unable to approve.

Desiring only to serve the Guardian's wishes, the National Spiritual Assembly immediately wrote Shoghi Effendi to explain the situation and request his advice. The letter received in reply to this inquiry conveys the Guardian's attitude on a general matter of such importance that excerpts are published at this time for the information of all the believers. The reply is dated December 10, 1933.

"As to the important issue you have raised in this connection regarding the nature and significance of the ties which must unite individual Baha'i's with their Guardian, it should be made clear that such a relationship, though it transcends any relationship to an Assembly, is by no means intended to curtail the authority or administrative bodies of the Cause, but that it rather serves to strengthen and consolidate the unity of the Administration. Administrative efficiency and order should always be accompanied by an equal degree of love, of devotion and of spiritual development. Both of them are essential and to attempt to dissociate one from the other is to weaken the body of the Cause. In these days, when the Faith is still in its infancy, great care must be taken lest mere administrative routine stifles the spirit which must feed the body of the Administration itself. That spirit is its propelling force and the motivating power of its very life.

"But as already emphasized, both the spirit and the form are essential to the safe and speedy development of the Administration. To maintain full balance between them is the main and unique responsibility of the administrators of the Cause." (Here follows the Guardian's postscript.)

"It is invariably my purpose and constant effort to uphold and reinforce the administrative principles of the Faith, and I trust that nothing will be allowed to interfere with the proper functioning of these administrative bodies."

SHOGHI EFFENDI APPROVES NEW TEACHING BULLETIN

In November, 1933, the National Spiritual Assembly issued the first number of a bulletin entitled "A New World Order" consisting of excerpts from words of Bab, 'Abdu'l-Baha and Shoghi Effendi, selected from the point of view of their application to current social conditions. Two thousand copies were mailed to representative people throughout the United States and Canada.

In a letter dated December 20, 1933, the Guardian has made the following comment:

"The bulletin entitled "A New World Order," which the N. S. A. has issued to representative people throughout the States is, in the opinion of the Guardian, an important and unique step your Assembly has taken in directing the Finances. He does not only approve of your plan in this connection, but wishes to encourage you, and to urge you to persevere in your efforts for the further extension of the Cause in important social circles. Your bulletin can develop into an effective and world-wide organ of..."
teaching provided you do your best in order to heighten its literary as well as its intellectual standard."

BAHA'I PUBLISHING COMMITTEE

The Committee requests that correction be made of the price of the new Swedish edition of the Esslemont book, announced in BAHAI' NEWS last month as $1.00, while the correct price is $1.50.

The friends are reminded that according to a decision by the National Spiritual Assembly, the Publishing Committee can give the discount of 33½% only to Spiritual Assemblies, and not to groups or individuals. A discount of 10% however is allowed on orders amounting to $10.00 or more, whether received from groups or individual believers.

The matter of free literature also needs explanation. The Publishing Committee has no authority to supply free literature for teaching purposes, but can only send out such literature on order from the Teaching or Inter-Racial Amity Committee, each of these committees having been given a budget for this purpose. All requests for free literature, then, are to be made direct to either the Teaching or Amity Committee, and the Publishing Committee acts only on orders received from those committees.

Will the Western friends kindly note that after March 1, 1934 the address of the Western Division of the Baha'i Publishing Committee will be: Mrs. Emma F. Smith, 940 Leavensworth Street, San Francisco.

The article on the Cause prepared for the magazine Unity has been reprinted in pamphlet form and an edition presented to the Publishing Committee without cost. The title is "The Baha'i Faith" by Horace Holley. The price is 15 copies for $1.00. Orders can be filled by March 1.

SUGGESTIONS FROM YOUTH COMMITTEE

1. Outline of Talks
   a. In the introduction we strive to be in sympathy with our hearers and a part of them.
   b. In the first part of the talk, open with a challenging statement, speaking with a general appeal, using a modern scientific authority if possible.
   c. Bring in the Baha'i point of view with quotations from the Teachings to confirm what has been said previously in the talk.
   d. Close in the Baha'i spirit.

2. Technique in Teaching Work
   a. Sincerity must be the keynote of all we do and say. 'Abdu'l-Baha says that our words must first have a profound effect upon ourselves before they can affect our hearers.
   b. Use simple and natural words, phrases and actions.
   c. Our conviction should be felt more than heard, based upon knowledge of the fundamental teachings, but not imposed on our hearers by dogmatic attitude.
   d. A Baha'i should never need to apologize for lack of preparation or immaturity. An apology denotes fear, and fear denotes a lack of faith. Speak with dignity and confidence, relying on the power of Baha'u'llah.
   e. Awaken interest by not telling too much; maintain that interest by not speaking too long, remembering that 'Abdu'l-Baha usually spoke for about twenty minutes. If interest has been aroused, the question period will prove it.
   f. It is better not to read or memorize our talks. Make a broad outline, have a clear and definite idea of the salient points to be developed, turn to Baha'u'llah, then speak spontaneously with full confidence in His power.

LETTER FROM PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

Dear Co-workers:
The greatest source of publicity at the present time in this country is the Temple. The completion of the Dome is near at hand. At that time we should make great effort to use every channel possible in getting the news of the Temple and some of the teachings before the public.

We plan to send publicity with pictures for your use but in the meantime it would do no harm to approach the editors on this matter and ask how best to present the material. A feature article for the Sunday paper could be used and in that case the feature editor should be consulted. It is not easy to secure space for such material but we must recall constantly those wonderful friends in Nabil's Narrative who remained undaunted when the most difficult tasks were presented to them for accomplishment.

On every Christian calendar is noted the celebration of Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent. In sufficient time to be used we will send you publicity for the first day of the Baha'i Fast. This will be followed with material to be used at the celebration of Ridvan. Any copy that you are successful in getting printed kindly send us clippings.

There are many broadcasts all over the country that have to do with prayer or devotional ideals. The thought has been suggested that the Baha'is of every Community whenever there is a devotional period on the radio endeavor to contribute some of the Baha'i literature in connection with the particular subject or make up a small compilation to be used in these broadcasts. It would further the spread of the principles of the Cause and their spiritual ideals and make contacts which might open further doors for publicity. We suggest that this should be handled by your publicity chairman.

On December 21st we sent you a news release based on the memorial service held for Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler, with the request that you send it to your local papers the night of December 31st. We also asked your secretary to send us the name of your publicity chairman and to report the result of this news effort in your city. We are grateful for the cooperation which in an increasing number of centers is helping to bring the name and facts of the Cause before the public.

The secretary of the committee, Doris McKay, reports, "In many cities the account of the memorial meeting was well placed and published in full." This is very encouraging because it shows an advance in our two objects, namely:

1. The preparation of suitable material.
2. The technique of approach to editors.

In both these aims the local publicity chairman features, especially by his adaptation of the material through the use of a local tie-up.

It is noticeable that there was a greater proportion of success in this last release in the smaller cities and to overcome this difficulty in the large cities we suggest a special planning to conform to the requirements of the large city papers. In that case the publicity should be rewritten and submitted as a news story of the type appearing in the Sunday papers. Then there is the possibility of linking the information with some speaker of note who may be appearing on your program or with the announcements of your meetings. We are hoping that our co-workers will experiment until a way is found to win a place in your local news. Many friends have reported personal interviews with editors—the telephone can also be used. It is a proven fact that with editors

The friends are requested to remember in prayer these believers who have passed into the Kingdom.

SHOGHI EFFENDI REQUESTS MEMORIAL MEETINGS FOR MRS. AGNES PARSONS

On January 27, 1934, the following cablegram was received from the Guardian concerning Mrs. Parsons, whose sudden and unexpected death had been reported to him.

"Greatly deplore loss distinguished handmaid of Bahá'u'lláh. Through her manifold pioneer services she has proved herself worthy of implicit confidence reposed in her by 'Abdu'l-Bahá. Advise American believers hold befitting memorial gatherings. Assure relatives heartfelt sympathy, prayers." (Signed) SHOGHI.

In accordance with this request, the National Assembly has requested Mrs. Mariam Haney to prepare a statement recounting Mrs. Parsons' Bahá'í services, especially her notable and truly historic relation to the establishment of the Inter-Racial Amity Conferences. This statement will be sent by the National Assembly to all Local Assemblies, with the request that it be read to the believers at the next Nineteen Day Feast.

TRANSLITERATION OF PERSIAN BAHA'I TERMS

The friends are reminded of the Guardian's wish that in all printed literature of the Cause, the Persian words and terms be transliterated according to the correct standard observed by the Guardian. This standard will be found in The Bahá'í World, Vol. IV.

INCORPORATION OF TEANECK BAHA'I COMMUNITY

The Spiritual Assembly of Teaneck (West Englewood), New Jersey, on November 2, 1933, effected an incorporation of the Bahá'í community under New Jersey State Statutes, the third local Assembly in the United States and Canada to take this step which the Guardian advocates for local communities sufficiently large and stabilized.

The Spiritual Assembly of Washington, D.C., is also in process of effecting a Bahá'í corporation, while the Montreal Assembly is working out the problem of incorporating under Canadian law.

NEWS OF THE CAUSE

1. The United States and Canada

The "Oregon Mineralogist" official publication of the Oregon Agate & Mineral Society, Portland, has in its January, 1934, Anniversary Number devoted one page to an illustrated article on the Temple written by F. S. Young, Chairman of the Portland Spiritual Assembly, who edits this magazine. The publication circulates extensively among teachers and students of geology, and the article in consequence has been privileged to bring the first information about the Faith to many important educators.

The New York Assembly reports that since August, 1931, Mrs. Lily Armstrong, member of the local community, has been regularly including words of Bahá'u'lláh, 'Abdu'l-Bahá and Shoghi Effendi in broadcast programs she has rendered from various radio stations in New York and also New Jersey.

Miss Beatrice Irwin has broadcast a remarkable talk on "The Temple of Peace" from large stations in Chicago, Cleveland and New York City during recent weeks.

Mrs. Ida A. Finch, now a member of the Portland, Oregon Bahá'í community, has prepared a leaflet entitled "Recurring Cycles" which is much appreciated as a contribution to the teaching work.

The magazine entitled "Unity" of which Dr. John Haynes Holmes is editor, has been publishing a symposium on the subject of "Trends in Present-Day Religion," to which Horace Holley has been invited to contribute a paper on the Bahá'í Faith. The Bahá'í article is scheduled to appear in February.

The National Assembly has recently prepared material on Bahá'í activities for the year 1933 to appear in the current volume of The International Year Book, published by Funk & Wagnalls, New York. The previous volume of this annual work also contained reference to the Cause.

The Washington Assembly during November 1933 added two new members to the local community. Three new believers were enrolled by the Los Angeles Assembly in August, 1933. During the same month the Portland Assembly enrolled four new believers, one new believer in September and three in the month of November.

Los Angeles. During August a public feast was held which was attended by about one hundred non-believers recently attracted to the Cause. A special meeting was also arranged that month for colored friends, at which Willard Hatch delivered the Message. A memorial meeting was held at the grave of Thornton Chase on September 30. An Inter-Assembly meeting in October brought representatives from Bahá'í communities throughout southern California. The general letters received from the National Assembly are now being reproduced and copies supplied to all Los Angeles believers. The monthly public meetings are being continued with considerable success.

Milwaukee. The public meetings are attracting an ever-increasing audience. Among the speakers have been: Mirza Ali Kuli Khan, Dr. Zia Bagdadi, Mrs. Shahnaz Waite, Dr. A. L. Morris, A. H. Kalantar, Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford, H. R. Broadhurst, Robert H. Theiss, Mrs. Ruth Moffett. Bahá'í activities also include a children's class, a study class on "Some Answered Questions," another class which studies "Bahá'u'lláh and the New Era," a class in public speaking, and a Bahá'í Youth Group. The Bahá'í hall is open daily from noon until four P.M. The Milwaukee Assembly now issues a bulletin regularly for the local community.

Phoenix. A great stimulus has been given the community activities by Madame Margarita Orlova, leading to the enrollment of many new believers and the opening of a public Bahá'í Center in Room 16, Arizona Fire Building. Among the meetings addressed by Madame Orlova were: Y. W. C. A. Beth Israel Synagogue, a group of about sixty young Jews, the Dons luncheon club, Literary Department of the Women's Club, the student body at Teachers College, the students at Phoenix Colored High School, Womens Club at Glendale, Arizona, in addition to many meetings arranged in homes. The Phoenix believers are enthusiastic over the results of these meetings, and have arranged to have the new study classes continued by Mrs. A. Y. Seto of San Francisco.

By Ruth Randall Brown, Chairman.
Francisco. A series of meetings has been arranged for Wednesday evenings, at the King Edward, devoted to the general subject of “Bahá’í Interpretations of Religious Beliefs.” Among the special phases of the subject treated during November were the Idea of God, Man Made in the Image of God, Man as Immortal Soul, and Body, Soul and Spirit.

Yonkers. Public meetings are held weekly at The Towers. The Yonkers community in December served as host to an Inter-Assembly meeting attended by believers from Montclair, Jersey City, West Englewood and New York City. On October first the Spiritual Assembly issued a general letter to reinforce the Temple appeal sent out by the National Assembly on September 26, 1933.

Honolulu. A Monday evening meeting is held devoted to the study of Bahá’í Administration, and a Thursday morning class is studying the Tablet of Iqán. After years of service in Japan, Miss Agnes Alexander has returned to Honolulu, and the believers hope that she will remain indefinitely. A visit paid by Mr. Grosvelt, of Java, has been greatly appreciated.

Monroe. The newly elected Spiritual Assembly has been holding weekly public meetings, and reports that local interest in the Cause increases steadily. A series of public lectures was planned for November, with Mrs. Luther and George O. Latimer as speakers.

Montreal. Two new believers were enrolled in September and October. The unique service being rendered by preparing papers for the first incorporation of the Cause in Canada, mentioned elsewhere in this issue, will be reported later in more detail.

Urbana. The Spiritual Assembly has voted to adopt the By-Laws of a Local Assembly recently issued by the National Assembly in pamphlet form. This action gives added stability to the deliberations and functioning of a Local Assembly, and can be taken before the Assembly in any city is legally incorporated. After thorough study of Bahá’í Administration, the weekly study class is now studying The Dawn-Breakers. Recent public meetings have been addressed by Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford and Mirza Ali Kuli Khan. The Young Peoples Group meets twice weekly and has become very active.

New Haven. The study class is using the general study guide of thirty-six lessons and three reference books prepared by the Study Outline Committee, and it is reported that eight newly attracted friends have been attending regularly. The Assembly has been made happy by visits paid by Mrs. Florence Morton, Louis Gregory and Philip Marangella.

Miami. A Bahá’í Reading Room has been opened at 709 N. E. First Avenue. Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf has gone to Miami to undertake a special teaching campaign in cooperation with the Spiritual Assembly.

San Francisco The San Francisco Bahá’í News as issued monthly has been received from September to December, 1933, and conveys a brief but most interesting report of local activities. Among the items of interest are: a class in voice culture conducted by Madame Orlova, Temple meetings for prayer and meditation; Sunday morning meetings, speakers at which have been Madame Orlova, Leroy Ioas, H. R. Hurlbut, Mrs. A. Y. Sato, Mrs. Ella G. Cooper and Miss Charlotte M. Senhouse; Honolulu Community Wednesday evening, general study class for the present dome contract.

Chicago. Detailed monthly reports received from the Spiritual Assembly bring news of many activities going forward under the inspiration of Temple construction. Lack of space prevents more than a brief summary here. The regular meetings include: a public meeting at the Bahá’í Center each Wednesday noon, a Friday evening meeting of artistic and cultural character, a children’s study class on Sunday morning, Youth meeting Monday evenings, and “Fireside” groups in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Matthisen, Mr. and Mrs. Paton, Mrs. Fannie Lesch, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Mortenson, Dr. and Mrs. Bagdadi, Mr. and Mrs. Amerson, and a group at Park Ridge. A number of the believers have opened their homes to Bahá’ís and their friends as reading libraries. As a result of a letter offering Bahá’í speakers to clubs and organizations, the following teachers have been placed on various club programs: Mrs. Shahnaz Waite, Miss Fanny Knobloch, Mirza Ali Kuli Khan, H. R. Broadhurst and Mrs. Sarah Walrath who, in November, spoke on “The Bahá’í Temple and What It Stands For” at four clubs. During October Dr. Khan spoke on the same subject to three clubs. Mrs. Florida Thomas is placing copies of The Bahá’í Magazine, made available by different believers, in ten club libraries each month. Dr. Bagdadi spoke at the Esperanto Congress held at Hotel Morrison on July 11, and Mirza Ali Kuli Khan addressed the Congress on the following day.

New York. A series of ten Lessons in Religion were conducted by Louis Gregory at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bishop Lewis from October 30 to January 1, firmly establishing a Bahá’í meeting in Harlem. Meetings at the Center include: Sunday afternoon public meeting, a Forum each Tuesday evening, general study class for the community Wednesday evening, now devoted to the Tablet of Iqán under the leadership of Mrs. Marie Moore, Tuesday afternoon Teas devoted to cultural subjects. “Fireside” groups are maintained in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Bishop Lewis, Miss R. Sunshine, Miss Winifred Richards, Mr. and Mrs. Thurston Vaughn, Miss Ethel Bellows, Mrs. Ethel Murray, and at a neighborhood tea room a group is conducted by Miss Juliet Thompson. The New York community on February 17 will hold an Inter-Assembly meeting for discussion of the Guardian’s words on the subject of the Annual Bahá’í Convention.

2. International

The International Bahá’í Bureau at Geneva reports the passing of Frau Elisabeth Kitzing of Gehrlof-Rostock, Germany, who with her husband rendered great service through translating Bahá’í literature from English into the German language. Bulletins have been issued by the Bureau dated May 25 and November 12, 1933 which contain news items from Bahá’í Centers in Europe and the East. These bulletins also reflect the movement toward world peace animating the many institutions established at Geneva. The devoted services rendered by Miss Julia Culver and Mrs. Emogene Hoag are now to be reinforced by Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Bishop, of Portland, Oregon, who have gone to Haifa to consult with the Guardian and receive advice on how they can best assist the Cause at the International
Baha'i News

The Bureau. The importance of this international Bureau is great; undoubtedly it deserves increasing support from all National Spiritual Assemblies.

The Spiritual Assembly of Haifa issues a monthly bulletin containing most interesting and valuable news items translated from general letters and reports received from all parts of the Baha'i world. Recent issues have contained the text of the letter addressed by Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler to the Shah of Persia and also the text of the letter written by the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of Iraq to his Majesty King Chazi I., on the occasion of the death of his father, the late King Faisal, together with the reply received from his Majesty's private secretary. The following report is quoted from a general letter issued by that National Assembly: "The National Spiritual Assembly has appointed this year a Teaching Committee whose efforts have been crowned with success, a number of young men, intelligent and enthusiastic, have embraced the Faith. For the first time in Iraq, a group of young and zealous Baha'is have, under the auspices of the Spiritual Assembly, formed a committee known as 'The Baha'i Young Men's Committee.' This Committee secured permission from the authorities to have its group photograph taken in the Garden of Ridvan, the historic site where Baha'u'llah declared His Mission. It is of interest to note that this is the first photograph ever taken of believers in that consecrated place. One of the believers—Adib Effendi Ruda—is translating the Nabil Narrative into Arabic. At the Guardian's request, the Esselmont work is being translated into Kurdish by a very learned Kurd who is a lover of the Cause.

The Haifa letters also quote from the communications sent by the Unity of East and West Committee, in Tehran. "Among the great undertakings which it was Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler's mission to further in Persia is the construction of Persia's first Mashriqu'l-Adhkar. Recently ninety members of committees met at the Hazirat-ul-Quds as luncheon guests of Dr. Yunis Khan Afrikhte, and ways and means were discussed in the light of the experience acquired from construction of the Temples in Isfahan and in Wilmette near Chicago. The Persian friends hope to build in their midst that great center for the attraction of divine bounties, the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar.

"In Kashan a police inspector bought and carried to headquarters a Baha'i calendar printed in Tehran and sold at the Hazirat-ul-Quds in Kashan. The believer who sold the calendar was summoned and interrogated, and afterward taken to the Department of Justice, where among other matters he was questioned as to his religion. Infuriated at the reply that he was a Baha'i, the examiner stated that there are only four recognized religions in Persia (probably Islam, Christianity, Zoroastrianism and Judaism—Editor) and asked to which of these he belonged. The believer repeated that he was a Baha'i, whereupon the examiner wrote in the registry 'I have no religion—I am a Baha'i,' and told the believer to sign this statement. The believer thereupon wrote: 'I did not say that I have no religion—I am a Baha'i and to this signed his name. After further investigation a case has been filed against this believer, the outcome of which is not yet known.'

"Friends throughout the world will be interested in news of Dr. Susan Moody, that Baha'i pioneer who settled in Persia a generation ago and has since been an important factor in the development of unity between East and West. Because of advancing years, Dr. Moody now rarely leaves her home, but receives visitors daily. She speaks Persian by preference, even to her American friends, and her greatest happiness is to hear about the progress of the Cause. Dr. Moody is much loved throughout Persia, where she has become a symbol of the new world amity.'

The Committee on Unity of East and West, Tehran, makes the following request: "We would request all Baha'i centers to send us copies of their News Letters and periodicals and to keep us informed of their important activities. We further request them to assist in the realization of the following items of our program (1) Collection of a comprehensive and up to date list of all periodicals, magazines, News Letters, books and pamphlets published throughout the Baha'i world. (2) Collection of addresses of similar Baha'i groups having a similar program in every country, and of individuals, Baha'i or non-Baha'i, of wide outlook, who would welcome correspondence with our Committee on the subject of the Baha'i principles.

"As our circular letters suffer from the restrictions still vigorously observed against Baha'i literature in this country, we would request all Baha'i centers and groups to give the fullest distribution to the few copies of our circular letters we are able to prepare and send by post.

"We give below an outline of Baha'i news collected during the month of September, 1933.

"Because spring freshets had for some time been damaging Baha'u'llah's house and washing away adjoining lands in Takur, the Guardian gave instructions for a dam to be built which would safeguard the property. Last summer Aqay-i-Asasi of the Tihran Spiritual Assembly made a trip to Nur and built a strong dam, so that the property is now safe from floods. Although the Guardian had arranged to pay half the cost of construction Aqay-i-Asasi insisted on paying the entire sum: he further returned to Nur this year and undertook the work of restoring Baha'u'llah's house.

"The Declaration of the Bab and the birthday of 'Abdul-Baha celebrated at this season by the Baha'is of the Orient, was the occasion this month of a large public festival in the garden of the Hazirat-ul-Quds. A concert including a children's chorus was given, and Jinab-i-Fadil spoke on the importance of the day and dwelt on events in early Baha'i history; more music followed, during which refreshments were served: Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler then discussed the progress that the Cause has made throughout the world, and showed how the teachings of Baha'u'llah are the only solution to world problems.

"The Children's Service Committee celebrated the re-opening of its character training classes, which begin annually on September 15th, with a play put on by committee members and students for an audience of about 1,000, who assembled in the beautifully decorated hall of the Hazirat-ul-Quds. The play, written by a young Baha'i, was in 4 acts; to emphasize the importance of character training; Act I contrasted the lives of two families, one Baha'i, the other non-religious; act II illustrated the conflict of religion, portraying various religions in their ecclesiastical robes, and showing the expectation each Faith has of a Promised One, and the gradual darkening of a world disrupted by conflict, the act closed with a Sunrise, and an Angel of Salvation chanting of the new day of universal peace, harmony among religions, the oneness of humanity; Act III brought on the scene two great Baha'i poets, Mirza Na'im Aghay-i-Sinah to recite verses on human oneness and the vanishing of religious prejudices, and chant a welcome to the Promised One, urging the faiths of the world to unite under new laws; act IV illustrated the usefulness of lessons in character building and the effect of..."
this training on the children.

"Out of eighty students selected by the Gov't for foreign study, 9 were Bahá'ís; a farewell tea attended by approximately 100 people was given for them recently at the 'Hazirat-ul Qods.' After introducing the students Aqáy-i-Mesbáh, head of the Tarbát School for boys, addressed them, reminding them of their great opportunity and the good uses they should make of it, and urging them not to exchange for materialism their spiritual outlook on life. Through the spokesman the students thanked Aqáy-i-Mesbáh and pledged themselves to live up to their religious ideals.

"The fort of Shaykh Tabarsi, sacred to Bahá'ís for its rôle in our early history and its many martyrs, has long been a place of pilgrimage for Eastern friends. The local Assemblies of Mazindaran arranged to have the latest Convention for that province at Shaykh Tabarsi, and the delegates, after visiting the martyrs' graves and chanting a Tablet of Visitation, held their sessions near the shrine, taking new measures for teaching activity and discussing current problems. A recent international service the friends in Mazin-daran were able to render was the assistance they gave to a number of Greeks sent there to work on the tobacco plantations; many of these, succumbing to the climate, fell ill and several died, and the friends were active in helping the sufferers and burying their dead.

"It is a great regret to the Tihran Bahá'ís that Keith is no longer here, working with us, writing, lecturing and teaching. Her last weeks here were especially crowded, as many farewell meetings were arranged for her, in addition to other meetings where she emphasized the Guardian's recent instructions to Persia. Several brilliant receptions were given for her at the 'Hazirat-ul-Qods' and elsewhere and a large group of friends escorted her for some distance when she left the city. Keith is now to spend some three months in Shiraz and throughout the South after which she will visit India."

Communications intended for the Committee on Union of the East and West should be addressed to the Committee care Dr. Youness Khan Afron- khteh, Cheragh Bargh Avenue, Tihran, Persia.

The principal issues considered by the Seventh Annual Convention in Persia in 1933 are described by the Union of East and West Committee as follows.

"Persia's seventh annual Convention, made up of twenty delegates from all parts of the country, has recently dispersed, after a twelve-day session in the course of which a strenuous program was drawn up for the coming year. Full details of the Convention will be forthcoming in the next News."

"The attention of the delegates centered on a recent communication from the Guardian, in which they are stressed three immediate duties of the Persian Bahá'ís. The first of these is the establishment of the National Spiritual Assembly; at present the Teheran Spiritual Assembly, elected indirectly, functions as the National Assembly; certain difficulties in completing the necessary preliminary work, such as the taking of the accurate census, have delayed the establishment of the National Body.

"The second issue is the completion of the Teheran 'Hazirat-ul-Qods'; this is an imposing structure in a garden outside the city, some halls of which are finished and accommodate the thousands of people who attend public Bahá'í meetings; here the Spiritual Assembly meets three evenings in the week. The ground was purchased about ten years ago and has since almost trebled in value; the building itself, well-known throughout Teheran, is architecturally Persian and technically western, and has cost approximately 50,000 Tomans so far. The Assembly plans to complete the work as rapidly and economically as possible. Of the 500 Bahá'í centres in Persia, a majority have already erected their own meeting house.

"The third task confronting us this year is the purchasing of land on which the Mashriq-ul-Adhikar will be erected. It is evident that the financial responsibilities of such a large community are great, but the Bahá'ís show a marked desire to contribute, and it is not unusual for a man to give one third of his earnings to the Cause. Incidentally one function of the Finance Committee is to provide for Bahá'í and non-Bahá'í poor alike.

"Among decisions reached and subjects considered at the 7th Annual Convention of the Bahá'ís of Persia were the following:

"Plans were made for ninety-five delegates to meet in Tihran next year and elect the National Spiritual Assembly.

"It was arranged to reduce the number of the few paid Bahá'í teachers which conditions in Persia formerly necessitated; a few teachers are to travel all over the country, assisting the friends to deepen in the Cause and perfecting the administration of Bahá'í affairs; Aquáy-i-Adhari will go through Afghanistan on a teaching tour; Bahá'í teachers-training classes to be held throughout the country this year will include the study of Bahá'u'lláh and the New Era; an Education Committee was formed to collect and publish statements on the Cause by distinguished observers and to issue pamphlets on comparative religion; children's and young People's classes in character training and Bahá'í education will continue as heretofore.

"Local Assemblies were urged not to do construction work this year and to contribute instead toward completing the 'Haziratu'l-Qods of Tihran; Temple committees are to be appointed all over Persia to raise funds for the Mashriqul-Adhikar which will be erected in the Capital.

"Regarding the economic situation it was suggested that a nation-wide Bahá'í Company be formed to stimulate agriculture and industry."

The formation of Bahá'í Alumni Association was planned to further the various Bahá'í educational institutions.

"It was urged that capable writers throughout Persia prepare articles for western consumption and forward them to the East-West Committee for translation."

"Regarding marriage regulations, Bahá'í couples are to register according to recently established civil law, and if they meet with difficulties on religious grounds they are to lodge a formal complaint and to inform the Tihran Spiritual Assembly."

Those whose Bahá'í books have been confiscated at the frontiers are to appeal personally to the authorities concerned and to report results to the Tihran Assembly."

The National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Egypt has been publishing a printed Bahá'í News Letter in two languages, English and Arabic. Three copies have been received during recent months—one dated April, one dated May and June, and one dated July and August, 1933. The items presented in English are summarized as follows:

The Annual Convention was composed of nineteen delegates. Consideration was given to the following subjects—Negotiations with the authorities on the problem of securing civil recognition of Bahá'ís; Teaching the Cause; Establishing a National Hazirat-ul-Qods; The National Fund. A letter received from the Guardian emphasized the importance of continuing the negotiations with the government, of building a Hazirat-ul-Qods and of sending annual reports to Shoghi Effendi.

The Tablet of Iqán has been translated into Arabic; translation into Arabic of the chapter in The Dawn-Breakers of the martyrdom of the Bab has also been carried out at the Guardian's request. The Egyptian friends report with grief the passing of the venerable Hafez Nadim Effendi of Cairo, who on July 28, 1933 died in the hospital which stands in the Garden of Ridvan at Baghdad, he at the time being on a journey to Persia. Hafez Nadim Effendi was one of the earliest believers in Egypt, connected with the Cause, and was sent by the Guardian twice to Tunis to teach and encourage the friends.

From Poona has been received a copy of Sanj Vartaman Annual published in Bombay on the New Year of the Parsees, a large and sumptuous illustrated magazine, in which Shoghi Effendi's "Goal of a New World Order" is reprinted in full. The Spiritual Assembly of Poona reports that this publication will reach about 35,000 Parsees. The "Kaiser-I-Hind" a magazine published in Bombay, has in its issue of December 31, 1933 a review of The Baha'i World. The Illustrated Weekly of India for December 24, 1933 reproduces an article on the Cause from a recent volume of The Baha'i World.

Through the courtesy of Mme. Laura Freyfus-Barney we have received a copy of a book recently published in Paris—"Cette Annee a Jerusalem" by Emile Schreiber, one chapter of which treats of the Baha'i Faith. The publisher is Libraire Pion.

NEW VISIONS OF HUMAN UNITY

During the closing days of July, 1933 the annual conference for Racial Amity was held at Green Acre, Eliot, Maine and in the neighboring city of Portsmouth, New Hampshire. An unusually large attendance gathered from many sections of the country was greeted by Harlan F. Ober, the chairman of the opening session, who expressed the keynote of the conference as the Oneness of Humanity. He dwelt upon the reality of religion, showing how many previous faiths have lost their power through dogmatism and warned the devotees of the new faith against similar errors. Extracts from the Divine Teachings were read to show the way of guidance which alone can harmonize the world.

Saffa Kinney of New York, the first speaker, told how he first came to Green Acre in 1900 at the invitation of the late Miss Sarah J. Farmer. He related several stories of those early days and of his association with the founder of this spiritual enterprise, whose great heart made possible the program she loved. People of all races and religions found welcome in her home and Green Acre became a center of hospitality. Her dignified presence and genial spirit charmed everyone and she was able to fuse conflicting viewpoints and clashing personalities through her serene and spiritual calm. Her stature grows with years. Her fame belongs to the ages. This brilliant daughter of a great inventor dedicated all her powers and resources to the ideal that all men are brothers.

Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford, lecturer, art critic and writer, saw a new race being evolved in the world. It will be far greater than any racial group of the past because it will have the best traits of every group. No race of today has a monopoly of good qualities. Each group will benefit from amalgamation with others. Superiority is in mankind as a whole. This truth is being rapidly discovered. As a rule the whites are overgrown on the intellectual side. They need more of heart and spirit. Unity and association with other races will bring this. The speaker had a wealth of illustration gathered from travels and contacts with many races. One of these related to the great French poet, Lamartine, a fine example of the astonishing benefits arising from a noble and spiritual love between himself and one of another race.

Mrs. Ludmila Bechtold of Brookly presided at the next session and there were brief addresses from workers and lovers of the cause of racial amity. Mrs. Hebe Struen of Worcester led with a spirited appeal to hearts. Then followed Joel Marangella, spokesman for those of tender years; Mrs. Aline S. Devin, long a summer resident of Green Acre, whose winters in the far South bring to her a knowledge of many social problems; Samuel A. Allen of New York, industrial secretary of the Urban League; Mrs. S. E. J. Oglesby, who recalled the instructions given her by Shoghi Effendi about race relations; Mrs. Mabel Ives, a very active teacher; Stanley White and Carl Cartwright, representing respectively the younger generation of Northerners and Southerners, one in their vision of and loyalty to the ideals of the new age; and Mrs. A. S. Parsons who told a number of fascinating stories of the visit of the Bab to America in 'Abdu'l-Baha in 1912. In introducing the last speaker, the chairman voiced the penetration and power of the Great Message of the Kingdom. In the midst of this session came a hiatus, during which the Spiritual Assembly of Eliot favored the friends with an afternoon tea.

The final day of this amity conference was a busy one for its members who had gathered from practically every state east of the Allegheny Mountains, with visitors from many points farther West and South. The attendance was the largest of any conference at Green Acre in many years and the Inn and surrounding properties bustled with activities. At this Sunday morning session, which it is the aim to make most spiritual, Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf presided. Mrs. Louise Gregory read from the Holy Utterances and Mrs. Dorothy Richardson, with Miss Dorothy Wood as accompanist, sang. Three speakers, Mrs. Ford and R. G. Barrow and Saffa Kinney responded to the subject: How the Supreme World Illumines this World. With the chairman, they reviewed the whole matter of prejudice and averred the need of the Divine Power to lift humanity to a new plane of understanding. The reality of man is noble, fearless, open-minded, loving and intelligent. Today countless souls are showing forth this reality, scrapping ancient superstitions and prejudices and revealing in this way the foundations of human brotherhood. Every Divine Teacher of the past has unified races and nations. He has displaced hatred and prejudice with love and justice. Now antagonistic peoples are finding ideal unity through the teachings of Baha'u'llah. This is a Light which shines for the whole world.

The afternoon session was devoted to the general subject of making the world better. Howard Ives presided. Dr. T. E. A. McCurdy, of Boston, the first speaker, presented the situation now confronting the colored people of New England who during the past decade have found themselves debarred from all medical schools in New England despite high scholastic standing. This manifest injustice leaves a considerable portion of the population without adequate medical care. The executive secretary of the Boston Urban League, declared in his interesting address that our social attitudes are primarily due to inadequate education, that being no inherent aversion of people of one race to those of another. Children of different races left to themselves seek each other's society. True education which looks at souls rather than color will unfold a new world of happiness to man.
Mr. Zylpha O. Mapp of Boston, in a chart talk outlined the principles of a plan of education which will bring unity in all human relations. Realization of the oneness of mankind she regarded as fundamental. The hope of the world rests with those noble men and women who show forth in their lives the ideals of the new education. They are free from prejudice, just to all men and are the embodiments of that exalted word: "Ye are all the leaves of one Tree and the fruits of one Branch."

The final meeting was held at the People's Baptist Church in Portsmouth. The chairman, Philip Mangarella, read to the audience a beautiful poem. Judge E. H. Adams, an honored citizen of Portsmouth extended to the delegates and friends a cordial welcome, expressing admiration for the principles of brotherhood and peace and a special love for the chairman and a colored friend, one of his fellow members of the bar, who was present. Portsmouth in many ways proves the worthiness of its title as "the City of the Open Door."

The executive secretary of the New York Urban League, James H. Hubert, who knows economic conditions over the country, spoke of the difficulties arising from replacing colored workers with whites through racial antagonism during this critical period of business depression. He expressed the fervent hope that the spirit of this conference might soon pervade the nation as the solution of the great problem now confronting both races. Mrs. Grace Ober spoke of the wonder-working power of the love of God. This power enables souls to discover each other's reality and so to become intimate upon the high plane of association and righteous endeavor. This new spiritual springtime brings not only light, but the heat necessary for growth. New ideals of unity are pervading the world. One who has long faced racial problems, Reginald G. Barrow, challenged both the white and colored groups. He felt that the former must assume their responsibility as the majority and ruling group which is responsible for the presence of their darker brothers on American soil. He felt that the colored in view of their difficulties, should show resolution and aim at a standard that would be even higher than those of others. He believed that merit cannot always be suppressed.

On Sunday afternoon a reception and tea was held for all delegates and visiting friends at the beautiful country estate of Mr. and Mrs. S. Schoppacher in Eliot. A very attractive program of music and reading was carried out and in social commerce all found opportunity to get better acquainted. The beauty of the surroundings and the spirit of hospitality shown made a very deep impression.

The difficulties in the way of this Amity Conference in view of the depression and other obstacles loomed larger than those which confronted any previous similar gathering. That they were met and overcome is certainly due to the wonderful providence whose ways are ever marvelous in our eyes. Many of our visitors and workers traveled under such handicaps as to make their presence seem well nigh a miracle. Thus the mystery of sacrifice was attained and the devotion of hearts was freely given in service to the True One. It was an effort which commanded the united support of friends, those from afar and those near at hand. The power of these meetings was most impressive.

REPORT OF THE POONA BAHÁ'Í SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

Praised be the Lord that the Bahá'ís of Poona, though few in number, have been united in obedience to the life-giving commands of our beloved Guardian whose unflagging grace and loving kindness have surrounded us at all times, enabled us to surmount obstacles and march on towards victory.

How can we ever recount his manifold blessings? How can we ever render sufficient thanks for the fountain of life that ceaselessly flows from his pen? For his precious Book of Nábi, a portion of this four? Regularly have we met and studied this wonderful book and from the heroic deeds it portrays have realized how short, how far short we fall of the mark of a true Bahá'i. But we have not given way to despair, nay, rather, we have turned towards the Abhá Kingdom and have implored the Blessed Beauty to grant us purity and wisdom and strength that we might be enabled to discharge our sacred trust.

It was Nábi's Narrative that caused Poona to contribute Rs. 370/- to the Temple Fund. For what heart could remain unmoved by its tale of devotion to and sacrifice for the Cause? What hand would, then, dare to withhold aught that might conduce to the progress of our glorious Faith? Hardships though the giving of this amount may entail upon the friends they are yet too fully conscious how infinitesimal is what they have surrendered compared to what they have received. We are deeply impressed by the sacrifice that our noble brothers and sisters in America are making and must still make to accomplish the mighty task laid upon their shoulders and can only pray, and pray unceasingly, that the Spirit of our gracious, our loving Master may sustain them, enrich them, and enable them to complete, in good time, the glorious work of the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar.

Four new friends have accepted the Cause this year. Now the total number of declared adult believers in Poona is 21. The people of our town are conservative; our former co-religionists, especially, have resonated the acceptance by these friends of the Truth and in ways innumerable have sought and still seek to injure us. The invincible power of the Lord, our God, the Almighty doth protect us, however, and shall surely confound and put to flight the forces of darkness.

For the first time in Poona the first day of Ridván of the year 90 was observed as a holiday, the friends refraining from work on that day. The notices, displayed beforehand at the few Bahá'í shops, intimating that these would be closed on April 21st, it being a Bahá'i holiday, caused the fire of hatred burning in the hearts of the enemies of the Cause to blaze more fiercely still. These witness the growing power of the Faith, its onward, irresistible march, and are consumed by their wrath.

We take this opportunity of thanking all the kind friends and Assemblies of India and Burma who have helped us during the year with their orders for Bahá'í literature and The Bahá'í Magazine. Our net gain from these sales has been about Rs. 45/-.

During the period under review the Poona friends have contributed a sum of Rs 165/- to the National Fund and Rs. 200/- to the Haziratul-Qods of Calcutta.

During this year we have subscribed to the following Magazines and mailed them regularly to various libraries or other public institutions:

- 6 copies of The Bahá'í Magazine
- 6 copies of the Herald of the South
- 6 copies of The Bahá'í Weekly
- 12 copies of Kaukab-/-Hind

We have also distributed the following literature to Educational Institutions or Public Libraries in Poona and elsewhere:

- 12 copies of Bahá'lláh and the New Era (To be continued)
A SPIRITUAL ACHIEVEMENT

In future years, when the blessed institution of the Mashriqu’l-Adhkár is completed, with its accessory buildings and gardens, the believers will look back upon this time with far greater appreciation than we can now feel. For we are in the period of stress and sacrificial effort when the moment’s passing problem tends to blind us to the permanent significance of the mighty task.

But the Guardian stands above our limitations, and in his messages we can win through to a profounder vision of the reality surrounding our changing hopes and despair.

Thus, on March 7, when Shoghi Effendi was informed that the ornamentation of the dome unit was completed, he sent this cablegram: “Overjoyed epochmaking achievement. Intense gratitude. Ardently suppliant still mightier evidences American believers’ exemplary stewardship Faith of Bahá’lláh.”

The final and complete figures are still to be reported, for certain items of equipment already paid for will be used in future work and hence are to be charged only partly as cost under the dome contract.

It is clear from these figures, however, that the original estimate is practically $2,000 more than the actual cost. Quoting from current report of Research Service: “This achievement is all the more noteworthy when it is understood that the original estimate did not include the furring system and underestimated the cost of placing the sections on the dome. This cost, including cost of derrick at $3,500, was $21,791.62. While this cost seems exceedingly high, it is largely for labor which involves very high rates in the Chicago district, and a large item for workmen’s compensation and liability insurance.”

In order to make the payments due in March, the National Spiritual Assembly borrowed the sum of $10,000 from the Northern Trust Company, Chicago, which amount must be repaid at the rate of $2,500 every three months.

With the Guardian’s expressed approval, received in the form of the following cablegram: “Heartily welcome proposal. Additional sacrifices entailed clerestory ornamentation will add further laurels to crown already won (by) American believers and hasten fulfilment long cherished expectations;” the National Spiritual Assembly pledged sufficient funds to the Temple Trustees to enter into a new contract with Mr. Earley and with Research Service for the external ornamentation of the clerestory section.

This new contract is based upon a total estimated cost for work and supervision of $36,400. It is confidently expected that the clerestory section will be completed by early autumn of 1935, while the Century of Progress Exposition is still open.

According to the special terms of this new contract, the Temple Trustees may make payment in equal monthly instalments beginning April, 1934.

 Viewing the Temple financial program as a whole, the National Spiritual Assembly would make it clear that in addition to the funds needed for current activities other than the Temple construction, the following monthly budget must be met for the year beginning April, 1934:—

For repayment of bank loan, $833.33. For instalment on clerestory contract, $3,033.33. Total monthly Temple construction budget, $3,866.66.

It is evident that this arrangement calls for steady, unyielding devotion as represented by regular contributions to the National Fund, but involves no such emergency sacrifice as has been incurred during the dome contract, when payments as high as $18,000 a month were required.

COMMITTEE ANNOUNCEMENTS

1. Publicity Committee

Although our most direct functioning is through your local publicity committees, who in at least fifty percent of the centers are reporting gratifying progress, we would like to discuss with you publicity as a Community activity. Our national releases are only a small part of the news. The rest is to be found in your Community and Assembly Life. We are convinced that with your help we shall be able to create and utilize news that will link us more immediately with the reading public.

Our work is educational and the newspapers are comparable in purpose to our public lectures. We may well borrow a page from the successful publicity of our national club organizations and see the value of creating publicity through planned events. With this thought in mind we have submitted to your Local Spiritual Assembly a list of possible projects which have proved successful in the past.

It is a principle of Bahá’í Administration that our best results come to us through the unity of mutual functioning. Local committees such as teaching, feast and welfare may be called into action to assist in putting across publicity in co-operation with the local publicity chairman.

One Community reports an increase of twenty-five in their attendance due to placing advance publicity for a visiting speaker. We cannot urge you too strongly to make every effort to endeavor to create openings for news.

DORIS McKAY, Secretary.

2. Publishing Committee

The Publishing Committee is now able to supply the following: Bahá’í Lesson Outlines for Children, prepared by the Committee on the Training and Teaching of Chil-quences. These outlines consist of four sections containing lessons 1 to 36 and a great many copies have already been supplied to the Local Assemblies by the secretary, Miss Charlotte Linfoot. Those Assemblies who have been using these Outlines for help in bringing up the next generation of true believers have reported enthusiastically on their value. We wish all Assemblies who have not ordered them, would send for at least one copy to investigate for themselves the great need for this work. Mimeographed. Price for Outlines complete: Net, 75c.

Twelve Lessons in the Bahá’í Revelation, a more thorough study of practically the same subjects covered by the Bahá’í Study Course of 36 lessons and is particularly valuable as a supplement to it and for the individual research of advanced Bahá’í students. Originally issued as a Correspondence Edition. Mimeographed. Net, .50c.

Material and Divine Civilization, Outlines compiled by the Outline Bureau of the National Teaching Committee in 1930. Mimeographed. Reduced price: Net, .10c.

Of special importance and interest to all believers is the following announcement:

The Dispensation of Bahá’u’lláh, by Shoghi Effendi. This new and most helpful statement on the fundamental truths of the Bahá’í Revelation is being distributed by the National Spiritual Assembly, one copy each, to all recognized believers free of charge, but the Publishing Committee, recognizing the need for a permanent supply, has published extra copies of the paper covered edition to sell at 25c per copy.

Cloth Edition. The same work, bound in blue cloth to match the binding of “Bahá’í Administration,” per copy, 75c.

3. Green Acre Summer School
July and August, 1934

The morning courses of the Green Acre Summer School will be in session five days a week, from Monday through Friday, from 10:45 to 12:30 each day. Courses will be conducted as round-table discussions, which the teacher in charge of the course may introduce by a short lecture. Previous experience has shown that members of the classes usually gain help and inspiration from each course in proportion as they take an active part in the work of the class. The one exception to be noted to the conference method is that of the four lectures on July 23 to 26.

Reference readings on each course and problems for discussion will be provided students by the teacher in charge of each class. Students who come to Green Acre are urged to bring with them their own Bahá’í books for use in each course. It is hoped that it will be possible to provide a quiet room for use as a library and study-hall, where the equipment and atmosphere will be such as to encourage serious study.

The program of courses is as follows:

July 23-26. Four lectures on Nabil’s Narrative: The Dawn-Breakers. The purpose of these lectures is to convey the spirit of the Bab and His followers, rather than to provide a detailed study of the book. Leader: Miss Mary Maxwell.

July 30-August 3. The Tablets of Bahá’u’lláh, including the Tablet of the Holy Mariner, the Tablet of the Virgin, the Most Great Infallibility, and selections from the Tablets to the Kings. Leader: Dr. Ali Kuli Khan.

August 4, 5. Amity Conference. (Program to be published later.)

August 26, 27, 28. Teaching Conference. (Program to be published later.)

In addition to the morning courses, one evening course is scheduled during the week of July 30-August 3. Mr. Saffa Kinney will give four lectures on the topic, “Bahá’í Teachings Concerning the Evolution of the Soul.”

An afternoon class for study of the Dawn-Breakers will be held on two afternoons a week, during all of July and August. The decision as to which afternoon shall be designated for this course will be made during the first week in July, and an attempt will be made to suit the time to the convenience of as many people as possible.

A sub-committee on Plays and Pageantry has been appointed for work at Green Acre. This committee plans to enlist the help of all those who are interested in dramatics, in the production of a play, a pageant or tableaus, centering around parts of the Dawn-Breakers. It is hoped that the final performance of this dramatic episode may be presented during the Teaching Conference at the end of August.

The foregoing program will be supplemented by a variety of activities, such as afternoon teas, informal evening conferences, meetings for meditation, sunset meetings on Mt. Salvat, etc.

Last year Green Acre entered a new era. As the summer progressed a new spirit of co-operation developed—a spirit which gave life to all the activities of the Summer School. It is our sincere hope that the same demonstration of Bahá’í solidarity will continue this year. Miss Helen Campbell, with the help of a trained dietitian, will have charge of the Inn and Cottages. Rates will be a little higher than last year: $10 and $12 for Bahá’ís and slightly higher rates for non-Bahá’ís. There will be opportunity for those who wish to earn their expenses to work a part of each day. Those who anticipate such work should correspond with Miss Campbell, 204 West 55th Street, New York City, as early as possible, as demands for these openings are already coming in.

With excellent food which the slightly higher rates permit, with the unusually interesting and varied program scheduled, and with the same spirit of co-operation which we had last year, Green Acre Summer School should have a season of unprecedented success.

4. Central States Summer School

The fourth session of the Central States Summer School will be held at Louhelen Ranch, Davison, Michigan, June 30 to July 8 inclusive. The first meeting will be held Saturday evening, June 30, and the last, Sunday evening, July 8.

Among the teachers and lecturers will be Allen B. McDaniel, Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford, Mrs. Shahnaz Waite, Miss Gretchen Westervelt, Mrs. Dorothy Baker, and Philip Sprague. The regular daily courses planned are:
Bahá’í Administration, The Dawn-Breakers, The Bible Illumined by Bahá’í Teachings, and one to be announced.
Following the general session there will be a special session for young people, July 10 to 13 inclusive, designed for both Bahá’ís and non-Bahá’ís. This will be under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Baker assisted by Philip Sprague and others from among the teachers in the general session. This is a new venture in service for young people and needs the cooperation of the various communities in spreading the news among young people and in assisting them to come. The young people are urged to come to the general session, too, and this will give them a full two weeks at the Ranch.

The rates are as follows:

General Session (note that this is for nine days)

Dormitory .......... $12.50
Double room .......... $16.50
Single room .......... $18.50

Young people (four days)

Dormitory .......... $5.00
Double room .......... $7.00
Single room .......... $8.00

Louhelen Ranch is situated on Route M15 about nine miles from Flint and about fifty from Detroit. Trains or bus will be met at Flint if notice is given in advance.

Reservations should be made as early as possible with Mrs. L. W. Eggleston, 201 E. Kirby Avenue, Detroit, Michigan.

CONVENTION COMMITTEES

Hospitality Committee: Mrs. May Scheffler, Chairman, 1821 Lincoln Street, Evanston, Ill., Miss Edna True, Mrs. Zeenat Bagdadi.

All those desiring assistance of the Hospitality Committee in securing rooms during the Convention will please address Mrs. May Scheffler at the above address, stating what type of accommodation they prefer, how much they are prepared to pay for it, the time of their arrival and how long they plan to remain. This includes hotel reservations or rooms in private homes.

Feast Committee: Albert Windust, Miss Sophie Loeding, Carl Scheffler, Mrs. May Scheffler, Mrs. Corinne True, Mrs. Anne Bartholomew.

Committee on Music and Devotional Services: Mrs. Corinne True, Chairman, Mrs. Sara Walrath, Secretary, Mrs. Mabel Paine, Andrew Nelson, Mrs. Nina Matthisen.

THE DISPENSATION OF BAHÁ’U’LLAH

The friends throughout the United States and Canada are informed that the Guardian has written a general letter addressed to the believers throughout the West, dated February 8, 1934, copies of which in pamphlet form are now being distributed to all recognized Bahá’ís.

In this communication Shoghi Effendi explains the fundamental truths of the Bahá’í Faith. His words constitute a new and precious source of inspiration as well as accurate knowledge.

The friends possessing copies of Bahá’í Scriptures are requested to make in them an important correction which the Guardian has noted in this letter: Page 255, numbered paragraph 527, strike out the asterisk (*) after the word “He” in the fifth line, and also strike out the footnote at the bottom of this page.

Corresponding corrections required in Bahá’u’lláh and the New Era, by Esslemont, will be reported later.

ESPERANTO COMMITTEE

In order to find ways and means to make more effective Bahá’í contact with Esperanto groups, a new committee has been appointed consisting of: James Morton, Chairman, Miss Della Lincoln, Secretary, 1120 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., Miss Louise Thompson, Miss Lucy Marshall, A. E. Regal.

COMMITTEE ON ANNUAL SOUVENIR OF ‘ABDUL-BAHA

The annual meeting held at West Englewood, New Jersey, commemorating the Feast given by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá to believers throughout the New York City metropolitan district in 1912, will this year be conducted by a committee appointed by the National Spiritual Assembly: Curtis Kelsey, Chairman, Dr. Edward Wilber, Secretary, Mrs. Maud Gaudreaux, Dr. Genevieve Coy, Hooper Harris.

NON-ASSOCIATION WITH A PERSIAN WITHOUT CREDENTIALS

SAFEGUARDING THE BAB'S SHRINE

On February 26 it was reported to local Spiritual Assemblies that Shoghi Effendi had cabled an urgent appeal that American Baha'i contribute funds to purchase lands within the area dedicated to the Shrine of the Bab, these lands now being owned by avowed enemies of the Cause. The total amount required is $15,000. Up to the present time the sum of $6,000 has been contributed for this special purpose. The National Assembly hopes that the full sum can be contributed at an early date.

Goal of a New World Order to the Editors of the fifty leading Journals and Magazines of India, Burma and Ceylon, and 263 copies to as many from among the middle class citizens of Poona.

Literature in pamphlet form, both in English and Urdu, has been supplied to very many inquirers, both in this Station and others throughout India.

A poster our Assembly designed for display in those libraries where we had placed a copy of The Dawn-Breakers has been graciously remarked upon by the Beloved of our hearts. And the National Assembly of America has deigned to ask for more copies thereof so that, in the words of its esteemed Treasurer, “every one of our Assemblies and groups, about 80, should have before them this example of loving devotion and practical efficiency.” Such kindness is indeed, gratifying, the more so since it is unmerited.

Our thanks are due to Mr. Amirul Islam of Chittagong and Mr. Muhammad Arastoo of Rouza for their contributions of Rs. 15/- and Rs. 5/- respectively for the Temple; Mr. Amirul Islam of Chittagong and Mr. Abdul Aziz of Hyderabad, Dn., for contributing Rs. 10/- and Rs. 4/- respectively to our Assembly fund; Mr. Merwan Khorosrove of Bombay for the gift of two Dawn-Breakers; and the very many Assemblies and friends who responded so generously to our appeal for subscribing to the Baha'i Magazine.

We are deeply grateful to those Assemblies, far and near, who have written to us. We seldom have the joy of meeting friends from other countries; the letters we receive afford us some solace instead. May we humbly request that these loving messages be extended to us during the new year likewise? We must make special mention of the embelished missives of Victoria Khanim which have rebounded to us from the four corners of the globe, of the much-prized communications of the American N. S. A. and the Haifa Assembly. On our part, we have corresponded with many centres and individuals in India and abroad.

In conclusion, dear friends, may we entreat you to pray for us that Bahá'u'lláh may vouchsafe us His blessings so that purged of self and passion we may arise this new year to do our share in carrying this Message of Salvation and of Hope to a despairing world.

MRS. PARSON'S CAREER OF SERVICE

Your cablegram announcing the sad news of the sudden passing of Mrs. Parsons into the Kingdom has much grieved the Guardian, and has brought added weight to the burden of sorrow which, only a few months ago, Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler's tragic death placed in her heart, her devotion, her sincerity, her unshakable faith and her implicit obedience to the counsels and injunctions of the Master greatly endeared her to all the believers, and particularly to 'Abdu'l-Bahá who placed in her such firm confidence. . . .

May Bahá'u'lláh abundantly reward her in the next world, and may He fully sanctify and bless her departed soul and enable it to reach a still higher state of true blessedness and perfection.

Yours in His Service,
H. RABBANI.

secretary, on the subject of association with a Persian youth now traveling in the United States and Canada.

“I am directed by Shoghi Effendi to inform you that Mr. Yadullah Mobasser, to whom you have referred in your note dated Jan. 9th, came last February to Haifa and met the Guardian, and shortly after left for Europe. Having no recommendation whatever from any Assembly in Persia, Shoghi Effendi insisted that he should obtain a recommendation if he wished to meet and associate with the friends. He apparently failed to follow the Guardian’s instructions on this point, and had the Paris Assembly or Madame Dreyfus-Barney informed of that, they would have certainly refused to give him any letter of introduction.

“The Guardian, wishing, therefore, to stress the necessity for every Bahá’í to abide by this important principle of the Administration, requests you to inform all friends not to associate with him in case he comes to the States, unless and until he can produce a recommendation from the Spiritual Assembly of the locality in which he lives.

“Yours in His Service,”

REPORT OF THE POONA BAHÁ’Í SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

(Concluded)

13 copies of the Hidden Words (New London Edition)
14 copies of The Dawn-Breakers.

We have contributed the cost of 22 copies of The Bab’s World, Volume 4, and 3 copies of the projected publication by the Paris Assembly of a History of the Báb, which we intend presenting to various libraries, when received.

We have mailed 50 copies of The Dawn-Breakers, a total of 60 copies of this magazine.

The Baha’i News office has mailed 14 copies of the Bab’s Shrines, 13 copies of the Dawn-Breakers, and 50 copies of The Hidden Words to 4, and 3 copies of the projected publication by the Paris Assembly of a History of the Báb, which we intend presenting to various libraries, when received.

We have mailed 50 copies of The Dawn-Breakers, a total of 60 copies of this magazine.

Our thanks are due to Mr. Amirul Islam of Chittagong and Mr. Muhammad Arastoo of Rouza for their contributions of Rs. 15/- and Rs. 5/- respectively for the Temple; Mr. Amirul Islam of Chittagong and Mr. Abdul Aziz of Hyderabad, Dn., for contributing Rs. 10/- and Rs. 4/- respectively to our Assembly fund; Mr. Merwan Khorosrove of Bombay for the gift of two Dawn-Breakers; and the very many Assemblies and friends who responded so generously to our appeal for subscribing to the Baha’i Magazine.

We are deeply grateful to those Assemblies, far and near, who have written to us. We seldom have the joy of meeting friends from other countries; the letters we receive afford us some solace instead. May we humbly request that these loving messages be extended to us during the new year likewise? We must make special mention of the embelished missives of Victoria Khanim which have rebounded to us from the four corners of the globe, of the much-prized communications of the American N. S. A. and the Haifa Assembly. On our part, we have corresponded with many centres and individuals in India and abroad.

In conclusion, dear friends, may we entreat you to pray for us that Bahá'u'lláh may vouchsafe us His blessings so that purged of self and passion we may arise this new year to do our share in carrying this Message of Salvation and of Hope to a despairing world.

The Poona Bahá'í Spiritual Assembly, Rustom Khorosrove, Secretary.

With ‘Abdu’l-Bahá’s ascension, and more particularly with the passing of His well-beloved and illustrious sister the Most Exalted Leaf—the last survivor of a glorious and heroic age—there draws to a close the first and most moving chapter of Bahá’í history, marking the conclusion of the Primitive, the Apostolic Age of the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh. It was ‘Abdu’l-Bahá Who, through the provisions of His weighty Will and Testament, has forged the vital link which must for ever connect the age that has just expired with the one we now live in—the Transitional and Formative period of the Faith—a stage that must in the fullness of time reach its blossom and yield its fruit in the exploits and triumphs that are to herald the Golden Age of the Revelation of Bahá’u’lláh. —Shoghi Effendi.

LETTERS FROM THE NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY

I am over-joyed to hear of the contract that has recently been signed, a fresh and compelling evidence of the indomitable will of the American believers to prosecute, under the inspiring leadership of their able national representatives, their historic enterprise. (signed) Shoghi, —Haifa, February 13, 1934.

Shoghi Effendi feels it to be inadvisable that the Temple Foundation Hall be used for dramatic performances. He believes that only Bahá’í meetings, and business sessions of the Convention, can be held in it until such time as the erection of a special edifice for this purpose has been undertaken by the American friends.

Concerning the best method of presenting the Master’s Will to the newcomers, Shoghi Effendi is of the opinion that the N. S. A. should first make some suitable extracts from the Testament, and to send these to all the local Assemblies for their use, so that there may be full unity in circulating the provisions of the Will among the new believers. The problem of choosing such excerpts is left entirely to the discretion of the N. S. A. The main thing, as it appears to the Guardian, is that the full station of the Báb, Bahá’u’lláh and ‘Abdu’l-Bahá be clearly explained, and that the origin, nature and working of the Administrative Order of the Faith be clearly stated. The full implications of such a recognition are evidently beyond the comprehension of any new believer. Such a knowledge can be acquired gradually, and only when the essentials of the Faith have been clearly recognized and adequately understood.

In regard to the activities of Ahmad Sohrab, Shoghi Effendi has already stated that such attacks, however pernicious, do not justify the friends replying or taking any direct action against them. The attitude of the N. S. A. should be to ignore them entirely. For any undue emphasis on attacks made upon the Cause by Ahmad and his supporters would make them feel that they constitute a real challenge to the Cause and a menace to its institutions. Should these attacks continue and acquire a serious importance the Guardian will surely advise the N. S. A. to take definite and decisive action.

As regards the general conditions of the future in America, Shoghi Effendi feels that the existing distress will not be rapidly alleviated. There is no danger, however, of any great crisis in the immediate future. Conditions are certainly bad, and dissatisfaction is undoubtedly universal, but the hour of universal relief has not yet approached. The friends need not have any grave anxiety as to the immediate developments of the present situation.

May I also draw your attention to the fact that the Báb’s photograph which appeared in Nicola’s book “Síyíd Ali Muhammad dit le Báb” many years ago is not authentic, although it presents great similarity to the original drawings of the Báb’s portrait.

In closing I must express the Guardian’s deep sense of admiration for the stupendous sacrifices which the American followers of the Faith have gladly undertaken for the Cause. The attitude of the N. S. A. should be to ignore them entirely. For any undue emphasis on attacks made upon the Cause by Ahmad and his supporters would make them feel that they constitute a real challenge to the Cause and a menace to its institutions. Should these attacks continue and acquire a serious importance the Guardian will surely advise the N. S. A. to take definite and decisive action.
inevitably usher in are already manifesting themselves in the growing unity and solidarity with which the new-born Administrative Order of the Cause is functioning and developing in no less than forty countries of the world. Surely the credit for such a truly remarkable development in the administrative field of the Cause must be primarily attributed to the members of the American Bahá'í community and particularly to those who so fittingly represent them in the National Assembly. May Bahá'u'lláh continue to inspire you with His wisdom and guidance, that through your collective endeavors the Cause may progress and its institutions may increase and its unity, both doctrinal and administrative, be effectively safeguarded. (signed) H. Rabbani.

(Postscript to the foregoing letter.) The completion of the Dome, the mighty emblem of our invincible Faith, marks a notable landmark in the rise and establishment of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh. The Bahá'í world feels greatly indebted to the American believers for so striking a testimony of the unconquerable spirit of the Cause in these days of unprecedented stress and turmoil. They who by their self-sacrifice have crowned this noble and historic Edifice deserve the praise and are indeed the object of the envy and the admiration of their fellow believers throughout the world. For their imperishable deeds I cannot but feel eternally gratified. (signed) Shoghi.-Haifa, March 21, 1934.

Concerning the list of Bahá'í teachers sent to America by the Master, I wish to make it clear that the statement I made on that point on behalf of the Guardian in my communication (see article entitled “Explanation of Passages in ‘America and the Most Great Peace’”, published in Bahá'í News February, 1934.—Editor) is, due to a misunderstanding on my part, incorrect. Khayrú'lláh could not have been one of these teachers, since these were sent to the United States in order to remedy the situation which Khayru'lláh himself had created through his treacherous actions against the Master and the Cause. A careful perusal of the paragraph on page 14 in “America and the Most Great Peace” makes that point indubitably clear. As to the five teachers referred to in that epistle of the Guardian, there must have been a typographical error, and instead of five we should, therefore, read only four. (signed) H. Rabbani.

I wish to add a few words in person to assure you and your dear and distinguished fellow-workers in the National Assembly of my fervent prayers for the success of your strenuous endeavors in connection with the ornamentation of the clerestory section of the Temple. May Bahá'u'lláh bless your efforts and crown your magnificent labors with signal success. (signed) Shoghi.-Haifa, March 24, 1934.

IN MEMORIAM

The believers are requested to remember in prayer the following Bahá'ís who have entered the Kingdom: Lorene Neville, Glendale, Calif. Henry Blankenbecker, Milwaukee, Wis. Mrs. C. B. Anderson, New York City. Mrs. C. L. Lincoln, Brooklyn.

THE QUESTION OF HUMANITARIAN RELIEF

It has been pointed out by a believer who has studied the teachings with unusual care and insight, that in the Bahá'í community when fully developed the practice of “charity” in the narrower meaning of that word will be rendered unnecessary. The House of Justice, from its resources derived not only from voluntary contributions but also from certain specified taxes, will as one of its functions come to the assistance of every deserving believer in distress. That relief will not be as “charity” but as a normal right arising from the very nature of a community based upon oneness and able, by the application of the teachings of Baha'u'llah, to abolish poverty at its source.

But that era has not yet been established. The believers today find themselves in a community whose spiritual laws are known but whose material powers and capacities are limited. The result is that conditions arise which Spiritual Assemblies find themselves apparently powerless to remedy. They are grieved as they feel themselves torn between the claims of true compassion and the need of concentrating their available resources upon such vital objects as the Temple.

The National Assembly understands that the Guardian has expressed the view that under present conditions a local Assembly which has before it a case of urgent distress should endeavor, first, to have it relieved by members of the believer's own family, and second, to exercise the rights of all citizens to employ all civil instruments of help and assistance. In many instances loving consultation will serve to remove certain obstacles which, perhaps unconsciously, have been the cause of the distress.

Most difficult and grievous of all are those cases which concern believers not members of an organized local community. The National Spiritual Assembly does not vote from the National Fund any appropriations for personal relief, for its resources are imperatively demanded for direct Bahá'í purposes the fulfilment of which brings us all gradually nearer the blessed day when the Faith of Bahá'u'lláh shall prevail, and existing causes of suffering be removed. Institutions described in the teachings will in the future be maintained in all communities for those who need home and care.

The subject is one which the National Assembly brings forward at this time in a tentative form, in the hope that suggestions emanating from local consultation will be made. The spirit of the Cause is such that some way must and will be found to remedy a general situation which may become even more serious before it is solved by the development of the World Order of Bahá'u'lláh. There may be individual believers in a position to offer a home to some believer whose difficulties are known to the National Assembly. Any and all advice and constructive suggestions will be deeply appreciated.

THE TRUE CHARACTER OF CONSULTATION

At a recent meeting of the National Spiritual Assembly the attention of the members was called by two Local Spiritual Assemblies to the fact that an anonymous letter has recently been issued and distributed to a number of American believers. Both these Assemblies protested that type of individual Bahá'í action.

After careful consideration, the National Spiritual Assembly voted to record the view, first, that anonymous communications are not in conformity with the spirit of the letter of the Bahá'í Teachings, and second, that the general distribution of any letter, whether anonymous or otherwise, by an individual believer to members of the American Bahá'í communities is an improper method of Bahá'í consultation.

It was further voted to bring this view to the notice of all Local Spiritual Assemblies in a general letter.
also to publish it in the next issue of BAHÁ'Í NEWS.

In this connection reference is made to the Guardian's instruction on page 23 of Bahá’í News of February, 1934: "Shoghi Effendi firmly believes that consultation must be maintained between the N. S. A. and the entire body of the believers, and that such consultation, while the Convention is not in session, can best be maintained through the agency of the local Assemblies, one of whose essential functions is to act as intermediaries between the local communities and their national representatives. The main purpose of the Nineteen Day Feasts is to enable individual believers to offer any suggestion to the local Assembly which in its turn will pass it to the N. S. A. The local Assembly is, therefore, the proper medium through which local Bahá’í communities can communicate with the body of the national representatives."

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE ANNOUNCEMENT

In years to come our simple attempts at publicity will seem almost childish and yet we would call your attention to the necessity for this simplicity. The average reader of the daily papers looks at the pictures and reads the head lines. Our efforts should be to present material that may interest not only this type of reader but those who read carefully the daily news.

With this thought in mind we must pattern our publicity to receive acceptance at the desk of the editor and be so worded as to arrest the attention of the reader. Editors seldom use a suggested heading and space should be left for this at the top of your copy. Your first paragraph should be the longest and should contain the most important facts which you wish to present. This is often used in full and the rest either discarded or greatly cut.

We cannot emphasize too much the necessity for persistence. That drops of water will wear away a stone has proven a fact in some of our Communities this year and the results have been satisfying. Editors should be approached with material which will awaken interest—either in the coming meeting, the meeting of the night before, or an event which is anticipated. This publicity is your opportunity to speak with the public—scrutinize it closely—see if it answers the requirements suggested in the publicity letter in the January 1934 News Letter. Read your material out loud and see how it would sound if you were a disinterested reader. Take it to the editor with the thought that you are serving the Cause of God to the best of your ability.

We suggest to publicity chairmen a careful study of the recent letters from Shoghi Effendi. In these are many paragraphs that should be used to create interest. Herein lies the material which we must present to the public another year and we ask your cooperation in this study that we may be prepared to use this material that is without equal, in educating the public in the Cause of Bahá’u’lláh."

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE, RUTH RANDALL BROWN, Chairman.

AMERICA'S CONTRIBUTION TO PURCHASE OF MT. CARMEL LAND

"In this connection I feel I must express Shoghi Effendi's deep and abiding gratitude to the American Bahá’í community for their truly remarkable response to his request for meeting the emergency which the enemies of the Faith had created through their treacherous and malignant action, and in the very international center of the Cause. Their never-to-be-forgotten assistance in the matter passed, indeed, all admiration and praise, and constitutes an example which the entire Bahá’í world must adopt and follow." (signed) H. Rabban.

(Postscript to the above letter.) "With the assurance of my continued prayers for the friends who through their unsparking and self-sacrificing efforts are so effectively promoting the national as well as international interests of the Faith of Bahá’u’lláh." (signed) Shoghi. Haifa, Palestine, April 14, 1934.

CENTRAL STATES SUMMER SCHOOL ANNOUNCEMENT

A Summer School Session for Young People

At the invitation of the Lima group sixteen young people from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin met in Lima, Ohio for a conference during the Easter week end, March 30 to April 1. At this time certain important changes were made by them concerning the Central States Summer School plan for young people. It is to be noted that the time of the Youth session, previously scheduled for July, has been changed to June 25-28, inclusive. It will immediately precede the general session.

The young Bahá’ís are urged to bring non-Bahá’í friends to this conference and do all in their power to make it a big success. Many are planning to attend both sessions which will cover two weeks in all.

The four-day youth conference is planned as follows:

Morning—
Devotionals—Mrs. Baker.

The New World Order—Forum conducted by Harlan Ober.

Effective Leadership — Marion Holley.

Spiritual Aspects of Bahá’í Teachings—Mrs. Ford.

Afternoon free for recreation and companionship.

Evening—

Bible Study and Comparative Religion—James McCormick.

Rates for the four days, meals and sleeping apartments:

Dormitory—$5.00.

Double room—$7.00.

Single room—$8.00.

Louluhen Ranch is situated on M15 about nine miles from Flint and about fifty from Detroit. Trains or bus will be met at Flint if notice is given in advance.

Reservations should be made as early as possible with Mrs. L. W. Eggleston, 201 East Kirby Avenue, Detroit, Michigan.

GREEN ACRE ANNOUNCEMENT

Green Acre, as you know, offers to every Bahá’í the opportunity of a vacation in the country together with study of the teachings under competent teachers. You may take part in meditations and courses in the morning, and play tennis, swim, make pottery, or walk in the pines in the afternoon. There are frequent intimate talks by the fire, or on Mrs. Schoppfrocher’s delightful porch, in the eve-
The Love of God—The principles on which it is based. As we labor for the propagation of His Faith through a clearer appreciation of so sacred a trust, is for obvious reasons the object of the constant endeavor of each one of its loyal adherents. An exact understanding of the significance of the Faith prepared for the special purpose of meeting the need for a condensed statement of fact which can be supplied to newspaper editors, encyclopaedias, and various organizations and by them kept on file for reference whenever necessary. The Outline is a four page folder, standard letterhead size, adapted for convenient filing.

In addition to the distribution being made by the National Assembly and by the Publicity Committee, it is thought that local Assemblies can use a number of copies for general teaching purposes, such as supplying one to local religious, peace, educational and other organizations and clubs. Sold in lots of one hundred, $3.00 per hundred.

Another recent addition to the periodical literature is the reprint in pamphlet form of the article entitled The Bahá’í Faith by Horace Holley, published in Unity (Chicago) during February. Sold in lots of fifteen copies, $1.00 per fifteen. This is one of the first statements on the Cause which presents the administrative order to the general public.

The Publishing Committee is engaged in working out plans for the publication of the following books and pamphlets when and as finances permit: Seven Valleys and Four Valleys, revealed by Bahá’u’lláh newly translated by Dr. Ali Kuli Khan at the Guardian’s request; Mysticism and the Bahá’í Teachings, by Ruhi Effendi Afian, being the series of articles which recently appeared in the World of Unity; The Supreme Affiliation, by Alfred E. Lunt, the article on Bahá’í economic teachings which appeared in The Bahá’í Magazine; and The Bahá’í House of Worship, by Dr. Genevie Coy, a pamphlet prepared under the auspices of the Committee on Free Literature. An arrangement is also under consideration by the National Spiritual Assembly by which Security for a Failing World, by Dr. Stanwood Cobb, can be published by a non-Bahá’í firm at an early date.

A new catalog of Bahá’í literature, listing all books and pamphlets now in print, will be issued as soon as final arrangements are concluded for the new titles referred to in the preceding paragraph. Copies will be distributed to all local Assemblies without charge.

For Meditation

Portion of the Master’s Tablet on Love

O thou who are attracted by the Fragrances of God:
Know thou assuredly that—
Love is the Mystery of Divine Revelations:
Love is the Effulgent Manifestation:
Love is the Spiritual Fulfilment:
Love is the Light of the Kingdom:
Love is the Breath of the Holy Spirit inspired into the human spirit:
Love is the cause of the Manifestation of the Truth (God) in the phenomenal world:
Love is the necessary tie proceeding from the realities of things through Divine Creation:
Love is the means of the most great happiness in both the material and Spiritual worlds:
Love is a light of guidance in the dark night:
Love is the bond between the Creator and the creature in the inner world:
Love is the cause of development to every enlightened man.

Love is the Greatest Law in this vast universe of God:
Love is the one law which causes and controls order among the existing atoms:
Love is the universal magnetic power between the planets and the stars shining in the lofty firmament:
Love is the cause of unfoldment, to a searching mind, of the secrets deposited in the universe by the Infinite.

Love is the spirit of life in the bountiful body of the world:
Love is the cause of the civilization of nations in this mortal world:

Love is the highest honor to every righteous nation:

The people who are confirmed therein are indeed glorified by the Supreme Concource, the angels of the Heaven and the dwellers in the Kingdom of El-Á Bahá. But, if the hearts of the people become void of the Divine Grace — The Love of God — they wander in the desert of ignorance, descend to the depths of ruin, and fall to the abyss of despair where there is no refuge. They are like insects living on the lowest plane.

This is the Path of El-Á Bahá.
This is the Religion of El-Á Bahá.
This is the Law of El-Á Bahá.

He who has not this has no portion with El-Á Bahá.

To strive to obtain a more adequate understanding of the significance of Bahá’u’lláh’s stupendous Revelation, it is in my unalterable conviction, remain the first obligation and the object of the constant endeavor of each one of its loyal adherents. An exact and thorough comprehension of so vast a system, so sublime a revelation, so sacred a trust, is for obvious reasons beyond the reach and ken of our finite minds. We can however, and it is our bounden duty to, seek to derive fresh inspiration and added sustenance as we labor for the propagation of His Faith through a clearer apprehension of the truths it enshrines and the principles on which it is based.—Shoghi Effendi.
CONVENTION NUMBER

BAHA'I NEWS

Published by
The National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States and Canada
General Office: Evergreen Cabin, West Englewood, New Jersey

NO. 84 JUNE, 1934

THE SPIRIT OF THE CONVENTION

Reported by Louis G. Gregory

The Twenty-sixth Annual Convention, held in the foundation hall of the Baha'i Temple at Wilmette, covered the period from May 31 to June 3 and assembled the largest and most representative gathering ever assembled for such a purpose. Two-thirds of the accredited delegates, representing communities over a vast area, attended in person. The others registered their voting wills by mail. The visiting friends, all intensely interested, swelled the numbers so as to fill the hall at every session.

The great magnet of attraction was the completed dome of the Mashriqu'il-Adhkar, a work which crowned the loving sacrifices of earnest souls over a long period of time. This wonderful architectural triumph is beautiful beyond description. No picture does it justice. Its almost ethereal loveliness must be seen to be fully prized. While charming from every angle of observation, one of its most wonderful effects and open to the gaze of thousands daily, is the approach from the north side of Sheridan Road. At a late afternoon hour, reflecting the mellow glow of the sunshine, the undecorated parts hidden by a great tree at the head of the thoroughfare, it seemed as if the great shining orb of the moon had descended upon earth. The artistic decorations so unique and striking, the ridges of the dome meeting so gracefully and prayerfully, the perfect curve which greets the landscape, the color effect which so brightly and harmoniously reflects the light, combine to impress the beholder with joyous veneration. It is not to be wondered at that this noble fane challenges the admiration of a great and ever-widening circle. Many beautiful temples of course can be found in all parts of the civilized world. But where, save at Ishqabad, is one that compares with this? Where such striking originality of design or perfection of detail? Where such symbols of spiritual realities as here? Where a purpose so sublime? Where a power so effective? Where significances so subtle? Where a faith so universal? Here embodied is a charm that delights the eye; a spiritual magnetism that wins the heart. Who can gaze upon it and not be moved? It is God's very own Temple of Light, built after His own hands and the loving sacrifices of earnest souls which, under instructions from Haifa, has become a very effective teaching instrument;

THE GUARDIAN'S MESSAGE TO THE CONVENTION

American believers' inspired leadership steadily unfolding to Baha'i's world over (the) potentialities (of) the majesty of God's (in) the Javier Faith of Baha'u'llah. Their unerring vision conceived its matchless design. 'Abdu'l-Baha's own hands laid its cornerstone. Their dynamic faith reared its structure. Their sustained self-sacrifice crowned it with immortal glory. May (the) flame (of) their unconquerable enthusiasm continue glowing undimmed in their hearts till its naked frame is enveloped in its shining mantle. (signed) Shoghi (Cablegram received June 4, 1934).

The outstanding feature of the first day's session was the report of the National secretary, Mr. Horace Holley, who led up to the body of his report by reviewing the progress of the past decade. This developed among other things the Baha'i News, The Plan of Unified Action and the progress in Temple construction, with spiritual enlightenment and progress on a scale even wider. There are now fifty-nine Spiritual Assemblies in various parts of America and from one to two hundred isolated believers who are the nuclei of future Assemblies. Among other things mentioned was the Baha'i Magazine which, under instructions from Haifa, has become a very effective teaching instrument; the real estate holdings of the Cause, probably soon to be increased by the addition of the estate of the late Mrs. Agnes S. Parsons of Dublin, N. H., and swelling the total assets to more than one million dollars valuation: mention of the three summer schools; the Guardian’s recent letter on the Dispensation of Bahá’u’lláh, also showing how exalted is the station of every true believer, a great incentive to meet and overcome present problems; the Guardian’s explanation of the standards required for membership in each Bahá’í community; elucidation of the relationship between the National Spiritual Assembly and the Annual Convention with the clearly defined jurisdiction of each; the acquisition of additional land near the Shrine of the Bab on Mount Carmel; relief extended Bahá’ís in other lands by the American friends; the holding of memorial meetings for the late Mrs. Keith Ransom-Kehler and the late Mrs. Agnes S. Parsons; the placing of the activities of all traveling teachers while in any Bahá’í community under the supervision of the local Spiritual Assembly, or in the absence of such an assembly under the National Teaching Committee; special emphasis upon the study of our Guardian’s New World Order letters; commitment against any institution of salaried teachers with a view to making teaching work the responsibility of all as far as possible instead of a few; the right of individuals from time to time to aid the Bahá’í community; elucidation of the attitude of the National Spiritual Assembly and of work done made up the most comprehensive report of the national secretary ever given to a Bahá’í convention. It was put in a concise and lucid style and was impressive of the growth of the activities of the Faith.

Finances

The report of finances, submitted by the treasurer and assistant treasurer, showed that approximately $150,000 from all sources has been raised during the current year, this being more than $65,000 more than the previous year, eloquent testimony of consecration to God, especially considering the few believers and the financial stringency. About $2,580 is now urgently needed each month to meet the current obligations of the Cause, or about $100 per day, this for contracts, maintenance and current activities.

Green Acre

The report of the Green Acre Trustees showed how the activities of the summer colony have been scaled down to the lowest minimum of expense so as to save funds for the Temple. This activity ought to be self-supporting, without drawing upon the national funds. The passing of Mrs. Lucas has restored the studio used by her for the general use of Green Acre. Green Acre is considered a unique asset of the Bahá’í Cause in America. It is greater than is our capacity to use its resources with full effectiveness. Its future development is along educational and cultural lines. It is not yet impressed upon all the believers as their responsibility, each Bahá’í being a part of three summer schools.

Archives

In the rear of the Convention Hall the Archives Committee placed on display a number of sacred relics, among them an outer garment, or aba, formerly worn by Bahá’u’lláh. The collection was viewed with deep interest by the friends. The committee reported having in their possession two large cases containing archives and original records of the Temple, large volumes of correspondence, printed matter and clippings from magazines and newspapers. Eventually all such records will be placed in a room especially prepared in the Temple foundation. Local Assembly corresponding secretaries are asked to send in Tablets of ‘Abdu’l-Bahá with photographic copies and other interesting sacred relics. One of our Oriental brothers present described the archives on Mount Carmel and the other urged the exhibition of sacred relics in such a way as to inspire only the deepest reverence.

Necrology

The Convention received the sad news of the passing of Mr. Chris Jansen of Racine, one of the old and steadfast friends. He was killed in an automobile accident which also injured several members of his family. Prayers for the progress of the departed and his acceptance at the Threshold of Abha were read by direction of the Convention. Our prayers and hopes also go out for the speedy recovery of his loved ones.

Bahá’í Youth

One of the most touching and beautiful incidents of the four days was the tributes paid the older believers by three representatives of the youth group. It so happened that each of these three representatives was the second generation of believers in her family. Each showed the result of Bahá’i training. But the tribute was not one influenced by filial love but rather by their sense of justice and spiritual values. It was the frank admission of their inability to attract their fellow youth to the Faith without the aid of their elders. They believed in their own greater preparation and efficiency, not doubtless due to the exacting culture and higher educational standards of today; yet despite all this their need of the cooperation of their elders in the teaching work was naively and charmingly expressed. The older generation of Bahá’ís is proud of the youth in the Faith and view with great satisfaction their signs of increasing power. A closer cooperation between youth and age will perhaps be the means of regeneration to the former and vitality to the latter, all the better to stimulate service and round out the circle of unity. The work of this committee in making national and international contacts, the technique of speaking, articles written by young Bahá’ís, letters written embodying peace plans, presentation of a bibliography of economics, praise of maturity and reports of activities from various cities, accounts of the unusual successes of the youth of Montreal in their teaching activities, an eloquent tribute to the youthful martyrs of Persia, were some of the high lights of this admirable report.

The National Teaching Committee

The National Teaching Committee with the direction of the most dynamic of all Bahá’í activities and fulfilling in its plans the very purpose of divine revelation, presented an elaborate report of a range of activities in all parts of America and the fine successes of teachers everywhere. This report was a most impressive document and set the Convention aflame with enthusiasm. It was read with great earnestness by one of the most devoted teachers. It sketched briefly the work and plans at home and abroad. The psychology of teaching; the method of approach; the awakening of the world as shown by frequent inquiries; the groups that enter the Faith following the classes of Orell Rexford; the services rendered by radio talks; the need of teachers avoiding back-biting or even listening to those who thus waste their time; emphasis on the New World Order; severance and utter dependence upon Bahá'u'lláh as the motivating principle; attraction of souls by deeds of service as well as words of love; the overcoming of difficulties by faith and assurance; and the victory that will inevitably crown the efforts of every sincere protagonist of Truth were some of the gems of reality that adorned this fine report. This led to one of the most constructive and heartening consultations of the convention as delegate after delegate arose and told of various methods of approach and victories in the field of teaching. The teaching committee is now engaged in making a card index of the different Bahá'í communities. Isolated Bahá'ís if they live near enough may join nearby communities.

Teachers should report their work with some degree of detail so as to lay a foundation for future contacts and service. It is our hope that the nine recommendations of this committee will be circulated so as to reach every Bahá'í in the world.

The N. S. A. Answers Questions

Explanations offered in answer to questions are that the members of the National Spiritual Assembly are not building experts, for which reason they must connect with some reputable builder, such an expert as Mr. Earley who is unique in his special line of construction. They must also employ supervising engineers, such as the Research Service, to overlook and keep tab on the work. It was through the Research Service that the Trustees found that it would be far less expensive to build the entire structure first, later adding decorations, rather than to build and decorate each section with a temporary roof afterward to be removed. What was saved through this departure from the original plan was more than the fees of the said Research Service. With this service we have also the high standards, experience and enthusiasm of a Bahá'í. Fees do not pay for this quality of service.

The chairman stated that the believers are attaining to a very great spiritual privilege. Persian believers entered the Cause giving everything that they possessed. They thus proved their love for God above everything else. This is a demonstration of the power and efficiency that is to save the world. Do we arise to give all we possess? Anything that detracts from such a will to do is not in the minds of the National Spiritual Assembly.

It was further stated that when the local Spiritual Assemblies begin to function more efficiently, they will lift much of the burden of details which now largely engross the time and energies of the National Spiritual Assembly, which would not find it necessary to meet so frequently. At such meetings also they would have time for more mature consultation in shaping the general policies and plans of the Cause. The election of members according to Bahá'í Administration called for the choice of those alone who embody the standards set in the Guardian's letters. The Guardian was quoted as saying that the time was not remote when the Cause would have believers enough with the qualifications needed for such distinction in service.

Lighten the Guardian's Labors

A word came from a former member of the National Spiritual Assembly, Mr. Mountfort Mills, saying that Shoghi Effendi is thoroughly tired out. It can hardly be otherwise in Haifa, when all matters from the details of repairing a pump up to those of world importance are referred to him. The bulk of his work is correspondence, letters coming mostly from the United States and Canada. Advise friends not to send him letters during the summer months, thus giving him more time on his vacation for reflection and meditation. It was stated that this letter of Mr. Mills was not official, but was written with the full knowledge and approval of the Guardian.

A Convention delegate shared with the friends a letter written by a young Bahá'í on a pilgrimage who gave a vivid picture of the very dynamic life... and services of the Guardian and of the most impersonal way in which the greatest of living personalities reaches conclusions about people and things, without coloring a single conclusion with his own likes or dislikes. What a sign of reverence is this and what a proof of "unerring guidance."

Open Feast: Mr. Earley's Address

Mr. Earley, the contractor of the dome, a very pleasing personality, addressed the friends in an open feast in the Temple foundation. He was introduced as an artist, sculptor, architect and engineer in the realm of the concrete, both brain and heart in it. He said in part:

"My dear friends: just as you are the representatives of the people ordering it, so I am the representative of the craftsmen building it. Mr. Taylor and I have brought with us some of the work of the Temple in order that you may see it and feel it, put your hands upon it and see its reality. They are stones, almost precious stones. In planning the work there was a choice between two methods: Ornament united with structure or ornament separated from structure. The latter was chosen. The construction was steel ribs with straight members tying them all together. In this it has been necessary to fit each separate piece in and impose over the steel structure another upon which the weight of the outer envelope would rest. Additional steel has been added to strengthen the dome, but it is done at the lowest cost at which a dome can be built. It is the first time this plan has been tried with steel building. The elements have been made from a non-corroding compound of metal, steel and chromium. It exists now for the first time and thus could not have been constructed even ten years ago. This dome does not consist in just the spherical part. It is dome, ribs and base. The clerestory is the base of the dome. Estimates of the dome and ribs are separate. This dome is made in such a way that it can be taken apart. Materials will not endure forever. Great cathedrals show deterioration. In this plan of construction any deteriorating part can be replaced without disturbing the rest of the structure. These technical questions have been presented to the American Institute.

"The Temple is attracting universal attention. It is casting a spell over the world. In the building of the hemispherical structure it is necessary for all work to go on at the same time, thus avoiding an unequal pressure upon the steel structure. It is in lesser pieces and constitutes a flexible structure to be built in parts. It involves much labor and sacrifices. The special equipment necessary for this work should not be lost. It would be hard to replace and would involve loss to both builders and workers. Plans and ways are both new. The old and natural method of expression is as the language of childhood. The workers are responding to the spirit of the architect. They love their work as a real asset. Their organization must be kept intact. The dome will not be a unit without the lower part. Completed it will be an expression both of the ideal and of your culture and selection. Look at and touch those pieces that have been assembled upon the ground. They are a credit and a joy to you. The spell of the Temple thrills us all. We feel it not only in our work studios but everywhere. Its material is plastic and new for a new age, when there shall be a new architecture and a new religion. It is the beginning of a new epoch in construction. There are many homes in the United States. This means the acceptance by the world of your plans and methods. The workers cannot go forward further toward they receive more definite wishes from you. This enterprise must go forward so that the spell of the Temple may not be broken."

Appreciating the significance of the above remarks, the chairman of the feast, Mr. Albert Windust, considered them the outstanding event of the Convention. Among the other speakers at this feast was Miss Agnes Alexander of Honolulu and Japan. She carried the great message to Japan and has there held aloft the banner of the Greatest Name. She was one of the most interesting visitors and speakers during the Convention period. It was her first convention in fifteen years.

The Election

After a long period of consultation followed by meditation and prayer, the new National Spiritual Assembly the personnel of which proved to be a renewal of the old, was elected, which may be regarded as endorsement of constructive services during the past year. The election tells of a majority of the entire electorate, unlike the pluralities that have elected some members in recent years and which of course are entirely allowable.

Reports of Teachers

The National Teaching Committee asked that some of the teachers in various parts of the country be permitted to present their work. This proved to be one of the most exhilarating and pleasing features of those stirring days.

Orcella Rexford reported her last stirring campaign in Duluth, Minn., urging upon the believers to do effective follow-up work so as to increase their numbers. She also suggested the study of some accepted manual of parliamentary law as a means of helping consultation.

Mrs. Elizabeth Greenleaf, who spent the winter in the far South, reported a ripe harvest and told how conditions have changed. People are now longing for light. Let us all make ourselves teachers wherever we go, was her exhortation.

Mrs. Ruth Moffatt felt that organizing many study classes was now our manifest duty. People may come and ask for the message. Radio broadcasts of the teachings are now bringing astonishing results.

Mr. Howard Ives spoke of the principles of teaching, with special mention of the Instructions of 'Abdu'l-Baha to Mrs. Lua Getsinger when sent to teach in India. He mentioned full dedication of the teacher to the Word of God. A good tree will yield good fruit even to those who throw stones at it!

Mrs. Mabel Ives who with her husband is now located at Knoxville, Tenn., reported on conditions in that stronghold of orthodoxy. She felt that there were great hopes for the youth and pleaded for greater emphasis upon the importance of their training in summer schools.

Miss Alma Knobloch unfolded the Instructions of 'Abdu'l-Baha for the increase of the Cause in Stuttgart. It is to train a few thoroughly. If one tree is set afire the forest will become ablaze. One or two or three well trained can make ten Bahá'ís in a year through divine favor. If these in turn are well trained they will become the cause of guidance to many more. Miss Knobloch went to Germany alone, but as a result of her labors there were three hundred believers to greet the Master on his arrival there.

Miss Agnes Alexander went to Japan at the request of 'Abdu'l-Bahá, after she had discovered the great Truth from a returning pilgrim while in Rome. She is the grand-daughter of Christian missionaries who went from Kentucky to the Sandwich Island many years ago. Her home is Honolulu, but for years she has labored for the Faith in Japan where she expects to return. She believes that arguments and loving faith open the doors of all hearts. Japan is illuminated through her work and Korea, the Hermit Nation, has been penetrated by the great message. An eminent Japanese gave her letters of introduction in Korea when he was assured that her mission was not political.

Miss Fanny Knobloch laid stress upon happiness and enthusiasm in teaching. She related many amusing stories, one of them about a group whose spokesman considered her mission silly because she was not following the usual plans of tourists, but afterwards remained for hours listening to the teachings when better informed of her real mission. She approved frankness of statement in reply to questions whether about what the teacher knows or knows not. This inspires the confidence of hearers. In all past outpourings of truth no such supreme blessings have appeared as those of today. Miss Knobloch is one of three sisters, all of whom have done great service in teaching. The baby sister, Mrs. Pauline Hannen, is the spiritual mother of the whole family, and of many others.

Children's Education

The Committee on Teaching and Training Children presented a very illuminating report. It traced the steps beginning with the small child, and with prayers, memorizing the creative Word, instructions in Baha'i history, the principles of the Cause; up to the clubs and other circles formed for adolescents. The bounty of the Holy Spirit is showered upon these meetings and they show much gladness. The matter of transporting the children and other problems are met and overcome. Teaching material, made up of a compilation especially adapted to youth, Bahá'í stories, Bible stories, stories of the other great religions, can be used in this course. Material for distribution, prepared by this committee, will be available soon.

Race Amity Report

The Race Amity Report reviewing the work of the year, the authoritative utterances of the Manifestation and of the Master, the powerful enthusiasm created by the messages of the Guardian, problems confronting amity workers through the disturbed conditions of the times, analysis of the social order, receptivity of minds and hearts, and recommendations of methods new and old, brought to the convention a most spirited period of consultation. So many wished to express the overflow of their hearts that the time set was voted extended. The Convention adopted the Committee's report and also the following resolution presented by Mr. Philip Sprague of New York:

"We recommend that the National Spiritual Assembly direct the Secretary of the Amity Committee, send a circular letter to the Assemblies on the magnitude of the amity work, preferably substantiating their references from the teachings."

Mr. Sprague felt that it was unfortunate that some of the friends felt that their stand in this matter should reflect public opinion rather than the Divine Teachings. The Guardian had in his talks to himself while at Haifa as a pilgrim, stressed the importance of being firm and outstanding in race relations; both in our homes, pleasures and social life, we should include the colored race. Stands and attitudes that cause criticism of the Bahá'ís are really good! He felt that a recent circular sent out by one of the friends was good, but would be far stronger if sent out by the N. S. A. To Miss Pumpelly the Guardian has said similar things about the friends being firm and courageous in their stand in race relations.

Mr. Lunt said that the friends should never adopt a policy of "Safety First!" Had the Persian believers in the early days adopted such a policy the Cause would have never spread. When we open our arms to our colored brethren we truly reflect the teachings. The Orientals stood up against the combined attacks of both church and state.

The secretary of this committee, in a brief summing up for the committee, expressed gratitude and appreciation for all those in any section and to any degree who were aiding this work it is not yet beyond the pioneer stage. Its advance necessitates an evolved technique of publicity sharing the same privileges and successes. The friends should acquire the use of newspaper terms, the easier to make an approach so that the rank and file of people may be informed. Faithful and wise publicity evokes a wonderful attraction of people to the Cause. This was illustrated by various interesting stories.
General Survey

The Convention had its difficulties due to the intensive work of four days of ceaseless concentration and occasional clashes of personalities, all of which it met in a devoted, dignified and healing way. It was glorious in bringing out the hidden powers of the Cause as well as the latent capacities of many individuals. The extremes of sacrifice now beginning to appear in the west are doubtless a reflection of “that fierce and crimson Light” which in the early days made the east so shining and glorious. The ideal of devotion to the Administration upheld by one of the most influential delegates was nothing less than the standard raised in the Dawnbreakers, one which if upheld will soon enable the divine Faith to overpower mankind. Our noble and tireless workers are worthy of support. Also it is worthy of mention that the delegates rose to a height, above personalities, when in a dignified yet genial way they maintained their rights as a deliberative as well as an elective body.

All were refreshed by the fine constructive reports of work done and it was regrettable that due to limit of time all the workers could not be heard.

A bright feature of consultation was the flow of wit and humor for which the delegates from St. Paul, Oakland and one of the Chicago group were the chief fountains. This enlivened the proceedings, made serious things lighter. More indication of the capacity of the delegates rose to a height, above personalities, when in a dignified yet genial way they maintained their rights as a deliberative as well as an elective body.

The ANNUAL ELECTION

The electoral body consists of 95 delegates. Only 93 ballots were cast this year, one delegate having suffered an accident immediately prior to the Convention, and the delegate elected by the Bahá’í community of Long Beach, Calif., being disqualified on account of the fact that the community failed to elect a Spiritual Assembly on April 21, 1934.
